

Frauds prey on senior citizens says specialist

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Hardly a day goes by in the State Attorney General's office that there isn't a new report filed of a Nebraska senior citizen who was victimized in a consumer fraud case according to Dan Parsons, senior consumer specialist.

"Schemers play on the fears of older persons, wear them down, gain their confidence and increase their sense of helplessness," said Parsons as he talked to nearly 100 Wayne area senior citizens during a seminar on avoiding fraud. Parsons was in Wayne last week to talk to seniors as part of the State National Bank and Trust Company's Century Club series.

PARSONS CITED the most common "scams" in Nebraska today include living trusts, prize giveaways, home repair fraud, credit card fraud, travel fraud and pyramid schemes.

"Most businesses are honest legitimate operations run by honest, hard-working people," said Parsons. "However, there are those who are in business simply to get rich any way they can."

Currently many senior home owners are planning for spring home repairs, and that is one area where schemers often prey on victims, he said. Of the $105 billion Americans spend on home repairs and improvements each year, said Parsons, over $1 billion is lost to frauds and scams.

DOING BUSINESS locally with a well-established contractor, asking for references and demanding that the promises be put in writing are several ways to avoid becoming a victim, he said. Inspecting the work before paying for it is another good idea, he said.

In areas of financial investment and estate planning, Parsons suggested seniors should consult with their attorneys before deciding between living trusts and wills. He encouraged them not to be pressured into making

Foreign student graduates 'mid emotion

By LaVon Anderson

Wayne High School's foreign exchange student bid a fond farewell to classmates and faculty during a special ceremony held Monday afternoon in the high school's lecture hall.

Dan Burget, who made his home during the past year with Donna Liska and the late Dr. J.J. Liska, left with his parents Tuesday morning to tour the United States for one month before returning to their home in Czechoslovakia.

Since he will not be here when Wayne High School seniors receive their graduation diplomas on May 23, Dan was presented his diploma on Monday afternoon by Dr. Sid Hillier, president of the Wayne board of education.

Guidance Counselor Terry Munson thanked Dan for sharing his customs and country during the past year and for the talents he brought with him to Wayne High, especially in the areas of music and tennis.

On hand to witness their son receiving his diploma were Dan's parents, Dagmar and Bohumil Burget, who arrived in Wayne a week ago.

"I WANT to thank all of you who came to say good-by to me and for everything you did for me," Dan told his classmates. "You treated me very, very nice. We had a lot of fun — at least I had a lot of fun."

Dan told the Wayne High seniors that he will never forget Wayne and he takes home with him many beautiful memories. "I'm going to tell people that Nebraska is the best place.

"It is the same everywhere," added Dan. "There are good people and bad people. I'm very, very glad to have met only the good people in Nebraska."

"Thank you for sharing with me. It was a wonderful, wonderful experience and I'm never going to forget about you."

Dan told the students that they are welcome to visit his country and stay with him. He also showed them a book about Czechoslovakia which will be placed in the school's library.

"If you are interested in where I'm from, you can go to the library anytime. I'm pretty sure that you'd love my country to."

IN ADDITION to receiving his diploma, Dan was presented a special plaque from Jessica Wilson on behalf of the Wayne High School seniors.

He also was presented several musical honors by Kathryn Ley, vocal music director, and joined the choir in singing one final number together.

Before making his way from the halls of Wayne High School for the final time, Dan was the recipient of many hugs and handshakes.

"I'm going to miss you all. You can believe that!"

Tragic farm mishap claims Winside boy

A seven-year-old Winside youth was pronounced dead on arrival at Providence Medical Center in Wayne Saturday morning following a farm accident.

Deputy Wayne County Attorney Chris Connolly said the accident, which claimed the life of Justin Brugger, occurred on the Duane Kay farm located approximately eight and one-half miles south of Wayne.

Justin was riding in a tractor being operated by Bob Reinhardt when he leaned against the door of the cab and fell out. Connolly said Justin was run over by the wheels before the tractor could be stopped.

The deputy county sheriff was called to the scene, however Connolly pointed out that the accident is not being formally investigated.

GRAVESIDE services for Justin, son of Erv and Doreen Bilbrey Brugger of Winside, were conducted Monday morning, April 26, at 10:30 a.m. at Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne, with the Rev. Don Nunnally officiating.

Justin Paul Brugger was born June 5, 1985 at Norfolk. He lived in Boulder, Wyo. before moving to Wayne in 1988.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church in Wayne and a first grader at District 51 country school located west of Wayne.

In addition to his parents, Justin is survived by one brother, Lucas; one sister, Kaitlin; grandmother Donna Frevert of Wakefield; and great grandmother Olga Brugger of Wayne. He was preceded in death by his great grandfather.

Newspaper staff wins state honors

Wayne Herald staff members garnered eight awards at the annual Nebraska Press Association Better Newspaper Contest. The Herald was honored for feature writing, advertising, promotion, sports, printing, and photography.

The awards were announced at association's convention held over the weekend in Omaha.

Cited for first place honors among the largest weekly newspapers in the state was Herald News Editor LaVon Anderson. The award was presented for a feature about Lynnette Larson of Wakefield who was reunited with a sister she never knew she had.

THE JUDGES, newspaper professionals from South Dakota, also said the Herald had printed the best single black and white advertisement in the state in its class in 1992, a Memorial Day Grocery ad for Quality Food Center.

The entire Herald staff was awarded yet another first place for promotion efforts surrounding National Newspaper Week last fall.

Herald Press Foreman Al Pippitt was also instrumental in the receipt of another first place award — this one for color advertising. The award went to the Wisner News-Chronicle but the production work on the full color advertisement was done by Pippitt and his crew at the Herald.

The Herald's series of advertisements for the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce on the theme, "Shopping in Wayne Just Makes Sense" were judged second place in the contest.

THIRD PLACE honors were awarded to the Herald's Lifestyle sec-

The judges also cited Peterson and Photographer Bob Berry for Honorable Mention honors for a sports column and an accident photo.

"We are encouraged that the support we receive from the Northeast Nebraska community allows us to be recognized professionally," said Publisher Les Mann. He said the newspaper's awards are as much a tribute to the paper's support from the community as they are a tribute to the hard work of staff members.

Aspiring authors

Amy Hypse and Andrew McDonald, above, represented St. Mary's School in Wayne at the Aspiring Young Authors Festival held April 17 in South Sioux City. Amy and Andrew are both kindergartners and the children of Don and Terri Hypse and Cheryl McDonald. The two are wearing hats because this year's festival speaker, noted author Elaine Moore, is known as the "hat lady." Representing Wayne Middle School at the festival was Amy Magnuson, at right, daughter of Larry and Jan Magnuson and a fifth grader. All three competed on the local level in their respective schools and were chosen to attend the festival. This year's festival was the second annual and Moore's appearance was sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Reading Council. During the past six years, Moore has presented in over 300 schools, PTA meetings, conventions and writing seminars across the United States and into Canada.

'Part of our Past'

By The State National Bank
And Trust Company

Look into the Ley store in its early years! There was a free tobacco box--help yourself. The pickle barrel was right out in front and easy to sample. The cheese was screened but convenient. Dried fruits were popular and they were dug out of boxes. Two or three shades of sugar--no granulated or lump--were dealt out to customers from barrels. Coffee was green and was scooped out of a barrel to be roasted and ground for the housewife. Nothing sold in cartons or other containers. Everything was ladled from the bulk. The first bunch of bananas at the Ley store was proudly displayed, and each customer was treated to a banana. It was such an advanced step in luxury that the town's newspapers expressed the wave of local interest.

Volunteer week is here

Dear Editor:
National Volunteer Week is upon us. Haven House would like to take this time to express our sincere appreciation for the many hours (over 8,500) volunteers have given to the agency this year.

Volunteers who work for Haven House, which is a non-profit agency that provides services to survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault, give their time by taking crisis line shifts and acting as client advocates.

They provide crisis intervention support, office assistance and emergency transportation. They also assist with medical and court advocacy and educational presentations. At times, this work can be emotionally draining.

Our volunteers occasionally miss meals with family and friends, a school function, a class or a good night's sleep. They rarely have the opportunity to see the end result of

Volunteers for Haven House know that domestic violence is a serious, wide-spread problem that affects our society as a whole.

Without support from these very dedicated people, Haven House's work toward ending violence in the counties of Dakota, Dixon, Cedar, Thurston and Wayne would be very difficult.

Due to the nature of our work, Haven House will not publish names of volunteers. We do want them to know that their hard work never goes unnoticed.

They have touched the lives of many people by giving their time to this agency, and they have made a difference. For this, we are extremely grateful. Thank you.

Leave smokers alone

Dear Editor:
Gov. Ben Nelson is after smokers again. That's hardly news. What's interesting — or rather confounding — is his latest reason to raise the state's cigarette tax 7 cents, to 34 cents a pack, and dump legislators' plans for a 5 percent tax on soda pop.

The governor asked, "Why would we single out a certain thing to tax? Why not a tax on potato chips?" — then made it clear he was not advocating a tax on potato chips.

What was he advocating? Apparently, the notion that some things, like cigarettes and alcoholic beverages, are supposed to be BAD for you, so there's a good reason to tax them. If that's the case, governor, maybe you'd better stick with that potato chip tax.

After all, how many doctors and nutritionists will tell you potato chips are GOOD for you? They're loaded with calories and fat and salt — which lead to obesity, clogged arteries and high-blood pressure.

