

Suspect in Pierce murder worked in Wayne

Authorities have arrested a suspect in the stabbing death of a 10-year-old Pierce boy whose body was found in a restroom at Gilman Park.

Mitch B. Ziemer died of multiple stab wounds on Friday afternoon after he was apparently lured into the park restroom while on a fishing outing at the park's lake.

Being held in Pierce County Jail pending filing of murder charges is Richard C. Barnes, 23, Plainview, whom police arrested at his home Sunday night.

On Monday, Pierce County Attorney Verlyn Luebbe said in a news release the investigation was assisted by Ziemer's friend and fishing buddy who described the suspect and the car he had seen driving away from the park.

AN ARTIST provided a sketch of the suspect based on the young boy's description.

Ziemer's body was found at about 3:30 p.m. Friday, according to Christopher J. Connolly, of Wayne, who served as deputy Pierce County attorney Friday while Luebbe was out of the county.

Luebbe summarized the events leading up to the Ziemers boy's death as this: "Mitch and his friend had been going fishing in the park. One of the boys needed to use the restroom nearby. They both went to the restroom and took their fish along. A white male in his 20s or 30s tried to enter the restroom while the boys were locked inside. They returned to the lake to go fishing when they were told by this man that a fish had been left in the restroom. Mitch went to the restroom to get the fish. Both Mitch and the man entered the restroom. Mitch was never seen alive again. Mitch's friend was next asked to come to the restroom but didn't. The man waited for this other youngster but went to a brown car when more people and activity were occurring in the park. The friend got help as soon as the brown car left the park," related Luebbe.

THE SUSPECT in the case is also facing charges of sexually assaulting a child in Cedar County. He was arrested in June in Laurel. Cedar County Sheriff Elliot Arens said Barnes was then living in Laurel and working in Wayne.

Barnes was out on bond pending court proceedings on the earlier charges and authorities said he was in Pierce for a job interview Friday.

They said there was no clear motive for Friday's incident, but Luebbe said the intense investigation which led to Barnes arrest would be continuing.

LUEBBE SAID evidence was seized in a search of the Barnes home and auto Sunday. He said authorities were directed there by the descriptions of several witnesses in the park.

Ziemer is the son of Dan and Connie Ziemer of rural Pierce. He would have been a fifth grader at Pierce Elementary School.

Residents said they were shocked by the death.

Pierce, population about 1,600, is about 30 miles west of Wayne.

My life as a college student

Many students started out their college careers Monday and Tuesday standing in lines at registration and class scheduling office on the Wayne State College campus. A near record incoming class of freshmen will again mean the college will post enrollment growth figures and parking will be a premium.

College growth positive

'But the best is yet to come'

Wayne State College president, Donald J. Mash, told faculty members that the institution can not rest on its laurels even though the college is growing dramatically and many other improvements have been made during the past five years.

"Now is the time, from a position of strength, to get better," Mash said during the opening faculty meeting. "Even though a tremendous amount of progress has been made, we need to continue refining, polishing, focusing and streamlining — and we need to attract better people and retain the good people we have on campus."

Mash said the college has grown by approximately 35 percent over the past five years because it has a clear sense of the role it is supposed to serve.

"WE DO AN outstanding job of teaching students and providing them with personal attention," Mash said. "When you couple that with our cost, we're doing a great job of what most colleges and universities in the country are being asked to do but can't. Higher education is under attack because it isn't focused on undergraduate teaching in spite of exorbitant rising costs of higher education."

This year's new freshman class of 718 students represents an increase of 10 percent from last year's class of 650 students, and 40 percent from 1988 when 497 new freshmen enrolled.

Overall, approximately 4,000 students will be enrolled when extended campus students finish registering for classes this semester. This represents more than 35 percent growth from 1988 when 2,856 students were enrolled. This will mark the fifth straight year that the college's on-campus enrollment has increased.

RESIDENCE hall occupancy this semester is at an all-time high of 1,550. The college had to convert guest rooms to dorm rooms in order to accommodate students, said Curt Frye, dean for student life.

Frye said residence hall occupancy has increased by more than 45 percent since 1988 when 1,033 students lived in residence halls.

In order to accommodate the growth, Mash said approximately 30 new faculty positions have been added in the past five years. He said the legislature recognized Wayne State's need by authorizing a special appropriation of $250,000 for new faculty positions last spring. Furthermore, a new $4 million building that will house the Division of Business is being constructed, the Student Center will double in size and many other physical plant improvements are being made.

"We can't take for granted what we've done here," Mash said. "Tremendous progress is being made. I think we can, and will, get even better. I have no intention of allowing us to rest on our laurels, and I don't believe that most of you have any intentions of doing so. The best is yet to come."

School crisis team to help kids cope

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Wayne City School teachers and administrators are learning how to respond when death comes to school.

A special crisis team has formed and received special training on how to help children cope with death and other crisis situations. The team presented information to fellow teachers and administrators Monday as part of the in service training teachers are receiving before the start of classes.

It was a somber and attentive group that expressed deep concern about the impact of crisis situations on youngsters and discussed the past experiences that have touched schools here and in neighboring communities.

"WE HAVE made mistakes in the past," said crisis team member Terry Munson. He said the goal of the schools should be to help students and teachers through any grieving process and get back to normal as quickly as possible.

That can sound callous and uncaring, he added, but it is not. He and other team members said schools can make matters worse for students trying to cope with the death of a friend by the way they react.

Experiences elsewhere indicate it is not a good idea to cancel classes, hold large assemblies or establish visible, named memorials at the school for students who have died. Memorials such as trees planted for dead students, yearbooks dedicated on their behalf or their pictures and names hung in the hall have been factors in suicides of fellow students he said. These can be seen as maudlin reminders.

ADDITIONALLY, MUNSON said that the schools should not give the impression that one life is more valuable than another whether it be a student, teacher or relative of someone at school who has died.

The crisis team said it will be working with ministers and funeral directors to encourage the scheduling of memorial services during other than school hours.

