118TH YEAR — NO. 32

Cold weather keeps kids, pets closeted indoors not going to get another day off because of deep freeze conditions that dropped wind chill temperatures below minus 60 degrees, according to the National Weather Service.

Wednesday is supposed to be more seasonable with temperatures in the mid teens and a general warming trend should bring balmy 40s by Saturday.

The dangerous combination of sub-zero temperatures and brisk winds caused area school superintendents to join other administrators from throughout eastern Nebraska, in calling off school Tuesday.

TUESDAY'S OFFICIAL temperature low was minus 13 degrees in Wayne but much lower readings were reported in outlying areas. Other than the cancellation of school, the weather was being taken in stride by the agricultural and business communities. Outside activity was kept to a minimum business leaders reported and most ag pro-ducers were well prepared for the cold conditions because of earlier cold spells, said Rod Patent, Wayne County Extension Agent.

The extreme cold and wind conditions can be very stressful on livestock and pets, however, warned Patent, who encouraged everyone to keep their animals out of the wind as much as possible.

THE COLD conditions were not just isolated to Northeast Nebraska according to Associated Press re-

Gerri Swanson, who owns about 100 cattle in Grand Island, said the cold is stressful on the cows but they will be kept outside. As long as the cows have water and food, they can stand the below zero temperatures,

Truck stops in eastern Nebraska reported no major weather-related problems Monday. Diesel fuel can turn into a jellylike mess if additives are not mixed in.

"Everybody's pretty well prepared this time of year," said Ron Christensen, general manager of Grand Island's Bosselman Truck

Former Juvenile Court Judge Joseph Moylan of Omaha spoke in Wayne Saturday morning in one of his first public appearances since his celebrated resignation last fall. Moylan resigned his judgeship, giving up his income, a large portion of his retirement benefits and his health insurance, rather than sign an order allowing a teenager to have an abortion.

UNDER A 1991 Nebraska law judges are asked to determine if minors are mature enough to give informed consent to obtain abortions without parental consent.

Moylan explained to the Wayne audience gathered for the Tri-County Right to Life prayer breakfast Saturday, that the law ordered him to become a "direct participant in the putting to death of an innocent human life '

Even the law defined the act of abortion as "the termination of human life in the womb of the mother,' said Moylan. He said his religious he had no other choice but to resign. Moylan openly admitted using the news value of his ethical stand as a soapbox for his personal views on abortion. His wife, Gretchen, said she believes he has found his new niche as an outspoken opponent of abortion.

While the story was widely reported, except in the Catholic press locally, he said, he still had complaints about the media treatment of the abortion issue.

"THERE IS A conspiracy not to let people know how it (abortion) is done," said Moylan. He said he has studied the procedures and they are "horrendous." He said abortion in-

Intends to support governors proposals

By Stan Schellpeper District 18 Senator

The second week of this session began with Governor Nelson's State of the State Address to the Legislature. I was very impressed with the Governor's proposals on welfare re-form and crime. I intend to support most of his proposals as I feel they are fair recommendations and move Nebraska in the proper direction on both of these issues.

Welfare reform will be exceptionally controversial because of a proposed two-year limitation in which recipients may receive payments. This is being suggested as a means of promoting independence with welfare recipients and I am very support of such a measure.

The people who are able to work but choose not to inevitably cause problems in the system for those individuals who seriously need public assistance to maintain subsistence on their way to independence. I feel any incentive for establishing self-reliance in those people who are able to work is also essential so that we may contain costs for the state.

Taxpayers can no longer afford to pay for the support of people who do not want to work. Of course, I don't have a problem with individuals who are not able to work due to health reasons and I will continue to support this posi-Governor Nelson has also proposed to eliminate the $4 per ton tax on fertilizer that farmers are asked to pay as part of the provisions of LB 1063. I am extremely hopeful that we will be able to eliminate this tax and all property taxes which have heaped an unfair burden upon the backs of agricultural interests.

