

Council: just do it our way

By Les Mann Of the Herald

Wayne City Council was uncompromising in its approach to the plan for the future of the city Tuesday.

Council had earlier sent back to the commission the original plan requesting changes on land use designation changes in three areas, but the commission refused to make one of the changes, offered a compromise on another and agreed with council on the third.

AT ISSUE was the housing density designation for the area south of Grainland Road, a small tract near the See PLAN, Page 3

Couple escapes fire thanks to alert passerby

By LaVon Anderson News Editor

Verne and Pauline Sievers of Wayne are crediting the actions of a rural Wakefield man for alerting them to a fire in the home during the wee hours of the morning last Sunday — and for possibly saving their lives.

Pauline said she and her husband were awakened by Alan Thomsen shortly before 2 a.m. Sunday after Thomsen smelled smoke and drove around the neighborhood until he spotted the smoke and flames coming from the ventilation system in the attic of the Sievers home at 109 W. Fourth St.

Although the house is equipped with smoke detectors, Pauline said that because the fire started in the attic the detectors did not sound until long after the blaze was reported.

WAYNE FIRE Chief Dutch Sitzman, who was out of town at the time, said the alarm sounded at 1:56 a.m. Sunday and firemen were on the scene at 2:05 a.m.

Although it was later determined that the blaze started in the wiring in the attic, Sitzman said firemen had a difficult time finding its origins when they arrived and were forced to cut a hole in the roof and flood the area with water.

Firemen remained on the scene until approximately 5 a.m. and were called back at 8:52 a.m. when it was discovered that wood shingles were still smoldering underneath.

The fire chief added that bitterly cold temperatures were a problem for the firemen as the water iced up the hoses, ladders and roof area and made the entire area extremely slick. "Everything was a solid sheet of ice when they were done."

ALTHOUGH the fire chief roughly estimated fire, water and smoke damage throughout the house in the area of $30,000, Pauline said she and Verne are extremely fortunate that they are covered by insurance.

Adopt a hydrant?

Wayne Fire Chief Dutch Sitzman says Wayne residents are probably unaware that snow and ice which builds up around fire hydrants could hamper the work of volunteer firemen.

Because of the recent storm which dumped approximately 15 inches of snow in the area, Sitzman said he is promoting an "Adopt a Hydrant" program and asking neighborhood residents to clear the snow away from fire hydrants in the area where they live.

"It would make it much easier for the firefighters in the event they are called to the area," said Sitzman.

Sitzman said fortunately that was not a problem for firemen who responded to a call early Sunday morning to the Verne Sievers residence.

It's not a very pleasant thing to have to go through," says Pauline, "but Verne and I are doing fine and are temporarily making our home at the motel until we can find suitable housing."

Pauline added that she and Verne are planning to rebuild their home and are extremely grateful for the help they have received from their children, neighbors and friends. "We're really lucky when you stop and think about it. It's a heck of a mess, but we're alive."

TV changes draw protest from City

By Les Mann Of the Herald

Jones Intercable will be realigning its cable television channels beginning Monday and will be asking its customers to pay a bit more for cable service in a move that has drawn a protest from Wayne City Council.

The Jones move is seen as an effort to avoid provisions in a new law which will give city councils the authority to regulate basic cable rates and service, according to Wayne City Administrator Joe Salitros.

The move is being repeated all over the country by cable operators faced with the April 15 law change which will give cities the authority again to regulate rates.

"CABLE COMPANIES seem to be universally reducing the levels of basic service before the new law takes effect," said Salitros. In effect, he said the cities will be regulating "basically nothing." It appears to be a "blatant attempt to circumvent the law," he said.

That is what the city said in its letter of protest sent to the FCC this week. Council went on record objecting to the rate increase, the channel realignment and restructuring. In the move the council also said it would reserve the right to take further regulatory action against the cable company when the new law becomes effective.

Under what it calls "Limited Basic" the new channel lineup will provide subscribers with only 12 regular broadcast commercial and educational channels. Others on the 25-channel basic line-up will be premium channels or public access and preview guides.

FOR THIS service subscribers will pay $11.95. Jones Intercable general manager Andy Gordon told city council members Tuesday night that only 17 of the firm's approximately 1,300 subscribers in Wayne had opted for the new cheap service.

If subscribers want the other channels currently being provided like the Weather Channel, ESPN, Nickelodeon and CNN they will have to pay an additional $9.55. Together the two amounts will total 85 cents a month more than what subscribers pay now for the same number of channels.

