116TH YEAR - NO. 63

The great milk caper
DIXON COUNTY SHERIFF Dean Chase was sent packing DIXON COUNTY SHERIFF Dean Chase was sent packing repeatedly Wednesday by a reluctant milk cow to the delight of youngsters of the Allen School. Chase and School Principal John Werner challenged students in Susan Von Minden's 4th grade class to read more than 40 books in a month or they would milk a cow on the schoolhouse lawn. The kids read 70 books. Werner, a former farm boy, had no problems with the milking assignment, but the good sheriff proved he was no "hand at it."

Support not surprising

Turnout bugs Conway

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

State Sen. Gerald Conway was a little disappointed in the results of Tuesday's election but if he's concerned about any one thing, it wasn't that the vote to retain him in office was against his campaign, it was more that voter turnouts were

In Tuesday's election, Conway lost Wayne, Dakota, and Thurston Counties to challenger Kurt Hohenstein, the county attorney from Dakota County who's challenging Conway's bid. The only county Conway won was in Cuming County, which he gained by only

But the state senator said his reelection campaign really hasn't got into full swing. He said in the primary, his focus was on making every effort possible to see that Amendment I passed.

"My first reaction was one of disappointment" he said. "Naturally, any time you're on a ballot, you desire to do well but I didn't do as well as I had hoped to do."

WITH JUST over 5,000 votes cast in the district for the primary, Conway said he thinks there will be over 12,000 votes cast in November's general election. He said the primary wasn't a good test because it was a reaction of people who are very partisan oriented.

Conway said Tuesday's election demonstrates that the support he received is indicative of the early stages of a campaign which hasn't begun to really turn its wheels.

I need to share with the voters all that I've done for the district," he said. "I helped bring Timpte and First National Omaha to Wayne and Con Agra facility to Dakota City. This election is the result of a very small turnout of people.

Conway's history in the primary hasn't always been favorable. In the last two elections where he's won a seat in the legislature, he finished the primary with between 44 and 45 percent support, he said.

CONWAY SAID prior to the primary, the only thing people were talking about was the tax issue. He said people were not interested, to any great degree, in which candidates

"I felt that putting the tax issue and the solving the tax crisis for Northeast Nebraska and all of Nebraska in total was probably more important than to convince people that I'm working hard and doing the job in their best interest," he said.

The next step of Conway's campaign will be to tell voters what he has done and what he believes he will continue to do for them. He said with the loss of three Northeast Nebraska senators, the region needs strong leadership over the next four

Chamber sends out survey

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce is launching a survey of rural residents to determine what shopping habits they have.

The survey will be by random sample and distributed through the Morning Shopper, according to Curt Wilwerding, executive director of the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

We want to determine how effective the Wayne merchants are in meeting rural residents household needs for products and what services they believe in Wayne are viable," Wilwerding said. "We want to find out how they feel about the marketing efforts of local businesses and use this survey as a tool to help Wayne provide for people's needs."

SURVEYING rural residents comes as the result of the START survey conducted in Wayne in 1989. Following the survey of residents who live in Wayne, a similar survey was conducted of Wayne State College students. This is the third and final phase of determining shopper's attitudes toward Wayne's businesses.

According to Ken Hallgren, a consultant to the Wayne chamber, the study is being used by Wayne merchants to better plan overall community development.

NEBRASKA

According to the research proposal portion of the survey, this particular study will be used to close the information gap related to the marketing effectiveness of Wayne businesses to rural Wayne area resi-

WILWERDING said the survey will be advertised in the Morning Shopper in its May 27 edition tion. He said the deadline for returning the survey will be June 11.

In addition to completing the survey, rural residents who return it to the chamber will receive four free brat dinners per household for the bratwurst feed, sponsored by the Chamber on June 11.

Once all the surveys have been returned, Sam Schroeder, a member of the Chamber agribusiness council, will train volunteers to tabulate results on computers. From there, the survey results will help deter-mine rural shoppers' attitudes toward spending money in Wayne.

"We're hoping we have a good cross section of results from rural Wayne residents," Wilwerding said. "It's important for people to respond to this so that we have a good idea what services we're doing a good job of providing, as well as to help us determine what expectations they have that we aren't fulfilling."