We will need the help of some of the urban senators to accomplish that goal. However, having the Governor's support in the elimination of the fertilizer tax is an important first step. You can be assured that I will continue in my efforts to abolish all property taxes in the State of Nebraska.

We had a large number of people at the capitol this week demonstrating in opposition to LB 395, which is a bill prohibiting discrimination in employment practices based on sexual orientation. Under this legislation, it would be illegal for a business to terminate or to fail to hire someone because they were homosexual.

I am opposed to the bill because I feel it takes away from business owners the right to hire or fire any employee. Senator Chambers of Omaha has stated that he may des ignate LB 395 as his priority bill so it looks like we could possibly be debating the issue this session.

If there are any people who have questions or concerns and would like to comment on legislation, please do not hesitate to contact me at 439-2907 in Stanton or 471-2801 at my office in Lincoln.

Use government moonshine

Big oil interests said some interesting things on Capitol Hill last

In hearings on the Environmental Protection Agency plan to ensure that ethanol is used as a fuel additive in polluted cities, the executive vice-president of the American Petroleum Institute said the ethanol ruling should be plowed under rather than planting more corn to produce "government moonshine."

The high stakes debate pits the big money interests of oil companies with their massive investments in foreign oil production against politically powerful farm groups who see ethanol not only as a huge new market for domestic agricultural products but also point to the environmental advantages of the renewable fuel.

The oil companies apparently don't relish giving up even a small percentage of their market, no matter what the environmental advantages.

And they don't seem fearful about a backlash from agriculture states which rely heavily on oil supplies for agricultural production.

Hearing the strong talk coming from the oil interests perhaps it is time to redouble efforts to develop alternative fuels such as SoyDiesel and pure-ethanol vehicles and make a stronger push to use ethanol blend fuels here in farm country.

The oil industry has shown absolutely no interest in moving us away from foreign energy dependence and toward cleaner, renewable energy sources like ethanol.

Midwest farmers and energy researchers have proven the practicality of this alternative fuel and it is time to bring the oil industry kicking and screaming into the 1990s.

We can do it simply by using more and more of our own energy

Fill up with ethanol fuels and send a message to the folks who don't like "government moonshine."

Where's the leadership?

Dear Editor:

Gov Ben Nelson's unveiling of his 1994 legislative agenda reaffirms his slowness to react to key issues affecting Nebraskans. After three years without offering leadership, Nelson's main goal is to get re-elected this fall.

In his State of the State address, Nelson said he supported boot camps for juvenile criminal offenders. During the last legislative session, Attorney General Don Stenberg was the leading advocate for boot camps, while Nelson stayed on the sidelines.

Nelson said he would tell the President and Congress to "stop the madness" of unfunded mandates on local government and business Last summer, Congress approved the "motor-voter" legislation, yet another unfunded mandate, which was supported by U.S. Sens. Bob Kerrey, Jim Exon and Rep. Peter Hoagland. Nelson did not speak out to urge the Nebraska Congressional Democrats to vote against this unfunded mandate, which will cost Nebraskans hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Nelson said that the state of Ne-braska for an "inexplicable" reason paid insurance premiums for sate employees for a month after they left the job. Nelson, of course, has an insurance background but it took him three years to discover this oversight.

Nelson said 400,000 Nebraskans received an income tax cut. However, a recent report said the tax cut would amount to nine cents less deducted biweekly for an individual earning $15,000 annually.

Nebraskans need a governor who will provide leadership for the state, not one who is slow to react to the issues that will decide the future of tons weighs about 2.3 tons...then they go to the landfill. I have a plan. It's the million monkeys plan. You've heard of the old adage that if you sit a million monkeys down at word processors and let them pound away, the law of averages says they will eventually produce most of the great works of literature.

By now, I figure we have just about produced, at one time or another, all the study reports that will ever be needed—both good and bad. There's got to be several million (nay, billion) of them. There's already enough government studies on every imaginable subject that we shouldn't have to reinvent the wheel any more.

