Industry's eyes turn toward area next week

The business and industry eyes of Nebraska will be upon Wayne next Monday when the community hosts the state kick-off for Business and Industry week and it's a position the president of Wayne Industries likes to see the community in.

Being visible within the state and showing off the advantage of doing business in Northeast Nebraska are two of the prime goals of Wayne Industries, said President Ken Berglund.

That's why the opportunity to host the Business and Industry Week kickoff for the state is so enticing, said Berglund, Besides state officials, key leaders in private industry will be on hand for the event and to give the community the once over.

THEY WILL have plenty to look at, said Berglund. Wayne Industries has a long history of accomplishments in assisting the development of the community. The organization was incorporated 35 years ago by a small. group of community leaders who were concerned about the community's

One of the group's first priorities was land acquisition. Industrial development land between the city and the airport was purchased and the group immediately went out to recruit new industries.

FROM DAY one, the advantages offered by Wayne State College were helpful in attracting industrial pros pects former board members said.

Today, the college still remains the community's best asset, said Berglund. He said the regional scope of the school meshes well with the new regional emphasis of Wayne In-

Coach gets jail time

Wayne State College officials were made aware Monday evening that WSC men's basketball coach Mike Brewen, has received a 10-day jail sentence in Sarpy County for a second offense of driving while intoxicated. The offense occurred in April of 1992.

College officials became aware of the D.W.I. offense after Brewen brought it to their attention earlier

"I thank Connic and Nancy for all their work and enthusiasm in starting Rainbow Riders and giving individuals with disabilities a chance to experience the joy of horse riding," says Lynette Carmichael of Wayne.

Lynette and her husband, Dick, are the parents of 18-year-old Marla, who was born with down's syndrome and participated in the riding program last year.

At first Marla was a little nervous about riding those big horses, as were mom and dad," admits Lynette, adding that both Connie and Nancy were very supportive of their daughter.

"They made sure that when it

ACCORDING to Nancy and Connie, the 1992 Rainbow Riders program provided riding sessions for 24 handicapped riders and com-munity involvement for over 50 volunteers working towards a common goal.

This year, the instructors are hoping to expand the riding sessions to at least two nights each week, along with Saturdays if needed, at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

Brown Bag lunch on television

Scores of Wayne area residents attended a "Brown Bag Lunch" at Wayne State College Monday to meet and talk to on-air personalities and officials of KTIV television in Sioux City. The area residents discussed decision-making both at the station and on the NBC network. The station's management said Wayne is scheduled for a feature on the station's Hometown program in the near future. The commercials aren't really broadcast louder than the regular programs it just sounds that way. Station officials also claimed this area is all but ignored by the Omaha and Lincoln stations and that people should read more.

disappear. Most would go bankrupt or be forced to switch production to food

Without dandelions none of us would ever experience the sensation of an instant canker sore forming on the tongue in mid-sip of vile dandelion wine. Indeed, without dandetions, conscientious home owners who spent the day before spraying their bumper crop could not wake up with joy and gaze out with satisfaction over a lawnful of shriveled corkscrewy stems locked in 2-4D death throes. On seeing it the home owners can't help but chortle "die you scumwads, die."

Without dandelions kids couldn't stick the yellow blossoms under each other's chins to see if they like butter. I never could see the sense in that childhood game, however. I suppose it would be no great loss not to have dandelions on this account Without dandelions you couldn't smile devilishly when the wind catches thousands of ripened dandelion seeds from your yard and carries them to your neighbor's pristine, weedless and well manicured lawn.

Without dandelions we'd have to lay off at least half a dozen county extension agents in the state who would be left with nothing to do if everyone stopped calling to ask how to get rid of the obnoxious weeds.

When you are out there digging, spraying, stomping burning pulling and cursing the dandelions this spring, make sure you spare a couple of the abundant plants. Save a couple to preserve a mother's first bouquet. Save a couple to preserve a county agent's job. Save a couple to prolong the satisfaction of being able to kill more later. Save a couple for the dandelion wine and lawn chemical industry and save a couple for the neighbor you

On second thought, you don't have to save any, nature will take care of that for you. Dand more standing in the wings to take his place.

What would we do without dandelions? We'd do a lot more golfing, that's what

Les really goes overboard

I read about a fellow in California (where else?) who is marketing plans for a do it yourself coffin. He thinks dying costs too much and he's marketing. 59.95 plans you can build yourself and use as a bookease until you need the thing for what it is intended for.

I'm sure Steve Schumacher will want to move into this new territory to reach the "shop before you drop" market of cheapskates.

We're all going to need one someday. Why not plan ahead? I have mine already, Steve. They delivered some press parts a while back in a big, wellbuilt 3/4 inch plywood box. It's about six feet long. After we got the press parts out the guys wanted to know what I wanted to do with the box. Let's keep it, I said. It's just about right to bury me in. It was a joke, I thought. But now I'm serious. I've told my family to use the cost of an expensive casket on something that will benefit the living.

No, that's not morbid. It's rational. The famous English Naval Hero Horatio Nelson picked out his coffin years before he died and even carried it around on the deck of his ship as a healthy reminder of his own mortality.

While the national media features the cheapskate casket designer in California as an offbeat story and people tsk at the oddity of it, I say the guy makes sense, but we can do him one better. Don't spend the $9.95, just order some press parts.

"He not only closed the subject, but he done sat on the lid!"

SOFT DRINK

"Well, Homer, what kinda boss do you 'ave anyway?"

"My boss is a creature of him-pulse an' thinks he's top gun in the industry jist 'cause he's been fired five times!

"Sounds like he's all sail an' no anchor, hon,"

"I'd like to give 'em a piece of my mind! I wuz agoin' to, but see'n how I don't have too much left for myself, I didn't. He ain't real. Know what he did?"

"Not much would su'prise me!" "Rumor 'round the plant sez durin' the summer he sends his dogs to camp an' his kids to obedience 'Oh-hh-hh! Sounds like he's one of 'em fellers that when somethin' dawns on 'em, the sun's already

"Dora; I jist may lose my job. When he an' me didn't see 'I to I' yesterday, I done told that two-faced snoopervisor that I niver forgits a face, and in his case, both of 'em!"

'You didn't!"

"Well, how was he today then?" "When I walk'd in this mornin' he jist sorta looked like his train of thot lost its choo-choo.

'So what happened?" "Later I sez to one of the guys, but loud 'nuff the boss could hear, that in the game of life yer some-times hafta play for creeps! Ha!

"I'd like to 'ave seen his face!'

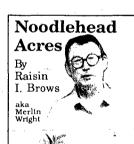

"O hon, the rest of us had a good laugh cause one of the sectaries done snuck a memo off his desk. He'd applied for nother job with a gov't agency and the guy interview'n him asked: 'What other qualifications do you have other than a genuine love of money?"

"Wonder what he musta sed to

"Dora, ya hafta understan! the man's education is only pigskin deep. Ever time the manager shows him the handwritin on the wall, he thinks its a forgery/Sounds to me like his job qualifications musta included spreadin' ignorance! Heh, Heh!"

"In order to git along with the man, I jist resorts to a little flat-

'How do ya do that?"

They tells me flattery is the art of tellin' 'nother person zactly what he already thinks of himself. So all I hopes to do is inflate his ego 'till somethin' busts! He made a pass at his little blonde sec'tary this mornin' an' she turned him down like a bedspread! Ha!"

"Isn't be already married?"

"O no, Dora, they were divorced x weeks after their mirage."

"What do ya s'ppose makes him such a windbag?"

