Nebraska Guard honors young 'hero'

By LaVon Anderson

An 11-year-old Wakefield girl sat silently Tuesday morning as a representative of the Nebraska National Guard explained to her classmates the true meaning of a hero.

"A hero is not only a military person who serves in combat or someone who saves a life in a crisis situation," said Command Sergeant Major Dennis Spangler of the Nebraska National Guard.

"A hero is also someone who displays personal courage and serves as an example to the rest of us."

A SMILE slowly spread across the face of Krista Siebrandt as Spangler concluded his talk with the presentation of the Nebraska National Guard's Young Hero Award to Krista, a fifth grader at Wakefield Elementary School.

The presentation was made before an audience of fourth, fifth and sixth graders at Wakefield Elementary School, along with Krista's parents, Larry and Julie Siebrandt, grandparents and other friends and relatives who came to share in "Krista Day."

In addition to receiving the Young Hero Award, Krista was honored by her fifth grade classmates who presented a skit on friendship.

SPANGLER presented Krista the Young Hero plaque and medallion on behalf of the Nebraska National Guard and told those in attendance that Krista's enthusiasm for life and living has not been diminished despite the fact that she is confined to a wheelchair and has undergone four major brain surgeries within the past year and a half.

"I've observed Krista during her physical therapy sessions and I can say without a doubt that she is a hero," said Spangler.

"Watch her and learn," Spangler told fellow classmates. "Krista is a wonderful example for you and for the rest of us."

The plaque which Spangler presented Krista recognizes her outstanding courage. "Her bravery re-

Retirement housing project is part of new development

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Plans for a major retirement housing complex for Wayne were unveiled Monday night before the Wayne Planning Commission.

As part of the new 50-lot second phase of the Vintage Hill Addition to Wayne, Excel Corporation, a Lincoln-based management and development company, has outlined plans to construct a 44-unit complex to provide assisted living and apartments for seniors.

Anticipated to cost over $3.4 million, the new complex will include such senior services as meals, emergency call service, transportation, social programs, wellness clinics, housekeeping and other services.

"CURRENTLY IN Wayne there are few alternatives for an older adult who no longer wants the hassles and headaches of home ownership," said Cap Peterson, one of the principals in the Vintage Hill project. He presented the plans to the Planning Commission along with Mark Westergard, a consulting engineer.

"This is a fabulous thing and great for Wayne," said Peterson. "There is nothing like it in Northeast Nebraska."

Excel has similar developments in Fremont, Grand Island and is currently in the planning stages for building a 24-unit project in Chadron.

Economic impact studies have shown the retirement housing projects to have dramatic impact on the communities they serve without creating a great need for additional local government services.

ONE SIZEABLE advantage will be the impact on Wayne's shortage of affordable housing, said City Administrator Joe Salitros. He said it is likely many of the Excel units will be occupied by retirees whose current homes will be placed on the market for other families. "Indirectly it opens up other housing," he said.

Up to 35 percent of the occupants of developments like this move in from out of the community, said Peterson. He said marketing studies have indicated there is a large market in this area for this type of development.

HE SAID THERE had better be since developers are putting several million of their own non-government-assisted dollars into the project and are hoping for a modest return.

The development will be located on a 7.3 acre area of the Vintage Hill addition bordering the new Aspen Street and Vintage Hill Drive. Future plans call for the construction of up to 96 total units at the location. Construction on the first 44 units is expected to begin by this fall. Twenty of the first Wayne units will be assisted living units and 24 will be retirement apartments. Plans call for 24 individual ownership townhomes to be constructed as needed.

THE APARTMENTS and assisted living units will be rented on a monthly basis with no entrance fee. Members of the Planning Commission endorsed the plan for the retirement community and the plans for the second phase of the Vintage Hill Addition which extends the north end of Claycomb and establishes Silver Oak Drive with an extension of Vintage Hill Drive being built as part of Phase One. A third phase of the development is planned to add 60 more lots and connect Claycomb and Vintage Hill with Country Club Road to the north.

Sewer could pave way for growth

A new sewer outfall plan that could open up a vast new area for development in Wayne and save the city hundreds of thousands of dollars in sewer development and maintenance costs was endorsed by the Planning Commission Monday night.

Though still in the conceptual stage, the new sewer line could open up hundreds of acres for housing development, according to city manager Joe Salitros. He said the idea came out of a staff meeting when city officials were discussing the plans for the new Vintage Hill Addition.

Because of the lay of the land, the subdivision developers would have been required to install an expensive sewage lift station, said Salitros. In addition, future development in the area would have required other lift stations.

BY DEVELOPING a new sewer line east of Centennial Road and north of Country Club Road, all of the anticipated new developments in the area, including Vintage Hill, could be served by less expensive gravity flow sewers.

Salitros told the commissioners the rerouted trunk sewer concept would also reduce the liability of sewage backups into homes on Claycomb Road.

Because the 50-lot Vintage Hill Addition is in the last stages of the planning process with construction of homes slated for this fall even, the city must move with speed to develop the alternative plan for sewage treatment Salitros said.

COMMISSIONERS voiced interest in seeing the city move ahead with the plan which all indicated would assist development by holding down costs and future maintenance factors.

Mark Westergard, an engineer with Elliott and Associates, working with the developers of the Vintage Hill Addition, said the concept made sense and would be beneficial to the developers.

Reasonable attitude

The city of Wayne came under fire last night at the Planning Commission meeting for having a perceived tendency to create needless roadblocks to development in the community.

The key word here is perceived. Perception, more often than not, becomes reality when opinions about attitude and cooperation are expressed.

Wayne is perceived to be a difficult community in which to develop homes or businesses because of a tendency toward strict adherence to zoning codes and delays in getting answers to development questions.

At issue Monday night was a ruling by city officials that the old Elhington Motors building purchased by the Nebraska Bus Company for use as a school bus storage and maintenance facility would be a non-conforming use even though the car dealership was a conforming use.

Under the ruling, the bus company would have had to hold public hearings any time it wanted to make improvements in the building, such as install new overhead doors.

Logic tells us that if the corner was well suited for an automotive garage and sales lot, it should be suitable for a school bus service center and storage lot.

Common sense, it seems to us, would have avoided the controversy, by simply interpreting the regulations the way the planning commission ultimately ruled Monday. The uses are basically the same.

But the discussion surrounding the great "bus depot debate" was healthy nonetheless. City officials should not be faulted for enforcing the zoning codes as they see them. We don't want a wink and a nod approach to zoning enforcement any more than we want to see a red tape wall built around the city keeping all improvements out.

Monday's discussion brought out several points that deserve praise here.

Commissioner Randy Pedersen in encouraging city officials not to pick so many nits, said people do business where it is easier to do business. Pat Arneson said the city needs to project a more proactive and positive approach.

Duane Schroeder asked for a more positive attitude on the part of the city rather than trying to find why things shouldn't be done.

City officials said they have no desire to keep businesses out or to make things more difficult for development.

All of these comments seem reasonable to us.

Reasonable is all any of us should expect. Reasonable enforcement of zoning laws and reasonable efforts to assist development.

Through reasonable discussions like that held Monday night, the city might overcome the perception that it is unyielding and uncooperative with developers.

'Hey, a man's gotta eat'

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

As I say every morning when I don't feel like getting out of bed and going to work, "Hey, a man's gotta eat."

Every person I know has to do a little of that, every now and then. It's a necessity of life.

That's why a lot of people question whether it's appropriate to put a tax on food as a lot of groups are proposing in the Legislature. In this budget-tight session, the $100 million a food sales tax would raise is enough to give everybody a piece of the pie.

The hospitals and other health care providers are likin' it because it's a tax they wouldn't have to pay. The governor is already proposing to hit them up with $25 million in taxes, something they've hired just about every lobbyist in the rotunda to avoid.

Some farm groups also think it would be a heck of a lot better than the $7 million fertilizer tax they've been paying for the past year and hope to repeal.

