

Frigid temps threat to health, heat bills

By Clara Osten
For the Herald

"It's terrible out there" is a comment heard frequently as people discuss this last week's cold snap.

Temperatures dropped to minus 8 degrees on Friday morning and wind chills were in the minus 35 to minus 40 degree range.

With the cold weather comes concerns about how to deal with the sub-zero temperatures.

Dutch Sitzman, Wayne Fire Chief warns residents with wood burning stoves and fireplaces to use caution and be careful not to over fire them. "This could endanger the structure," said Sitzman.

"PEOPLE NEED to use care with electric heaters. They need to be at least two feet away from anything that is flammable. People also should make sure that the extension cords they are using are heavy enough for the job. The brown little ones are not heavy enough," said Sitzman.

"Kerosene heaters burn oxygen, so do not use them where there are people sleeping or near anything that is flammable."

"The main thing during the cold is for people to use common sense. Do not let children play with or near anything that could start a fire. We have been lucky so far and I hope we can keep it that way. It would be terrible to have to be out fighting a fire on a day like today," said Sitzman.

JIM MARKHAM of People's Natural Gas said that they do not receive gas usage reports on a daily basis but that billing is done by cycles.

"Our usage is measured by degree days. So far this season, our usage is almost exactly the same as last year's. The warm days we have had balance out with these cold days," said Markham.

"Last year was the first 'normal' winter we have had since 1989. The years in-between were fairly warm and people may have gotten spoiled."

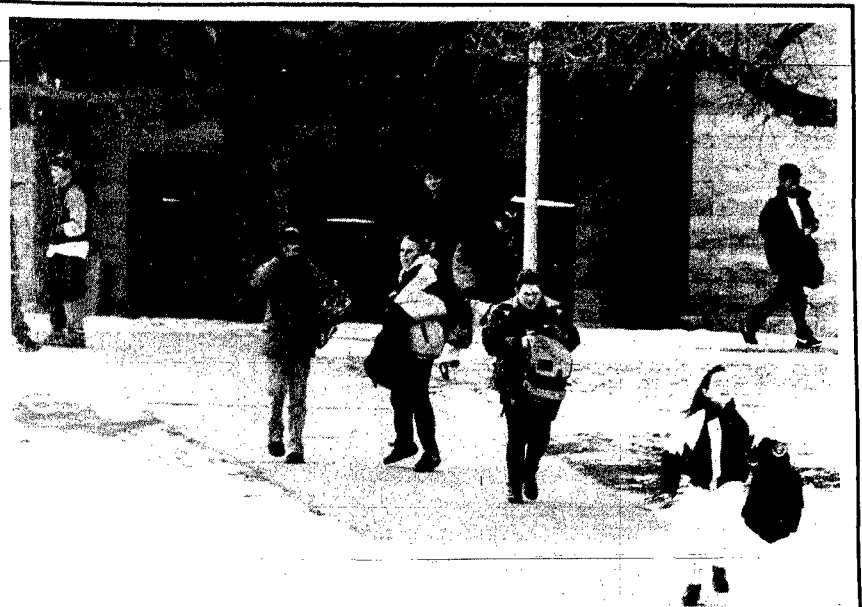

"So far, we have had no problems with gas flow. We have been fortunate. If there were to be a problem, however, residential homes have priority over businesses," said Markham.

SAM SCHROEDER with Wayne County Public Power said that his crews have experienced no major problems with down lines or other power outages.

"We have problems if there is wind and moisture together. Alone, neither of these give us too much trouble. We have been fortunate so far this winter. The cold, by itself doesn't bother much," said Schroeder.

Sub-zero temperatures and a brisk wind combined to create dangerous weather conditions in the area this week as wind chills dipped to the minus 40 and below range. No major problems were reported as a result of the arctic cold snap but residents were warned to take extra precautions to prevent dangerous weather-related situations. The automotive shops reported brisk business keeping motorists rolling. Wayne youngsters are pictured arriving and departing at Wayne Middle School and West Elementary. The forecast for the weekend calls for warming into the mid 30s.