If we could catalog them, and get them centralized in one place-say right here in Wayne in a building about a 100 times bigger than the WSC Rec Center-the government would never have to fund another study or waste paper printing it up. If someone needs to know if there are enough wood chips in the area to keep a wood fired boiler going, all they would have to do under my plan would be to call the Government Study Recycling Center, and some of-work consultant could spend a couple of hours ferreting out the informa-tion from one of the dozens of studies already on the shelves on the same

Think of the savings in the nation's landfill and shelf space. Think of the elimination of excess dust catching. Think of the savings in government expenses. Think of the consultants who would have to change careers rather than flying around the country at government expense tippy typing redundant information into their Iaptop computers.

Think of the savings in trees. And-finally, think of the economic benefits to the community which would house the study recycling center and hundreds of ferrets which would be needed to operate the facility.

Let Alabama have the new Beemer plant. We should begin work right away on a high level government study recycling facility. There's more future in this kind of industry I think.

Cars may come and go, but government studies will be needed forever.

Welfare reform is a good exam-

From the White House to most statehouses, public leaders are calling for changes in a system that has ecome a way of a life for some families.

The newest idea is to cut off benefits after two years to help encourage recipients to get off the public dole and into worthwhile cutting off Aid to Dependent Children to families who have an adult capable of working.

Reforms, which must be approved by the federal government, would start in the Omaha area where about half of the ADC families in the state live, and eventually spread throughout the state.

The reforms were portrayed to reporters as "the most encompassing" ever proposed by a state.

It's true that no other state has proposed such changes on so many people, but the governor had hoped to make the reforms immediately, statewide.

Dear Editor:

To the person in the little gray

I am so glad that you saw fit to go through my sun visor in my car on Jan. 7, 1994 out at the Pamida parking lot at sometime between 1:20 and 1:45 p.m. If you would learn how to park in a parking lot you wouldn't have had to throw my pictures all over, my drivers license and everything on the ground. Thank God I found my library card and I think all my pictures but one. And thank you to the girl in the little red car that returned my drivers license to my home. Considering my keys were in the car. I think you more than likely moved my car to get out. I just want to thank you again for making my day. I hope someday this happens to you

Then maybe you will realize it's

Irrationality is a disease

Irrationality is contagious! The idea "Take away handguns to remove violence" is enough to convince evolutionists that Grandpa Monkey has returned and captured the minds of political and media

Think it through. Do people kill people, or do guns kill people? Could it be vicious people firing guns who kill? Mr.Simplicity says, 'Let's take away the guns and we'll end this violence!'

How about taking away the violent criminal? When did a gun by itself shoot someone?

If you still believe guns are the villains, and the people using them are not responsible, then consider the following. All trucks, buses. cars and trains must be outlawed! Those terrible berserk vehicles kill Pat McFarland over 100 Americans daily! Of

Then there is that prime detri-ment to all humans: electricity. How can civilized humans want that electromagnetic monster around with its ruthlessness! So many victims! Lightning is sky fire and also kills! Outlaw it!

Now down to the nuts and bolts. That liquid in your faucets must be outlawed! Water is to blame for thousands of drownings!

Haul your television to the police station! Only the police should be allowed to have a TV because they alone have been taught how to properly use one! Using a TV set can be dangerous to your children, especially if they mimic screen violence! If all TV's were removed, undoubtedly violence would end!

Disingenuous evangelists of illogical propaganda are running loose! Grab your wit, even if its only a half of one, and run, friend,

Skipping Meals

If you plan on losing weight, skipping meals is not a good method. You may even find yourself gaining weight by this practice. When you skip a meal, your body acts as if it is being starved and reacts by converting more calories from your next meal into fat. It is better to eat three small meals a day, and get advice about a specific diet from your doctor.

The collision of the singer, the teenagers and their upset parents creates excellent comic situations.

Group walks for life

Nationally syndicated columnist Cal Thomas will be the featured speaker at the annual Nebraska Walk for Life on Saturday, Jan. 22 in Lincoln.

