'Sneaky storm' leaves damage

By Les Mann
Herald Publisher

The Cedar County express stormed into Wayne and Dixon Counties early Monday morning with sustained winds recorded up to 70 miles per hour, rain upwards of 2 inches and crop damaging hail.

Hundreds of trees were left severely damaged, isolated power outages were reported from downed power lines and roofing material was scattered in Wayne and Concord.

"It really built up in Cedar County," said local weather observer Pat Gross. The severe weather was not predicted, he said and thus caught a few families offguard.

Mick Topp, Wayne County Ag Society president, said the storm sent dozens of carnival workers scrambling for cover at the fairgrounds when it hit while they were trying to dismantle the Midway. "It got pretty hairy for awhile," said Topp but he added most of the equipment and tents survived the storm with minimal damage.

He said he saw one tent blow away and thought it would never be seen again. But it was located the next day.

The areas trees, at the height of their foliage season, suffered the worst damage of the storm, said Vern Schulz, Wayne public works superintendent. He said city crews have worked two days solid trying to get the streets and parks cleared. The sound of chainsaws will be heard in Wayne for several more days, he said.

"It took us by surprise," said Schulz. He said he hadn't expected the kind of damage he saw around town when he began to survey the city Monday morning. "It was kind of a sneaky storm."

Coupled with last fall's ice storm and the hail and wind storm in May, the latest storm will be particularly hard on the area's trees, according to Dennis Adams, State forester with the University of Nebraska Extension Service.

City administrator Joe Salitros said the city may still see effects the series of severe storms has had on trees for years to come. It may be years down the road that more trees die — the victims of storm stress, he said.

"We had right at 1.55 inches of rain with the storm and about 3 inches of wind," said Gross of the rainfall total in Wayne. Concord reported as much as 2.55 inches in the same period.

The storm knocked the Dixon

County fair for a momentary loop. The cattle barn roof was torn off at the fairgrounds and occupants of tent and travel trailers were sent looking for cover. The wet conditions forced cancellation of the horse show, but by Tuesday all events were on schedule with animals and humans taking everything in stride.

Terri Post, Wayne County ASCS director said reports of crop damage were being received from most of the west and northern areas of the county. After returning from a survey of damaged crop areas Tuesday, Post said losses were heavy in some areas of the county and that she would be preparing a damage assessment report for submission Wednesday. Sam Schroeder, manager of the Wayne County Public Power District said scattered power outages caused by downed trees on power lines were reported, but all homes were back in service by Monday.

'Everything worked'

The largest number of events and fairgoers and the fewest number of problems, was how Wayne County Ag Society president Mick Topp described the 1992 fair which concluded Sunday.

"Everything worked out very well," said Topp, who praised the efforts of the dozens of volunteers that did everything from set-up to clean-up.

Over 150 people turned out for cleanup Monday night.

Topp said fair attendance figures were an all-time record and he attributes the larger turnout to the anniversary celebration and the reputation of good organization that the Wayne county fair has established over the years.

More cars than ever (47) participated in the demolition derby Sunday night, said Topp. The talent show may have to be moved to the grandstand to accommodate the large crowd in future years, he said.

The commercial exhibit building was filled to capacity and he said the

New Yorkers are naturals

One of the heat winners in the Wayne County Fair demolition derby Sunday night traveled a bit farther than the others to participate.

Eddie Rose of N. Merrick, N.Y. was the winner of the first heat in the derby.

The son-in-law of Larry and Lorraine Johnson of Wayne, Rose made plans to visit here if family and friends would purchase and prepare a car for him to drive in the derby.

The New York lawyer had never seen a demo derby before he was entered in the first heat here.

"But he had seen plenty of New York drivers," said his father-in-law.

The Roses flew back to New York Monday with $70 in winnings and vacation memories they'll never forget, said Johnson.

Sooner Amusement midway company went away happy with the response.

It is just hard to find anything that didn't go right, said Topp, unless it would be the weather, he added. Even then, the rain didn't cause many problems.

He said the button system, tried for the first time this year may also have contributed to the better attendance. The fair board is likely to retain the system of selling buttons which permit the individual admission to all fair events.

Zoning incentives building in Wayne Co.

Incentives are building for Wayne County planning and zoning guidelines about as quickly as new houses are going up in the area near Hoskins, according to county officials.

A growth spurt of developments in the southwest corner of Wayne County, within a few miles of Norfolk, have county officials concerned.

"The development there creates some zoning worries," said Jerry Pospishil, chairman of the commissioners during last week's commissioner meeting.

"What we are getting here is a rural subdivision," said Sidney Saunders, county road superintendent, who has had to upgrade one half mile of a previously low maintenance "cowpath" into a county road for access to several new homes going into the area southwest of Hoskins. There has also been a demand for driveway culverts for the new houses.

"We have no control over this at all," he said. "We have no control over the size of the lots, of the setbacks, over other needed rules of good development."

"If you take a look at what is happening, some sort of zoning or

Redistricting plan nearing approval

PROPOSED REDISTRICTING for Northeast Nebraska would create new legislative district boundaries as shown if LB 7 is approved on Wednesday.

The Nebraska Unicameral is poised to solve, for the time being at least, the redistricting problem in Northeast Nebraska.

The senators advance to final approval, two bills to deal with redistricting Monday and final approval is expected on Wednesday, the final day of the special legislative session, according to Speaker, Dennis Baack of Kimball.

Baack is predicting the measures, one of which will make Madison County the 19th district and shift the boundaries of Districts 40, 18 and 17, will pass with the needed 33 votes on Wednesday.

The move will force some last minute election shifting, as previous 19th district candidates who won in the primary and who have been campaigning for the general election will be out of a race.