Wayne County pays less

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Wayne County elected officials are currently among the lowest paid government executives in the region and they have been lobbying Wayne County Commissioners for a decision to help rectify the situation.

County officials such as treasurer, clerk, assessor, attorney, sheriff, clerk of district court and highway superintendent (not an elected post) receive $21,800 per year currently and they would like to see that increased to $25,500, a nearly 17 percent hike, beginning in 1995.

Compared to other government officials with other agencies and in other neighboring counties, the officials here, in meetings with county commissioners have claimed their pay is substandard and threatens to result in high turnover for the elected posts.

BY COMPARISON, appointed Wayne city officials receive higher pay. The city clerk receives $24,570, while the treasurer gets $27,846. Also with the city, the public works director makes $32,760 and the police chief earns $32,890. The city planning and zoning officer makes $23,795.

City council salaries, however, do not come close to those paid to county commissioners. Council members receive $1,000 a year and county commissioners get $10,900. Wayne's mayor gets $1,500 per year.

Compared with neighboring counties, Wayne's salaries are in the lower range but are not the lowest. Dixon, ($21,227), Stanton, ($20,163) and Thurston, ($20,500) all have lower bases for clerk and assessor posts. Stanton and Thurston Counties both pay their sheriff more at $23,554 and $24,400 respectively.

No action taken

WAYNE COUNTY — No action has been taken on a request from the Wayne Airport Authority for the county to reroute a section of county road to make way for a new runway.

However, Rick Lutt, who farms in the area of the airport, asked county commissioners at their Tuesday meeting not to consider closing the road in question.

Rerouting the road for approximately a quarter mile around the end of the new runway being built was recommended by the FAA to allow for proper clearances between road traffic and aircraft.

Resignations mean change for Wayne men

Two Wayne business leaders resigned their positions on the same day Thursday in unrelated career moves.

Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce and Wayne Industries executive vice president Curt Wilwerding announced his resignation from that post to join the financial planning firm of George and Jennifer Phelps in Wayne. His resignation will be effective Feb. 11.

Wayne Care Centre administrator Pat Lichty announced his resignation from that post to pursue other yet to be announced career goals. His resignation is effective immediately.

An executive search committee was formed by Chamber President Chris King.

Tim Boyle, of Boyle Companies, owner of the Wayne Care Centre and developer of the new facility under construction on East 14th Street in Wayne said Friday Delberta Peterson of Creighton had been appointed as interim administrator in Wayne until a permanent successor was found.

Lichty told the Herald he would miss the close friends and associates he had developed during his tenure as administrator. He said he was disappointed the circumstances were such that he would not see through to completion the development of the new Care Centre for Wayne. While he did not disclose what his career plans were at present, he did say his new post would be in this area.

Wilwerding said he fully intends to remain in Wayne and remain active in community promotion and development.

"My decision to resign from the position was very difficult but was tempered by the fact that I will be able to remain an active member of the community," he said.

He said he has accepted a position as an IDS financial planner which would enable him to continue his ambition of lifelong learning and advancement.

"I was fortunate to have been a part of an organization and community that experienced many positive changes during the past few years: i.e. enrollment increase at the college, new retail business growth, industry expansions, as well as an overall positive feeling and commitment to the continued growth of Wayne."

Wilwerding, a 1989 graduate of the Peru State College economic development program, is a native of Council Bluffs. He is also a veteran of the Air Force.

Where's Wayne's new year's baby?

A week into the New Year, the community has yet to register its first arrival according to the staff at Providence Medical Center.

In the last 10 years the first baby has arrived four times on the 4th, three times on the 1st and twice on the second.

The latest arrival was the first baby of 1990, which arrived on the 11th, according to records at the hospital.

Commissioners will decide this Tuesday

Wayne County Commissioners will be up against the deadline Tuesday to set the salaries for elected county officials.

Salaries, which would become effective in 1995, after the elections, must be set now to allow incumbents and challengers to decide if they will seek the posts.

Incumbent county officials have encouraged the commissioners to adopt Nebraska Association of County Officials (NACO) recommendations for appropriate salary levels for counties the size of Wayne.