"Above all we don't want to ignore the fact that someone has died," crisis team member Joan Sudman told her fellow teachers. She said the team will be available to help teachers in individual classroom and a structure has been established to provide "support centers" for students to go and talk with counselors, or to be alone.

"Kids need the support of the structure of the school day—their routine," she said. Crisis situations often leave them confused and disoriented and their routine structure can help them cope.

THE TEAM members also said students reactions to crisis situations vary dramatically and some may not want to grieve and efforts such as mass assemblies, cancelled classes and busing to funerals should never be organized.

Teachers were encouraged to be honest and forthright with their students in times of crisis without mak-

No senator for Wayne

The official announcement has not yet been made but Wayne's Sheryl Lindau said she has been informed by Gov. Ben Nelson that she will not be his pick for appointment to the state legislative seat vacated by the resignation of Kurt Hohenstein.

The governor called Mrs. Lindau Tuesday afternoon to say he was selecting instead Pat Engel a South Sioux City insurance agent to fill the post. Engel's name had apparently surfaced after the withdrawal of the other Dakota County candidate Jackie Hartnett.

Mrs. Lindau's supporters in Wayne County had believed she was the front runner after the withdrawal of Mrs. Hartnett, but she said the governor apparently felt the population core of the district in Dakota County warranted the appointment.

Though disappointed, Mrs. Lindau said the governor encouraged her to remain active and involved in party politics and be in line for future appointed or elected posts.

She said she is not sure when the governor plans to make the official announcement.

Engel is an agent for State Farm Insurance in South Sioux City and has a daughter who works in the governor's office.

Mrs. Lindau said the governor's office had told her they were impressed with the number of supporters she generated during the short behind the scenes campaign for the post.

911 service to cost 50¢

The Wayne County Commissioners gave their approval for a new charge on all 375 phone prefixes to go toward the 911 service at their last meeting. A charge of 50 cents per month would appear on all phone bills that have a 375 prefix for upkeep and maintenance of the 911 system according to Wayne police chief Vern Fairchild.

"Our next step is to take it to the city council," Fairchild said. "We plan on doing that on August 31 and if that goes well then we have to approach the Dixon County Commissioners because we have a number of 375 prefixes in Dixon County." The meeting in Dixon County is slated for Sept. 14 in Ponca. Fairchild said if everything goes as planned then the phone company will be notified and the 911 service charge will take affect later this year.

Fairchild added that he hoped in time, Wayne can install an enhanced 911 service which allows the operator to pinpoint where the call is coming from, and which agency needs to respond by a screen. Incidentally, there are approximately 2700 phone numbers with the 375 prefix.

Lyme Disease

Lyme disease, the most commonly reported tick-borne infection in the United States, can be treated with antibiotics, but prevention is still the safest measure. Prevention involves avoiding heavily wooded areas, or tall grasses in endemic areas such as the northeastern states - from May to October, as the tick carrying the disease is most commonly found in those areas at that time. Light-colored clothing, long-sleeved shirts and long-pants also protect the body from feeding ticks. Insect repellents containing DEET repel the ticks. Ask your pharmacist for more information on repelling ticks and avoiding potential complications.

Back to School Safety Tips

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY —

- Choose the safest route and walk it with your children. Look for the most direct route with the fewest street crossings. Walk that route with your children until they demonstrate traffic safety awareness. Children under age 8 should walk with an adult or older child every day, taking the same route and avoiding shortcuts.
- Teach children to obey all traffic signals and markings. Even if the sign says "walk," children should still check for inattentive drivers.
- Make sure children look in all directions before crossing the street. They should look left, right and left again before attempting to cross. While crossing they should keep looking and be alert.
- Teach children not to enter the street from between parked cars or from behind bushes or shrubs. Darting into the street accounts for more than half of pedestrian injuries among children under age 9.
- Teach children to cross the street at a corner or crosswalk. Make sure they allow plenty of time to cross. Teach them to walk, not run, across intersections.
- Warn children to be extra alert in bad weather. Visibility may be poor and motorists may not be able to stop quickly.

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY —

Most injuries among students who ride school buses occur when children are boarding or exiting a bus. A blind spot exists for the bus driver which extends approximately 10 feet in front of the bus, obstructing the driver's view. Children are not aware of this blind spot and may mistakenly believe that if they can see the bus, the bus can see them.

While waiting for the bus...

- Children should arrive at the stop at least five minutes before the bus arrives.
 - They should stay out of the street or road and avoid horseplay.
 - Children should cross at least 10 feet in front of the bus if the driver indicates crossing is okay.
- While on the bus...
- Children should remain seated and keep the aisles clear.
 - There should be no throwing of objects, and no shouting or other behavior that might distract the driver.
 - While boarding or leaving the bus...
 - Children should walk in single file.
 - Handrails should be used to avoid falls.
 - Children should wait until bus comes to a complete stop before attempting to exit.

BICYCLE SAFETY —

- Children under 8 should not ride their bikes to school.
- Children who bike should always wear a helmet.
- A safe cycling route to school should be determined before the school year starts. This route may not be the same as a safe walking route. Streets with a steady flow of fast-moving traffic are not appropriate for young cyclists.
- Young bicyclists should be taught that the rules of the road apply to all vehicles. They should watch for approaching traffic and always signal their intentions.

DRIVING YOUR CHILD TO SCHOOL —

- For parents who drive their children to school...
- Arrange to pick up your child at a safe spot away from the congestion of cars and school buses around the school.
- Drop your children off as close to school as possible so that they do not have to cross the street. Make sure they enter and leave the car on the curb side.
- Wear a safety belt and make sure everyone else in the vehicle is wearing one, too.

How to make an editor shut up

Newspaper editors are opinionated cusses. They like telling people what they think whether people want to listen or not. But the one thing that causes editorial writers of this paper to leave their opinions out is when you, the readers, fill up the space with letters. We love letters. Those editorials from readers are always more interesting and readable than our own opinions. Readership surveys tell us that you prefer reading the opinions of your friends and neighbors in the letters column over those of the editor. That's why on days like today, with an abundance of great letters, there are no newspaper editorials. Now you know how to make an editor shut up.

