

Parents voice concern over school cuts

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Talk of cuts in language and arts programs at Wayne High School have a group of parents upset. The group will be meeting with school officials Monday night at 7 p.m. at the High School Home Ec Room.

Much of the talk is just that, talk, said Dr. Sid Hillier, president of the School Board. He told the Herald the board has been discussing for months, in open meetings, the restructuring of the school programs to better prepare Wayne students for the future.

"No body has paid attention until now," he said. "I've gotten more phone call and mail this week than I have in all my previous eight years on the board."

WHILE NO definite decisions have been made, he said the parents believe the strings music and German language classes are targeted for elimination next year. Both programs have part time teachers and serve approximately 30 students.

The school board president said in all likelihood there would be compromises as the schools move in the direction of preparing students for careers and further education of the years beyond 2000.

He said he is looking forward to Monday's meeting with concerned parents and residents because it will give a chance for everyone to clear the air and hear what is actually happening, not what is rumored to be happening.

"Every day the story grows a little bit," he said of the protests. "We're being bombarded from all sides."

HILLIER SAID specific program cuts are not on the agenda for the school board meeting Tuesday night, but that they will likely become an agenda item in the near future.

He said several public meetings were held and the information has been published about the schools' change in focus toward increased emphasis in technology. The new mission statement for the district has been written, with public input, and it has been published.

Now, he said it appears the process of implementing the changes may take longer than originally planned.

THE SCHOOLS are facing dramatic financial burdens at the same time the technology focus is coming about, he said. Wayne has been forced to absorb more than $70,000 in additional special education expenses because of the construction of the Tower School and a change in state aid for special education.

State aid changes and the lid limits on the schools are creating some very difficult financial decisions for the school board members this year, said Hillier.

Tuesday's school board agenda does call for discussion on the policy for dismissal for state tournaments, a tour of the weight room facility and discussion of plans for improvement, staffing for 1993-94, and discussion on the proposed computer network.

Other items include review of next year's school calendar, an energy study of the Middle School and school affiliation and taxes.

State instructions

Wayne girls basketball coach Marlene Uhing gives instructions to her squad during a time out late in the fourth quarter. The seventh seeded Blue Devils came with in seven seconds of knocking off the second seeded Schuyler Warriors. Angie Thompson made a three-point play the old fashioned way with 32 seconds remaining to give Wayne a 35-34 lead before the Warriors scored off an offensive rebound with seven seconds left which ended Wayne's season at 17-7. The Blue Devils started five seniors in Jenny Thomsen, Angie Thompson, Erin Pick, Liz Reeg and Danielle Nelson. This group of girls will go down in the Wayne record books as the first ever girls basketball team to qualify for the state tournament.

Colleges need to recruit minorities

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) -- State college officials are concerned about a lack of diversity among their faculties and are looking for ways to add to their small ranks of minorities.

"We simply don't have enough anywhere," said Carroll Krause, executive director of the state college system.

An annual affirmative action report found that the three state colleges don't have any Hispanic or American Indians on their faculty full time and only one black faculty member. There are six Asian faculty members.

The lack is being partly attributed to the rural locations of the colleges, officials said.

"Major universities located in prime urban settings in America have trouble finding and recruiting minority faculty," said Jo Taylor, a vice president at Wayne State College. "I think the problem is exacerbated by our location and our smallness."

Chadron State president Sam Rankin said, "It hasn't been for want of effort."

The College Board of Trustees has the report on its agenda for a meeting Friday in Lincoln.

"We're going to discuss it and of course our goal will be to continue trying to find ways to improve," Krause said of minority faculty re-ruitment. "The desire is really there and the effort is there. And we haven't been very successful."

But qualified minorities, especially those with doctorates, are in high demand, which can mean small state colleges don't stand much of a chance over larger schools, administrators in the state college system said.

Krause said Wayne State and Chadron State are close to Indian reservations, but there are not many Indians with doctorates available to recruit.

