The City of Wayne and Wayne County will have a stake in the launching of a new Navy submarine later this summer.

Three flags flown in Wayne and in each of the other 93 counties of Nebraska will be given to the commander of the newest naval vessel when the USS Nebraska is launched August 15.

THE OFFICIAL FLAGS were hoisted in Wayne Thursday in a ceremony sponsored by the Society of Nebraska Admirals. The tree flags include the US flag (which has also flown over the Capitol in Washington, D.C.), the Nebraska flag and the state official Q=125 commemorative flag celebrating the 125th year of statehood.

"It would be well if we could acquaint the crew members (of the new vessel) with the wonderful features of Nebraska," said Wayne Mayor. Bob Carhart, at the brief ceremony Thursday. The mayor, and others who spoke, said the naval crew members of the USS Nebraska (two of whom are native Nebraskans) might take pride in the accomplishments of the state just as its citizens do.

CITED AS ITEMS which might be entered into the ship's log include the state's role as breadbasket to the world, the wide open spaces of the Great Sandhills, the state's roes as the largest beef producer, as well as Nebraska-first innovations such as the 911 emergency system, air ambulance service, grocery store banking. Down on the list of attributes was the state's winningest football team, the unique state capitol building and the home of the Strategic Air Command.

The new Trident submarine is

Valiant ship; great name Wayne has a closer connection to naval history

than many people realize. In World War II a U.S. Navy attack transport ship named the USS Wayne, received several battle stars and naval commendations and was credited with downing Japanese war planes as it carried troops and supplies throughout the Pacific theater. After the war, the Wayne, which was named after all 16 counties in the U.S. which bear the Wayne name, had its guns removed and was returned to merchant marine service.

nuclear powered and will carry among its armament, 24 ballistic missiles. At 560 feet long, it will be bigger than the state's previous namesake ship, a World War I battleship.

The sub will have a compliment of 154 officers and crew. It is the 14th of 18 Trident Class submarines to be built. The new ship is being built in Groton, Connecticut, where it will be launched after christening by Mrs. Pat Exon, wife of Sen. James Exon.

WAYNE COUNTY Commissioner Gerald Pospishal also spoke at the flag raising ceremony on the courthouse green and wished the ship's crew smooth sailing and success in it's peacekeeping mission.

The commander of the USS Nebraska will be Capt. William

Countians turn in Perot signatures

The enthusiasm and individualism of the Nebraska pioneer spirit caught up in the political phenomenon of the Perot Petition Campaign has not only caught fire nationwide and in Nebraska, but in Wayne County, as well.

Wayne resident Bob Sheckler was preparing to join other Nebraskans in a rally last weekend after a committee he organized gathered approximately 100 petition signatures in Wayne County to get Independent Presidential Candidate H. Ross Perot on the November ballot. While the 100 signatures fell

While the 100 signatures fell short of what Sheckler had hoped to ink on petitions, he said he has had fun gathering signatures along with five others in the county who have "I have had a lot of fun," he said. "I intend to keep working for him throughout his race. I've never done anything like this before but it has been fun."

IN TOTAL, 10,000 signatures are needed to get Perot on the Nebraska ballot come November. Sheckler said while his effort fell short, he isn't fearful that it will hurt the Perot for President campaign effort. He said his biggest obstacle was Wayne County resi obstacle was Wayne County resi party's ballot in May and weren't eligible to sign the petition.

Sheckler said he turned in the 100 signatures he collected on

Survey goal is to improve service

Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice-President Curt Wilwerding is pleased by the number of turiouts the Chamber-has received from rural Wayne residents following a rural attitudes survey toward Wayne Merchants. Surveys were being taken through Friday. "We're pleased by the number of

"We're pleased by the number of returns since the survey was inserted in the Morning Shopper," he said. "We've had a good response. Any time you get a 1 to 2 percent response on a mailing, that's good."

The survey was sent to 8,811 homes around the Wayne area. It was inserted in the Wednesday, June 3 edition.

