

Harvest still lagging; beans a good surprise

Wet weather last week slowed harvest work in Northeast Nebraska but estimates indicate better than 65 percent of a surprisingly good soybean crop is in the bins as the first few acres of corn begin to be picked.

The harvest continues to lag as much as two weeks behind normal years according to Mike Lance with the Soil Conservation Service in Wayne County. He said normally one fourth to a third of the corn is out of the field by this time.

Only a few reports of corn are in with yields recorded slightly above average but the early loads are showing high moisture ranging from the high teens even as high as 28 percent, said Lance.

WITHOUT ADDITIONAL drying days, Lance warned the area could be facing similar problems to last year when farmers harvested a bumper crop but were hit with high drying costs and dockage fees for poor quality.

"We still could get some good drying days," he said. On the optimistic side if the weather cooperates the quality of corn should be much better than last year, he said.

September's early frost has apparently done little damage to the corn from a quality standpoint, said Lance. He said indications remain that the frost may have whittled yields by about ten percent.

With a carry over of corn still in elevators from last year, a big concern now is, will there be enough storage and handling facilities for the crop as it does come in.

"ALL THE ELEVATORS in Northeast Nebraska are going into the harvest with more grain on hand than ever in the past," said Eric Smith at Wayne Grain and Feed. "We're about assured of a problem."

Over 400,000 bushels of soybeans are in storage from this year's crop at Wayne Grain and Feed but that doesn't affect the corn storage facility.

While everyone seems pleased with the soybean crop which yielded up to 40 bushels per acre on average in the county, there is still concern about the corn. Average annual soy yields for Wayne County are in the mid 20 bushel range.

"THE QUALITY WAS surprisingly good after the frost we had in September," said Smith of the soybeans. He said the beans came in dry and that test weights were in the 54-56 lb. range.

On all fronts there has been too little corn picked to get a clear indication of the yield and quality.

The Carroll Elevator reports over 80 percent of the soybeans harvested in that area and only a few loads of corn in so far. The bins are not full yet but problems with storage are expected there as well.

Every clear, low-humidity day now will mean thousands of dollars in reduced drying costs to area farmers, the local experts said.

All God's creatures 'gotta harvest

Wayne area farmers are rushing around trying to get the harvest in before winter at the same time Wayne area wildlife prepares for what could be a rough winter. This nut gatherer was captured chattering angrily to the photographer. In typical harvest talk he was admonishing the irritant for getting in his way when there was important work to be done.

Airport change gets nod

The Wayne Airport Authority is on record supporting plans to rename the Wayne Municipal Airport after the community's most famous flyboy, Four-Star Gen. J.B. Davis. The airport authority has requested information from the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics on the procedure involved for a name change.

The airport board has also included in the airport master plan, expansion of the pilot's lounge building for a display room to house the retired Air Force general's memorabilia. Davis, a native of Wayne and graduate of Wayne High School, went on to become a decorated fighter pilot in Vietnam and rose to command allied forces in Europe when he retired last summer.

The permanent display of a military jet like one the general flew in the service has also been discussed for the airport which is expected to bear his name, but organizers have said that may take more time and local fund raising efforts. Though the Air Force donates old plane bodies for static displays, the cost of transportation and setup is often

Bomb-making is dangerous kid's prank

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP) -- Some Nebraska children in elementary schools know how to make explosive devices, a State Patrol investigator says.

"They seem to regard it as just another prank, like throwing eggs," said Mike Riley, a bomb technician from Grand Island. But explosives can kill and maim, he said.

Riley was called to Norfolk last week from Grand Island after police found an explosive device at the west end of Skyview Lake. The area last Sunday was blocked off and authorities detonated the device without incident.

Police have questioned four Norfolk youths, aged 13 and 14, about the device.

Most communities across the country have had incidents involving homemade bombs, Riley said. "Any time you deal with chemi-als and explosives, especially when you're talking about novices who are making these things in a clandestine situation, it's very, very dangerous," Riley said.

Bombs often are constructed from inexpensive items that are easy for children to obtain, Riley said.

"Many of these bombs just look like bottles with liquid in them. Just because it doesn't have a ticking clock or wires coming from it like the bombs you see on television doesn't mean it's not an explosive," he said.

Youths can progress to making more complicated bombs involving powder and wires and the explosive device found at Skyview Lake was in that category, Riley said.

"The device was crude, but the method behind it was sophisticated,"

Band rank is superior in contest

The Wayne High School Blue Devil Marching Band received a superior rating from all five judges at the Quad-State Dakota Dome Field marching Competition at Vermillion Saturday, and came home with the second place trophy in Class B from the 29-band competition.

Wisner-Pilger received the first place trophy and McCook Central High School from South Dakota was third.

Brad Weber, band director, said he believes the support and attendance from band parents, relatives and friends who made the trip to Vermillion made a big difference in the competition. He said he knows the band members appreciate the support they have received, especially from those who have volunteered as bus sponsors.

The Vermillion competition was just a warm-up for this Saturday's work for the Wayne High Band. It will be competing in the NSBA State Marching Competition in Kearney. The buses will leave the high school at 11 a.m. and the band is scheduled to perform in Kearney at 5:45 p.m.

Lincoln kids heading here for detention

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) -- Overcrowding at the youth detention center has forced the county to transfer six juveniles to a similar lockup in Wayne.

Attention Center Director Jon Hill received approval from the Lancaster County Board on Thursday to allow the transfers to Northeast Nebraska Juvenile Services in Wayne.

