Refinishing the floor

THE HIGH SCHOOL gym floor was refinished recently, after it had suffered water damage from last spring's storm which blew away part of the roof. Bob Burgess is shown doing the refinishing. Since the gym floor can not be used at the present time, Marlene Uhing's Wayne volleyball team was forced to look for alternative sites for practices. Winside and Wayne State College offered Wayne the use of their facilities while the Blue Devils gym is under construction.

Early frost fears plague farmers

By LaVon Anderson

While talk of the "summer that wasn't" continues, many area farmers are sitting tight, watching their lush corn and soybean fields start to mature, and praying that an early frost doesn't destroy what could be one of the best crop seasons in years.

"Everybody's afraid of it," says Charles Shapiro, associate professor of agronomy at the University of Nebraska Research and Extension Center at Concord.

Shapiro said statistics at the Northeast Station show that crops as of Aug. 21 are about 20 growing degree days behind normal, calculated by the amount of heat units built up.

"In other words," adds Shapiro, "a corn crop on a normal year would have reached the point the crops are

"I'm not sure that the crops are as far behind as the growing degree units, but we are behind."

SHAPIRO said he inspected some corn on Aug. 17 that was in the milk stage and would be physiologically mature, or stop growing, between Sept. 20-25.

"That corn was planted in early May," pointed out Shapiro, adding that farmers who planted or replanted later in May would be further behind.

Shapiro said a normal frost occurs around Oct. 1 and added that a lot of corn would be physiologically mature by that time.

"The corn may not be dried down as much as normal, but it would be mature."

The agronomy specialist noted that a heavy freeze occurs when the temperature dips to 24 degrees, while a moderate freeze occurs between 25 and 28 degrees, with a light freeze between 29 and 32 degrees.

Shapiro added that the chances of a heavy freeze on Sept. 2 are just two percent.

TERRY Mader, extension beef-specialist at the Northeast Station, said the question of feed value also arises with the possibility of corn producers harvesting part or all of their corn crop as immature, or frost damaged.

"Corn reaches physiological maturity when the total dry matter accumulation in the kernel is maximum," said Mader, adding that this usually occurs when corn moisture has declined to below 35 percent.

Mader added that immature corn which is subject to a killing frost but is still capable of being harvested as grain may have altered nutrient composition, test weight and feed value than mature corn grain.

Research conducted at the University of Minnesota shows that corn testing about 50 lb/bu tends to have similar feed value as normal test weight corn, however as bushel

Pyramid scheme draws legal warning

By Les Mann

The Nebraska Attorney General's office is ready to file charges against Northeast Nebraskans who are organizing and promoting an illegal pyramid scheme which is currently in operation in the area.

The scheme reportedly involves several residents in Wayne according to the AG's office and Wayne County Attorney Michael Pieper.

Dan Parsons, senior consumer specialist with the attorney general's office told the Herald the actions of the Paymaster Profit Systems, Multi-Fax, is nothing more than an elaborate and illegal chain letter scheme.

HE SAID THE attorney general's office is ready to prosecute those involved in promoting the get rich quick scheme because "eventually people will be financially hurt."

The plan, which recruits participants for $179 and then gives the new members an opportunity to recruit others while paying $100 a month to the original sponsor can bilk people out of as much as $1,000, said Parsons.

He said a less obvious pyramid scheme his office prosecuted in Nebraska two years ago involved millions of dollars from Nebraska residents.

There is no way of telling yet, how much money is involved in this scheme, he said but indications are the amount is substantial. The operation has been going for at least two months said Parsons. He said it apparently started in Norfolk and moved into neighboring towns.

"UNDER THE LAW, anyone who is involved in it could be liable for prosecution," he said.

The Paymaster scheme was ordered to cease operations in Michigan in June and the Iowa Attorney General has issued a warning to consumers similar to the warning issued this week by Attorney General Don Stenberg.

"The warning has had an effect," said Parsons. Dozens of calls have come into the AG's office from people thanking the officials for cautioning the public. However, he added a few calls also have been received from organizers of the pyramid scheme "challenging us to come and get them."