Nix electoral college

Exon sponsors legislation

U.S. Senator Jim Exon (D-Nebr.) introduced a constitutional amendment to ban the Electoral College and instead require a presi dential candidate to win at least 50 percent of the popular vote and at least one-third of the states to be elected president. If no candidate does both, a run-off election would be held between the top two vote-

"The Electoral College is a relic which has outlived its usefulness," Exon said. "It is time to do away with the Electoral College and make every vote across the country count."

The Electoral College is a group of citizens chosen by the voters from each state to elect the President and Vice President. Each state has as many electoral votes as it has senators and representatives in Congress In all states but Nebraska and Maine, if a candidate wins that state by even one vote, he or she will win the entire electoral vote of that democratic institution," Exon said in a speech on the Senate floor. "With its winner-take-all tradition, votes for opposing candidates in each state are essentially eliminated from consideration. A presidential ticket in theory only needs to win the 11 largest states, even by the very narrowest margins and lose all other states, even by significant margins, to be elected, regardless of the total popular vote.

Exon, who first introduced this legislation in 1988, said there has been three times in our nation's history when presidents were elected without receiving a majority of the popular vote.

With an exciting three-way race for the White House in the offing, there can be no better time to take a very close look at the electoral process," Exon said.

Exon noted that Nebraska has reformed its Electoral College at the state level by awarding electors on a proportional basis, and said that the direct election of the president would be the most democratic approach.

Nelson proclaims egg month

Governor Ben Nelson proclaimed May as "Egg Month" in Nebraska during a recent Egg-citing breakfast attended by state senators, industry leaders, and media guests. The official proclamation acknowledged the important contributions of the egg industry to the state's economy.

Director of Agriculture Larry Sitzman also saluted the egg industry and noted that egg production in Nebraska is increasing. "There are currently over six million egg layers in commercial flocks in the state. If current expansion plans become a reality, commercial egg production in the state will involve approxieggs by the end of the year," Sitzman said.

"One of the reasons overall poultry production has experienced phenomenal growth in Nebraska is the nearby sources of feed which represent about 60-70% of total production costs, Sitzman said.

Sitzman also noted the poultry industry is responsive to consumer needs. "Advancements in the diets and breeding of laying hens has reduced the amount of cholesterol in an egg," Sitzman said. "Today, a mately 10 million laying hens which will produce 2.45 billion of cholesterol, not the old figure of of cholesterol, not the old figure of 274 milligrams.

> Susan Joy, Manager of the Poultry and Egg Division, added that increased usage and new mar-kets for processed egg products have been factors in the growth of the industry. Joy said that labor effi-ciency in food service industries like hospitals, restaurants, and bakeries has contributed to the demand for a variety of processed eggs. Nebraska continues to lead the nation in dried egg production, she said

Board sails through agenda

By LaVon Anderson Assistant Editor

The Educational Service Unit One (ESU 1) board of directors sailed through a light agenda last Tuesday night, with board members approving a list of several building changes on the new ESU 1 facility currently under construction in Ground breaking for the new building took place on April 28 at a site located directly west of the Wayne America water tower.

The building, which is expected be completed in September, will house the unit's two Wayne programs — the Wayne Children's Development Center and the Wayne Learning Center.

The board adjourned into executive session to discuss legal avenues for possible sale of the present Wayne Learning Center, however no action was taken upon reconvening.

The Wayne Learning Center is now located in a building owned by ESU I on the east edge of Wayne.

BOARD members Tuesday night heard a report on school contracts by Administrator Rodney Garwood and approved 1992-93 classified employee contracts and the classified salary schedule.

They also heard a report by the selection committee that they are still interviewing candidates to replace Keith Pfeifly of Homer, who resigned from the ESU 1 board of directors last month and announced that he and his wife have accepted pastorate positions in western Ne-Following a report by Special Education Director Duane Tappe, the ESU 1 board voted unanimously to reduce the amount of class days during the summer at the Wavne Children's Development Center and Wayne Learning Center. Tappe, who pointed out that he had visited with parents of students involved in the programs, said the Wayne programs are not only the longest running programs in the state, but possibly in the nation.

"We have been reducing the pro grams gradually," said Tappe, adding that students and teachers at both locations this year will have four weeks off in July.

Hospice expands area

Hospice of Siouxland is expanding it's service area into Thurston County in Nebraska. As a result, we will be holding a volunteer training session at the Pender Community Hospital in Pender during the month of June.