Medical praise

Dear Editor:
The doctors and nurses at Providence Medical Center are to be complimented on the excellent care and treatment my husband, Lynn, received while there. Dr. Reeder, the neurologist at Marian Health Center, told me that the doctors in Wayne had done an excellent job on a hard to diagnosis case. I, for one, am so happy to have a caring and capable facility available so nearby.

'No horoscopes'

Dear Editor:
I first of all would like to thank you for how your newspaper truly seeks to serve the community of Wayne. Your news coverage, announcements, sporting events coverage demonstrate your desire to help citizens of the area. Our family finds your paper especially helpful in helping us to know about local events. I appreciate the human interest stories and attitude demonstrated in the paper that it is here to truly be a positive influence in the community.

As the pastor of the Wayne Evangelical Free Church, I was recently informed by one of my members that KTCH radio station airs a "horoscope" program. I have written Mark Ahmann concerning my views about this.

Then I realized that your Friday edition also prints horoscopes in its entertainment section. I felt that I should also write you concerning this.

I would like to point out that printing horoscopes encourages people to look to the stars, and evil spirits for guidance in their lives rather than to the One who created them. As a pastor, I believe that any guidance that would be looked at other than from God would lead a person into dangerous territory.

I know that some people say that they don't take it seriously, but only like to see what the horoscope says, but even a casual interest can lead people down the wrong paths for their lives. I would therefore appeal to you that you would discontinue printing this particular column in your newspaper.

Thanks much for your consideration of this issue. And I do want you to know that I do appreciate many of the other columns and services which your paper offers the community.

Kerrey's values

Dear Editor:
Instead of standing up for the best interests of the people of Nebraska, Bob Kerrey provided the key vote recently to pass the Clinton budget. It appears that Kerrey values the support of the Democrat establishment in Washington D.C. more than he represents the values of Nebraskans.

The supposed deficit reduction in the Clinton plan includes nearly $100 billion in accounting gimmicks. It includes $44 billion — which was already approved by Congress — from the 1990 budget deal, $3 billion from a proposed radio frequency auction, and $15 billion in user fees, which are paid by the American taxpayer.

The Clinton plan raises taxes retroactively back to Jan. 1, 1993. More than 80 percent of the spending cuts — if they do take place — would not occur until 1997, after Bill Clinton leaves office.

The idea of raising your taxes into the past but cutting spending sometime in the future shows why the liberal Democrats have lost credibility with the American people. How could Bob Kerrey have supported such a fraud and a sham?

The retroactive taxes will have a particularly devastating effect on the 1.25 million small business owners who would be affected. Because of the higher taxes on small businesses, an estimated 2.4 million jobs are put at risk.

And what else will Nebraskans find in the 1,000 page tax bill? Whatever it is, they'll certainly have to pay.

Because of the 4.3 cent gasoline tax, prices on virtually all goods and services will increase for Nebraskans. More than 80 percent of

Slick Willie's magic health elixir

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — Slick Willie has taken to the road to begin peddling his magical health-care elixir.

It's going to have to be magical if the slick one (a.k.a. President Bill Clinton) expects to develop a health-care reform package that will satisfy everybody's demands for medical care while not requiring taxes to be raised astronomically high just to pay for it.

Good luck.

The president's health-care reform package isn't quite ready for its public unveiling, but Clinton began chatting about some of its key features with the nation's governors when he took a trip to Tulsa, Okla., last week.

Nebraska's head guy, the honorable Ben Nelson, went down to Tulsa and listened to what Clinton had to say. He agreed that something had to change in the health-care arena, but said he hoped the president didn't cram the reform package full with so many features that tax-paying citizens would get sticker shock when it came time to pay for it.

The basic premise of the health-care package is right on target. Every woman, man and child in America would be covered.

That would end the dread felt by more than 100,000 Nebraskans — 12 percent of the state's population — who cringe every time they think their child is getting sick or realize some other family member needs to go to the doctor. Without insurance, all those doctor bills get downright expensive.

The catch is that nobody should expect a free ride.

Everybody — even if they don't pay anything now for health care — would have to pay something to help finance the Clinton plan.

Most of these payments are going to come in the form of premiums and taxes paid directly by companies and individuals.

The governors told the president that they didn't want someone sitting on his high horse up on Capitol Hill handing down a mandated health-care plan to the states like it was the Ten Commandments.

Nebraska has to have the flexibility to put in place a system that makes sense for a state with a couple of urban centers on one side of the state and the rest of its population scattered through rural areas.

Just because a reform plan might work someplace like Massachusetts or Florida doesn't mean it is the right thing for Nebraska.

Whether it comes from the feds or comes from state officials, something needs to be done.

Nelson rightly pointed out that the rising cost of medical insurance is not without its consequences.

Workers too worried about their own health of sick family members are not going to be as productive. Businesses crippled by high health insurance premiums will struggle to grow and contribute to an expanding economy.

Be wary, if you will, and read the label to make sure you know what all is in Willie's health-care reform elixir. But you better be ready to go ahead and take the medicine.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

all goods sold in our state are shipped by trucks, which will face higher costs because of the gasoline tax. The trucking companies will either pass the costs on to consumers, cut back on jobs or go out of business.

Bob Kerrey should have just voted no, but instead he said yes to higher taxes, higher costs and fewer jobs. Nebraskans should remember this vote when they cast their own for U.S. Senate in 1994.

Help is welcome

Dear Editor:
The Greenwood Cemetery Association wishes to thank everyone for their time, equipment, help and whatever else it took to make the cemetery presentable. You really do not know how much we appreciated your help.

The cemetery is like your church, it is a non-profit organization so any help we can get monetarily or volunteering of one's self is always welcome.

There are always improvements to be made and equipment to be added or kept up.

Every year there are 30 to 40 more stones set which always takes more time when it comes to moving.

From my own experience it always makes one feel good when you can give of oneself to help someone to feel better or something to look better.

At this time we'd also like to take the opportunity to thank everyone that gave a monetary gift toward the new maintenance building. If anyone would still like to give toward that project it would be appreciated.