The food sales tax also holds out the hope of "property tax relief," that elusive concept. School groups and others want to put about $40-some million into state school aid dollars.

The food tax has some appeal to a lot of people because they figure it's one that everyone pays equally.

But that's also what makes it unfair. A poor little guy living in a shack needs to eat every bit as much as the guy who lives in a big house and spends his summers out on a yacht (yatch-it as Ernie Chambers likes to pronounce the word).

SURE, THE GUY on the yacht-it is going to buy more expensive food, but proportionally the little guy is going to pay a lot higher percentage of his income on food tax.

Sen. Dennis Byars of Beatrice, the sponsor of the bill and who is not usually one to step on little guys, is trying to help the poor people by giving a $50 credit for each family member. They would collect it when they file their income taxes.

But the credit plan could use some work. Even for the poorest of the poor, the $50 probably won't make up for all the food taxes they'd pay. And the credit doesn't help a lot of low- and middle-income folks.

It will be a tough sell. It's a guarantee Gov. Nelson would veto it, so two-thirds of the Legislature would have to support it. But you can't rule anything out at this point.

Depending on how things shake out, the food sales tax will either become the blockbuster of the session, or it will just be an excuse for a lotta lobbyists to draw paychecks. Which I don't necessarily have anything against. Hey, a man's gotta eat.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Much at stake

U.S. assistance for the reformers in the Soviet Union is an imperative move if we are to see any sustained peace dividends.

Overnight we could return to the days of the cold war arms race that threatened to break both nations. Or even worse.

If the hard-liners in the Soviet government convince enough of the hungry Soviet people that the old ways were the best the whole world will take a giant leap backwards.

We're not encouraging interference in the internal political affairs of a sovereign nation, but neither should we be reluctant to offer humanitarian aid to the failed communist system.

We have a vested interest. By encouraging that nation's people that we are their friends and showing them we are concerned about retaining a peaceful, globe, it may help prevent a return of militaristic rule in both nations.

A small sacrifice on our part now will provide great returns later. What's the story about bread cast on the waters...?

Don't leave God and discipline out

Dear Editor:

Walter Sundberg's article in the October Lutheran, "A Conflict of Creeds" should make all Christians take notice. Sundberg took the issue to us, will it be ignored? Will we have a form of Godliness but deny the power of it? Can we use one chapter of the Bible and say the next one is not for us?

Some say the old testament is out of date, yet we quote from it when it suits us. Isn't the God of the old testament the same God through Christ in the new testament?

Christ said I came not to abolish the law but to fulfill it. Adam ate the apple and God said you disobeyed me, you will be punished. He cursed the ground and put thorns and thistles in our way, in order to eat you will have to till the rest of your life, Gen. Ch. 3.

As a farmer I know very well what he meant. Farmers have fought them since creation.

To Eve he said you disobeyed, you will suffer extra pain in childbirth, yet your desire shall e for your husband and he shall rule over you, this is discipline. My Father disciplined me, our laws discipline us, what would our world be like without it?

I believe the women in my life, family, friends, neighbors have all been reasonably happy working in the home, the church, the community and in general doing the things they enjoy, and they didn't break the laws of God to be Pastors and Bishops.

I am not a fanatic, or a fundamentalist, I do consider myself a follower of the Augustinian Creed. I enjoy the things the followers of the so-called Enlightenment Creed do, justice, peace, nature and freedom. But I also believe in Christ crucified, and the laws God has laid down for us.

I believe there is a life after death and punishment if we don't follow them.

I have seen the morals of our country declining for the last four or five decades: What is the reason?

Is it lack of discipline in the home, the school, the church and universities? Is the world better off since women's lib? Are the women better off? I put them above us, why did they want to drop down to our level, smoking, drinking and using dope? They excel in so many things but are not equal in others, such as football and hand to hand combat.

In a recent poll only three percent thought family values amounted to much, surely they help shape the generation to come. What messages are our colleges giving to our young people? Wilmar Thorkelson in an article in the October Lutheran quotes from a lecture given by Stanley Hauerwas, a Methodist scholar, Professor in St. Olaf College we must take the Bible away from the people they are not capable to interpret it, why should we interpret it? It was interpreted by experts in simple languages we can all understand.

We have handed Bibles to our youth for years and urged them to read it, is it any wonder our morals are in a free fall? Do we have this kind of teaching in many of our schools and colleges? Crime on the rise, an unusual amount of rioting, stealing, arson, rape, dope, gambling, drunks, violet primetime TV, free sex, divorces and condoms in the schools but not "God."

We have 10 and 12 year old girls pregnant and 10 and 12 year old boys joining gangs, carrying guns and using them. Our textbooks are teaching four and five year olds what gays and homosexuals do. I was 50 years old before I knew there were such people. They say they are born with the lifestyle. If they were would God condemn it (Lev. 18-23). They want into our church as they are, we may live to regret it.

I had a nephew in the confirmation class in Longmont, Colo. The pastor was gay. He molested the boys in the class. Will we have them teaching in our Sunday school? I am all for love and forgiveness, but we have to have something besides love.

If we leave God and discipline out, we will just have a Moralistic church.

I have copies of the article, "Conflict of Creeds" if anyone wants one

Let's all plan to go fishing

Officials in Wayne are haggling over the new revisions for the zoning ordinance and the issues often create intense feelings.

When you start talking about regulating what people can and can't do--and what their neighbors can and can't do--on their private property it tends to create some strong feelings.

For the most part, everyone has the same goal in mind. We all want a nice community where the rules are clearly defined so that we can all get along.

Disputes over the shape of the new regulations in Wayne have been minor and relatively easy to resolve. That is because there are reasonable people at work and there is community consensus that we need to reduce some of the roadblocks to housing development and make the codes a little less restrictive.

But if Waynians think their codes are restrictive, consider the case of a New Jersey woman who is fighting with her community planning commission because they don't like the color of her shutters.

The planning board in Pitman, N.J. voted 5-4 recently to deny a "certificate of appropriateness" to Crystal Bacon to allow her to keep the purple trim on her house.

The planning board says the purple trim violates the city's ordinances. The woman has ten days to change the trim color of her house or face a fine of $25 a day for each day the purple remains.

The home owner says she's not getting out her paintbrush again. She applied the purple coat last summer and until recently no one objected.

To repaint now would be illogical and means "publicly admitting they-

(the planning board) have better taste than I do," said the independent-minded college professor.

The historic neighborhood she lives in is covered by ordinances requiring residents to obtain certificates of appropriateness before painting or remodeling.

"Hopefully the new ordinance revisions being prepared for Wayne won't contain anything so restrictive as limits on the colors people can paint their shutters.

The fishing season is getting closer. Honest. The first story about the "really big one" that got away is already making the rounds.

The skipper of a fishing boat off the coast of Oregon is sure he netted a submarine last week but--luckily--the big one got away before it drug the fishing boat under.

Imagine if you will, toiling along at walking speed with your nets out hoping for the big catch that will help pay the mortgage when--WHAM--you get the mother of all strikes.

Your boat starts going in reverse at four or five times the speed it was designed to go forward in.

"It makes you think about a land job," said the fisherman, who counted himself lucky to be alive. The submarine started pulling the small boat under.

For us flatlanders the story sounds humorous, but off the coast where subs and fishing boats patrol the same waters, this is serious business. Fishermen claim subs can be blamed for the unexplained loss of fishing boats which have gone down without warning in calm weather.

The Navy is investigating the fisherman's claim for the loss of $20,000 worth of fishing gear and other damages.

Next time I lose one of those expensive artificial lures on a snag at the bottom of the lake--which happens more often than putting fish in my creel--I won't feel so bad.

Parenti is PRIDE award winner at Emporia State

Evie Parenti, office assistant in residential life and orientation, is the recipient of the PRIDE Award for March at Emporia State University (ESU) in Emporia, Kan.

The PRIDE Award recognizes ESU employees who "go the extra mile" in serving the campus community.

