Fair exhibitors to share $8,000

By Les Mann
Herald Publisher

Literally thousands of dollars in prize money is up for grabs as the Wayne County Fair prepares for its Thursday opening.

Over $8,000 in premium monies will be going to livestock, home economics and crafts exhibitors in both the open class and 4-H divisions of the fair.

People don't often realize a big share of the fair budget goes to paying premium prizes to the exhibitors, said Leland Herman, a member of the Wayne County Ag Society Board who writes the open class premium checks.

MINDY LUTT, who handles the premium checks for the 4-H division, agrees with Herman that this year's fair may see more prize money awarded than in previous years, because exhibit numbers are expected to be up.

"There's definitely renewed interest in the fair," said Herman. He said the livestock barns will be filled to capacity and then some. He added there are more hogs than there are pens and the goat barn is out of room even though there was an addition to it this year.

"Everything is upbeat," said Herman, of the Fair. He encouraged those who have items they have thought about entering in the fair to go ahead and get in on some of the potential prize money.

He also urged residents to come out and see the best handiwork of homemakers, gardeners and agricultural producers in the world.

WITH ITS unsurpassed record of excellence in producing state and regional champion animals in livestock judging beyond the county, Herman said the slogan "Meatheart of the World" is not a stretch for Wayne county. "It's not brag, it's fact," he said.

Mrs. Lutt said the exhibit numbers are so great in the 4-H division that the Extension office has run out of registration cards and had to photocopy additional ones.

She said so far there are 563 animal exhibits.

"The barns are definitely going to be full," she said. Entries in the bucket calf show have doubled this year.

THE CARNIVAL workers were busy setting up the midway Wednesday and plans are shaping up for a great fair parade on Saturday at 10 a.m., said Herman. The White Horse Mounted Patrol from Sioux City will ride in the parade and will perform at the grandstand afterward.

"Heat isn't going to be a problem this year," predicted Herman. He said in previous years, hot weather has kept fair attendance and even some exhibit numbers down.

Sand volleyball craze hits Wayne as league draws 160 in first year

By Kevin Peterson
Sports editor

A relative new sport is sweeping its way across the country and the City of Wayne has fallen victim to this wave which involves a net, ball and tons of sand.

The sand volleyball craze has tightened its grip on our fare city and according to Wayne City Rec Director, Jeff Zeiss, it's the best thing that could have happened.

Sand volleyball is very similar to hard court volleyball in the way the game is played. You can only score when serving and the ball can only be touched three times on your side of the net.

"We had sand volleyball as a rec sport in Norton, Kansas which is where I was before moving to Wayne," Zeiss said. "It went over very well down there and the rec department here in Wayne felt there was no reason why it wouldn't work here as well."

"Anyone who has ever flipped through the channels on their television set has probably caught some sand volleyball being played on ESPN at one time or another," Zeiss said. "It's exciting to play as well as being a great spectator sport."

Zeiss said he thinks sand volleyball on the rec level in Wayne is one of the most successful programs as far as numbers are concerned. "This is the first summer we've ever tried this and we have over 160 people involved," Zeiss said. "We literally had to turn teams away which is something we don't like to do, but we really didn't have any options at the time."

"Sand volleyball is a rec sport that attracts both men and women between the ages of 18 and the mid 40's, and intertwines them in the same league," Zeiss said. "One of our goals as a city rec department is to involve as many different age groups as we can and this is a per-

Sports editor honored for third year

Wayne Herald Sports Editor Kevin Peterson, has been awarded the Nebraska Scholastic Wrestling Coaches Association sports writer of the year award for the third straight year.

Presented at the association's annual meeting in Kearney Saturday, the award was for wrestling coverage during the 1992-93 season. He was nominated for the honor by Wayne-Carroll high school wrestling coach John Murtaugh.

The award he and the Wayne Herald received is for newspapers with under 10,000 circulation. Peterson was one of four sportswriters from across the state to be honored and the only one from the semi-weekly category.

Herb Teeter of the McCook Daily Gazette was named sportswriter of the year in the daily category while Tim Nicholas of Central City and Lisa Garcia of Milford were co-recipients of the

Thought for the day:

A day of worry is more exhausting than a week of work.

Demo drivers can advance

AREA — Winners in the demolition derbies held during the Wayne and Dixon County Fairs will have the opportunity to compete on the state level this year.

A state championship demolition derby will be held Monday, Sept. 7 and is open only to drivers who have qualified at a county fair.

The driver, not the car, will qualify because it is anticipated some winning cars will not be able to compete after qualifying.

The demolition derby at the Wayne County Fair is Sunday at 7 p.m. At the Dixon County Fair in Concord, the derby is Wednesday, Aug. 12 at 7:30 p.m.

START talking

WAKEFIELD — A town meeting will be held Monday, Aug. 24 in the school auditorium here to begin discussions on community development plans.

The S.T.A.R.T. steering committee is encouraging everyone to attend and share ideas and personal input on the effort to make Wakefield a better place to live.

Pie Auction

WAYNE — Pies entered in the Wayne County Fair pie contest will be auctioned to the public Thursday at 4:30 p.m. Other scheduled Wayne County Fair events are included in a listing on Page 2.

Field day coming

CONCORD — The Northeast Research and Extension Center at Concord will be hosting a Field Day free to the public on Aug. 21. Registration is at 3 p.m. and tours will last until at least 8 p.m.

An omelet feed will follow the tours, courtesy of M.G. Waldbaum Company of Wakefield.

This year's tour is dedicated to Dr. Donald Hudman, who recently retired as the Northeast District Director.

WSC confers 97 degrees Friday

Dr. Pearl Hansen, associate professor of art at Wayne State College, will be the featured speaker during Wayne State's summer commencement exercises Friday, at 10 a.m. in the Willow Bowl.

The Randolph native has been on the Wayne State faculty since 1976.

In 1989, Hansen was named the Nebraska Art Educator of the Year by the Nebraska Art Teachers Association.

Dr. Hansen received national recognition for her chemical awareness concerns in the art classroom environment. From 1989 through 1991, she hosted National Safety and Chemical Awareness Conferences on the Wayne State Campus.

Dr. Donald J. Mash, president of Wayne State, will present 61 bachelor's degrees, 32 master's degrees, and four education specialist degrees.

Sally Jo Hytrek, Wayne, is graduating with Scholarship Honors, and Summa cum Laude with High Honors in Social Sciences. Her senior research project is "The Effect of Job Status Bias on Punishment of Crime."

Mock disaster —

Quick action saves 'victims' of drill

By Diane Jaeger
Herald Correspondent

Rescue units from Winside, Carroll, Hoskins and Wayne, along with the Marian Air Care helicopter participated in an elaborate disaster drill Tuesday near Winside. The exercise featured a mock school bus accident with 13 victims.

Winside area youngsters were made up with authentic looking injuries and three of them even got to play dead for the rescue units.

The "accident" occurred at approximately 7 p.m. 2 miles north and 1 mile west of Winside on the county road. The Wayne dispatching center notified area emergency crews of the "disaster."

The Marian helicopter was on the scene within 20 minutes.

An old school bus was used in the drill, laying on its side in the road ditch with the "victims" placed inside.

Rescue crews got practice in extrication as well as handling of an emergency situation and coordination of services.

"All the victims were extricated and transported from the scene within 45 minutes to one hour," said VerNeal Marotz. Despite the rainy weather, the drill was termed a success.

THE HELICOPTER FROM Marian Air Care participated in a mock disaster drill near Winside Tuesday in which emergency crews responded to a realistic looking school bus accident with children seemingly trapped inside.

Heritage Industries

Expand to global market

In the past few months, Heritage Industries of Wayne has expanded to international status as it recently sold several ATM (automatic teller machine) kiosks to banks in Hong Kong and New Zealand.

The two kiosks supplied by Heritage to the Hongkong Bank in Hong Kong were utilized as remote electronic tellers at the annual Sevens Soccer Tournament. The two custom units were delivered by special air cargo transport in order for the bank to meet the tournament schedule.

In addition to these two units, Heritage Industries recently sent two units to Auckland, New Zealand. These units were sent via ocean freight, and final delivery and installation is being handled by the bank.

Heritage Industries has been building modular structures for over 14 years, starting with single-family homes and expanding into multi-family and light commercial construction including convenience stores and branch banks.