Our plans now are to restore the first maintenance building the cemetery had. As you can see we never run out of projects, past or present.

Thank you,
Ailene Sievers, President

Long wait

Dear Editor:
Two weeks ago my aunt, who lives in Wayne and has been in the community all her life, had a very sad situation happen to her. She has M.S. and a damaged heart from an earlier heart attack. She became ill and called to get an ambulance at 1:30 p.m. She was told they had to locate her records first. In the meantime a sister from Wayne came to sit with her and they waited and waited.

Around 3 o'clock another sister from Wakefield was found and notified, thinking she was at the hospital already, called to see how she was feeling. They informed her they didn't have a patient there by that name. In driving to her apartment she found her still sitting there waiting and very ill.

When the sister called to check on the records she was told, "Oh yes, they were found and laying right here!" Someone ought to have their job terminated over this!! Finally by 4 o'clock p.m. an ambulance came and transported her to the hospital. She had another heart attack!

Why in the world would her record need to be found before entering the hospital? Do you have a true hospital in your town or simply a First Aid Station? Do you have everyone find records before they are allowed on your ambulance and brought to the hospital?

My husband has worked with a rescue squad for 24 years and they take patients to Wahoo, Lincoln, Omaha and Fremont and never have they left someone forgotten while records were being found. I hope somebody will be reprimanded over this ordeal and I pray this situation won't ever happen again to anyone!

Attend 'Mame'

Dear Editor:
As past participants in the Wayne Community Theatre, we would like to encourage each and everyone of you to see this summer's musical "Mame." Many of your friends and co-workers have put in countless hours of their time and talent to give you a treat not available in many communities.

They have learned lines, dance steps, songs, made costumes, built sets and made many new friends over the past couple of months, just to put on a show you will remember for years to come. The only reward these people receive for their time and effort is a packed house and a pat on the back, so come out and support your Wayne Community Theatre. Just ask anyone who has seen a performance or even acted in one and they will agree that the best entertainment around is right in your own backyard. So next time you hear about auditions for one of these productions, try out!

You can get a very small part or a bigger one, whichever you like. Just come and enjoy the fun and make new friends, you'll be glad you did. See you this weekend at Ramsey Theatre.

Please run Colin!

The most likely general to be president since Ike

The nation's top military commander retires next month and there are many in the country, myself included, who would like to see him promoted rather than simply retired.

From "Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff" to "Commander in Chief" has a nice ring to it, and most observers agree that if he chooses to run, Gen. Colin Powell would make a formidable presidential candidate. The Republicans would do well to consider him as a top choice for their candidate in 1996.

Like Dwight D. Eisenhower when he ran in 1952, Powell in 1996 would be a respected military leader with a proven track record of administrative and command accomplishments. Plus he'd have the added advantage of being a non-politician and thus not carry a lot of political baggage into the campaign with him. The fact that he was not a political insider was one of the things that attracted voters to Ross Perot in 1992. Powell is not a political insider but he has a proven mastery of Washington's way.

I have been a Powell fan since the days before the Persian Gulf war when he made all the right moves. He fired a general who screwed up, he handled the media with tough-fisted grace, he gathered the necessary administrative and legislative support for what he wanted to do, he put the right people in a position to do the job and gave them all the right tools and guidance.

Even before I had the occasion to see him in action firsthand, I was impressed with his leadership abilities, but more so afterward. I had the occasion to attend one of Powell's first press conferences after the end of the Persian Gulf War, and though he wasn't trying to, he convinced me he would be the best excuse for electing a general as president since Ike.

Forget all the irrelevant conjecture about the impact his racial heritage might have on the campaign. The fact that he would be the first black president makes no difference. He is simply a proven administrator and an excellent leader and that's what the country needs most at the pinnacle of power.

Powell is the son of Harlem immigrants from Jamaica. He began his military career not as part of the West Point elite but rather in the ranks of the ROTC. He won the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star during two tours in Vietnam. His resume sounds like a politician's dream.

"Powell is a nonpartisan figure who can appeal across party lines," said

Florida Atlantic University Historian Gary Reichard in talking to the Associated Press this week. "He is articulate and he proved his loyalty in the way he has conducted himself since Clinton came to office."

Powell opposed some of Clinton's ideas including that of opening the military to homosexuals, but he did so without losing Clinton's or anyone else's respect.

Other political observers commenting on the likelihood of a Powell presidential candidacy contend that he has more political savvy than Ike ever did. "Powell understands politics and has a good feel for it. He understands the political atmosphere, what kinds of things are possible," said John Mueller, a political science professor at the University of Rochester. "He resonates moderation, compassion and toughness."

The only question is, will he choose to run? Who could fault him if he avoided the headaches, and spent his retirement enjoying the reported $6.5 million he will receive from publication of his memoirs.

But I am hoping he does run. The country needs all the tough leaders it can get.

Life with 'Bampa' is busy

Monte and Sue moved from Columbus to Seward last weekend. We decided the best way for us to help would be to keep the little one. Consequently, I met them at Weston on Friday evening.

Thomas is definitely Grandpa's boy; pronounced Bampa. So we told him we were going to find Bampa, put his car seat in my car and took off. By stretching, he can see over the dash.

He's fascinated with "big trucks" and motorcycles. The hour long ride did get to be a bit much, but I could usually distract him.

Car seats are wonderful, I know. And I recognize their safety. But kids do get restless in them. I found myself wishing for my old station wagon. I dumped the kids in the back, with books and toys and food and took off. We went to Orlando like that and to Winnipeg. Of course, if we'd been hit by another vehicle, they would have been flying missiles.

Anyway, our boy remembers our house and has his own set of toys here, so he was content. He also likes the pantry, because there are canned goods and pots and pans to remove from shelves. Most of all, he likes being out doors; and "helping" Bampa in the garage.

By Pat Meierhenry

One thing I don't remember about our kids is the "no food" phase. I can recall a time when my niece wouldn't eat, but I don't believe our kids ever did this.