The district seat they were campaigning for would be abolished under the bill, and outgoing 19th District Sen. Elroy Hefner of Coleridge, said that move might prompt still more lawsuits since the legislature is tampering with the "hallowed" election process.

Since the 19th district candidates De Carlson of Crofton and Gus Pick of Hartington would no longer live in the district under the proposed bill, their primary nominations would be nullified.

In other action Monday, the proposed 17th district boundaries under the bill were adjusted slightly shifting two precincts in Wayne county

Not a fair trade

The debate is raging anew over capital punishment in Nebraska as death row convict Willie Otey and his new-found friends fight a legal battle to delay implementation of his electric chair sentence.

Convicted for the brutal 1977 rape and murder of Jane McManus, 26, of Omaha, Otey has spent the last 15 years on death row and in that time his supporters say he has been rehabilitated, has apologized to the McManus family and is a changed man. Therefore, his sentence should be commuted, they say.

There is no question that Otey committed the crime. He admitted he did it. The debate surrounds the legal technicalities and rightness or wrongness of the death penalty.

We can't buy the hogwash about his apology and how much he has been rehabilitated. No amount of apologizing and rehabilitating can undo the wrong he has done. The public deserves to be protected from the likes of Willie Otey. Jane McManus' family deserves to feel like justice has been done. To let him off—even to go free as some suggest—with an apology and a promise that he has changed would be a boon to the business of murder and rape.

With all these issues in mind, the question is, should we kill Willie Otey as punishment for his crime.

We think not. His miserable life is not a fair trade for Jane McManus and that seems to be the crux of the debate by the death penalty supporters. He killed, so we have a right to kill him, they say. Even if his life was a fair trade, it is not a decision we mortals can rightly make.

Those who want to see Willie fry include our state attorney general who has approached the issue with a blood lust we find disgusting. The AG's posturing on the issue leads us to believe he thinks winning Otey's execution battle will in some sick way improve his political future in Nebraska.

He should be approaching the issue on a rational, reasoned level without an eye on his political future.

We have heard some editorialists claim that executing Otey will be cheaper than keeping him in prison for the rest of his life. We are not willing to allow the decision of human life or death to be lowered to the level of dollars and cents.

Otey should never see freedom. And for the rest of his life behind bars he can and should earn his keep—as should all convicted felons.

Putting him or any criminal to death is not a decision a civilized, God-fearing society should be making.

Trips can be an uplifting experience

A week ago today, I was up at 4 a.m. to experience a pre-dawn hot-air balloon ride. When my sister-in-law was making the arrangements for our Nashville vacation, she asked what things we wanted to see and do. I told her I was just along for the ride, but I had been wanting to go up in a hot-air balloon ever since I'd first seen one.

No sooner said than done! They picked us up in front of the hotel at 4:30, drove to a school soccer field and turned on the propane jets and big fan. At 5:15, we stepped into the gondola and within a few minutes, we were air borne.

My mother was game enough to come along and she didn't even act scared. It was all very gentle, very quiet and very breath taking. There was a ground fog, we were soon above it; we could see the lights of the city and hear dogs barking in the distance. We saw the sun come up, got a little chilly as we climbed and set down in a nearby parking lot. It was great. Now I want to try parasailing. But I'm going to skip bungee jumping.

My brother has learned patience, but it was sorely tried by his "herd of earthworms," as he called us. It was relaxing to be picked up and deposited at entrances and to have someone tip the valet and "run a tab." But we weren't used to paying the high prices in the hotel restaurants and one of us always had to go to the bathroom! I doubt if he will ever travel with three women again. There was one, we won't mention any names, who could not stay out of gift shops.

The planes were stuffed with people who had taken advantage of the low fares and the businessmen wore long-suffering expressions. We waited in Omaha before take off, and we were delayed in Chicago, of course, so we were two hours late arriving.

Going home, it was reversed, and we sat on the plane at O'Hare for one hour. Plus, there was a child who cried all the way from Nashville to Chicago, so that everyone had headaches. I can only imagine the mother's.

It's still the way to go, if time is a factor. But time is spent in airports, some of the concourses are far apart if you have to change planes, and the seats aren't as comfortable as they used to be.

I took a friend to the Lincoln airport on Friday and decided it was the place to fly in and out of. Very little traffic, only a few airline desks and four gates. I guess what I really want is my own Lear jet and a limo to take me to it!

Remedy for future

The redistricting dilemma facing Nebraska legislators will not be resolved at this time without injustice. To do nothing immediately, despite the Nebraska Supreme Court mandate, to correct the legislative error of splitting Madison County in two would leave residents of this area served, for at least a brief period, by legislators not elected by the voters but rather assigned to them. That would be an injustice.

To restore Madison County as a district requires splitting others, probably in Northeast Nebraska. In the District 19 area represented by retiring Sen. Elroy Heffner, voters have already chosen De Carlson of Crofton and Gus Pick of Hartington as finalists. They were among seven campaigners who spent their time and resources battling for the job. To find them cast aside altogether, or to make them face other new candidates (in a run-off election with District 17 candidates Sen. Gerald Conway and challenger Kurt Hohenstein, for instance) in a newly created district would be an injustice, too. That solution might produce further court tests.

Legislators have the unwelcome choice of deciding what is the least injustice and the least complicated — and constitutional — way to proceed. What they know for sure is that the court will not tolerate a de-

Newsman's 'termoil'

Law creates new spelling 'ditchinery'

There oughta be a law...in fact there is, and I've just written it.