Parsons said the Paymaster effort tries to indicate that a product or service is being sold to the investors, but the attorney general's office said they have yet to find a

Property taxes are due

Wayne County real estate taxpayers have until Sept. 1 to get their second half real estate taxes paid or face delinquent fee charges, according to Leon Meyer, county treasurer.

Unpaid taxes by Sept. 1 will begin drawing a 14 percent delinquency fee, said Meyer.

Residents paying their taxes before the deadline are asked to bring their statement to the courthouse when they pay.

Care Centre funding okay; work to start

By Les Mann

With final funding guarantees in hand, construction work will begin immediately on a $3.5 million new building for Wayne Care Centre.

The building will permit relocation to a new 104-bed facility from existing cramped quarters on Main Street. The building near the Wayne America water tower had been delayed by federal funding shortages.

Though approved for federal loan guarantees that permit local financing through Farmers and Merchants State Bank, the federal funds were not available this summer for the guarantee, according to administrator Pat Lichty. The plans were drawn and the financing was in place but the facility had been placed on hold until after the new federal fiscal year.

LICHTY SAID IT was thought the funding would not have been made available until after October, basically delaying the project by up to a year.

"We are just excited as all get out," said Lichty in a phone interview while on vacation. "I think the staff is ready to go out with spoons and start digging."

Excavation work on the site next to the new ESU building on east 14th, was scheduled to begin immediately, said Lichty.

Tim Keller, president of Farmer's and Merchants said notification of the federal 80 percent guarantee loan through the Business and Industry program came Tuesday as the culmination of extensive paperwork and persistent letter-writing campaigns, especially from residents of the Wayne Care Centre.

KELLER SAID the federal involvement provides only guarantees that if there is a default, the bank's investment would be protected.

Without the federal guarantee, a small local bank would not be able to handle a financing package on so large a project.

"It is nice to keep the project, including the financing of it local," said Keller.

Robert Conlon, president of the Boyle Companies, owners of the Wayne Care Centre, expressed his appreciation to Keller in a statement about the funding approval.

HE SAID THE support and hard work in securing the necessary financing approval was crucial to WAYNE - The Wayne City Swimming pool closes for the season Sunday, Aug. 23 at 8:45 p.m. Parents are reminded to stop by the pool and pick up swim cards for all sessions if their child passed a swimming course.

'A warm community'

More than 200 people gathered for the official opening Friday morning of the new Super 8 Motel in Wayne.

Open house and tours of the facility were being conducted all day, but the ribbon cutting was held at 10 a.m. during the Chamber of Commerce weekly coffee.

Deb Peterson, manager of the 41-room motel, praised the Wayne community for its acceptance of her individually and the new business too.

"This is such an open, welcoming community that is progressive and warm; the people here make you feel so welcome," she told the crowd at the ribbon cutting.

Wayne also received words of praise for Ken Gates, executive with Simplex, Inc. based in Norfolk, the parent company for Super 8.

As part of the grand opening celebration the motel distributed fresh pineapples, a welcome symbol, throughout the community in addition to blowing up a large pineapple balloon on the motel parking lot.

Mrs. Peterson, who moved here from Aberdeen to run the motel, said the facility has been at near capacity almost every night since it began renting rooms in July.

Candidates left out may file challenge

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — One of two candidates left without a district when the Legislature approved a new map last week said Thursday that plans are progressing for a possible legal challenge.

Northeast Nebraska residents who are upset about the change are putting up money to support a challenge.

Gus Pick of Hartington and De Carlson of Crofton were expected to face each other in November for the right to represent District 19 — covering all or part of Knox, Cedar, Dixon, Pierce and Wayne counties in northeast Nebraska.

During their recent special session, lawmakers passed and Gov. Ben Nelson signed a measure (LB7) that restored Madison County to a single district, making it District 19.

The session followed a July 2 state Supreme Court opinion that Madison County should be made its own legislative district.

On a 34-12 vote, lawmakers passed the plan that broke up the old District 19 and distributed it among Districts 18 and 40. That left Mrs. Carlson in District 40 and Pick in District 18.

They were nominated for the old District 19 seat during the May primary election.