"This rate increase... is being taken because of substantial increases in programming costs," said Gordon. He said the cost increases to the cable company were 86 cents a month per subscriber.

The new channel alignment will be phased in next week.

Highway projects would be major plumbs for the area

By Les Mann Of the Herald

With the encouragement and support of a U.S. Congressman, Wayne residents should not bet against the ultimate construction of a new direct connect highway to I-29 near Vermillion and the upgrading of Highway 35 to an Expressway between Norfolk and Sioux City, according to Wayne City Administrator Joe Salitros.

He said Rep. Doug Bereuter's encouragement for the state roads department to begin corridor studies for both projects had "major state-wide significance."

Wayne area leaders had supported the efforts by Bereuter to win funding for a new bridge across the Missouri near Vermillion, S.D. The bridge funding was approved last year and now the congressman is working to see a highway built to connect the bridge to Wayne.

Bereuter said the bridge and connecting highway would create one of the major north-south traffic routes through Nebraska.

Salitros said the proposals would have major significance to the growth of the community. He said support from a congressional leader in the form of the road projects could also be significant to prospective industrial developers looking to locate in Wayne.

Growth of existing industries, the regional promotion of Wayne State College and other factors also could have been factored into the efforts by Bereuter to seek support of the Wayne highway projects. Meanwhile, Wayne received notification this week from the State Roads Department that the Highway 35 widening project through Wayne will be put out for engineering bids this spring.

The request for design proposals is one more step in the lengthy process to rebuild 7th Street and widen it to three lanes, said Salitros. He said

State Engineer Alan Abbott has expressed interest in the Wayne project and it appears to be moving ahead as fast as possible.

Officials have said the earliest the 7th Street work could be ready for construction would be five years.

ROBIN SOBANSKY, director of the Wayne State STRIDE program, will join a group of students as they observe National TRIO Day on Feb. 27 at Creighton University in Omaha.

Students celebrate federal help effort

The Wayne State College STRIDE (Students Taking Responsibility In Development and Education) office will be observing National TRIO Day on Feb. 27 at Creighton University in Omaha.

Robin Sobansky, director of the Wayne State STRIDE program, says Congress passed a concurrent resolution in 1986 to celebrate National TRIO Day as a way to call attention to TRIO programs and their place in the federal strategy to advance opportunity in higher education. STRIDE is a student support services program of TRIO.

The Wayne State STRIDE program, funded by the federal Department of Education, serves more than 200 disadvantaged students at Wayne State.

STRIDE is in its third year of operation and more than 400 students have been served since it began in 1990, says Sobansky.

"The majority of our students are first-year students who have family, economic and social barriers to overcome in college," Sobansky says. "We help these students overcome the barriers — and once they do, they develop the necessary skills. It's not that they don't have the ability, it's that many of them don't have the opportunities they need to succeed."

Students eligible for STRIDE fall into one or more of these categories: low income, first generation, physically handicapped, low income and first generation and physically handicapped and low income. More than half of the Wayne State College student body qualifies for STRIDE assistance; however, the office is only funded to serve approximately 200 students.

Sobansky says 35 percent of the Wayne State student body come from homes that are considered poverty level, 64 percent come from first-generation college-student families (which means neither parent has a degree) and 1.3 percent of the students are physically handicapped.

STRIDE students receive tutoring, counseling, academic advice and assistance in obtaining financial aid. The program is designed to improve the retention and graduation rates of participating students.

Research indicates that federally supported Student Support Services, such as STRIDE, are effective. "A study commissioned by the Department of Education through Systems Development Corporation found that students who receive a full range of support services are more than twice as likely to complete their first year of college compared to students who do not receive assistance.

"We believe that the STRIDE program has assisted us with the important program of retaining students at Wayne State College," says Curt Frye, Dean of Student Life. "Additionally, the program gives us the resources to impact and support students who otherwise would be at risk."

The Plains Writers Circuit is an ambitious effort to bring published authors to Wayne State College, according to Jim Brummels, assistant professor of English and published author at Wayne State.

This year marks the 15th consecutive year that authors have been hosted by the Circuit. Brummels says a consortium of four Nebraska colleges sponsor the writers. They include, Nebraska Wesleyan University, the University of Nebraska-Kearney and Northeast Community College.

The Plains Writers Circuit also receives funding from the National Endowment for the Arts.

vided a setting for performances by over 200 high school choirs with a total participation of over 10,000 singers from Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota and Minnesota, according to Dr. Cornell Runestad, festival director and director of choral activities at Wayne State.