Once the survey is tabulated, the chamber plans to put the START survey findings, the college survey findings of shopper attitudes toward Wayne merchants and the rural survey together to determine how better to serve customer needs.

"THIS WILL help us put together an effective marketing campaign that meets the needs of all respondents to each of the three surveys," Wilwerding said. "We believe that the survey says that we're interested in what people have to say, and that we want to serve their needs. It shows that Wayne merchants want to offer the merchandise customers are looking for."

Once the survey results are tabulated, they will be made public. Wilwerding said it will take approximately four to six weeks to complete tabulations.

WSC student worked with ghetto gangs

By Mark Crist Managing Editor

Life in the drug-infested streets of Venice, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles, was not something Wayne State College student Karen Keshick departed from lightly. She did so to broaden her horizons.

Keshick, 47, a sophomore at Wayne State, is a native of Winnebago who lived in Venice for 31 years. Over the course of time, she Thursday to the Perot for President organizers in Lincoln. The petitions are to be delivered to the Secretary of State's office Sunday.

"Many people were not eligible because they had voted in the primary but Democrats and Republicans alike said they plan to vote for Perot in the general election," he said. "At this point, I think he'll carry Wayne County in the November election."

Sheckler said he plans to continue his support for Perot because the nation needs a change. He said he's tired of the political spectrum the way it is.

"It is such that we need a change and this may be just want we need," he said.

has seen the gang lifestyle expandand drugs take command. Despitethe chaos, she wants to use her education to help her adopted community. "I needed to go to college to get away from the neighborhood and focus on my goals," she said. "The advantage I have here is the experience I gained before achieving my educational goals. It is especially important to go to a college which is accessible to the physically challenged."

OVER HER 31- years in Venice, Keshick-became a community leader, serving as a gang mediator. As a mediator, she works with gang members and helps them to establish a family unit. She said family, and education, are the primary elements to stopping drugs and gangs.

Many times she found herself caught in the crossfire of gang warfare. On those occasions, due to gang members respect for her, she could stop the blazing guns. Since 1968, when she first started as a mediator, things have changed and not for the better.

"There used to be rules and regulations," she said. "Today they don't care who they shoot. Older gang members are doing what they can to straighten today's gangs out.

"What people need to realize is that not all gang members are bad people. Not all of them are dope of the police who beat motorist Rodney King and L.A. Police Chief. Darryl Gates, she is supportive of the good cops. She said most law enforcement officials are only trying to do their job.

As a gang mediator, Keshick specialized in drug counseling and served as a court liaison. She said she worked with the Los Angeles. Police Department to help gang members focus on the real issues and bring them into groups to mediate differences.

"As a community member and as a mediator, they knew I was fair and unbiased," she said. "I was an ambassador and they respected that. But the best mediators are parents."

HAVING COME to Wayne State from gang neighborhoods, however, Keshick has a warning for rural residents: gangs are headed this way. "If any parents know their kids are involved with drugs, you need to sit down with them and talk with them — not down to them or at them — with them.

"The Midwest is going to have to pay more attention to gang issues because gangs are relocating because there's too much violence in the big cities. The best way a parent can deal with it is to keep their family "values and be involved in church activities. If a parent doesn't do the best job they can, the child will determine his or her own destiny."

'Trash Busters' award presented Wayne County efforts applauded at state convention of extension clubs

Wayne County was presented a "Trash Busters" award and a recycled trophy during a banquet on Thursday evening. The recognition was for a trip to the Douglas County landfill near Bennington, having environmental reports at club meetings, support of the recycling plant, and a paint swap scheduled to take place June 20.

The NCHEC promoted its thrust, "The Environment," by collecting trash and recycled items during the convention that amounted to 270

REPRESENTING Wayne County at the convention were Terri Headley and Doris Meyer from the Monday Mrs. Club, and Verdina Johs of the 3 M's Club.