In 1986, Heritage developed a product line to accommodate the housing of Automatic Teller Machines (ATMs) outside a bank's offices. These buildings — called kiosks — need to be weather-tight and provide complete heating, cooling and ventilation systems. The growth of sales and distribution throughout the United States has given Heritage Industries the opportunity to be involved in bidding projects at an international level.

"By utilizing 'Heart of America' workers and emphasizing top quality, Heritage continues to be one of the best modular manufacturers in the country — enabling Heritage Industries to be competitive throughout the United States and in the international marketplace," said Brenda Corder, spokesperson for the Wayne company.

Training specialists from Peoples regularly provide training sessions for employees on the safe use of equipment, tools and maintenance of gas lines as well as new developments in the field.

Operations employees are also updated on safety issues at monthly meetings.

Peoples delivers natural gas to 343,000 homes, businesses and industries in more than 360 communities in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas.

The company is a division of UtiliCorp. United (NYSE:UCU), which provides gas and electric service in eight states through its divisions.

Peoples Natural Gas receives safety awards

Peoples Natural Gas, Wayne, has received safety awards from the Midwest Gas Association (MGA) and the National Safety Council.

Peoples received the MGA award for having the best employee safety record from a field of 14 other gas production and distribution companies. Peoples had the fewest recorded lost-time incidents in 1991.

Peoples placed second in the National Safety Council's fleet safety contest. Peoples recorded the fewest number of vehicle accidents from a field of 20 other similar-sized gas companies.

For the past five years, Peoples has placed either first or second in the National Safety Council's fleet safety contest.

"Customer and employee safety are top priorities at Peoples," said James Markham, customer service manager.

"We want to deliver gas safely to our customers and assure the safety of our employees. Eliminating costly accidents also helps keep natural gas rates down."

Dream is nightmare

Our so called Olympic Dream Team should be causing us to rethink the American ideal of winning at all costs.

This group of malcontented-millionaires has been anything but gracious in their trouncing of outclassed, mostly amateur opponents.

What glory and honor is there in winning a gold medal when the dream team athletes have taunted and intimidated and elbowed their opponents out of competition — have refused to stay with the other athletes in Olympic Village, have refused to wear the USA uniform because it is made by a company they are not paid millions to represent commercially.

As remote as the possibility is, wouldn't it be enjoyable to see a bunch of young upstart college students from one of the foreign Olympic teams upset the vaunted dream team. Remember the days when we hated the Russian hockey "dream team" for some of the same reasons we now cheer the basketball antics of our own professional athletes in Barcelona.

They are tarnishing the glitter of Olympic gold.

This is no dream, it's a nightmare.

Civic center needed

Wayne area residents should move ahead with efforts to build a community center as a focal point-gathering place for the entire county.

The words of Mick Topp at last week's county/city joint planning task force meeting were so true.

The facility doesn't need to be a big elaborate building with a high tax bill attached. It can be designed to fulfill the immediate need utilizing private funding, financing and revenue sources, and then expanded as needed.

The Wayne County Agricultural Society has the perfect spot already identified for the facility and is willing to see it developed on newly acquired property adjacent to the fairgrounds.

Most of us have seen the focal point that the state fair grounds have become and the use to which the facilities there are placed year around.

Wayne County could and should develop the same type of facility on a smaller scale. There are countless community meetings, civic functions and activities which could be developed if such a facility were brought into being.

It can and should be done without major public funding. Other communities have developed similar centers including recreational facilities, auditorium space, convention space, and more, thorough coordinated efforts between businesses, Chambers, development agencies, individuals and foundations.

We are encouraged to see Wayne Countians working in the same direction. The positive comments of county and city leaders at last week's meeting when the recent community building study was discussed, is one more step in the right direction.

Looking for past patients

Dear Editor:

My name is Rae Edward and I am a member of the Dr. Susan LaFlesche Picotte Committee of Walthill. As you may or may not know, Dr. Picotte was the first Native American to become a medical doctor trained in a medical school. Each year, we have an Open House to celebrate the life of this dedicated Native American.

This year we will have our third annual open house on Sept. 26 for any and all who wish to learn about her and visit the Picotte Center which our committee is slowly restoring. We are looking for those who were 1.) born at the Center when it was Dr. Picotte's hospital, or 2.) recuperated at the hospital, or 3.) worked there. The Center was a hospital from 1913 to the late 40's, possibly 1949.

If any of your readers know of someone who fits into any of the above categories, I would appreciate hearing from you. My address is Box 282, Walthill, NE 68067; my phone number, (402) 846-5905.

Cordially,

Rae Edwards

Long hours worth it

Dear Editor:

To all the members of the Wayne Chautauqua Committee, a big thank you for a job well done! The Chautauqua experience brought many diverse elements of the community together in an unusual way.

The varied activities were well-planned and coordinated. Those of us who just sat back and enjoyed should be very grateful that some of you were willing to put in long hours of planning!

Not a car

Dear Editor:

In this week's Wayne Herald, (Mann Overboard column), you suggested "Coupe Capital" as a name for Wayne. Since a "coupe" is a closed two-door automobile that seats two people, wouldn't it be better to call Wayne "Coop Capital"?

A coop is a small cage or pen for poultry. These definitions are from Webster's dictionary.

Sincerely,

Marion Iversen

Can't live with it or without it

The annual summer paradox engulfed me along with the fumes from a smoking motor home's exhaust as we both waited for a red light to change the other day.

Everyone, myself included, thinks he wants to be a carefree traveler until he's actually doing it.

The travel urge hits on those routine days as we bustle about our work and look up to notice a motor home full of seemingly happy tourists waiting for the same red light to change.

Or the urge can hit as we watch a touring biker glide by in a semi-reclined position on his chopped up motorcycle with long beard and unkempt appearance as though he has a defiant and obscene finger raised at the world.

Why can't these travelers and tourists work like everyone else? They pass in and out of our daily routines in an instant and usually without one word being exchanged. There are words uttered, however, by the worker witnessing the seemingly happy traveler and wishing roles could be reversed. But those words aren't suitable for a family newspaper.

Our envy of these travelers insures that sometime before the summer warmth wanes, we will accept their challenge and create more envy for workers in other towns who watch us drive by on our vacations.

Vacationers propagate vicariously.

Each seemingly happy traveler insures 10 will follow.

We Americans are so driven to travel, we cannot see a tourist without wishing we were headed where he has been (unless he's from California, of course).

What, then, is so paradoxical about this urge to travel.

No sooner than we leave town on our vacation, we realize the paradox.

It's more fun to dream about it than actually do it.

That road noise headache begins pounding at about the same time the eyes water from driving strain. No amount of rest stops seem to be able to rid us of the tiring car seat imprint where car seat imprints want to be.

Each vacation day barely begins before you wish you were already at the day's pre-assigned destination, resting up for the drive back home.

It is about that time we remember we were envious of the tourists in the motor home next to us at the red light. Now in each town we pass we envy the workers going about their daily routines. We long to be off the road back home in our own comfortable routines. We utter words which can't be printed in a family newspaper.

What is the solution to this love-hate relationship which has been foisted on us by a too-convenient highway system and mostly comfortable cars?

It's obvious. See the sights we never see as a tourist...

The ones closest to home.

Then return each night to familiar, comfortable surroundings and relax.

Such would be a tourist to be truly envied.

State in property tax turmoil again

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

That pesky little Nebraska Supreme Court has done it again. For the fourth year in a row, they've said the state's personal property tax system — this time for tax year 1991 — was unconstitutional. And here we are in tax turmoil all over again.

Also in the decision, the court struck down $97 million in new taxes created by the Legislature as part of the 1991 tax package. If those now must be refunded, as it appears, the state's $100 million budget gap for the next two years just became a $200 million gap.

In 1991, the Legislature has exempted all personal property from local property taxes as a temporary solution to the state's tax mess.

Last week, the court said the exemption of all property violated the tax uniformity clause of the state's constitution. That provision, the court said, requires all tangible property — both real estate and personal property — to be taxed uniformly.

Now that wasn't all that surprising. The Legislature and Governor Nelson wouldn't have urged that the constitution be changed by voters May 12 if they hadn't suspected we might have problems.

But this time, senators said, the court pulled some new concepts out of the air that senators said they couldn't figure out where they came from. They totally rewrote their last four opinions. It was as if the court feels that the best tax policy is to have all property taxed, and they're going to get it done one way or the other.