We have a strapping 20 month old, who at one time could not get enough to eat, who now could care less about meals. He only climbs into the high chair to be sociable. And he doesn't care for very many things, including milk. Drives me nuts!

We were brave and took him to church, even though he hasn't learned to whisper. We sat in the back row, and he amused himself stacking hymn books, while announcing "big book" in a loud voice.

We got through the sermon with a box of raisings, one at a time. By the end of the service, he was stacking poker chips, probably not a very spiritual item to bring to church!

He's wonderful about naps and bedtime; just requires his "night-night"; a blue blanket. He'll have nothing to do with dollies and prefers trucks and trains. He also loves to be read to and sung to.

By Monday, he was a little droopy; and asked about Mama and Daddy. The ride to Seward that evening was long!

We wonder what that little mind is thinking and if he misses the other house.

It occurred to me that when Sue was that age, we already had Jon and used disposable diapers only when traveling. It's a fact; you should have children while you're young! As Bampa commented, "He's a full-time job."

Former Waynian finalist in national store contest

Casual Male Big & Tall, America's #1 big and tall retailer, announced the four finalists of its Manager of the Year program on July 15 at the Sheraton Para in Framingham, Mass. Ron Koch of Sioux Falls, S.D., formerly of Wayne, was a finalist and one out of three runner ups who won an award. He manages the Casual Male Big & Tall store in Sioux Falls.

Casual Male Big & Tall conducted the internal contest among all of the chain's 234 stores. The criteria for determining the Manager of the Year were: monthly operational audits; training checklist to confirm documented training and development of staff; shopping reports which were from "undercover" representatives shopping in their stores; development of the preferred customer program in their stores; and adherence to store maintenance standards and adherence to store merchandise presentation.

The goal was to single out the manager in each region whose performance has been outstanding in all areas. Ron was a finalist out of the four regions.

Alan Jones, Senior Vice President/Director of Stores at Casual Male Big & Tall, presented the award to the recipients. "Ron's proven his worth to Casual Male Big & Tall time and time again. We're proud to have him serving customers in this important location."

Koch said, "I was so excited! I couldn't believe I made it that far. It feels great to work for a company that recognizes its people. My entire staff should be honored." The award consisted of a $500 cash award, an engraved plaque announcing his accomplishment and an invitation to serve as an alternate on the Casual Male Quality Team. Koch has worked for Casual Male Big & Tall for more than five years.

Ron's hometown is in Wayne where his parents still live. He has just been promoted to area manager and will open Casual Male Big & Tall's two new stores in the Denver, Colo. area within six months. In addition, Koch volunteers his time at the Manna Retreat Center and as a docent (trained tour guide) at an old Victorian house, called Pettgrew Home and Museum.

Klenke will be responsible for assisting in the designing of commercial modular structures such as Automatic Teller Machine enclosures, branch bank facilities, convenience stores and medical office buildings. Jaycees help Rainbow World

The Wayne County Jaycees met Aug. 9 at the Black Knight with Joel Ankeny presiding over the meeting. Gary West, job care board member, talked to the group about helping put up playground equipment for Rainbow World.

Other business included results from the demo derby, longest day of golf and Chicken days. The Jaycees are looking forward to busy months ahead. Some of the events that the group is going to participate in are the Pig Skin Masters, Christmas tree sales, running the recycling center for a month and the WSC women's walk-a-thon.

Navy man exercises

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Dale S. Pokett, son of Jim and Nyla Pokett of Wayne, recently participated aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Guadalcanal, homeported in Norfolk, Va. in Fleet Exercise 3-93 in the Western Atlantic, and in exercise Ocean Venture 93 off the coast of Puerto Rico.

Pokett is one of more than 13,000 sailors and Marines in the aircraft carrier USS America Battle Group and amphibious assault ship USS Guadalcanal Amphibious Ready Group. This Joint Task Group, along with U.S. Air Force and Coast Guard units, tested the ability of the armed forces to conduct integrated operations from the sea.

Pokett also was one of more than 20,500 servicemembers who trained with forces from the United Kingdom, France and the Netherlands during Ocean Venture 93. This exercise demonstrated the ability for continental United States-based forces to operate in a joint-combined environment with little or no preparation.

The Navy and Marine Corps are full partners in joint operations. As a highly sustainable force on scene, a naval force commander can command a joint task force while the operation is primarily maritime; and shift that command ashore if the campaign shifts landward.

The 1988 graduate of Wayne High School joined the Navy in June, 1988.

Infants: Don't Use Too Much Toothpaste

There has been a dramatic decline in dental cavities in U.S. children - primarily because of the use of fluoride in various forms. Now widespread fluoride ingestion from many sources is causing concern that children are getting too much fluoride. A condition that can harm the teeth called dental fluorosis can occur.

A report in Journal of the American Dental Association reviews the ingestion and use of fluoride in about 100 children from birth to age 18 months. Mothers completed questionnaires at three month intervals, supplying information on fluoride exposure from water, toothpaste, vitamins, etc. After examining their data, the researchers said that dietary fluoride supplements should be used conservatively - after consideration of all sources of fluoride. Also, the amount of fluoride-containing toothpaste placed on an infant's toothbrush should be small - not exceeding the size of a pea.

NORTHERN NEBRASKA'S CATARACT SPECIALIST

"I can see again, it's great!"

Josephine Wingert had cataracts.

She had "No-Stitch" Cataract Surgery.

"I like to crochet, but with my eyes the way they were, I had to rest after every 3-4 stitches. My vision was blurred. Driving was very difficult. I would constantly rub my eye, like there was something in it. Not being able to see was really bothering me, so I went to Dr. Feidler.

I came down on Wednesday. My surgery was scheduled for 8 a.m., and I was on my way home by 10:45 a.m. The surgery itself was virtually painless, and at 3:30 p.m. my daughter came over and took the patch off my eye. I could see...it was great!

I appreciate everything Dr. Feidler did to make me feel comfortable with the procedure. Thanks to him I can read again, and the colors on the T.V. are perfect. I would recommend him to anyone."