Parenti is the daughter-in-law of Dorothy Parenti of Wayne. Her nomination was submitted by Denny Orr, coordinator of residential life and orientation, and Diane Downey, psychology graduate student, for demonstrating patience, knowledge and warmth in her daily work with students and parents at ESU.

"Evie promotes the positive experiences of college life, ESU, and Emporia to all who seek assistance during a student's transition time," said Orr.

As winner of the award, Parenti received a certificate, lunch for two, and her name will appear on a plaque in the Memorial Union. The plaque was donated by the ESU Foundation and holds the names of the monthly award winners.

Women throughout Northeast Nebraska are being sought to participate in the first large scale breast cancer prevention study being conducted by the National Surgical Adjuvant Breast and Bowel Project (NSABP) and sponsored by the U.S. National Cancer Institute.

At least 40 women volunteers are needed for this trial at the clinical site in Sioux City — Siouxland Hematology-Oncology Associates. Currently, over 6,000 women across the U.S. and Canada who are at increased risk for breast cancer are participating in the study.

Dr. J.C. Michalak, an oncologist from Sioux City, is co-principal investigator for the project and conducts a satellite clinic at Providence Medical Center in Wayne on the second Wednesday of each month.

WOMEN 60 years and older will be eligible for the study based on their age alone, regardless of any other breast cancer risk factors.

Women ages 35 to 59 may be eligible depending on a variety of risk factors, including age, a family history of breast cancer in first degree relatives (mother, sister, daughter), never having borne a child, having their first child past age 30, starting menses at an early age, a history of benign breast disease that required biopsy, or other breast conditions such as (LCIS), Lobular Carcinoma In situ with lumpectomy as only treatment.

Women who feel they meet this criteria should contact Tami Rohde, RN, BSN, OCN, project coordinator and assistant nursing director with Siouxland-Hematology-Oncology Associates at (712) 252-3403.

Women involved in the trial will be asked to take two pills every day for the next five years, either tamoxifen or placebo, and will be required to take blood tests and an exam, along with a mammogram, for pre-entry.

Participants will be followed at specified intervals with lab and exams for a period of seven years.

COMMITMENT and responsibility are two major factors that all women considering participation in the study are asked to take in mind.

Women will be asked to participate for seven years and take tamoxifen/placebo for five years. They must report any side effects they may be experiencing and must be willing to comply with follow-up exams.

Every effort will be made for the convenience of the participant and opportunity to coordinate some follow-up through out-reach clinics.

THE BREAST cancer study hopes to determine if the breast cancer drug, Tamoxifen, could be used to prevent breast cancer.

Advances in medicine and science are the results of new ideas and approaches developed through research. All new treatments must be proven safe and effective in scientific studies with a certain number of patients before they can be made widely available.

For this reason, the breast cancer prevention trial has been established to evaluate the effect of tamoxifen in reducing invasive breast cancer, breast cancer deaths, cardiovascular disease, and bone fractures.

Research suggests that tamoxifen should not only reduce by at least a third the number of breast cancers that the women on the drug will develop, but may also reduce the risk of heart attacks for some women and may have positive effects on bone density with respect to osteoporosis.

TAMOXIFEN is currently the most widely prescribed cancer drug in the world. It has been used for almost 20 years to treat patients with advanced breast cancer and since 1985 as "adjuvant" or additional therapy after radiation, chemotherapy, and/or surgery for early stage breast cancers.

Tamoxifen acts against the effects of estrogen (a female hormone) in breast tissue, but acts like estrogen in other body systems.

Tamoxifen also seems to have some of the same beneficial effects of estrogen replacement therapy, such as a lowering of blood cholesterol and a decrease in bone loss that could lead to osteoporosis.

Lanora Sorensen also gave a report on waste management, including recycling plastics, and encouraged members to call 1-800-777-9500 for a free booklet.

Women were reminded of the home extension spring tour to Sioux Falls, S.D. on April 28 and of the Home Extension State Convention in Seward on June 2-4. The theme is "Share the Spirit."

The State Home Extension Convention in 1994 will be in South Sioux City, with Wayne County members assisting in hosting the event. The focus will be on literacy.

FOLLOWING the business meeting, the group made tray favors for Providence Medical Center as a community service project.

The next meeting will be April 19 at 7:30 p.m. with Roberta Carman as hostess. Delores Utecht will give the leader training lesson, "Clothing for the Older Woman."

Vitamins & Minerals: PMS Symptom Relief
According to a recent report in U.S. Pharmacist, premenstrual syndrome (PMS) is a valid clinical condition experienced by 40% to 90% of American women at some time during their childbearing years. Because the range of PMS symptoms is so varied, there are many different recommended PMS treatments. Vitamins and minerals are among agents that have been used successfully by some women to relieve symptoms. Vitamin B6 is involved in the production of substances in the brain that are thought to be needed in preventing PMS-related depression. In one study, women given 1,000 mg of calcium daily had fewer personality changes and less pain and swelling. Magnesium and vitamin A are other nutrients that have been used to treat PMS symptoms.

flects great credit upon herself, her family, her community, the State of Nebraska and the United States of America."

KRISTA was referred to the National Guard to receive the Young Hero Award by the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Nebraska, which over the Christmas holidays granted her wish to visit Hawaii with her family.

On hand for Tuesday morning's presentation were Rose and Duane Chunka of Bellevue, wish granter with the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"Krista is every bit deserving of the award," smiled the Chunkas, who echoed Spangler's feelings that Krista is a wonderful example to her family and friends.

Krista was diagnosed with epilepsy when she was 10 months old. Although the illness was originally controlled with medication, the Wakefield youngster began suffering severe seizures in 1991 that no amount of medication could stop.

She has since undergone four major brain surgeries to remove scar tissue believed to be connected to the seizures. The surgeries, although successful in helping to control the seizures, also left Krista paralyzed on the left side of her body and bound to a wheelchair.

"Krista just never gets depressed," smiles her mother Julie. "She misses not being able to go outside and play at recess, but she's never down."

Wayne Herald honors top area girls basketball players

By Kevin Peterson
Sports editor

The Wayne Herald Girls All-Area Basketball Team was released today with 10 of the coverage area's finest players earning special recognition. Wayne heads the team with three selections while Allen, Wakefield and Winside each placed two on the squad. Laurel rounded out the team with one selection.

The all-area team is selected by the Wayne Herald sports staff solely on the performances witnessed throughout the season. Coaches had no bearing on any of the selections. Since the five schools represented in the Wayne Herald coverage area are from three different conferences, all-conference picks also had no bearing on the selections.

The following is a short synopsis of how the Wayne Herald viewed the top players in the area.

Liz Reeg—The Wayne superstar led the Blue Devils to their first ever state tournament by scoring over 500 points this season. She led Wayne in rebounding and made more free throws on the season than Wayne's opponent's even attempted. She became the first player in Wayne history to surpass the 1000 point mark with 1215 for her career.

Erin Pick—When the Blue Devils went inside for scoring punch they often looked to senior Erin Pick. She provided the Blue Devils with rebounding and very solid defense. Pick often found herself being guarded by bigger opponent's but her athletic ability and quickness gave her the advantage in most cases.

Danielle Nelson—Early in the season senior Danielle Nelson broke a finger on her left hand which some felt would severely jeopardize Wayne's performance because she was the quarterback of the team at point guard.

Nelson performed admirably during this stretch and she didn't miss a single game because of her hand. Heading into the district tournament a healthy Nelson quarterbacked the Blue Devils to three easy wins in districts, the closest being a 10-point win over Cedar Catholic. Her ability to find the open players was a big asset for Wayne.

Heather Sachau—The Allen senior enjoyed a super year for the Eagles as the team's top scorer. Sachau went through a stretch of games where she hit approximately seven out of every 10 shots from the field while being guarded. Her presence on the court often drew double-teaming which left another Allen player open so Sachau was a valuable instrument whether she had the ball or not.