Come to think of it, maybe you'd better add soda pop to the list of items to tax. That's not really good for you either, is it? And don't forget red meat, butter, sugar and about half the other items on supermarket shelves.

It's an exaggeration to say that smokers are responsible for the skyrocketing costs of Medicaid in our state. People who use any of the items listed above, by that line of reasoning, are just as responsible.

If the governor really wants to know what's driving Medicaid costs through the roof, just let him take a close look at what doctors and hospitals are charging for treatment these days.

The 'Big Boss' visits Nebraska

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Have you heard about the time Bill and Hillary Clinton (or is that Hillary and Bill) were driving around in Arkansas and went by a gas station.

"Look," Hillary said, "I know that guy pumping gas over there. He used to be my boyfriend in high school."

"Just think," Bill said, "if you'd married him you'd be here working at a gas station right now."

"No," Hillary said, "if I had married him he would be president."

Yes, they say Hillary Clinton is a very powerful woman. Maybe she isn't president, as some like to suggest, but she's certainly playing a vital role in heading her husband's effort to draft a health care plan for the nation.

She was in Nebraska last week talking up the effort.

AND THOUGH the state gave her husband the lowest vote percentage he received in the nation, she got a nice reception. Personally, I like the lady. I'm not intimidated by a woman with brains and I'd certainly rather have her putting her brains to use for the country instead of spending her time playing in the rose garden or baking cookies for Bill.

I don't think there's any question health care is the biggest problem facing the nation.

As Hillary mentioned, 40 million Americans have no insurance and another 22 million have bare bones coverage that won't cover anything really, really bad that happened to them.

At the same time, the cost of health care is growing like crazy, taking up huge portions of the GNP. Doctors, insurance companies, hospitals and drug companies all like to blame each other for the rising costs, but nothing seems to be done about them.

THE BASIS of the Clinton plan is to provide universal health care for everyone. Everyone would be provided a basis level of insurance either by their employer or through government insurance pools and no one would be denied the treatment they need.

It's certainly a more fair system than we have right now, but it will have a big cost, which means one thing — more taxes.

The tax Clinton is looking at right now is called a value-added tax. It's kind of complicated, but what it is, is a super sales tax. Each time value is added to a product during the production process, that increased value is taxed and the consumer ends up paying for the whole thing in the end.

It would hurt in the pocket book and will obviously be the most controversial part of the plan. We'll have a lot of debate.

BUT AS YOU think about the increased taxes that would go for paying for health care, just remember you're already paying a lot hidden taxes for health care today.

Right now there's a thing called cost-shifting, whereby medical service is provided for the people who don't have insurance and then hospitals make up for it by charging the people who do have insurance more. That increased cost is a tax and an insidious one at that.

So don't reject any proposal just because it includes a tax. The bottom line is, this health care situation needs to be brought under control. And I just hope the big boss or Bill can do something about it.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Morefuns hear a 'spat remover'

"Hurry Homer! We have to get to church early to find a good back-seat."

"Yes, dear. I'm all dressed up and ready to glow."

"Remember dear, don't sing loud 'cause you sound like a frog with a man in its throat. Straighten yer tie."

"Yes, dear. It's a purty mornin' but it sounds just a bit like you're cloudin' up for a squall."

"Not really, I jist don't wanta be late. Did you know I jist weighed and I lost two pounds!"

"What'd you do hon, take a bath?"

"Be careful ol' man or you're gonna have a compound fracture of yer thoughtlessness."

"Jist kiddin' ya. Hope they have the nursery runnin'. That way babies can have one wail of a time an' it won't bother nobody."

"They're havin' a gust of honor speakin' today. He's a marriage counselor, one of those spat removers."

"No doubt he'll only look on the bride-side of life."

"Now don't stew in yer own prejudices. Yer mom always did that. She's so prejudiced she won't even listen to both sides of a cassette!"

"Yer gift of jab is workin' jist fine, Dora. Let's leave ma out of this."

"WELL, I guess we're ready to go. What's that opinion on yer face?"

"Nuthin', jist a get-ahead ache. I'm tryin' to git my conscience adjusted for church."

"By conscience, I s'pose ya mean that still small voice of yers that usually has acoustical problems! Heh, heh!"

"Dora, yer a poor listener 'cause it always interferes with what yer want to say."

"I know dear. That's jist one of my short comin's. It's always been easy for me to see the cloud in somebody else's silver lining."

"Finally found my keys. Let's go."

"WE'RE IN luck, Homer. Let's jist sit here on the back row next to the aisle. Reverend Longtalker will speak right after the choir sings."

"Listen to that choir! If that don't soften yer hearteries!"

"That's Priscilla Shrilnote singin' the solo. As a soprano she's always been good sailin' over the high C's."

"And she's real good with those there air-cooled teeth!"

"Sh-sh-shhh! The reverend is gonna talk. The bulletin sez his subject is 'How To Know If You're Growing Older.'"

"Good mourning ladies and gentlemen. My topic is targeted toward those over fifty. That's a time in your life when everything hurts and what doesn't hurt doesn't work. You've got too much room in the house and not enough room in your medicine cabinet. Talking to your spouse is like trying to get on a merry-go-round after it started!"

"DORA, DID ya hear that? He's talkin' right at us! He jist sed my back goes out more often than I do!"

"He's right hon. I knew ya wuz gittin' old when the gleam in yer eye wuz from the sun hittin' yer trifocals. Heh, heh!"

"Dearly beloved," Rev. Longtalker continued, "When your knees buckle but your belt won't, when you sink your teeth into a steak and they stay there, you must anticipate the judgment day approaching. When you sit in your rocking chair and you can't get it going, it is a sign you need to seriously think about the hereafter!"

"Dora, the preacher don't know half of how I think 'bout the hereafter. Evertime I go into another room I stop an' ask, now what did I come in here after?"

"It's comfortin' to know though, Homer, that it's happenin' to all our friends too. The best part of their day is over when their alarm goes off. Heh, heh!"

"I've noticed it creepin' up on me, like when I dial long distance it wears me out."

"O hon, you even gits winded eatin' yer Wheaties."

"Now, babe, don't use me as a wastebasket for yer worries!"

"In conclusion," the Rev. Longtalker said, "I want each of you to take strength in your faith knowing that regardless of age, few folk ever grow up — they jist change their toys. The only one of your toys that will last forever is your love. Good day! See you next Sunday!"

"THAT preacher was some talker, Homer! An' I understand he practices what he preaches."

"Shucks, Dora, 'cept for the censor, we could preach what we practice. S'pose we oughta change our ways?"

"Probly 'cause mamma always sed if yer religion don't change you, you'd better change yer religion!"

"Well, I don't wanta belong to any church that would accept me as a member!"

"It's been a beautiful mornin' though and I'm glad we went to church."

"Me too, hon. I'd even hug today if I could jist git my arms 'round it."

"Hug me instead. Like the Reverend sed, we're jist two peevies in a pxxl!"

Say again?

Who's impressed with that jargon?

I get miffed when someone uses professional jargon to try to convey a message to a non-professional moron like me.

I was reminded of this pet peeve recently when the National Weather Service issued a severe thunder storm watch for "an area along and 70 miles either side of a line extending 140 statute miles from a point approximately 16 miles southeast of Chamberlain, S.D. to a point 5 miles southwest of LeMars, Iowa."

Oh come on! Where is it really?

By the time you've gotten out your map, your rulers, your calipers and your book of facts (to look up the difference between a statute mile and a normal mile) the dang storm is in your face.

And was that a watch or a warning?

Why don't they tell us this important, indeed lifesaving information in terms we can understand?

"If you live in Northeast Nebraska watch out, there's a good chance you could get clobbered by heavy rain, winds and lightning," conveys the appropriate message for a storm watch.

And a warning...

"TAKE COVER YOU IDIOT, IT'S COMING RIGHT FOR YOU!"

Now those are terms we can all understand. Sadly enough, the weather service isn't the only group that uses hard to follow jargon. People in education take the cake.

I was appalled not long ago when I read in a news article about a school board meeting (yes, in this paper) that a school is not a school anymore. It's an "attendance center."

Using sixteen letters to describe the same thing that a six letter word describes is just plain wasteful.

If everybody uses "attendance center" to describe school, we'll have to cut down 2000 more trees to make the additional paper it will take to hold all those extra letters. We'll have to pump 200 more barrels of oil to make the ink to write it all.

That proves, besides being less clear, it's ecologically unsound to call a school an attendance center.

And what could be more wasteful than the jargon of the young... ya know, cool dude.

I can almost accept the dudes and babes lexicon of the young if it weren't for the vulgarities that seem to be such a common part of their language.

What used to be the most vile and vulgar obscenities known to the English language are now as common as "uh". They are uttered every 5 minutes in all the popular movies.

And young people don't seem to be able to describe anything of importance without one of the seven vulgar words. They ignore the 300,000 other descriptive words in the English language and limit themselves to using those seven over and over again.

They've taught us a whole new meaning to the word recycle.

In each of these cases, when the user of the jargon tries to convey a message to the uninitiated in their language, more often than not, the wrong message comes across.

Use plain English please.

Aspiring authors

Amy Hyspe and Andrew McDonald, above, represented St. Mary's School in Wayne at the Aspiring Young Authors Festival held April 17 in South Sioux City. Amy and Andrew are both kindergartners and the children of Don and Terri Hyspe and Cheryl McDonald. The two are wearing hats because this year's festival speaker, noted author Elaine Moore, is known as the "hat lady." Representing Wayne Middle School at the festival was Amy Magnuson, at right, daughter of Larry and Jan Magnuson and a fifth grader. All three competed on the local level in their respective schools and were chosen to attend the festival. This year's festival was the second annual and Moore's appearance was sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Reading Council. During the past six years, Moore has presented in over 300 schools, PTA meetings, conventions and writing seminars across the United States and into Canada.