"The sec'taries thinks he taken pneumantic pills!" "Really! I thot politicians were the only folks tak'n those! Heh

"An' you know what? The boss's wife came in the office Friday, Pour soul, her face sagged like a wet cir-cus tent. He'd upset 'er at home bout somethin' an' she jist hauled off an' gave him a preamble to her constitution!"

'No! In front of ever'body?'

"Talk 'bout a woman's mind in tenced with barbed ire!" "What else did she gig 'em

"She told 'em, ha! ha!, 'Use your head, no one would suspect it!" "An' what did he do? 'He jist stood there look'n like had time on his hands an face What else?'

"Then he sits down like a tired old accordion! I loved it! Ha! Ha!" Sounds like that wuz a purty good fight from a woman so modest she pulls down the shade when she changes her mind. "I fergot ya knew her thru yer wimen's club. She wuz sure equal to the occasion today.

"Homer, a woman may not always be equal to the occasion, but usually can produce a sequel occasion, It sure do sound like ya had yerself quite a day!"

PRESIDENT

Homer's boss all sail and no anchor

'Sorry I hafta unload on ya, but that man is a case. He sure ain't no lawyer. He thinks a good case is one you buy at a bar. He passed his bar exam, right down there at Budd's Tavern.' Boss's come in all shapes an' sizes, I guess. Ya can tell by his waist that he's gone starch cravin' mad! Heh.heh!

"Dora, yer the best boss I ever had, an' that's a trip over the teeth I didn't think I'd ever make."
"Oh-hh-hh Homer! My smile ain't gonna fall off my lips today!' "Like the Bible sez in the book of Jezakiah, 'All's well that ends."

"Be sure to read the 19th chapter! It sez "The only way to avoid quarreling with your boss is to let her go her way, and you go hers! Yes dear, but do I still halfta drain the antifreeze outa the waterbed today? "An' fill it with ice cubes for

Briefly Speaking

Observing May Fellowship Day

WAYNE - Wayne area residents are reminded of the annual May Fellowship Day observance, hosted by the Wayne unit of Church Women United, on Friday, May 7 at the First Baptist Church in Wayne. The event will begin with a 9:30 a.m. breakfast.

May Fellowship Day, although celebrated nationally, focuses on unity and issues within the local community. This year's theme is "Human Touch, Divine Healing," and participants are encouraged to bring a symbol of healing to the service.

Library represented at workshop

WAYNE - Trustees and the director of Wayne Public Library recently attended a workshop focusing on the long range planning and role setting process for libraries. Designed to assist the community in determining future goals and objectives for the local library, the session encouraged a review of community needs and conditions and identification of the library's service roles

Presenter Nettie Nelson, co-director of the Heartland Center for Leadership Development, guided the participants in determining and implementing action steps to help the library make a long-term commitment to the future.

The program was sponsored by the non-profit Northeast Library System, which assists local libraries and schools of all types in a 20-

Square dancers elect officers

WAYNE - The Leather and Lace Square Dance Club of Wayne met April 23 in Wayne city auditorium. Guests from seven area clubs danced to the calling of Dale Muchlmeier of Norfolk.

The Single Wheelers Club of Norfolk retrieved their banner and the Town 7 wirlers of Laurel captured the host banner.

A meeting was held after the square dance with election of officers for 1993-94. Elected were Dick and Becky Keidel, presidents; Skip and Bea Kinslow, vice presidents; Bruce and Kathy Fiscus, secretaries; and Diane Myers, treasurer. The lunch committee for the evening was Jim and Barb Stout, Ann Kruse and DeLana Marotz, and hosts were Jim Jacobsen and Jim Rabe.

The next dance will be snack night on May 14 with all members asked to bring snacks. Caller will be Dean Dederman of Norfolk, and hosts will be Don Baker and Don and Barb Nunnally.

Minerva hosting birthday party

WAYNE - Minerva Club members met at the Black Knight on April 26 with Arlene Ellermeier as hostess.

A letter of invitation-to-an-open-house for Beryl Harvey was received from her son Donald and family. The party will be held on Saturday, May 22 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Beryl's home for her 100th birthday which is May 19.

Minerva Club also is planning a special party for Beryl on May 10 at 2 p.m. at Wayne Care Centre. This will also be the club's regular Officers of Minerva Club for the coming year are Pat Prather, president; Verna Rees, vice president; Bette Ream, secretary; and Beth Morris, treasurer.

Bette Ream presented the program on Nebraska state parks and state recreational centers.

Pamela Ruwe April bride of Dennis Kaiser at Wakefield

William Kaiser, both of St. Clair, Mo., were united in marriage on April 24 during a 5 o'clock, double ring service at Immanuel Lutheran Thurch, rural Wakefield:

The bride is the daughter of Harlan and Beverly Ruwe, and the granddaughter of Ann Swinney and Hilda Ruwe, all of Wayne.

She graduated from Wayne High School in 1983 and attended Wayne State College for two years, receiving her BS in animal science from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1987 and her MS in growth physiology from Ohio State Uni-versity in 1990. She is employed as a research scientist at Purina Mills, Inc.

The bridegroom, son of Joan
Mo. and the Kaiser of St. Peters, Mo. and the late James Kaiser, graduated from St. Charles High School in 1978 and received his BS degree from the University of Missouri in 1982. He also is employed at Purina Mills,

Inc.
The newlyweds traveled to the Black Hills and Badlands, and are making their home at 2633 West Woods Rd., St. Clair, Mo., 63077.

DECORATIONS for the couple's marriage service, which was performed by the Rev. Richard Carner of rural Wakefield, included flowers at the altar and mum plants outside the church.

Jean Swanson of Cedar Rapids, Iowa registered the guests, and ushers were Michael Ruwe of Lincoln and Daniel Wheeler of Kansas City, Mo. Candlelighters were Christina Ruwe and B.J. Ruwe, both of

Maid of honor was Susan Bailey of Silver Springs, Md., and matron of honor was Kathy Emmerson of Kitchner, Ontario, Canada. Serving as bridesmaids were Ann Ruwe of Wayne and Jean Kaiser-Vineyard of St. Charles, Mo.

Best man was Jim Kaiser of St.

Peters, Mo., and groomsmen were Stacy Van Houton of Kansas City, Mo., Bryan Ruwe of Wayne and Chris Kaiser of St. Charles, Mo.

Flower girl and ring bearer were Katherene Kaiser of St. Peters, Mo. and Joshua Ruwe of Wayne, and wedding music included "O Perfect Love" sung by the congregation.

Cindy Johnson of Madison and Condy Jointson of Madison and Loren Cook of St. Louis, Mo. sang "Doubly Good to You," "This is the Day," "Go My Children," "Love in Any Language" and "I Could Never Promise You." Organist was Shelley Gilliland of Wayne

Pinning flowers was Kelly Gearhart of Lincoln.

THE COUPLE received wedding blessings and best wishes from their parents.

On her wedding day, the bride selected a full-length white satin gown with a cathedral train. The drop waist bodice, leg-of-mutton sleeves and train were enhanced by lace inserts and accented with pearls and sequins.

The gown featured a deep V back, with a large bow at the back waistline, and sculptured lace around the entire bottom of the

She wore a crown headpiece with a blusher and two-tiered veil of shimmering netting, and carried Easter lilies, sterling silver and red roses, iris and purple statice.

The bride's attendants wore pur-ple taffeta frocks with high/low hemlines, fashioned with princess necklines, short pouf sleeves and an accent bow at the back waistline. Each carried Easter lilies and baby's

The bridegroom was attired in a black tuxedo with a white tie and cummerbund, and his attendants wore black tuxedoes with purple ties and cummerbunds.