Taylor said her college is working with nearby Nebraska Indian Community College to produce American Indian teachers who plan to return to the reservation. Wayne State also is offering scholarships to other students at NICC, she said.

Administrators said they have taken steps toward increasing faculty diversity.

Rankin said he asks screening committees to include minorities on lists of finalists for various openings in faculty and administration.

If a minority is not on the finalist list, Rankin said he reviews the screening process to see whether a broad pool of candidates was sought.

"It's an area that we recognize, and make continuing efforts to address," Rankin said. "We're not where I'd like to see us yet."

Retiring librarian blazes business trail

By Al Kosse
Herald Correspondent

From the Gateway City of Saint Louis to the Dearborn Mall here in Wayne, Dr. Jack L. Middendorf has blazed quite a trail.

Although he is calling it quits after 15 years at the U.S. Conn Library on the Wayne State College campus, Middendorf's spark for excitement is not retiring with him.

"There's a phrase somewhere in the Bible which says, 'Behold, it was very good, but the best is yet to be.' I think this is very true," he says.

Middendorf is looking forward to getting several new businesses started in Wayne when he retires as Director of Information Services at the library in August.

BORN IN Saint Louis, Mo., Middendorf grew up in a family business with his mother and father's hardware store in Chester, Ill.

He joined the Navy for two years and received his bachelor's of science in education at Concordia Teacher's College in River Forest, Ill., before working for 10 years in Lutheran schools as both teacher and principal in Houston, Texas and Lafayette, Ind.

In 1952, Middendorf graduated with his masters in education degree from the University of Houston. Then, from 1958 to 1973, he was a professor at Concordia College in Seward. He received his doctorate in education from Indiana University in 1964.

The United States Department of Education asked him to move to the West Pacific in 1967 to develop a media program for schools in Guam.

Middendorf began working with the Aid Association for Lutherans in 1973, before coming to Wayne State College in the summer of 1978.

"I only started working at the library a year ago in January," Karen Carner, library secretary, said, "but I've really enjoyed working for Jack. Everyone here at the library will certainly miss him."

MIDDENDORF, along with his wife Mave, bought the Little Duffer in Wayne in 1984 and transformed it into what is now the Dairy Queen, which is managed by his daughter, Jacque Kinnett.

In 1991, he bought franchise rights to Little King and will soon be helping his other daughter, Marcia Langbehn, open it up in the Dearborn Mall with two other businesses, Taco and W.C. Corn.

Middendorf recently purchased Taco, formerly known as the Taco Stop. W.C. Corn (Wayne Choice Corn) is his trademark popcorn business inspired in name by the great W.C. Fields.

"All of us kids are happy to see that he is retiring and going to relax a little bit," Kinnett said. "We're taking on new businesses and he's taking the time to help develop operations and to make sure things get off the ground."

Middendorf's only son, Mark, works as a physicist with Battelle Institute in Richland, Wash.

"WAYNE IS a very nice town, otherwise I would not have built here," Middendorf said. "It was so nice to get back to the open spaces (since teaching in Seward), that two of my children moved here too."

"I'm going to miss the people I work with and the students who keep me current here at the library, but I'm retirement age," he added. "We've just completed library automation so I think this is a good time to step out."

Middendorf says he is happy that U.S. Conn Library has been focused more on service and making information available rather than just a place to store documents.

His dedication to the library, teaching, and children's books for most of his professional career, and now service to the community, certainly has been the best for Wayne.

With a little more free time to kindle new ideas that flare up, Middendorf knows things can only get better.

Dr. Jack Middendorf

Specialist says we're stuck on ethanol

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) -- Midwestern farmers eager to develop the ethanol market leave themselves vulnerable to fluctuating corn prices by ignoring other new energy sources, says an official of a national science group.

Producer of corn-based ethanol would miss opportunities to switch to another crop when corn prices drop, said Alex Casella, an Illinois coordinator of the Union of Concerned Scientists.

"It seems we're fixated on alcohol fuels," Casella said Tuesday.