What's the best way to prepare and cook vegetables so that they don't lose their valuable nutrients? Preparing them in your microwave oven is considered the best way because it requires brief cooking time and not very much water. Steaming your vegetables is also a healthy choice.

'Part of our Past'

By The State National Bank
And Trust Company

Look into the Ley store in its early years! There was a free tobacco box--help yourself. The pickle barrel was right out in front and easy to sample. The cheese was screened but convenient. Dried fruits were popular and they were dug out of boxes. Two or three shades of sugar--no granulated or lump--were dealt out to customers from barrels. Coffee was green and was scooped out of a barrel to be roasted and ground for the housewife. Nothing sold in cartons or other containers. Everything was ladled from the bulk. The first bunch of bananas at the Ley store was proudly displayed, and each customer was treated to a banana. It was such an advanced step in luxury that the town's newspapers expressed the wave of local interest.

Volunteer week is here

Dear Editor:
National Volunteer Week is upon us. Haven House would like to take this time to express our sincere appreciation for the many hours (over 8,500) volunteers have given to the agency this year.
Volunteers who work for Haven House, which is a non-profit agency that provides services to survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault, give their time by taking crisis line shifts and acting as client advocates.
They provide crisis intervention support, office assistance and emergency transportation. They also assist with medical and court advocacy and educational presentations. At times, this work can be emotionally draining.
Our volunteers occasionally miss meals with family and friends, a school function, a class or a good night's sleep. They rarely have the opportunity to see the end result of

Volunteers for Haven House know that domestic violence is a serious, wide-spread problem that affects our society as a whole.
Without support from these very dedicated people, Haven House's work toward ending violence in the counties of Dakota, Dixon, Cedar, Thurston and Wayne would be very difficult.
Due to the nature of our work, Haven House will not publish names of volunteers. We do want them to know that their hard work never goes unnoticed.
They have touched the lives of many people by giving their time to this agency, and they have made a difference. For this, we are extremely grateful. Thank you.

Leave smokers alone

Dear Editor:
Gov. Ben Nelson is after smokers again. That's hardly news. What's interesting — or rather confounding — is his latest reason to raise the state's cigarette tax 7 cents, to 34 cents a pack, and dump legislators' plans for a 5 percent tax on soda pop.
The governor asked, "Why would we single out a certain thing to tax? Why not a tax on potato chips?" — then made it clear he was not advocating a tax on potato chips.
What was he advocating? Apparently, the notion that some things, like cigarettes and alcoholic beverages, are supposed to be BAD for you, so there's a good reason to tax them. If that's the case, governor, maybe you'd better stick with that potato chip tax.
After all, how many doctors and nutritionists will tell you potato chips are GOOD for you? They're loaded with calories and fat and salt — which lead to obesity, clogged arteries and high-blood pressure.

Come to think of it, maybe you'd better add soda pop to the list of items to tax. That's not really good for you either, is it? And don't forget red meat, butter, sugar and about half the other items on supermarket shelves.
It's an exaggeration to say that smokers are responsible for the skyrocketing costs of Medicaid in our state. People who use any of the items listed above, by that line of reasoning, are just as responsible.
If the governor really wants to know what's driving Medicaid costs through the roof, just let him take a close look at what doctors and hospitals are charging for treatment these days.

The 'Big Boss' visits Nebraska

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Have you heard about the time Bill and Hillary Clinton (or is that Hillary and Bill) were driving around in Arkansas and went by a gas station.
"Look," Hillary said, "I know that guy pumping gas over there. He used to be my boyfriend in high school."
"Just think," Bill said, "if you'd married him you'd be here working at a gas station right now."
"No," Hillary said, "if I had married him he would be president."
Yes, they say Hillary Clinton is a very powerful woman. Maybe she isn't president, as some like to suggest, but she's certainly playing a vital role in heading her husband's effort to draft a health care plan for the nation.

She was in Nebraska last week talking up the effort.
AND THOUGH the state gave her husband the lowest vote percentage he received in the nation, she got a nice reception. Personally, I like the lady. I'm not intimidated by a woman with brains and I'd certainly rather have her putting her brains to use for the country instead of spending her time playing in the rose garden or baking cookies for Bill.

I don't think there's any question health care is the biggest problem facing the nation.
As Hillary mentioned, 40 million Americans have no insurance and another 22 million have bare bones coverage that won't cover anything really, really bad that happened to them.
At the same time, the cost of health care is growing like crazy, taking up huge portions of the GNP. Doctors, insurance companies, hospitals and drug companies all like to blame each other for the rising costs, but nothing seems to be done about them.

THE BASIS of the Clinton plan is to provide universal health care for everyone. Everyone would be provided a basis level of insurance either by their employer or through government insurance pools and no one would be denied the treatment they need.
It's certainly a more fair system than we have right now, but it will have a big cost, which means one thing — more taxes.
The tax Clinton is looking at right now is called a value-added tax. It's kind of complicated, but what it is, is a super sales tax. Each time value is added to a product during the production process, that increased value is taxed and the consumer ends up paying for the whole thing in the end.
It would hurt in the pocket book and will probably be the most controversial part of the plan. We'll have a lot of debate.

BUT AS YOU think about the increased taxes that would go for paying for health care, just remember you're already paying a lot hidden taxes for health care today.
Right now there's a thing called cost-shifting, whereby medical service is provided for the people who don't have insurance and then hospitals make up for it by charging the people who do have insurance more. That increased cost is a tax and an insidious one at that.
So don't reject any proposal just because it includes a tax. The bottom line is, this health care situation needs to be brought under control. And I just hope the big boss or Bill can do something about it.
The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Morefuns hear a 'spat remover'

"Hurry Homer! We have to get to church early to find a good back-seat."
"Yes, dear. I'm all dressed up and ready to glow."
"Remember dear, don't sing loud 'cause you sound like a frog with a man in its throat. Straighten yer tie."
"Yes, dear. It's a purty mornin', but it sounds just a bit like you're cloudin' up for a squall."
"Not really, I just don't wanta be late. Did you know I just weighed and I lost two pounds!"
"What'd you do hon, take a bath?"
"Be careful ol' man or you're gonna have a compound fracture of yer thoughtlessness."
"Jist kiddin' ya. Hope they have the nursery runnin'. That way babies can have one wail of a time and it won't bother nobody."
"They're havin' a gust of honor speakin' today. He's a marriage counselor, one of those spat removers."
"No doubt he'll only look on the bride-side of life."
"Now don't stew in yer own prejudices. Yer mom always did that. She's so prejudiced she won't even listen to both sides of a cassette!"

"It's been a beautiful mornin' though and I'm glad we went to church."
"Me too, hon. I'd even hug today if I could jist git my arms 'round it."
"Hug me instead. Like the Reverend sed, we're jist two peevies in a pod!"

"O hon, you even gits winded eatin' yer Wheaties."
"Now, babe, don't use me as a wastebasket for yer worries!"
"In conclusion," the Rev. Longtalker said, "I want each of you to take strength in your faith knowing that regardless of age, few folk ever grow up — they just change their toys. The only one of your toys that will last forever is your love. Good day! See you next Sunday!"
"THAT preacher was some talker, Homer! An' I understand he practices what he preaches."
"Shucks, Dora, 'cept for the censor, we could preach what we practice. S'pose we oughta change our ways?"
"Probly 'cause mamma always sed if yer religion don't change you, you'd better change yer religion!"
"Well, I don't wanta belong to any church that would accept me as a member!"
"It's been a beautiful mornin' though and I'm glad we went to church."
"Me too, hon. I'd even hug today if I could jist git my arms 'round it."
"Hug me instead. Like the Reverend sed, we're jist two peevies in a pod!"

Say again?

Who's impressed with that jargon?

I get miffed when someone uses professional jargon to try to convey a message to a non-professional moron like me.
I was reminded of this pet peeve recently when the National Weather Service issued a severe thunder storm watch for "an area along and 70 miles either side of a line extending 140 statute miles from a point approximately 16 miles southeast of Chamberlain, S.D. to a point 5 miles southwest of LeMars, Iowa."
Oh come on! Where is it really?
By the time you've gotten out your map, your rulers, your calipers and your book of facts (to look up the difference between a statute mile and a normal mile) the dang storm is in your face.
And was that a watch or a warning?
Why don't they tell us this important, indeed lifesaving information in terms we can understand?
"If you live in Northeast Nebraska watch out, there's a good chance you could get clobbered by heavy rain, winds and lightning," conveys the appropriate message for a storm watch.
And a warning...
"TAKE COVER YOU IDIOT, IT'S COMING RIGHT FOR YOU."
Now those are terms we can all understand. Sadly enough, the weather service isn't the only group that uses hard to follow jargon. People in education take the cake.
I was appalled not long ago when I read in a news article about a school board meeting (yes, in this paper) that a school is not a school anymore. It's an "attendance center."
Using sixteen letters to describe the same thing that a six letter word describes is just plain wasteful.
If everybody uses "attendance center" to describe school, we'll have to cut down 2000 more trees to make the additional paper it will take to hold all those extra letters. We'll have to pump 200 more barrels of oil to make the ink to write it all.
That proves, besides being less clear, it's ecologically unsound to call a school an attendance center.
And what could be more wasteful than the jargon of the young...ya know, cool dude.
I can almost accept the dudes and babes lexicon of the young if it weren't for the vulgarities that seem to be such a common part of their language.
What used to be the most vile and vulgar obscenities known to the English language are now as common as "uh". They are uttered every 5 minutes in all the popular movies.
And young people don't seem to be able to describe anything of importance without one of the seven vulgar words. They ignore the 300,000 other descriptive words in the English language and limit themselves to using those seven over and over again.
They've taught us a whole new meaning to the word recycle.
In each of these cases, when the user of the jargon tries to convey a message to the uninitiated in their language, more often than not, the wrong message comes across.
Use plain English please.