The court created a new legal test that suggested lawmakers cannot enact any tax exemptions if they shift tax burden to other taxpayers. The court suggested accompanying any exemption must be another tax measure providing full compensation for lost tax revenues to assure there is no shift. The court, in part, struck down the Legislature's 1991 tax bill because it did not "fully fund" the exemption.

Judge Tom Shanahan, in a sharply worded 18-page dissenting opinion, said it was just crazy. He referred to the new test as the "fiscal impact theory of fully funded tax exemptions." He called it a "constitutionally estranged and peculiarly novel test" that has no basis in the State Constitution.

Shanahan wasn't the only one critical.

"The court very much seems to have a policy concept that we should have a broad base and low rate property tax," said State Senator Jerome Warner of Waverly. "I have given many a speech that that is a desirable policy. But I have trouble finding words in the existing constitution that mandate it."

And we'd probably be in big trouble again this year if voters hadn't amended the constitution May 12 with the passage of Amendment 1. Amendment 1, by changing the uniformity clause so that it no longer applies to personal property, should solve the problem.

At least it should have solved the problem. As several state senators said last week, with this Supreme Court you just never know.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Nibrathka means 'Flat Water'

By the Nebraska State Historical Society
one finds the Large river (Platte), called Nibraskier by the French and Indians.

The name "Nebraska," along with "Platte" was applied to the river and adjacent territory by fur traders, explorers and travelers for many years. The earliest official suggestion the name "Nebraska" be given the territory adjacent to the river appears in the report of William Wilkins, Secretary of War in 1844. Urging a territory be organized, he stated: "The Platte or Nebraska, being the central stream leading into and from the Great South Pass would very properly furnish a name for the territory."

Wilkins probably got the idea from Lt. John C. Fremont who in 1842 led an expedition through the Platte valley to South Pass, Wyo. territory. In his report, Fremont wrote: "The name given by the Indians are always remarkably appropriate; and certainly none was ever more so than that which they have given to this stream — 'the Nebraska, or Shallow river.'"

On Dec. 17, 1844, Representative Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois followed up Secretary Wilkins' suggestion by introducing a bill calling for the organization of a territory to be named "Nebraska." Altogether, four bills to the same end were introduced in the stormy decade that followed. When finally organized in 1854, Nebraska was but one of two territories created out of the vast trans-Missouri region; the other was Kansas.

From 1854 on, though, Nebraska Territory was definitely on the map of the United States, and when a small portion of the original territory was admitted as a state on March 1, 1867, it too bore the name "Nebraska."

Lt. Fremont was right — it is "remarkably appropriate."

Overlooking Gavins Point Dam on horseback

Ceremony unites Malchow and Stolpe

Tammy Malchow and Cleve Stolpe were united in marriage during a horseback ceremony overlooking Gavins Point Dam on July 25.

The new Mrs. Stolpe is the daughter of Willard and JoAnn Malchow of Laurel and her husband is the son of Paul and Janet Stolpe of Obert, Neb.

The unique ceremony included the minister, the Rev. Jeff Anderson, of Wayne; the attendants and the ring bearer all on horseback.

The brides parents escorted her to the ceremony on horseback and when the minister asked if anyone objected to the union, the bride's father galloped forward, pulled his shotgun and said it was allright to "go ahead preacher."

Horseshoe sculptures, balloons and western paraphernalia decorated the wedding site. Mrs. Teri Maxon, Ashland, played guitar and sang "The Wedding Song" and "Friends"

The bride wore a white cowboy hat with flowers and veil attached and carried a bouquet of red carnations and white lilies.

She chose a dress of white polyester satin that featured a gathered split skirt trimmed in beaded Venice lace. The sweetheart neckline was trimmed in Venice lace appliques accented with beads and sequins. Illusion sleeves were embellished with beaded and sequined Venice lace. The plunging v-back had strands of white pearls and teardrop pearls across it. The bride wore pure white cowboy boots.

Matron of honor was Lynn Carlson, Lincoln, sister of the bride who also wore dressy western attire.

The ringbearer was Jared Malchow, Laurel, nephew of the bride.

The bridegroom's brother, Reed, of Obert, served as best man. Ushers were Kurt Malchow, Laurel, brother of the bride, and Sterling Stolpe, McCook, brother of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom and attendants all wore black jeans, white shirts and black cowboy hats. Mr. Stolpe also wore western cut coat, vest and tie.

A picnic reception of chicken, potato salad, cole slaw and wedding cake was served immediately after the ceremony.

The couple is at home in Lee's Summit, Mo. following a wedding

Agency touts advantages of breastfeeding infants

Babies who are breast-fed have fewer allergies, colds, diaper rashes, ear infections, and stomach problems, but only half of all infants are breast-fed for any period of time, according to the Nebraska Department of Health.

The most recent national data show that only about 52 percent of women in the United States are breast-feeding their infants when they are discharged from the hospital after birth, and only 18 percent are still breast-feeding six months later.

The Nebraska Department of Health's Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) encourages new mothers to breast feed their infants, said Sue Medinger, director of the Nutrition Division of the Nebraska Department of Health.

"Breast-feeding gives babies the best possible start in life," Medinger said. "It provides them with food that contains all the nutrients babies need, it's easily digested, and it also provides them with some protection against infections."

Colostrum, the milk produced by mothers in the first few days after birth, is the baby's first immunizations against infections and diseases, Medinger said.

Studies have shown that there are also health benefits to the mother. Women who breast feed have a lower risk of developing breast and ovarian cancer.

Breast-feeding coordinators at local WIC agencies offer information and support for women interested in breast-feeding their infants. There are 14 agencies in Nebraska that provide WIC services to pregnant women, breast-feeding women, and to children up to age five. WIC services include nutrition education and counseling, referral to medical services, and the distribution of checks that can be redeemed at stores for nutritious foods.

Aug. 1-7 is World Breast Feeding Week.

Locally, WIC services are provided through Lorraine Ring, WIC Director at Goldenrod Hills Community Services in Wisner, 529-3513.

The GOLDEN YEARS by Pat Lichty

Trends in employee pension experiences put new emphasis on the need to plan ahead. Retirement at 65 and living happily on Social Security benefits plus pension payments used to be a common prospect for Americans. But the percentage of fulltime employees covered by pension plans is declining — it fell from 50 to 46 percent in the 1980s. One way to build a nest egg is to take advantage of Individual Retirement Accounts, 401 (k) plans and other tax-deferred opportunities to accumulate savings that will augment Social Security benefits.

James J. McCarthy went to work at 18 as a messenger in a state agency in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. He stayed on, was promoted and finally retired 63 years and three months later as head of an insurance division of the Public Utility Commission. His career was the longest of any state employee, and he enjoyed it: "I like the people at work and I like to help people," he said.

Course superintendant fires one-under in final round

Ken Dahl captures first golf Open

Wayne golf course superintendant Ken Dahl shed his tools long enough to take part in the Wayne Mens Amateur Golf Open Sunday at the country club and for the first time in 32 years, Dahl entered the winners circle.

"I've never won an Open," Dahl said. "I've won club tournaments and scrambles but never an Open." Dahl went into the final nine holes of championship play one stroke behind Wayne's Elliot Salmon and Holstein, Iowa's William Erickson who both fired 18-hole scores of 73.

Dahl, however, carded a one-under par 35 in the final nine holes which earned him a two-stroke victory over runner-up Salmon. Jim Sasse of Lincoln placed third with a 112 while Dave Ellis of Wayne finished fourth with a 113.

"I was very pleased with the way things turned out," Dahl said. "I hadn't played well the week prior to the tournament and the first seven or eight holes of the tournament, things weren't really going all that well but I was able to save score with a 37 on the front."

Dahl said he felt the key to his success on the first 18 holes was when he birdied number 12 into the wind. "It was so windy that I had to use my driver on the par three 236-yard hole," Dahl said. "I put my tee shot on the green and then hit about a 35-foot putt for the birdie."

Being the course superintendant, Dahl knows as well as anyone when the course is playing tough and Sunday played tough. "You know the playing conditions are tough when you have over 40 golfers in the championship flight and no one birdies holes three, six, seven and eight," Dahl said. "There was only one birdie all day long on hole number five."