Participating schools are Beemer, Lyons-Decatur, Neligh-Oakdale, Orchard, Pender, Ponca, Schaller-Crestland, Iowa, Wakefield, Wayne and West Point.

middle school and the size of the central business district.

Council wanted the Grainland Road land to be designated low density residential, the commission originally proposed high density in the draft of planning changes. After council sent the draft back for changes, the commission proposed a compromise to split the property between low and medium density. But, council members, who have the ultimate authority in land use designation decisions, stuck to their guns.

"People do not want high density housing down there," argued Council member Jane O'Leary. She said she couldn't find a suitable reason for encouraging apartments and mobile home parks in the area.

SHE SAID she is not criticizing the work of the Planning Commission but thought the council's wishes should be implemented into the final plan.

Mayor Bob Carhart defended the work of the commission in developing what he called a "forward looking plan."

The commission agreed with the council on enlarging the central business district designation. The original proposal would have been to designate only a half-block area on either side of Main Street as the CBD. Council asked that the area be widened to a full block on either side of main.

THE OTHER area of dispute was a thin strip of land near the Middle School that the commission had as part of high density residential use and council members insisted it be changed to low density.

"It is important that we get this sucker moving," said Council member Ralph Barclay. Council members have expressed a desire to have the new planning and zoning regulations in place as soon as possible to help encourage housing development in Wayne.

Council member Sheryl Lindau was the lone dissenting vote for moving ahead with the plan as with the council's changes.

AS PART OF the council action on the plan, a new public hearing has been set for March 9 at 7:35 to allow final public comment before the comprehensive plan is passed.

The plan, which is a revision of the original land use plan adopted in Wayne in 1979, is a precursor to changes in the city zoning regulations. The planning commission is currently working on a draft of the zoning regulation changes.

The commission and the council will be meeting jointly Monday to discuss results of a storm drainage survey and plan prepared by an engineering firm last fall.

Planning meeting reset

The Wayne County Planning Commission meeting which had been scheduled for Feb. 25 but was canceled because of the weather, has been reset for Thursday, March 4.

The meeting will be held in the County Courthouse at 7:30 p.m.

Representatives of Hanna Keelan Associates, the planning and research contractors which conducted the preliminary steering committee meetings throughout the county, will be on hand to sum up the findings of last summer's process. Discussion is also expected on the specifics of zoning regulations for the county, according to County Highway Superintendent Sid Saunders.

The agenda also calls for discussion of the formulation of a joint planning commission with the county and the villages represented and other issues, like minimum lot sizes in the county.

The meeting is open to the public. It will be held in the downstairs meeting room at the courthouse.

Freeman's exhibit "Between Painting and Sculpture" will be on display through March 25 in the Nordstrand Gallery. Regular gallery hours are Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Freeman is a highly respected, very accomplished, and innovative artist who has just returned from speaking engagements in Montana. He has also made presentations in Virginia and Arkansas this year.

Wayne is Tree City

Wayne has been named a Tree City USA by The National Arbor Day Foundation. It is the second year Wayne has received this national recognition.

The tree City USA program is sponsored by The National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the USDA Forest Service and the National Association of State Foresters.

To become a Tree City USA, a community must meet four standards: a tree board or department, a city tree ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program and an Arbor Day observance.

"A community's tree-planting program is a living memorial to the citizens' concern for the quality of life. The trees we plant and care for today will cool our cities, fight pollution, conserve energy and give wildlife a home for years to come," John Rosenow, The National Arbor

TREE CITY USA

Day Foundation's executive director, said.

"An effective community forestry program is an ongoing process of renewal and improvement — a program of tree planting and care that continues through the years," Rosenow said. "The Tree City USA award is an excellent indication that there is a solid foundation for that process of improvement."

Public invited to World Day of Prayer at St. Mary's Church

World Day of Prayer, a day on which millions of Christian women all over the globe join in "informed prayer and prayerful action," will be observed in Wayne on Friday, March 5 at 2 p.m. at St. Mary's Catholic Church, and is sponsored by the Wayne unit of Church Women United. Several local churches will participate in the ecumenical service, and all residents of the community are invited to attend.

This year marks the 106th year of World Day of Prayer. The service was written by women of Guatemala on the theme, "People of God: Instruments of Healing." The themes and sponsoring countries are determined at an international meeting held every four years.

The Guatemalan women share their background and experiences and tell of healing in the Mayan culture by medicinal plants, some of which are still in use today. The women also describe some of the difficult social conditions of Guatemala and their desire to be instruments of healing to solve some of these problems using Biblical and present day stories of healings.

