Moving dirt on major project

The official ground-breaking ceremony for the new Wayne Care Centre was held in frigid conditions Friday afternoon as community leaders joined with officials of Boyle Company to ceremonially start the $3.3 million facility. Using a specially adapted long-handled shovel, most of those who attended the ceremony got a hand in turning the first shovelful. The new 104 bed nursing facility will be state of the art according to developers. It will be located near Providence Medical Center and is scheduled for opening late this year or early in 1994.

Wayne gets development fund windfall

By Les Mann

The early payoff of a $500,000 economic development loan which assisted in the development of the Great Dane trailer manufacturing plant in Wayne means the city of Wayne has an unexpected windfall of funds which can be used for additional economic development efforts.

The City of Wayne assisted then manufacturer Timpte, Inc. in obtaining federal economic development loan funds for the construction of the plant which employs nearly 400 workers. The plant was built in 1985. The terms of the 15-year loan allowed the company to pay the funds back to the city, with the city retaining the fund in a pool for subsequent economic development loans.

Great Dane purchased the new plant from Timpte in 1989. The loan was not due to mature until 2000.

"BUT GREAT Dane has been going great guns and has elected to pay off the note early," City Administrator Joe Salitros told city council Tuesday.

With the recent loan payoff, the city has over $600,000 in its loan pool, which, according to federal guidelines, must be used for additional economic development efforts in the community.

Salitros told the Wayne Herald the city is investigating the possibility that a portion of the funds might be used for the housing development in Wayne.

HE SAID until recently, jobs creation, and more specifically, industrial development was thought to be the only permissible use for the federal loan funds administered through the state. But the state has recently realized that housing is as crucial to the growth of communities as is job creation, he said.

Salitros said the impact of the development of the huge meat processing plant in Lexington may have shown the state the logic of utilizing economic development funding for housing development.

THE CITY'S written reuse plan for the economic development funds limits the amount of subsequent loans to $200,000, which Salitros said is a sizeable plumb to hold out for prospective industrial relocation prospects.

He said, however, that housing development for Wayne might be as instrumental in attracting more jobs to the community as low interest loans for plant construction, infrastructure improvements or job training assistance.

The original Timpte note was set at approximately 4.25 percent. At the time Salitros said he was told that was the largest package of development incentives offered to attract a business into Nebraska. Timpte moved its headquarters to Wayne from Colorado before being purchased by Great Dane. Other incentives were given

Cable firm gets static over raise

By Les Mann

A good deal of static was received by the local cable television manager when he presented a status report and announced plans to raise cable television service rates in Wayne during Tuesday night's Wayne City Council meeting.

Councilmembers grilled Jones Intercable general manager Andrew Gordon about claims of poor service and reception problems with the Wayne cable system.

Attending the Tuesday council meeting to give his annual report to council and to announce plans for a rate restructuring, Gordon heard complaints about channels being preempted, bad reception and poor response to service calls.

"YOU'RE GOING to increase our rates and still give us lousy service," said Councilwoman Pat Prather. She joined other councilmembers in complaining about the lack of technical service personnel stationed in Wayne.

Great Dane truck trailer manufacturing plant in Wayne has been such a growth success that it has paid off low interest loans used in the development of the plant, early. The early pay-back gives the city more than $500,000 in a revolving loan fund that can be used to help other businesses locate and expand in Wayne.

Bus stop moved; Safety is issue

Safety considerations are the prime reasons the Wayne School board has decided to move its only in-town busing pickup point to Sunnyview Park instead of the Runza lot.

Board members have expressed concern over the safety of children at the busy intersection in the mornings. The change will begin Feb. 1.

The move caps a long-standing discussion on the policy of busing some students from in-town locations. Because of the precedent set by buses picking up students at Runza, other neighborhoods in town had requested busing service.

The new location for pickup will allow students from the farthest neighborhoods from school to catch the bus on a daily basis.

In other business settled at the Tuesday night school board meeting, a date has been set to meet with representatives of Wayne County School Districts 15, 51 and 57 on January 19 to further discuss affiliation and merger plans and to adopt petitions.

Superintendent Dennis Jensen talked to the board members about the new expense school districts have incurred because of a change in state law making school liable for special care requirements of foster care and wards of the court placed in residential care facilities in the Wayne district.

Jensen said in the past the expenses for any required special care services had been the responsibility of the Department of Social Services.

He said the change translates to a $54,000 special education budget shortfall in this current school year.

The board discussed the issue at length and is planning possible legislative efforts for a solution.

The board did adopt a no smoking policy for all the school buildings. The policy took effect Wednesday.

Wayne State College is also participating as facilitator and evaluator of the effectiveness of what School Superintendent Dennis Jensen calls an exciting project. Students will be able to see, hear and send data back and forth in real time with the principal in Juarez.