Jerry Schneider of Beemer finished fifth in the open division with a 114 while Doug Lute of Laurel placed sixth with a 114. Doug Rose of Wayne finished seventh with a 114 and Matt Shaner of Valley, finished eighth with a 115. Erickson placed ninth with a 115 and Dale Erwin of Sioux City, Iowa rounded out the top 10 with a 115.

Doug Rose made the biggest jump during the final nine holes as he went from 18th to seventh with an even par round of 36 during the final nine holes.

A total of 151 golfers took part in the Open which was a postponement from the July 19th date.

Mark Harrison was crowned champion of the first flight with a 74 while Roger Lorsch placed second with a 75. Shawn Cepumicks finished third with a 76 and Frank Kowel placed fourth with a 77.

Val Kienast won the second flight with an 80 while Jeff Beckman placed second with an 82. Gary Sudbeck finished third with an 83 and Larry Smeal placed fourth with an 83.

David Conrad won the third flight with an 80 while Tim Hamer placed runner-up with an 82. John Flechenstein placed third with an 82 and Bill Erwin finished fourth with an 84.

Randy Simonsen won the fourth flight with an 82 and Mike Verwey placed second with an 84 while Dean Benson finished third with an 84 and Dave Ridder placed fourth with an 87.

The fifth flight was won by Dan Frost with an 81 while Max Kathol placed second with an 84. Curt Munson finished third with an 84 and Virgil Kardell placed fifth with an 84.

Kevin Peterson captured the sixth flight with an 85 while Dan Finn placed second with an 85. Willie Mahler finished third with an 85 and Tim Sutton placed fourth with an 86.

Roger Nelson won the seventh flight with a 77 while Arneson placed runner-up with an 88. Ken Marra finished third with an 88 and Ray Novak finished fourth with a 91.

Terry Mader won the eighth flight with an 89 and Greg Christensen placed second with a 92 while Woody Frey finished third with a 93. Todd Hart placed fourth with a 95.

Ken Jorgensen won the ninth and final flight with a 93 while Steve Meyer placed second with a 97. Kevin Dorcey finished third with a 98 and Les Keenan rounded out the ninth flight with a 103.

KEN DAHL captured his first ever golf Open with a 27-hole score of 109 during Sunday's Wayne Open. Dahl outdistanced runner-up Elliot Salmon by two strokes.

Above, Doug Rose attempts a birdie putt on hole number two during the final nine holes of championship play. Rose began the final nine holes in the 18th position and following an even par round of 36 on the final nine holes he moved up eleven notches to tie for fifth place with Jerry Schneider of Beemer and Doug Lute of Laurel. In the tie-breaker he settled for seventh place. Despite the fact that the Open was postponed from July 19 due to flood conditions on the course, the Wayne tournament still attracted over 150 golfers which were broken down into 10 flights.

Wayne football team to have a Lift-a-Thon

The 1992 Blue Devil football members will be taking part in a Lift-a-Thon to help pay for the transportation to Hastings for the contest with Hastings Adams Central.

The money raised will also be used to purchase equipment that may be needed throughout the season which is not covered in the budget. The Lift-a-Thon will also help set up a scholarship fund to help future players enroll in football camp at Wayne State or other camps that may provide a special area of concentration for individual talent.

The Lift-a-Thon will take place the week of Aug. 10. The exercise will consist of the squat, as it is one of the best tests of athletic ability. Each athlete will find 10 sponsors to make a donation according to the amount of weight lifted.

Sports Briefs

Football checkout Monday

WAYNE-The Wayne High Football team will hold its checkout day for equipment next week. On Monday the seniors will check out equipment beginning at 8:30 a.m. The Juniors will checkout on Tuesday at 7:30 a.m. with the sophomores checking out equipment on Wednesday, Aug. 12 at 7:30 a.m. The Freshman will check out gear on Thursday the 13th at 7:30 a.m.

Paysen team leads attendance chart

WAYNE-After eight weeks of weightlifting by the Wayne High football team, Chad Paysen's team is leading in the attendance mark with an 89.2 percent showing. Bobby Barnes team is second at 85.6 with the Regg Carnes team third at 78.1. Matt Rise has his team in fourth with a 70.7 percent attendance mark and Jack Swinney's team is fifth at 64.3.

Co-ed softball league to begin

WAYNE-A co-ed softball league will begin in Wayne if enough interest is generated. The projected start of the league will be Aug. 17 and take place each Monday at the City Softball Complex.

A minimum of six teams is needed for the league to become a reality. Anyone interested in playing co-ed softball should contact Steve Jorgensen, Doug Carroll, Mike Grosz or Kevin Peterson.

Softball season extended

WAYNE-Due to the fact that the Wayne Men's Softball League has been hampered by rain this summer, the league has been extended another week as to let teams have a chance to make-up games that were washed away.

Teams will have a chance to make-up games on Thursday; Monday, Tuesday and Thursday the 13th. The League Tournament will be played on Monday, Aug. 17, Tuesday the 18th and Thursday the 20th.

Fall sports season begins Aug. 17

WAYNE-The fall sports seasons for area high schools will begin Monday, Aug. 17. The Wayne Herald will be extensively covering Wayne High along with Wakefield, Winside, Allen and Laurel this season along with all Wayne State College athletics.

Sand

fect compliment to that philosophy."

The co-ed league attracted 14 teams this summer with teams playing each Sunday evening at the Wayne County Fairgrounds. "Attracting large numbers of co-eds doesn't happen a lot," Zeiss said. "The way we have the rules structured everyone playing is involved in the game."

Each team must have at least three women playing at all times. When the ball is hit more than once on a side, a women must touch the ball in order for play to continue.

"Speaking for the rec department, we feel very grateful that we've been able to get this league started in Wayne," Zeiss said. "Like any new activity, it has to be approved by the city which was granted. Then we had to find a place to play and the Wayne Fair Board was very cooperative in helping us out."

Zeiss said he attended a fair board meeting and gave a proposal on the sand volleyball league and the board agreed to it. "After we got the go ahead and found a place to play we had to see if there was any interest in the area," Zeiss said. "We advertised in the paper, radio and on the cable channel which gives public information."

Zeiss said originally the goal for the league was eight teams and for the first couple weeks after the news was out about the new league, only four or five teams showed interest.

"It seemed like the process moved rather slow at first but after the initial two weeks of looking for teams, things really kicked in and we ended up with 14. This is the largest turnout for a rec activity in its first year of existence in Wayne. It allows folks to get some exercise as well as socialize and have fun."

"I guess playing sand volleyball leaves you feeling like you are around a beach," Zeiss said. "It's a great outdoor summer sport which allows you to get that competitive spirit while at the same time taking part in a rec activity."

Zeiss said he believes one of the reasons why sand volleyball is so popular for a variety of ages is because it is a "safe sport."

"Injuries in sand volleyball are minimal compared to that of hard court play because you have a softer landing when you dive for a ball," Zeiss said.

The current Wayne Sand Volleyball League sports two teams from Winfield, one from Wakefield and one from Pender.

Zeiss said he feels there are a lot of good players in the Wayne League despite being the first year it's been introduced to the community. One player, however, is so involved in sand volleyball that he plays in leagues in Wayne, Wynot and Norfolk.

Bob Foxhoven is often teased about being the Karch Kiraly of sand volleyball on the rec level. Kiraly, of course, is a former olympian on the men's volleyball team who gave up international hard court play to play in the sand.

"I love playing sand volleyball because it's an outdoor sport and you're not as prone to injury as you are on the hard courts," Foxhoven said. "I started playing in Wynot with a few friends at parties as something to do and before long we were taking part in area tournaments."

Foxhoven, who also enjoys playing indoor volleyball, says sand volleyball is an easy sport to adapt to. "It also allows for a husband and wife to compete together," Foxhoven said.

Zeiss said he's been overwhelmed and ecstatic about the turn out this summer and despite the fact that playing sand volleyball leaves you covered with sand in all areas of your body, it's going to be around the Wayne area for quite some time.

County on budget home-stretch

By Les Mann
Herald Publisher

Wayne County Commissioners are on the home stretch in the budget preparation race and are quickly making up the distance between Revenue and Expenses.

That distance was over $400,000 two weeks ago when the race started and as of Wednesday afternoon the finish line was in sight with only a few large cuts left to finalize according to Merlin Beiermann, commissioner.