Funds collected from World Day of Prayer in the United States will be distributed by Church Women United for various programs, including Intercontinental Grants to many regions of the world for programs benefitting women.

In the United States, World Day of Prayer is observed in approximately 5,000 communities.

Wayne girls one step closer to state after semifinal victory

The Wayne girls defeated Hartington Cedar Catholic, 43-33 Thursday night in the semifinals of the B-5 District Tournament in Norfolk's Community College.

The Blue Devils will play West Point in the finals on Friday night at 7:30 p.m. with the winner advancing to the Nebraska State Tournament next Thursday through Saturday in Lincoln.

Wayne virtually led the whole game against Cedar with the biggest lead coming on the final free throw to end the game with a 10-point advantage. The Blue Devils had a 13-10 advantage after the first quarter but the lead was trimmed to one point at half at 21-20.

Cedar tied the game at 29 after three quarters of play and they took its first and only lead of the game at 31-29 early in the fourth quarter. Wayne, however, went on a 7-0 run at that point to take a 36-31 lead and from there was never threatened.

Wayne held Cedar to four points in the fourth quarter. "I thought we did a real good job of playing defense and on the boards," Wayne coach Marlene Uhing said. "In the main thing is we were successful on the front ends of one-and-ones."

Wayne was 15-20 from the foul line while Cedar failed to score in five trips to the charity stripe. Both teams had just 12 turnovers but Wayne held a 33-28 advantage on the boards as Liz Reeg hauled down 10 caroms and Thomsen, six.

As far as Wayne scoring, Reeg was the dominant factor with 30 of Wayne's 43 points including the first seven of the game. Thomsen scored six and Jenny Thompson added four while Erin Pick and Nelson rounded out the attack with two and one points respectively.

"Down the stretch in the fourth quarter we posted Liz up on the inside and she scored twice in the lane which proved to be very big," Uhing said. "She also scored on a back door pass from Erin Pick in the fourth quarter which was a big play for us."

Uhing credited several of her players as having a good game. "Danielle did a real nice job of taking care of the basketball and Jenny Thomsen was very aggressive on the boards and in blocking out," Uhing said. "We also hit free throws down the stretch and the first half we tried to run a match-up defense and we keyed on their leading scorers. In the second half we made some defensive adjustments and they proved effective."

Sok may be coach of Class D dynasty

Now that the Nebraska State Wrestling Tournament is over for another year, I'd like to take a few paragraphs to say congratulations to Winside for an outstanding season and of course its third place finish in Class D at State.

I realize that the word dynasty in high school sports is rather absurd since a coach goes through a completely new squad of wrestlers every four years at least whereas in professional athletics teams may well have virtually the same rosters for twice that period.

However, the Winside wrestling program may be the most consistent Class D program in the state of Nebraska and behind all successful teams is a successful and winning coach.

Winside is no exception and what Paul Sok has accomplished during his wrestling tenure in Wildcat country is nothing short of phenomenal. During Saturday's championship round sophomore Scott Jacobsen climbed atop the field and stood alone at 103 pounds.

The son of Ray and Judy Jacobsen was not the favorite coming into the tournament to be the number one wrestler in his weight class but Jacobsen belongs to Sok's brigade and Sok has a rather simple philosophy when it comes to producing state champions.

He believes that wrestling against quality competition every week only makes you better. That's why Winside enters tournaments where they are quite often the only Class D team involved. In fact, Sok said that coming into the state tournament his team had seen 59 different wrestling schools over the course of the season.

And by the way, Winside's district tournament in East Butler was the first meet this season where Winside saw nothing but Class D teams. Jacobsen's competition over the course of the season was quite stiff—proven by the fact that he wrestled competitively with the top three placers in Class C's 103 pound field.

Jacobsen was Sok's seventh state champion in the past six years and the Wildcats third place finish was the 10th time in the past dozen years that they've finished in the top 10 at state. It was the fifth time in that same amount of time the Wildcats have placed in the top five.

Sok's last previous six state champs in the five years prior to Jacobsen's crowning this season included Mace Kant in 1988, Max Kant in 1989, Max Kant and Brian Thompson in 1990, Brian Thompson in 1991 and Trevor Topp in 1992.

Sok was not the coach of the Wildcats in 1986-87 as he went to Maine to teach for 15 months. Prior to his leaving he was coach for six years at Winside where five other grapplers were crowned champions including Doug Paulsen in 1986.