Several receive recognition Reading Association holds annual spring banquet at Wayne State

The Northeast Nebraska Chapter of the International Reading Association (IRA) held its annual spring banquet on April 15 at Wayne State College and recognized three charter members in attendance.

Those honored were Mrs. Eunice Behrens and Mrs. Anna McQuistan of Emerson and Mrs. Fauncil Bennett of Wayne.

Mrs. Behrens and Mrs. McQuistan are retired, and Mrs. Bennett serves as a librarian with Wayne Public Schools.

The Northeast Nebraska chapter was founded in July of 1967. Dr. Walter Peterson received organizational materials from international headquarters and 16 area teachers responded as charter members.

THIS YEAR'S banquet also included the presentation of the Celebrate Literacy award to the Wayne State Foundation. President of the foundation is Bob Reeg and vice president of development is Wayne Groner, who was on hand to accept the award.

The Wayne State Foundation was incorporated in 1961 by a group of businessmen as a vehicle through which individuals and businesses could make gifts to support scholarships. Although the work of the foundation has expanded since then to support many other Wayne State College programs, scholarships remain a high priority.

Private gifts for other purposes help support programs for faculty improvement, cultural outreach, sports activities, community and economic development in the Northeast Nebraska service area, and provide unrestricted funds which Wayne State College can use wherever the need is greatest.

During the 1991-92 fiscal year, private gifts to the foundation exceeded $1 million for the first time, and assets of the foundation exceeded $2 million for the first time. The number of alumni contributors was 33 percent of graduates, twice the national average for public colleges like Wayne State.

In nominating the foundation for the award, a spokesman for the Northeast Nebraska Chapter of IRA said the foundation has immensely helped the local council of IRA. Last year, they donated folders and pencils for the Aspiring Young Authors Festival. This year, the foundation printed the group's Image Brochure free of charge.

"Through this dedication to the enhancement of education of young people and adults in Northeast Nebraska, learning and achievement go hand in hand."

ALSO recognized as a recipient of the Friends of Reading award was Dr. Mary Arlene Schulz, of Elk Point, S.D., formerly of Wayne.

Schulz served as a reading instructor at Wayne State College for many years. In addition she served as a local officer of the Northeast Council of IRA and as a state officer of the Nebraska State Reading Council.

Past presidents of the Northeast Nebraska IRA were also recognized, along with administrators who were present from Wayne-Carroll, Norfolk, Randolph, South Sioux City, Stanton, Wakefield and Wayne County.

SPEAKER at the banquet was noted author Elaine Moore, who writes adult short fiction and award-winning books for children.

Moore was sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Reading Council in conducting the second annual Aspiring Young Authors Festival held April 17 in South Sioux City.

During the past six years, she has presented in over 300 schools (elementary through college level), PTA meetings, conventions and writing seminars across the United States and in Canada.

She has worked as a writer-in-residence at the elementary and secondary level and provided inservice work for librarians, media, reading specialists, and Chapter I teachers.

She has published six children's books, including "Grandma's House," which in 1985 was named one of the 10 best children's picture books by the Christian Science Monitor.

Another book, "Grandma's Promise," was placed on the International Reading Association's Children's Choice list. She has a new book out, entitled "Sarah With an H."

Augie visits Stepping Stones

Augie the Clown, played by the Rev. Mike Girlinghouse, gives a warm fuzzy to Anna Bondhus during a visit last week to Stepping Stones Preschool in Wayne. Anna is the daughter of JoAnn Bondhus. Director Diane Ehrhardt said Augie's visit coincided with the annual Week of the Young Child observance.

Television staff to 'brown bag it' at Wayne State

Nine employees from KTIV, channel 4, Sioux City, will be on campus Monday, May 3, for a "Brown Bag It" Town Hall meeting.

The public is invited to the session, which will be held in the North Dining Room of the Student Center from noon until approximately 1 p.m. Those attending the event may bring sack lunches, or they can go through the cafeteria line across the hall from the North Dining Room and bring their trays to the meeting.

News anchorman Larry Wentz, weatherwoman Cathy Egan and sports director Larry Puntney are scheduled to attend the informal session. They will be joined by general manager Bill Turner, news director Dave Nixon Jr., program director Dave Madsen, promotions director Jerry Johnson, sales manager Kim Cleaver and local sales manager Adrian Wisner.

KTIV representatives, the audience will be encouraged to ask questions about news, weather, sports, advertising, programming or anything else they are curious about, according to promotions manager Jerry Johnson.

"This is great opportunity for students, faculty and the Wayne community to meet KTIV air personalities and persons behind the scene at KTIV," says Jeff Beckman, director of college relations. "Wayne State College is looking forward to hosting this event because we value the public service KTIV provides the college, the community of Wayne and all of northeast Nebraska."

Seating will be limited to 250 persons, Beckman says. Persons will be seated on a first-come, first-served basis. Doors will open at 11:45 a.m. Cafeteria lunches will be $3.60. Parking will be available in the new lot east of the Student Center.

Adult Basic Education volunteers are honored

Approximately 65 area residents were honored April 20 at Northeast Community College for their volunteer work in Northeast's Adult Basic Education (ABE) Program.

They were recognized in conjunction with National Volunteer Week, April 18-24.

The volunteers were recognized for the 9,703 hours they've served since July 1, 1992. Volunteer responsibilities ranged from volunteer leaders to tutoring to clerical assistance.

"We're deeply indebted to these people who have given so much of themselves to benefit others," says Carolyn Apland, director of Adult Basic Education at Northeast. "They truly are the backbone of the ABE program."

In addition to a luncheon, volunteers were treated to a skit by the ABE staff, and a musical performance by the Northeast Singers Express. The luncheon was sponsored by Northeast's Adult Basic Education staff and BeefAmerica.

Volunteers tutor students in basic academic skill areas, and they usually prepare them to take the examinations which can lead to a Nebraska High School Diploma. Volunteers also teach foreign born students English and help them prepare for citizenship.

The ABE program, which is free to persons 16 years and older who are not enrolled in school, provides preparation for the Nebraska High School Diploma and/or instruction in basic skills in reading, writing, English as a second language, math, citizenship, job preparation and consumer education.

Area volunteers who were honored include Julius Rechtermann and Esther Rechtermann, Hoskins; Diana Tappe, Wakefield; and Jeanne Wriedt, Bess Baier, Marilyn Bodensted, Fern Kelley and Martha Svoboda, Wayne.

Volunteers are continually needed for the ABE program. For more information on serving as a volunteer, contact Sue Breitschneider, Northeast Community College, 644-0593.

It's time for 'spurge' war

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Marlin Shuttler is ready for battle. His guns and campaign plans are mapped out and he's ready to take to the field.

His field will be the noxious weed patches in Wayne County and his declared war will be against leafy spurge and the five other noxious weeds in Wayne County.

Spurge is robbing productivity from thousands of acres in Northeast Nebraska and about all Shuttler can do is stop its spread. "You can't kill it," he said. MAY IS THE prime control season for the weed, which establishes a deep root system and chokes out all other plants in its path. Spurge produces a toxic substance that cattle avoid and it has few natural enemies. Sheep have been found to graze on it readily when other forage is not available.

The strongest chemical sprays are ineffective in killing the pesky plants and have only been found to stop its spread.

Over 1,250 acres of Wayne County agricultural land has been infested by the spread of the spurge. In Dixon County the total is over 5,000 acres. Northeast Nebraska counties have the largest concentrations of spurge acres in the state.

SHUTTLER SAID he thinks the intensive control and education efforts have been effective in halting the spread of the weed here. But in some areas the control effort is often more costly than the value of the land. In some western rangelands spurge has been allowed to spread because at $50 or more per acre to spray it each year, some landowners have ignored the laws which require it to be controlled.

Shuttler said the awareness is growing in this area about the danger of allowing the weed to spread. He said he thinks most all of the outbreaks of spurge in Wayne County currently have been identified. But, he adds landowners should be constantly on the lookout for new patches, adding the weed can be spread by birds and other wildlife.

The spurge can be found mainly in untilled lands such as pastures, roadsides and farmsteads. It produces showy, yellow flowers that appear to bloom in May.

Business students win

Crofton High School claimed first place and Lyons-Decatur and Leigh finished second and third respectively during Wayne State College's annual Business Competition Day held recently on campus.

Almost 600 students from 43 area Nebraska and Iowa high schools competed in the event which also saw Hinton, Iowa defeat Crofton in the College Bowl.

Winning schools receive scholarships to award graduating seniors planning to major in business at Wayne State.

The event, sponsored by the Wayne State Division of Business and Pi Omega Pi business teacher education honorary, is the largest academic event held annually on the Wayne State campus, according to Dr. Patricia Arneson, event coordinator and associate professor of business at Wayne State.

Individual contest winners received trophies, medals and ribbons, while the top three schools with the highest total points earned plaques and trophies.