Christy Philbrick—A perfect example of how speed kills is Allen senior Christy Philbrick. Her aggressive defensive play signified the Eagles as a whole—tenacious. Philbrick's quickness provided Allen with many fast break opportunities because she was able to pick the pockets of many opposing guards. Philbrick was the Eagles second leading scorer.

Christi Mundil—The Winside junior had a fantastic season in leading the Wildcats in scoring and rebounding. Mundil possesses a limitless amount of athletic ability and should be a dominant force again next season. She has the ability to muscle inside on one end of the court and yet be on the receiving end of a fast break on the other end of the court.

Holly Holdorf—The Winside senior enjoyed a solid year as the Wildcat signal-caller on the basketball court. Holdorf's aggressive defensive play often resulted in easy points for the Wildcats following steals and Holdorf's one of very few guards that could draw a charging foul by standing in the lane while an opposing player came at her at full speed for a would-be lay-in.

Heidi Muller—Wakefield came into the season with just one returning starter from a year ago in senior Heidi Muller and though a heavy burden was placed on her shoulders this year as far as a leadership role is concerned, she came through in flying colors. Muller was a consistent force for the Trojans with her ability to score on the offensive end of the court and crash the boards on the other end.

Kali Baker—This Wakefield junior may have surprised a few teams this year with her uncanny ability to score points in bunches and quickly. Baker's ability to hit the long range jumper as well as play on the baseline against bigger opponent's made her difficult to guard.

Baker is one of those players that when she gets in a groove in shooting the ball, the best thing you can do is just keep dishing it to her.

Amy Peters—The Laurel senior was the Bears leading scorer this year because of her ability to keep opponent's guessing. Peters ability to hit the three-pointer forced opponent's to play her close. That gave her the option to penetrate the lane and dish off to the open person because she would often draw double-teaming.

There are several girls who did not make the all-area team who deserve mention as honorable mention selections. Those include Jenny Thomsen of Wayne, Kari Pichler of Winside, Betsy Adkins of Laurel, Sonya Plueger of Allen, Angi Peterson and Maria Eaton of Wakefield.

The Coach of the Year Award goes to Wayne's Marlene Uhing who coached her final game as the Wayne mentor, at the state tournament. Uhing led Wayne to its finest season in history with 17 victories.

The Player of the Year Award goes to Wayne's Liz Reeg for the accomplishments mentioned in the synopsis earlier in this story. Other players in contention for this award this year were Christi Mundil of Winside and Heather Sachau of Allen.

Liz Reeg earns all-state status as first-teamer

Wayne senior Liz Reeg was honored by both the Omaha World-Herald and Lincoln Journal & Star Newspapers as one of the best basketball players in the state of Nebraska this season.

Reeg earned first team all-state honors in both papers and she earned third-team all-state honors which is comprised of the best players in each class from the Lincoln Journal & Star.

Reeg led Wayne in scoring this season at a 22.0 point per game average. She led Wayne to its first ever state tournament appearance and a school record in wins with 17.

Reeg also became the first player in Wayne girls history to eclipse the 1000 point barrier—she finished with 1215 and also led the team in rebounding with 177, a 7.5 per game average. She will switch from the Blue Devil colors to the Wildcats black and gold next season when she plays for Mike Barry and Wayne State.

Melinda Mohr wins four golds

Winside girls runner-up at WSC

The Winside track teams competed in their first meet as a Class C school in many years, Friday at the Wayne State Meet in the WSC rec center.

Jim Winch's Wildcats put on quite a show in their Class C debut with the girls taking runner-up in the team chase with 64 points. Battle Creek won the team title in girls with 118 and Emerson-Hubbard placed third with 48.

Wakefield finished fourth with 44 and St. Edward managed a fifth place finish with 34 points. Tilden-Elkhorn Valley was sixth with 31 and Stanton finished seventh with 29 while Fullerton placed eighth with 28. Walthill rounded out the teams with four points.

The story of the meet for Winside was sophomore Melinda Mohr who went head-to-head with the defending Class C state champion miler and two miler in Richelle Woodman of Wakefield—and won. Mohr won four gold medals on the day including individual golds in the 800, 1600 and 3200. She was clocked in 2:32.41 in the 800 and 5:51 in the 1600 while clocking a 12:55.08 effort in the 3200.

Mohr also anchored the winning 3200 meter relay team which also consisted of Wendy Miller, Catherine Bussey and Kristi Oberle. That foursome was timed in 11:11.61.

Kari Pichler ran to a runner-up time of 9:97 in the 55 meter hurdles. Oberle placed fourth in the open 1600 in 6:25. The Wildcats 4x1 lap relay placed fourth in 1:36.41 and Amy Thompson placed fifth in the 55 meter dash in 8.16.

Ann Brugger placed sixth in the shot put with a 31-1.5 effort and Miller placed sixth in the 800 meter run in 2:51.37.

In the boys competition the Wildcats placed fourth with 39 points. Fullerton won the team title with 141 while Battle Creek placed second with 121. Elkhorn Valley was third with 61—and Emerson-Hubbard followed Winside with 29.5.

Stanton was sixth with 29 and Wakefield was seventh with 18.5 while St. Edward finished eighth with 10. Walthill rounded out the field of teams with one point.

Benji Wittler recorded a first place finish in the 800 meter run in 2:25.13 to lead the Wildcats while the 3200 meter relay team was timed in a runner-up finish of 9:47.

The 1600 meter relay team placed third in 4:10.65 and Jay

Shelton ran to a third place finish of 5:22 in the 1600. Cam Shelton threw the shot put 44-10 for fifth place with Jeremy Jenkins placing fifth in the 400 meter dash with a 59.74 clocking and Ryan Brogren placed sixth in the 800 meter run in 2:32.47. The 'Cats 4x1 lap relay was fourth in 1:24.56.

"Overall, I thought both our girls and boys teams ran well for the first meet," Winch said. "Melinda looked real good in all her races and Kari did a good job in the hurdles."

Winch thought Benji did a nice job in the 800 and that Jay ran the 1600 well. He also said Cam looked good throwing the shot put. "So much of our training like everyone else, has had to come from inside the gyms because of poor weather conditions outside," Winch said. "The times and distances will undoubtedly get better as the season progresses and we get outside."

Winside's next competition will take place April 3 in the Coleridge Invitational which will be held at Wayne State.

DESPITE THE fact that Richelle Woodman was defeated by Mohr of Winside, the Wakefield running star still led her team with runner-up finishes in the 1600 and 3200 with times of 5:56 and 12:55.62 respectively.

Woodman also finished fifth in the 800 in 2:48.81 and she ran a leg on the runner-up 3200 meter relay team which was clocked in 11:20.

Kali Baker placed third in the 800 meter run in 2:43.67 and Maria Eaton finished fourth in the 3200 meter run in 13:45 while Andrea Lundahl placed fifth in the same event in 13:48.

Mary Torczon placed fourth in the high jump with a 4-10 leap while Kathy Ote placed fifth in the 55 meter hurdles in 10.56 to close out the scoring for the girls.

The boys final results were listed with out the 1600 meter run. Wakefield had points scored in this event but at press time it was not known who it was or the times.

In other events that the Trojans placed in, was Tony Nixon's third place 3200 meter run time of 11:17 and Miah Johnson's fifth place effort in the high jump of 5-10. Mike McQuistan placed fifth in the 3200 in 11:43. The Trojans 3200 meter relay team placed sixth as well.

Planners affirm desire to help development

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

The Wayne City Planning Commission affirmed its desire to make the city a help rather than a hindrance to new development during its meeting Monday night.

"People do business where it's easier to do business," said Commissioner Randy Pedersen. He encouraged city officials who "nitpick" on every new proposal that comes in to "step back and see who they work for. They work for us."

"As a commission we're pro business," said Chairman George Phelps.

"WE NEED TO be proactive in a positive sense," said Commissioner Pat Arneson.

The comments were made in response to objections raised by attorney Duane Schroeder over a ruling by the city that the Nebraska Bus Company could not have a building permit to improve the old Ellingson Motors

Building for use as a school bus service and storage facility because "bus depots" were not permitted in the zone.