NACO recommendations call for elected officials to be boosted from current $21,800 base to $25,500.

Commissioners have spent several hours discussing the salary scales at their last three meetings without reaching a decision. Salaries for their own posts, currently set at 50 percent of the full time pay for elected officials, are also up for discussion, with some sentiment being expressed to raise the percentage because of the growing workload expected of commissioners.

Next Tuesday's commissioner's meeting is the annual reorganization session at which a new chairman will be elected. Current chairman is Robert Nissen, the only elected official in the entire courthouse who will not be up for reelection this year.

Deadline for filing for incumbents for reelection is Feb. 24. Challengers have until March 11 to decide.

Neihardt Center to host 'Sunday Afternoon at the Museum' programs

The first of the 1994 "Sunday Afternoon at the Museum" programs at the Neihardt Center in Bancroft finds audience members snooping around in cemeteries via a slide presentation by Winfield Delle as he explores "Nebraska History in Cemeteries."

History and genealogy buffs alike won't want to miss this month's program scheduled for Jan. 16 at 2 p.m. in the Neihardt Center. Delle, an instructor at Western Nebraska College in Scottsbluff, has been researching and photographing various "points of interest" in cemeteries throughout Nebraska for over 20 years. His slide presentations reveal much about those long dead: religious beliefs, family history, criminal records, discrimination and segregation, superstition and much more.

The Neihardt Center's "Sunday Afternoon at the Museum" programs are sponsored in part by the Nebraska Humanities Council and are offered free to the public. Refreshments will be served following the slide presentation.

WHOLE WHEAT BIBLE STUDY

How to do God's Will with your body

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible. As a disciple of Jesus Christ, your body is the temple or place where God lives (John 14:23; 1 Cor. 3:16; 6:19-20). One way you can serve God with your body is to take good care of it. For example, keep your hair looking nice and trimmed (1 Cor. 11:14). Put nothing but good things into your body, which will keep the building strong. Exercise to continually maintain the temple. Keep your breath smelling sweet and dress God's temple in clothes of quality and good taste. You are in training to be a king and a priest, so it is necessary that you know quality, wear quality and live a quality life to the degree that you can and as God has blessed you (Rev. 1:6; 5:10). Never forget, you are God's showpiece on this earth. Let your good taste, your good actions and your good words be a 10,000 watt light on this earth (Matt. 5:16; Luke 12:35; Phil. 2:15). Set your goal high. This way, if you don't reach it, you will have reached a higher plateau than if you had set your goal low, or worse yet, set none at all. Live just as God lives. God is continually doing acts of kindness and charity to those in need (Acts 9:36). God is kind, loving, generous and giving (Gal. 5:22). He loves His enemies. He does good to those who hate Him. God cares about the widows, orphans, fatherless, sick, lame, blind, old and feeble (James 1:27; Luke 14:13; Psalm 138:6; Prov. 19:17). In order to please God, we must be careful to engage in good deeds or works (Titus 3:8). This is something we must learn to do and not get weary in doing (Titus 3:14; 2 Thess. 3:13). God is glorified by good works and we are to glorify Him in everything we do, whether at home or for our employer (Col. 1:10; 3:17). We are to commit all our ways to God, not just some. Ask yourself these questions: What am I doing daily with my eyes, ears, mind, mouth or body which does not please God and is not glorifying His name? What am I continuing to do that could be a stumbling stone to someone watching me? God says He will pay you back for all the good you do in the name of Christ for His glory (Eph. 6:8). His blessings are distributed daily. Is your life a blessed one? What must you do to order your ways aright so God can begin to bless you (Psalm 50:22-23)? Are you a continual doer of God's words or a continual forgetful hearer (James 1:22)? Are you keeping Christ's words, which is doing God's Will (John 12:47-48; 1 John 2:17)? If not, are you ever going to start? If you start, are you going to endure until Christ's new nature is formed in you (Gal. 4:19; 6:15; 2 Cor. 13:9, 11)? Remember, quitters never win but winners never quit. When you put your hand to the plow, don't look back at a life of swearing, getting drunk, living an immoral life and continuing to crave those things that are not good. Instead, crave those things that are good and show God your allegiance to Him and not Satan. Please send your comments and Bible questions to: Whole Wheat, PO Box 26217, Minneapolis, MN 55426.