Right up there with Murphy's Law (If anything can go wrong, it will.) comes Mann's Law. It applies mainly to the newspaper business but also affects scholars, teachers and professionals in all walks of life. The new law says: "The dumbest errors always get printed in the largest type."

I've made a career out of proving the validity of this law of nature.

No matter how many people we have editing and proofing our writing, sooner or later the finished product will have misspelled words.

And the dumbest misspellings will be printed in the largest type.

We proved the theory again last week on this very page. The column about the problems being considered by the legislature in dealing with the personal property tax issue was headed thusly: "State in property tax turmoil again."

Most third graders know there was some turmoil in the newsroom when it was discovered we had created a new word.

Dave Ewing was the most clever about needlessly bringing it to our attention.

He wanted to know if there was some new word which was not listed in his dictionary that we had used on purpose there.

Yes, Dave, it is a new word. It goes in my vast collection of new words, all of them coined by accident. Someday I will publish all of them as the official unabridged Wunk and Fagnell's "Ditchinery."

Termoil, used in the above context does not mean a confused or agitated state or condition, which is the meaning of turmoil. Termoil, on the other hand, means the grease being applied to politicians in the form of the term limit amendment as a means of sliding them out of office. Termoil is highly refined and expensive, costing about $37,000 a quart. If applied successfully, termoil will create a real turmoil for many a career office holder.

Country schools have place in Husker hearts

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

The little country school will always hold a place in our hearts. The schools have been a staple of rural life. For thousands of Nebraskans, their earliest memories all revolve around little one-room schools — kids from kindergarten through eighth, the desks and kids getting progressively bigger as the lone teacher walked from the front of the room to the back.

But we've always known the days for the little schools are numbered. Thousands of them have closed in Nebraska in the past century. Now there are only 400 left in the state, and those numbers are dwindling rapidly.

A full ten percent of the schools remaining closed their doors this year, more than have closed during any other year in the last 20. State Education Commissioner, Joe Lutjeharms, predicts there won't be any left ten years from now.

If that happens, it will be a sad

I've collected a bunch of other words for the "ditchinery" over the years.

Some of them were the result of my own writing (in)ability. Some I gleaned from the copy of others. Some were published. Not enough of them were caught and corrected before being published.

Anyway, each can be justified and explained, not as an error but as a fully intended, conscious effort to create a new word with a new meaning. Are you listening Mr. Webster?

algebra (n.) 1. an undergarment worn by algers amoeba (n.) 1. the boyfriend of a maiden amoeba.

angler (n.) 1. a heavenly fisherman. Root words: angler and angel beehoves (n.) 1. the tiny feet on honey bees. (vt.) 1. proper or fitting as in (it behooves us to spell correctly).

chasted (v.) 1. the act of a young man amorously pursuing a pure young woman. i.e. He chasted his chaste sweetheart. or He chasted her.

clie (n.) 1. a small and exclusive group of people taking a picture Root words: clique and click.

corral (n.) 1. a fence made of sea coral in which singing animals are kept. Root words: choral, coral and corral.

diagnoses (n.) 1. the medical opinion about the illness that occurs after getting hit in the face with a brick. 2. a medical term for noses which have been broken and did not heal properly. They are seen to sit on the face diagonally.

fosforus (vt.) 1. Fos is on our side.

frichin (n.) 1. the physical rubbing or clashing of leg against coffee table which creates heat and expletives.

hairloom (n.) 1. a machine for weaving hair which is passed down from mother to daughter in the same family. Root word: heirloom.

helmut (n.) 1. the member of a new motorcycle gang made up of bike riding dogs who refuse to wear their helmets. 2. a dog from Hades.

hibread (n.) 1. very tall loaves of bread created by cross-mixing the yeast from several different recipes.

liberry (n.) 1. a building where a collection of the greatest books about berries are housed.

locher (v.) 1. the act of sending a young female to her room. i.e. When your daughter is bad, you should locher in her room.

mashinery (n.) 1. dangerous pieces of industrial equipment that you should keep your hands and feet away from.

mantel (n.) 1. a fellow who leans on the fireplace mantle and waxes "eloquent". root words: man, tell eloquints (pl. n.) 1. glib quintuplets.

orderves (n. pl.) 1. not a new word, just better spelling for the little snacks which are served before a meal. Root: hors d'oeuvres.

oriface (n.) 1. a hole in your face. 2. mouth (adj.) 1. a descriptive reference to intensity in football games, as in: "They played an oriface (in your face) game."

philosophy (v.) 1. to demean the philosophers and their teachings as a bunch of "pohy."

poulety (v.) 1. the act of writing paltry poetry about domestic birds. (adj.) 1. to make a bird-brained effort at rhyming or spelling.

Quayule (v.) 1. the act of celebrating Christmas at the vice-president's home.

sails tax (v.) 1. the raising of taxes until they sail out of sight.

sailient (n.) 1. a prominent and pointed sail on a ship.

screwey (adj.) 1. the description of a female sheep that walks around in circles and acts strangely. Root words: screwy, ewe.

subversee (n.) 1. poetry written by dissidents on the night before a holiday. Root words: subversive, verse, eve. "Twas the night before the protest march..."

By next year, all the country schools will have to merge or affiliate with a school district providing K-12 education. Under affiliation, they can keep the little school open and still have its own board, but the budgets of the schools in the consolidated unit are combined, and all taxpayers in the unit pay the same levy.

The move effectively removed the tax advantage of the small districts. Now if they stay open, they do so really because the people want to keep them, not because they are tax dodges.

The theory among many education officials in the state is that once the tax advantages are taken away, and people see they can get a more diverse education for their kids for the same price in a bigger school, they'll say why mess with the small ones.

They may be right. And that would be too bad.