The bride's mother chose a two-

Brazilians find our weather frightful

The biggest difference between Nebraska and Brazil is the weather say a group of visiting professionals on a Rotary exchange tour of eastern Nebraska and western Iowa doubt during their visit here that there would be any need for central air conditioning in Nebraska.

The group was hosted in Wayne for two days by members of the Wayne Rotary Club and didn't care too much for our "freezing" temperatures.

Aside from the climatic differences, the group members explained to Wayne Rotarians the economic and cultural differences between the two

"IF YOU BOUGHT an apple today and it cost a dollar, the same apple will cost $1.10 tomorrow," said Mrs. DeLima. She said only constant adjustments in salaries allow workers to keep up with the high rate of

A main problem with the inflation is having enough space on your checks to write all the zeroes, said Venicio Branquinho Pereira, a obstetric physician from Tres Corações

Team leader Roussauliere Mattos told the story of one team member who won a $25 door prize at the recent Rotary Convention in Omaha.

"That would make him a millionaire in Brazil," said Mattos. But, just about everyone is a millionaire in his country, he said. Currently, it takes about 3,500 Brazilian Cruzados to exchange for one U.S. dollar

"IT IS BETTER to work here and spend your money in Brazil," quipped Percira.

The six member team was hosted in Wayne homes by members of the Rotary Club.

Wayne Rotary President Dan Rose said it was an honor to host the study team. Rotarians treated the visitors to a family potluck Sunday and toured them through industrial, educational and medical facilities in the community.

Mattos said his group had been received extremely well in the United States. Wayne is about at the midway point on their six-week tour. They departed for Norfolk Tuesday.

goal of the group tour is to "see the life-style and people of your country, to compare and maybe improve Brazil," said Mattos, who is a retired chemistry professor and the only Rotarian of the group.

HE SAID HE was looking forward to meeting the group of young professionals from eastern Nebraska who will be visiting his homeland later this year as the second half of the Rotary funded professional exchange

Beside Mattos, Pereira and De Lima, other members of the group were Joao Carlos Elias Firme, a mining engineer from Itauna; Silmar Resende Brasil, a dental surgeon from Formiga, and Otavio De Alvarenga Gontijo, an architect from Varginha.

All members of the group are married except Firme. All were Catholic as well. As part of the group study exchange program, team members were given some training in English communication, though most had English in school and were fluent.

"I think it's wonderful. A miracle."

Eunice Cornett had cataracts.

She had Cataract Surgery on both eyes.

"I had blurry vision and a little pain in my eye. I went to my local doctor and he referred me to Dr. Feidler. I was told by Dr. Feidler that I had cataracts. My vision wasn't clear and glasses didn't help. I worked in a hospital for 27 years, so the thought of eye surgery didn't bother me. I wanted my vision cleared up.

The surgery is very simple and didn't take very long at all. I arrived in the morning, had it done, and went home before noon. I could see real well right away. Everything was clear. Now I read, drive, bowl, golf, and play cards; everything is much easier now. I think it's wonderful, a miracle. If you can't see good, and you have the opportunity to see really good, you shouldn't hesitate to have it done. There's nothing to be afraid of, it just works. I would gladly recommend Dr. Feidler."

"We always need volunteers.

Both Connie and Nancy point out that volunteers need not be horse knowledgeable and can very casily be trained to simply walk alongside the riders.

Nancy, who has worked with horseback riding programs for the disabled in Sioux City and Min-neapolis, said youngsters participating in the program benefit in a number of ways, including developing muscles that are needed for sitting upright and developing pride in themselves along with a feeling of freedom and independence

"RAINBOW Riders is a wonderful opportunity for the handicapped to participate in an activity that wouldn't normally be available to them," points out Paula Schwarten, mother of twins Michael and Megan Schwarten who were born three and a half months premature to she and her husband, Doug, and suffer from eerebral palsy.

"As for Michael and Megan, the program makes them feel special and helps them build some self-esteem. Michael says it is just plain FUN!"

Paula said children like Michael and Megan don't get to enjoy such simple pleasures as riding a bike and jump roping, let alone walk

"This program gives them an opportunity to be mobile. For one hour a week the horse is their legs for motion," says Paula.

"This opportunity wouldn't be possible without such wonderful people as Nancy and Connie. Through their love for horses and their desire to share this love with individuals least likely to experience that joy they have made Rainbow Riders a reality.

During the summer, Paula says Connie and Nancy spend many hours hauling tack to and from riding lessons, building fences, hauling hay, and organizing volunteers.

Yet through all of this they are always smiling and ready to give the riders the extra special attention they need.'

PAULA IS quick to add that Nancy and Connie are also devoted to felping the community and volunteers overcome the stigma associated with the handicapped so these individuals can reach their fullest

"Youth are commonly afraid of people with disabilities and a common interest in horses helps overnie and Nancy are aware of the generous donations of time and money of so many and want to give back to the community such as donating horsemanship books to the library and inspiring an interest in horses to the youth.

"This spring, even before the riding-season begins, Nancy and Connie have been busy attending horse sales, getting the proper tack finding the perfect horses, and organizing a fund drive.

"Last winter, at a time when people didn't think of Rainbow Riders. Connie and Nancy were busy boarding the horses, pampering them through colds and a cut foot, cleaning stalls and hauling hay.

"As a parent," says Paula, "I am extremely grateful to Connic and Nancy's devotion to this program as it allows us to experience that pride and joy of watching our children participate in an activity - an experience that other parents get on a day-to-day basis.

"A chance to watch our children be proud of themselves. A chance for them to be happy.

ECHOING the sentiments of both Lynette and Paula are Carol and Jon Milander of Coleridge.

"My 11-year-old daughter Kristin participates in the Rainbow Riders program and my husband I have served as volunteers helping with the classes," says Carot.

"When we heard that Nancy and Connie were trying to start a therapeutic riding academy in our area it was like a dream come true for our daughter."

Carol says Kristin, who walks with the help of leg braces and crutches, has spent her entire life watching other kids participate in games and sports and knowing that she would never be able to play the way they do.

"When Kristin heard they were trying to start a program like this she was overjoyed and scared too for fear this would be another dream that didn't-come true

"Needless to say, when Connie and Nancy succeeded in getting this program off the ground she was elated. She finally had something that she could do that you didn't need a set of perfect legs for,"

CAROL SAYS the Rainbow Riders program has been a wonder ful experience for she and her husband as they watch the look of joy. on Kristin's face and the faces of others when its time for their horseback riding lessons.

"You can tell that these lessons are a highlight, if not thee highlight, of their week. I know several children who have been counting down the months until it is time for the program to start again.

"My daughter would walk to the mailbox after school to see if the letter had come just telling us when the program would start again this spring, and this wasn't an easy task

Carol adds that the program has been a boast to her daughter as well as the other participants

"For many of them it has been a builder of self-esteem. It has given them an opportunity to participate in something that every other kid doesn't get a chance to do, so they are doing something they can be proud of and even brag about to the other kids

In addition, Carol says the program has brought improvements in the physical abilities of the participants, "It was amazing to see the changes in the kids from week to week. The muscles in their backs were getting stronger each week and you could see how much taller they were sitting in their saddles.

"Believe me, we are all thankful to Connie and Nancy for bringing this program to Northeast Ne-

He said Wayne Industries has identified the advantage of promotion of the region, including Wakefield and other surrounding communities, as being beneficial to Wayne too.