DOOR TO DOOR meat sales is another area of concern he said.

Telemarketing and prize notification fraud is the most common cause for complaint in Nebraska, said Parsons. He said seniors and others are often victimized by prize offers or phone sales when the company is seeking to get other information such as credit card numbers, social security numbers and bank information.

Parsons estimated the Consumer Protection Division of the attorney general's office had assisted over 4,500 consumers with various problems in 1992.

Wildcats play eight games in five days

WSC slugers down Creighton

The Wayne State baseball team played eight games in five days, dating back to last Wednesday and John Manganaro's squad went 4-4 during that stretch, leaving them with a 13-21 record.

The biggest win of the four was a 7-4 victory over NCAA-Division I Creighton in the Bluejays back yard. Russ Hamer's three-run triple in the fifth inning keyed a WSC comeback as the 'Cats, once trailing, 4-0 scored seven unanswered runs.

Jeff Gohr scattered 10 hits in going the distance for the Wildcats to improve to 4-2. Hamer added a single to his triple and finished with five rbi, while Cory Reeder doubled and singled for the winners.

Jeff Schneider, Jeff Burger, Mike Stauffer, and Troy Test each added hits for WSC. The victory over Creighton was the sixth for the Wildcats in 30 outings against the division I school.

On Wednesday night, WSC travelled across town in Omaha to play Bellevue College and the 'Cats were soundly defeated, 15-0. Steve Paxson took the pitching loss.

"We were kind of a victim of circumstance," WSC coach John Manganaro said. "I can't say we really had a let-down after the Creighton game, but we had a four hour break between games and we faced a very strong pitcher in Scott Standish."

Manganaro said Standish tossed a three-hitter against the 'Cats while throwing in the neighborhood of 88 miles per hour. "He's also got a very good curve ball," Manganaro said.

ON THURSDAY, WSC hosted Midland Lutheran College in a twinbill at Hank Overin Field in Wayne. The 'Cats won both contests, 10-1, and 12-3. In the first game WSC scored 10 times on 13 hits and suffered no errors while Midland had one run on three hits and four errors.

Chad Gillispie got the pitching victory after tossing five innings and giving up no runs on one hit and three walks while striking out six. Jeff Lutt and Bill Guenther also saw pitching action.

Offensively, WSC was led by catcher Cory Reeder who belted two home runs en route to a 3-3 performance that notched him four rbi.

Holly Paige to golf with elite

Former Wayne High golf standout Holly Paige, a Hastings College senior, has been invited to play in the 1993 NGCA Division II and III NAIA National Golf Championship to be played May 10-12 at Orchards Golf Course in South Madley, Massachusetts.

Paige was NIAC medalist and District 11 Player-of-the-Year while competing for the Lady Broncos. "This is a great honor for Holly and for Hastings College," Hastings Athletic Director Dr. Robert Boerigter said. "She will be competing with the finest women's collegiate golfers in the nation at Holly Paige this tournament. I am very excited about this opportunity for Holly."

WAYNE STATE shortstop Mike Stauffer dives back to first base after a pick-off attempt from Peru State's pitcher during second game action of a double-header, Sunday at Hank Overin Field. The Wildcats split with the Bobcats. WSC enters its final week of the season with the final home games slated for Saturday against Bellevue.

Softball team third at UNO Tournament

The Wayne State softball team placed third in the UNO Tournament over the weekend as Joan Scherbring's squad won two of their five games.

The Wildcats opened up tournament play against the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs and won, 4-2. Maryellen Livingston was credited with the victory. WSC had four runs on 10 hits and one error while Colorado Springs had two runs on eight hits and two errors.

The Wildcats were led by Jill Gengler with two doubles and two rbi, while Renee Miller doubled and singled. Jenny Reuland had two base hits while Jenna Flesner, Jeni Umbach, Livingston and Lori Foster each singled.

WSC fell to Kearney in its second game, 8-1 as Alex Ross took the loss. WSC finished with one run on three hits and four errors while UNK had eight runs on 10 hits and one error. Jenny Reuland, Jenna Flesner and Michele Reinhardt had a base hit each.

The 'Cats fell to UNO in the third game, 4-0 as Maverick pitcher Amy Boyd tossed a one-hitter against the 'Cats. Michelle Harris was the losing pitcher. WSC finished with one hit and two errors while UNO had four runs on six hits and no errors. Jeni Umbach broke up the no-hitter attempt from Boyd with a fifth inning single.

WSC lost to Central Oklahoma in the fourth game of the tournament, 9-2 after suffering seven errors. Maryellen Livingston was given the loss from the mound. The 'Cats had two runs on six hits while Central Oklahoma had nine runs on 10 hits and no errors.

Lori Foster had WSC's only extra base hit with a double while Marti Hunt, Jenny Reuland, Jeni Umbach, Jenna Flesner and Livingston each singled.

The 'Cats closed out the tournament by playing Central Oklahoma for third place. This time WSC suffered just one error and won the game in eight innings, 5-4.

Michelle Harris got the pitching victory. WSC finished with five runs on 11 hits while Central Oklahoma had four runs on 10 hits and one error. The 'Cats trailed 3-2 heading to the bottom of the seventh inning but managed to tie the game and send it into extra innings where the international tie-breaking rule took effect. Each team starts the inning with a runner on second base and they have three outs to score that runner and any others they can. Central Oklahoma scored once in the eighth inning but WSC scored twice to win the game in the bottom of the eighth inning.

Jenny Reuland was put on second base to start the inning and she moved to third on a sacrifice bunt from Lori Foster. Jill Gengler then doubled to score Reuland and she moved to third on a ground out to second base from Michele Reinhardt.

Then with two out, Jeni Umbach singled over third base to score Gengler and the winning run. Gengler led WSC with three hits including a triple, double and single.

Jeni Umbach went 3-4 with three singles and Renee Miller doubled and singled. Reinhardt doubled while Livingston and Foster each singled. "I thought we hit the ball hard throughout the whole tournament," coach Joan Scherbring said. "Our problem stemmed from errors. We had 15 in the five games combined. In the two games we won we had a total of two."

Approximately 80 fourth graders attend First Bike Rodeo held

ALLISON LINDNER pedals her bike around a cone during the first annual Bike Rodeo held last Thursday at the high school track.

Northwest Research and Extension Center agent Dana Rethwisch, along with Cyclepaths Bicycle Club members held what they hope to be the first annual Bike Rodeo in Wayne, last Thursday.

"This was a 4-H school enrichment project," Rethwisch said. "It's a way of introducing elementary school children to 4-H. It's where you do 4-H in the classroom."

Charles Shapiro of the Cyclepaths, Rethwisch and physical education instructor Don Koenig organized the event which featured nearly 80, fourth graders from Wayne and Carroll. St. Mary's was invited to attend but they had prior commitments.

Before the actual Rodeo took place, Gary West and Paul Pack gave a short demonstration on Safety and Biking. Then the students got on their bikes and headed to the high school track where six stations were mapped out.

Each of the students spent time in each of the six stations which was designed primarily, to challenge the students, yet teach them bike safety and conduct—the primary purpose of the whole event.

Included in the six stations was a bicycle safety check and adjustment clinic where Scott James and Tim Powell checked on wheels, tires, reflectors, forks, pedals, chains, handlebars, seats, chain guards, fenders, frames, sprockets, coaster brakes, hand brakes, derailleurs, kickstands, package carriers, bells or horns, rearview mirrors, speedometers, headlights, safety flags, locks, chains or cables.

The newspaper toss station had students riding a bike and delivering papers by tossing them in different boxes while riding. Keith Jarvi manned this station while another had students riding between cones in the slalom event. Breck Giese and Dave Curly were in charge of that station.

Bill Kranz directed the station that had students ride their bikes in a figure 8 while Lyle George and Rethwisch manned a station where students rode between the lines.

The sixth station had students ride in a 50-yard dash against the clock as Earl Norman, Kelly Soden and Pack aided in this event.

JORDAN WIDNER takes aim at throwing a newspaper into an open box while riding his bike during one stage of the Bike Rodeo.

Wayne athletes, coaches are picked for all-star contests

Former Wayne boys basketball coach Bob Uhing has been selected to coach the North All-Star squad in the annual All-Star Basketball Game in Lincoln on Friday, August 6 at the Bob Devaney Sports Center in Lincoln.

Uhing spent five seasons as the head coach of Hartington Cedar Catholic and the last nine as the Wayne Blue Devils mentor. In that 14-year span he's accumulated a 74 percent winning percentage and competed in seven district championships, winning five of them.

His teams have finished in the final Class B top 10 ratings, six times. He coached Cedar Catholic to state championships in 1980 and '84. He serves as Special Education Director for Wayne Public Schools.

Uhing will be coaching his son Brad in the all-star game along with Cedar Catholic standout Eric Mueller. Norfolk's Todd Schmidt is also on the North squad from this area of the state.

On Thursday, August 5, the annual All-Star Volleyball Game will be held in the same place and Wayne's Danielle Nelson has been selected to play for the North squad of that elite contest.

Nelson is a 5-9 setter that helped lead Wayne to state berths this past year in both volleyball and basketball. Norfolk's Courtney Hoff joins Nelson on that team from this area of the state.

Coaches and players have also been announced for the Swedish Basketball Classic to be held in Oakland on Saturday, June 12.

Former Wayne coach Marlene Uhing will head the North squad with assistance from South Sioux's Kelly Flynn. Liz Reeg and Erin Pick have been named to the North team. Both Reeg and Pick were instrumental in leading the Blue Devils to state tournament appearances in both basketball and volleyball this past year.