Country schools may not be for everyone. But in these days when the need for one-on-one instruction in our schools is emphasized all the time, there may still be room in education — as well as our hearts — for the country school.

What others say emphasis of county lines when following them can provide near-ideal population counts.

If legislative error, gerrymandering and injustices to voters as well as candidates are to be avoided in the future, two things can be done.

First, legislative terms should not be staggered. All Nebraska senators should be elected at the same time for four-year terms. Continuity will not suffer.

Second, a nonpartisan commission should be established to fix the district boundaries after each official census, under the guidelines now existing in the state constitution.

Commission recommendations to legislators could be adopted and approved by the governor, and become effective with the first election of Unicameral members after the census results become known. In this way, voters would never be represented by unelected senators; candidates would not run in districts eliminated before they had a chance to serve.

The certain injustice which will result this year because legislators took too lightly the constitutional admonition to follow county lines where practicable ought never to be repeated. It need not be, either, if there is wisdom to present the logical solution to voters.

Legion Post 81 crowned baseball champs

Wakefield captures Class C State

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

The Wakefield American Legion Post 81 baseball team captured the 1992 State Baseball Tournament in Class C which culminated Sunday in Tecumseh.

Wakefield won its first two games of the tournament before losing to Atkinson in the winner's bracket final. Wakefield then fought through the loser's bracket and defeated Atkinson twice on Sunday to lay claim as the state's top Class C baseball squad.

State tournament play began last Wednesday for Wakefield with a first round 12-2 victory in five innings over Mitchell. Dalton Rhodes claimed the pitching victory with relief help from Scott Ballinger and Aron Utecht.

Mitchell scored two runs on six hits and three errors while Wakefield managed 12 runs on 10 hits and two errors. Travis Thompson led the productive offense with a 3-3 outing from the plate including a double and two singles.

Scott Ballinger smacked a 2-run home run—his first ever home run in Legion play. Shane Schuster had two singles and Dalton Rhodes tripled while Anthony Brown and Brad Nuernberger each singled.

On Thursday, Wakefield defeated Sutton, 9-1 behind the pitching of Aron Utecht. Scott Ballinger came in and earned the save. Wakefield notched 12 hits while recording two errors while Sutton had seven hits and three errors.

Ballinger paced the Wakefield offense with a 3-4 performance including a double while Matt Stanton had two singles. Anthony Brown doubled and singled while Marcus Tappe doubled. Brad Nuernberger, Aron Utecht and Larry Johnson each singled.

Wakefield loses

The only blemish on Wakefield's trip to Tecumseh in six games was a 6-5 loss to Atkinson in the winner's bracket final on Friday. The game went eight innings before a winner was decided.

Scott Ballinger pitched a no-hitter until the sixth inning when Atkinson erased a 5-0 lead to tie the game. They won the game on an unearned run in the eighth.

Wakefield had five runs on five hits and three errors while Atkinson had six runs on just three hits and one error. Travis Thompson led Wakefield with two singles while Ballinger doubled. Shane Schuster and Larry Johnson each singled.

On Saturday, Wakefield played Bennington in an elimination game and Wakefield outlasted its opponent in eight innings with a narrow 3-2 victory.

Scott Ballinger got the pitching victory in relief of Aron Utecht who pitched six good innings. Wakefield, the visiting team in the contest, started the eighth inning with a walk to Larry Johnson. Johnson eventually moved to third and with two outs, Matt Stanton singled him in for the game winner.

Ballinger struck out the Bennington side in order in the bottom of the eighth inning. Wakefield finished with three runs on five hits and two errors while Bennington had two runs on five hits and two errors.

Shane Schuster doubled in the contest while Ballinger, Marcus Tappe and Anthony Brown each singled.

Wakefield moves to finals

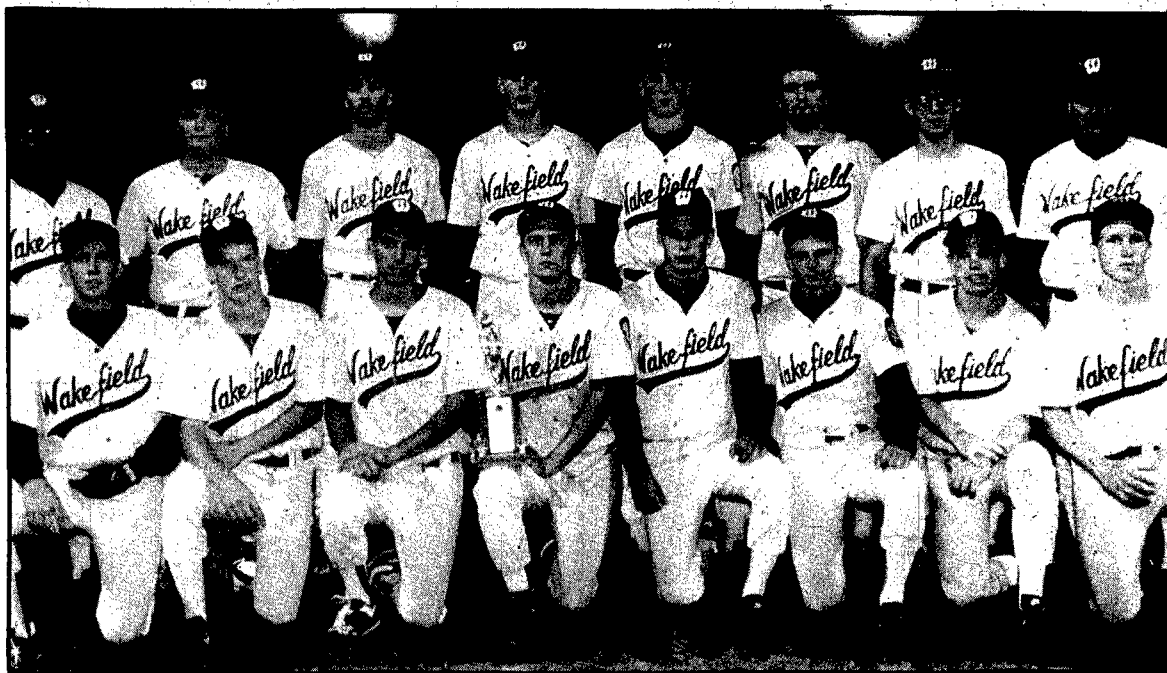

In order for Wakefield to leave Tecumseh with the state championship trophy they had to defeat Atkinson twice on Sunday.