Currently the group is working with three strong prospects considering moving to Wayne, said Berglund. The quality of life in Northeast Ne-braska and the cooperative attitude between community and business leaders and government entities are advantages for this area, said Berglund.

"AND GREAT people," he said have been identified by the current prospects as a reason for looking closely at Wayne. "Wayne people are a crucial asset," he said. "They are involved in the selling of Wayne.

But Wayne Industries does much more than industry recruitment, said the organization's president. "The majority of new jobs created in communities come from existing businesses," said Berglund.

He said Wayne Industries has been working with the State Department of Economic Development for the retention and growth of existing busi-

Continued steady effort will insure the continued growth of the community's industrial base, said Berglund. He praised the efforts of previous board members who have many successes to their credit.

THE FIRST industrial prospect to locate in the community's industrial park was American Oil Company, which placed a small fertilizer blending plant there in 1969.

Wayne Industries sold the industrial park to the city of Wayne in 1973 to take advantage of government funding advantages for industrial development.

The major success story was the recruitment of Timpte, Inc., the fore-runner of Great Dane which currently employs over 300 in its modern refrigerated truck trailer manufacturing plant. Plans are being discussed for the further expansion of the plant which will add another 100 new jobs, company officials have said.

Wayne Industries funds other promotional efforts for the community including a billboard and brochure distribution point at the Omaha airport, direct visits to prospective industries, direct mail efforts to targeted businesses and working with DED and other agencies such as Nebraska Public Power District, said Berglund

Bluff gets ticket to see Hillary

The invitation came in the mail at the Hoskins address. I'd read about a health care conference in Lincoln; I never anticipated being asked to come to it. I don't belong to Nebraska Nurses Association, I'm no longer a director of any health-care agency, I certainly don't belong to the political party currently in charge.

I've been very interested in the Task Force on Health Care. I've commented frequently that if Hillary comes up with a reasonable plan that reduces paper work, I'll give her all kinds of credit. She was tentatively scheduled to be the luncheon speaker at the conference. I sent in my reservation. I did not hold my breath that she would actually be there; but Gov. Nelson and Sen. Kerrey were co-chairmen and there were to be some nationally-known speakers.

It was to be held at the UNL student union. By the time I got back from Houston, Hillary had confirmed she was coming. Suddenly, we were meeting at Kimball, with her talk at the Lied Center, to provide more seating. Suddenly, everyone-wanted to go to the conference! In fact, the two Democratic members of the Hospice team tried their darndest to get some of the extra tickets, with no success. (One of the Home Health Care nurses simply came over at noon and got a front-row seat.)

I was late, as usual and had missed the opening remarks. I found an upstairs seat after I registered and listened to a sharp Doc from Jackson Hole, Wyo.

The gal next to me asked if I had a ticket to Hillary's speech. I said I had assumed that my registration guaranteed admission. She answered she had sent hers in a week ago and did not get a ticket.

I went immediately to a desk where a young man from the sponsoring organization was fending off folks requesting admission tickets to the Lied. I used all the assertiveness I could muster, looking him straight in the eye and informed him that I had been an early registrant and I would be attending the speech! He reached into a breast pocket and gave me a red admission ticket to the Lied at 12:30.

Hillary is a damed good speaker. She had on a navy suit, with the short skirt, trimmed in gold braid. She had done her homework: she talked about farms and ranches, and mentioned Alliance and Broken Bow. What really endeared her to the audience was her willingness to stay and visit and shake hands and

If I had to summarize the conference, I'd use "C" words: Clinton, caring, compassion, community, concensus, conseconsideration, c tion, containment, comprehensive, catastrophic, constraints, cooperation, change, create, compete, critical, consideration, country, combine, continue, concurrence, coalition, choice, charisma, complicated and cost! I never realized before how these "C" words can evoke senti-

I came away with a new appreciation of the enormity of the task. But I am at least hopeful and I'm convinced it does have everyone's attention. Choosing to do nothing should be the last option.

Not pictured was April Thies. Event chairman Garry Poutre said the Jaycees gathered and disposed of more than 30 pickup loads of trash in nearly four hours of work. Each year the amount of unsightly trash hauled away by the Jaycees from curbside drops seems to have grown. He said during the event 12 Jaycees and an additional number of college students canvassed the town hauling trash away.

Wayne State student interns at K-Products

Wayne State College student Amy Winter of Omaha has been hired as a marketing cooperative education trainee at K-Products in Orange City, Iowa.

Winter will be working with the marketing staff to execute marketing, marketing research, advertising/communication and other projects under the direction of marketing management. The majority of the work will be spent in marketing research while additional opportunities may develop within specific sales promotion projects, according to Terry Oswald, services, marketing and research manager at K-Products.

Trainee objectives include gaining an awareness of marketing and sales promotion, developing better communication skills and a higher level of confidence, gaining knowledge of methods and procedures in the marketing and sales promotion professions and learning to apply their business education. 'As a leading sales promotion, manufacturer/distributor and fulfillment services company, K-Products offers a tremendous opportunity to further Amy's studies of marketing on a first-hand ba-

Some farm families go hungry in the land of plenty

NEWTOWN, Mo. (AP) -- Seven days a week, Al Reger tends to his land, growing the corn and raising the cattle that feed other Americans. Onceamonth, though, he stops to seek help -- to feed his own family.

The fourth-generation farmer knows that sweat and sacrifice alone won't guarantee his family three meals a day. So he and his wife, Carolyn, devised a swallow-your-pride solution: They help run and rely on -- a food bank

"It's a lifesaver for us," said the 42-ar-old father of two. "The grocery year-old father of two. "The grocery bills are the highest bills any of us have, except heat in the wintertime. Without this to stretch our food budgets, there would be hunger, true.

Here in the heart of America's heartland, the farm crisis is a memory for some, but an aching reality for others who are finding it harder to eke out a living, pay the utilities and meet one of life's most basic responsibilities -- putting food on the table.

Hunger in the heartland is, by some counts, a growing problem. Last fall, Tufts University experts analyzed one report that estimated up to 30 million Americans don't get enough to eat. It concluded the biggest increase in recent years appeared to be in the Midwest, including rural areas.

"In the breadbasket of America... growing numbers of people from farms and cities, perhaps for the first time in their lives, are bringing their children into emergency feeding fa-cilities," said Larry Brown, director of Tufts' Center on Hunger, Poverty and Nutrition Policy.

The irony isn't lost on Dave

Ostendorf of Prairiefire, an Iowabased rural activist group.

"It's a tragic commentary that many of those who produce the food are themselves not really well-fed," he said, noting that unlike the South, "hunger and poverty in the rural Midestare out of sight and out of mind," Not everyone agrees with these dire assessments.

Some experts say the 30 million estimate is far too high. Others say the problem is malnutrition -- not hunger because no one is starving. Indeed, there are no babies here with bloated bellies, no skeletal-like adults stag-gering in the streets as in Third World nations.

"The picture of hunger in the U.S. is more subtle," Brown said. "A child may be five, six pounds underweight. .. Most people would not even notice it. ... From a health perspective, it's a very serious problem." Some statistics support his claims about food shortages The Missouri Rural Crisis Center, which operates 10 food pantries including the one run by Reger, served more than 25,000 people in 1992 almost twice as many as two years

Food stamp numbers are up, too, in several largely rural Midwestern states. Indiana posted a 59 percent increase in recipients from 1988 to 1992; Missouri, a 44 percent jump in the same period.

Experts attribute the increases to the economic turmoil of the '80s and the aftermath of farm troubles and

Some activists also contend these numbers reflect just part of the problem because many folks are intimidated by red tape or too proud to seek help.