Wausa's first defeat of season

Allen girls upset ranked Wausa

The Allen girls basketball team knocked off C-2's fifth rated Wausa, Tuesday in Wausa leaving the host team with their first defeat of the season. Lori Koester and Gary Erwin had their Eagles ready to play and Allen took a 26-16 lead at the half but it took overtime for Allen to upend the Vikings, 45-43.

The Eagles stretched their lead to 12 after three quarters of play but Wausa out-scored Allen, 15-3 in the final quarter to send the game into overtime where Allen out-scored them, 6-4.

"We kind of went into a delay game with about five minutes to go," Koester said. "We did a great job of handling the ball but we missed six front ends of one-and-ones and Wausa took advantage."

Wausa sent the game into overtime on a basket with under two seconds remaining. In the overtime period Steph Martinson scored first for the Eagles but Wausa answered with a bucket of its own, tying the game at 41.

Allen went ahead when Holly Blair sank a shot but again, Wausa answered. With about 30 seconds to go in the overtime period, Blair sank two free throws after being fouled to give Allen a 45-43 lead.

Wausa came down and set up for a shot but it was errant, and knocked out of bounds by a Vikings player. Allen had the ball with five seconds to go under Wausa's basket with a two point lead. Following a timeout, Allen attempted to get the ball inbounds but it was stolen by Wausa and at the buzzer they missed a point blank five-foot jumper that would have sent the game into a second overtime.

The 6-2 Eagles were led by Tanya Plueger who poured in 23 points before fouling out in regulation. Martinson tossed in 13 and Blair netted seven. Jamie Mitchell rounded out the scoring with two points but Koester credited Mitchell with having an outstanding game of dishing the ball off to the open players. Mitchell led the team with six assists.

Allen out-rebounded Wausa, 28-25 led by Martinson's eight caroms and Mitchell's seven. Allen was 7-16 from the free throw line and Wausa hit 10 of 12. Allen will host Ponca on Friday.

Region IV is pleased to announce 20 years of continuous service to persons with developmental disabilities, here in Wayne.

How times have changed! On January 15th, 1974, the Northeast Nebraska Opportunity Center of South Sioux City opened the doors on a satellite operation in Wayne. Project Director Lynne Ammann and Head Teacher Elynn Fallesen organized a program in Pile Hall to educate children with developmental disabilities. Later that year, a workshop was opened at 206 Logan St. for adults needing services.

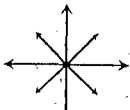

Since then, Region IV has experienced steady growth. The Pile Hall operation was moved to a new building operated by Region IV in 1978. Region IV constructed its first residential facility in Wayne in 1982. The workshop was moved to its current address in 1984. At present, Region IV operates that workshop along with seven residential settings. Our program now serves 40 persons with developmental disabilities and employs 90 plus people from the greater Wayne area.

Most important to this successful growth has been the parents of those in services and the citizens of Wayne. Through the pains of growth and the challenges of funding shortfalls, these fine people have worked with our staff to continue promoting Region IV as an essential resource for the community of Wayne.

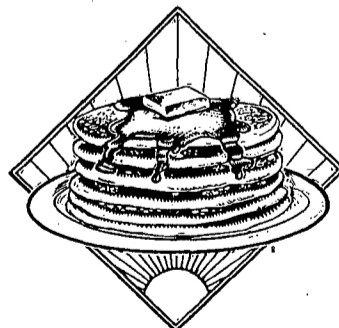

Additionally, every organization has some long-time employees who become the backbone of its workforce, and Region IV is no different. We are especially grateful to the following individuals, all of whom have worked for us since 1984 or earlier: Prudy Thiel, Margaret Ritze, Angie Ortmeier, Sue Denklauf, Lee Anne Hansen, Alice Brown and Sandy Bull.