Over a 30-day period, more youths could be moved to the facility to alleviate crowding at the Lincoln center, Hill said. Most of the transferred youths would spend at least 21 days at the Wayne facility at a cost of $90 a day.

Hill told the board that the Attention Center was designed for 17 youths but has regularly housed more than twice that number. He said the facility could adequately accommodate no more than 24 juveniles.

Although the transfers would be temporary, Board Chairwoman Marcia Malone still raised concerns about the youths being separated from their families for an extended period.

Wayne is about 120 miles north of Lincoln.

"These are kids. Maybe some of them are coming from dysfunctional families, but they're still kids," she said.

Hill said he understood the concern and acknowledged that the plan was "not the best solution."

But he said the crowding needs to be promptly addressed because the county could be sued.

A special juvenile justice committee formed earlier this year is studying whether a new detention center should be built.

Time to question

Dear Editor:
The time has come for citizens to listen, question and learn about President Clinton's plan for health care reform. Susan Dentzer concluded a recent article in the U.S. News & World Report with these words: "There may be no time like the present for people to pull out their health insurance forms, benefit statements and calculators. The most massive redistribution of economic resources ever undertaken in history is about to begin."

3. Seeing a specialist and paying for it out-of-pocket will be almost impossible.
4. Price controls will make private physician practice unfeasible.
5. Americans have been told that the quality of health care will not decline. Many experts believe it will.
6. The plan preempts state laws protecting consumer choice.
7. The plan's biggest surprise is who bears the cost of universal health coverage. The plan requires states to create health alliance regions, similar to election districts. Regions which include a metropolitan area with inner city poor will have higher health care premiums.

Elizabeth McCaughey, a fellow at the Manhattan Institute in New York, was troubled that the news from the White House about the health plan wasn't adding up. So she obtained a copy of the 239 page plan and read and reread it. She was surprised at how different the plan is from what people read and hear. Ms. McCaughey wrote an article, which appeared in the Sept. 30, 1993 issue of the Wall Street Journal. Following are conclusions Ms. McCaughey made.

Ms. McCaughey concludes her article by saying, "The Clinton plan is coercive. It takes personal health choices away from patients and families, and it also imposes a system of financing health care based on regional alliances that will make racial tensions fester and produce mean-spirited political struggles and lawsuits to shirk the cost of medical care for the urban poor. Members of Congress should read the 239 page draft, rather than relying on what they hear, and then turn their attention to alternative proposals that aim to provide universal coverage while avoiding the devastating consequences of the Clinton health plan."

1. Under the Clinton plan, most Americans will not be able to hold onto their personal physician or buy the kind of insurance that 77 percent of Americans now choose.

2. It will be hard to buy additional insurance, beyond that which Americans must buy through regional alliances where they live. Regional alliances are huge government monopolies that will purchase basic health care for everyone in the area.

Political bashing begins for '94

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — A year from now, we'll all be staring into our television sets and wondering why politician so-and-so is saying such nasty things about their opponent. Already, however, preparations, as well as some of the bickering, has begun for the 1994 elections in Nebraska.

So far, it seems like finding good candidates has taken a back seat to bashing those in office.

A case in point: the Nebraska governor's race.

The Nebraska Republican Party recently filed a complaint with the state Accountability and Disclosure Commission against Gov. Nelson, a Democrat.

It complains about an especially laudatory "extra" newsletter the state's economic development folks put out to explain the selection of former Lt. Gov. Maxine Moul to direct that department.

By now, we've all heard the story. In an unprecedented step (at least for lieutenant governors in this state), Mrs. Moul resigned her elected post to head the agency that seeks to put more jobs in the state.

Gov. Nelson picked his trusted chief of staff, Kim Robak, to fill the No. 2 spot in the Statehouse, and turned to one of his favorite folks, Tim Becker, to return as his chief of staff.

There has been plenty of speculation about the reasons for this unusual State Capitol shuffle, but we'll not get into that again.

The issue that is irking the Republicans now is the newsletter used to trumpet the changes. It cost $1,344 to produce and, in glowing terms and large photos, described the personnel changes.

Nelson's people said the special edition was necessary to announce important staff changes; Republicans said it was purely political and that Nelson's campaign should reimburse the state.

Now, anything the governor does could arguably be called "political," but this newsletter, well, looked like quite a p.r. job for the appointment of an agency head, especially when compared to more modest announcement articles of the past.

Politicians have never been beyond using the media for their own publicity purposes, and that occasionally extends to those publications put out by the government.

But while the Republicans are griping about Nelson's newsletters, they are (thus far anyway) doing a poor job of coming up with candidates to beat the Democratic governor, or challenge the other Democrats in high political office.

Thus far only two, mostly unknown, GOP candidates have indicated they would run against Nelson.

Lincoln businessman Alan Jacobson got off to a stumbling start last month — only two people showed up for his official announcement in the state's largest city and one of those was the state Democratic Party chairman — and he is virtually anonymous outside Lincoln. His previous run at elected office ended by getting beat in the primary of a Lincoln legislative race.

The GOP's other gubernatorial candidate, Gene Spence, is not a household name outside of Omaha, and not that well known there, really.

Neither man is given much of a chance to beat Nelson, the steady and likable — but not spectacular — millionaire insurance attorney.

On top of that, the GOP has yet to announce a candidate to oppose Democrat Treasurer Dawn Rockey, viewed as the most vulnerable Statehouse officeholder.