"Having a farm, you're supposed to be a rugged individual, a self-starter," said Roger Allison, director of the Missouri crisis center. "Here you are, coming to us for a handout. There's a whole mental stigma associated with that.

Reger confronts that, especially among farmers using the food pantry that serves about 30 families in this desolate hamlet in north-central Missouri, 20 miles south of the lowa

"They feel it's a failure of themselves to do well," he said. "We try to tell-people, 'It's not your fault.' It's bigger than that."

Reger knows from experience. The money he saves from using the food bank helps pay $240 a month in health insurance premiums, yet he still needs a second job -- he runs an agricultural repair shop in town -- to make ends

But having filed for bankruptcy in 1986, Reger said it wasn't difficult to seek assistance. "The shame factor," he said, "had already worn off for s."

Compounding these psychological barriers are some practical obstacles. A 1990 report by Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, a research and advocacy group, found nearly eight times as many supermarkets per county in urban areas than in rural Free services, too, aren't as abundant as in cities. "You may have a town of only 500 people and have 10 people in need. You're not going to organize a soup kitchen or a food pantry," said Patty Morris, the group's research director

FOOD FOR THOUGHT: A lot of thinking is going on regarding the link between food intake and aging. For example, the evidence is growing that restricting the intake of food may increase longevity. Apparently, food restriction retards physiological changes. That factor, in turn, delays the onset of certain age-related conditions.

One area of study involves free radicals. These are harmful agents that are generated by oxygen in the body. They damage cells and speed up the prince process. An

They damage cells and speed up the aging process. Antioxidant nutrients, such as vitamins C and E, and beta toxidant nutrients, such as vitatines e and e, and see carotene, destroy free radicals.

Another area of investigation will probe how age and diet may affect, the way a cell can remove altered or damage and to the control of the co protein. Learning more about this process may shed light on the link between damaged protein and Alzheimer's

BUT, while it seems cutting back on one's daily intake might be a smart move, many seniors, ironically, don't get enough of the proper nutrients at any time. One reason, of course, is economic. They simply cannot afford to buy enough of the right foods to provide balanced nutrition. These people should have access to food stamps, meals on wheels (especially if they're homebound) and free lunches wheels (especially I they re homeosona) and free functies supplied by community centers.

Also-human taste buds begin to die off at age 70. It's difficult to develop an appetite if we can't taste our food. There's also a tendency toward decreased saliva flow as we age, which makes chewing and swallowing more difficult. GRANDPARENTS ON THE OUTSIDE: A few weeks ago, we discussed some cases involving grandparents who have been barred from seeing their own ndchildren. Some of your letters support this, indicat grandconderents should have the final say about with whom their children will be involved, and that includes their grandparents — especially if the grandparents played a part in anything that made their own sons and daughters angry at each other. A letter that arrived last week took another tack. I quote part of it: "...some things you can never copy," Ms. B. H. wrote. "If you keep your children from their grandparents, no one else will fill that void. If will be there forever ... Even if you, personally, hate the older people, you owe it to the children to let them be a part of their lives a couple of times a year. (Maybe) it will bring you closer to them, too."

Stories make heart-warming reading

Five area moms will be the recipients of medallions when the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce honors the winners of the Wayne Area Top Moms contest at a coffee on Friday, May 7 at 10 a.m. at the Black Knight.

The five winning mothers, as nominated by their children, are Beth Deck, Diane Borgmann, Dan Hledik, Debbie Ensz and Cynthia Rethwisch. Stories about each Top Morn, along with the winning essays written by their children, are included in this special section.

Elementary and Middle School students (third through eighth grades) from Wayne and surrounding rural schools were invited to enter their moms in the contest by writing in 100 words of less, "Why my mom should be a Wayne Top Mom."

Nearly 100 entries were received and judges were Bette Ream. Marie Sokan and Orvella Blomenkamp, all members of the Wayne Area Retired Teachers and School Personnel Association.

All three judges agreed that they tried to pick winning entries which were given deep thought and "really came from the heart."

Besides the coffee and special medals, the winning moms will receive other gifts from Wayne businesses.

All the entries the chamber received are on display in store windows of Wayne businesses, and Chamber Executive Director Kurt Wilwerding said the public is invited to browse the stores for heart-warming reading.

"The annual contest pays tribute to the excellent writing ability of the students in this area and the fine qualities displayed by their mothers," said

Still puzzled about what to get momfor Mother's Day?

Check inside this special section of The Wayne Herald for a whole bunch of great ideas for Mother's Day gifts. The advertisers in Wayne are featuring a variety of items designed to pay tribute to your "Top Mom" on her special day.

It is through the sponsorship of those businesses that this special section featuring Top W yne Area Moms is made possible.

Wilwerding. He said the Top Mom's featured in the contest, and the young people who wrote about them are prime reasons why the Wayne area is such a nice place to live.

In addition to the top five entries from students, judged also selected six honorable mention entries. Those essays are also included in this section.

Special coffee is tribute to moms

Wayne Area "Top Moms" will be introduced, drapped with medals, and awarded Chamber Bucks and prizes from Wayne area businesses during the weekly Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce coffee on Friday at 10 a.m. at the Black Knight in Wayne.

Also invited to attend the coffee are the youngsters who wrote the winning essays and judges who selected them. The program will include a talk by Will Davis on taking time to honor mothers.

This year's Top Mom prizes (split among the five designess) will be 1) A necklace and earrings from Kid's Closet; 2) a sleepshirt from Swans' Women Apparel; 3) 20 Diamond King Dollars from The Diamond Center; 4) a cake from the Dairy Queen; 5) jewelry (1928) pin) from Four in Hand; 6) $40 gift certificate from Taco Stop; 7) $10 gift certificate from Little King; 8) a free valance for an approximate 40" window from Kuhn's Carpet and Drapery; 9) a two-piece billfold ensemble from Surber's Clothing; 10) a $20 gift certificate from Sav-Mor Pharmacy; 11) $20 in Chamber Bucks to each "Top Mom" from The Wayne Herald.

Wayne dad is 'Top Mom' to daughter

By Kevin Peterson

It takes a lot to earn the title of Top Mom but Wayne West Elementary third grader Cassandra Hledik believes her's fills every category with an added twist—her Top Mom is her dad, Dan Hledik.

In a recent essay contest by students in grades three through eight in Wayne county, Cassandra's was selected as one of the top five by a panel of retired school teachers. The contest was sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

Dan works at Heritage Homes of Wayne and also works as an independent contractor which keeps him very busy, but Cassandra knows that the sacrifices her father makes by working two jobs is for the benefit of her kindegarten brother Cody and herself.

"I think my dad deserves the title of Top Mom because he does a great job of being both my mom and dad," the smiling 10-year-old to be in a week says. "He still finds time to spend quality time with me and my brother."

Cassandra's 12-year-old—sister Megan lives with her mom in Arkansas but it's obvious through her laughter and the way she looks at her father that being raised in a single parent family doesn't mean there's a lack of love having just one parent, instead of two.

Although just a third grader, Cassandra knows what it means to be responsible. She spends the time at her babysitter's (Margie Meyer) doing any homework she might have.

At home she helps out around the house quite a bit. "I make sure my room is picked up and often times I have to help my brother clean his room," Cassandra said. "He seems to find plenty of time to mess up the house so there's always something to do in keeping the house cleaned."

She also helps out on yard work by raking or what ever father asks. Cassandra says she enjoys school and her teacher Mrs. Larson. She likes to read and says she has lots of books at home and she likes the outdoors where she spends time riding bikes and playing with barbies.