For Pete's
Sake
By Kevin
Peterson

Sok was also a head coach in Harrison, Nebraska for two years so his coaching regime has spanned 14 years in Nebraska. While at Winside he has only coached in two tournaments where he hasn't had anyone in the finals, and he's coached in only three tournaments where he hasn't had a tournament champion—this includes state and regular season tournaments.

In his 14 year coaching career, Sok has only had one state meet in which he's never had at least one wrestler in the finals. It doesn't take a genius to figure out why Winside's wrestling program is at the level it is and will undoubtedly continue that way for many years to come.

Wrestling is probably the most intense sport of any in high school athletics. Those choosing to compete in this disciplined form of entertainment learn many valuable traits that can be used in life—long after wrestling.

For instance, it takes dedication, desire, responsibility, discipline, respect and integrity just to name a few desirable traits learned in the art of wrestling. Now, don't get me wrong, basketball, football, volleyball and track also teach some of these same traits but the simple fact that wrestling boasts, is that each person that steps on the mat is by himself.

A wrestler can not take time out if he feels things are getting out of control or just simply to rest. A wrestler has to have the discipline and responsibility to control and maintain his weight and it is the only sport where this is necessary. If a wrestler fails to make weight, even by an ounce, he is disqualified.

Despite the fact that the Wayne Blue Devils failed to send any wrestlers to the state tournament, they should still be commended. John Murtaugh and Aaron Schuett are extremely good coaches, much like Paul Sok and Tom Koch over in Winside.

Many times a coach is judged by who he sends to state but that is entirely unfair and down right bogus. Of course there were highs and lows to the Blue Devils season, but one thing they never lacked was emotion and the desire to keep improving.

This writer believes that Wayne will once again be represented at the state tournament next season and for many seasons to come after that. Congratulations go out to all Wayne and Winside wrestlers for their efforts this season.

WAYNE'S LIZ REEG goes to the hoop for two of her game-high 30 points against Hartington Cedar Catholic in the district semifinals Thursday in Norfolk. Wayne will play West Point Friday for a state tourney berth.

Trojan boys fall in sub-district finals

Brad Hoskins Wakefield boys basketball team was defeated in the finals of the C1-7 sub-district in Oakland, Thursday by a 56-47 margin. The Trojans fell behind 14-4 after the first quarter and 29-12 at the intermission.

Early in the third quarter Wakefield found themselves trailing by 20 at 43-23 before they mounted a comeback which saw the Pirates lead trimmed to six points with still two minutes remaining.

"Being down by 20 points our kids could have given up," Hoskins said. "But the fact is they didn't and that's a tribute to them." Wakefield out-scored Emerson 24-13 over the last 10 minutes of the contest.

"We basically lost the game in the first half," Hoskins said. "We had nine turnovers in the first quarter and we hit just four of 27 shot attempts from the field in the first half."

While the Trojans were ice cold from the field the Pirates were red hot, nailing 13 of 18 shot attempts in the first half. "Once we got down by 10 points early in the first quarter we started rushing things," Hoskins said.

Larry Johnson led Wakefield in scoring with 19 points followed by Ben Dutton and Cory Brown with 10 apiece. Miah Johnson scored four and Justin Dutcher added three while T.J. Preston scored one.

Wakefield won the battle of the boards, 36-27 as Dutton hauled down 15 and Larry Johnson, eight. The Trojans had 21 turnovers compared to 26 for Emerson and Wakefield was 8-17 from the free throw line compared to 9-12 shooting for Emerson.

WAKEFIELD MADE IT to the sub-district finals by defeating

Laurel, Winside boys seasons end

Two Wayne Herald area boys basketball teams had their seasons come to an end in first round sub-district action on Monday and Tuesday as Laurel fell to Crofton for the third time this season, 55-49 in Plainview while Winside fell to Osmond, 75-56 in Laurel on Tuesday.

Laurel finished the year at 13-7—well above last season's mark of 5-15. The Bears trailed the Warriors 18-12 after the first quarter but trailed by just three points at half at 29-26.

Crofton maintained a four point cushion after three quarters and despite Laurel's push in the fourth quarter to gain the momentum, managed to hang on down the stretch.

"We were tied with them with less than a minute to go," Bears coach Clayton Steele said. "In the second half we managed to tie the game three or four times but each time we did that we'd suffer a lapse and couldn't gain the lead. It seemed like once we caught them what ever could go wrong, did."

Jeremy Reinech led the Bears with 22 points followed by Travis Monson with eight and Jared Reinech with six. Cody Carstensen netted five points while Derek Ehlers and Andy Smith scored three apiece. Tyler Erwin rounded out the scoring with two.