Me thinks the Republicans might be better served by finding candidates who can win rather than complaining about Democrats who appear ready to win again.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Where does new American lifestyle fit?

Americans continue analyzing the meaning of "all men are created equal." Now 130 years after Abe Lincoln uttered these inspiring words, we still long for yet another "new birth of freedom." We have observed a new birth of vulgarity, greed, deceit and violence, acted out by the nude, the lewd, the rude, the wooed and the stewed. Where do we go from here? Or does the "new look" in America fit your lifestyle? If not, what are you going to do about it?

Noodlehead Acres

By Merlin
Wright

Abraham Lincoln knew how to couple words. Bold and brief are his expressions known as the Gettysburg Address given November 19,

1863. Listen to his mind. Don't skip any of his words. "Fourscore and seven years ago our father's brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Remnants of nations, all of which abandoned God-given moral precepts, litter the hallways of history. Nations throughout time have risen and fallen due to being infected by some "ism". Even in our time we have observed an "ism", communism, disintegrate the U.S.S.R. Was it due to their abandoning God and courting atheism? Today, Americans flirt daily with new "isms" daring to worship the likes of: let-me-abuse-you-to-gain-my-goal, me-first-ism, can't-get-enough-ism, get-out-of-my-way-ism, sleep-with-anyone-you-can-

A lost art

Real letter-writing gone the way of 3-cent stamp

Letter writing is a lost art that disappeared with the three cent postage stamp and the long distance telephone operator. We, in the newspaper business, have a real concern about letter writing and its decline because we so enjoy getting letters to the editor for publication. Yes, we even like getting letters critical of us. It shows you care.

Mann Overboard

By Les Mann

But, in today's America we have even gotten out of the habit of writing home to Mother, let alone writing our thoughts to the idiot newspaper editor. We have to stop by the drug store to find pre-printed sentiments on some flowery greeting card if we want to send anything to Mom. If there isn't time for that, we can call her sometime during the commercials just before the late news comes on television--when the rates are cheaper. Mom doesn't mind waking up to take a call from a loved one from whom she never receives letters.

Every family has at least one conscientious letter-writer--the aunt or grandmother that constantly receives gifts of stationery and stamps because her relatives so enjoy getting her mail. But each of her missives usually end in a futile plea to "write back soon." But we don't.

Whether it's letters to Mom, to other relatives, to friends, to business contacts, to our elected representatives or to the local editor, the American public doesn't exercise its writing ability the way it once did. No, that doesn't mean the postal service is about to go out of business. Mail volume is way up. But it's not up because we are writing personal communications to one another. The volume is up because of form letters and junk mail.

Computers and sophisticated mailing equipment mean your mailbox is seldom empty. Almost daily we receive a solicitation of some sort on a letter that is made to look like a real, personal thing. "Dear Mr. Herald:" (as in Wayne) these have been known to begin.

I'm not the swiftest mail reader on the block, but I can spot a computer generated as opposed to personally-signed letter any day.

Most computer letters and junk mail arrive with obvious clues they are mass-produced hype. Common clues are a salutation to Mr. Wayne Herald or some other faux pas with your name, your name and address in different type than the rest of the letter, your address wrong or the telltale blotches of a copy machine.

If businesses are going to use form letters they should be up-front about it and apply the name and address with labels or some other means that let us know up front that we aren't really being addressed personally by their customer service representative. That signature is just a rubber stamp.

When they try to make us think otherwise, it is an insult to our intelligence. If these insults aren't enough, the ultimate disgrace arrived on my desk the other day.

It was a form letter purporting to be personally addressed to me--"Dear Mr. Businessman."

The letter and enclosed flyer encouraged me to purchase a new book--a book of pre-written form letters.

"All the letters you'll ever need to write already written for you," read one of the lines. On a ten-day free trial I was being invited to get a book that has 102 model letters with 950 alternative phrases, sentences and paragraphs, all for only $34.50 plus shipping and handling.

The book supposedly contains, among others, letters to your banker, your congressman, your new customer, your lawyer. What these letters were about was not specified, but it was clearly spelled out that when you send letters out of the book you will be saving "valuable time and effort."

The book contains personal letters, business letters, sales letters, letters to community groups, letters seeking payment of bills. All of these so you "will never again have to worry about what to say in your letters again."

I almost ordered a copy of the book to see if it had a letter to write to that conscientious relative who writes often. "Dear Aunt (insert name): I'm sorry I haven't returned your last 63 (insert number) letters, but I will be writing more often now..."

Get out your pen and write your mother a letter. It'll do you both good.

1863. Listen to his mind. Don't skip any of his words. "Fourscore and seven years ago our father's brought forth upon this

Accidental Poisonings

Reaction time is extremely important following a poisoning. Having the telephone number of the poison control center by the phone and a bottle of syrup of ipecac in the first-aid kit are two ways you can prepare for an accidental poisoning. Syrup of ipecac, a drug used to cause vomiting in some types of poisonings, is available at your pharmacy for approximately $1.00 to $1.50. There are some poisoning situations in which syrup of ipecac should not be used. Therefore, ipecac should be used ONLY with the direction of a pharmacist, doctor, or poison control center. Keep all household cleaners, medications, etc. in their original containers to properly identify the substance consumed. Plan ahead for the unexpected; see your pharmacist to get a bottle of syrup of ipecac and the phone number of the Poison Control Center today.

