Expressway plea in for Highway 35

By Les Mann Herald Publisher

Members of the Nebraska Highway Commission and the State Department of Roads heard a triple plea for designating Highway 35 through Wayne as an expressway during the public meeting held in Wayne Wednesday.

Community representatives from Norfolk, Wayne and South Sioux City all argued for redevelopment of Highway 35 as an expressway to connect the three major communities in Northeast Nebraska with I-29 and the expressway being developed along Highway 81. Parts of Highway 35 are already in the state plans for improvement as a designated priority commercial system, but the development and local government representatives requested the route be upgraded to expressway, since it is a vital commercial route.

DARREL HEIER, president of the Wayne City Council read a statement from the council asking for the highway department to speed up efforts to upgrade the route and to put it on the expressway system.

The city of Wayne continues to exceed statewide employment trends and retail sales trends. Wayne county's non-ag related employment is now at an all time high.

"There is a need for an inner connection of Wayne to South Sioux City and Highway 81," said Heier. The Highway 35 route should be viewed as the key Nebraska tie for commerce between Minneapolis and Denver, said the city's statement, said Heier.

are going to be forced to purchase backflow devices to keep contaminants from entering the city water system under new federal clean water guidelines outlined for city council at its meeting Tuesday night.

The siphon control devices, which will be required on residential outdoor faucets and in businesses which handle contaminants such as chemicals, can range in cost from a few dollars per faucet to thousands of dollars on commercial service lines said Rich Koenig, with the Nebraska Department of Health.

He told council the recently enacted federal clean drinking water laws will require state inspections of municipal water systems and if the backflow devices are not in place in the city, the community could lose its water system license. In the residential areas, of greatest concern will be underground watering systems, said Koenig. He said these are designated as hazards because they create an opportunity for lawn fertilizers and pesticides to drain into the city water system through the sprinkler heads. Other "high hazard" buildings might be newspapers because of their darkroom chemicals, said Koenig.

He said the Department of Health is scheduled to begin enforcing the new regulations on Jan. 1. 1993 office in 1986, "I thought I knew most of the people in the county, but I soon found out that I knew very few people," Mrs. Reeg said. "Everyone in the county has to come to the Assessor's office, sooner or later, so we are usually first ones to meet any new individuals who move into the county.

In all Assessors' offices across the state, there are three ad valorem ("based on value") taxes that are dealt with. These taxes are motor vehicle, personal property and real estate. The motor vehicle value comes directly from the Nebraska Motor Vehicle Manual.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Reeg, the passage of LB 1063 in the last legislative session has made personal property valued according to the net book value. "This also included farm machinery and equipment and breeding livestock along with the business furniture and fixtures that had already been on the tax rolls," Mrs. Reeg said.

"Our office had a very busy year listing all the farm machinery and breeding livestock. It was a learning experience for us, as well as the taxpayers."

Real estate values are set according to the market, Mrs. Reeg said. "If the market is active in our county and real estate is selling at higher prices, then our values will have to go up along with the market." These values can fluctuate up or down.

The State Board of Equalization has the power to call in a county whose values aren't in line with the market. "This year, I believe nine counties were called to Lincoln to testify. We were not one of them, Mrs. Reeg said.

IN ADDITION to valuing property, the County Assessor signs up people for homestead exemptions. A homestead exemption is a tax relief for individuals over 65 years old who meet a certain income requirement. There are also a few homesteads for individuals and veterans with 100 percent disabilities varied duties, a state statute mandates that the County Assessor maintains and updates current Cadastral maps. These maps show boundaries and ownership of landand are updated daily, according to deeds filed in the County Clerk's office. "The public use these maps on a regular basis to find lot boundaries, ownerships and legal descriptions," Mrs. Reeg said. Someone in the office is available to direct the public in the use of the Cadastral maps," Mrs. Reeg said.