The Walk, a peaceful pro-life event sponsored by Nebraska-Right to Life, will start at 10 a.m. on the west side of the State Capitol.

Anyone from the Wayne area interested in car pooling to Lincoln for the walk should contact Ann Witkowski, 375-4509 or Deb Dickey, 375-2469.

Thomas will speak to thousands of Nebraskans who normally gather at the Walk. The Walk falls on the 21st anniversary date of Roe v. Wade, the U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion. Over 30 million unborn children have been aborted in the U.S. since 1973. In Nebraska, the number of aborted children is over 100,000, according to statistics from the Nebraska Department of Health.

Following Thomas' speech at the Capitol, Walk participants will proceed on an eight block route through downtown Lincoln to the Federal Building at 100 Centennial Mall North. Several short remarks will be made at the Federal Building, centering around Nebraska Right to Life's grassroots plan of action to fight the inclusion of abortion and rationing in health care plans now before Congress.

Homeless shelters in Omaha and Lincoln prepared for an increase of people seeking warmth.

Steve Janovec, executive director of the People's City Mission in Lincoln, said about eight more men came in because of the cold, bringing the shelter's total to 52 on Monday. The capacity is 63.

The cold air that has made Nebraskans miserable originated in Siberia, said Steve Byrd, a weather service meteorologist in Omaha. It traveled through the North Pole and Canada's northwest territories before moving south, he said.

But more bearable weather is on the way.

THE WEATHER Service issued the following guidelines for coping with the dangerous cold snap:

1. Cover as much exposed flesh as possible. At times temperatures will be from zero to 10 below, with wind chill readings from 30 to 50 below. Frostbite can easly occur.

2. Use a good winter hat. Most of your body heat is lost through your head.

3. Layered clothing is better than one heavy coat.

4. Use insulated gloves. Mittens are even better.

5. Watch for frostbite. If it does occur, have it taken care of right

6. If you are going to warm your-self in front of a fire after coming in from the cold, stand with your back to the fire. If you first place your hands and feet toward the fire, this could send a rush of cold blood into your system.

7. Check your food supply.

8. Bring pets indoors.

9. Turn off water going to outside faucets. On pipes that run along an outside wall, let a small stream a water run.

10. Top off your car's fuel tank before the cold comes.

11. Make as few trips outside as possible.

Wildcats ranked fifth in Region

Wayne State gals cruise past Mount Marty

The Wayne State women's basketball team rolled to a 92-63 victory over Mount Marty College, Monday in Rice Auditorium, leaving Mike Barry's squad with a 14-3 record.

The game featured the nationally reknowned Bud Light Daredevils at halftime which electrified the crowd with their dazzling trampoline slam dunk routine which consisted of about eight minutes.

about eight minutes.

The Wildcats led Mount Marty by a 16-14 margin with just over 12 minutes remaining in the first half before they exploded for a 33-13 scoring run to take a 49-27 lead into the legler seen.

into the locker room.

The second half saw the host team substitute very freely and they still out-scored the visitors, 43-36 for the final margin of victory. Mount Marty featured former Wayne High standout Teresa Ellis who is the only senior on the Lancers squad.

Ellis scored 10 points before being injured late in the game with a sprained ankle. The 'Cats put continual pressure on Mount Marty which resulted in 31 tumovers.

"This was a game we got to play all 15 players," Barry said. "We've had three blowout games now in the last four contests so my concern is that we don't get complacent because we got some tough games coming up."

Included in those tough games down the road is a rematch with Northern State, the team WSC beat in the season opener who has now returned to number one in the country in NAIA-II.

Currently the Wildcats are ranked fifth in the region and the top six teams at the end of the season qualify for the NCAA-II playoffs. North Dakota is ranked first with North Dakota State, second followed by Augustana, South Dakota State and WSC. Kearney is ranked sixth at the present time.