WINSIDE JUNIOR Scott Jacobsen takes control of this match in AAU Junior Olympic wrestling action in Knoxville, Tennessee earlier this month. Jacobsen placed sixth.

Winside pair wrestle at AAU

Two Winside wrestlers recently returned from the AAU Junior Olympics Wrestling Tournament in Knoxville, Tennessee. Defending Class D 103 pound state champion Scott Jacobsen and Brady Frahm, competed for the Nebraska team which was coached by Mike Fleiselman of Kearney and Mark Koch, head wrestling coach at Elm Creek and formerly a Winside native and high school wrestler.

Team Nebraska ended up placing fourth and Jacobsen came away with a sixth place medal. "I learned a lot after wrestling some of the best grapplers in the United States," Jacobsen said. "I also got to meet some new people and made some good friends."

Jacobsen wrestled at 106 pounds but says he'll probably wrestle at 112 this winter. He earned a forfeit in his first match against Team Knoxville before winning a 15-10 decision from Tony Greer from Indiana Blue.

Jacobsen was defeated 12-2 by Tony Barbic of Mid Atlantic Red but won by forfeit over Indiana White. Jacobsen was pinned by P.J. Van Dermeer of Michigan Red in his next match before falling to James Mangro of Mid Atlantic White.

Jacobsen pinned Curtis Min of Brentwood, Tennessee in his next match before losing a 14-3 decision to Sean Eslinger of Indiana North. In his final match, Jacobsen lost to Vernon Cannon of Central Indiana, thus leaving him with a sixth place medal.

Frahm, the defending Class D third place medal winner, won his first match by pin over Shannon Snyne of Team Knoxville in just 70 seconds. He lost a 4-3 decision in his next match to Eric White of Indiana Blue and lost a 10-0 decision to Jeremy Dogmantis' of Mid Atlantic Red.

He received a bye against Indiana White and won by forfeit over Michigan Red before losing a 11-1 decision to Neal Latface of Mid Atlantic White. Frahm won by forfeit over Tennessee Brentwood and won by pin over Craig Moore of Indiana North.

He lost a 5-2 decision to Landon Bedford of Central Indiana and lost an 11-0 match to Nick Mitchell of Iowa. Jacobsen is a junior this year while Frahm enters his senior year.

ing moral judgements. To avoid damaging rumors, immediately after a crisis situation members of the local crisis team will gather and verify all the information available and it will be passed on to the individual teachers in statement form which they will be asked to read to their students without embellishment.

Information also will be prepared to send to parents letting them know the facts and what the schools were doing.

TEACHERS SHOULD not talk to the media, said Principal Don Zeiss. He said opinions about the students effected by crisis is not the kind of information that the schools and teachers should be releasing. "We have to be ready," said Munson, citing last year's tragedies and occurrences in neighboring communities this summer, including the death of a ten year old in Pierce Friday.

Members of the trained Wayne team assisted in West Point following an accident which took the lives of two teens this summer. The Wayne team said it is available to help in other communities, and has been called to Winside, and Allen as well within the last year.

BESIDES ZEISS, Munson and Sudman, other team members are school nurse Lu Ellingson, Kathy Fink and Peg Lutt. They said their overall goal is to maintain a safe environment for students and staff at school and to address the special needs of individual students during crisis situations.

Besides the difficult task of coping with death, future training will prepare the team to deal with other crisis problems such as violence, abuse and illness.

A guide for parents and community members in assisting the schools to help children cope with death crisis situations is available free by contacting the school office at 375-3150.

"Death is a difficult subject for adults to face and discuss," said Zeiss. "But a child encountering death needs to be guided to understanding what has happened and what it means."

Gilman Park is located on the north-east side of the city. The park includes two playgrounds and Bill Cox Memorial Lake, where people fish.

A SWIMMING pool scheduled to open next year is being built at the park and there is a great deal of activity there, Mayor Ed Sobansky said.

It is the second tragedy to strike the community in the past year.

Christopher Manzer, 18, is serving a life sentence for the November killing of his father, Mark Manzer, with a 12-gauge shotgun. That occurred at the family home north of Pierce. One Pierce teacher, who declined to be identified, said the community had hoped this would be a better school year than last.

"And now this happens," she said. "It's a tough way to start a school year."

Don Jones, superintendent of Pierce Public Schools, said arrangements were being made Saturday to provide counseling for Pierce students.

Luebbe cited several people who he called heroes in helping the investigators. The unidentified youngster who was fishing with Mitch "has been excellent in helping law enforcement officers," said Luebbe.

He added several people came forward to offer information. "It is sometimes difficult to get community involvement. We definitely have community involvement in Pierce and I am proud of the people who gave us all kinds of information."

Luebbe also praised the artist who volunteered his time and the multiple police agencies who "worked relentlessly long hours getting the information. Good police work can be attributed to making an arrest within a short period of time," he said. Luebbe also thanked Connolly for his assistance in the case.

WeLCoMe House celebrates 25th anniversary this year

The Campus Ministry House at Wayne State College, 1301 Schreiner Drive, is celebrating its 25th anniversary this fall.

The house was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dieter in April of 1968 by the Nebraska Synod of the Lutheran Church in America. During the first 10 years, the house was called the Cooperative Campus Ministry House and served a variety of Christian denominations.

In 1978 the ministry was restructured to form the Wayne Ecumenical Campus Ministry (WECM) which was a joint venture of National Lutheran Campus Ministry and United Ministries in Higher Education. For the first time, a full time campus pastor was called to serve the campus. Since 1990, the Campus Ministry House had been known around campus as "The WeLCoMe House" and has been home to three separate ministries: Wayne Lutheran Campus Ministry is sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, the Newman Club serves Roman Catholic students at WSC and United Ministries in Higher Education ministers to students from the Methodist, United Church of Christ, Disciples of Christ and Presbyterian denominations.

These three groups sponsor a variety of programs for Wayne State students including bible studies, worship and fellowship events. The staff, including Rev. Michael Girlinghouse and Sister Rita Marie Toffelmire, also serve as a resource to the college by offering pastoral care and guidance to the students, faculty and staff.