At meetings Monday night in Crofton and Wednesday night in Hartington, more than $5,000 was contributed to the "Constitutional Right to Vote Fund," Pick said. More than 75 people attended the Hartington meeting.

"I've always said that I'd keep my options open," Pick said. "Well, this (a possible legal challenge) appears to be one of the options."

Mrs. Carlson is in Houston at the Republican National Convention, Pick said. She has agreed to go along with the challenge, "if the money can be raised."

Pick said he has been told it could take up to $20,000 to take the matter to the state Supreme Court.

"Why should we let 34 people in Lincoln decide the fate of a district? What about the more than 9,013 people who voted in the primary election?" he said.

"This is the basic core of democracy. If they can do it up here, if our votes don't count, what's next?" Pick said.

Pick and Mrs. Carlson were among 60 people who attended a Government Committee hearing on the redistricting bills.

"We talked, but nobody listened," he said.

"The common people who supported our campaigns don't have the money to fight this alone. They depend on the basis of democracy, but democracy has failed us up here. The Legislature created more problems than they solved," Pick said.

Pick said a decision on filing the suit will probably be made next week.

In the meantime, plans are being made for a weekend telephone campaign to raise pledges for the legal fund, he said.

Drug sweep busts 18

The largest drug sweep in the history of Northeast Nebraska resulted in the arrests of 18 people and the seizure of drugs, cash and vehicles in Dakota County Tuesday and Wednesday, according to Curt Hohenstein, Dakota County Attorney.

The arrests were the culmination of a four-month investigation by members of the Northeast Nebraska Drug Enforcement Program (NEDEEP), a law enforcement task force made up of Nebraska State Patrol and local law enforcement agencies.

Often working undercover, the officers developed cases against 25 defendants. Hohenstein filed 101 felony drug complaints Wednesday.

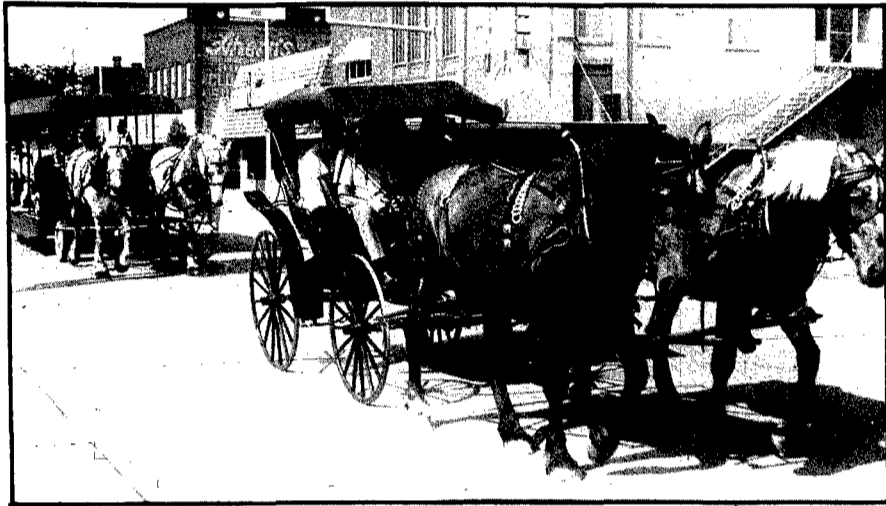

Six defendants named in the complaints still have to be rounded up, but search warrants executed with the help of a trained drug dog from the Nebraska State Patrol turned up drugs and cash in six locations. Ten vehicles suspected of being used as conveyances for the delivery of controlled substances were also seized and may be sold at auction to help finance future drug enforcement operations.

The project, code named "summer slammer," was financed through the Nebraska Crime Commission and local matching funds all generated from seizure of properties at previous drug arrests in Northeast Nebraska.

Drugs confiscated during "summer slammer" included marijuana, methamphetamines and cocaine, said Hohenstein.

Those arrested in the sweep were from Dakota City, South Sioux City, and Sioux City.