In the first game Wakefield virtually had little trouble in filling the first half the order with a 11-1 victory. Dalton Rhodes pitched a complete game and allowed just one hit while striking out six and walking just one.

In one stretch, Rhodes retired 10 straight Atkinson batters. Wakefield, meanwhile, scored 10 runs in the first three innings and finished with eight hits.

Scott Ballinger blasted his second career home run—both in the state tournament, and had two singles and four rbi while Rhodes aided his own pitching cause with a pair of singles. Anthony Brown doubled and Marcus Tappe singled while Brad Nuernberger laced a base hit.

The win forced a second game between the two teams and since

Rhodes did such a good job in game one, he drew the start in game two and he again pitched 4 1/3 innings of solid ball before being relieved by Scott Ballinger for the final 2 2/3 innings. Ballinger did not allow a single hit.

Wakefield never trailed in the championship and a three-run third inning was more than enough for coach Paul Eaton to walk away with his sixth Legion championship in 26 years.

Wakefield finished with five runs on eight hits and two errors while Atkinson had two runs on three hits and four errors. Ballinger doubled and singled while Rhodes and Anthony Brown each hit two singles to pace Wakefield's offense. Matt Stanton and Pat Jepsen each singled as well.

The heat index on Sunday was over 100 degrees in Tecumseh and Rhodes pitched a total of 10 1/3 innings and allowed just three runs and four hits while striking out eight and walking four.

Ballinger, meanwhile, went 12-19 from the plate during the state tournament with two home runs and 11 rbi. "I'm really pleased with the way we came back after losing to Atkinson on Friday," Eaton said.

"We lost that game with our number one pitcher and I felt our chances of winning state might have slipped a little bit after that because we had to play a very good Bennington team the following day in an elimination game."

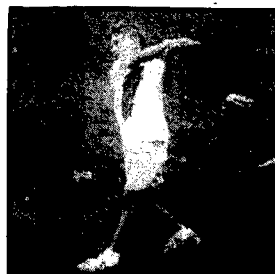

Eaton said his squad played very good defensively and they got some great pitching support from Aron Utecht and Dalton Rhodes. Eaton's 26-year tenure has brought Wakefield six Legion championships and three Legion runner-up teams along with one Midget championship and one Midget runner-up squad.

Wayne Jaycees host heavy hitters contest

The Wayne County Jaycees recently sponsored the Heavy Hitters contest at Hank Overin Field in Wayne. There were four different age group winners which advanced to the state competition to be held Aug. 22 in Seward.

In the 6-7 year-old division Jon Ehrhardt was the winner with Rick Volk placing second. Jon Meyer was the champion of the 8-9 year-olds with Adam Jorgensen placing second.

Ryan Dahl captured the 10-11 year-old division with Klinton Keller placing second and Josh Starzl won the 12-13 year-old division with David Ensz placing second. The competition consisted of pitching, hitting and throwing.

BRANDON GARVIN swings the bat in one portion of the heavy hitters contest. Pitching, hitting and throwing made up the contest.

Wayne State football team faces season without all-American quarterback Mott

If replacing five defensive backs and three wide receivers wasn't enough of a challenge, fourth-year Wayne State College football coach Dennis Wagner learned today the Wildcats will be without the services of all-America quarterback Troy Mott in 1992.

Mott, a 6-1, 190-pounder from Napa, California, cited personal reasons for not returning to WSC for his senior season. Mott ranked third in the nation in total offense (282.2 yards per game) last fall, and set school records in single-game completions (35), completions in a season (233), season completion percentage (57.4, 233-406), and total offense average (282.2) in his first season at the helm.

Wagner expects junior Clint Williams (6-1, 185, Loup City), sophomore Jeff Gall (6-1, 190, Schuyler), and freshman Jason Dietrich (6-1, 180, Columbus) to battle for the vacant spot. Williams and Gall were a combined 4-11 passing for 14 yards with one interception last season.

Wagner and his staff begin filling the gaps Saturday when the Wildcats report to campus for Fall camp. WSC will hold three workouts a day Sunday through Tuesday. Two-a-day practices run Aug. 19-22, while traditional one-a-day practices start the 23rd.

"I think the kids have worked hard this summer, and should be coming in with a great attitude," Wagner said. "The coaching staff is very excited. We have to replace a lot of players on defense, as well as at the quarterback and wide out positions."

The Wildcats established 12 offensive school records last fall and were second in the nation allowing only 70.4 yards rushing per game, but finished a disappointing 3-7.

The inability to score touchdowns inside the opponent's 20-yard-line, and a porous pass defense which yielded 2,739 yards and 19 TDs led to the 'Cats demise.

"Last year we struggled in the secondary," Wagner said. "I don't think we got the pressure on the quarterback we needed, which goes back to the defensive line and the linebackers."