Members of the Albert McNeil Jubilee Singers will perform at Wayne State College as part of the popular "Black and Gold Series" next month.

'Black & Gold' features singers

The Albert McNeil Jubilee Singers will perform at 8 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 1 in Wayne State College's Ramsey Theatre, located in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Building. The performance is part of Wayne State's 1993-94 Black & Gold Series.

Founder/director Albert McNeil and his resident company of 26 singers and a touring company of 13 have focused world-wide attention on the vast body of music termed "African-American." The Singers feature a repertoire drawn from the tribal music of the earliest slaves, embodied by their spirituals, the patois and calypso of the Caribbean, as well as the jazz and gospel of more recent times.

The repertoire of the Singers focuses on the rich genre of Afro-American music known as Negro Spirituals. The arranged spiritual became known in the winter of 1870, when an intrepid group of 11 singers — seven women and four men — appeared at the Court of St. James in London. Queen Victoria's immediate acceptance helped this a cappella four-part singing become known worldwide as a creative religious music evoking a deep sense of personal spiritual fervor.

They have become one of America's finest exponents of the rich, vital music that is such an integral part of the "African-American" experience.

The Albert McNeil Jubilee Singers are among the most honored singing ensembles in the world. They have represented the United States at the Sagra Musicale Festival of Italy, at Dubrovnik, Ohrid and Ljubljana Festivals of Yugoslavia, and the Festival Musical International of Hainaut, Belgium.

They have performed on numerous occasions for U.S. servicemen abroad and were awarded the Defense Department's Certificate of Esteem from the First Infantry Division in Germany, and the Gold Lion, insignia of the Southern Command stationed in Italy.

The Singers are all residents of Los Angeles, Calif., and represent a cross-section of American life. Some are professional singers whose names, between tours with the Jubilee Singers, are found in opera, oratorio and musical comedy rosters.

Tickets, $5 for adults and $3 for high school age or younger, may be purchased in the Business Office located on the first floor of Wayne State's Hahn Building, or by sending payment to Black & Gold Tickets, c/o Business Office, Hahn Building, Wayne State College, Wayne, Neb. 68787.

The GOLDEN YEARS by Pat Lichty

When the Social Security Administration started a toll-free phone service a few years ago, it took a while to smooth out wrinkles. Now, more than 4,000 personnel handle almost 60 million calls a year — requests for information, reports of possible errors in benefits and other matters. The number, 1-800-772-1213, is staffed from 7 a.m. and after 3 p.m. Busiest days are Mondays, days after holidays and the third day of each month when benefit checks usually are due.

When Melvin Reich, born in Poland, emigrated to the U.S. in 1949 with his wife, a tailor showed him how to make buttonholes. For more than 40 years he has specialized in creating buttonholes, and Reich's shop in New York City's garment district draws a constant stream of clothing designers, manufacturers, fashion students and individuals who have learned of his reputation. "I am specialized, like the doctors" who treat only throats or only eyes, says Reich, 68. "I take care of the buttonholes."

Laurel gridgers get second win of year

The Laurel football team notched their second win of the season, last Friday with a 47-18 thumping of Neligh-Oakdale in the the Bears final home game.

Tom Luxford watched as his squad thwarted Neligh's first two punt attempts, leaving Laurel with excellent field position. The Bears capitalized on both situations as quarterback Tyler Erwin hit Jared Reinoehl on a 12-yard pass for the first score and Erwin took the honors himself from three yards out for the second score. Sami Piira converted both point after-kicks to give Laurel a 14-0 lead.

On Laurel's first punt attempt, however, Neligh returned the favor as they blocked the kick and recovered it in the endzone. The Bears came back and scored just before half on a one-yard plunge by Erwin for a 21-6 halftime advantage.

Laurel virtually put the game out of reach on the game's first play of the third quarter as Jeff Wattier returned the kickoff 70 yards for a touchdown. Erwin connected with Jared Reinoehl later in the same quarter on a 29-yard scoring strike for a 34-6 lead.

Neligh scored its second touchdown of the game on a 25-yard pass to close out the third quarter scoring. Cody Carstensen hit paydirt from 14 yards out early in the fourth quarter to give the Bears 40 points and Ryan Kvols closed out the scoring with his 30-yard interception return. Neligh's last touchdown came late in the period on a 13-yard pass play.

"Coming into the game we were a little concerned about Neligh's team speed," Luxford said. "I think the two mistakes they made on special teams early really changed momentum and we kept it pretty much the whole game."

Carstensen rushed for 80 yards on nine carries to lead the Bears ground attack and Erwin was 7-11 for 116 yards through the air with Jared Reinoehl catching four balls for 102 yards.

Defensively, Todd Arens led the way with 10 tackles while Carstensen had eight. Randy Quist and Kody Urwiler each had seven. Carstensen and Urwiler each had fumble recoveries. The Bears will travel to play Plainview on Friday.

Wayne shut out on homecoming night

Homecoming festivities were dampened by Tekamah-Herman last Friday in Wayne as the visiting Tigers clawed the Blue Devils, 51-0. Tekamah-Herman scored 14 points in the first quarter on runs of 15 and 4 yards before scoring 10 in the second stanza on a 42-yard run and a 27-yard field goal.

Things continued to go the Tigers way in the third quarter as they scored 20 points with touchdown runs of 5, 27 and 14 yards. The last score of the game came in the fourth quarter on a 28-yard pass.