"Bus depots are where you go to pick up Aunt Matilda from Cleveland... where a couple of winos are sleeping in the corner," said Schroeder. He said the building would be used for storage and maintenance of school buses, which he said was the same use as when the property was a car dealership, which the zone permits.

"JEEZ, LOUISE," fumed Schroeder, "this is clearly not a bus depot."

Encouraging the city to change its attitude to become more cooperative with people wishing to develop businesses in the community, Schroeder said the bus company he represents checked out the zoning regulations before purchase of the building and were told there would be no problems.

The Nebraska Bus Company, which has the contract to provide busing service to the Wayne Schools and is seeking contracts with other schools in the region, purchased the building last month from the trustees for the bankrupt car dealership.

SCHROEDER ASKED the planning commission to accept his definition of the use of the building as similar to a car dealership and direct zoning officials to treat it as a permitted use.

The commission did just that in a unanimous vote.

"I apologize if I have given the impression that I'm trying to drive away business, cause I'm not," said Don Seifken, zoning official. He said he is sworn to uphold the zoning laws as written.

Schroeder asked that the city be more flexible and change its attitude to one of asking "what can we do to help?" rather than saying "why we can't do this."

Mottos influence county fair plans

A spokesman for the Wayne County Agricultural Society said two mottos of the society — "Something for Everyone" and "Our Business is Kids" — will influence planning of the 71st Wayne County Fair.

Secretary Leland Herman said plans for the 1993 county fair, which will include entertainment and events for every age group, are nearer completion following a meeting of the Ag Society this month.

In order to emphasize "Our Business is Kids," the Ag Society is giving attendance awards in the form of certificates which will be good for free rides at the fair. Complete information regarding the program is available at the schools.

For junior and senior high students, the Teen Supremes program of "Citizen 2000" will be continued, as well as an "Ambassador of Agriculture" program. Persons wishing additional information are asked to contact the extension office.

To emphasize the fact that the Wayne County Fair is a county-wide event, the next meeting of the Ag Society will take place at Big Ern's in Hoskins on April 15 at 8 p.m.

Residents with suggestions concerning this year's fair are encouraged to contact a fair board member.

Health Network meets

In conjunction with the Rural Health Education Network (RHEN), a Student Recruitment Training Program will be held for Northeast Nebraska Hub/Spoke communities from 1 to 4 p.m., Tuesday, March 30 in Northeast Community College's Maclay Building, room 100B.

The Northeast Nebraska Regional (RHEN) Group has identified a list of priorities and put together a plan of action. Priorities include student recruitment to health care careers, educational programming and multi-community cooperation and collaboration.

This workshop will equip a community recruitment team to recruit students to health care careers with the goal of having talented youth return to rural communities after graduation of certification. This same training will also make communities better recruiters for outside health care professionals.

Communities interested in learning more about the recruitment of health professionals are encouraged to attend.

For more information, contact Joe Ferguson, Northeast Community College, 644-0587.

Sales tax on food touted

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) -- A 5-cent sales tax on food would eliminate the state's $17 million annual budget gap and provide millions of dollars for services people want, Sen. Dennis Byars told a legislative panel.

The Beatrice senator told the Revenue Committee Wednesday that his bill (LB713) would generate about $100 million, allowing the state to increase teachers' salaries, boost Medicaid funding and eliminate the fertilizer tax.

"I believe we have an obligation to keep our promises to the citizens of Nebraska," Byars told the Revenue Committee. "These are the pennies to keep our promises."

Opponents called the bill "regressive," saying it would hit low-income people harder than wealthier citizens. Gov. Ben Nelson opposes the food tax.

Byars said low-income Nebraskans would be eligible for a $50-per-person credit on state income taxes to compensate them for the food tax.

Byars introduced an amendment that directs 21 percent of the money raised by the tax -- an estimated $21.5 million a year -- to teacher salary stipends.

About $23 million would go to Medicaid, the state's health-care program for the poor.

"It is important that we take care of the most vulnerable people in our society, the aged and the developmentally disabled," Byars said.

The food tax would also raise about $7.2 million that could be used to eliminate a tax on fertilizer.

And $6 million would go to retailers to compensate them for the cost of collecting the food tax.

The remaining revenue -- an estimated $41 million -- would go into the state's school-financing formula to provide property tax relief in low-income districts.

Byars acknowledged, however, that the bill would not reduce property taxes.

The bill drew support Wednesday from representatives of education, agriculture, health care and the League of Nebraska Municipalities.

Deanna Frisk, a member of the League of Women Voters of Nebraska, spoke against the tax, saying it "will increase the percentage of money poor people use for a basic necessity."

Frisk suggested that the state increase taxes on non-essential services such as beauty parlors, dry cleaning and lawn services before imposing a fee on food.

Marty Strange, program director of the Center for Rural Affairs in Walthill, said the tax is unnecessary because it will generate more than five times the annual budget gap.

"It's chasing a fly with a sledgehammer," he said.

Strange said "Nebraska should not send a message to other states that taxing food is good fiscal policy."

He said exports from the state's farming and cattle-raising industries would probably drop off in other states "slap on a 5-cent sales tax."

Twenty other states have a tax on food, Byars said.

Other property owners in the areas have expressed interest in seeing the project proceed, said Salitros.

Development of the land north-east of Providence Medical Center had been thought to be hampered in recent years because of the need for expensive lift stations to tie into the city sewage treatment system.

ASPIRIN FOR CHICKEN POX?

For adults, there seems to be no apparent risk in taking aspirin to relieve the itching of chicken pox. However, children under the age of 16 who have chicken pox, the flu or even an ordinary upper-respiratory infection should never be given aspirin because it may trigger Reye's Syndrome, a rare but possibly fatal childhood disease. Safe alternatives are acetaminophen and ibuprofen. Ask your pharmacist.

"That can only mean one thing! There's somethin' else you wanta move!"
"Right, hon. You! Move over!"

What is your opinion on issues?

By Sen. Kurt Hohenstein
District No. 17

This week, instead of my regular column I would like to do something a little different and ask you to participate in a short opinion survey. These questions are in relation to bills and other issues which may be of interest to the 17th District. I invite you to fill out this survey and let me know how you feel.

Please cut out the survey and send to legislative address below.

1) Do you favor balancing the $36 million biennial budget shortfall by cutting state spending (i.e. cutting ADC, University of Nebraska's budget, LB 1059 School Equalization Aid)? Yes No.

2) Do you favor balancing the state's budget shortfall by increasing sales and income taxes and user's fees? Yes No.

3) Do you support enforcement of the state's motor vehicle registration laws (LB 346) to Nebraska residents who license and register their car out of state? Yes No.

4) Do you favor creating a School Aid Fund (LB 320) which would essentially separate all state funding for K-12 public education from the state's general fund and provide stability in educational financing by protecting school funding from being diverted? Yes No.

5) Would you favor public schools teaching and infusing multi-cultural education (LB 27; i.e. African-American, Native American, Hispanic, and Asian-American cultures) into the standard curriculum? Yes No.

6) Would you favor the legislature having the authority to choose either an outside accounting firm or the state's Auditor of Public Accounts (LB 579) to audit the legislature's records (this includes phone calls which may be of sensitive or confidential nature)? Yes No.

7) Do you support an informed consent law (LB 110) which would require a 24-hour waiting period and would require physicians to notify a woman wanting an abortion of the gestational development of the fetus? Yes No.

8) Would you favor allowing the distribution of samples of smokeless tobacco products to adults (LB 495) as long as proper restrictions and penalties are put in place to discourage distribution to minors? Yes No.

Legislative session half over

By Sen. Stan Schellpeper
District No. 18

We have passed the halfway point of this legislative session. After public hearings on all bills are completed by April 1st, we will begin full-day debate on bills and will be able to clear some of the backlog.