Lisa Chamberlain led WSC against Mount Marty with 19 points while Jodi Otjen poured in 14 and Deedra Haskins, 12. Mindi Jensen was also in double figures with 10 points.

WSC out-rebounded the Lady Lancers, 49-37 led by Chamberlain with eight caroms and Ann Kramer with six. The 'Cats committed 21 turnovers which matched the assist total as Amy Brodersen led the way with four assists. Chamberlain also blocked four shots and the 'Cats had nine blocks as a team.

WSC will host Minnesota-Morris on Saturday in a women-men double-header.

WSC (92), Mount Marty (63): WSC—Lisa Chamberlain, 19; Jodi Otjen, 14; Deedra Haskins, 12; Mindi Jensen, 10; Brenda TeGrotenhuis, 7; Amp Brodersen, 7; Lynn Nohr, 6; Marla Stewart, 4; Deb Kostreba, 4; Kristy Twait, 3; Liz Reeg, 2.

LISA CHAMBERLAIN out-jumps a Mount Marty player to begin the game on a high note for the Wildcats. Chamberlain scored 19 points and hauled down eight rebounds.

WAYNE STATE players Liz Reeg, right and Ann Kramer battle with former Ponca player Nikki Keller during first half action of the Wildcats 92-63 victory over Mount Marty College. The 'Cats built a 49-27 halftime lead and never looked back.

The Wayne boys basketball team improved to 10-1 last Friday in Stanton with a convincing, 73-53 victory over the Mustangs. Rocky Ruhl's squad wanted to go in and take control early because Stanton was undefeated on the season at home.

"We knew it was very important for us to get off to a good start," Ruhl said. "I thought we did a good job of doing that by jumping out to a 42-23 lead at the half."

Ryan Pick propelled the Blue Devils by scoring a career high 23 points which relieved some of the pressure put on Matt Blomenkamp and Robert Bell by the Mustang

Blomenkamp finished with 15 points and Kirk Carmichael came off the bench and poured in a career high 14 points while Bell was in double figures with 11.

Wayne was out-rebounded for the first time this season, 29-23 but Ruhl attributed that to the fact Stanton missed several short shots then got their own rebound and put the ball up again and missed and got the rebound yet again.

The Blue Devils had 20 turnovers compared to 18 for Stanton and Wayne was 16-25 from the foul line while the host team was 10-24. "We came out in the third quarter and got a little sloppy with our lead," Ruhl said. "We went man-to-man all over the court and held them to 12 points in the quarter but we only second 11."

ter but we only scored 11."

Wayne's game with Randolph

that was slated for Tuesday in Randolph has been postponed until Monday the 24th because of the cold weather.

. The Blue Devil reserves improved to 3-5 with a 54-45 victory over Stanton. Shawn Nolte led the winners with 10 points while Paul Blomenkamp tossed in nine. Blomenkamp also led Wayne on the boards with six caroms.

Wayne will travel to play Hartington Cedar Catholic on Friday.

Wayne (73), Stanton (53): Wayne—Ryan Pick, 23; Matt Blomenkamp, 15; Kirk Carmichael, 14; Robert Bell, 11; Joe Lutt, 6; Mike Fluent, 2; Andy Witkowski, Paul Sok's Winside wrestling team edged Oakland-Craig by a half point to claim the championship of the Battle Creek Invitational, Saturday in Battle Creek.

The Wildcats scored 125 points while Oakland-Craig netted 124.5. Norfolk reserves finished third with 122.5 and Stanton placed fourth with 93.5. Scribner-Snyder rounded out the top five with 81 followed by the O'Neill reserves with 64.5. Howells with 62.5, Pierce with 53.5, Battle Creek with 47.5. Tilden Elkhorn-Valley with 44, Osmond with 34 and unattached wrestlers combined to score 18.

Winside sent just eight wrestlers to Battle Creek and all eight came away with medals. The Wildcats sent four other wrestlers to the Pender tournament and three of the four walked away with medals from that meet.