Reeg averaged 22 points a game and was named to the first-team all-star for Class B while Pick averaged 10 points a game and was the second leading rebounder for the Blue Devils.

The boys roster of the all-star game features two Wayne standouts in Brad Uhing and Bobby Barnes. Uhing led Wayne to its finest season ever with a 14.9 point per game average while Barnes was second with a 13.4 point per game average.

Wakefield's Ben Dutton has also been named to this all-star game and will be a teammate of Uhing and Barnes. Dutton averaged 11.7 points per game and averaged double figures in rebounds.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY recently performed a study, commissioned by Garden Way, which showed that mulching mowers cause "significantly greater turf-grass growth and create healthier, lusher lawns." The purpose of the study was to compare the influence on shoot growth and visual quality of Kentucky bluegrass when cut with a mulching mower versus a rear bagger. Results showed forty percent more growth when the grass was cut by a mulching mower. With the recent purchase of a commercial mulching mower, we can provide this service for you.

In Dixon County

Home Extension Council announces poster winners

The Dixon County Home Extension Council met April 1, convened by President Janice Hartman of Dixon. The county's top third grade poster contest winners were announced, with first place going to Bonnie Surber of Ponca; second place to Megan Patefield from the Laurel-Concord School; third place to Krystle Lamprecht from Newcastle School and honorable mention to Krystal Hughes from the Ponca school. This year's theme is on "Clean-Up Your Act - Clean Water," to promote the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Club's environmental thrust. The county's local clubs worked with the teachers to organize the event. The top local school posters will be on display at the county fair. A certificate with a monetary prize will be presented to the top four, as reported by Marilyn Creamer from Laurel.

The top county cultural arts contest exhibits made by members were Nadine Borg, Concord, with her crocheted doll and second place went to Pat Bathke of Dixon. Pat Bathke also received the top award in ceramics for her Russian Santa Claus, reported by Evonne Magnuson of Laurel. The top exhibit in each category will represent the county at state competition at the state convention in June.

Besides the completion of the poster and cultural arts contests, the council convened for their quarterly meeting. Guest speaker, Donna Duzuris, District F Director from Hubbard, gave a talk on changes and the name change from the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs to the Nebraska Association for Family and Community Education. The group also watched a video on this. It will be voted on at the state convention June 2-4 at Seward. Voting delegates for the county include Janice Hartman, president and Pat Bathke, treasurer.

Environmental thrust leader Alyce Erwin of Concord reported on the value of trees in our environment. She also reported on the fall special event, set for Sept. 25 at the Allen school. The theme will be Christmas in September. A variety of hands-on workshops will be offered. For lunch, a tasting tea with Christmas foods and recipes will be available. The hostess clubs include Twilight Linc, Merry Homemakers and Wakefield Happy Homemakers.

Deb Clarkson of Concord reported on the progress of water testing for nitrates on Monday of the county fair from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Clubs will be providing volunteers to do testing.

The group provided a wide variety of topics for the 1995 lessons. They reduced their selections to "Prejudice - End It At Home" and "Chinese Cooking" to be submitted to the state level.

Janice Hartman reported that Dixon County will be in charge of the alumni breakfast at the 1994 state convention to be held in South Sioux City. The theme entails the need to make tote bags as a placement so clubs will be making these. Alyce Erwin will make a county banner to have on display.

Extension Agent Karen Wermers passed out Leadership Notes newsletter and proposed University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources program spending cuts.

Enough! Answers on demand at the desk if needed.

The library thanks those people who responded to our request for statements about how libraries have changed lives. The results were gratifying.

We do have some serious business to discuss with our patrons who drop off overdue books without paying the fines. Understand, we are glad to have overdue books back in circulation, but we have to go to a lot of trouble sometimes to collect fines. We can only ask that you come to the desk with your overdue book and ask about the fine — and then be prepared to pay it. We would be delighted if you asked us to check on any old fines — those you have not paid — or those you have forgotten you ran up. We do not send notices for fines on books already returned. Those fines are your responsibility.

A big thank you goes to Dave Headley who is completing our video collection of Wayne Community Theatre tapes and retaping the old productions to improve the quality. Some are already back on the shelves. Some are waiting to be processed by the library.

Library hours are Monday through Friday from 1 to 9 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Come see us!

Renowned pianist performs at WSC

Critically acclaimed pianist John McIntyre will perform at 8 p.m., Wednesday, April 28 in Wayne State College's Ley Theatre, located on the second floor of the Brandenburg Building. The public is invited.

McIntyre will perform works by Schubert, Brahms, Ravel and Rachmaninoff in this recital sponsored by Wayne State's Center for Cultural Outreach, according to Beverly Soll, director of the Center.

Heralded as "remarkable artist ... strong, vivid and sensitive" by the Kansas City Star, the Toronto native won the Eaton Scholarship as the outstanding music student at the University of Toronto.

After winning the Ravel Medal for outstanding performances in French music, he received a Canada Council Grant to study all the works of Ravel at the Paris Conservatoire with Vlado Perlemuter.

Ten years later-kids still at risk

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ten years after the report "A Nation at Risk" criticized U.S. schools, some Nebraska teachers say they devote ever larger blocks of time to cope with problems children bring from home rather than teaching.

Teachers at the Nebraska State Education Association's annual delegate assembly on Saturday said children frequently come to school exhausted, unfed, not talked to and unschooled in such basic social necessities as how to apologize to somebody.

"This week, I dealt with a case of sexual abuse, a first-grader who used a four-letter word in the classroom and a child whose parent had a psychotic episode," said Madaline Fennell, 28, a first-grade teacher in Omaha. "Teachers didn't deal with this kind of thing 10 years ago."

She said she put a couch in her classroom because so many youngsters come to school "overwhelmed, depressed and exhausted."

Her comments come 10 years after a national commission issued a report that warned of "a rising tide of mediocrity that threatens our very future as a nation and a people."

"If an unfriendly foreign power had attempted to impose on America the mediocre educational performance that exists today, we might well have viewed it as an act of war," one of the report's most-quoted passages says.

Problems associated with teaching children from troubled families was one topic discussed during the state education association's two-day meeting. Delegates talked, for example, about more support staff to free up teachers to teach.

The teachers say some parents work long hours, have no energy left for their children and, in many cases, wage losing battles against drugs, alcohol, illiteracy and depression.

Doug Voigt, 37, has stopped teaching agriculture for entire class periods so his high school students in St. Paul, can pour out their problems.

"They want to talk about the pressures on them -- alcohol, teen-age sex, competition, college," he said. "Should they go to college or shouldn't they?"

A lot of children come to school without even eating breakfast, said Clayton Hoefs, 32, who teaches junior high classes in Lexington.

"They kind of sit there in a trance," he said.

Civil Defense testing to be held

WAYNE — The City of Wayne will conduct the monthly testing of the Civil Defense Outdoor Warning System at 11:45 a.m. on Friday, April 30.

Each siren location will be tested separately. The air horn will be allowed to run approximately 15 seconds at each location to test the effectiveness of the system.

Immediately following the testing of the outdoor warning system, the Cablevision Emergency Alert System will also be tested. This will mean disruption of both the audio and the video programming of every television set on the cablevision system that is in use. This test will last approximately 15 seconds.

Bill is controversial

By Sen. Stan Schellpeper
District No. 18

This week, we spent a considerable amount of time discussing LB 110, which would require a 24 hour waiting period before a woman could have an abortion. It is a very controversial bill; some senators believing it to be an unnecessary obstruction of a woman's rights and others believing it gives women information and time in which to consider all options. I have been supportive of the bill because I believe women ought to have all the information available as they make choices.

LB 739 would allow the State of Nebraska to take title to the abandoned railroad right-of-way along the Chicago and Northwestern railroad line between Norfolk and Chadron. The intent is for the property to be reserved for a recreational trail, wildlife conservation and communications corridor and be managed by the Game and Parks Commission. Currently, purchase of the trail would be the responsibility of private organizations, however, it could cost taxpayers a lot of money if the state were to pay for the purchase and development.

The estimated cost of developing the 320 mile corridor is $6 million, with an additional $600,000 per year for maintenance.

I cannot support this bill because of the potential cost to the state and because the trails runs through rural Nebraska whose citizens, I believe, do not want the trail. In addition, supporting any bill that could compete with important needs such as health care for limited tax revenues is not, in my opinion, good policy.

We also discussed a bill that would make changes in the way funds from a one dollar per tire tax are used. Currently the funds are allocated for recycling projects and for costs associated with the closing of landfills across the state.

Some senators feel the fund should emphasize grants to projects for recycling tires or other tire waste reduction solutions. I do support this bill because the fund was established from a fee on tires to solve the problem of tire disposal, therefore, the fund should be used to find a solution to that problem.

Abortion bill is past first hurdle

By Sen. Kurt Hohenstein
District No. 17

The Nebraska Legislature has been considering several major bills in the last two weeks which have taken up most of our time. LB 110, which is the informed consent requirement for abortions, was finally passed on first reading with some amendments. The bill as it now stands would require a reasonable notice provision to a woman seeking an abortion and a clear certification that prior to the abortion, a woman would acknowledge that she has received information relative to fetal development and medical risks. This bill has substantial opposition but it appears as though it can move ahead now. There will certainly be additional attempts on select file to amend the bill and even kill it. The support for the bill, however, is also strong. I voted to advance the bill with the amendments to select file.