Preseason all-Americans Jerry Kleidosty (Sr., 6-0, 220, LB, Omaha) and Brad Ottis (Jr., 6-5, 260, DE, Fremont) anchor the defense.

Kleidosty led WSC in tackles for the second straight year with 121. Ottis led the 'Cats with nine quarterback sacks, and added six tackles for losses.

Junior college transfers Paul Giacalone (FS, 5-10, 180, Gilroy, CA) and Bernie Muller (DB, 6-1, 190, Oceanside, CA) should help offset the loss of five defensive backs.

Offensively, the 'Cats look for transfers Damon Thomas (6-3, 210, Fresno, CA) and Danny Ferguson (5-9, 170, Belton, TX) to help fill the void left by record-setters Marlon Goolsby and Lee Harper.

Goolsby set the single-season (75) and career (114) reception marks at WSC, while Harper set single-game receptions (14) and season yardage (848) milestones in '91.

Freshman Lamont Rainey (5-8, 180, Hanau, Germany) rushed for 415 yards (4.9 yards per carry) in starting the final three games of last season. Rainey and sophomore Iowa State transfer Jason Williams (6-3, 200, Omaha) will fight for the starting running back spot, but both may see action inside the opponent's 20-yard-line.

"We may add a two-back offense inside the 20 because those two kids are too good to have on the bench,"

WSC women sign cage star

Betsy Coe of Merced, California recently announced she will continue her academic and athletic career at Wayne State College.

Coe, a 5-11 forward/center, was a first-team all-league selection at Merced High School. She was named the team's most valuable player after leading Merced to a 24-8 record in 1992, and was the first four-year basketball starter in the school's history.

She also captained the volleyball team at Merced and competed in softball. Coe intends to major in secondary education at Wayne State with an emphasis in history and Spanish.

"Betsy comes from a very solid high school program and will add depth at our four and five positions," says fourth-year WSC head coach Mike Barry. "Betsy is a very physical and aggressive player which should enable her to fit in very well."

The Wildcats lose three seniors from last season's 17-10 squad.

Wagner said. "We have to improve offensively when we get inside the 20."

The Wildcats compete as independent Division II members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA-II) and open the season September 5, at 7 p.m. against the UNO Mavericks in Omaha. The first home game is slated for September 26, against Mayville State of North Dakota in a 5:45 p.m. starting time.

The goats, along with hogs, sheep, household pets, poultry, horses, rabbits and other animals, provided much of the entertainment at the 70th annual Wayne County Fair.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S sanctioned tractor pull, sponsored by the Bush Pullers, provided a lot of noise as well as an abundance of entertainment.

Zoning

dinance is necessary," he said.

The county has begun the process of creating planning and zoning procedures to make new developments mesh with an overall plan for land use in the county.

During a joint meeting between city and county planning task force groups on July 30, concern was expressed by task force members and others in attendance that the county needed provisions for limiting the types of developments and providing adequate provisions and services for the developments which are permitted in the county.

Other public meetings are planned in the near future on the question of planning and zoning in the county and coordinating possible new county regulations with those in existence in the city.

Incumbent State Sen. Gerald Conway and challenger Curt Hohenstein will have to seek petition signatures to have their names placed on the November ballot since the district boundaries will be Conway, who has been at the center of the controversy over redistricting by virtue of his chairmanship of the legislature's redistricting committee, said he was not sure the measure would receive the needed 33 votes to be implemented in time for the November election.

Winning Guessers

Two teens won the contest to guess the length and weight of a roll of newsprint held during the Wayne County Fair. Jeremiah Rethwisch, left, had the closest guess to the actual length of the roll of newsprint used by the Wayne Herald. His guess was 6 miles and a roll actually contains 6.2 miles of newsprint. Tony Hansen, center, was only 3.18 pounds off on his guess of 850 pounds for the weight of the roll. Herald Publisher Les Mann is shown presenting the teens with their prize money. More than 400 fairgoers registered in the contest and their guesses ranged from length of 3 feet to 300 miles and weights of 60 pounds to 6 tons.

WSC students gain experience

Thirty-three Wayne State College students participated in the college's summer cooperative education program, according to Rowan Wiltse, director of cooperative education at Wayne State.

Cooperative education provides students with a better understanding of the relationship between education and the working world. Students gain job experience in their occupational field to better prepare them for life and career. They are exposed to facilities, equipment and processes that cannot be duplicated in the classroom.

Students also earn money to apply toward educational expenses. Promotional opportunities are also improved for student-employees through accomplishment of work-related projects over and above regular work requirements.

Bruggers host French student

By Dianne Jaeger
Winside Correspondent

There's been an awful lot of "double talk" lately between members of the Harlin and Carol Bruggger family in Winside. It all started with the July 13 arrival of Marie Wolfhugel.

Marie is a 16 year old summer foreign exchange student from Chapelle Vallon, France who is a guest in the Bruggger home for 30 days. The Brugggers, who are not fluent in French, have been trying to learn words from their house guest while she is here. Marie's visit came about through the NA-CEL Cultural Exchange Program.

"I applied in about February" says Marie. "I picked Nebraska as my destination for no particular reason. I just wanted to come to the U.S. and see what it is like here and meet the people. I'm really lucky to have gotten such a nice family to stay with."

The Brugggers became involved in the program first through a pamphlet at church, then after visiting relatives in Lincoln. "It took us awhile to decide if we wanted to do it", says 17 year old Christine Bruggger. "We talked about it, but never sent in the paper work. Then a lady with the program called us to talk us into it. After she called a couple of times and us kids begged our parents, they finally said O.K., we'll do it!" We filled out the forms in June and Marie arrived in July.