They were among 612 extension club members from throughout the state attending the three-day meeting.

This year's theme was "The Dif-ference is You in '92." Speakers and programs stressed ways to make a difference at home, in the community, the state and the country.

"Clara Colby --- Nebraska's Suf-fragette, a Lady Who Made a Difference," was the title of the program at Thursday evening's banquet. Por-traying Colby was Marlene Snyder, community and human resource specialist from Lincoln.

WAYNE COUNTY had three entries in the cultural arts displays.

There were 125 entries in the creative writing category, with Dorrine Liedman receiving a red ribbon for her short story, "The Night Shift." A poem by Defores Utecht, entitled 'Ode to Life," earned a white ribbon.

Hand stitchery had 80 exhibits, including a plastic canvas Easter wreath by Verdina Johs which received a blue ribbon.

The Wayne County scrapbook and a banner made by 3 M's Club were also displayed.

Meier completes training with outdoor ministries

Brenda Meier of Wakefield recently completed a 10 day training session with Nebraska Lutheran Outdoor Ministries (NLOM).

She is employed as promotions specialist for Camp Carol Joy Holling, a Christ centered camp owned and operated by NLOM and offering camping sessions to church youth ranging from second grade to senior high each summer.

As a prómotions specialist, Meier works with news media and Lutheran congregations throughout Nebraska to promote the camp program offered by NLOM. She also participates in outdoor and camping activities, and acts as a Christian role model for campers.

She joins a 64-member counseling and support staff for the 1992 camping season. This is Meier's third summer with the camp. She has also worked as a youth counselor and as an assistant to the program director.

Meier is working for 10 weeks at the camp which covers 317 acres of forest and meadow land near Ashland.

Over 2,000 campers will attend Camp Carol Joy Holling this year and more are anticipated in future

"Recruit, recruit, recruit! Get as many members of the community as possible involved in helping you make a difference."

That was the final advice of Ray Clark, University of Nebraska-Omaha facilitator, at a meeting of the Wakefield START committee on June 6.

The five task forces met with a variety of resource people/advisors who work with similar programs in rural communities the size of Wakefield.

"The five task forces have come up with some exciting action plans to improve the community economically, socially and structurally," said Lynda Cruickshank, a member of the START committee.

Cruickshank said the complete action plans will now be written up into a report to be unveiled to the community at an official Wakefield town hall meeting scheduled for the end of August.

The five task force thrusts are business resource development, community image, educational op-

CRUICKSHANK said the five task forces have already begun their work.

The business resource development group, chaired by Lori Utemark and Terry Nicholson, has expanded to meet with all local business persons and develop an organization to help improve communication among the local businesses and to increase local spending.

Persons interested in joining the group are asked to contact Utemark 287-2082, or Nicholson at 287-2807.

The community image group has targeted a variety of projects to im-prove the attitude and appearance of Wakefield. Topping their list are sidewalks, pavement, snow removal ordinances, welcome signs, a mini park and beautification projects.

Persons wishing to become in volved in the community's image are asked to contact Phyllis Rhodes, 287-2872.

THE educational opportunities committee discovered in a survey that youth activities, preschool and adequate day care were a concern in Wakefield.

The committee's plan includes supporting the establishment of a Head Start preschool program in Wakefield, an after school educational and recreational program for kindergartners through sixth grade, and restarting the parent-teacher association at the school. They also 611 North Main Street

Youth attend reunion

Drug free youth group members from Norfolk Catholic Stanton. Wayne, Verdigre, Crofton and South Sioux City attended a drug free re-union celebration held May 31 at the National Guard Armory in Wayne.

The event was sponsored by Northeast Nebraska Youth Against Drug Abuse (NYADA) an organization associated with the Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Council of Nebraska and made up of drug free youth groups from across the state

The reunion event included structured fun activities, including a dance and pizza party, as well as a presentation by Sara and Paul Campbell on "Dating-Violence."