The second issue we are dealing with is LB 757. That bill is the major provision in the workers compensation rules. The bill was substantially changed to adopt the doctor choice rule in Nebraska, with the attempt to stop "doctor shopping." It would also change the vocational rehabilitation sections, would increase the weekly benefit for employees earning over $10 an hour and provide for independent medical examinations. The bill is intended to limit increased workers compensation costs to business and at the same time protect workers. There are several concerns I have with the bill and I'll be watching amendments carefully to ensure that injured workers are not being deprived of their rights, while at the same time ensuring that businesses can get a handle on the ever-increasing workers compensation costs.

LB 471 was passed on final reading. This is a bill which will allow some of the smaller rac-tracks to race fewer days and still be entitled to simulcasting benefits. Atokad is one of those tracks which needs to run fewer live days and complete more simulcasting days to remain effective. Passage of this legislation will allow the Racing Commission to structure some of the racing days but still allow Atokad to simulcast races which is more profitable and less expensive than live racing.

Finally, we will soon be debating LB 137 which is the statute of repose legislation. The statute of repose prohibits a lawsuit against a manufacturer if the injury occurred more than 10 years after the product was placed in the stream of commerce. There is a move to come to a compromise on that bill. The compromise would involve allowing for a lawsuit only if an injured person could prove that the product which injured him/her had a useful life of greater than 10 years. If the individual could prove that the product had a useful life of greater than 10 years, he/she could go forward but would still have to prove his/her product liability case. We want to protect the small manufacturers against unnecessary litigation but also want to ensure that the injured parties in Nebraska have the right to recover for defective products which injure them or their families. This compromise may do that although we must be careful to ensure that the compromise language is closely scrutinized. That bill may come up for debate next week.

On a personal note, I want to thank you for all of your kind words of support and your prayers in this difficult time in my personal life.

If you have additional questions or concerns about legislation, please feel free to contact me by writing State Capitol, Lincoln, Neb. 68508; or call me at 471-2716.

State needs art to help sell new lottery to you

As plans are laid for a September start-up of ticket sales, the Nebraska State Lottery is looking to put a face with its name.

State Tax Commissioner M. Berri Balka said recently the lottery will conduct the "Create An Image" contest to select its official logo.

"This is a project designed to benefit the environment and education in Nebraska," Balka said, "and we think the people should be involved in helping shape their lottery."

"We invite Nebraskans to submit their ideas to help us create an identity for the Lottery."

From April 7 through May 15, Nebraskans are invited to submit logo designs either on or with an official entry form. Multiple entries will be accepted, but each entry must be accompanied by an entry form.

Entry forms are available at Department of Revenue field offices in Scottsbluff, North Platte, Grand Island, Norfolk, Omaha or Lincoln; or by calling 402/471-5909 to request a form.

Forms are also available at area merchants who have expressed interest in becoming Lottery retailers. More than 300 merchants statewide have contacted the department in the last two weeks.

Entries should include something that depicts Nebraska themes, and may incorporate multiple colors when necessary; although not every use of the lottery logo will be in color.

Finalists in the lottery logo contest will be announced May 22 and the winner will be named June 1.

Entries will not be returned, and the winner will be required to release the rights to the winning design.

The winning entry or its concept may be used in various projects to identify the Nebraska State Lottery, ranging from business envelopes to advertising and actual lottery tickets.

The designer of the winning logo will be recognized at its unveiling on June 1. The winner will also have the opportunity to participate in various lottery start-up promotions throughout the late summer and fall, and will be awarded various commemorative and promotional items bearing the new logo.

Entrants must be at least 19 years of age.

Entries should be mailed to The Nebraska State Lottery, Logo Contest, P.O. Box 98901, Lincoln, Neb. 68509-8901.

Department of Revenue employees and members of their households are ineligible for the contest, as are employees and family members of prospective service and equipment vendors to the lottery.

Are TV networks snubbing older viewers? Some media consultants say yes, pointing to the network's dropping shows that appeal to older people in favor of more sitcoms aimed at those between 18 and 49. The reason: Although their elders may watch more TV and may have more money to spend, young audiences are more likely to respond to commercials and switch brands, according to one ad industry observer.

Kiewit Foundation approves grant to Wayne State College

The Peter Kiewit Foundation of Omaha has approved a challenge grant of $220,000 as partial funding for the renovation of the old power plant building on campus into a studio arts facility. Total cost of the renovation is estimated at $880,000.

"The Kiewit grant is a big boost to the project," says Dr. Donald Mash, president of Wayne State College. "We're especially thankful for the gift and for the Kiewit Foundation trustees' interest in the college. Our challenge now is to complete the funding from other private sources so construction can begin as soon as possible."

Mash says the project represents an excellent opportunity for a naming gift. "We're hoping to identify alumni and friends who care about the arts and who will step forward with gifts to help us make this important building and program enhancement a reality," he says.

The renovation of the power plant building was identified as a priority in the campus physical master plan adopted in 1990. The recently completed upgrading of the campus utilities eliminated the need for the structure as a power plant, freeing it for another function.

"The 8,000-square-foot brick building was built in 1929 and remains structurally sound," says Andrew Soll, vice president for administration at Wayne State. "Putting it to good use for studio arts fits very well into the college's mission of student development and regional development. The arts are an important component of the college's core curriculum leading to a well-rounded, broadly based education."

Since state funds were not available for the renovation, the project was included in the needs statement tested during the feasibility study of the Building Bright Futures Campaign. In the study, the project generated a high degree of interest from alumni and friends.

"When the renovation is completed, art studios will be located in appropriate space in one building," says Dr. Jay O'Leary, head of the division of fine arts. "At the present time, the studios are in four separate buildings, making interaction difficult for faculty and students. The new studios will offer a model environment for safety of students and faculty and for the teaching of safety in art education. With studios of adequate size and configuration, students will be able to engage in a wide range of projects not possible in our current over-crowded facilities."

This is the second grant-the Kiewit Foundation has made for campus facilities. In 1989, it awarded $20,800 as one-half the cost of constructing the Wayne Community Fitness Trail.

Columbus Federal Savings Bank earned net income of $451,132, or $2.91 per share in the three-month period ending March 31, 1993. Earnings for the same period last year were $494,121, or $3.19 per share.

W.M. Ferguson, president of Columbus Federal, stated that the weather conditions for the first quarter of 1993 slowed down mort-

Two from Wayne in state's top five

Elizabeth Claussen and Scott Day of Wayne High School have been offered Dorsey-Sandoz Scholarships by the University of Nebraska Department of Chemistry.

This is a two-year scholarship and is presented annually to 10 graduating seniors who plan to attend the University of Nebraska-Lincoln majoring in the field of chemistry.

Claussen and Day won the award by scoring first and second on a chemistry examination written by the UN-L chemistry department and administered to nominated seniors throughout the state.

AS A result of scoring in the top five on the exam, Claussen and Day have also qualified to compete as the Nebraska nominees for the U.S. National Chemistry Olympiad.

These nominations place them among more than 1,100 other United States high school chemistry students who will take a national qualifying exam to select finalists.

Twenty students will be identified and will undergo competition training for the Chemistry Olympiad at the U.S. Air Force Academy. From this group, the top four will be chosen to represent the United States in the International Chemistry Olympics to be held in Perugia, Italy later this summer.

Volunteer recognition held by Haven House

Haven House Family Services Center held a volunteer recognition on April 18 for the agency's 31 volunteers who represent the counties of Dakota, Dixon, Cedar, Thurston and Wayne.

During the past 12 months, Haven House volunteers have donated over 8,500 hours of time working with survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault and covering a 24-hour crisis line.

The recognition celebration coincided with the beginning of National Volunteer Week and included the presentation of a certificate of appreciation and a Haven House T-shirt to the volunteers.

The gifts were made possible through several area businesses, including Wayne Dental Clinic, Arnie's Ford Mercury, Milo Meyer Construction, Hair Studio, and the Wayne Super 8 Motel.

By Pat Meierhenry

the year, she had eliminated naughty words and she took them all out for pizza. Another smart lady.

Meanwhile, the bus was cruise all parking lots. Did we remember the license number? We did not. It started with 20, for Cass County. So the bus took us back to the terminal to call a central office, assuring us this had happened to everyone at least once. There were several Cass Co. cars in the airport parking on April 2.

They did tell us that E lot was the only $6/day parking. We got on another bus, this one driven by a young man from Arkansas and drove to E lot, section 2. Nope, that wasn't it either.

Now we're learning that our driver's name is Willie Jones, he's living temporarily in Kansas City, and he carries a camera on this job because he's transported a lot of celebrities on his bus.

Finally, in section 3, we saw the car! One hour after landing, we were ready to leave the airport. And we informed Willie Jones that he had now met the Farmer's Wife and her neighbor, even more famous, Judegn Rikl!

'We made it back'

Judegn and I made it back from Houston in one piece and without car trouble. But we aren't exactly world-class travelers yet.

You've probably been to KCI airport. I'd been there before. I knew it was laid out in a series of circles. We found our airline in the second circle, parked in a round parking ramp, checked our luggage and received boarding passes.

Then we set out to park the car for five days. Satellite parking was $10/day — a bit steep. We found lot E for $6/day and left the ticket on the dash of the car so we wouldn't lose it. I wrote down: Lot E, Sec. 4, Row 4 and we headed for the little kiosk, caught the bus back to the terminal and flew to Houston.

On the Monday after Easter, our flight was delayed and we arrived back in K.C. an hour late. It was rainy and cold. We found our bags and got on a bus that was not marked "satellite parking." A man and two children got on, but soon discovered they needed one that way. They scrambled off.