Other energy sources -- generated from the wind, sun or agricultural products -- not only would benefit farmers but also would create jobs and strengthen industry, he said.

But a spokesman for the Illinois Farm Bureau said ethanol has received more attention because energy from the other sources has not been generated efficiently.

"When the private sector sees potential, it will go to the market," said John Hawkins, a spokesman for the Illinois Farm Bureau. "If somebody can make a buck off of it, they'll do it."

Didn't say keep quiet

Dear Editor:

I was in attendance at the Wayne, Pierce game and would like to stick up for our Wayne students. They were not as abusive as the cheerleaders from Pierce said they were. I'm pertaining to an editorial dated March 2 in our Wayne Herald.

In fact, someone from Pierce yelled over to our side and said shut up real loud. That bothered me then and still does. He could have been yelling at me because I was busy talking to someone beside me and was not really watching much of their program.

The purpose of half time in my opinion is so that coaches and players can rest and go over game plans. For the fans, it is a time to stretch their legs, talk and just have a little fun.

The cheerleaders stretched the truth a little bit in my opinion and the editorial was unwarranted. Our kids from Wayne are good kids who like yelling and have fun like anyone's do.

I wouldn't attend any games if I didn't have fun. I could stay home. Mike Gross calls a good game on the radio.

Pierce's halftime show was rather entertaining, as most are, but they failed to inform the Wayne crowd ahead of time that their program would require absolute quiet.

Hurting the whole town

Dear Editor:

It has recently been brought to my attention that our school superintendent is planning to phase out the German program and eliminate the stringed instruments program from our school system. This would be a mistake that would not only hurt our children but also our whole community.

These programs and others like them may individually not be absolutely essential for a minimal education but such programs are essential for a quality education. The students who have participated in these programs in the past have certainly gained from their experience and on the average have achieved substantially more success in higher education and their careers than those who did not.

Programs such as these are standard offerings in most major school systems in America, or indeed anywhere in the advanced world. Larger schools typically have the luxury of offering a variety of language and arts programs. Smaller schools such as ours obviously cannot keep up with such schools. But we must offer something, something beyond the academic basics, something of real academic substance.

Students in small towns such as Wayne are already somewhat academically deprived by their parents decision to live there. Entrance to selective colleges require more coursework in some areas than we even offer.

Admission and scholarship decisions in such schools usually emphasize foreign languages and participation in music programs. Without a continued commitment to a complete and quality-oriented curriculum our students will be seriously handicapped.

Our community will also be hurt by the potential inadequacies of our school system. These inadequacies will make it more difficult to recruit and retain business and professional people and college faculty. For most such people, living in Wayne requires considerable personal, financial and professional sacrifices. This is, we have argued, made up for by our "quality of life."

A major component of that quality of life is a school system which offers quality programs. By removing these programs we are threatening our future.

Other cities can offer a nice climate, beaches or mountains, cultural, artistic, recreational and sports attractions, architecture, fine dining and so on. What do we have? We have long argued that we have a low cost of living, and good schools. Now what will we tell those we are recruiting? Come to Wayne ... we are cheap.

Broaden it; don't narrow it

Broaden education don't narrow it

Dear Editor:

This last week it was brought to the attention of the Strings students and parents that Dr. Jensen has decided to discontinue the Strings program at the end of this school year. What is disturbing is that Wayne is eliminating a fine arts program.

The elementary and middle school students are already lacking in their fine arts education by the absence of an art teacher.

Art programs develop an intuitive, all-inclusive, creative way of handling projects and problems. Many of these students will choose professions where decisions will be nonanalytical, and if only the analytical thought process is developed, our children will be ill prepared to compete with others who are more well rounded.

The responsibility of our school system is to graduate students who are well rounded and have tasted all areas of education and life, not just sports stars or computer experts. It is true that some of our sport stars will receive scholarships to continue their education, but all universities and most colleges provide scholarships for strings students.