ADDITIONAL GRANT and donation funding is being sought through the Wayne Public School District Foundation to allow students to utilize newly emerging technology to gain first hand experience about other cultures on a global scale.

The USWest grant of $1,200 is a big chunk of the $5,385 total needed to purchase the video and communication equipment to implement the Spanish distance learning program.

The equipment would allow the school students to tap into other distance education sources as well, said Jensen.

"The State of Nebraska now requires multi-cultural education in every school district," explained Jensen. "In most schools, this retential businesses.

He said the cooperative work by his predecessors within city government, the State Department of Economic Development, Wayne Industries and other community leaders has put the community in an excellent position to continue to improve.

quirement will be met by having students read and teachers lecture about various cultures and minorities.

"Wayne will be offering students direct links," he added.

THE PROJECT here will be monitored by many other schools in the region, he said. Many see it as a cost effective means to offer many curriculum enhancements for local schools.

Jensen explained that the same technology is being implemented in private industry to offer training to employees without requiring travel.

Jensen and school foundation secretary-treasurer have sent a letter to local businesses soliciting funds to allow the schools to implement the unbudgeted program.

Donations to the distance learning fund would be tax deductible. The schools have set a goal of raising the needed funds by Jan. 22.

He said his goal is to see Wayne School District become a regional leader in technology and communications. "We want to offer our students the best curriculum opportunities our community can afford for their future and ours."

at least an hour before a technician is dispatched to correct the problem. Councilmembers said they were getting numerous complaints from constituents about the service.

Councilmember Jane O'Leary suggested a council resolution opposing any cable rate increase until a technician is located in Wayne. Previously the city had a full time technician stationed in Wayne.

It is expected that proposal will be considered at the next council meeting.

GORDON SAID he had not found a qualified person who wanted to move to Wayne. Councilmember Ralph Barclay reminded Gordon that he had said the same thing six months ago. "I don't want to hear the same excuse again," said Barclay.

The cable firm's plans include continued efforts to rebuild the system with new lines to improve reception quality, said Gordon. What he described as "sweeping price changes" might mean an actual rate reduction for cable customers who want to receive fewer channels.

A NEW TIER system is being offered effective March 1 that will include 19 channels for $11.95. Called "limited basic," the new offering will provide the Sioux City and Omaha channels, TBS, WGN, educational networks and public access channels. Formerly the lowest level of service in Wayne was $18 a month for 37 channels.

Limited basic subscribers will not receive The Weather Channel, ESPN, Discovery, CNN, Nickelodeon, Arts and Entertainment, MTV and several other popular channels.

Those will be added to the limited basic channels for a total of $21.50 per month for all. In addition, as part of the price restructuring, Gordon said the prices of Showtime and The Movie Channel pay channels will be dropping to $8.95.

Completes environmental course

Tim Pickinpaugh, City of Wayne Municipal Utilities, recently completed the Environmental Protection Agency's national field study course on the operation of wastewater treatment plants.

California State University, Sacramento administers the program for EPA and has presented Pickinpaugh with a certificate of completion. Topics covered in the course include all phases of the operation and maintenance of wastewater treatment plants.

Dr. Kenneth Kerri, Program Director, said Pickinpaugh is one of many operators in the United States who has completed the program. The course is available to all persons interested in the operation of wastewater treatment plants. The Environmental Protection Agency expects over 1,000 operators throughout the United States to complete the program this year.

Tax to cost electric users

Nebraska Public Power District and its customers face the prospect of higher expenses and electric rates should a proposed federal carbon tax be imposed on fossil fuels.

An evaluation of the consequences of a carbon tax, prepared by NPPD staff analysts, reveals that a $20 per ton carbon tax would increase the cost of power from NPPD's coal-fired plants by an estimated $41.3 million per year, resulting in an increase in revenue requirements of approximately 10 percent.

"A carbon tax of $20 a ton would be an extreme hardship, but a tax as high as $100 a ton has been advanced," the report points out.

Although there is no scientific consensus on the cause of global warming, there have been suggestions that a carbon tax be imposed to encourage reduction of carbon dioxide generation.

"While some scientists argue that increased CO2 will have catastrophic results, other equally credible scientists predict that huge benefits will be gained by the higher levels of CO2, in the form of increased plant production, reduced need for irrigation and revegetation of much of the earth's present dry desert areas," the study says.

Environmental concerns are not the only reason a carbon tax is being proposed, the study said. Other reasons cited are the need for revenues to decrease the federal deficit, to move from regulatory control to an economic incentive, and some proponents, such as the natural gas industry, see an economic opportunity in forcing power plants to switch to natural gas.

Of the three fossil fuels — coal, oil and natural gas — coal contains 615 pounds of carbon per megawatt-hour of electricity generated. Oil contains 467 pounds for the same megawatt-hour of electricity while natural gas would contain 337 pounds of carbon. However, coal is the nation's most abundant fossil fuel and has the lowest cost per heat unit.