Wayne's biggest concern coming into the game was stopping all-state running back Brady Ray who burned the Blue Devils for 273 yards rushing last season with five touchdowns.

This year, Wayne did hold him to 136 yards rushing and two touchdowns but the outcome was very similar to last year's game in Tekamah. "We were hurt by the fact Jeff Hamer didn't play," Wayne coach Lonnie Ehrhardt said. "He has a hyper-extended elbow and just couldn't go."

Ehrhardt said Tekamah is the best football team his squad has faced all season and yet they face the possibility of not making the state playoffs because of two earlier losses when they didn't have Brady Ray.

Despite the lopsided loss Ehrhardt said his team played hard all four quarters. "We just weren't able to move the ball on offense," he said. "Our defense didn't play all that bad."

Wayne was held to just 91 total yards—23 rushing and 68 passing while Tekamah rolled up 309 rushing yards and 61 through the air. Josh Furman led Wayne's limited ground attack with 27 yards on four carries.

Jason Carr was the leading receiver with three catches for 40 yards. Defensively, Wayne was led by Matt Robins, Dusty Jensen and Kelly Meyer with 14 tackles each.

Josh Starzl had a dozen stops and Jason Wehrer had 10. Matt Blomenkamp finished with eight tackles and Andy Metz, seven while Jason Carr tallied six. Jason Starzl and Cody Stracke each had five tackles.

Wayne will host state-rated Hartington Cedar Catholic on Friday.

Wildcats crowned champs at tourney

The Winside volleyball team captured the championship of the Hartington Invitational, Saturday leaving Angie Schroeder's team with an 11-4 record.

Winside defeated Hartington in the first round, 15-4, 15-4 before breezing past Walthill, 15-4, 15-3. In the championship the Wildcats disposed of state rated Bancroft-Rosalie in straight games, 16-14, 15-10.

"I thought we played great throughout the whole tournament," Schroeder said. "The only area we had trouble with early was serving, hitting just 78 percent in the first match but we came back and connected on 92 percent for the rest of the day."

Against Hartington Catherine Bussey led the team in serving at 11-11 with five aces and eight points. Kari Pichler was 10-10 with one ace and four points and Chris Colwell tallied eight points.

Pichler was 22-24 in setting with eight assists and Stacy Bowers was 25-30 with six assists. Wendy Miller pounded eight kill spikes while Bussey and Colwell had six each. Christi Mundil was 8-8 with three aces.

Pichler and Colwell each led the team in blocks with four while Miller, Bussey and Pichler each had seven digs while Colwell finished with six.

In the Walthill match Pichler continued her quality serving with a 15-15 outing that netted seven aces and seven points. Mundil was 10-10 with five aces and six points and Colwell and Bussey had seven and six points, respectively.

Pichler was 14-14 in setting with five assists and Bowers was 15-16 with two assists while the leading hitter was Colwell with a perfect 7-7 outing that netted seven kills. Miller was 9-10 with four aces. Colwell also notched three blocks to lead the Wildcats and Mundil had seven digs for team honors.

IN THE FINALS against Bancroft-Rosalie, Pichler was 12-12 in serving with four points and an ace. For the tournament, she was a perfect 37-37 with nine aces and 15 points. Miller was 14-16 in serving with nine aces and 14 points and Mundil was 7-9 with three aces and three points.

Pichler was 56-57 in setting with 17 assists and Bowers was 30-35 with 10 assists. Miller notched a dozen kill spikes and Mundil had eight on a 24-28 outing while Colwell was 13-15 with seven and Bussey, 17-20 with six.

Pichler and Mundil had six blocks each and Colwell notched four while Bussey was the team leader in digs with 19 while Pichler and Bowers had 17 each.

"I think the biggest thing about this tournament that pleased me was we played at our level all three matches and not at the level of our opponent's," Schroeder said. "We played consistent volleyball, not letting anything hit the floor."

Schroeder said Bancroft-Rosalie has a real good team but her squad played excellent defense against them. Winside will host Hartington on Tuesday and then play Hartington again at home on Monday in the first round of the conference tournament.

Trojans get blanked

Randy Geier's Winside football team knocked off state ranked Beemer, last Friday in Winside in the Wildcats final home game of the season, 28-26.

Winside has a tradition of playing Beemer very tough despite records of either team. This year's contest was not decided until the game's final play. Beemer's touchdown with just 48 seconds left narrowed the margin to two points but on the two-point attempt Jeff Bruggeman broke through the line of scrimmage and strung out a play in which Brock Eichelberger was looking to cross the endline.

Bruggeman's efforts were rewarded when Jayme Shelton came up to make the tackle on Eichelberger short of the endline, leaving Winside with the two point win.

"It was a very good win for us," Geier said. "We accomplished one of our goals which was not to give the game away. We didn't have any turnovers and just three penalties—I'm really proud of our kids."

After a scoreless first quarter Eichelberger scored from a yard out to give Beemer an 8-0 lead. Winside got on the board with about three minutes left in the first half on a five-yard run by Brady Frahm.

Then with 19 seconds left before intermission the Wildcats scored on a 19-yard pass from Benji Wuttler to Frahm. Wuttler hit Jaimey Holdorf for the two-point conversion and a 14-8 Winside lead at half.

Beemer tied the game in the third quarter on a one-yard plunge but Wuttler came right back and scored on a seven-yard run for a 20-14 lead heading into the fourth quarter.