At 20 years, we feel that Region IV has reached "adulthood" as a service agency. The first shaky steps are behind us - ahead lie the challenges and triumphs of maturity. We look forward to providing a quality service to Wayne and its residents in the years ahead, secure in the knowledge that we know what needs to be done. Happy Birthday, and may we have many more, together.

Area Director

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Alden Johnson of Wakefield recently attended a Trees and Utilities Conference at the Arbor Day Farm's new Lied Center at Nebraska City. Focus of the meeting was trees and utilities and the cost in damages to each.

America's utilities spend nearly $1.5 billion annually trying to keep lines free of contact with trees. At the same time, communities work to beautify streets and maintain healthy trees.

Johnson said the conference was education and one thing stressed was selection of proper varieties of trees which will not grow to interfere with overhead power lines.

The conference also addressed the topics of public education, crew training in proper pruning and avoiding root damages, plus the use of trees to save utility companies and its customers money.

LIGHTING WINNERS

Gene and Phyllis Swanson at 505 Highland Street were selected as the Community Club's residential decorating winners for Christmas lighting.

Jim and Ann Markham of Wayne spent at least two evenings in Wakefield viewing the numerous homes before deciding.

The Swansons received 40 Wakefield Dollars. Runner-up honors went to Kirk and Mary Ann Bryne. They received 20 Wakefield Dollars in the contest co-sponsored by the Nebraska Public Power District.

Deanna Krueger received honorable mention.

In the commercial division of the contest, the window display at the ESU I office was selected as the best effort. Honorable mention was given to the dental office of Dr. Bierbower.

CHRISTMAS PROJECT

The 10th annual Lions Club Christmas project proved to be its most successful, as 49 families, representing nearly 60 children, were given food, clothing and gifts.

Dennis Wilbur, club president, expressed his appreciation to all those that contributed in one way or another.

DECEMBER ARTISTS

Selected as artists of the month for December were Katie Nixon, Justin Suing, Jordan Puls, Bonnie Kluthe, Toan Nguyen, Jenna Paulson, Abby Evers, Adam Jensen, Jay Wirth, David Petersen, Erin Boeckenhauer, Michelle Swarten, Thao Tran, Ami Hampl, Memo Zavaleta, Heidi Johnson, Amy Leonard, Kassi Anderson, Angie Rhods, Jennifer Puls, Jamie Ruden, Traci Potter, Austin Lueth, Troy Rodby and Jeff Mulhair.

customers to be prepared in the event of a prolonged power outage.

"People need to have extra clothing and blankets available. They need flashlights and battery operated radios. If the power is out for a longer period of time, they need to take precautions to prevent water pipes from freezing."

Usage of electricity in the winter is considerably less than during the summer when air conditioners and irrigation systems consume more electricity.

BRIAN DENKLAU at Zach Oil said that the cold weather is good for the service business. The service people at Zach's have been busy both getting cars started and replacing batteries and starters that did not survive the cold.

"Most people have had their cars weatherized by now. It really helps if people have engine heaters installed on their cars. The heaters help warm the block up and make starting the car much easier," said Denklaus.

Antifreeze should also be checked. A mixture of 50 percent antifreeze and 50 percent water will protect an engine to -35 degrees. It is not necessary to use straight antifreeze because straight antifreeze will not protect any better, but will in fact freeze.

Denklaus encourages people to carry jumper cables in their cars and also said that extra belts can be purchased to be used if a fan belt is broken, which is common during this time of year when snow and ice can build up under the hood.

"It is important to have a vehicle checked before this weather hits. Cold weather is hard on a vehicle. It is important to let the car warm up good before starting out. Start the car and go back and have a second cup of coffee," said Denklaus.

PEOPLE AND cars are not the only things to be affected by the cold. Livestock suffers when the temperature stays below zero for any length of time.

Terry Mader, beef specialist at the Northeast Station at Concord said, "Typically, a one to three day cold snap is not of great concern for cattle feeders. The cattle will compensate for the cold. Producers may wish to give brood cows a little extra hay or silage for extra energy but other than that, the cattle should be fine."