"We're very happy to come away from this tournament with a first place team finish," Sok said. "There were some tough weight classes. I thought we wrestled well for the most part, however, I think we need some additional work on our bottom position."

Sok said the conditioning of his team is where it should be at this point but they could use some technique improvements on the bottom position.

Scott Jacobsen captured first place at 112 pounds as he pinned Kyle McCabe of Oakland-Craig in 1:28 of the finals. Brady Frahm also captured first place honors at 152 pounds after pinning Stanton's Scott Bixenmann in 1:44.

Runner-up honors went to Jason Wylie at 119 pounds after he lost to Del Hawkins of Oakland-Craig in the finals. Josh Jaeger placed second at 125 after he lost a 5-3 decision in overtime to Par Schellpeper of Stanton and Lonnic Grothe placed runner-up at 160 after losing by technical fall to Brad Vering of Howells.

Nate Behmer placed fourth at 103 pounds after dropping a 14-5 decision to Mike Urbanck of Oakland-Craig and Lucas Mohr placed fourth at 130 after a 4-2 decision to Mike Pflueger of Norfolk. Dave Paulsen also brought home a fourth place medal at 189 after dropping a 7-6 decision to Tyrone Uhlir of Battle Creek.

While the varsity was competing in Battle Creek, four grapplers competed at the Pender Tournament and Steve Svatos at 135 and Shaun Magwire at 145 walked away with first place medals while Joe Schwedhelm placed third. Robert Wittler also competed but did not place.

The Wildcats will travel to compete in the Oakland-Craig Invitational on Saturday.

Daredevils

Wayne State College welcomed the return of the Bud Light Daredevils, Monday night in Rice Auditorium. The basketball dunking magicians use trampolines to highlight their aerial assault on dunking the basketball and they performed for eight mirates during halftime of the Wayne State women's game with Mount Marty. This was the second year-in-a-row the widely known Bud Light Daredevils have performed in Wayne. The Daredevils perform at over 150 eyents peryear all over the United States and some countries.

Winside cage teams earn split against Wakefield ketball teams hosted Wakefield last Friday and the Wildcats earned a split with the visiting Trojans. Angie Schroeder's girls won a close 35-33 decision over Gregg Cruick-shank's Trojans while Brad Hoskins' Wakefield boys defeated Randy Geier's troops, 56-40.

In the girls game Winside held a 6-5 lead after the first quarter but the game was tied at 19 at the intermission. Wakefield actually led 27-25 after three quarters of play but Winside out-scored the visitors, 10-6 over the final eight minutes, Christi Mundil hit a short jump shot with 16 seconds remaining in regulation to give Winside a 35-33 lead. Wakefield turned the ball over with 10 seconds to go but Winside returned the favor. Then the Trojans got the ball with four seconds to go but was called for traveling.

"Winside had the ball with four seconds left and they turned it over again," Cruickshank said. "We got the ball and Maria Eaton threw it to Mary Torczon who's 15-foot jumper at the buzzer drew iron."

"It was a great win for us," Schroeder said. "We've had so many close games it was nice to come out on top of one." The Wildcats were led by Christi Mundil and Catherine Bussey with 10 points each while Kari Pichler tossed in Andrea Carson led Wakefield with eight points while Torczon netted six. Eaton finished with five while Jaime Oswald and Jenny Haglund scored four apiece.

Wakefield edged Winside on the boards, 22-21 with Chris Colwell leading the winners with seven rebounds while Mundil and Wendy Miller had four caroms each.

Winside had 23 turnovers while the Trojans had 20 and the Wildcats were 5-8 from the foul line while Wakefield was 5-9. Wakefield fell below the .500 mark at 6-7. The Trojans will play Wynot on Friday while Winside plays at Wausa, Fri-

THE WINSIDE boys led Wakefield, 14-8 after the first quarter but the Trojans went on a 21-6 scoring run in the second quarter to take a 29-20 lead into the locker room at the intermission.