The most difficult issue we have yet to face this session is whether we will cut the state budget and medicaid expenditures or raise revenue to continue funding state agencies and the programs that currently exist. The budget will be approximately $20 million short if no changes are made. In addition to discussions about possible spending cuts, there have been discussions on various revenue-raising proposals.

One measure would reinstate a sales tax on food. LB 713 is, by far, the largest revenue-raising proposal discussed to this point. It would raise approximately $120 million every year from the sale of food. A proposed tax credit for low income earners of up to $50 per person would decrease the revenue to approximately $100 million.

I find it difficult to support any tax increase, let alone a $120 million increase, when the budget is short by only $20 million. The revenues of the amended version would be dispersed as follows: $23 million to Medicaid; $21 million to Excellence in Education Fund for teachers salaries; $42 million to LB 1059 equalization formula as equalization aid to school districts; $7 million to substitute for the current fertilizer tax and $6 million to businesses as a sales tax collection fee.

If it becomes necessary to raise additional revenue to balance the state budget, after spending programs are cut, I would prefer that we only raise what is absolutely necessary. As a member of the Revenue Committee, I would personally prefer to raise the cigarette tax by 5 cents per pack which would raise approximately $6.5 million or to raise fees charged in providing certain government services.

Nebraska currently has very little tax on the service industry compared to other states. A narrow tax base is almost always going to be an unfair tax base because it puts a greater burden on a smaller group. Therefore, I would support proposals to tax services if more revenue becomes necessary. I will, however, continue to oppose any tax on hospitals and nursing homes as has been proposed in Gov. Nelson's budget.

Man found dead

A man with Wayne County connections was found shot to death in his car in an apparent robbery in Topeka, Kan., early Sunday morning.

The body of Troy Koepke, 25, was found by police who were called to investigate the report of a suspicious vehicle in a bank parking lot.

Koepke, manager of the Sirlorn Stockade restaurant, had apparently been taking the business' receipts to the bank night deposit when he was killed, according to Topeka police.

Koepke was the son of William and Mardelle Koepke of Norfolk and is graduate of Pierce High School. His grandmother is Gladys Koepke of rural Hoskins.

'Trash Off' date set

The Nebraska Department of Roads is sponsoring a statewide litter cleanup day on Saturday, April 17. The "Great Nebraska Trash-Off" will enlist Adopt-A-Highway groups across the state to pick up their roadsides on that Saturday.

"Nebraskans are proud of their beautiful countryside and clean roadsides. Litter-free roadsides would be impossible to maintain without the help of concerned citizens and proud communities," said Department of Roads' Director Allan Abbott. The Trash-Off program is designed to keep Nebraska roadsides clean and beautiful while promoting environmental awareness and community spirit.

Adopt-A-Highway groups are being encouraged to participate and make the Trash-Off a Nebraska success. Over 1,550 organizations and groups have adopted 3,345 miles of roadside throughout the state. Any interested Adopt-A-Highway groups should contact their nearest State Roads Department Maintenance Superintendent to be included in the massive litter cleanup day.

During last year's Great Nebraska Trash-Off, 285 groups, or about 3,420 persons, cleaned 848 miles of Nebraska highways.

The Library Card

This column is written twice a month to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at Wayne Public Library.

Well, finally, spring is here! Spring brings with it those wonderful/awful feelings of spring fever along with the primal urge, "Spring Cleaning!" We seem to have both.

One look at our lost and found shelf made us realize something drastic had to be done. So, we inventoried and cataloged (all good librarians start that way) and are passing on our findings.

We have: one brown umbrella with wooden handle (left over from the monsoons of summer); one pair of adult sunglasses; one package of lavender rick rack; one book mark; one gray adult glove for the right hand; one child's glove, black and gray stripe; one combination padlock; one Chrysler car key on a tag from an Omaha company; and an IBM book, "Software for IBM PCs"; an RS/1 for PC DOS user's guide; a voice synthesizer and several unidentifiable components.

We also have books returned to us that do not belong in the library. "The Mad Hacker" by Susan Brown/paperback; "Make-Believe Marriage" by Carole Buck/paperback; "Fish Story" by Robert Tallon, a children's book; "Fascinating Facts about Your Body" by Sue Cassin and David Smith, a children's book; "Deer: Growing up in the Wild" by Judith E. Rivard, a National Geographic book for Young Explorers; Time magazine, April 27, 1992 issue; Outdoor and Travel Photography magazine, summer of 1992 issue; "Kitchens and Bathrooms" a Time-Life book.

We'd like a solution to our spring house cleaning finds. If these sound familiar, please ask at the desk.

If you are caught in the throes of spring fever, we have a few good books to read while you are waiting for it to pass — such as:

"The Audobon Society Field Guide to North American Weather." Good for this time of year when we have a large variety of it. "The Audobon Society Field Guide to the Night Sky." "18mm Blues" by Gerald A. Browne. Browne writes somewhat mystery, somewhat adventure stories — good reading when you don't feel like going adventuring yourself. Other books by Browne in the library are "19 Purchase Street" and "Stone 588." "November of the Heart" by LaVyrlle Spencer. This is romance to feed your dreams. "McNally's Risk" by Lawrence Sanders. This continues a series of books entitled McNally. "A World Waiting to be Born: Civility Rediscovered" by M. Scott Peck. This is the author of "The Road Less Travelled" which was widely acclaimed.

We were pleased to receive three videos on bicycling for our adult collection, donated by the Wayne Cyclepaths. "Cycling: Repair, Correct Riding, Position, Safety"; "Indoor Cycling Exercise Video"; and "Mountain Biking."

A memorial book has been placed in the library by members of Acme Club honoring Lillian Berres. The book, "God Bless America" by Helen Steiner Rice, is a compilation of patriotic poems, hymns, prayers, and words to old, favorite songs. Our thanks to Acme Club for their gift.

The Wayne Library Foundation also was a recipient of a kind gift, also in honor of Lillian Berres, from Larry and Judy Berres and from Charles and Evelyn McDermott. We are most appreciative and thank them as well.

If spring means spring cleaning for us, it could also mean time for you to "clean up" your fines on overdue books. Next time you are in the library, ask if you have old fines you may have forgotten about. The fine box needs a good cleaning, too.

Remember, library hours are Monday through Friday from 1 to 9 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

See you in the library!

TREE BOARD MEETING

The Wakefield Tree Board met March 8 in the City Council Room. Present were Marvin Bichel, Peggy Gustafson, Alden Johnson and Gene Swanson. City Administrator, Lowell Johnson, also joined the group.

The Tree City USA application was reviewed. Wakefield has again been named a Tree City USA and also received a Growth Award for 1992. No date has been set for presenting the awards in Lincoln. There was discussion regarding where the flag should be flown.

The SBA application for a grant to plant trees in the park was approved by the State Forestry Service and has been forwarded to the SBA. The work must be started no earlier than September 1993 and must be completed in one year.

Mrs. Samuelson asked the Tree Board to judge her students' drawings for entry in the state art project on trees. The board agreed. Discussion on Arbor Day observances was held. No final decisions were made. The board had been asked to review the City Ordinances regarding trees. State ordinances regarding municipal property were also reviewed.

Discussion centered on tree planting for 1993. It was decided to again offer to procure trees from Bluebird Nursery, as was done in 1992. Interested citizens may order through the City Office, receiving a 20 percent discount and a guarantee for one year if mulched properly. Mulch will be offered with the trees. Senior Citizens who need help with planting may request it. Pop's Partners 4-H Club has offered to again assist with such planting.

The Tree Board would like to plant a Memorial Park where individuals may have trees planted in the name of loved ones. If interested, individuals are requested to contact a tree board member.

LEGION AUXILIARY

A memorial ceremony with the draping of the charter in honor of past American Legion Auxiliary member, Carrybell Schroeder, was conducted during the group's regular meeting on March 8.

President Betty Bressler called the meeting to order with 12 members present. The opening prayer was read with a moment of silence in memory of those who die.