Memories made and relived

A HORSE AND BUGGY ride through Wayne last Saturday made memories for newlyweds Tiffany Wilke and George Urban, and summoned up old memories for Kent and Carol Wilke of Wayne, parents of the bride, who rode the same buggy on their wedding day 28 years ago. Driving the buggy with the newlyweds are Ron Lange of Hoskins, who also drove the buggy for Kent and Carol, and the Rev. Ray Wilke of Norfolk, the bride's uncle, who officiated at the ceremony at Grace Lutheran Church in Wayne. Following the buggy is a horse-drawn trolley carrying the wedding party and family members, driven by Carl Paustian of Carroll. Both the buggy and trolley belong to the Wilke family.

true product or service in the scheme.

A MAJOR FACTOR in the eventual collapse of pyramids is the shortage of any meaningful sources of income other than from new investors. The best way to kill them, said Parsons is to tell the public the truth about them. They rely on funds from new investors to pay commission or bonuses to old investors. They need an inexhaustible supply of new investors, he said.

Parsons confirmed that he knew people in Wayne were involved as investors and promoters in the scheme, but he refused to outline what actions his office would be taking with those individuals to try and protect consumers from future pyramid sales activity.

'B' league championship set for Monday

Sherman's wins 'A' league tournament

The Championship games of the Wayne Men's Softball League were scheduled for Thursday at the City Softball Complex.

Sherman's Construction played Diers/Lutt Trucking in the "A" division finals while Black Knight—a 12-11 victor in nine innings over Farm Bureau/Dave's Glass in the losers bracket final, took on Varsity in the finals of the "B" division.

Sherman's came into championship play with an undefeated mark in the league tournament which meant Diers would have to defeat them twice to claim the title.

Diers was the visiting team and the only base runner they saw in the first inning was Brad Jones after he hit a one-out double.

Sherman's did not manage a hit in the first inning but they had two base runners in Kevin Maly and Raul Rodriguez as each drew a walk.

Diers drew first blood in the scoring column with a run in the top of the second inning. Paul Dean hit a single but was forced out at second on Brendan Dorcey's fielder's choice. Dan Gross then hit an infield single before Clancy Wingett hit an rbi single, scoring Dorcey.

Sherman's tied the game in the bottom of the first after loading the bases with hits by Mike Kramer, Darrin Barner and a fielder's choice by Mark Penlerick. Rick Lutt then singled to score Penlerick.

In the top of the third inning Diers scored three runs with the aid of three hits and two Sherman throwing errors. With one out and Brad Jones at first following a fielder's choice, Rob Gamble singled.

Sherman's then committed back-to-back throwing errors which ended up allowing three Diers runs. Rod Lutt, Gamble and Paul Dean each had hits in the inning.

Once again, however, Sherman's came back in the bottom of the inning, this time scoring four runs on five hits to take a 5-4 lead. Kevin Maly singled and Raul Rodriguez drew a walk. Mike Slagle later came to the plate and singled which scored Maly.

Jack Imdieke then singled to score Rodriguez before Mark Penlerick singled to load the bases. Mike Kramer then doubled which scored two to give Sherman's a lead they would never relinquish.

Diers went the next two innings in order—six up and six down while Sherman's added a run in the fifth inning when Kramer sacrificed a fly ball which scored Mike Slagle.

Diers threatened in the top of the sixth inning when the first three batters reached base. Rob Gamble led off with a single followed by Danny Frevert's single and Paul Dean's single.

Brendan Dorcey then hit into a fielder's choice which scored Gamble. That was the last run of the game for Diers as Kevin Maly forced the next two outs with fly ball catches.

In the top of the seventh inning

Terry Schultz led off with a single but Diers then went down in order to end the game.

In a recap of the "A" division tournament, Stadium Sports defeated Mert's, 6-0. Sherman's then defeated Stadium Sports by a 5-3 margin while Diers upset 4th Jug/Nutrena Feeds, 3-2 in eight innings.

In the winners bracket final Sherman's defeated Diers, 13-4. Meanwhile, in losers bracket play 4th Jug defeated Mert's, 7-6 before disposing of Stadium Sports, 3-2. Diers, however, defeated 4th Jug for the second time in the tournament in the losers bracket finals, 10-3.