Crofton out-rebounded Laurel by eight with Jeremy and Jared Reinech leading the way with five and four caroms respectively. Both teams had 13 turnovers and Laurel was 9-18 from the foul line while Crofton was 4-10.

Laurel's loss proved to be the final game for seniors Ehlers, Monson and Smith.

IN LAUREL Tuesday night the Wildcats found themselves trailing 24-17 after the first quarter but they were still with in striking distance at the intermission after being behind by just six points at 38-32.

Shannon Pospisil's crew, however, suffered a dismal third quarter which allowed the Tigers to more than double the score on the Wildcats in the third period and virtually put the game away with a 63-44 advantage.

"We were down by six points at halftime and that's with Osmond's last second three-pointer at the buzzer to end the first half," Pospisil said. "In the third quarter we suffered nine turnovers which proved to be a killer."

Pospisil said the turnovers were not caused by extreme pressure from the Tigers but that his team just failed to take care of the ball.

Cory Miller closed out an excellent career as a Wildcat with 18 points and 22 rebounds while John Hancock scored 16 points in his final game. Cam Shelton netted eight followed by Ryan Brogren and Marty Jorgensen with six apiece. Jayme Shelton rounded out the scoring with two points.

Winside held a 54-45 advantage on the boards led by Miller's 22 caroms and Cam Shelton's eight. The Wildcats had 25 turnovers compared to 22 for Osmond and Winside was 15-24 from the free throw line while Osmond was 8-18.

Winside closed out the year at 8-10—an improvement over last year's 5-13 mark.

Fund raising efforts underway

WAYNE-Fund raising efforts are currently under way for Levi and Rhonda Webb as Levi prepares to represent the United States in its team quest to be the best in the world in power lifting.

The Webb's will travel to Sweden where Team U.S.A. will take on Team Sweden and Team Finland in April. Support, however, is needed badly in order for the Webb's to make the trip.

Help is needed from everyone to allow a Wayne resident to represent the United States and quite possibly a future Olympian. All support is deductible and can be mailed to 216 Fairgrounds Ave., #23. Or for additional information you can call 375-4302.

If given chance to compete internationally

Webb hopes to trap world record

By Kevin Peterson
Sports editor

Wayne's Levi Webb began studying the art of powerlifting over 17 years ago because he said it gave him the comfortable feeling of being a part of something. Now, nearly two decades later, Webb has entangled himself with thoughts of being a world champion—something he just might accomplish if given the opportunity.

At 5-11 and 290 pounds Webb is often looked upon as an intimidating man but that is the last thing the mild spoken 37-year-old father of five wants to be recognized as.

"It actually hurts me when I hear people say that I'm too intimidating because I don't mean to be," Webb said. "I do not need to intimidate people. I have enough self esteem to know that I can go into any weight room across the country and compete with anyone."

Webb actually began powerlifting for a variety of reasons including the fact that he was very small as a high school student in West Point. "As a young child I can remember my father lifting weights a lot with one of my cousins," Webb said. "My dad was really ripped, (well built). In fact, looking back you could say he was a miniature Arnold Schwarzenegger."

I consider my dad as having a major influence in my powerlifting career because he lived by one simple motto: "Never quit." My dad did not know how to quit at anything he did," Webb said.

WEBB'S FIRST experience at powerlifting came when he was approached by a couple friends from Beemer who were into the sport. "They asked if I wanted to go and train with them one night," Webb said. "I did and I thoroughly enjoyed it."

Then the longer I trained, the more into it I became," says the holder of 66 Nebraska state records. Webb's high school wrestling coach Dave Rich is who turned Webb on to competition.

In one of Webb's first meets he was told by the tournament champion that if he had lifts that looked like Levi's, he'd quit. "I was disappointed to hear that," Webb said. "But it did not make me mad because that little voice came back to me from my childhood that reminded me of my father who did not believe in giving up."

Webb said he used that remark as a motivating factor because he does not believe in holding grudges. Incidentally, he has never lost to that individual since. "When I first started powerlifting I did it because it was fun," Webb said. "Now I am compelled to keep getting better and better because of my unique once in a lifetime chance to represent the United States in its quest to be the best in the world."

Webb has been selected to represent the United States and the State of Nebraska as well as Wayne, as a member of TEAM USA which is being formed for two coming international Powerlifting meets.

Webb and his teammates will first compete against TEAM SWEDEN on April 12 in Stockholm and subsequently, TEAM FINLAND in Helsinki on April 15. Organizers of the meets are anticipating several world records to fall during the competition.