On Friday, Aug. 27, the Wayne Chamber coffee will be held at the WeLCoMe House beginning at 10 a.m. This is the first of a number of events planned to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Campus Ministry house this fall.

College approves budget hike

The Northeast Community College Board of Governors approved four budgets totaling $17,944,493 for the 1993-94 fiscal year, following a public hearing Aug. 19.

The figure includes a 6.63 percent increase in the general operating budget, for a total of $11.3 million. Increased constituent demand for continuing education (up 22 percent last year) necessitated increasing funding for instructors and materials in the Emergency Medical Technician program and other health education programs, the Business and Industry Assistance program, and the adult and continuing education classes throughout the 20 county area.

Several technical, agriculture and nursing programs also received increased funding for staffing, equipment and supply upgrades. Monies were also budgeted to provide equipment and materials to help various departments meet new standards in the area of hazardous materials handling.

The approved budgets also include the capital improvement budget, a self-supporting funds budget and a special budget to complete modifications to campus facilities to come into compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

The new budgets are funded in part by property taxes. It is estimated that the new budgets will actually decrease the college's tax levy to residents of its 20-county service area from 7.13 cents per $100 valuation to 6.79 cents. For the owner of a $50,000 home, this means a decrease of $1.72 on their annual property tax bill, down to $33.93. The actual levy will be certified at the next meeting.

Patrolman is promoted

Allan Walton, Wayne, of the Nebraska State Patrol, was promoted to sergeant of Investigative Services Division on Aug. 1. His new duties consist of enforcing state and local statutes pertaining to illegal drugs in a 23 county area.

Sergeant Walton was sworn in as a State Trooper in the fall of 1977. His first duty was in road operations in Omaha. He remained there until he was transferred in 1981 to Wayne. In May, 1984, Walton transferred into the Investigative Services Division, in Wayne. His current promotion will include a relocation to Norfolk.

Meat labels should increase food safety

LINCOLN — Since many food-borne illnesses stem from improper preparation, new care and handling labels for raw meat and poultry products should increase food safety, University of Nebraska-Lincoln meat and food specialists said.

Dennis Burson, UNL meat specialist, said food-borne illnesses usually occur from improper preparation in the home or dining facility. He said the labels aim at increasing consumers' and food handlers' awareness of food safety practices for controlling bacterial growth.

The label ruling occurred Aug. 11 when U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy announced that manufacturers and retailers will label all raw or partially cooked products sold in America after Oct. 15.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture ruling was motivated by food poisoning outbreaks in western states last January from undercooked hamburgers tainted with E. coli bacteria at a fast-food chain.

Burson said that all sectors of the meat industry may incur some temporary labeling costs.

"The cost for manufacturing the labels could be passed to farmers, processors or consumers," Burson said. "But it eventually will benefit everyone as consumers become more confident with the products they're purchasing.

Julie Albrecht, UNL food specialist, said she hopes consumers will follow label instructions and decrease their risks for contracting food-borne illnesses.

"We have care-labels in clothes that tell us how to properly wash the garments," Albrecht said. "Why shouldn't there be labels on food products to tell us how to prepare food properly."

The labels include the following instructions:

1. Keep refrigerated or frozen. Thaw in refrigerator or microwave.
2. Keep raw (meat or poultry) separate from other foods. Wash working surfaces (including cutting boards), utensils and hands after touching raw (meat or poultry).
3. Cook thoroughly.
4. Refrigerate leftovers within two hours.

Albrecht said the labels come at a time when Americans eat out more and prepare food for themselves less.

Under the new USDA rule, labels on meat distributed to institutions for cafeteria or restaurant customers will carry the same four instructions and also include instructions for keeping food hot at 140 degrees or higher or refrigerating after served.

Feeder pig operators must control costs

Feeder pig finishing operators need to control costs and maximize revenues to ensure profits, according to a farm management specialist at the University of Nebraska Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord.

Tim Powell said a statistical analysis of 159 observations of Nebraska and Iowa feeder pig finishing operations from 1988 to 1990 indicated that feeder pig costs, feed costs and market hog prices were the major contributors of variation in profitability among operations in the study.

The analysis was based on data from the Iowa Swine Enterprise Records Program and the Nebraska Swine Enterprise Records and Analysis Program.

Powell said feeder pig cost, feed cost, depreciation, taxes and insurance accounted for 65 percent of the variation in profits of 41 observations for 1988. Market hog price and miscellaneous costs contributed an additional 21 percent in profit variation.

Study information indicated that the top three factors — feeder cost, feed cost and market price — accounted for 73 percent of profit variation of 50 observations in 1989. In 1990, the same three factors accounted for 86 percent of the profit variation for 68 observations.

Powell noted that 1990 observations showed a 14 percent decline in feed cost variation.

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said that accurate records allow the pig manager to monitor the feeder pig operation more effectively.

Swine seminar open

Available spaces are filling up for TIPS, Techniques for Improving Profitability Seminars, scheduled for swine producers Sept. 9-10 at the Marina Inn in South Sioux City, Neb., said a University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources representative.

The deadline for registration is Sept. 3, according to Mike Brumm, swine specialist at the NU Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord.

The four-state seminar is geared toward helping producers get the most for the time and money invested in their operations. Swine production is too competitive for producers not to keep up with the latest innovations in nutrition, facilities, and technologies available for today's producers, Brumm emphasized.

"The increasingly competitive business of pork production is just that. It's a business, not a way of life," said Brumm. "As business persons in an extremely competitive market, the ability to adopt appropriate production technologies will be a key determinant in their financial success."

Twelve seminars have been scheduled starting at 1 p.m. Sept. 9 and ending at 3:30 p.m. Sept. 10. The registration fee of $60 covers proceedings and meals, including a pork chop dinner on the riverfront, said Brumm.

Enrollment is limited to the first 150 persons to register from Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota and Minnesota. Registration forms can be obtained at local extension offices. Completed forms and checks, made payable to the Pork Producers College, should be sent to Brumm at the NU Northeast Research and Extension Center, Box 111, Concord, NE 68728.