Allen girls defeat Bancroft

ALLEN-The Allen Lady Eagles soared past Bancroft-Rosalie last Friday in Allen, 43-32. Lori Koester and Gary Erwin watched their team take a 22-15 lead into the locker room at half before a 13-8 scoring run in the third quarter gave the host team a 35-23 lead.

"This was a big win for us," Koester said. "Bancroft is in our conference and they are in our district." The 8-2 Eagles were led in scoring the Steph Martinesen with 16 people while Melly Belix power in 11.

by Steph Martinson with 16 points while Holly Blair poured in 11. Tanya Plueger scored 10 points before succumbing to fouls early in the fourth quarter.

Jaime Mitchell, Abbey Schroeder and Debbie Plueger each scored two points. Allen grabbed 36 rebounds in the contest to win the battle of the boards as Tanya Plueger and Mitchell shared team honors with eight caroms each.

Allen only had 17 turnovers but forced Bancroft into 28. The only negative for the Eagles was lack-luster free throw shooting where they were just 3-14 while Bancroft was 6-18.

Laurel girls fall to Creighton

LAUREL-The Laurel Lady Bears were defeated at home by Creighton last Friday, 55-44. Rick Petri's squad slipped to 2-8 and will play at Hartington on Thursday before hosting Bloomfield on Friday and Cedar Catholic on Saturday.

The Bears trailed Creighton by just one point at the half, 23-22 but was out-scored, 19-11 in the third quarter. "I'd say the reason for our demise was poor free throw shooting," Petri said. "We hit just 9 of 32 attempts and many of those were front ends of one-and-one'

Samantha Felber led Laurel with a dozen points while Amanda Hartung tossed in eight and Leann Stewart, five. Tara Erwin, Cathy Mohr and Alissa Krie each scored four while Dawn Wickett and Becky Schroeder netted three apiece. Heather Cunningham rounded out the

Schroeder notched eight rebounds to lead the Bears on the boards while Felber and Krie had seven caroms each. Laurel committed 17

Wayne will travel to dual Albion on Thursday before competing in the Plattsmouth Invitational on Saturday.

Wayne man bowls 300 in Crofton as a substitute

Wayne's Pat Ricsberg bowled a perfect 300 game last Thursday night in Crofton. Riesberg, a native of Crofton, went back to sub in the Thursday Night Men's League at Centennial Lanes—a four-lane

It was the first ever 300 game for Riesberg and it turned out to be the first ever accredited 300 game in Crofton. Riesberg bowled the gem in the second of a three-game series. His first game ended with a 158 followed by the 300 and a 202.

The Pac-N-Save employee said he had thrown six in a row on Tuesday in Wayne during City League and wasn't really thinking about bowling that phenomenal of a game in Crofton.

"I think I got through the eighth frame before I started thinking about it," Riesberg said. "Then, it wasn't so much that I was thinking about it but every time I got up to bowl everyone around me cleared out to let me bowl by myself."

Riesberg said all 12 balls hit right in the pocket but his 11th one was dropped, "I actually threw a much better ball on the 12th one then I did on the 11th," Riesberg

Wayne freshman gals fall to Wisner

Over four million Americans suffer from this degenerative mind disease

Special

By Sue Wortmann Cedar County News

ARTINGTON—Alzheimer's, a degenera tive disease of the mind currently afflicting approximately four million people, is sometimes more cruel to the family than to the person with the disease.

"In the early stages," said Hartington Nursing Center Director Of Nursing Alice Ulting, "Alzheimer's is a disease of frustration."

The disease is frustrating to family members because they can't understand why Granma is suddenly 'slipping a bit."

It is frustrating to the victim of the disease because they realize they are not remembering things they should be and don't know why. They may realize they have something wrong, but a definite diagnosis can be difficult.

Sixty other diseases have the same symptoms as Alzheimer's, diseases as diverse as thyroid disorders, depression, or a stroke. The family doctor is a good place to start, experts say. He will usually refer the patient to a neurologist. Although there is no definitive test for it, a neurologist will be able to rule out other problems.