MEETINGS for youth members and their adult sponsors were also held.

Trish Frevert of Goldenrod Hills Community Services in Wisner conducted the youth session, while

Jolene Weinrich of Goldenrod Hills and Lyle Follen of The Aware Program in Norfolk conducted the adult session

Brad Bader of Wisner also volunteered to assist with the event.

Frevert said the reunion celebration is just one of the activities associated with the Northeast Neraska Intervention/Prevention Project.

The project is a three-year federal grant in which Goldenrod Hills Community Services coordinates intervention activities sponsored by the School Community Intervention Program (SCIP) of the Lincoln Medical Education Foundation and the prevention services of the Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Council of Nebraska.

FREVERT said there are 22 communities currently involved with the project

Softball notes from secretary

WAYNE-Wayne Men's Softball Association co-secretary's Mike Grosz and Kevin Peterson would like to remind those in the Wayne City League to phone a league officer if they plan on playing a make-up game on any other night than the scheduled Monday or Tuesday mes. The reason for this is so the gates to the complex can be unlocked.

One other note concerning highlight sheets and score sheets. Those not cooperating with the current system, will not have their records or highlights in the paper. There will be an incomplete next to their name in the team standings.

Team captains or representatives are reminded that score sheets may be picked up in the mail box on the East side of the concession stand. After these are filled out they are to be put in the mail box outside the gates entering the city complex.

to coach

Wayne girls head basketball coach Marlene Uhing has been selected as the head coach of the Nebraska Girls All-Star team which will play the South Dakota All-Star team on Sunday, June 21 at 5:30 p.m. in Yankton, S.D. on the campus of Mt. Marty College. The event is being sponsored by the Yankton Morning Optimist Club. Tickets can be purchased by calling (605) 668-1541. Ticket prices are $4 advanced general admission and $5 advanced reserved seating.

Uhing will be assisted by Wendy Henrichs of Grand Island. The 10girl roster includes Jenny Bramer of Millard South, Jenny Dall of Omaha Gross, Maura Dawson of Lincoln Pius X, Lisa Graham_of Lynch, Demetria Larry of Papillion-LaVista, Stacy McArthur of South-Sioux, Denise Otten of Norfolk. Kari Schmode of Battle Creek Marla Stewart of Blair and Christen Wuebben of Omaha Marion.

The switch hitter yielded a .670 on base percentage during his junior year which led to 17 doubles, three home runs, 27 walks and 31 rbi. His on base percentage was the best of any District 11 player.

"I had a home run against two NCAA Division I schools in Nebraska and Creighton," Zeiss said. "My third home run of the year ame against UNO."

Zeiss finished third in the district in rbi and he placed second in stolen bases with 18 in 19 attempts. He was honored for his accomplishments on the season by being named to the All District 11 team and the All-Conference team.

New national agricultural network designed to educate and inform

The Agricultural Satellite Net-work (AG*SAT), a new dimension in delivery of agricultural education and information, was to be formally dedicated on Friday, June 12, in ceremonies broadcast nationwide via satellite. Originating jointly from the AG*SAT headquarters at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) and from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) in Washington, D.C., the dedication commemorated the inauguration of this unique national distance learning service

Special guests, including U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan, Nebraska U.S. Senator Bob Kerrey, National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges President Peter McGrath, and U.S. Department of Commerce Office of Technology Assessment representative Dennis Connors, made presentations during the dedication ceremony. Members of the AG*SAT board of directors from land grant universities across the country joined University of Nebraska officials for the event in Lincoln. Administrators, faculty and staff on the campuses of the 38 AG*SAT affiliate institutions also participated through viewing the dedication ceremony transmitted to their campuses and extension offices.