County employees may be foregoing pay raises next year and it is likely insurance coverage may be cut as the final decisions are reached Wednesday, he said.

It is also likely that $100,000 will be whacked from each of the three country road districts, he said.

County officials had included a 4 percent pay raise for county employees in the budget requests they had submitted to the commissioners. Health insurance premiums to maintain the same coverage as last year for county employees was also scheduled to go up by over $22,000. "I know we're not in a position to offer both," said commissioner Robert Nissen during Tuesday's day-long budget wrangling.

Commissioners met individually with county officials to discuss their wishes in terms of whether the county should eliminate raises or reduce insurance benefits.

County officials were also asked if they would forego their own mandated raises in light of the budget crunch. By resolution passed before the last election, county officials were all guaranteed an annual raise or reduction in pay by the same percentage as the cost of living index. That index is currently setting at around 2.8 percent.

While they do not have to agree to no raises, the elected county officials must rely on the commissioners for operating appropriations in their departments, and most indicated reluctance to accept raises for themselves while their employees were not likely to receive any.

It is anticipated the final proposed county budget will be ready for public hearing on Aug. 25.

Degrees

ident of admissions and records at Wayne State, will present the bachelor's degree candidates, and Dr. Robert McCue, dean of graduate studies, will present the master's degree candidates.

Rev. Donald J. Nunnally of the First United Methodist Church in Wayne will give the invocation.

School budget up 5%

The Winside Public School's 1992/93 operating budget will be increasing approximately five percent.

The major increases in the budget are due to increased salary and related costs; textbooks and supplies; computer hardware, transportation; and building and grounds upkeep.

Even though the budget will be increasing, the tax request will be decreasing, largely due to an increase in state aid. Tax levies will not be able to be projected at this time because the school district's evaluations are not available, according to Donavon Leighton, superintendent.

Cum Laude graduates are Sheila Kay Matthews Arlt, Norfolk; Peggy Kay Rouse Brown, Wakefield, and Brent Allen Monson, Rock Valley, Iowa.

Honorable Mention graduates are Debra Leann Kerns Blum, Alta, Iowa; Brian Jerome Buresh, Norfolk; Pamela Jane Gesell Dede, Norfolk; Kyle Lynn McCormick, Madrid; Melissa Kaye Myers, Norfolk; and Leesa Lynne Schau, Charter Oak, Iowa.

The public is invited to attend the ceremonies. In case of inclement weather, commencement will be held in Rice Auditorium.

Sorenson loves fair atmosphere

By LaVon Anderson
Assistant Editor

Dick Sorenson has been attending the Wayne County Fair for as long as he can remember, and even before he can remember.

"I was four months old in August of 1936, and I'm sure I went to the fair," smiles Dick.

"I could go to the fair several times a year and still enjoy it. I've always loved the fair atmosphere."

Dick's love affair with fairs is evident by the number of years he has worked in helping to provide residents of Wayne County and the surrounding area with one of the best county fairs in the state.

He has been a member of the Wayne County Agricultural Society (fair board) for three decades, and this past January received an award for his 30 years of service from the State Fair Managers Association.

DICK'S memories of the Wayne County Fair include an incident which he classifies as "one of the most embarrassing moments of my life" and occurred when he was about 10 years old.

"When I was a kid, we used to race ponies at the Wayne County Fair. Swede Fredrickson and I both raced our ponies, and Swede always had a tendency to win."

Dick recalls with a boyish grin the only time he was leading Swede, "by at least two lengths," when all of a sudden his pony spotted an open gate west of the original grandstand.

"I couldn't stop him," laughs Dick. "That pony flew through the gate, down the midway, into the barn, and came to an abrupt stop in the stall."

"But," adds Dick, "the midway was full of kids and I didn't hit a one."

DICK, who farms northwest of Wayne and runs a purebred SPF breeding operation, said he first became involved in working at the fair when he served as co-superintendent in the hog department.

"I had that job for a number of years, and then things just sort of went along from there."

Dick is one of 15 directors in the Wayne County Agricultural Society and is a past president of the organization. Current officers are Mick Topp, president; Howard Greve, vice president; Leland Herman, secretary; and Dave Ley, treasurer.

He is noticeably and understandably proud of the Wayne County Fair and of the many volunteers who work hard each year to put together the four-day event.

"I visit as many other fairs as I can, and I'm really proud of what we have right here in Wayne County. We've always had tremendous help from everyone."

SINCE serving on the fair board, Dick says there haven't been any major problems, except for once or twice when they had trouble with the water line a day or two before the fair. "That made things kind of hectic for a while."

He adds that the most popular events each year include the free barbecue, tractor pull, grandstand programs and demolition derby.

"The demolition derby has been extremely popular," says Dick, recalling how fair board members thought the event might last four or five years before people grew tired of seeing cars smash into one another.

"That was some 20 years ago," he smiles, "and the event is still going strong and still filling the grandstands."

Dick adds that the fair board also attempts each year to book the best entertainment possible, while at the same time keeping the cost-factor in mind. "The majority of shows that we've had during the years have gone over very well."

Dick explains that approximately 15 to 20 acts are showcased each year during the state fair convention, and that board members try to watch as many of the acts as possible.

"The booking agents are also there and we can either book one of the acts showcased, or another that we think the public would enjoy more."

He added that the Clyde Cummins Foley show has been one of the most popular at the Wayne County Fair.

DICK SEES nothing but bigger and better things for the Wayne County Fair and the people who attend it each year.

"I've felt that during the years I've been on the board, we've tried to be fairly conservative, and yet we've made a lot of real fine improvements on the grounds."

One of the major improvements to the fairgrounds during the past few years includes the Wayco Center, where the majority of livestock shows are held. In addition, the Wayco Center has allowed the barbecue to go on each year — rain or shine.

"Speaking of the barbecue," smiles Dick, "there was a time when strictly beef was served and some pork producers felt that there were as many hogs raised in the county as cattle."

It was several years back that Dick went to a local grocer and purchased two pork loins which were added to the barbecue pit.

It happened to rain that day and the barbecue was postponed until the following day. During the night, thieves stole some of the meat, including the pork.

"I've always said it was the pork those thieves were after," laughs Dick.

DICK SAYS he would like to see continued expansion in all areas of the fair.

"We recently acquired another 10 acres just north of the present fairgrounds, and I'd like to see that expand into some kind of agriculture park."

The long-time fair board member would also like to see a community building located at the fairgrounds which could be used for various activities throughout the year.

"The new 10-acre site would be an ideal location for that," smiles Dick. "Our fairground facilities are just too nice to be used just one week of the year."

Dick said he is pleased that city recreation sand volleyball is being played at the fairgrounds this year, and that the horse arena is being used by the Rainbow Riders, an organization which provides horseback rides to area handicapped individuals.

He added that new restrooms are being built in the commercial building so that it can be used during the spring, summer and fall.

DICK SAYS he believes the county fair is as popular as its ever been. "As long as we offer a diversified package of entertainment and activity, the county fair is here to stay."

"I haven't seen any big drop off in attendance, and I think the county fair still offers something for everyone."

Dick adds that the only days fair attendance seems to decline is when

DICK SORENSON HAS been attending the Wayne County Fair for as long as he can remember.

it rains. "And I don't think there's a person involved in the Wayne County Fair who hates to see it rain during fair week."

IN ADDITION to developing the newly acquired land, Dick says the fair board will continue to improve the present fairgrounds and activities.

He owns personal satisfaction, he adds, comes in being involved and working with the community.

"I'm not sure how to say it, but there is nothing more pleasing than to see a youngster start showing livestock at the fair, being there when he or she gets a ribbon, and seeing the gleam in their eyes."

"You know," adds Dick, "I don't think I'm that old, but some of those youngsters are married now and their children are still showing livestock at the Wayne County Fair. "That's my satisfaction."

Experts suggest that back-to-school shopping and allowances are two of the best means of teaching your school-age kids how to handle money.

Begin shopping with a list of needed items. Have your child help make up the list with you. Then set priorities by ranking the items in groups by importance, from the most to the least necessary. Should you wait until later to get some items -- say, until they are requested from school?

Explain that you must plan carefully -- or else you might run out of money before you have bought all that you need. Go into details about all the alternatives. Is it wise to purchase several dozen pencils, folders, and rulers because they are cheap, or to buy fewer things in variety, some of which are more expensive -- like a ring binder, filler paper, scissors, and a pen? Will buying one thing keep you from buying something else?