Aren't we striving to increase the number of students who continue their education? Sports is a wonderful program for children who are interested in athletics, but most school-supported sports are activities that can only be participated in while young. Even though many would deny it, playing flag football in your thirties is risky at best, whereas there is nothing hazardous about a ninety year old playing his violin.

Playing a string instrument is a beauty to be enjoyed a lifetime, an education to be profited from for a lifetime.

Strings provides an opportunity for a student to excel and receive recognition, when perhaps he or she could not or would not in other areas. This builds up a child's self esteem and can make a tremendous positive difference in his or her life. Every school should be striving to make that kind of difference in their students development and education.

For many students, exposure to string instruments is financially unattainable. The Strings program may be a child's only opportunity to experience this aspect of education. A gifted child is not necessarily as well endowed financially. It would be unreasonable to expect a family, who is struggling to provide the essentials, to purchase a violin, etc., and pay for private lessons in hopes that their child or

Commission looks at college tuition

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) -- The Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education plans to advise the Legislature by April on its view of appropriate tuition increases at the state's colleges and universities.

Governing boards of individual schools will still set tuition rates. But the commission recommendation is expected to carry substantial weight because the Legislature will review it in making appropriations to each school.

In figuring appropriate tuition hikes the board will use three criteria.

It will compare tuition at Nebraska institutions with that of peers, looking at trends over the past three years.

It will examine and compare the amount of the total cost of education borne by students through tuition and the amount contributed by the state.

Each institution's per capita income within its service area will be compared to determine whether income has grown faster or slower than inflation.

Commission fiscal Officer Carna Pfoel said the panel could set separate standards for each sector. For example, it could decide that community college students should pay a smaller percentage of their overall education costs than students attending the University of Nebraska.

Those standards would then be used to determine the appropriate level of tuition at the state's community colleges, state colleges and universities, creating a tier system.

The commission, she said, wants to keep tuition at community colleges low to assure access to students who have limited ability to pay.

She said students at comprehensive educational institutions like the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, for example, should pay higher tuition, because UNL is the state's research and doctoral degree-granting institution and the cost of operating that institution is greater.

She said UNL students also should pay considerably more than students at the Kearney and Omaha campuses because UNL is a more comprehensive institution than those schools. UNL's tuition now is higher than tuition on the Omaha and Kearney campuses.

Wayne girls fall at State by one

Last second shot propels Schuyler to semifinals

DANIELLE NELSON dribbles the ball up court during second half action of Wayne's game with Schuyler.

Former Laurel grad is Tennessee's top trainer

The Tennessee Athletic Trainer's Society has begun recognizing outstanding athletic trainers in its state. TATS is a professional organization that represents athletic trainers whether professional, collegiate, high school or clinical, in Tennessee.

This year former Laurel native Regg Swanson was chosen the Professional/Clinical Athletic Trainer of the Year. Swanson graduated from Laurel-Concord High School and received his Master's Degree from Wayne State, where he formed the athletic trainers program. He received his athletic training certificate from the University of Oregon in Eugene.

Regg Swanson

Swanson, the son of Mr. & Mrs. Ernest Swanson of Concord, got into the athletic training program after suffering a football injury that later required surgery.

Following the surgery there was no rehabilitation help offered which led him to desire such a degree and certificate. He served as a student athletic trainer at the 1976 Olympic track and field trials and he was one of 17 athletic trainers chosen to represent the United States in the 1988 Olympics in Seoul Korea.

The Wayne girls basketball team had their first ever state tournament trip spoiled in the first round as undefeated Schuyler got an offensive rebound and putback by 6-1 junior Janelle Miratsky with just seven seconds remaining to defeat the Blue Devils, 36-35.

Wayne took a 10-7 lead after the first quarter and the Blue Devils led by one point at the intermission, 16-15. Schuyler took a two-point lead with under seven seconds remaining in the third quarter but Liz Reeg sank a shot jumper at the buzzer to tie the game with one period remaining.

The lead changed hands several times in the fourth quarter until it appeared Schuyler gained control with a four point lead with less than two minutes remaining.