In October 1989, the Agricultural Satellite Corporation was formally incorporated in the state of Nebraska and became known as AG*SAT, the new national agricultural network and instructional service. The goal of AG*SAT is to serve the changing needs of agriculture by sharing college credit courses, cooperative extension programming, research and in-service training among member land grant institutions and other interested affiliates via the latest satellite, computer and other electronic technologies. According to Irvin Omtvedt, AG*SAT board chairman and UNL Vice Chancellor for Agriculture and Natural Resources, the land grant institutions' integrated emphasis on teaching, research, extension and service contributes to AG*SAT's success. "The fact that the system was established at a time when mostuniversities were undergoing budget cuts testifies to the value and commitment institutions have placed on the AG*SAT service," Omtvedt pointed out.

AG*SAT consortium membership currently includes 38 land grant universities in 36 states and two agencies of the USDA, AG*SAT Executive Director Jack McBride noted that the USDA has been instrumental in supporting both AG*SAT administrative functions and its program offerings. "The USDA's support has been essential. The partnership of the land grant community and the USDA has helped this important new educational service move from concept to a nationwide service in an impressively brief period of time," stated McBride.

During its 1991 pilot year, AG*SAT offered more than 300 hours of programming, reaching an estimated audience of 70,000 individuals. Program hours for the first half of 1992 exceeded the number of hours for the entire 1991 year.

Programs originate from numerous AG*SAT affiliated campuses. In spring of 1992, Clemson University in South Carolina originated a series of programs on solid waste management. The series was used both as a college credit course, as well as agricultural extension programs for cities and town located across the United States. Program topics included landfill management, regulations and costs, composting and the handling and recycling of municipal solid waste products. "We were pleased to make this special resource available to our follow land grant universities," noted Milton Wise, vice president at Clemson and a member of the AG*SAT board.

"By sharing expertise and course offerings, participating institutions can use AG*SAT to enhance their curricula," says Lowell Satterlee, a former Penn State University professor, who was instructor of "Food Science," one of the first undergraduate courses offered via AG*SAT.

The AG*SAT satellite network is currently comprised of 18 uplinks and nearly 1000 downlinks nationwide. Federal moncy awarded AG*SAT on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis through the Department of Commerce's Public Telecommunications Facilities Program (PTFP) helped construct five of these uplinks and 26 of the downlinks. Another six uplinks, funded in part with federal funds, are currently under construction.

THE NEW AGRICULTURAL Satellite Network (AG*SAT) was formally dedicated on June 12 in ceremonies broadcast nationwide, via satellite. The goal of AG*SAT is to serve the changing needs of agriculture.

SPECIALISTS SAY corn borers are beginning to make an appearance in the area.

Corn growers on lookout for yield threatening pest

High overwintering populationsof European corn borer in many parts of the Midwest have corn growers on the lookout for this yield threatening pest, according to Farm America News Service.

Officials at the Northeast Research and Extension Center said that they are just beginning to pick up corn borers in their light trap at the station with the onset of normal temperatures.

We have heard various predictions about the coming flight-ranging from a huge problem (chemical company-advertisements)- to-very according to Keith Jarvi of the Northeast Station near Concord. "People have reported that they have seen many diseased overwintering larvae in stocks.'

As usual, some fields will probably need an insecticide to control borers and some will not. Each individual field must be scouted to determine if an investment in controlwill pay off.

According to Jarvi, corn borer growth is determined by growing degree days (GDD). Growing degree days are calculated by adding the maximum and the minimum temperature of the day together, dividing by-two-and subtracting the base temperature. Moth flights usually last about 150 growing days from the first moth capture.

According to officials with the Farm America News Service; corn borer damages the crop by tunneling into the stalk and interrupting the flow of water and nutrients within the plant. If the corn goes untreated, the result could be a 15 percent yield loss. Growers who spot corn borers can acrially or ground-apply Lorsban 15G granular insecticide to control damage.

For more information, contact the county extension offices.

Mother Nature's continuing surprises

cause headaches for Nebraska farmers growth area was still under ground Saying that 1992 has been a year and safe.