Americanism Chairman Carol Ulrich gave an interesting report on Nebraska becoming the 37th state in the Union on March 1.

Emily Gustafson reported sending a sympathy card to Bonnie Bressler. Membership committee reported that Shirley Dicus is a new member.

Pillow cleaning day will be July 9. A letter from the Norfolk Vets Home was read asking for help with the purchase of a new bus for the veterans. Girl's State chairman reported there are two very good candidates for Girls State.

Denise Thomsen volunteered to fix lunch for the Post members at their regular meeting in honor of the Legion's 73rd birthday.

The meeting closed with prayer. Serving lunch was Donna Johnson, Kathy Loofe, Sharon Salmon and Sharon Boatman.

DENTAL POSTERS

February was Dental Health month. Students in Mrs. Janelle

Eaton's third grade classroom participated in a poster contest. Winners were Dorothy Kucera, first place; Angela Rhoads, second and Annie Helberg, third place winner.

Dr. James Bierbower, of the Wakefield Family Practice, presented Dorothy with an electric toothbrush for her efforts. The posters were judged by Dr. Paul and Norma Byers.

Theme of the contest was "Good Dental Health Habits".

Telephone company not responsible for notices

CARROLL - A spokesman for the Eastern Nebraska Telephone Company said they have received several inquiries from area businesses who recently received "due diligence" postcards announcing that the business is entitled to a telephone billing/rate adjustment in their favor.

The spokesman said the cards were not mailed by the Eastern Nebraska Telephone Company or AT&T, but by Equal Net Services, a long distance re-seller.

Long distance re-sellers buy large volumes of network usage from AT&T and re-sell it to other businesses. The customer would become a customer of Equal Net Services, therefore all billing questions, troubles, etc. would be handled by Equal Net Services.

BUSINESSES who received the notices are asked to disregard them because Equal Net Services requires that the customer be in an equal access environment (the customer would be able to choose a long distance carrier other than AT&T).

At this time, the Telephone Central Office in Carroll is unable to provide equal access.

Jump Rope for Heart deemed great success

Organizers of the 1993 Jump Rope for Heart have termed the event a great success, with proceeds going to support the American Heart Association's (AHA) programs of education and research.

In Wayne, Jump Rope for Heart was sponsored by the Wayne County Affiliate of the AHA and featured two separate events.

Jump Rope for Heart at St. Mary's School was held March 17 with approximately 49 students raising nearly $1,000. The Wayne-Carroll Middle School and West Elementary School jumped on March 20. Approximately 60 students raised just over $2,100.

"This was the most money ever raised during Jump Rope for Heart and was only possible because the people of Wayne were so generous with students who asked for their support," said Marian Simpson, publicity chairman for the AHA's Wayne County Affiliate.

TREATS and prizes for the jumpers were provided by Captain Video, Hardee's, Pac 'N' Save, Pamida Discount Center, Pizza Hut, Quality Foods Center, Runza Restaurant, State Farm Insurance Co., Wayne Greenhouse and W.C. Korn.

Prizes earned for the money collected by the students will arrive in approximately six to eight weeks.

Simpson said many families have been helped by the advances made possible by the American Heart Association because of the generosity shown by residents such as those in Wayne.

"The research has advanced treatment, surgery and care," said Simpson, adding that although education has helped reduce cardiovascular disease it still claims more lives than other diseases.

"By continuing education programs related to better choices of foods, the quantity of food we consume, staying active, reducing smoking and alcohol consumption and getting adequate rest, we will continue to help friends and relatives live longer and more productive lives."

Waynian is member of leadership team

Dick Sorensen of Wayne participated with over 75 other citizen leaders from 21 states at the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC) Lay Leaders Seminar, held March 14-16 at the National 4-H Center just outside Washington, D.C.

Community leaders attend this annual leadership development event, bringing knowledge about problems and concerns they feel the land-grant university system should address. The seminar, in turn, invokes participants in prioritizing issues and preparing to bring them to the attention of the appropriate local, state and national leaders. Delegates are invited to attend by administrators associated with their respective land-grant institutions.

During this year's seminar, delegates took part in "town meeting" discussions of issues affecting children, youth and families, food safety, rebuilding rural America, health care and community diversity. Discussions organized by region brought delegates together with other leaders to identify trends that cut across state borders and to analyze their implications.

Major speakers addressing the group included Dr. Richard Sauer, President and Chief Executive Officer of the National 4-H Council; and Dr. Raymond Miller, President of the Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The University of Nebraska had three citizen leaders participating in this year's seminar.

The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, the nation's oldest higher education association, represents 161 public universities across the United States. NASULGC supports and encourages the research, teaching, extension and public service activities of its member institutions.

Construction project nears completion

Spring talk; is it cold or moisture?

No, we have not been affected by the flood. But it isn't very far from us. A week ago, when the Interstate was closed, the traffic past our house and highway 50 was unbelievable. I've concluded that half of Omaha's population works in Lincoln and vice versa. Add those cars to trucks and all other intrastate traffic, and you have bumper to bumper.

The Platte has created new channels, flooding roads and fields, but diverting water from its usual course. There are some lakeside homes that have only sand in front of them now. But I'm sure that's better than a house full of mud. We could hear the dynamite all day yesterday, as farmers attempted to break up the ice.

The Big Farmer made a trip to the farm to empty the machine shed on Monday. He reported chunks of topic of Spring. It seems to be a long time coming. It reminds me of 1983, the year I began this weekly synopsis. It had been a cold, snowy winter that year and a cold, wet spring. Many of my early columns dwelled on the weather.

Folks have asked how the Farmer is taking the transition. He has made many trips back, because he still has cows there. (You cannot have a farm sale and sell all livestock in the same year; the taxes would wipe you out.)

Mike has said for years that he would not mind snow if he didn't have to get out in it. On Sunday mornings, when the white stuff had accumulated and the wind chill was below zero, I ran to the mail box to get the Sunday paper. Then we had our coffee, read the news, looked out the windows, and said, "Now, this is luxury!"

Young entrepreneur makes it in hog production

By Dianne Jaeger
Winside Correspondent

With a little knowledge and experience, combined with a lot of enthusiasm and family support, rural teenagers can become young businessmen and women.

Those ingredients contributed to the making of a 13-year-old entrepreneur from Winside — Bryan Deck.

Bryan, son of Rod and Patty Deck, joined the Blue Ribbon Winners 4-H Club when he was nine years old. His parents have a Grade A dairy herd, and consequently Bryan showed dairy animals his first year at the Wayne County Fair.

Through the club and while watching other 4-H members show their swine animals, Bryan became interested in raising pigs.

In 1991 he purchased eight feeder pigs, each weighing 65 pounds, at a cost of $75 per pig.

Since their farm wasn't set up for a pig operation, Bryan made his own facility with the use of a shed his dad let him have and which previously had been used for calving.

Bryan insulated the walls and later added farrowing crates that were given to him by a friend, Herb Jaeger.

BRYAN purchases all his own commercial feed and vet supplies and vaccinates the pigs himself. The corn he feeds he gets from his dad and earns by doing chores around the farm.

"I took four of my eight hogs to the fair the first year," says Bryan, "but I didn't do very well. I got mostly red ribbons, except I took third place in the rate of gain division with a 283 pound hog. I really liked showing the hogs and the bonus auction was great."

Bryan's first adventure with his pigs was not a profitable one. The market went down, Bryan lost money, but he refused to become discouraged.

The next year, the Winside youth decided it would be more profitable to raise his own pigs. He purchased two gilts (sows which haven't yet given birth) with his auction money, and for $175 acquired a Hampshire/Duroc boar for breeding purposes.

"A friend and neighbor, Marty Wittler, came over a lot to assist me while the sows were birthing," says Bryan, adding that Richard Janssen from his 4-H club was also a big help. Between the two sows, they had 16 pigs.

RISING AT 6:45 a.m. every morning to clean pens and feed and water the pigs, only to repeat the procedure again after school, has taught 13-year-old Bryan Deck the value of hard work and responsibility.