Wayne, however, didn't panic and with less than 40 seconds remaining the Blue Devils were trailing by two points when Angie Thompson took the ball to the hoop strong and made the shot and was fouled.

Thompson stepped to the free throw line and sank the 15-footer to give Wayne a one point lead at 35-

34 with just 32 seconds left. Schuyler worked the ball around until about the nine second mark when Karen Hogel took a 19-footer that drew iron, but Miratsky was there for the board and putback.

Wayne still had one more chance with seven seconds remaining but the long court pass attempt to Reeg was intercepted by Schuyler. The loss ended Wayne's season at 17-7.

The Blue Devils were led by Liz Reeg's 18 points followed by eight from Danielle Nelson including a key 3-pointer in the second half. Angie Thompson finished with five and Erin Pick netted four.

Editors note: Due to the fact this story was written before head coach Marlene Uhing was able to call in, there were no coaches quotes. In next Tuesday's edition, however, there will be a column in which her quotes will be published.

ANGIE THOMPSON out-muscles a Schuyler Warrior for a rebound in first quarter action of Wayne's first round state game. The Blue Devils lost on a last second shot off an offensive rebound by Schuyler.

LIZ REEG out-duels an unidentified teammate and two Schuyler players for an offensive rebound.

WSC volleyball team signs two

WAYNE-Third-year Wayne State College volleyball coach Nancy Clark recently announced the signing of Jennifer Svitak and Wendy Werner. Svitak and Werner join Amy Nielsen and Lisa Talbitzer in the 1993 WSC volleyball recruiting class.

Svitak, a 5-11 outside/middle hitter, is a former freshman athlete of the year at Norfolk High School. Svitak also played basketball at Norfolk. "Jennifer is an outstanding hitter who will help us with her versatility," Clark said. "She has played all three of the front row positions at Norfolk High."

Werner, a 5-8 outside hitter, was a Mid-States all-conference first-team selection at honorable mention Omaha World Herald Top Twelve pick in 1991 at Elkhorn Valley High School. She earned honorable mention Mid-States honors in 1990. She also competes in basketball and track.

"Wendy is very athletic and quick," Clark said. "She will give us some depth on the left-side hitting position."

Wayne boys upset by Cedar Catholic in district finals

The Wayne boys basketball team had their season end a little earlier than they hoped, with a 45-41 loss to Hartington Cedar Catholic in the B-5 District Final, Tuesday night in Norfolk.

Bob Uhing's squad had defeated Cedar Catholic by 21 points in late January in Wayne but the Trojans advanced to the Nebraska State Boys Basketball Tournament with the four-point win on Tuesday.

Wayne led 13-12 after the first quarter but the Blue Devils were held to six points in the second quarter which allowed Cedar to take a 23-19 lead into the locker room at the intermission.

Wayne came out strong in the third quarter with a 11-2 run which put them ahead 30-25. During that stretch the Blue Devils got their running game going in high gear but Cedar sensed that and called time out to slow the pace down.

Wayne trailed the Trojans 35-32 after three quarters and down the stretch, despite opportunities to either tie the game or go ahead, they could not convert.

"Our kids played hard," Uhing said. "For that I commend them. We played well in the whole district tournament but Cedar played the best game I've seen them play this season and they held us to 41 points."

Uhing felt that his defense also did a fine job and that any time you hold a team of Cedar's ability to 45 points, you should win the game. One of the biggest keys of the game was Wayne point guard Bobby Barnes being held scoreless.

In fact, Wayne had just four players reach the scoring column led by Brad Uhing with 19 and Matt Blomenkamp with 10. Regg Carnes finished with nine and Mike Fluent tossed in three.

Wayne held a slight rebounding advantage, 25-23 with Fluent leading the team with seven caroms. The Blue Devils had just nine turnovers compared to 11 for Cedar and Wayne was 8-15 from the foul line while the Trojans were 5-8.

"Cedar played a triangle-and-two defense on Brad and Bobby," Uhing said. "Then in the second half, they switched to a straight man-to-man. It came down to athleticism and we didn't match up in some areas."