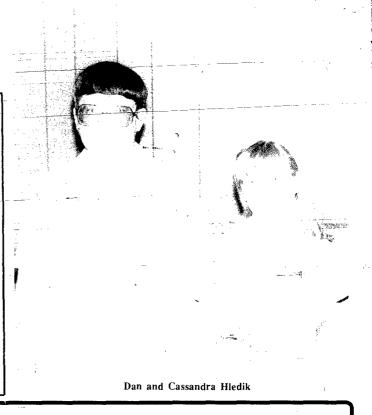

Cassandra also likes spending time with her father when it's just the two of them. In fact, one of her most special memories was the time just she and her father spent the evening together just watching television and talking.

Some of the special places that Cassandra says she's been with her family include Minneopa Falls in Mankato, Minnesota along with shopping in the Mall of America. She also says she enjoyed going to Amold's Park in Spirit Lake, Iowa.

"I'm very proud of my daughter," Dan said. "I can count on her doing what she's told to do and her help around the house is very much appreciated."

Dan also said it meant a lot to him that Cassandra wrote an essay labeling him as a Top Mom.

'Top Mom' has all the right qualities

By LaVon Anderson
Of the Herald

"She's nice to me, she loves me a lot, and she takes good care of me."

For 10-year-old Jason Rethwisch of rural Wayne, those qualities are more than enough to count his mom among the area's "Top Moms."

Jason, a fourth grader at Wayne County School District 51, was the author of an essay that also impressed judges enough to qualify his mother. Cynthia, to receive honors as one of five "Top Moms" in Wayne County in a contest sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

Jason's winning essay was selected from among more than 80 submitted by third through eighth grade students in Wayne County.

"Mom was really happy," beams Jason, recalling the news that his mother would be featured in a special newspaper section devoted to motherhood.

"I couldn't be a top mom without top kids," smiles Cynthia.

IN ADDITION to Jason, Cynthia is a "Top Mom" to two other sons, 14-year-old Jeremiah and 12-year-old Jesse.

The family, including Cyathia's husband of 15 years, Jon, resides on a farm three miles west and one-halfsouth of Wayne.

In addition to helping with the family's farm operation, Cynthia works weekdays while her sons are in school for two Wayne families with such things as yard work, laundry, grocery shopping and preparing meals.

They are active members of Grace-Lutheran Church in Wayne, where Cynthia serves as secretary of the Ladies Aid. In addition, she is a coleader of Dog Creek 4-H Club.

WHEN asked what his mom does best, Jason doesn't hesitate in pointing out that she is a great cook. "Especially those sticky cinnamon_rolls," smiles Jason smacking his lips. "She makes great cheesecake too."

With a little help from brother Jesse, Jason agrees that mom often makes sacrifices for her family.

"What about in the summer when she takes you to baseball," points out Jesse. "She can't do anything else cause she's taking you to baseball."

When it comes to spending quality time with his mother, Jason said he especially likes to take walks. "Now it might be bike rides," smiles Jason, the proud owner of a new bicycle for his

She also helps out on yard work-by--raking or what ever father asks. Cassandra says she enjoys school and her teacher Mrs. Larson. She likes to read and says she has lots of books at home and she likes the outdoors where she spends time riding bikes and playing with barbies.

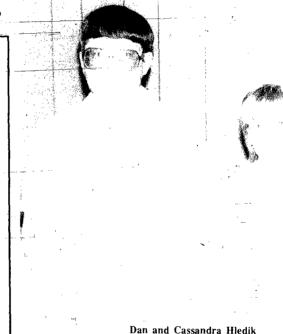

Cassandra also likes spending time with her father when it's just the two of them. In fact, one of her most special memories was the time just she and her father spent the evening together just watching television and talking.

Some of the special places that Cassandra says she's been with her family include Minneopa Falls in Mankato, Minnesota along with shopping in the Mall of America. Shealso says she enjoyed going to Arnold's Park in Spirit Lake, Iowa.

I'm very proud of my daughter," Dan said. "I can count on her doing what she's told to do and her help around the house is very much appreciated.'

Dan also said it meant a lot to him that Cassandra wrote an essay labeling him as a Top Mom.

'Top Mom' has all the right qualities

By LaVon Anderson
Of the Herald

"She's nice to me, she loves me a lot, and she takes good care of me."

For 10-year-old Jason Rethwisch of rural Wayne, those qualities are more than enough to count his mom among the area's "Top Moms."

Jason, a fourth grader at Wayne County School District 51, was the author of an essay that also impressed judges enough to qualify his mother, Cynthia, to receive honors as one of five "Top Moms" in Wayne County in a contest sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

Jason's winning essay was selected from among more than 80 submitted by third through eighth grade students in Wayne County.

"Mom was really happy," beams Jason, recalling the news that his mother would be featured in a special newspaper section devoted to motherhood.

"I couldn't be a top mom without top kids," smiles Cynthia.

IN ADDITION to Jason, Cynthia is a "Top Mom" to two other sons, 14-year-old Jeremiah and 12-year-old Jesse.

The family, including Cynthia's husband of 15 years, Jon, resides on a farm three miles west and one-half south of Wayne.

In addition to helping with the family's farm operation, Cynthia works weekdays while her sons are in school for two Wayne families with such things a yard work, laundry, grocery shapping and preparing meals.

They are active members of Grace Lutheran Church in Wayne, where Cynthia scryes as secretary of the Ladies Aid. In addition, she is a coleader of Dog Creek 4-H Club.

WHEN asked what his mom does best, Jason doesn't hesitate in pointing out that she is a great cook, "Especially those sticky cinnamon rolls," smiles Jason smacking his lips. "She makes great cheesecake too."

With a little help from brother Jesse, Jason agrees that mom often makes sacrifices for her family.

"What about in the summer when she takes you to baseball," points out Jesse. "She can't do anything else cause she's taking you to baseball."

When it comes to spending quality time with his mother, Jason said he especially likes to take walks. "Now it might be bike rides," smiles Jason, the proud owner of a new bicycle for his

'Do-it-all' mom earns top honor

By Les Mann

Beth Deck is a do-it-all mom, at least that's what her daughter, Rachel says. Rachel'sessay in the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce Top Mom contest listed all the many things that Beth does for her family and for the family farm.

It is an impressive list of accomplishments. That along with Rachel's writing talent combined to cause Mrs. Deck to be named one of the Wayne area Top Moms for 1993.

"She can almost do anything," wrote the Hoskins Trinity Lutheran School 6th grader. From cleaning hog barns and home remodeling to attending track meets and painting the family vehicles, Mrs. Deck finds a family need and fulfills it, according to Rachel

THE WORKING mother of three daughters, Emily, 15; Rachel, 12 and Laurie Beth, 9, Beth Deck admits to being busy. Besides her job as an administrative secretary with the City of Norfolk, she helps around the farm, serves as an organizational leader for the largest 4-H club in Wayne County and is active in church.

"Where there's a will there's a way," she said explaining her motto as part of the reason she tackles interesting tasks, like installing new windows in their hogge, and sanded, primed and repainted both the family car and pickup.

' She also finds time for reading, and gardening and loves to cook and sew.

MRS. DECK says her husband of 18 years, Doug, is a "livestock and grain production specialist" her term for farmer. Doug also serves on the Winside School Board.

The Decks believe parental involvement in the schools is crucial to the

For two years running

Wayne mom is once again 'Tops'

By Les Mann Of the Herald

The only two-time winner of the Top Mom medal in Wayne is Debbie Ensz. who was nominated by her son, Jeff, 10. Jeff's effort as a mom essavist was named as a winner last year as well.