The visiting Bobcats scored on a 12-yard run early in the fourth quarter to knot the game at 20 before Frahm scored his third touchdown of the night—with a 35-yard scamper with just 1:59 left. Wuttler hit Frahm on a short pass to convert the two-point attempt.

Beemer did not give up and drove the length of the field in just 71 seconds, scoring on a 41-yard pass from the halfback, Eichelberger to the quarterback.

"We just had a total team effort in this win," Geier said. "We also had a great crowd and we really appreciate the support we get from the town." Frahm was the leading rusher for Winside with 63 yards on 10 carries while Wuttler was 6-14 in passing for 75 yards. Frahm was also the leading receiver with three catches for 44 yards.

Defensively, Winside welcomed the return of Marty Jorgensen who sat out the last three games with a broken finger. Jorgensen returned in fine fashion with 14 tackles. Shelton also had 14 tackles and an interception while Frahm had 13. Bruggeman finished with 12 tackles as did Jeremy Jenkins.

The 3-4 Wildcats will travel to play Wynot on Friday.

Allen wins in rout

The Eagles football team continued to fly high above their competition last Friday as they blasted Winnebago, 60-14 in Winnebago in a late afternoon contest.

Warren Jensen's squad won their fourth straight game after beginning the season with three losses and Friday's game marked the second straight week in which Allen has 45-pointed the opposition in less than three quarters of play.

Winnebago scored first in the game as they returned the opening kickoff 60 yards for a score. Allen, however, proved to be unscathed by the surprising start and scored quickly on a 19-yard pass from Curtis Oswald to Casey Schroeder.

The Eagles came right back on their next possession and scored on a Steve Sullivan five-yard run—the first of five touchdowns by the senior running back. Winnebago's final scoring came toward the end of the first quarter on a 50-yard screen pass.

It seemed with a tie game at 14 after the first stanza that the game would be very entertaining to the home folk in Winnebago but

Allen's defense stiffened in the second quarter and the highly prolific offense continued to click on all cylinders as they rocked the host team for 46 points in the next 21 minutes to end the game.

Oswald connected with Schroeder from 37 yards out early in the second quarter followed by a 77-yard scoring sprint from Sullivan. Oswald and Schroeder again teamed up, this time Schroeder caught the ball and then lateraled to Sullivan for a long touchdown play which closed out the half with a 34-14 Eagles lead.

Sullivan started the third quarter scoring barrage with a 45-yard run followed by a touchdown pass from Tim Fertig to Jay Jackson that covered 19 yards. Oswald then hit Fertig from 32 yards out for a score and Sullivan ended the game with a 58-yard run to paydirt.

Sullivan amassed 250 rushing yards on just 16 carries while scoring five touchdowns. His season total after seven games is 1300 yards rushing with an 8.8 per carry average and 22 touchdowns.

"We were actually a little intimidated by Winnebago's size early," Jensen said. "Then toward the end of the first quarter Aaron Thompson broke through the line and really planted their big running back and that kind of sent a message to the rest of our guys that we could control these guys."

Sullivan not only led the offense but finished with 18 tackles on defense and an interception to lead the defense. Oswald had 17 tackles and Schroeder had 11 while Thompson finished with 10. Oswald also had an interception. The Eagles will host Wausa on Friday before closing out the year in Coleridge.

Wakefield struggles in loss

Wakefield's offense continued to sputter last Friday in a 32-0 loss to rated Bloomfield in Wakefield. The loss of starting running back Ryan Ekberg before the game with the flu did anything but help Wakefield's offensive attack.

Bloomfield took the opening kickoff and drove the length of the field and scored. Wakefield's defense stiffened when the Bees got inside the 10-yard line as Bloomfield had to score on fourth down and goal on a short pass.

That 6-0 lead was the only scoring in the first half as both defenses dominated the game. Early in the third quarter Wakefield's special teams suffered some breakdowns as Bloomfield took over one possession at the Trojans 25-yard line.

"We had a snap go over our punter's head," Wakefield coach

Dennis Wilbur said. "Then he managed to get the kick off but we were whistled for a personal foul and Bloomfield got the ball at our 25-yard line."

The Bees moved in for a score and a double digit lead. Wakefield's next possession ended with an interception which was returned to the Trojans' 15-yard line. Bloomfield again moved in for a touchdown and led 20-0 after three quarters.

Wakefield's third possession ended with a punt and Bloomfield moved the length of the field and had to score on a fourth down and goal play from the eight-yard line. Things continued to get worse for Wakefield as another bad snap went over the punter's head and Bloomfield got possession at the Wakefield 22-yard line. This time the Bees scored in five plays to close out the scoring.

"The closest we got to scoring was a 36-yard field goal attempt which was short," Wilbur said. "Our offense is struggling but not having Ryan made a difference because he's also our long snapper for punts and he's a solid defensive player as well as being our leading rusher."

Wakefield was held to 128 total yards while Bloomfield netted 249—also well below its season average. The loss off-set a brilliant defensive performance by junior Cory Brown.

"Cory had a tremendous game," Wilbur said. "He finished with 18 tackles and I don't think there is an inch on his body that isn't bruised." Miah Johnson finished with 14 tackles and Dave Jensen had 10.

Missouri family's experience can teach all of us a lesson

You've heard me say before that I don't watch much TV. So I don't remember why I was watching ETV one night several years ago when the program was about the legal battle of a family in Missouri. The Cruzan's 25 year old daughter had been the victim of a motor vehicle accident in January of 1983, had sustained a closed-head injury and stopped breathing, been resuscitated at the scene and was now in a "persistent negative state."