The Assessor's office is responsible for keeping records on current ownerships. These come in the form of deeds, death certificates, contracts and others. "In 1991, we had over 500 legal documents to update and record. This could sometimes mean splitting a farm into two or three smaller farms with any number of owners or we may have to combine two smaller farms into one larger one," Mrs. Reeg said. This could mean that they have to rewrite legal descriptions and draw off the new farms on the Cadastral map and arrive at new values. Mrs. Reeg said "this is probably one of the favorite jobs of everyone in the office. It can be a real challenge."

ALONG WITH dividing property, the County Assessor's office also annex land, draw up new subdivisions and divide city lots. Whatever the legal document directs us to do is what we do," Mrs. Reeg said.

Our most time consuming job is listing property," Mrs. Reeg said. Throughout the year, land owners file building permits for changes they have made to their property. Each one of these has to be followed up on. Mrs. Reeg said. so we go out to the site and record measurements and other pertinent information that is needed to value the improvement."

Mrs. Reeg also said that any hanges in a property should be reported to the Assessor's office. If an owner may have taken some buildings off, added a machine shed. garage or finished a basement these changes must be reported.

"They list the owners of all properties in the county, as well as addresses, legal descriptions, values and taxes due," Mrs. Reeg said. Mrs. Dahl is a Wayne State College graduate and worked at a local bank for seven years prior to her current position in the Courthouse, which, she said, has given her the experience working with and helping people. Her husband, Ken, also a graduate of Wayne State, is the golf course superintendent at the Wayne Country Club. They have four sons. Rod and his wife, Terri, are both graduates of Washburn Uni-versity in Topeka, Kan., and live in Omaha. Rod is employed at Heartland Promotions. Corey graduated in May from Wayne State and is in his first year of teaching at Papil-lion-LaVista. Kyle is a freshman at Wayne State College and Ryan, 12, is in the sixth grade. Mrs. Dahl said that she finds working in the County Assessor's office 'interesting and challenging.' Jo Junck started working in the

She is currently taking appraisal courses which will lead to Registered appraiser. Mrs. Junck and her husband, Ray, farm north of Carroll. She has two boys, Dan and Casey. Dan is in the Marine Corps and stationed in Hawaii with his wife, Tara, and new daughter, Vic-toria. Casey is 11 years old and is in the sixth grade at Wayne Middle School.

Stefani Simons is the newest member to the office. She graduated from college in June of this year and began her duties on Aug. 1. Mrs. Simons just moved here from California with her husband Keith who is the Offensive Coordinator for the Wayne State College football team, and her daughter Shaylyn, who is four years old. Her du-ties in the office of County Assessor are very diversified. "This is a very challenging job. It is never cut and dried because it is always changing," Mrs. Simons said.

"I FEEL continuing education is very important. Attendance at the two yearly workshops and the one week of mandatory school for assessors are just a few of the ways we try to keep up with changes in state statutes and new appraisal ideas," Mrs. Reeg said. "Wayne State College and Northeast Community College also offer classes that benefit our office

"Working in the Assessor's office keeps one informed on our government and any changes it makes. Even though I've only been here a little over a year, I think I'll always be learning new things be-cause of the laws changing from one year to the next," Mrs. Dahl said.

"The fact that we work with such a diverse group of individuals makes our work interesting. The farming community, the business community, and the professional community all have business in the Courthouse and we are the lucky ones who get to become acquainted with all of them," Mrs. Reeg said.

Benefits of mammograms stressed PMC offering reduced rates during Breast Cancer Awareness Month

By LaVon Anderson News Editor

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month and Providence Medical Center (PMC) in Wayne is again offering mammograms at a reduced

Sister Kevin Hermsen, radiology supervisor at PMC, said women are encouraged to take advantage of the reduced rates, especially those who are 35 years of age or older and have been putting the procedure off for one reason or another.

During October, mammograms which normally cost $55 will be offered at a reduced charge of $45. Sister Kevin pointed out that there is a separate fee charged by the radiologist who reads the mammogram.