"Your kidding!" exclaimed Mrs. Ensz, when told of her son's winning entry for the second year. She blushed slightly when she read his essay which said he loves his mom, even when she punishes him.

"Jeff loves to write," she said. In fact, he has plans to enter the Mari Sandoz writing contest. He likes the Nebraska author's works and learned that she wrote her first story at age 10 and a contest is open to 10-year-olds in the state who wish to emulate the famous writer.

JEFF WAS involved in the young author's program last year as well, she explained.

The common denominator among the winners of the Top Mom's essay contest this year seems to be the reading level of the young writers. All the top moms have indicated their young nominees are voracious readers and are encouraged to read at home.

"We want the kids to read for enjoyment," said Mrs. Ensz. She said she and her husband, Bob, who is a district judge, keep things in the house their three children like to read, like magazines for young people and library books by the stack Television is just not a drain on family time in the Ensz home. There are more important things to do, she said. Reading, exercise and other family activities have a higher priority.

AS A TWO-TIME winner of the Top Mom award, Mrs. Ensz said she doubted other moms would be asking her advice about motherhood, but when forced to give it, she said laughing, "Have forgiving children. If you are not blessed with that, you'd better clean up your act."

She and Bob subscribe to what she calls the "Roots and Wings Theory." She wants their children to have a good foundation in education, values and discipline "so they can fly on their own."

She said she hopes their three children. Susie, 18; David, 13 and Jeff, are being raised with discipline so they will have self discipline when they leave home. She adds she strives to see that they have a good foundation in self respect and respect for others.

Mrs. Ensz is a professor at Wayne State College, teaching composition and principles of human communication. She grew up as the daughter of an English teacher, and she has worked to instill the Top Mom says communication is key

By Les Mann Of the Herald

Communication is one of the keys to successful motherhood, according to one of the five winners of the Top Moms contest sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

Diane Borgmann of rural Hoskins was nominated by her daughter, Emily, who is a sixth grader at Trinity Lutheran School in Hoskins.

The mother of two daughters, Mrs. Borgmann stresses the need for open communication with the girls.

"I always tell them 'If you ever have a problem you can come to me, I'm your friend,' " she said. She said mothers who adopt that philosophy have to make sure they are available and open when their children need to talk. "You've got to be there for them."

EMILY'S ABILITY to communicate is what got her mom selected as a Wayne Top Mom. Her essay was judged one of the five best by a panel of retired teachers in the second annual contest.

Several factors contribute to the straight A student's communication skills, said Mrs. Borgmann. First, she attends a great school. Second, she is an avid reader. And third, she has parents who stress the importance of education and get involved in the school.

The Borgmann girls love writing, even keeping their own journals, said Mrs. Borgmann. She said she was not particularly surprised that Emily might win a writing honor.

THE BORGMANN girls were a third generation of Trinity Lutheran students from the same family. Mrs. Borgmann attended there as did her father.

She said she likes the quality education provided in a small-school environment.—(26 students in K-8) and added that she thinks the school helps instill the importance of family values.

But, she added parental involvement in crucial to educational success. Parents

Gift of cookbook can make meal preparation fun and interesting

Not all Moms love to cook, but most find themselves preparing meals for their families on a daily basis (whether they like it or not).

One way to make meal preparation more interesting: give Mom a cookbook that can provide inspiration and lift her out of everyday cooking doldrums. It doesn't have to be a fancy cookbook, just one that can give Mom an idea or two to make cooking more interesting - and fun.

Two helpful, basic cookbooks: "The 5 in 10 Cookbook: 5 Ingredients in 10 Minutes or Less" by Paula Hamilton (Hearst Books, $15) and "The Kitchen Survival Guide" by Lora Brody (William Morrow, $20).

Hamilton's cookbook couldn't be more simple: 164 easy recipes that use no more than five ingredients and cook in 10 minutes or less; everything from appetizers and soups to main courses and desserts.

Among the offerings: rotelle with feta, chopped tomatoes and olives; Caribbean chicken curry; red cabbage and apples in caraway cream-sauce; and helpful hints that Grandma forgot to lemon cloud pie. share. Recipes include a zesty three-

Hamilton, the food editor of the Oakland Tribune, stresses the importance of a well-stocked pantry, adding: "Although saving time was our goal, we found that we saved a fortune when we stopped bringing in carryout a couple of nights a week and started limiting the number of ingredients we purchased." 'The Kitchen Survival Guide'--

Although "The Kitchen Survival Guide" is targeted for the newly graduated, newly married, newly single and others who are venturing into the kitchen for the first time, it is also a good source of information for veteran cooks who still aren't sure whether ketchup should go in the refrigerator (it shouldn't), how to tell if eggs are fresh (an egg is stale if it floats in a bowl of water), or how to keep green beans, fresh spinaeh and peas green (add a pinch of baking soda to the cooking water).

Brody builds kitchen confidence with 130 basic recipes as well as hundreds of helpful hints that Grandma forgot to share. Recipes include a zesty threebean salad, beef bourguignon and betterthan-store-bought oatmeal cookies.

Brody, who lives in Newton, Mass., is also the author of "Growing Up on the Chocolate Diet," "Indulgences" and "Cooking with Memories." 'Great Good

For Moms who want to cut the fat out of their family's meals: "Great Good Food: Luscious Lower-Fat Cooking" by Julee Rosso (Crown-Turtle Bay Books, $19 softcover; $29.95 hardcover) is filled with some 800 recipes, menus and a nutrition update.

In the introduction, Rosso says she's become aware of the frustrations of home cooks who want to prepare meals every day that are more healthful, that have fewer fats and less cholesterol -- and yet will please the palate.

Her cookbook explains how to figure a daily fat allowance in calories and grams, tells how to stock a "low-fat" pantry and provides "great good basics" such as yogurt cheese, chicken broth, flaky pie crust and sourdough starter.

The recipes are divided by season. The cookbook also contains menus for special occasions, international dishes and the "new classics" including pestos, flavored oils and salad spritzes, splashes and sprays.

Rosso's selection of innovative and taste-tempting recipes includes rumglazed country ham, Colorado pasta salad, fried green tomatoes and peach pie. Rosso, the co-author of the Silver Palate cookbooks and "The New Basics Cookbook," lives in Saugatuck, Mich., where she and her husband own the Wickwood Country Inn.

Grand Island woman is 'Mother of the Year'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) -- A Grand Island mother of seven who has been a foster parent to 200 children was named the nation's Mother of the Year on Sunday.

Ruby A. Washington was selected from 38 competitors in a contest at Raleigh, N.C.

She is the sixth Nebraska woman to carn the title in the 58 years of the contest sponsored by American Mothers Inc.

As the Mother of the Year, Mrs. Washington will make appearances around the country to promote the ideals of the organization—moral and spiritual development of the family.

In addition to caring for their seven children, Mrs. Washington and her husband, Robert, have been foster parents to 200 teen-agers.

A GREAT MOTHER BY CRYSTAL KAUP FOR THE TOP MOM CONTEST

I think my mom, Germaine Kaup, should be top mom because she is great. The reason why I think she is great is because she cares for us alot. When one of my family members is sick, she is always there for us. She always reminds us that she loves us very much and to never forget that. Not only do I think she is loving and caring, but also fair to all of us. If we do the right things, she will give us a reward in doing so. Sometimes we may fail, but my mom helps us to succeed. On days when we do not understand what we are to do, she helps us. It does not matter to her if the news is for adults because she thinks that we are part of this world and we deserve to know what happens in it. It prothers and I may have an opinion opposite of hers, but she accepts our opinions even though they may be wrong. She helps us to make good decisions. Those are the reasons why I think she should be top mom, and I thank her for these.