A Hospice volunteer training will be held on Monday and Wednesday afternoons for three weeks during the month of June at the Pender Community Hospital in Pender. The dates for the classes are June 8, 10, 15, 17, 22 and 24 from 12:30 to 4 p.m.

Hospice of Siouxland cares for individuals who have a life threatening illness. Volunteers most often provide emotional support to our patients, their families and the bereaved. Sometimes when someone is seriously ill, their families begin to pull away because they are afraid they will disturb the person and family members are sometimes hesitant to bother.

Some of the topics covered in the training are Hospice goals, philosophy and services, confidentiality and patient rights, psychological and physical issues surrounding death and dying, communication skills, spiritual needs and issues, bereavement, family dynamics and coping skills, documentation and roles and responsibility of the volunteer.

Trained Hospice Volunteers are introduced into homes as friends who want to help. Volunteers do a variety of activities which might include the following - read to a patient, cook a meal, talk, listen, hold a hand, share the joys and sorrows of life, or do anything a friend

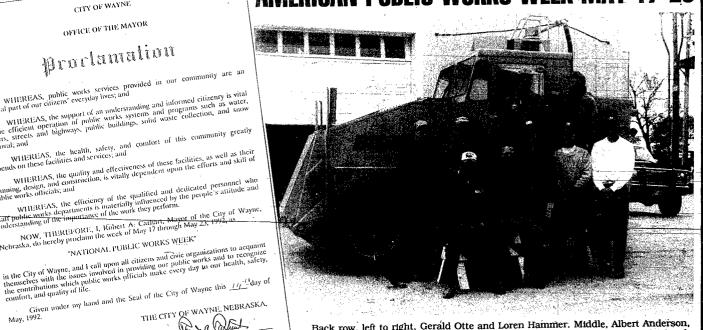

Volunteer work through Hospice can be very fulfilling. One benefit is knowing that you have made a significant difference in someone else's life. There is no charge for the training. If you are interested in taking the training, please contact Hospice of Siouxland in Sioux City by calling (712) 233-1298 or 1-800-

ISU picks area pupil as scholar

Jennifer Puls, daughter of Ruth and Dallas Puls, Hoskins, is one of 10 high school seniors named by Iowa State University's College of Agriculture as recipients of a four-year Excellence-in-Agriculture scholarship from lowa State University.

The scholarship, which recognizes scholastic excellence, provides full in-state tuition for study in an agriculture-related field. Puls, a senior at Winside High School, will study in the preprofessional program (pre-vet/pre-med).

A recognition luncheon was held at the Iowa State University Memorial Union on May 1 to honor the recipients and their parents and a high school teacher of each scholar's choice. Puls was accompanied by

Wayne man joins milk committee

Fred Temme of Wayne attended his first meeting as a member of the Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) North Central Region Board of Directors.

Temme, a dairy farmer from Wavne, was elected to represent AMPI member-owners from Division 7.

As a member of the 39-person regional board of directors, Temme will voice concern and reinforce action being taken by the North Central Region of AMPI. He will also serve on committees which address issues concerning the cooperative such as finance, promotion and research, government relations, members services and public relations, federal orders and milk marketing, and special claims.

"I can't thank of any other dairy cooperative that encourages grass-roots input like AMPI," North Central Region President Mel Kunstleben said. The Paynesville, Minn, dairy farmer and board president believes in AMPI's membership structure. "As member-owners of AMPI, we can be proud of the membership structure the founders of this cooperative developed. As members, we have numerous opportunities to influence the direction our cooperative will take, Kunstleben said.

UNL sponsors five meetings

The University of Nebraska is sponsoring five meetings throughout the state to train and certify producers at Level III of the Pork Quality Assurance Program. The Pork Quality Assurance Program was designed to educate producers in correct usage and withdrawal of drugs in order to maintain foreign markets for pork. A producer does not need to be certified at Level I or II to be certified at Level III.

The meeting in Northeast Nebraska is Thursday, June 18, at 6:30 p.m., at the Laurel City Auditorium. The program is open to all. pork producers, veterinarians, and others associated with the pork in-re will be a free meal. Attendance is limited and will be accepted you are interested in attending or have questions, please contact the Cedar County Extension Office at 254-6821 by May 25.

Nature's playground

There is no place like Nebraska!!

Boy isn't that the truth. From 10 to 13 inches of snow (with BIG drifts) on the 20th of April to temperatures in the 80's a week later. It must be boring in the tropics where each day is the same as the next. I've hear it said that Mother Nature has quite a sense of humor and they declared Nebraska her personal playground.