"If the cold were to last a week or more, producers will need to increase the feeding of hay, silage or grain by up to 30 percent," said Mader.

Cattle in the feedlot that are within 30 days of being finished have poor feed efficiency during the cold. "It is hard to increase their intake and the producer may be wise to sell these cattle rather than incur the extra expense of feeding them," said Mader.

Mader went on to say that the type of cold may have more effect on the cattle than the actual temperature. "Dry cold, with sunshine like we are having today is probably not as stressful to the cattle as a windy, cloudy day with precipitation."

"THE WORST weather conditions for cattle are those when the temperature is approximately 20 degrees, there are high winds and it has been raining. The cattle could stay wet as long as two days and that is harder on them than if it were minus 40 degrees with sunshine," said Mader.

"Generally, we don't have problems with death loss from cattle because of the cold. They are able to adapt well by producing extra layers of fat and more hair on their coats. By this time of the year they have become accustomed to the cold," said Mader.

The only concern for cattle producers is if they were to have a newborn calf during this time. A wet calf can stand temperatures of minus 10 to minus 20 degrees for only about one-half hour before it would die. These calves definitely need some type of shelter," said Mader.

Extension election decided

Wayne County residents of Commissioner District 3 have elected Patty Deck of Winside and John Aglor of Wayne, to three year terms on the Wayne County Extension Board.

The board gives direction to the cooperative extension service program and disburses county tax dollars which fund the local office.

Other members on the board include Marilyn Koch, Ann Ruwe, Yleen Johnson, all of Wayne; Dan Loberg of Carroll; FCE Council Representative Sandra Wricdt and 4-H Council Representative Kim Dunklau, both of Wayne.

Board members will hold an annual dinner meeting at 7 p.m. on Jan. 11 at Riley's in Wayne to elect officers and organize for the coming year.

Housing successes shared

Communities in Northeast Nebraska will have an opportunity to hear success stories and learn of resources available to address local housing issues on Thursday, Jan. 20.

The Northeast Nebraska Rural Development Group will be hosting a day-long housing conference at the Ramada Inn Convention Center beginning at 9 a.m.

Kathy Small, Executive Director of the Northeast Nebraska Economics Development District of Norfolk, said "Many communities in Northeast Nebraska are experiencing housing shortages of different natures. This conference is designed to provide a variety of ideas and resources for all communities."

Topics to be covered include: How to assess your housing needs; housing rehabilitation and rental assistance programs; and new construction single family and multi-family programs. Communities from northeast Nebraska will present details about successful housing projects they have completed and several local, state and federal agencies and resources will be on hand to answer questions.

"We have invited Senator Bob Kerrey as our luncheon speaker to discuss federal housing issues, but his attendance has not yet been confirmed," Small said.

The registration deadline is Friday, Jan. 15 and the cost is $15 (includes breaks and lunch). For more information contact the Northeast Nebraska Economic Development District (NENEDD) in Norfolk at 379-1150.

Additionally, Dr. Tong is the author of "Unsubmissive Women: A Study of Prostitute in Nineteenth-Century American West," which will be published by the University of Oklahoma Press in the fall of 1994.

Adult Basic Education classes set

The Adult Basic Education Program at Northeast Community College will begin its General Educational Development (GED) class schedule on Monday, Jan. 10 in Norfolk.

Classes will be held Monday through Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 3 p.m. in Northeast's Maclay Building, room 190. Classes will also be held on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. in Maclay 190 at Northeast.

Monday evening classes will be offered from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Norfolk Public Library, 308 Prospect Avenue.

For more information concerning the classes or enrollment procedures, contact Northeast Community College's Adult Basic Education Program, 644-0510, or 1-800-348-9033.

GED tests are five tests in the areas of writing skills, social studies, science, literature and the arts, and mathematics. GED tests give people the opportunity to earn a high school diploma ... a credential recognized as a key to employment opportunities, advancement, further education and financial rewards.

School boards saluted

Nebraskans are invited to join Gov. Ben Nelson in celebrating the spirit of volunteerism and recognizing the diligent work of lay leadership on school boards statewide during School Board Member Week Jan. 10-16.