Zeus, as he is called in the weightroom at Wayne State, will compete in the Submasters Division which he is very excited about. "I've always dreamed of holding a world record," Webb said. "If I'm able to compete in these meets that may be possible because the Submasters is a relatively new category."

Not that Webb has to rely on a break such as a new category to establish a world record. Two years ago, he was unable to attend the world championships in Dayton, Ohio which proved to be a major let down when the scores he's posted would have won the event and he could have been a world champion.

Webb notes that he trains very hard, concentrating on the three major lifts of competition including the squat, bench press and dead lift. His best squat is 1013 pounds while his top bench press is 570 pounds. Levi's best dead lift is 735 pounds which puts his total at 2315 pounds—currently just 115 pounds off the world record for any age group.

DEALING WITH tons of weight during each workout session which consists of four to five days a week at over two hours a session, Webb has relied on headphones to enhance his concentration.

LEVI WEBB sits in front of many of the trophies and awards he's won over the past few years in Powerlifting competitions. Webb's hobby has spanned 17-plus years.

"I train as hard as I compete," Webb said. "Sometimes the pain gets pretty unbearable with lifting as much weight as often as I do, but listening to headphones with my favorite music does the trick of allowing me to block out the pain."

Sacrifices given
Powerlifting for more than 17 years has required a lot of sacrifice in Webb's life but he credits his wife Rhonda for sacrificing the most. "The woman (Rhonda) has done more for me as far as succeeding in powerlifting than anyone else," Webb says with a smile.

"She's an incredible person who has sacrificed many things such as something for the house or a new outfit just for me to keep up on training by buying a new weight belt here, or something along those lines."

Webb has especially been impressed with the way Rhonda is able to keep up on the family schedule while working a full time job for the past seven-plus years at Restful Knights as a serger, (sewer).

"She always has dinner ready for the kids and then when I get home from training she always has my dinner waiting for me," Webb said. "She's a very giving person who always puts the family first."

When Webb needs that little extra training incentive he turns to his children: Angela, 16; Crystal, 14; Jonathan, 11; Matthew, 9 and Tiffany, 7. "Someday my goal is to enter a powerlifting meet with one of my sons or daughters," Webb said. "That would really fulfill me."

Webb notes, however, that he is not going to push his children into powerlifting because he doesn't feel they need any more pressure than they already go through as a kid in today's society.

He holds a degree from Wayne State in Psychology with a minor in Sociology and Criminology and he feels the most devastating thing in society today is suicide among teens.

"My goal is to someday hold a position of helping kids feel better about themselves," Webb said. "They go through so much pressure while growing up today with peers and parents, etc., that they need reinforcement. Even a teen hot line in the area would be something to look into. Kids have to realize that there's always a chance for something better tomorrow."

WEBB USES that adage in powerlifting as well. "You go through peaks and valleys when lifting," Webb said. "What most people who lift weights forget is that your body goes through cycles and the longer you train the more capable you are of controlling those peaks and valleys at a certain cycle."

The bottom line is you have to be satisfied with who you are. The unfortunate thing in weightlifting is that too many times a person judges their self esteem on progress and the amount of weight they can handle when I believe the real judgement of a man is not what you accomplish, but how many times you get up after you fall," Webb added.

Lifting injuries
Webb believes that hard work in anything you do will pay off and he's a prime example when it comes to powerlifting. His career in the weight room was almost ended twice over the years but he's responded in both instances.

In the spring of 1986 Webb was in a motorcycle accident when he hit a deer near a bridge in West Point. The injuries included three broken ribs, a cracked sternum, a broken ankle and 37 stitches in his head.

"I went about 10 to 12 weeks with out training and that hurt me about as bad as the motorcycle wreck," Webb recalled. "The minute I was able to support weight, however, I was back in the weight room. I was told that the accident would put a limit on my future powerlifting but once again I heard the echoes of my father telling me to ended after a freak accident at work which resulted in his getting kicked in the knee by a 70-pound person. "It was just one of those things," Webb said. "There was damage to my knee cap and some cartilage in my upper femur was torri. That resulted in surgery and nine months of rehabilitation before I could lift again with my legs."

Webb said he owes a giant amount of gratitude to Wayne State Athletic Trainer Keith Goetz for his input and help in his rehabilitation after that injury. "By using the pool at Wayne State and the other facilities along with Keith's expertise, I was able to get back to training far earlier than expected," Webb said.

Webb's dedication to the sport of powerlifting has been admired by hundreds of WSC students who find themselves in the weightroom at the same time he's there.