"B" division final set

In the "B" division, Varsity proved to be the cinderella team as they won three consecutive games to advance to the finals. To see if the glass slipper will fit, however, will take an additional four days as Black Knight defeated Varsity, 6-5 in the first championship game, which forced a second game to be played on Monday at 7 p.m.

The recap of the "B" division tournament will be in Tuesday's edition of the Wayne Herald.

Goetz aids U.S. boxing team in search for gold

By Mark Meighen
Special to the Wayne Herald

Wayne State College Head Athletic Trainer Keith Goetz relied on "Silly Putty" and a positive mental attitude to guide the Olympic boxers in their recent quest for gold at the Summer Games in Barcelona, Spain.

Goetz has been associated with the United States Olympic Boxing team since 1990, when he was chosen as a trainer for the Goodwill Games in Seattle, Washington.

Since that time, he has served as a trainer for the U.S. Boxing Championships in Colorado Springs, and the recent pre-Olympic training camp in Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He also completed a two-week sports medicine internship with the Olympic Weightlifting team last June.

Working with the Olympic boxers has given Goetz a lifetime of memories, without the headaches that come from being on the wrong end of a right hook.

"The number one thrill was being asked by the boxing team to be a trainer in 1990," Goetz said. "Secondly, the boxers always asked if I was going to the Summer Games with them."

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE policies prohibited Goetz from working in Barcelona this summer, but they didn't stop him from being in the national spotlight during the 1990 Goodwill Games.

"Sergio Reyes had hurt his hand at the Goodwill Games," and the officials gave us a day and a half to get him ready so he could pass his physical and continue to box," Goetz recalled.

"We got Reyes ready and he upset the top three contenders to win the gold. The announcers on TBS gave me credit during the fight, and then Reyes thanked me over the air on national television after it was over."

However, an athletic trainer's life is often far from glamorous. Early mornings and late evenings are part of the daily grind.

"My work is basically preventative before practices," Goetz said. "I would take the boxers through a stretching routine before they took their six a.m. run. The boxers received four treatments a day, usually at six and eight in the morning and four and ten at night."

A vital part of Goetz' job was rehabilitating the numerous hand injuries suffered in the ring. Treatments included ice, heat, and ultra sound therapy, but one of Goetz' favorite rehab tools was "Silly Putty."

When U.S. super heavyweight Larry Donald suffered a severely sprained hand, it was Goetz and his magic "Silly Putty" to the rescue. Goetz bought four balls of "Silly Putty" at K-Mart and had Donald squeeze them to strengthen and loosen his injured hand. The "Silly Putty" workouts and daily ultra sound treatment allowed Donald to fight for his golden dreams in Barcelona.

"I had Larry Donald convinced ultra sound was the miracle cure," Goetz said. "Once you convinced his mind he was ready, the body followed."

While "Silly Putty" has been around for years, many of today's sports medicine advances prolong athletes careers.

"There were very few trainers 10 or 20 years ago," Goetz said. "Back then you would play until you retire. Surgeries were often career-ending things. Today, people realize if you take care of the injury right away, the athlete can come back and be as productive as ever. The greatest change probably has been in the knowledge of rehabilitation and preventive medicine."

GOETZ COMPETED IN baseball, basketball and track while growing up as one of the 75 residents of Walker, Kansas. His attention switched from the playing field to what transpired during timeouts while watching Fort Hays State athletic events.

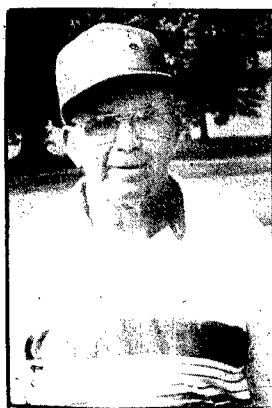

"I used to go to football games when I was a freshman at Fort Hays, and I'd watch their trainer, Steve Antonopolis, run out on the field when someone was injured. That was my first exposure to the profession," Goetz remembered.

"I had played baseball, basketball and track in high school, and was determined to go into coaching or FALL FOOTBALL practice got underway for the Wayne State gridders on Monday with over 90 players reporting to camp. The Wildcats have not had to battle the extreme heat so far this preseason like past years.