"NPPD's coal generation presently costs less than 90 cents per million BTUs while the present cost of natural gas as a boiler fuel is between 2 and 3 dollars per million BTUs. Oil prices result in a cost of from 5 to 7 dollars per million BTUs.

Switching from coal to natural gas offers only a slight advantage under a carbon tax and the risks of natural gas supply instability and future prices must be considered, NPPD's study said.

"If all coal consumption was to be replaced by natural gas, the use of gas in the U.S. would double from 24 to 48 percent of the total energy consumption," and would require nearly 39 trillion cubic feet of gas per year. The largest U.S. natural gas production in history was 23 trillion cubic feet in 1973.

"It is unlikely that this much gas could be produced domestically and that huge imports from foreign sources would be required," further adding to the U.S. trade deficit, the study pointed out. Many new gas transmission and distribution lines would also have to be built.

Wayne wrestlers decision South Sioux, 37-29 in dual

The Wayne wrestling team defeated Class A South Sioux in dual action Thursday night at South Sioux, 37-29.

John Murtaugh's troops won six of the 11 varsity matches held with Wayne forfeiting at 189 and South Sioux forfeiting at 119. The Blue Devils won all four of their reserve matches in action preceding the varsity meet.

Jeremy Sturm won by pin at 130 and Cory Erxleben did likewise at 135. Philip Marburger won by pin at 140 and Brent Geiger won by pin at 145.

In varsity action Chad Billheimer got Wayne off on the right foot with a 13-0 decision of Trevor Soyk at 103. Travis Koester lost a 4-3 decision at 112 to Alex DeLao and Sage Gray was decided, 14-6 by Jose DeAnda at 125.

Randy Johnson won by pin in 1:25 over Jeramic Frederick at 130 pounds and Matt Rise won by technical fall over Dale Bulizak at 135. Terry Rutenbeck lost by pin to Jase Kellen at 140, but Chad Paysen picked the Blue Devils momentum back up with a pin over Brant Haafkein at 145. The pin came at the 3:52 mark.

Dusty Jensen won a 14-1 decision over Eric Totman at 152 and Jason Shultheis won by pin over Charles Watkins in 3:49 of his 160 pound match. Jason Stapelman lost by pin to Sithon Sysaenglath in just 16 seconds of the 171 pound match and at heavyweight, Jeff Hamer lost a 13-3 decision to Trent Fischer.

"I really felt we were more aggressive than South Sioux," Murtaugh said. "Even when we went against some of their best wrestlers, we did not back down." Murtaugh said his squad had a number of big wins but Chad Paysen's pin at 145 was probably the turning point of the dual for the Blue Devils. Wayne improved to 3-2 in dual action and will travel to compete in the Elkhorn Invitational on Saturday. A partial team will compete at the Pender Tournament, also on Saturday.

Winside girls lose at Beemer

WINSIDE-The Winside girls basketball team was defeated by Beemer, 48-41 at Beemer, Friday night. Angie Schroeder's team fell to 3-5 on the season but she felt her squad didn't play all that bad in Beemer.

"We got off to a slow start and the difference in the game was the first quarter," Schroeder said. "We trailed 12-5 after that first quarter." Winside did come back and took the lead in the third and fourth quarters but Schroeder said some inconsistent officiating had a detrimental effect on her team.

"We got some tough calls to go against us and our girls got frustrated," Schroeder said. "For the most part, however, we didn't play that bad." Kari Pichler led the Wildcats with 12 points while Holly Holdorf tossed in 10. Christi Mundil finished with eight points and Wendy Miller tallied five.

Chris Colwell netted four points and Catherine Bussey finished with two. Both teams managed 42 rebounds with Mundil hauling down a team-high 16 caroms to lead Winside. Pichler and Miller had seven boards each.

Winside will travel to play Hartington on Tuesday in girls/boys double-header.

Winside breezes past Beemer

WINSIDE-The Winside boys basketball team improved to 3-4 with a 57-40 victory over Beemer, Thursday. Shannon Pospisil's team led 13-11 after the first quarter and 27-18 at the half before out-scoring the Bobcats, 30-22 in the second half.

"It wasn't a very pretty game," Pospisil said. "Both teams played ragged but we're happy to get the win." Winside got double digit scoring out of four of its starters with Cory Miller leading the way with 16 points while Ryan Brogren poured in 14. John Hancock finished with 13 and Cam Shelton scored 10.

Colby Jensen and Marty Jorgensen netted two points each. Winside was out-rebounded, 40-39 despite 15 caroms from Miller and nine from Brogren. The Wildcats had just 13 turnovers while forcing Beemer into 27. Winside will travel to play Hartington on Tuesday.