Uhing also said if Cedar plays the type of games at state like they did in the district finals against the Blue Devils they can beat anyone. Wayne closed out its season with a 20-3 record and the three losses were by a combined total of eight points.

"How many times does a team face the caliber of an Eric Mueller and Jaime Jones on the same team," Uhing said. "They have a great front line." Uhing also said his squad and the coaches appreciated all the support they got this season from Blue Devil fans.

Opener is Monday in California

Baseball team set for season

The Wayne State College baseball team will be shooting for their fourth straight winning season in '93 and they will begin that campaign on Monday when they play Cal-San Bernardino in the first of several games on the west coast.

The Wildcats return 13 letter-winners from last season's 25-23 squad, and will be guided by first-year head coach John Manganaro. Manganaro replaces nine-year veteran Lenny Klaver, who is on a teaching sabbatical in Colorado.

"With our top two pitchers returning and the development of some other young arms, we should have five pretty decent starters," Manganaro said. "We have a nice mix of veteran and young players. Our goals are to go out and play as hard as we can on every pitch. We want to be satisfied with our efforts at the end of that day."

Junior catcher Cory Reeder (Columbus, 318) returns after pacing WSC with nine homeruns and 33 runs batted in last season. Reeder also threw out 63 percent of would-be base stealers. Tim McDermott (Sr., Omaha) backs up Reeder behind the plate, and will also see time in the outfield after transferring from Bellevue College.

Senior Troy Test (Norfolk) anchors the Wildcat infield at second base. Test hit a career high .311 with 20 RBI last season. Senior Mike Stauffer (Tecumseh) is expected to inherit the shortstop position vacated by Shane Kober.

Freshman Chad Cerveny (Omaha) and Anthony Brown (Wakefield) add depth up the middle for WSC. Last year's leading hitter Travis Nedved (Sr., Garner, IA, .385) will share time with sophomore Tim Kurtz (Omaha, .333) at first base and designated hitter.

Senior Jeff Gohr (Omaha, 8-3, 4.28 ERA) and junior Jeff Lutt (Wayne, 7-5, 3.35 ERA) anchor the Wildcat pitching staff. Gohr set a WSC record with 88.3 innings pitched last Spring, and came up a win short of the single-season mark. Lutt led WSC with 3.35 earned run average and limited opposing hitters to a .218 batting average.

Junior Steve Paxson (New Windsor, IL) and left-handers Jon Janssen (So., Columbus) and Schneider will also see time in the rotation.

Senior Bill Guenther (Crofton) returns as the 'Cats closer, with help from freshman Matt Peterson (Wayne) and Tim Fancher (Gordon).

WSC will open its home schedule on March 20 against South Dakota State at Hank Overin Field in Wayne.

Joan Scherbring inherits winning tradition

Softball team begins new era

Wayne State softball coach Joan Scherbring inherits eight starters and a tradition of speed and winning in her first season at the helm of the Wildcats.

Scherbring, a 27-year-old Diersville, Iowa native previously coached at Kucemper Catholic High School. She is a 1990 Dana College graduate.

WSC returns eight starters from last season's 23-22 squad, including four all-state selections. The Wildcats set school records in hits (370), batting average (.322), stolen bases (142-151), and walks (154) last season. The 'Cats are looking for their 14th non-losing season in the last 15 years.

NCAA Division II all-time stolen base leader Dee Henningsen (Sr., Albert City, IA, 43 steals, 124 career steals) anchors the Wildcat infield at shortstop. Henningsen led WSC regulars in batting average (.396) and earned all-state honors in 1992.

Sophomore Jenna Flesner (Aurora, CO, .333) returns at third base after earning all-state honors as a freshman. "Jenna started all 45 games a season ago, and has good mobility and a rocket arm," Scherbring said. Freshman Maryellen Livingston (Aurora, CO) will provide depth at third base, as well as on the mound.