WSC QUARTERBACK Troy Mott takes the snap from center during a mini-scrimmage. Wildcat coach Dennis Wagner says this year's freshman are the most-talented in his time at WSC. "We're hungry to be a better team," Wagner said.

Goetz

something in athletics—I eventually lost interest in coaching."

One of Goetz' primary interests in college was movies. He managed the Mall Cinema in Hays throughout his college days, and also worked 20 hours a week at a sporting goods store. The 80-hour weeks made it hard to advance his athletic training pursuits.

"When I was in college, Antonopolis got hired by the Denver Broncos," Goetz recalled. "Brad Brown became the Fort Hays athletic trainer, and all of a sudden he gets hired by the Broncos. I started thinking to myself, life is passing me by. Everyone is moving up and I'm sitting still."

After completing his Masters degree in 1984, Goetz decided he needed to rehabilitate his mind, so he ventured to Keystone, Colorado and became a "ski bum" for two years.

"I qualified for the ski patrol, but everyone I knew on ski patrol got burned out and left the profession," Goetz said. "I became a pretty good mogul skier, and probably would have gone into competition if I had stayed there another year."

Goetz had medical reasons for choosing mogul skiing over downhill racing. "I figured it's better to know you're going to fall at a slow speed, then crash going 80 miles per hour downhill and believe me, I had some tremendous crashes."

With the ski bug out of his system, Goetz returned to Fort Hays State in 1986 as assistant athletic trainer while completing is National Athletic Trainers Association Certification.

During his two-year stint at Hays, Goetz worked several National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) and Kansas State championship events.

According to Goetz, the major difference between working with a single Olympic sport and a college athletic department is quantity.

"With the U.S. Boxing team, I only had 12 people to worry about.

That allowed me to spend a great deal of time with each athlete," Goetz said. "At the college level, you have 250 student-athletes to deal with. Taking care of 12 sports takes its toll after a while. It's hard to give them all the attention they deserve."

GOETZ HAS BEEN healing Wayne State's wounded student-athletes since 1988. He also serves as an instructor in the Human Performance and Leisure Studies department, while gearing up for the 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta, Georgia.

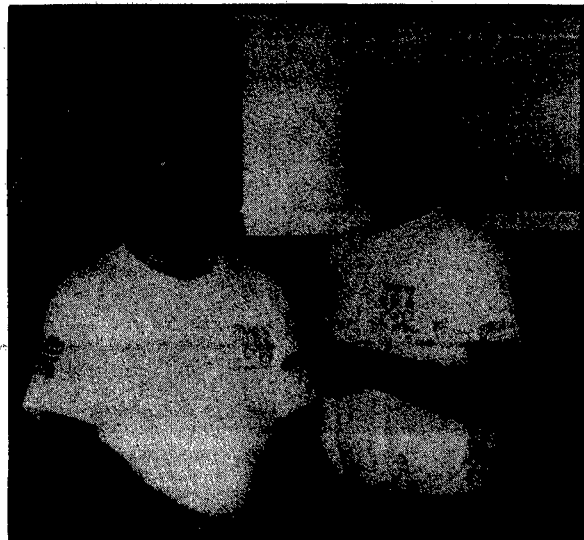

"Today starts the road to the 1996 Olympics, Goetz said. "I fall into the same shoes as an athlete does. I plan to work at the Olympic Sports Festival in San Antonio next summer, and go to Finland in May for World boxing championships. A number of athletes have asked if I would be their personal trainer for their pro fights."

While Goetz ponders his future, he reflects fondly on the past. "I came from a town of 75 people, and I never was a great athlete," Goetz said. "I've put my whole life into sports. When I go to a store and hear people dressed in suits talking about the Olympic boxing team, it gives me a sense of pride."

"I work in a field I love, instead of settling for what everyone told me to be."

WAYNE STATE head athletic trainer Keith Goetz, is surrounded by the 1992 United States Olympic Boxing squad.

WSC and U.S. Boxing trainer Keith Goetz poses with 1992 lightweight gold medalist Oscar De La Hoya. De La Hoya won the only gold medal for the U.S. and fulfilled a promise to his late mother, Cecilia, to win the gold.