According to the experts I con-of surprises is definitely an understatement. I just wonder how many more tricks Mother Nature will pull out of her pocket before the crop is in the bin-this year? Needless to say, due to blizzards, tornados, hail and freezing weather it has been a difficult spring.

I was out and about after the freeze received on "Memorial" day and the next night also. It painted a pretty bleak picture at the time for sure. It seemed as if the areas hit hardest were those no-tilled into heavy residue and along the grass strips. You can bet that the Conservation guys heard many suggestions as to what they could do with this "darned" no-till.

After about a week, I made another trek into the same fields to recheck the progress of the corn. I found that most of the corn plants were emerging through the freeze dried leaves and that in all cases the

CRP signup opens for bids June 15 for '93 crop year

The 12th Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) signup will open for bids on June 15.

The CRP offers annual rental payments and cost-share assistance to establish permanent vegetative cover on cropland that is highly erodible or contributing to a serious water quality problem. Under the program, over 35 million acres have been enrolled nationwide.

tacted for help on the situation, they all believe that the corn will produce a normal crop due to the growth area not being harmed. Unfortunately, I guess that the best we can do is wait for time to tell the extent of the damage. I've always believed that we farmers are the biggest gamblers without even hitting a casino. We gamble on the hand dealt by Mother Nature, and she's a sly ol' gal.

I can't stress enough that BE-FORE you do anything to destroy a crop, come into the office and file a disaster-form for history-credit. If you don't do this, you may lose crop base. If you are not sure what you will do, call to get information on your options.

Fortunately, a Memorial Day freeze is fairly uncommon, however it is a given fact that no-till conservation is here to stay. Believe it or not, we've even gotten some true believers in no-till, due to time and dollars saved using the one trip method. Erosion control is a definite priority when it comes to conservation.

Just a friendly reminder, be sure to check your CRP fields for nox-ious weeds. Status review spot checks are being done now to monitor the progress of the grass establishment as well as weed control. Don't wait for a letter telling you to control the weeds, as lack of control WILL result in a payment reduction.

There are six designated noxious weeds in Nebraska (Canadian, Plumeless and Musk Thistles, Leafy Spurge, Diffused and Spotted Knapweed) along with a multitude of obnoxious weeds that must be kept from maturing (all of which have found homes in Wayne County). There are several deadlines coming up. The next CRP sign up will start soon so if you are inte ested in bidding some ground, it is time to begin the paperwork. We are already into the first phase of certification with a deadline of June 15th for small grains. July 15th is the FINAL certification date for all other crops including CRP. Hope to see you all in soon.

This will be the only opportu-nity farmers will have to offer bids for the 1993 crop year, and the first time to submit separate bid types for each tract of land. It will also provide an opportunity to formulate bids that are more reflective of the actual value of the offered acres, according the ASCS officials.

Bids will be screened as per environmental benefits obtained per dollar of cost to the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). Eligible CRP land includes cropland that has been planted or is considered planted to produce an agricultural commodity in two of the five years from 1986 through 1990 and is physically and legally capable of continued crop production.

Land eligibility requirements have been expanded to include water quality benefits under CRP. Eligible land now includes areas identified with water quality impairment, designated priority areas and public wellhead areas identified by the Environmental Protection Agency Public wellheads are sources of water for municipalities. Areas desigless than 15 years. The easement will specify the manner in which the owner may develop or use the property; permit the owner to use the easement area for purposes that do not interfere with CCC's interest: and be attached to the land records for the useful life of the practice.

Priority enrollment practices include permanent wildlife habitat for no more than 10 percent of the total cropland areas on the farm, wildlife corridors that provide a travel area between two or more existing wildlife areas, windbreaks, shelterbelts, living snow fences, sod waterways, contour grass strips, and salinity reduction measures.

A conservation plan must be developed and approved by the local conservation district for accepted acreage. The plan will specify the conservation measures and maintenance requirements to be carried out by the owner or operator during the terms of the contract. Bid acceptance determinations will be made by USDA after a nationwide review and evaluation.