Tea, scones can help make moms feel special on their special day

Mother's Day Tea can make Mom feel very special. Julee Rosso offers a tray full of delicious dishes -- including currant scones and warm ginger tea -- in her new cookbook, "Great Good Food: Luscious Lower-Fat Cooking."

Currant Scones

1 cup currants

1/4 cup fresh orange juice

2 cups all-purpose flour

1 cup low-fat buttermilk

1 tablespoon baking powder

-1 teaspoon baking soda

3 tablespoons canola oil

1/4 cup sugar

1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Soak the currants in the orange juice for 1 hour. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Lightly spray or wipe two baking sheets with vegetable oil.

In a medium-size bowl, place all of the remaining ingredients and stir with a fork

Warm Ginger Tea_

4 teaspoons loose English breakfast

1 teaspoon chopped fresh ginger

4 orange slices, 1/4-inch thick

8 whole cloves

Fill a kettle with water and bring to a boil. Rinse the inside of a teapot with 2 cups hot water and drain. Put the tea leaves and ginger in the teapot and add 6 cups of boiling water. Cover the teapot with a tea towel and steep for 5 minutes.

Stud each orange slice with 2 cloves and place at the bottom of a teacup. Stir the tea, then strain into the cups. Makes 4 servings.

just until blended; do not overmix, Add the soaked currants and juice.

Drop the dough in 2 tablespoon measures spaced about 1 1/2 inches apart on the sheets. You should have 24 scones. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 10 to 12 minutes, until golden brown.

can't expect the school to do the entire job.

"It's very important," she stressed the need to be active in the school and at home with homework and other educational activities.

"If parents don't get involved then the kids don't think it is important," she said. "Sadly, some people just don't take the time with their kids.

MRS. BORGMANN is a bartender at Big Ern's in Hoskins and works nights twice a week, but she doesn't et the job get in the way of the girl's educational needs. She has been bartending for 10 years and prior to that was employed at the Norfolk Telephone Company before it closed. She graduated from Winside High School.

Her husband, Bill, is a construction worker who travels the country building Super 8 motels. He built the Super 8 in Wayne last summer and is currently working on a new motel in Fayettville, Ark. She said he comes home every weekend with a new batch of Bill Clinton jokes.

The family enjoys going to shows on weekends, going to sprint car races and reading. Mrs. Borgmann also finds time for cross-stitching.

They have lived in a rural setting near Hoskins for several years and enjoy country living she said, adding that it took some time for the girls to get used to.

Being a friend is what makes Mrs. Borgmann a Top Mom, according to Emily, "She is fun to be around. She's not just my mom, she's my friend."

same love for the proper use of the language in her children that was instilled in her.

JEFF, WHO IS a Tourth grader at West Elementary School in Wayne, took the announcement that his mom would be awarded a second medal because of his writing ability in stride.

"Even when she punishes me, or I get kind of mad at her, I-still love her," he wrote.

He alluded to the family's healthy lifestyle in his essay. Good food and good exercise are a part of the Ensz family routine. The whole family plays tennis, "some better than others," quipped Susie. Her mother used to be a tennis teacher. Walking, swimming and attending the kids sporting events are also a part of the family activity routine.

When people ask how she has the time to exercise, keep house, do her job and keep up with the kids' activities she said she simply focuses on the priorities.

"The kids have always been a top priority," she added.

Hy Mon.

Hy mother, Jan Brumn, is a very special person. She listens to us and understands us. She comes to all our performances. She attends our softball games. She takes time out from what she is doing to drive me to band. She is loving and cakring. She finds time to spend with us all. She helps us understand our homework. She helps us with school projects. My mother helps us study, for tests. My mother encourages us to try our best. She tells us that we are all special and that she and God will always love us.

Rebeca Brymm 808 Grainland P.D. Wayne, N.G.

My mom is a great mom. She cares for me and is there whenever I need her. When I have a problem I know I can trust her. She will always listen and help me to work it out. Going places with my mom makes me feel good. Some times she tells me what a wonderful girl I am. This lifts my spirits when I feel sad and helps me to theer up. Even though my mom gets mad at me sametimes I know she is just worried about me. I wouldn't trade her for any other mom in the world.

children's educational success, said Mrs. Deck. They like the parochial school atmosphere at Trinity Lutheran where there are 26 students, two teachers and a host of supportive parents.

Trinity Lutheran produced two of the five winners in the Wayne Top Moms contest this year, but that didn't really surprise Mrs. Deck. "We're blessed with good teachers."

SHE ALSO praised Rachel, who she said loves to read and gets straight A's. Rachel is also endeavoring to take 15 projects in 4-H this year.

Family activities are very important with the hectic schedules of work, school and farm, she said. That is why the Decks like to play softball, ride horses together, go bowling, swimming and play board games.

She-said she implemented a "no TV Tuesday" policy about 4 years ago and the family plans other things that evening. They haven't really missed the tube she said and added they have found there's many more fun and productive things to spend their time on.

MRS. DECK is the daughter of Leroy and Janelle Fischer of Pierce. She grew up with two brothers and two sisters. She said she has always been a farm girl at heart.

She said she would like to stay home and help more with the farm rather than work, but the economic necessities of two incomes have not escaped the Deck family either.

She said that makes family life and time together all the more important and that the Deck's strive to make time for family activities.

10th birthday on May 2.

Jason says his mom is also great at giving him good advice, including always being kind to people and treating them the way he would like to be treated.

Recently, Jason said the best advice he received from his mother came following the sudden death of his best friend's little brother. "Mom said that even though we can't see people anymore, they're still in our heart, because there's a special place in our heart and they'll always be there.

"That really made me feel better."

WHEN MOM'S sad, Jason says he usually just tells her to cheer up.

"If I could ever make it to the greenhouse on time while she was sad, I would get her flowers," points out Jason. "But that usually doesn't happen so I just ask her to cheer up.'

'Jason's a good one for hugs and kisses," points out Cynthia.

What special plans does the family have brewing for Mother's Day less than a week away. "I can tell you they haven't even thought about it," laughs Cynthia.

"Oh yes I have," Jason corrects his mother. "I even made you a card at school.

"And," he whispers, "I'm getting her a big bunch of flowers.'

Festivities continue

To celebrate Mother Earth

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) -- Strides have been made-since the first Earth Day 23 years ago but the planet continues to suffer from the abuses of man, according to speakers at an Earth Day celebration in Omaha.

Several thousand people attended seven hours of events Sunday at Heartland of America Park along Omaha's riverfront.

One of the speaker, Rep. Peter Hoagland, D-Neb., said protecting natural resources and cleaning up the environment are essential to the nation's economic well being, social lifestyle and

He said auto emissions have declined dramatically, lead in the air is down, new landfills are safer, some harmful pesticides have been replaced with safer ones and recycling is catching on.

Hoagland said quality of river water in urban areas also has improved, wetlands protection has started and environmental education programs are spreading.

Specific goals that have been achieved, include designating a portion of the Niobrara River as a national scenic river in Nebraska, he said.

But, he said, only 10 percent of the $ nation's ancient forests remain and loggers want to cut-some of the rest on public lands.

Hoagland said the results elsewhere around the world aren't as promising. He said species of plants and animals continue to vanish, some of which may contain natural chemicals that might cure diseases.