"I took four of these hogs to the fair and this time received blues and purple in the carcass division placing sixth," smiles Bryan.

THIS YEAR, Bryan held back four gilts from his litter and bred them to expand his herd.

"The boar we were using wasn't of very good quality, so I decided to try my luck at artificial insemination," explains Bryan. "I watched a video on how to artificially inseminate and read all the articles I could find."

"A friend gave me a catalog to order semen from, and I purchased enough to inseminate three sows. It costs $40 a bottle and it takes two bottles per sow. The semen arrives packed in ice and needs to be kept stored at 64 degrees or it won't be any good.

"Timing is the most important thing," emphasizes Bryan. "You can only inseminate when the sow is in standing heat. You use a melrose rod and have to repeat the procedure in 12 hours."

"Of the three sows I inseminated, only two were bred so you can see it can be pretty costly."

"Of the two gilts which were inseminated, one yielded 12 pigs. The other only had four live births. Three others were born dead because they were too big for the first time gilt," explains Bryan.

The other sows bred by the boar had a total of 42 more pigs, making Bryan the proud owner of 60 pigs total.

BRYAN HAS now purchased a white line good genetic Yorkshire/Landrace cross boar which cost him $600. He also plans to purchase a 16 sow farrowing house from a neighbor.

Bryan gets up every morning at 6:45 a.m. to clean the pens, feed and water the pigs before school.

Applicators are certified

More than 120 Nebraskans earned certification as custom applicators at an intensive, statewide training seminar held March 2-4 at Central Community College (CCC)-Hastings campus. The annual event was sponsored by the Nebraska Fertilizer and Ag-Chemical Institute and CCC's Agriculture Department and was designed for fertilizer and agricultural chemical applicators.

Participants learned about new technology, safety procedures and environmental regulations. They also learned how to handle complaints professionally, calibrate equipment, use new computerized monitors and do a professional job as an applicator for Nebraska's farmers.

Area individuals who attended the seminar and became certified custom applicators included Michael Isom and Dwaine Oswald of Allén, and Kevin Hammer of Wayne.

4-H volunteer numbers up

At 17,908 strong, the number of 4-H volunteers in Nebraska last year was the highest ever, according to William Caldwell, assistant director for 4-H Youth Development at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Four-H volunteers will be recognized in conjunction with National Volunteer Week, April 18-24.

"We are excited about the increase in the number of volunteers, as it allows more individual attention to members of the 4-H clubs," Caldwell said.

Of the 4-H volunteers in Nebraska, 15,024 are adults and 2,884 are youth, Caldwell noted. These figures include volunteers serving on 4-H councils, those delivering the program directly to youth in 4-H project-subject matter, and the community 4-H clubs.

"We are equally excited about the increasing number of teen volunteers working directly with 4-H clubs in several different capacities," Caldwell said.

Without volunteers, the 4-H program would be severely limited or non-existent, Caldwell said, because volunteers are the backbone of 4-H. Nationally, Nebraska is recognized as having one of the best 4-H volunteer systems supporting the local club structure, Caldwell said. Nebraska 4-H also has a reputation for providing quality development experiences to volunteers wishing to expand skills and personal growth.

In addition to regular volunteers, Caldwell also credited parents and other adults who transport kids, open their homes for meetings and project activities, and share special talents.

Recent statistics show that 98 million Americans contributed an average of five hours a week of their time volunteering in various capacities, including 4-H.

Profits remain in beef

Although forecasters predict beef prices to lower over the next two to three years, producers can still profit from the beef enterprise, according to an agricultural economist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Allen Wellman said that while it may be difficult to image downward trending beef prices for fed cattle, which are reportedly high, that is the forecast trend.

Once prices decline, most cow owners increase cow slaughter by putting more heifers in the feedlot rather than back into the herd, the livestock marketing specialist said. This move increases beef supplies and pressures prices.

"Producers must plan to take advantage of opportunities rather than simply reacting to problems," Wellman said. "This may be the time to look at keeping fewer heifers and culling cows to maintain or possibly reducing herd size."

Wellman said beef and cattle prices usually bottom out near the beginning of a decade and peak near the middle. He said the 10- to 12-year cycle of liquidating cattle numbers followed by expanding inventories has been fairly predictable since the early 1900s.

During the last turn of the cattle cycle, total numbers peaked in 1983 and fed cattle prices bottomed out the summer of 1985.

The current cycle probably started in January 1990, he said. The beef heifer inventory suggests that producers are increasing their herds and the beef cow inventory is slowly responding.

Beef replacement heifer numbers increased 4 percent in 1991, 3 percent in 1992, and 7 percent in 1993, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist reported.

"Moving heifers to the feedlot keep them from going back into the herd making them relatively high-priced cows," Wellman said. "These high-priced cows produce lower-priced calves over the next two to three years."

However, in a couple of years, as cattle inventories peak and prices decline, the opportunity cost of a heifer going back into the herd is lower, he said. As the cycle moves into the contraction phase, market prices trending upward and the low-cost cows produce relatively high-price calves.

The 1993 calf crop is expected to be 1 to 2 percent above 1992, he said. The July 1993 and January 1994 beef cow inventory also will show a slightly lower increase than in recent years.

Wellman concluded that skilled cattle managers watch factors impacting current cattle markets for future potential use.

NEW HOUSING LAW: Thirty years ago, there was a change in the way public housing regulations defined the term, elderly. The new definition applied not just to persons over a certain age, but also to people of any age who have some type of physical disability. Then, in 1973, the definition of disabled was broadened to include anyone with a mental disability.

As a result, complexes originally built to house older persons were increasingly being occupied by young people with physical or mental disabilities. According to Don Redfoot, legislative representative for the American Association of Retired Persons, over 50 percent of new admissions to these facilities in 1991 have been younger people, effectively excluding older persons from the housing projects they had expected to live in.

Last year, an attempt was finally made to correct the situation. Congress passed legislation which is, as the AARP describes it, essentially a compromise between the elderly and the disabled communities. The new law allows providers of publicly-financed housing to make the determination that certain projects will admit only older persons. The law also sets aside funds to pay for alternative living arrangements for disabled younger people who may be excluded from those projects.

The new legislation should effectively stop the steady loss of housing for the elderly, and begin to increase the numbers of units available to them. However, changes will take place over time. For one thing, the new law rightfully forbids displacing any disabled person currently in possession of a unit. For another, compromises will need to be worked out to provide accommodations to both the elderly and the disabled.

MAIL CALL: Responding to the column about requiring adult children to care for their elderly parents, an Ohio reader writes, in part, "As an elderly parent, I am strongly opposed to the idea of children being financially or otherwise forced to care for their aging parents. I say this even though I am, literally, a 'poor' widow... I believe children of elderly parents have enough problems to contend with: financial worries, rearing their own children (and I pray I may never be a burden to my children... I cared for my parents physically, not financially. But in the process I neglected my older child who needed me, and as a result is suffering from emotional problems now."

The GOLDEN YEARS

by Pat Lichty

Audrey Hepburn didn't make many movies, but starred in some of the most memorable — "My Fair Lady," "Roman Holiday" and "Breakfast at Tiffany's". Except for an appearance in a 1989 film, she bowed out of movie-making in 1965 when her oldest child started school. "I never retired" she told an interviewer, "and I'd love it if I were offered the right movie role." But she would accept only if it didn't interfere with her work as goodwill ambassador for UNICEF.

Zeke and Edith Mills, married 50 years, started film careers four years after Zeke retired in San Antonio, Texas, as an Air Force logistics specialist. Zeke had acted in church plays, so Edith encouraged him to audition with her for roles in the 1979 Ellen Burstyn movie, "Resurrection." They played an aunt and uncle in several scenes. Then they appeared in "Bill on His Own," starring Mickey Rooney, and "A Pair of Aces," with Willie Nelson and Kris Kristofferson in lead roles. Now they have an agent and do movies and commercials "for fun" as well as pay.