Actually, there is very little prettier than Nebraska in the spring, fields being planted, tree leafing out, flowers blooming (unless it's Nebraska in the summer - all green and growing, or Nebraska in the fall -beautiful autumn leaves and crops being harvested, or Nebraska in the winter - all white and blowing). I guess it's apparent, I do love living in Nebraska.

Some of you may think you have seen this before - you have, it's included in the May ASCS Newsletter sent out to the agricultural producers dealing with the Wayne County Office. For those of you who do not have the pleasure of doing business with us, let me introduce myself. I am Terri Post, alias Wayne County Executive Director (aka manager), and I would like to welcome you to Ag America (appropriate to say coming from Wayne America).

When Mark Crist, of The Wayne Herald, called and asked if we would be interested in a page devoted to agriculture, and of course we jumped at the chance. If there is a subject that you would like to have information on, just give me a call and I'll try to have it for the next issue. Here is your chance to find out everything you ever wanted to know about a subject but were afraid to

Since we are starting into the busy planting season, I can't stress enough farm safety (I do not sound like your mother). Please just take that extra minute or two - it can mean your lifetime. As the saying goes "This is experience talking", I count my blessings every time I see my dad. It was one of the not-sothought-out experiences that nearly took his life and that of a good

A rabbit had run into an irrigation pipe and our good ol' Sport dog was trying his best to get it out. Dad and Bill decided to help and lifted the pipe to shake out that darned old rabbit and the pipe came into contact with an electrical high wire. Luckily they weren't killed, but they were burned, broken and badly shaken up.

In a matter of seconds two healthy men were to receive a lifetime of teeth and spine problems from the electrical shock - that a minute of checking out the situation could have prevented. Don't let this happen to you or someone you love just to save a minute or two

Since we survived signup in the Farm Program, we are now ready to start certification of crops. In a nutshell, that means that the farmers are reporting what crops they have planted and how many acres of each there are. These figures are used to compute crop bases, payment amounts and statistics for reports. Included in this issue are articles concerning certification and also ACR (set aside acres) facts. If you have questions after reading them. feel free to call the ASCS Office for further explanation. A short phone call can prevent a season of grief.

Parting shot: MAY MOTHER NATURE AND SAFETY SAM SMILE UPON ALL OF YOU THROUGHOUT THE YEAR!

ASCS announces 12th CRP period

The 12th CRP sign-up is just around the corner. Bids will be taken starting June 15 and will continue

This will be the only chance to bid land into the program this year. This round of contracts will retire land for the 1993 crop year. The rules remain essentially unchanged from the two most recent bid peri-

There are some lessons to be learned from sign-ups 10 and 11 that may help in the decision to submit a bid. The major lesson is that the old style of local bidding pools are no longer followed. With the start of the 10th sign-up, the entire U.S was placed into one pool and limits were set on the total acres that would be accepted per bid period.

Bids must now pass two levels of screening. The first level is a comparison to an adjusted local cash rental rate for comparable land. The adjusted cash rental rate becomes a "bid cap" for that particular bid. The bid caps are unique for each bid.

Calculation of the bid cap begins with the prevailing cash rental rates which are taken from annual reports submitted by the local ASCS committees. These are then adjusted for each bid by the predominant soil type (relative productivity), cost of cover establishment and maintenance, inflation and a factor for the cost of idling other farm resources.

The second level that most bids must go through once they get by the bid cap is based on an Environmental Benefits Index per dollar of

A recent ASCS study shows that 64 percent of all eligible acres bid during the 10th sign-up were rejected because the producers' bids exceeded the bid caps. In the northern plains (includes Nebraska), 85 percent of all eligible acres were rerate for the 11th sign-up was 74

A major lesson is that producers who are serious about entering eligible land into CRP must be competitive in their bidding. They should estimate an opportunity return from the land and related, potentially retired resources and bid accordingly. If their bid is accepted, they should then be no worse off than if they continued to farm the land. If the bid is rejected, they then know that CRP for that land is not their best alternative.

Another lesson learned is that bid cap calculation favors more productive land. Two parcels of land that meet all eligibility requirements and bid at the same rental will only get treated alike if the predominant soils have equivalent productivity. This helps explain why one producer's bid was accepted while a neighbor's lower bid was rejected.