There are more than 2,000 school board members in Nebraska who, in the face of many obstacles, are striving to improve the quality of education through the attainment of local, state and national education goals. At the same time, these people work diligently to maintain the representative form of government and remain responsive to the needs of their local communities.

In his proclamation, Nelson said "the local board of education is a uniquely American institution that has made the public schools both flexible and responsive" to their communities.

The proclamation will be presented by Lt. Gov. Kim Robak Sunday evening Jan. 9 at the Nebraska Association of School Boards' Delegate Assembly dinner. This gathering is part of the two-day Delegate Assembly and Legislative Relations Network Conference Jan. 9 and 10 at the Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln.

The Delegate Assembly, which will begin at 1 p.m. Jan. 9, is the annual governance function of NASB, in which a delegate from each of the 270 member school districts votes on the legislative resolutions and standing positions of the organization for 1993. This year, more than 30 resolutions and seven new standing positions will be debated with each of NASB-members district being allowed one vote in the approval or denial of these motions.

Sunday's activities conclude with the installation of NASB's 1993 officers and board of directors. Brad Krivohlavek from Norfolk will be sworn in at this dinner to succeed Ken Miller of David City as NASB's president for 1994.

Pay

officials. Cedar pays $27,246 to each; Cuming pays $21,959 to its clerk and treasurer, $23,022 to its assessor and $25,219 to its sheriff; Dakota pays $26,600 to all except the sheriff, who gets $32,200 and Pierce pays each official $25,000 except the sheriff who gets $26,200.

Each of the counties will be establishing new levels beginning with the new terms of office in 1995 so the Wayne County placements could change. Other government workers mentioned in the county official pay discussion have included ASCS officials who range from $33,000 to $52,000 per year; postmasters who range upwards of $50,000 per year and extension agents who range from $26,000 to $62,000 per year.

Wayne County Commissioners are scheduled to decide on proposed salary increases at their meeting Tuesday.

Environmental trust meets

The Nebraska Environmental Trust Board will hold seven public meetings across the state in January and February to provide information and seek public comments regarding draft regulations which are being developed for the Trust. The Board is also seeking general comments and advice about its proposed procedures for distributing Trust funds.

The Environmental Trust is a fund which will provide money to projects that are intended to protect or enhance the quality of Nebraska's environment. The Trust will receive 25 percent of the proceeds of the Nebraska Lottery through 1997; after that date, it will receive 49.5 percent of lottery proceeds. The Trust Board is comprised of 15 members: three from each congressional district, appointed by Gov. Nelson, and the directors of the following state agencies: Environmental Quality, Water Resources, Natural Resources, Health, Game and Parks Commission and Agriculture.

Regulations which will define the structure, priorities and allocation of this grant program are currently being developed, and will be made available for public review. The January and February meetings will seek public comment on these draft regulations, and these comments will be considered by the Trust Board as the regulations are finalized. The proposed final version will be brought before the public in a formal hearing process in April. The January and February meetings will begin with an informational overview, with Trust Board members and staff explaining the purpose and history of the Trust and how the money may potentially be used. Following this brief discussion, public comments, either oral or in writing, will be sought regarding the Trust and the draft regulations.

All meetings will begin at 7 p.m. The dates and locations of the meetings are:

Jan. 19 — South Sioux City, City Hall, Council Chambers, 1615 1st Ave.

Jan. 20 — Omaha, Kiewitt Center, 1313 Farnam St., Room 100

Jan. 25 — Lincoln, Game and Parks Commission, 2200 N. 33rd St., third floor meeting room

Jan. 26 — Columbus, City Library, Auditorium, 2504 14th St.

Feb. 8 — Chadron, location not confirmed yet.

Feb. 9 — Sidney, location not confirmed yet.

Feb. 17 — Kearney, Fairgrounds, Buffalo County Extension Building, North meeting room

Copies of the draft regulations and additional information can be obtained from the Nebraska Department of Environmental Quality, the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, the Natural Resources Commission or from the local Natural Resources District and Soil Conservation Service offices.