When shopping you might let your child handle money long enough to give it to the sales clerk. This builds a little self-confidence.

After you get home, ask your child to evaluate the purchases. For instance, you might say, "Would you buy that large box of crayons again? Do those scissors work as well as you thought they would?"

Allowances work much the same way, showing kids how to plan their spending with care, and to spend within limits. Yet younger children should not be rushed: "Until they are five or six, a child is unable to understand concepts relating to money," says Eugene Kornhaber, M.D., a child psychologist. Kornhaber says the younger kids can be paid smaller sums -- like a dime -- for special tasks, such as cleaning their room or watering plants. Unless the concept is well understood, however, experts say it's best to start providing an allowance no earlier than age 6 to 8.

How much should you give them? It depends upon the family's needs and the child's. Openly discuss the size of the allowance, and clearly explain that there are limitations with-in all families. Talk about how the allowance money should be used.

Should you ever give an advance on an allowance? Experts say no. Your firm refusal shows that the limitations are real, and that the child must live within their means. Furthermore, children on allowances should not be rewarded extra for doing routine household chores, like cleaning their room. This, after all, is just a part of family membership, and the family is more important than money.

Along those same lines, it is not wise in the long-run to withhold an allowance for specific misdeeds or failures. Economists say this teaches that money is a weapon -- a lesson that too many people carry into marriages, with unhappy results.

Stutheit completes seminar

As a graduate of Lutheran Brotherhood University (LBU) Summer School, Loren F. Stutheit of Wayne, recently completed an intensive three-day seminar dedicated to sharpening one's skills as a financial services professional.

A district representative at the Donald D. Jacobsen Agency, Stutheit was updated on a variety of topics, including new and revised products, service activities, and selling concepts, among others.

This training was designed to improve financial service for clients. Held at eight schools across the country, Stutheit attended LBU at Augustana College in Sioux Falls, S.D., from May 26-29.

Reaching out to a 1,700-member field force, Lutheran Brotherhood's LBU Summer School is considered rare in the insurance industry.

Lutheran Brotherhood is a Fraternal benefit society with one million members nationwide. It offers a broad range of financial products and services to Lutherans. Through its fraternal (charitable and benevolent) resources, it aids its members, their communities and Lutheranism.

Country music alive and well

Three years ago, driving home from South Carolina, my mother and sister and I stayed all night in Nashville. Mom was really interested in the Grand Ole Opry, and I told her we would come back sometime when we had reservations. I hadn't known until then that she was a country fan.

I mentioned this project to my brother last year, and he came through in a big way. For Christmas last year, Mom, Mary and I received a trip to Nashville. We could pick the time. He would provide the transportation, accommodations and Opryland.

We've just arrived home from there. I had been hearing rumors that Branson, Missouri was becoming a music city in its own right; and that Nashville was on its way out. Brothers and sisters, I'm here to tell you that it isn't so.

I never cease to be amazed at how many country fans there are; all the diverse ages country fans represent; and the cross-cultural spectrum they reflect. I mean, George and Barbara Bush were at the country and western music awards I watched last year.

There really is music everywhere here: from the only country and western harpist in the world at the Opryland Hotel, to taped country songs in the theme park, to wonderful live music groups in Opryland theaters (fourteen), the Grand Ole Opry itself, and live jazz downtown.

The Opryland Hotel has almost 2,000 rooms and is planning 1,000 more, is 85% booked at all times, and has its convention facilities reserved into the year 2000. We had veranda rooms that opened onto a huge conservatory. There are waterfalls, lush tropical plants, and dancing waters, and restaurants in strategic spots.

We did not run into Dolly or Garth, but we did hear Porter Wagoner, Skeeter Davis, and numerous other names you would recognize. It seems that if you do not die a tragic and untimely death as a country entertainer, you live forever. Two performers we heard were Roy Acuff, who is 89 and lives on the grounds; and Little Jimmy Dickens, 92, still twirling a guitar. It's been a fun experience and I'm not done telling you about it. More next week.

Fireworks beautiful, but injurious

Nebraska hospitals report 94 people received injuries from fireworks this year. This is a 35 percent increase over 1991.

Sixty-two percent of the injuries occurred to children age 16 and under. Children caught up in the excitement of the Fourth of July do not either realize or forget the danger of fireworks. Accidents occur due to running into sparklers or punks, stepping on discarded fireworks or by children shooting fireworks at each other.

The severity of firework injuries also increased this year. Second-degree burns accounted for 40 percent of the reported injuries — a 34 percent increase. The number of people receiving lacerations increased 43 percent since 1991. More injuries occurred to the face and eyes than any other part of the body.

Many injuries are accidental — fireworks go off prematurely, ashes land on spectators or spectators inhale the smoke. Children get careless and hold firecrackers instead of throwing them or they placed lit firecrackers in cans or bottles. Children should always be supervised by adults when using fireworks, but even adults make mistakes resulting in injuries.

A 21-year-old male received facial lacerations when hit by a missile-type firework during a "fireworks war" with friends. A woman received second-degree burns after emptying powder from fireworks into an ashtray. The powder was forgotten about until it flashed when a cigarette was lit. An exploding bottle caused lacerations to an adult after the bottle rocket inside was lit. The adult was holding the bottle at the time.

Fireworks can be spectacular to watch and enjoy, but the resulting injuries take the enjoyment out of the celebration. In several instances, these injuries will never be forgotten. The safest way to enjoy fireworks is at a public display — only three of the 94 injuries occurred at public displays.

Should fireworks be outlawed to prevent injuries? You are the judge. Twenty-five injuries occurred in Omaha where fireworks are illegal. Illegal fireworks (bottle rockets, cherry bombs, etc.) caused 16 injuries. Two people, one under the age of six, lost their sight because of being near bottle rockets when they went off. Is the danger worth a moment of colorful bursts of light?

Criminal justice students participate in orientation

Jeremy Klausen, Laurel; Billie Birkley, Wakefield, and Michael Zach, Wayne, were among the criminal justice students who recently participated in orientation activities at Northeast Community College in Norfolk.

The students have an opportunity to meet with advisers, register for classes, and be introduced to student services for the fall semester during the summer orientation sessions.

Random survey reveals Nebraska cooks are both careful and careless

Too many cooks may spoil the broth, as the saying goes, but one careless cook can spoil it, too.

On the positive side, Nebraska cooks appear to be more careful about washing their hands than their national counterparts, reveals a survey by a University of Nebraska-Lincoln food specialist. However, many other cooks fail to keep foods at a safe temperature, putting their families at risk for food-borne illness.

In a random survey last year, Julie A. Albrecht, UNL food specialist, quizzed the main cook in 426 Nebraska households to determine food safety knowledge and practices.

Safe food handling is essential because illness easily can be transmitted through food, Albrecht said. For example, the state Department of Health reported 202 cases of hepatitis A in Nebraska in 1991, a case being more than one person. Just one infected person handling food in a restaurant or institution could infect many others simply by not washing hands properly. At home, illness also is easily encouraged by careless cooking.

Albrecht found that 96 percent of those surveyed said they wash their hands often during food preparation, a figure somewhat higher than a national survey revealed.

Proper hand washing -- which includes lathering for 20 seconds -- can reduce the incidence of the two most common food-borne illnesses, staphylococcus aureus (staph) and hepatitis A, she said. In fact, many people who think they have caught a "flu bug" actually have food-borne illness. Although a healthy adult usually recovers quickly, children, the elderly, pregnant women and those with suppressed immune systems can be more severely afflicted, she said.

Approximately half those surveyed leave perishable foods too long at room temperature, half handle potentially contaminated foods unsafely, and a third do not heat food properly. These practices encourage the growth of microorganisms in the food and can lead to illness.

Although food may contain microorganisms, the food may be harmless until the microorganisms find the right conditions to grow and multiply, said Albrecht. Temperature is the one condition a cook can easily control. Since the danger zone in which microorganisms grow and multiply best is from 40 to 140 degrees, food should be kept either colder than 40 degrees, or hotter than 140, she emphasized. Two hours is the longest a food should be kept at room temperature; one hour when temperatures are high, such as at a summer picnic.