If you are interested in bidding ground into the 12th sign-up, it would be recommended that you stop into the ASCS or SCS office in advance of the sign-up to do the research necessary. This will not only save you time during the actual sign-up but will help eliminate the final rush at the end of the sign-up and assure a timely submission of

The following is a little Wayne County CRP trivia for your information. There have been 278 bids accepted into the CRP here in Wayne County. These bids encompass 28,858.3 acres. There are 347 people receiving a total of $1.99 million annually or an average of

Beef program begins

On May 18 the beef industry is introducing a 17-month, $42 million advertising and promotion campaign funded through the beef checkoff. Television advertising in the campaign will sound as good as it looks, according to Tom Scott, Nebraska Beef Council executive

That's because the same musical theme will run throughout all the commercials, helping to create a strong image for beef, he says. Scott also says the "Beef. It's What's For Dinner" theme will capture the attention of consumers, with spots and ads encouraging them to think of beef when plan-

According to Scott, the campaign's target audience is beef consumers who are looking for a variety of new and convenient ways to prepare beef meals. Primarily, those consumers are 25-45 years of age and female, since women tend to be the meal planners and preparers.

Swine records group wins team award

Development of a swine production record keeping system and a statewide database to compare producers' performance to group averages have earned a University of Nebraska-Lincoln group the 1992 Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Team Effort Award, vice chancellor Irv Omtvedt, announced.

The Swine Enterprise Records and Analysis Program Team received the award Wednesday evening at a recognition dinner in Lincoln. The annual award recognizes outstanding cooperative, interdiscicomplishments search, teaching, extension, service or international programs within IANR, Omtvedt said. It reflects IANR's commitment to an integrated, collaborative approach in problem solving. The honor includes a special $10,000 stipend to underwrite the team's work.

We are very pleased to recognize the swine records team's accomplishments," Omtvedt said. Enhancing agricultural profitability and sustainability is a high priority in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. This team has developed a very innovative and interdisciplinary approach looking at the whole system of swine production, from both an economic and a production standpoint. This team has proved they can do collectively what they could not have done

The team's mission is to offer a sound record keeping program to farmer-owned and operated swine enterprises and to build a reliable data base that allows producers to compare their performance to group averages.

The program started in 1987 under the direction of Michael Brumm swine specialist located at the NU Northeast Research and Extension Center near Concord, and Larry Bitney, UNL farm management specialist. Janet Mohrmann of Lincoln served as the swine records coordinator until 1989. Dale Kabes is the current coordinator at UNL.

Many of the program's participants, such as the 190 in 1991, learned they were not "average." For example. the average profit hundredweight of pork produced for farrow-to-finish producers complet-ing analyses for the first half of 1991 was $10.83. But the low profit group averaged only 91 cents. The high profit group averaged $18.86. Team members believe only the high profit group will be competitive with large vertically integrated operations in the long run.

"It is crucial that family farm swine producers know their costs of production and implement changes which will increase their competitive position," said Elton Aberle, UNL animal science department head. "Producers who are enrolled in the program know their costs and can compare them with group aver-

Producer John "Jack" Schmid of Bellwood discovered after one year in the program that his swine diet ingredient cost was well above the group average. With the assistance of Steve Jones, Farmland swine specialist, he discovered that several products were inappropriately used in various diets. After changing diet

ingredients, Schmid estimates his diet ingredient cost dropped $1 per hundredweight without affecting feed

"As a result of participating in the records program, I am saving $8,000 to $10,000 per year in feed costs," Schmid said. The swine records program has brought the "real world" into the HNI, animal science swine management class taught by Duane ese, associate professor. Students really have their eyes opened when we review the data and observe the thousands of dollars producers make and lose producing pork," Reese said.

The program grew each year with the help of extension agents, veterinarians and bankers. Two "master producers," producers who had sucproducers, producers with his accessfully used the program, were hired in 1991 to help new participants complete their six month analysis. Educational - programs based on the record program were designed to see the program were designed to analyze swine diets.

requesting the program. In 1991 the U.S. Department of Agriculture Extension Service provided $30,000 to underwrite its expansion into Kansas, South Dakota and Wisconsin. As the Nebraska program becomes the standard in more states meaningful interstate comparisons will be possible in both physical production and financial data, team embers noted.

Funding for the program also was provided by the Nebraska Pork Producers and the Nebraska Bankers