"I really appreciate the help I get from some of these kids with spotting," Webb said. "I get teased quite a bit by being called the grandfather of the weightroom but I laugh it off."

Community support needed
Levi and Rhonda hope the dream of being a world champion and perhaps even an Olympic champion can become a reality but in order for that to happen the community has to respond.

Since the United States Powerlifting Association is a non-profit organization, the Webb's trip to Sweden and Finland has to be funded through donations.

It is hoped that a number of community minded, patriotic sponsors will come forward to help Webb cover the cost of travel across the seas. "I want the Wayne community to understand that this will be great recognition for the area. "If I'm able to go I would not only be representing TEAM USA but Wayne America and Northeast Nebraska and Nebraska as a whole.

"I'm excited about the trip because it is a chance of a lifetime. If it doesn't happen it won't be because I wasn't ready. Webb also says that he's going to the competition with just one thing in mind—winning.

"I would appreciate if the community of Wayne would help back not only us, but the country as well. It's still possible that the sport of powerlifting will be consolidated into the Olympics as soon as 1996 in Atlanta," Webb added.

BOTH LEVI and Rhonda would like to note the fund raising efforts of Mike Kaup, better known as "Hitman Incorporated." "Mike is a disc jockey and he's been playing at different places and donating his profits towards our trip," Levi said.

"That really means a lot to us that people like Mike our bending over backward to see that this becomes a reality."

Levi says that words can not express what powerlifting has done for him over the years but if given the chance to compete internationally, words may not be needed.

never give up." Webb fully recovered from his mishap on the motorcycle but four years later in 1990 his career nearly

ONE OF THE three categories Webb has to compete in as part of Powerlifting meets is the the dead lift. Here he dead lifts 555 pounds for eight repetitions. Webb is known as the grandfather of the weightroom since he's 37-years-old but he enjoys the help he gets from college students in the way of spotting. One of his motivating adages is printed on the wall of the Wayne State Varsity Weight Rooms. "Pain is Temporary but Championships are Forever." Webb hopes to be able to compete for TEAM USA in April when they challenge TEAM SWEDEN and TEAM FINLAND.

Winside 'Outstanding Citizen' named

Winside area residents have selected Katie Bleich as the community's "Outstanding Citizen" for 1993.

Katie was presented a traveling wall plaque during a meeting of the Wayne County Old Settlers Committee on Feb. 18.

She was born and raised in Pennsylvania and after high school, while still in her teens, became a practical nurse.

Following marriage to her husband, Walter, the couple moved to Nebraska in 1947 and began their family of five children.

Katie put her love of caring for the elderly aside while the children were young, but later began working at nursing care centers in several Northeast Nebraska communities.

Katie Bleich

She continued her education by taking Nursing Aid and Care Staff member classes.

KATIE'S husband passed away in 1989 and she continued working at a Norfolk nursing home until 1992. Since then, she has been caring for several elderly Winside women, including fixing meals, checking on medical needs, sleeping over when needed, and serving as a companion and friend.

In addition to caring for the elderly, Katie likes to read and is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church and the Roy Reed American Legion Auxiliary.

Her children include Mrs. Rod (Claire) Brogren of Winside, Mrs. Dennis (Carol) Swanson, G. Hugo

Bleich and Gerald Bleich, all of Norfolk, and Walter E. Bleich of Lincoln. There are 14 grandchildren and another due to arrive in June.

"BESIDES caring for my lady friends, I keep plenty busy with my family," says Katie. "I don't know why I was selected for this honor. There are a lot of other people in Winside much more deserving than I."

"If there's anything you need help with, just ask Katie. She's always willing to help you," says a friend.

Katie will be honored with a place in the Wayne County Old Settlers parade at Winside in June, as well as the Norfolk LaVitsel parade and breakfast in September.

The event will be held in the village auditorium from 7 to 10 p.m. and is being sponsored by the Winside Fire Department.

Spokesman VerNeal Marotz said, "This is a very interesting and informative class. Mr. Chamberlin does an excellent job and brings many samples of actual drugs so the general public can see what they look like.

"We encourage all parents to attend and bring their children. Education is the best means of prevention."

CASHING IN
Your god determines your world.
If wealth—getting, increasing, spending and keeping it—is your god, life can be precarious. Lose your wealth and that's all there is.
The Living God offers abundant life. That may or may not be money; but it's REAL wealth.
"You cannot serve God and wealth."
—Matthew 6:24-34
Isaiah 49:8-16a 1 Corinthians 4:1-5 Psalm 131