"Failing to refrigerate foods properly is the number one reason for food illness," said the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources food specialist. Food in storage containers should be no deeper than 3 inches, she said, allowing for quick cooling of the entire amount. Many storage containers are unsuitable because the interior of the food is too deep and its temperature remains in the danger zone. In practice, this means large amounts of food should be transferred to smaller containers.

"You should not cool a hot food on the counter before placing it in the refrigerator, but should refrigerate it immediately," Albrecht said.

Information from the survey will help university specialists develop effective educational programs in food safety.

Funding was from the Innovation Grant Program of the UNL College of Home Economics.

Technicians receive certification

Peoples Natural Gas Service technicians received refrigerant recovery certification.

In compliance with an Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) ban on the discharge of refrigerant into the atmosphere, Peoples service technicians will receive training by July 1, 1992.

The EPA ban requires certified service technicians to use a reclaim device any time a sealed refrigerant or cooling system is opened for repair or service.

Peoples service technicians received hands-on training in reclamation techniques for refrigerators and central air conditioning. Training also covered areas such as laws regarding refrigerant removal and the need to protect the environment.

After passing an EPA-approved exam, the service technicians are required to carry a certification card.

"Our company has invested a lot of time and money in training service technicians so we can do our part to protect the environment. We want our technicians to have the best equipment available and to be thoroughly trained," said James Markham, customer service manager.

Customers interested in air conditioning and refrigeration inspection and repair service may contact their nearest Peoples Customer Service Center for more information. Peoples also provides Service Guard Plus for a low monthly fee.

Service Guard Plus protects homeowners from expensive parts and labor bills on most appliances, including air conditioning systems.

ADVICE FROM 400 B.C.

Back in 400 B.C. Hippocrates advice was, "Walking is a man's best friend." An article from a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association concluded that women could raise their levels of HDL (good cholesterol) without vigorous exercise. The study involved 59 healthy women. They all walked 3 miles a day, five days a week. Some walked fast, some slower and some just strolled along. In all cases, the study showed increased good cholesterol. Whether it's fast, slow or moderate, walking is still one of man's best friends...and woman's too.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK'S SENIOR CITIZEN CORNER

AVOID SCAMSTERS IN ESTATE PLANNING: The American Association of Retired Persons has issued a report on the tactics of some unscrupulous sales practices aimed at older folks who want to plan their estates so that after death, their assets are distributed according to their wishes.

The AARP cited numerous complaints about door-to-door salespersons who claim to represent an organization called the American Association of Senior Citizens, and who pressure their targets to buy living trusts for as much as $7,000. The State of Maine has already moved to charge this group with fraud.

But estate planning is important, and so long as consumers learn to be wary of overpriced living trusts, often offered via door-to-door methods, Horace B. Deets, AARP Executive Director, says they are "Often a cost-saving alternative to wills."

This comment surprised me as much as I'm sure it surprises you. I had always assumed that wills were a less expensive way of determining how one's assets should be distributed. But, says the AARP, a living trust (not to be confused with a living will which determines what sort of medical treatment should not be used if a person is unable to communicate these wishes himself or herself) permits an individual to avoid probate — the process by which local courts review the transfer of inherited property — by naming someone who will make sure that the terms of the trust are carried out after the individual's death.

Average costs for drawing up a will can be $50 to $200, while establishing a living trust can cost from $150 to $1000. But, the report says, probate can add $1300 to $1800 or more in costs, depending on estate value, legal and filing fees, and other factors. (Washing Checkbook, a consumer research firm, collected price data surveying 30 lawyers in San Diego, Calif., Milwaukee, Wis., and Wilmington, Del.)

For a free copy of the AARP report, send a postcard to Product Report: Living Trusts and Wills (D14535), AARP (EE0308), P.O. Box 22796, Long Beach, Calif. 90801-22796. Allow six-eight weeks for delivery. Be sure to include your name and address.

NOTE: Malnutrition, which affects many older people who are too poor to buy the right foods, and too proud to ask for help, or who may be too frail to shop for and prepare meals, can cause memory loss. The condition is reversible with the right diet. So, if you know someone with memory lapses, make a discreet inquiry into their dietary habits, and if they are malnourished, contact a church, synagogue, or local governmental agency for advice on how they can be helped.

Pre-register for fun time at church

Vacation Bible School at Redeemer Lutheran

Children of the community are welcome to participate in the Vacation Bible School from Monday, Aug. 10 to Friday, Aug. 14 at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne. Pastor Frank Rothfuss and Pastor Michael Girlinghouse are asking that children pre-register for the fun time at the church by calling the church office at 375-1736 or Robin Johnson at 375-3895. Fun, games, Bible lessons, singing, crafts and more are planned for children age 4 through the 6th grade. Sessions will be daily from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The theme of this year's Vacation Bible School is "Together in Jesus' Name." The program will explore how we have been called together in Jesus' name to live as His faithful disciples. A special program will be held Thursday evening at 7 p.m. with an ice cream social following. Each child is asked to donate $3 to help defray the cost of a t-shirt and decal which will be worn for the Thursday evening program.

Each family participating is also asked to bring three dozen cookies or bars during the week. Other refreshments for the week-long school will be provided by the local Aid Association for Lutherans branch. Learning activities during the week will also surround the new Habitat for Humanity Project which is beginning in Sioux City. Members of the staff for the Vacation Bible School include: Planning committee: Kim Dunkla, Pastor Mike, Robin Johnson, Annette Rasmussen and Sandy Rothfuss. Nursery: Tina Luft and Nicole McLagan. Kindergarten I: Joanie Baier and Jenny Reinhardt. Kindergarten II: Phyllis Rahn. First Grade: Jessica Rothfuss. Sixth Grade: Jeannine Wriedt. Theme Centers: (grades 2-5) Sue Olson, Terri Test, Sandy Rothfuss, Cindy Bargholz, Rodella Wacker, Tisha Rothfuss, Annette Rasmussen

Equal Partners

Intriguing, the way God designed a solid union between man and woman. A harmonious marriage is a genuine partnership. When a man cherishes his spouse, she fully blossoms to reach her true potential. The more given, the more each receives. Most glorious!

FIREMEN'S PICNIC

The annual firemen's picnic was held July 26 at noon in the Carroll park.

Following the meal, a short presentation program was held to honor members for their years of service. Those receiving plaques for service were Larry Wetterberg, 10 years; Terry Davis, 19; and Gordon Davis, 32. The Carroll Rural Fire Department is a strictly volunteer organization.

Donna Kraft and Lathan of Sioux City were Friday visitors in the David Rahn home.

Henry and Violet Arp of Laurel, Linda James of Laurel, Roger and Donna Kraft and Lathan of Sioux City, Randy Dunn of Dixon, Sharon and Ray Brentlinger and Penny and Joanne Rahn, all of Allen; and Terry and Marvel Rahn, Craig and Carla of Wayne were visitors in the David Rahn home in Allen to help Lyle Rahn celebrate his birthday.

The Henry Allen family reunion was held Sunday at the Senior Citizens Center in Allen. Families attending were from Columbus, Wakefield and Allen. The attendance was small this year.

Esther Koester was honored on her birthday Monday with family members joining her for dinner at the center. Attending were Duane and Mary Lou Koester, Larry and Glory Koester and Marcia Lundin of Wakefield. They served birthday cake to those attending the noon dinner in honor of Esther.

Joe Carr has returned home from the hospital in Sioux City.

NORTHERN NEBRASKA'S CATARACT SPECIALIST

"I heard a lot of good reports about Dr. Feidler."

Pauline Frink had a cataract.

She had "Single-Stitch" Cataract Surgery.

"I had my eyes tested because I thought I should be seeing better than I was. I felt I was meeting cars quicker than I should have been. Driving could have been dangerous because I had poor depth perception.

Dr. Feidler told me I had a cataract. Once I decided to have surgery I couldn't believe it, there wasn't anything to it.

I feel more comfortable driving now. If you need cataract surgery, have it done. You won't feel anything.

I heard a lot of good reports about Dr. Feidler. I like him very much. That's why I chose him to do my surgery."

Child care businesses may learn at college

Deborah Mabry-Strong, administrator of the Child Care and Development Unit of the Nebraska Department of Social Services, will be the keynote speaker during "Children Are Your Business," a conference for child care providers, on Saturday, Aug. 22 at Northeast Community College.