The seminar is sponsored by Cooperative Extension at Iowa State University, South Dakota State University, University of Minnesota and the University of Nebraska.

Ninth Women in Ag Conference recognizes their key role in farming

LINCOLN — The ninth annual Women in Agriculture conference, scheduled Sept. 9-10 in Kearney, recognizes the role women play in agriculture as it educates them in their business, according to the conference coordinator.

"This is an ag management business conference for women who believe in agriculture and want to know more about their business," says Deborah Rood, programs coordinator for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Agricultural Economics. "What we give them more than anything is confidence in their management abilities."

One of the main speakers at the conference is Sheila Kepler, president of EsKay Enterprises in Lincoln, a human relations company. Kepler will discuss how to be a strong leader in the family and the community. Returning speakers are Rosemary Hartter, a "self-made" farm woman and co-owner of H&H Marketing Skills, of Eureka, Ill.; and Jo Bek, an assistant professor at the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture engaged in a diversified farming operation near Curtis, who advocates humor in daily life.

The conference is for farm and ranch women interested in learning more about the operation's management, who are involved in farm decisions, and women landowners, Rood said.

This year participants may select four of the 18 different workshops, which range from making decisions based on the weather reports to issues revolving around the environment and rural schools.

Each year the core program features workshops as they pertain to agriculture on banking finances, marketing, income tax, estate planning, terminology and records.

The conference strives to have something for everyone, said Diane Samuelson, a credit analyst at First National Bank of Holdrege.

First National regularly puts on workshops and is among several banks that annually sponsor attendance. Since 1988, Samuelson said First National of Holdrege has sponsored 148 registrations for 78 women.

"We get nothing but good comments" after the conference, she said, adding that the bank feels it's "very vital" for women to know what's going on in the farm or ranch operation. The workshops help women learn more about the business that is their livelihood. Women should be involved to the extent that they want to be involved, Rood said, whether that be in production, record

SHOWN APPRECIATION

The Aid Association for Lutherans Branch 1542 of Wakefield honored the volunteer firefighters, rescue squad and the auxiliary for their outstanding efforts for the community of Wakefield. AAL chose to recognize the group for always being there in case of fire or a medical emergency and for the services the members provide, such as the educational programs they put on for the benefit of students.

The AAL served the group a barbecue meal at the fire hall July 29 and presented each with a certificate of appreciation.

The recognition event was funded with a "Just Say Thanks" grant from AAL. The fraternal benefit society has committed $1 million to make individual grants available to each of its branches nationwide in 1993 to honor local "unsung heroes." Those honored could include hospital volunteers, church trustees, Little League coaches or other volunteers, according to AAL.

"Volunteers are giving, caring people," states AAL. "They are our friends and neighbors, they are young and old. Without volunteers, our communities would not be the same. The 'Just Say Thanks' program provides AAL branches with an opportunity to take a moment and give those volunteers a pat on the back for all their hard work."

The Wakefield firefighters and rescue squad were honored by Wayne County Fair officials with a Kitroy Community Service Award at the Wayne County Fair on Aug. 12.

Members of the Wakefield fire-

EASTERN STAR
Golden Rod Chapter 106, Order of the Eastern Star, met for its regular meeting on Aug. 3 in the Wakefield Masonic/Eastern Star Hall. The charter was draped in memory of Helen Carlson. Paul Byers sang "In The Garden."

It was reported by bylaws, landmarks and obligations were reviewed at the July 6 meeting. Suellen Koepke was thanked for playing the piano. The Allen Ladies were the hostesses in July.

A thank you was read from the family of Helen Carlson. An invitation was also read to the 4-H Achievement Day at the Children's Home in Fremont on Aug. 29 with a 4:30 p.m. barbecue. Tours of grounds and buildings will be given that day.

The building fund committee reported that the fund raising pancake feed at the school will be held prior to the Plainview vs. Wakefield football game on Sept. 17. Further details will be given at the September meeting.

Members are reminded to bring old eye glasses and old greeting cards to the next meeting. The annual Grand Officers visit will be an evening meeting on Sept. 27 in Laurel.

The September meeting will also be guest night, and all members are encouraged to attend. Brenda Gustafson will have the program. Kathy Potter will sing a few songs. Edith Hansen will be presented her 50-year pin. Nancy and Peg Kinney and Verianne McClain served as hostesses for the evening.

HAPPY HOMEMAKERS

The Wakefield Happy Homemakers Extension Club met at the home of Pauline Fischer on Aug. 2.

Sondra Mattes, president, called the meeting to order. They read "We Prepare for Tomorrow." The secretary and treasurer reports were read and approved. Seven members answered roll call with a recycling or reusing tip. For their "Fun Kitty" they were to pay 10 cents if they had tie or buckle shoes on and 15 cents if they had slip-on shoes on.

Pauline Fischer reported on the state convention held in Seward. She was a delegate.

The flowers at the Northeast Station, by the walking plow, had been weeded several times.

They were reminded of their duties at the Dixon County Fair.

They will also work at the fall event in Allen on Saturday, Sept. 25. They are to bring the recipe for the item they plan to make for the event to the next meeting so they can be typed and copies made.

The GOLDEN YEARS by Pat Lichty

"Senior Citizens and Students - A Winning Combination." That message was scripted on the dessert cake at a high school event in Hastings-on-Hudson, New York. When students stage their annual play, there is a special performance for a select audience. All village residents 60 and over are invited to a matinee and dinner in the school. It's one way to show appreciation for what the older people have done for the community, said one 16-year-old student. Looking ahead, she said she hopes young people will do the same when she is in her 60s.

Alcoholism is a serious problem for many Americans of all ages. For some, drinking first becomes a problem late in life. A leading clinic found that four out of 10 older men and women treated did not become heavy drinkers until they were in their 60s. Some take to the bottle out of boredom, some because of the death of a spouse or other loss. Clinicians say such older drinkers have a good chance of overcoming the problem if they participate in a treatment program.

Remember When? January 1, 1934 - The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created as part of Franklin D. Roosevelt's "New Deal" to protect savings accounts from bank failures.