Junior Jenny Reuland (Estherville, IA, 23 steals) returns at second base after hitting .342 in 1992. "Jenny is a very hard worker, who plays smart on her feet and handles the bat very well," Scherbring said. Freshman Lori Foster (Aurora, CO) adds depth at second base.

Defensive standout Jeni Umbach (Jr., Anthon, IA, 281, 15 RBI) handles the first-base duties for WSC. "Jeni is solid defensively, and is a very consistent hitter," Scherbring added.

Junior Michelle Reinhardt (Cherokee, IA, .323, 8 doubles) and sophomore Sarah Lee (Omaha, .188) will split time behind the plate for WSC.

All-state seniors Marti Hunt (Omaha, .342, 25 steals) and Jill Gengler (Remsen, IA, .357, 44 RBI) headline the outfielders. Hunt is expected to start in center field, while Gengler hopes to bounce back from an off-season car accident to play left field. Sophomore Renee Miller (Correctionville, IA, .277) is expected to start in right field. Freshman Stacey Topf (Sioux City, IA) adds depth in the outfield.

"Marti is a very quick outfielder, who is a great baserunner and an excellent bunter for us," Scherbring said. "Jill is expected back around April 1st. Renee has a great arm in right field, and has good hitting power," Scherbring added.

Juniors Alex Ross (Bass Lake, CA, 8-3, 4.22 ERA) and Jenny Nieland (Carroll, IA, 2-4, 3.17 ERA), and sophomore Michelle Harris (Thornton, CO, 7-9, 3.05 ERA) give the 'Cats a young, but experienced starting rotation."

"One thing that I like about this pitching staff is each pitcher has their own style, which should keep hitters off balance," Scherbring said. "The first-year coach believes that her squad "needs to work together as a team, and stay away from injuries," to be successful.

The 'Cats open the season in Oklahoma on Friday and Saturday with the home opener on March 19 against Bemidji State.

WSC men's basketball team ends year on sour note with 108-80 loss to Kearney

The Wayne State men's basketball team closed out their season in Kearney, Wednesday with a 108-80 loss to the Lopers. WSC finished the year at 7-20 while Kearney improved to 20-6.

Mike Brewen's 'Cats trailed UNK by just two points at the half, 46-44 but were out-scored 62-36 over the final 20 minutes. Senior center David Allen did not play in the game because of a groin injury.

Billy Patterson closed out his sophomore season in fine fashion with 19 points followed by Davy Summers with 16 and Omar Clark with 13. Greg Ryan was in double figures with 10 and Terry Mailloux tossed in nine while Michael Parks added seven.

Dan Anderson and Steve Skradski closed out the scoring with four and two points respectively. The absence of Allen in the middle was biggest felt in the rebounding category where the 'Cats were out-boarded, 44-29. Mailloux led WSC with eight rebounds.

Summers and Patterson dished out three assists apiece to lead WSC and Patterson recorded three steals but the 'Cats suffered 25 turnovers compared to 16 for UNK. WSC was 30-56 from the field for 54 percent and 15-19 from the free throw line while UNK was 41-84 for 49 percent and 16-21 from the foul line.

UNK hit 10, 3-pointers while WSC connected on five. It was the final game for Keith Whitfield and David Allen as both are seniors. The Wildcats, however, will return 10 players to next season's team and all have valuable experience.

Wetterberg advances to State Free Throw meet

Kari Wetterberg qualified to compete in the State Free Throw Competition to be held in Kearney, March 14. Wetterberg won the local competition by hitting nine of 15 free throw attempts in Wayne last month.

She then won the Regional competition, also in Wayne, after hitting 17 of 25 free throw attempts. Wetterberg just competed in the District competition in Hartington where she won by hitting 19 of 25 free throw attempts.

MIKE FLUENT goes up for a rebound with a Cedar Catholic defender on his back during the B-5 District Final in Norfolk on Tuesday. The Blue Devils lost a 45-41 decision to the Trojans and subsequently, had their season ended at 20-3.