Sister Kevin added that mammograms must be ordered by a Please call your physician doctor. today and get his order for you to have a mammogram," stressed Sister Kevin. "It could be the most important call you ever make.

Providence Medical Center is a Medicare approved screening facil-ity, and Sister Kevin said" the hospital has not increased its charge for mammograms since 1985 when they were first offered.

THE AMERICAN Cancer Society says breast cancer is the most common form of cancer among American women, and the leading cancer killer of women in Nebraska

Mammograms are used to detect breast cancer at an early, curable stage, and the American Cancer Society recommends that women receive a baseline mammogram be-tween the ages of 35-39, every one 40-49, and every year for women age 50 and over. Women also are encouraged to practice early detection procedures, including breast self-exams monthly, and clinical breast exams by a physician every three years for women 20 to 40 years of age, and every year for women over age 40.

"THE DOCTORS in Wayne have been extremely supportive of the benefits of mammography, said Sister Kevin, adding that Providence Medical Center performs anywhere from 40 to 50 mammograms each month.

Persons with questions regarding the procedure are asked to call the hospital at 375-3800

Homecoming clash with UNK, Saturday

Coach Dennis Wagner's Wildcats opened a five-game homestand with a 42-7 win over Mayville State last week. WSC racked up 499 yards in total offense with the biggest play coming on a 97-yard scoring strike from Troy Mott to Damon Thomas-the second longest scoring play in Wildcat history. Ed Jochum and Sonny Jones paired up for a 98-yard scoring pass against Midland in 1985.

Thomas was named Nebraska NCAA Division II Offensice Player of the Week after his seven reception, 133 yards, two TD performance against the Comets.

Sophomore running backs Lamont Rainey and Jason Williams each rushed for 100-plus yards in the blow-out victory, the first time that's happened since Gale Lawton and Troy Jackson did it against Kearney in 1989 and '90.

WSC has four individuals ranked nationally among this week's NCAA Division II leaders. Thomas ranks third nationally with 8.8 receptions per game, and is 14th in receiving yards per game at 102.2.

Troy Mott ranks 11th in total offense (258 per game) and 28 in passing efficiency (130.4 rating). Wilson Hookfin ranks 17th with 0.8 interceptions per game and 19th in punt returns (11.0). Dave Mentzer ranks 24th with a 40.3 yard punting average.

As a team the Wildcats rank 16th in total offense (423.8), tied for ninth in passing offense (271.3), and tied for 26th in scoring offense (27.8). Defensively, the 'Cats are tied for eighth against the rush (67.8) and rank 23rd in total defense.

WSC hopes to end a 20-year winless streak against the Lopers of the University of Nebraska at Kearney during Saturday's homecoming contest. WSC's last win over the Lopers came in 1971 with a 28-0 victory at Memorial Stadium.

Kearney coach Claire Boroff is a perfect 20-0 against Wayne State in his tenure as the Lopers coach. If playing Kearney wasn't enough, WSC has chosen the day as homecoming.

Wagner's teams have dropped the last two homecoming contests with a loss to the Lopers in '90, (41-17) and to Fort Hays State in '91, (28-20). "This is an important game," Wagner said. "It's just like UNO. It's an in-state game that's very important for recruiting. We have a lot of games to play after Kearney. Right now, we're both sitting at 2-2. It's just a matter of playing error-free football and coming away with a victory

The Lopers, incidentally, haven't been scored on in the fourth quarter this season. Their record pretty much mirrors WSC in the fact both teams dropped their first two games of the season and have won two straight since Rick Draper, Gordy Godfrey and Pat Holston will be inducted into the Wayne State College Athletic Hall of Fame during halftime ceremonies of Saturday's contest.

Draper was an all-district and all-conference swimmer at WSC during the early '70's while Godfrey and Holston were football standouts.