Tax

coal to natural gas, the study shows that, based on 1991's generation, the plant would have required 59.5 billion cubic feet of gas, or half of the total amount of natural gas used by all of Nebraska's 1.6 million residents for all purposes. If all the coal-burning power station boilers in Nebraska were converted to natural gas, it would require an additional 149 billion cubic feet, or a 133 percent increase in the state's natural gas consumption.

The analysis points out that prospects in the next few years for alternative sources of electricity that do not produce carbon dioxide are not bright.

"The next generation of nuclear power plants which are currently being developed will not be available in a timeframe to replace coal plants shut down by a carbon tax;

"More extensive use of hydroelectric power is unrealistic; existing hydro facilities are being used to their maximum, the best hydro sites have been used, and new environmental laws will make future hydro construction more difficult than in the past; a good example is NPPD's ongoing struggle to relicense its hydro facilities;

"Wind power and solar technologies are being improved but they have been and are more expensive than conventional generation. A carbon tax would make them more attractive but it will be a long time before they can make a significant contribution toward meeting our total energy needs.

The study concluded: "The possibility of a tax on carbon is real. A carbon tax of any amount will affect the competitive of U.S. and Nebraska industry. The consequences to NPPD and the electric industry in general will be especially harsh due to the fact that present electric generation utilizes coal generation to a large extent."

Shake on It

"I was there."
"I saw it."
Most of us can make a rational decision based on an eyewitness statement.
For twenty centuries people have declared Jesus to be God's son. They have seen; they know.
Examine the evidence in church. Decide for yourself.
"I myself have seen and have testified that this is the Son of God." John 1:29-42

For many adults

Lack of physical activity, not calories responsible for 'battle of the bulge'

For many adults, the battle of the bulge is more likely due to too little physical activity throughout the day than to eating too many calories, a U.S. Department of Agriculture study shows.

Researchers at USDA's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University in Boston report that men over 65 leading normal lifestyles consumed substantially more calories during a 10-day study than currently recommended for their age group. The researchers earlier reported the same finding for men in their twenties. All the men were of average weight.

Study leader Susan B. Roberts, a physiologist, said there was no correlation between the men's body fat levels and their caloric intake in either age group. But there was a significant inverse relationship with physical activity. The more activity — the less fat.

"Our results support the suggestion that the current Recommended Dietary Allowances for energy (calories) may significantly underestimate actual energy requirements," Roberts and colleagues reported in December's International Journal of Obesity, published in England.

The RDA for men 51 to 75 years of age is 2,400 calories daily, with a range of 2,000 to 2,800 depending on body size. The nine volunteers in this study burned an average 2,800 calories daily, Roberts said. That's because their physical activity was significantly higher than the value used to calculate the RDA.

She said such information helps health professionals determine whether the food intake for different population groups is sufficient. And it allows USDA to fine tune how much food aid should be given to poor families based on how many calories they actually need.

The study results also provide a more accurate basis for setting weight reduction diets, she said. "Men are typically prescribed a 1,500-calorie diet, which is considered a fairly moderate cut in calories. Our results indicate that it's quite a big drop relative to normal intake."

"I think the prescription should be to get more exercise," she said, noting that the men in the study who had the lowest energy expenditure for physical activity had the most body fat.

Climbing the stairs instead of taking the elevator, moving around instead of sitting still, sitting up instead of lying down and being excited instead of bored, all add up to burning more calories.

"A half-hour aerobic workout accounts for far less energy expenditure than our minute-to-minute movement in the office or at home," she said. Roberts and colleagues measured the total amount of energy the men expended daily as well as the amount they used to maintain basal metabolism. Dividing the first number by the second number, she explained, gives a value for their physical activity.

The RDA for older men is based on a physical activity value of 1.5 compared to 1.75 averaged in this study, she said, nearly 17 percent higher. She earlier reported a difference of similar magnitude for men in their twenties.

"These numbers will be useful in adjusting the RDA," she said. Roberts repeated the study with older men after finding that men in their twenties consume and burn substantially more calories than recommended because "young men may not be representative of other groups," she said.

As in the earlier study, the researchers used two methods to arrive at the men's energy requirements and serve as cross-checks. They determined the amount of energy each volunteer needed to maintain weight by measuring how many calories each consumed over the course of a week.

They also measured the total amount of energy each man burned, and thus needed to replace, by a method that allows volunteers to follow a normal lifestyle. Volunteers needed only to drink some water containing nonradioactive isotopes of both hydrogen and oxygen and collect urine samples for researchers to measure the disappearance rates of each isotope. The total energy expended can be estimated quite accurately from the differences in these rates, Roberts explained.

Roberts, William J. Evans and colleagues in the USDA center's Physiology Laboratory collaborated on the study with researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass.