They were asking the court to allow them to remove a feeding tube that had been surgically inserted three weeks after the accident. The crux of the matter seemed to be that the daughter, Nancy, had never verbalized her wishes should such a situation ever occur.

As a health-care provider, I shuddered at the dilemma: I followed the case, and remember being very upset with the protestors who arrived at the hospital where Nancy was cared for after the family finally won their battle and the physician agreed to discontinue the tube.

Twelve days after the tube was removed and Nancy was moved to the hospice unit of the hospital, she died; quietly, with her family at her bedside.

Last week, I attended a seminar called Dilemmas of Dignity and Dying and heard a moving presentation by Nancy's sister, Chris. She used slides of Nancy, beginning at age 5, and ending with those in the care center.

What to Do About Canker Sores

The canker sore is a common mouth problem that causes discomfort for millions of Americans. Canker sores are most often found on the tongue and just inside the mouth on the lips and cheeks. In contrast, fever blisters or cold sores occur on the outside of the mouth on the lips, chin, cheek, or just inside the nostrils.

Although the exact cause of canker sores is unknown, some health experts believe that nutritional deficiencies are responsible. Others suggest allergic reactions to certain foods and faulty immune systems as possible causes. In women, an imbalance in female hormones may be involved because sores often go away during pregnancy.

Applying gels or pastes that contain local anesthetics directly to sores may temporarily relieve pain. Prescription medicines such as antibiotics and steroids may be helpful in severe cases. One should avoid acidic and abrasive foods and carefully brush the gums and teeth when canker sores are present.

Farmers seek reversal of '87 property tax law

McCOOK, Neb. (AP) -- Three Holdrege-area farmers want the Nebraska Supreme Court to declare personal property tax exemptions under a 1987 law unconstitutional.

The law, LB775, provides personal property tax exemptions for bigger businesses as an economic development incentive.

In a lawsuit filed Oct. 6, the plaintiffs say they want the exemptions eliminated because smaller businesses and farmers end up paying the taxes.

The lawsuit was filed by former state Sen. Ed Schrock of Elm Creek and Lloyd Erickson and Roger D. Olson, both of Holdrege.

The men on Tuesday presented their case to the South Platte United Chambers of Commerce and asked for the group's support.

Schrock said only two counties in the SPUCC region have companies that benefit from the exemption.

A handout Schrock passed out listed the two entities as Phelps County, which has $288,511 in computer equipment that qualifies; and Adams County, which has $255,010 in business equipment.

State Sen. Owen Elmer of Indianola said the tax law's exemptions decrease the fairness of the law.

"If the personal property tax is eliminated," Elmer said, "it will have to be replaced some way. I personally want to see services and food taxed."

Schrock said he would like Nebraska to tax property the way neighboring states do.

In Colorado, Kansas, Iowa and South Dakota, farmers with $200,000 of depreciable property, of which $70,000 remains to be depreciated, have no personal property tax, while Nebraskans are taxed $1,442, according to the handout.

People with $500,000 in real estate and $70,000 of undepreciated property pay $8,192 in Nebraska, $4,950 in Iowa, $4,350 in South Dakota, $3,300 in Colorado and $2,750 in Kansas.

Schrock's request that the SPUCC pass a resolution supporting the lawsuit was tabled until the Nov. 9 meeting in Hayes Center to allow Schrock time to prepare the resolution.

Among the first in the fields to pick corn in 1993 were Rick Luft and Colin Jones who were working east of Wayne on Monday. Reports of the first loads to come in this week were too sketchy and few to provide a picture of what the corn crop might be.

Area couple is first in program

Tim and Kathy Pick of Hartington are the first in the nation to receive approval of their farm loan application under the brand new Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) Beginning Farmer program.

County Supervisor, Dave Hansen, said he has received approximately 20 inquiries about the program, but the Picks were the first application received and approved.

The Federal State Beginning Farmer Partnership will take place this week when Nebraska Investment Finance Authority (NIFA) and FmHA will sign a memorandum of understanding to provide cooperation and participation in joint financing of loans for beginning farmers.

The FmHA Beginning Farmer program is a down payment loan program to purchase farm or ranch land. Under the new program the applicant must have a minimum down payment of 10 percent of the purchase price or appraised value of the farm, or the appraised value of the farm, at 4 percent interest.

The new program also includes "special operating" loans which will start a beginning farmer/rancher or expand a beginning farm/ranch operation by financing livestock, machinery and operating capital. Details of both programs are available through the FmHA County Offices throughout Nebraska.

How do the Picks feel about this opportunity to purchase a farm? Tim said they had looked at different ways to purchase a farm when he heard about FmHA's Beginning Farmer program, they felt this was an affordable opportunity to purchase land. He said they started out with nothing and worked for everything and have gained a lot of ground the past nine years. I don't know what the future has in store for me or anyone else, but I hope it's as good or better than it has been in the past.

Tim and Kathy Pick have been operating a diversified crop and livestock operation in the rural Hartington area. Their operation presently consists of renting 630 acres of land, of which 41 acres are crops. They grow corn, soybeans, alfalfa and oats. The livestock operation consists of beef cattle and swine. The family has 60 head of stock cows which are calved each spring. They farrow 75 sows twice a year. Tim started the foundation of this operation back in 1984 with the purchase of 20 cow/calf pairs and some gilts.