Eaton said his team played much better in the second game as they got used to the new offense. 'Anytime you change an offense there is a period of adjustment," Eaton said. "I don't like changing offenses in the middle of a season but we felt we had to make a change

Wakefield served at an 83 percent clip which is still below where Eaton would like his squad to be. Kathy Otte led the Trojans with a 11-12 outing and two aces while Jaime Oswald was 10-11 with three aces. Heather Gustafson was 7-8 with two aces.

Attempts to ban 287-2346 books on increase

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) Indiana schools and libraries are seeing increasing attempts to ban books that parents and taxpayers find objectionable, censorship opponents say.

Martha McCarthy, an education professor at Indiana University who researches censorship issues, says groups such as Concerned Women for America and Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum have become more strident in pursuing book bans in recent years

"These groups are becoming better organized. Their constituency has changed. Originally, books challenges reported to the ALA are from school libraries.

"One reason (for the increase) is that we are getting better at tracking them down and reporting them. The other is that there is a general increase from several well-organized campaigns against specific materi-als," Penway said. "We are pushing the limits of expression in our society generally."

Books dealing with witchcraft are a popular target these days, according to the American Library Association, but "challenges based on offensive language and frank depictions of sexuality" also are targeted, said Anne Penway, the group's assistant director.

There has been ``a slow and steady increase" in the number of censorship challenges in 1991 and 1992, Penway said. The ALA re ports that there were more than 500 incidents of attempted censorship reported to them in 1992. About 15 percent of those attempts are successful

A book reconsideration committee at the school reviewed the complaint, but ultimately decided not to ban the book.

A collection of books published by the Lions Club/Quest school drug prevention program also has come under attack, McCarthy said.

At least 30 school corporations report challenges to the Quest program from parents who feel it encourages students to make their own decisions about drugs and to question parental authority. Schools in both Bedford and Bloomfield have dealt with Quest challenges from parents.

Programs that emphasize "critical thinking skills, anything that smacks of values material," is up for a challenge these days, Mc-Carthy said.

DeSoto summer season extended

DeSoto National Wildlife Refuge will provide a wide array of activities for the visiting public during the fall. The summer public use season officially closes on Sept. 30. However, this year, the season will be extended through Oct. 14. The two-week extension has been added to allow for fall fishing and to provide additional opportunities for viewing wildlife.

Fishing success has picked up with cooler weather. Some excellent catfish have been taken recently. Refuge hours will continue to be 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily, through that date.

The self-guided fall auto tour will open Oct. 15 and extend through Nov. 30. The new auto tour will offer visitors an excellent opportunity to become familiar with refuge resource management practices by following numbered stations along the paved tour route that correspond to narration in the auto tour brochure. The route will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily. Morning and evening hours are best for viewing white-tailed deer, turkey and other wildlife. The ducks and geese are beginning to migrate through DeSoto, although the peak of the migration will not occur until November. Small flocks of teal and whitefronted geese are currently present. Bald eagles usually don't arrive until early November.

Visitor center hours will be 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily during the auto tour period. The visitor center is closed on Wednesdays. Some of the interior refuge roads will open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. All entry and exiting will be through the north gate near U.S. Highway 30, which is the main refuge en

The annual Wildlife art show and sale will be held at the DeSoto Visitor Center, opening at noon on Oct. 3 and closing on Oct. 31.

The following hunting opportunities also will be offered in designated areas at DeSoto this fall:

Nebraska archery deer hunting, Sept. 15-Nov. 13 and Nov. 23-Dec. 31. Iowa archery deer hunting, Oct. 1-Dec. 4 and Dec. 21-Jan. 10. Ne-braska muzzleloader deer hunt (application period closed), Dec. 12-Iowa controlled waterfowl hunt (reservation required), Nov. 1-Dec. 11.

Hunters interested in any of these programs should contact the refuge for detailed information.

Refuge Manager George Gage stated that "the fall season is definitely the best time for viewing wildlife on refuge." Visitors requir-ing more information on any of the programs may write the DeSoto National Wildlife Refuge, R-1, Box 114, Missouri Valley, Iowa 51555, or telephone 712/642-4121.