Activities scheduled for the morning will be held in the Activities Center Theatre, and the afternoon program will be in the Maclay Building.

This conference is designed to provide additional knowledge for those who provide child care to enhance their caregiving activities. Baby-sitters, day care home providers, day care center providers, pre-school providers and other interested persons are encouraged to attend.

At 9 a.m., Mabry-Strong will present "Exceeding the Minimis...Striving for Quality," which highlights the characteristics of quality child care. She will be followed by Dr. Charles Lang's presentation "What I Learned Working With Mr. Wizard." Dr. Lang is a physics instructor at Omaha Westside High School. His presentation covers science demonstration in which small children may participate.

The afternoon portion of the program is divided into three sessions: Session I is from 1:15 to 2:15 p.m., and sessions II and III from 2:25 to 3:35 p.m., and 3:45 to 4:45 p.m. Persons may choose one program from each session.

Topics for session I are "Tips on Writing Grants," tips for writing grant proposals; "Food Service Sanitation" and "Child Care Health Concerns," discussion on temperature of potentially hazardous foods and child care health issues; "Recognizing Child Neglect & Child Abuse," an overview of the laws protecting children; and "What's Cookin?," introducing a cookbook developed by, and for, child care providers.

Session II and III topics are "Junk Treasures & Magic Mixtures," using recyclable materials and household products to make creative crafts with children; "Coping With Loss -- How Can I Help?," how to talk with children about death and dealing with grief; and "Helping Children Survive TV," how to reduce the negative effects that television can have on children's lives.

Cost for this one-day conference is $15, which includes program materials, refreshment breaks, and luncheon buffet. Registration deadline is Aug. 8, and early registration is encouraged.

For more information concerning registration procedures, contact Jerry Brungard, director of allied health services at Northeast, 644-0440, or 1-800-348-9033.

Nebraska hosts rally

For the first time, Nebraska will host the Region VI Holiday Rambler Recreational Vehicle Club Rally in Fremont's Christensen Field, Aug. 13-16.

Running concurrent with John C. Fremont Days, the rally is expected to bring 125 RV units from Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Among the activities planned are tours, craft workshops, bazaar, seminars, special entertainment on Friday and Saturday night, an optional train ride, a fishing seminar and Nebraska's version of the Orient Express, a mystery train ride complete with a five course dinner.

The second event will be the State Rally to be held at the fairgrounds in York on Sept. 24-27. This rally is open to all persons who own a Holiday Rambler-produced RV even if they do not belong to HRRVC.

Planned activities include tours, bingo, pancake breakfast, craft classes, special entertainment, catered dinner, dealer displays and something new -- a road rally.

State Manager Herb Jespersen of Lincoln will form new chapters at this rally. For more information about either of these rallies, contact Jespersen at 6401 Sumner, Lincoln, NE 68506.

COURT OF HONOR

Boy Scout Troop #172 held a court of honor on July 20. Troop members received various merit badges and rank advances. Present for the ceremony were Kevin Johnson, Keith Keim, Adam Ulrich, Austin Brown, Jon Ulrich, Josh VanderVeen and Mike Rischmueller. Tom Keim is their Scoutmaster and Dave Rusk is assistant scoutmaster.

Austin Brown, Josh VanderVeen, Jon Ulrich and Cory Jensen all advanced to tenderfoot rank. Ulrich also received a wilderness survival badge.

Advancing to first class scouts were Jared Baker, Kevin Johnson, Keith Keim, Shad Miner, Doug Peterson, Jim Rusk and Adam Ulrich. Miner and Ulrich also received their second class rankings.

John Ulrich received merit badges for woodcarving, forestry and leather work. Heath Keim received his merit badges for first aid, woodcarving, leather work, wilderness survival, canoeing and forestry.

Shad Miner received his forestry, woodcarving and first aid badges; Jared Baker and Jim Rusk completed the requirements for the leather work badge. Doug Peterson received badges for forestry, first aid and Indian lore and Adam Ulrich received badges for first aid, woodcarving, canoeing and swimming. Mike Rischmueller, who is a Star Scout, received badges for woodcarving, canoeing, mammals, leather work, camping and citizenship in the community.

The troop and parents present held a discussion on fundraising and whether to continue to sell Christmas trees or try another project. Door-to-door sales of Boy Scout gourmet popcorn was also talked about.

ORIENTATION/REGISTRATION

Billie Birkley of Wakefield was one of the criminal justice students who recently participated in orientation/registration activities at Northeast Community College at Norfolk in preparation for the upcoming fall semester.

Incoming students met with the faculty advisors, registered for classes were informed as to their financial aid status and learned about the college services, regulations and activities.

Northeast Community College offers more than 50 vocational, technical, liberal arts and business degree programs of study, leading to immediate employment opportunities or transfer to a four-year college.

ATTENDS CHAUTAQUA

PEO Chapter CZ met July 20 at the Black Knight in Wayne with Terri Beza and Mary Bose as hostesses. The chapter then attended the Chautauqua at the Wayne County fairgrounds.

Next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Sherri Eaton home with Kathy Mitchell as co-hostess on Monday, Aug. 17. Note the time change.

Mrs. Jean Tiedtke will review the book "Legacy of Lies and Love." Also present will be Gerda O'Day, about whom the book is written.

SWIM PARTY

"Dive Into a Good Book" was the theme for this year's summer reading program at Graves Public Library. Over 50 girls and boys attended the reading program, with 1,300 books being checked out, according to librarian Nancy Fredrickson.

Drawings were held each week for each grade, with prizes being awarded.

A swimming party is being sponsored by the library on Saturday, Aug. 8 from 5-7 p.m. for all those who participated in the reading program.

To reward each one attending the program, passes to the swimming party will be handed out. Those who attended all four sessions will receive a free pass; three sessions, 75 cents off the price of admission; two sessions, 50 cents off and one session, 25 cents off.

Family members are also welcome to attend the swimming party, at their own expense. A reminder to all, children under six need to be accompanied by an adult or someone over 16 years of age.

This year's program was organized by Cathy Schroeder, assisted by Teresa Soderberg, Lynda Turner, Mary Ann Bryne, Marsha Henderson, Bob Clough, Barbara Holm and Michael Rischmueller.

Music Camps a big hit

FRED HANNA, director of bands at Wayne State College is shown working with students during last week's music camps. The camps concluded with performances over the weekend. More than 400 students from throughout the country participated in the successful music camp program at WSC this summer.

Students to register for fall classes

The Wakefield community school has set the dates for the fall class registration and released the schedule of classes for junior high and high school students. Registration for all students in seventh through 12th grades will be held from Aug. 11-14 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each day.

First day of classes for Wakefield students will be Monday, Aug. 24. Fall sports practice sessions are scheduled to begin on Aug. 17. Principal Joe Coble encourages parents to accompany students during registration. It was also stated that all students in one family are recommended, if possible, to come on the date and time for the oldest student.

Seniors will register all day on Tuesday, Aug. 11; juniors on Wednesday; sophomores during the morning hours on Thursday; freshmen during the afternoon of Aug. 13; and all junior high students on Friday, Aug. 14. The eighth grade will sign up for classes in the morning and the seventh grade students during the afternoon.

If students or families have conflicts with the suggested registration times, they may come on one of the other days. Registering students will also be asked to buy lunch tickets and rent locks for their lockers. Cost of the lock, per student, will be $2, refundable at the end of the school year. Lunch tickets are available by the week, month or semester.

We agree: Shopping in Wayne just makes cents

Shopping in your home town just makes cents if you are a minister or a member of a congregation, according to Rev. Jack Williams, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Supporting the local businesses that support the churches in the community is only one of the reasons shopping in Wayne makes cents, he said.

Supporting local businesses "fosters the sense of community, honesty and security that is a part of the positive lifestyle we enjoy." He said this is a town where a lot of people are related. Shopping here affirms the family structure. "We're all a part of the family." And as in any family, the ties become stronger and closer with healthy interaction, he said.

In a Biblical-sense, Williams said shopping in your own hometown is simply good stewardship of resources. He said going out of town—often wastes time and seldom saves money.

Though Williams said, with a laugh, shopping at home is not always as satisfying as he would like. He bought a golf shirt here recently, he said. He asked the store owner for a guarantee that the shirt would improve his golf game.

"He wouldn't give me a guarantee and my game hasn't improved," said Williams of his friend in the clothing business.