Act quickly in event of spills

Pesticide spills are always a danger. But farm and ranch spills are particularly hazardous for young children and livestock who can be poisoned.

If a spill occurs, the Safety Council of Nebraska recommends you act quickly! Secure the area and warn all workers, family members and emergency personnel about the danger. During the clean-up, always wear personal protective gear. Make sure that the spill doesn't contaminate water resources such as wells, livestock waterers, ponds or streams.

Economy relies on beef

The economic value of cattle which graze on ranches or are fed roughage and grain harvested in the Niobrara Basin requires that production agriculture has a high priority in any review of environmental and natural resource management within the area.

This was a central point of a presentation given last week by Nebraska Cattlemen Executive Vice President Roy Lilley at the Symposium on the Environmental and Natural Resources of the Niobrara River Basin, held in Ainsworth. The economic base beef cattle provide largely creates the capital to maintain the land and support the rural and urban population. Plans for land and resource use must give this reality a high priority, Lilley added.

"The years of experience from those making their living in agriculture in this Basin provides the foundation for our observations on the economics of agricultural resource use, and the impact of that use on the local and state economy. These land owners have more influence on the natural resources than anyone in or outside the Niobrara Basin. They also have the most to lose if these resources are degraded and the most to gain if they are properly managed," Lilley said.

The communities in the Basin depend greatly on the economic machine of beef production for their viability. Many of the businesses in the area support the ag production requirements in the Basin. Activities such as hunting and tourism, not directly involved in agriculture, depend on the land owners to protect and maintain the environment they depend upon. Private property ownership remains the backbone of the free enterprise system in the United States and specifically in Nebraska, a state in which most all property still remains in private ownership.

More than 1.2 million head of cattle are located in the 12 Niobrara River Basin counties, or 21.6 percent of all the cattle in the state. Direct earnings of these counties equals $134 million per year. Using a multiplier effect of 2.4, the total impact of the cattle industry in these 12 counties exceeds $321 million annually. This industry also contributes approximately 23,000 jobs locally. It is clear that cattle are critical to the economic well being of this area. This importance runs deeper than in many areas, as the 12 county area along the Niobrara Basin has a higher cattle-to-people ratio than most areas of the state and nation.

"When discussing land use management, most agree that the Niobrara River Basin is in excellent condition. Excellent stewardship is evident by its beauty and productivity. Many of the land owners are opposed to suggestions that elaborate plans are needed to fix something that is not broken," Lilley said. "More than anything, they desire to pass these resources to their heirs in as good or better condition than when they were inherited."

The Nebraska Cattlemen's association serves as the spokesman for the state's beef cattle industry and represents nearly 5,000 cattle breeders, producers and feeders, as well as 50 county and local cattlemen's associations.

Inspect chemicals

The Safety Council of Nebraska suggests that you regularly check farm chemical storage areas for leaking containers and improper or missing warning signs and locks.

Leaks are dangerous since residues can come in contact with footwear and be tracked into your home.

Post warning signs at the storage area to notify emergency responders that hazardous materials are present.

Keep the storage area locked at all times to help prevent accidental poisonings.

Exotic livestock law change sought

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) -- The people who raise alternative livestock told the Legislature's Agriculture Committee Friday they want to be regulated by the state agriculture department and not the Game and Parks Commission.

Testimony at an interim study hearing held at the state Capitol centered on a measure (LB770) that would give game and parks authority to regulate certain hooved animals raised in captivity.

Speakers told lawmakers they were concerned about regulation of such exotic birds as the ostrich, emu, rhea, and cassowary.

Lori Schneekloth of Sarpy County said the flightless birds, known as ratites, are beyond the fat stage and eventually can be raised as a source of low cholesterol red meat. They are now raised primarily for breeding purposes, oil, leather and feathers, she said.

The president of the Central States Ostrich Association, John Sutton of Wahoo, said a pair of breeding ostriches now sell for $12,000. But he and other producers said the price won't always be that high.

"We are here to open some doors, prepare ourselves for tomorrow," Schneekloth said.

Getting the birds classified as livestock and regulated by the agriculture department will allow the estimated 300 ratite producers in Nebraska to develop a market for meat, she said. Ratites are not included in the legislation.

Placing big game under game and parks control also stirred comment.

John Poehling of rural Fremont, who raises elk, said Nebraska farmers can cash in on some of the market for venison, now mainly imported from New Zealand.

"But, I don't believe we can build a successful alternative livestock program under game and parks supervision," said Poehling, president of the Exotic Wildlife Foundation.

He said there are 17 licensed elk breeders in Nebraska.

"We are satisfying the breeder's market now, but we want to get into the meat business," Poehling said.

The committee heard much the same story from 10 people in Lexington on Thursday. They said if they are to be regulated, it should be by the state agriculture department.

Karl Menzel of Bassett, a big game specialist with the commission, said the bill would regulate deer, antelope, elk and wild turkeys. The rules would cover permits, holding pen sizes, tagging, marking, fencing requirements, pasture size and total acreage restrictions, and recapture or elimination of escapes.

Wade Hainstock of Kansas City, Mo., said several Nebraska elk producers he knows are in "an agriculture endeavor, a food and fiber industry, which would and should be regulated and checked under the agriculture department."

"Basically we're just like a cow-calf operator," Hainstock said.

Committee Chairman Sen. Cap Dierks of Ewing said Friday that testimony from both hearings will be carefully considered before any action is taken on the bill.