Marie arrived in Omaha on a plane which carried a total of 70 French students, all who are currently somewhere in Nebraska. When Marie reached Winside, a village of 400 some, she did not experience a big cultural shock as her home village is around 200 population.

"My father is an agricultural farmer and my mother is a mathematics teacher in a Catholic Middle School and also a high school. I have one sister, Emilie who is 13."

Farming for Marie's family is a little different than for the Brugggers. Where she comes from, in the northeastern area of France, about 100 miles from Paris, Marie's family farm is located "in" the village.

Besides houses and barns in the village, there is one preschool and one Catholic Church. The land farmed is "around" the village. The main crops raised are wheat, alfalfa and sunflowers. This area is also famous for its vineyards used for making French champagne. They do not raise any livestock. To buy groceries and go shopping, the family has to go to larger towns about 10-15 miles away.

Being an exchange student isn't new to Marie. Last summer she was an exchange student in Germany. This year her sister is also in Germany in the program.

"We are required to take two languages in middle school (about age 11-14) for four years. After we reach high school we can drop one of them. We have a choice between German, English and Spanish."

The Brugggers and Marie have determined she would be a senior in American schools.

"We have the choice of going to a public school or a private Catholic school. I go to a public school. We start pre-school at about age three and go there for three years, then to elementary school for five years; four years to a middle school and the last three years to a high school. After that you can go on to a college. Some days of school last from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and sometimes we have to go on Saturday mornings. In the summer, we get out in June and return in September."

The villages and towns in Marie's area are very close together, therefore, the kids are bused from school to school. In the village where she lives there is one preschool. The elementary school is about three miles away at Grande Chapelle, the middle school is about 10 miles away at Merys and the high school Marie will attend this fall is at Troyes, about 15 miles away. She will be driven there by her parents, then live in a dorm during the week and return home on weekends.

Marie enjoys swimming, cooking, shopping, collecting stamps and match book covers, drawing, and photography.

Since arriving in the U.S. she has been on a church youth trip with the Brugggers to Colorado, the Omaha Zoo, the Dodge House in Council Bluffs, to Sioux City shopping and attended the Wayne County Fair.

The Brugggers have three children, Craig 18, Christine 17, and Margaret 16. Harlin is a farmer and carpenter and Carol is the Winside Village Clerk.

"I really like the U.S. and my host family" says Marie. "I want to come back again someday." The girls all agree it has been a lot of fun. They've also enjoyed trying to teach Harlin to speak French. "He just doesn't seem to be able to get the German out enough to speak it."

Foundation trust scholarships awarded

The Nebraska Funeral Directors Association and the Laughlin Trust Committee announce two Wallace S. and Wilma K. Laughlin Foundation Trust Scholarship awards for the 1992-93 school year at an accredited mortuary college.

Recipients are Mary Beth Bruggger of Winside and Philip Wesley Roewert of Columbus.

This is the eighth year the scholarships have been awarded under the Foundation Trust set up through the provisions of the will of the late Wallace S. Laughlin of Wymore. Mr. Laughlin was a long time member of the Nebraska Funeral Directors Association and has been the owner of the former Laughlin Funeral Home of Wymore. The scholarship grants are given once a year with a minimum of $1,000 per grant.

Qualifications for eligibility for the scholarships include being a graduate of a Nebraska high school and pursuing a career in mortuary science. Applicants must have met all pre-mortuary academic requirements of the State of Nebraska. Written recommendation by a member of the Nebraska Funeral Directors Association along with high school and college transcripts are submitted with the application. These credentials, financial need and a sincere commitment to funeral service are factors in the scholarship selections.

State, Federal changes benefit Nebraska children

Nebraska children, their families and their child care providers are benefiting from state and federal changes in a program administered by the Nebraska Department of Social Services, according to Social Services officials.

The changes, which began last year, include more help to parents with the cost of child care; funding for child care providers to help them expand services or begin services identified as a community need, such as before- and afterschool care; implementation of training and development opportunities in communities for child care providers and parents; a voluntary registration process so providers who are not required to be licensed can access grants and training opportunities; and the redirection of the Department's child care program and services.

These efforts are possible due to LB 836, the Quality Child Care Act passed in 1991, coupled with special federal funding distributed to states earmarked for this purpose, according to Mary Dean Harvey, Director of the Department of Social Services. "The key words found in both the state and federal directives are quality, availability, accessibility, and affordability," she said, "and we are very excited about this direction and the opportunities available to improve child care in Nebraska."

The guidelines provide for collaborative efforts between the Department of Social Services and the Office of Child Development within the Department of Education. The two agencies, along with the Early Childhood Training Center in Omaha, began working together on the program changes last year.

STAFF ADDED

LB 836 allowed for 15 additional staff dedicated to the child care program, more than double the 13 that existed at the time. "Our focus has grown," said Deborah Mabry-Strong, NDSS administrator for Child Care and Development programs. Even the position titles have changed, from licensing specialists to child care resource specialists.

Mabry-Strong said licensing continues to be a very important and necessary part of the division's work, "however, we must do more than monitor for health and safety factors. We are a resource. We will assist child care providers however we can and join with them to develop the best care for Nebraska's children."

The division's slogan has become "Exceeding the Minimums... Striving for Quality!" She said the goal is for child care providers to view minimum licensing regulations as a foundation on which to build.

MORE FAMILIES NEEDED

The costs of child care have been identified as one of the barriers often faced by parents when entering the job market after receiving public assistance. Many find that child care costs cut so deeply into their initial earnings that they cannot cover necessary food and shelter expenses.