Our blonde driver was friendly and informed us she had formerly driven a school bus. Then she sold real estate for six years. When her health insurance premium went to $200/month, she went back to bus driving. The premium is now $13/month. Smart lady.

She left us at Lot E, section 1. We stepped off, realized immediately it was not the right parking lot and waited for the next bus. Along came another woman, also a former school bus driver. She shared her technique for cutting out profanity: a "cuss jar," every cussor contributing a quarter. By the end of

NEWS FROM SCHOOL

WAYNE SCHOOLS NEWSLETTER

News from the Sixth Grade

May 17 needs to be marked on your calendars. This is the DARE culmination starting at 10:30 in the H.S. Lecture Hall, followed by a picnic at Bressler Park.

Keep reading for Accelerated Reader as all 6th graders will need points before the quarter is up. A pat on the back to all students who read and parents who encouraged reading. We have read 172,600 minutes, or 2,876 hours, or 120 days, or 4 months and have earned 35,578 accelerated reader points. Quite an impressive report!

High School German Edith Zahniser

Ten German students from WHS took part in the Foreign Language Day activities at Wayne State College on April 2. They watched a scene from a Moliere play, sampled mini-lessons in Turkish, Chinese, Bulgarian or Portuguese and participated in judged presentations. "Die Moorsoldaten," a song from the Boergermoor-Concentration Camp, gained a Superior for Spencer Bayless, Robert Bell, Matt Chapman, David Foote, Tim Heineemann, Aaron Schnier and Trevor Schroeder. Krista Magnuson, Claire Rasmussen and Jennifer Schmitz were rated superior in their recital of poetry. A "Calvin and Hobbes" skit, written in German by Claire Rasmussen, brought another superior for her and Jennifer Schmitz.

The textbook in German I and parts of German II is "Neue Freunde." The book features students from German-speaking countries, their families, friends, schools, communities. Their real names are used. One of the students is Wiebke Nedel, who was 15 when the textbook was written. During the recent Central States Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages in Des Moines, Mrs. Zahniser was delighted to meet the real Wiebke Nedel, now 21, and a student of English and German at the University of Trier in the western part of Germany, and join her and her American teacher-sponsor for dinner. Since then, Miss Nedel has written and sent her picture of the Des Moines meeting, inviting the Wayne German students to write to her. Alles Gute!

Third and Fourth Grade Carroll

Our school year is rapidly coming to a close. There have been many exciting events during the month of April, and we are looking forward to several more in May.

We culminated our study of the solar system by taking a field trip to the WSC Planetarium. Mr. Rump helped us to review what we had learned about the sun, moon, planets and stars, and enriched our understanding of our universe. We began our study of plants and animals by focusing on the rain forest, which was the theme for National Wildlife Week this year. We also enjoyed our assembly about zoo animals during that week.

During our study of Indians of Early Nebraska, we were pleased to have Mr. John Mangan from Macy, speak to us about the present day Omaha Indians. He taught us an Indian game, as well as some Omaha Indian words.

We enjoyed a delicious pizza lunch at the end of our Book It program. Thanks to the Pizza Hut for sponsoring the program.

We were thrilled that one of our classmates, Beth Loberg, had her story chosen as a finalist for the Young Author's Contest. Congratulations also, to Andrea Simpson for receiving a runner-up award.

We said, "Good bye," to Mrs. Braadland, our student teacher, this month. We wish her good luck in her future teaching career.

We wish to thank the Carroll Boosters for buying our tickets to the WSC play, "Robin Hood," and for helping to raise money for our room at the school carnival.

Upcoming events for May include the annual P.E. program on May 3, the fourth grade field trip to Omaha on May 14, and the fourth grade recognition and all-school picnic on the last day of school. Think summer!

Sixth Grade Mrs. Pickinpaugh

I would like to thank the parents who helped make our Fiesta a success. Without your help we could not have had such a wonderful afternoon!

Just a reminder that the International Festival will be on May 11 at the City Auditorium from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Bring a lot of quarters, friends and an appetite!

Kitchen Judy Poehlman

This school year is rapidly coming to a close. I would like to thank all the students who joined us for school lunch this year. Participation has been great!

Preparing meals in both Wayne and Carroll Elementary Schools, with the Wayne kitchen transporting meals to the High School, Middle School, Head Start, District 51 and the new Tower School, we will have served close to 122,500 meals by May 25. We average about 681 meals a day. I'd like to thank the kitchen staff, they do a super job keeping it all straight and getting the meals done on time. The students also have been willing to try new menu items. I appreciate the students' honesty about the meals. I always enjoy hearing from the students.

We would like to wish the seniors a successful future in their new endeavors. They have been very supportive of the lunch program and a great bunch of students.

Several of the kitchen staff will be attending spring workshop in May and state conference in June. We hope to gather new ideas for next year. Have a great summer and join us next fall to shape your future with school lunch.

Second Grade

Once again we traveled to Wayne State College for the enjoyable Children's Play. This year we watched the Play, Robin Hood. It was GREAT! It's Hawaii time in second grade. We've been making leis, masks and grass skirts, preparing for our luau which is April 30. Thanks to all the parents who will be donating food for our luau. Our 'kahuna' (important man), Mr. Lutt, visited our class on April 27 to show slides and pictures and share his Hawaiian experiences with us. In conjunction with our farm unit, on April 20, we were able to experience the spring animals and the shearing of sheep at Mariyn Koch's farm. It was neat to see how the sheep seemed to enjoy getting a haircut. The students also enjoyed seeing the other farm animals. We will also be going to Julie Frye's goat farm in May to feed and milk goats.

John Jensen and Emily Brady were among the four top writers from Wayne-Carroll Elementary to attend the Aspiring Young Authors Festival in South Sioux City. Dinosaurs have become a favorite topic in our classroom. We will take a stab at creating our own dinosaurs out of torn paper. In an upcoming unit, Mrs. Paape will be showing us some of her live birds to the second grade. The spring music concert is May 10. Hope to see you there.

The second grade is saying goodbye to Miss Jodi Schaefer, Ms. Lubberstedt's student teacher and Miss Jody Morris, Miss Overhue's student teacher. Goodbyes also go out to three students who have moved: Billie Jo Petersen, Jeff Thiele and Tom Schneider. All will be greatly missed.

We have enjoyed working with your children this year. Thank you for your time and efforts in making this a wonderful year. ALOHA!!!

First and Second Grade Carroll Elementary Miss Pallas

Three, two, one ... and another school year is almost done. We've had a "dino"mite time. The past few weeks studying dinosaurs and creating our own "Dinosaur Land." As we finish up our unit on Alaska and say "Aloha" to the wonderful state of Hawaii. Some of the activities we've participated in include: a field trip to the WSC planetarium, a presentation by John Mangan on the Omaha Indians, a presentation on recycling by Charles Eckhardt from Crofton and an assembly about the "The Zoo Story" by Bob Duerr.

The first graders just finished working with money (pennies, nickels and dimes) and have "changed" their focus to measuring (cm, kg, inches, pounds, cups, pints and quarts). The second graders have been working with two digit addition and subtraction and taking "time" out to review time using the half hour and hour.

Reading has also been a busy area in the first and second grade room. The first graders have been working with long vowels, consonant clusters (bl, cl, fl, gl, pl and sl), identifying the main idea, nouns and verbs, and recalling details. The second graders presented a play called "The Bremen Musicians" and have been working on the following skills: long vowels, diphthongs (oi, oy, ou, and ow), plural nouns, contractions and homophones.

Some upcoming events that we are looking forward to include the WSC play "Robin Hood" on April 28, our spring P.E. program on May 3 and our picnic on May 25. We would also like to thank the Carroll Boosters for providing tickets for the Wayne play!

Third Grade Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Larsen, Mrs. Schulz

April showers bring May flowers, as we are busy learning about plants in science. In math we have begun the study of geometric shapes. A review of multiplication and division facts at home is always beneficial. In social studies we have learned all about the laws in a community and will visit City Hall on May 12. In connection with Cinco de Mayo (May 5), a grade fiesta is being planned to conclude our study of Mexico. Our oriental dinner of egg rolls, fortune cookies, rice krispie bars and tea was delicious in conclusion of our Japan unit. Our next unit in social studies will focus on our nation's capitol, Washington, D.C. We enjoyed the opportunity to "clown around" with Mr. Headley as he shared his superb knowledge about clowns and clown makeup. Thank you! Three social studies projects are required this quarter and please encourage your child to continue reading books. A tearful goodbye was said to Laura Creamer, whose family has moved. We will miss you! As we learned to say in Japanese, Sayonara!

Middle School American History Mr. Johnson

The eighth grade will be finishing their reading of "Johnny Tremain." Johnny Tremain is a young Boston apprentice who is a member of the Sons of Liberty and we follow the events leading up to the American Revolution through his eyes. Also, the eighth grade will be taking a field trip to DeSoto Bend to view the steamboat, "Bertrand," and Fort Atkinson, the first military fort west of the Mississippi River and also the largest U.S. military installation in the 1820's.

The seventh grade will be finishing their last activity packet of the year. This activity packet covers the Revolutionary War and is worth one half of their nine weeks grade. The last two weeks of school the seventh grade will be working on their "Time Capsule" which will be opened on their last day of school their senior year. The time capsule includes an individual student packet (predictions of the future, price list, design for the future, personal thoughts and letters, and a class video with each student stating their ambitions in life).