While Social Services has long assisted low-income eligible families with certain child care costs, Mabry-Strong said the Federal Child Care and Development Block Grant funding provides for an expansion of these services to include low-income working families who had before earned too much to receive help with child care costs. The income of these families must now be at or below 110% of the federal poverty level.

The family's responsibility for child care costs is based on a sliding fee scale which went into effect July 1 and takes into consideration the family's size and monthly income. The agency pays the remaining amount and, as a service to the family, pays the provider directly. "Each family will identify a specific child care provider who will register for participation in the program," said Mabry-Strong. The child care provider must provide care in accordance with state licensing requirements. If care is provided for three or less children, a voluntary registration process is available.

"It's important to mention that the term 'child care provider' includes family child care home, group child care home, child care centers, pre-school and school-based child care programs," said Mabry-Strong. "We see value and benefits in all kinds of quality care. Families must be assured that a minimum core of requirements are met by all providers. When a parent chooses a provider, they will choose based on their needs and on the level of quality offered over and above minimum requirements."

She said anyone needing help with child care costs should contact their local Department of Social Services Office to determine if they meet program guidelines.

FUNDING AWARDED

Child care providers can benefit directly from two funding sources, both tied to the state and federal guidelines.

The Child Care Grant Fund provides assistance to child care providers in starting or expanding child care services, including improvements which are necessary to meet licensing requirements; purchasing equipment needed to expand services; and making improvements or purchasing equipment to accommodate infants, children with disabilities, children who may be ill, or school age children.

According to Pat Urzedowski, Assistant Administrator for Child Care and Development Programs, 479 child care providers completed applications for the first round of funding with requests totaling $3.7 million. "The Child Care and Early Childhood Education Coordinating Committee, required by LB 838 and appointed by Governor Nelson, awarded $250,000 to 61 child care providers from across the state," she said.

Providers receiving these funds must continue to provide care, maintain a child care license and participate in training activities for three years following the funding, or they must be willing to repay all or a portion of the grant award.

The Continuity Grant Fund is designed to provide greater stability and fewer transitions for children, ages 4 to 12, in care. Grants authorized through this fund provide initial support to extend certain part-day programs to full-day; establish or expand school age child care services; establish local support systems for providers; and give special consideration to collaborative programs between school and other programs that will incorporate a full-day kindergarten experience for multi-age kindergartners.

Urzedowski said $215,000 in Continuity Grants have been awarded to 10 applicants. A second application process for the remaining $92,000 in grant funds is expected to take place in September.

TRAINING AND SUPPORT

"The sliding fee scale and financial help to providers for identified needs respond to the accessibility and affordability issues repeated throughout state and federal guidelines," said Mabry-Strong, "but a key element in child care that has, in the past, not been easy for us to address is quality. Part of the federal funding we have received must be used for training and staff development and will help Nebraska address the issue of quality in child care settings."

The Department of Education's Office of Child Development and the Early Childhood Training Center in Omaha are coordinating efforts in this area, which include awarding $100,000 for the development of training opportunities for child care providers. According to Urzedowski, concerted efforts will be in the areas of training and assisting parents and selecting appropriate child care; specialized training for providers caring for children with special needs; and training on issues of health, safety, and developmental needs of children.

"The training will be presented in a variety of ways to meet the needs of children, parents and providers," she said. "Possibilities include conferences, workshops, consultations, mentoring, and individual training plans."

In addition to training and staff development, providers will receive a statewide newsletter and will have access to a telephone information line. Providers calling the 1-800-89-CHILD toll-free line can identify training needs; borrow resource materials; learn about training activities across the state; learn more about child development issues, such as toddler biting; and learn how to become licensed.

VISITING YOUR DOCTOR

It seems like such a simple thing. The next time you visit the doctor, you're going to be sure and ask what you forgot to ask last time. So you see the doctor again...and you get to talking about something else and you forget again. A simple suggestion is to write down what you want to ask or tell your doctor. You'll get more out of the visit and your doctor will be able to help you more. It's easy to forget when you get in to see the doctor. Oh by the way...don't forget to take the paper with you when you visit the doctor. You know...the paper that you wrote those notes on.

The GOLDEN YEARS
 by Pat Schetty

Three younger generations gathered in a New York suburb to celebrate Lillian Postman's 108th birthday. "I've had a lot of highs and lows," she recalled. The highs: her wedding day and six years that followed, until her husband died at 29. Raising her family and becoming a nurse "took a lot of blood, sweat and tears," she recalled. How did she make it to 108? "Living every day as though it was my last, and doing what I had to do. Everybody is put here for a certain reason. You have a place in life and you have to find it." The last 100 years have been filled with new things like electricity and penicillin, she noted. Her first eight years were uneventful, a grandson quipped.

When the Texas Water Commission set out to solve drinking-water problems in El Paso, it recruited senior volunteers to help survey possible trouble spots. The longtime residents were able to recall sites of forgotten wells and buried gasoline tanks.

Remember When? August 17, 1942—Twelve B-17 Flying Fortresses made the first U.S. bombing raid on Nazi-held targets in Europe.

Head Lice Requires Two Treatments

There is no relationship between body hygiene and head lice. One can contract head lice by coming into head-to-head contact with someone who has lice or by trying on the hat or clothing of a lice-infested person. It is little wonder that children usually are first in a family to get lice. Relatively safe lice shampoos are available from pharmacists without prescription. Many are derived from an extract of a flower. Although these shampoos are highly effective in killing adult lice, they generally do not kill the minute lice egg (called a nit) that is attached to the hair shaft. Even careful combing with a nit comb may not remove all eggs. Any eggs that remain and hatch produce another infestation. For this reason, a second treatment is needed about 10 days after the first.