Families need an outlet for their emotions.

Many try to take care of the patient at home, but after time that decision may actually be worse for both the patient.

and the family, experts say.

For this reason, Hartington Nursing Center's social worker, Joyce Albrecht, has decided to hold a support group meeting at the center for families of Alzheimer's patients.

"This meeting is designed for families of Alzheimer's patients so that they can give support to each other and get their feelings out. I hope we have enough participation to make this a monthly meeting."

"Alzheimer's patients get to the point where they need around the clock care," Albrecht said, "This can be exhausting for the family."

One of the hardest decisions a family is faced with is to take their loved one to someone else for care.

Besides home health care, one of the mity other avenues is a move to the nursing home. What can the family or spouse expect from the nursing home?

"An Alzheimer's patient needs, above all, the same daily routine and a quiet environment," Albrecht said.

Nursing homes try to create a less stimulating environment for the patient: activities such as woodworking or putting large puzzles together are done in smaller groups.

"We try to keep the patient involved by folding towels or washcloths or simple activities like peeling

Family members share thoughts, experiences with mysterious disease

By Sue Wortmann Cedar County News

Editor's Note: Cedar County News reporter Sue Wortmann talked anonymously with the sister of an Alzhelmer's patient. The patient, who is 56 years old, will be referred to in this article by the fictitious name of Adeline.

"My sister was always one of those shy, sweet people who never hurt anybody in her whole life."

"She was writing a check one day and couldn't write the number."

Shortly after this event, Adeline was diagnosed with Alzheimer's.

"The family went through a lot of denial at first. We thought she was depressed or maybe she had a nervous breakdown or something."

She stayed with me once this summer and it seemed as if she had receded back to her childhood."

When family members would get together with Adeline, they would sometimes ask her about the disease. The disease makes her really frustrated. Now, she has become quieter, she's afraid to say something because she might not get through it."

Adelinewas on an experimental drug, for a while and then it started affecting her kidneys, so now she doesn't take any medication for the disease.

"When you have Alzhelmer's in the family it's kind of scary. One meeting we attended, one speaker said if you misplace your car keys you don't have Alzhelmer's but if you find keys and don't know what to do with them, then it is something to be concerned about."

Shortly after Adeline was diagnosed, the whole family went to a meeting and they told us what we could expect from the disease.

So what advise do the give for families of people with Alzheimer's?

"Spend as much time as you can with them and not only with the patient but the family members, too, they need a lot of support."

Vlach provides insight into disease

By Sue Wortmann Cedar County News

 $\label{eq:harmonic} \mbox{HARTINGTON} - \mbox{Family doctors are usually the first consulted} \\ \mbox{by the patient with Alzheimer's Disease.}$

Hartington's Family Medicine Center physician Charles Vlach has encountered patients in various stages of the disease in his 30 years of private practice.

Vlach said it is important to know that Alzheimer's is a dementia (a broad category describing disorders of the mind) but not all dementia's are Alzheimer's.

"Alzheimer's is overdiagnosed," Vlach said. "No one really knows why it occurs but it is very important that someone is not misdiagnosed with the illness."

Illnesses as varied as thyroid disorder, strokes, depression, brain tumors and others can mimic Alzheimer's.

"We had a patient who came to us diagnosed with Alzheimer's. After some checking we found out he instead had a very low thyroid. He went on to have a much more productive five years after he started taking thyroid medication."

Vlach said although there is no definitive test for Alzheimer's, doctors can do many tests to rule out other conditions.

"If a diagnosis of Alzheimer's is made, it is vital that the family establishes communication with the physician and a support group.

Serving 22 counties presents challenges

Imagine being responsible for providing aging services from Valentine to South Sioux City to Columbus and all points in between.

That's the size of the area that the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging (NENAAA) located in Norfolk serves. In all, the Agency provides services to 22 counties in north and northeast Nebraska. The area is home to over 45,000 (60+) older adults, a portion of which live on three Indian reservations.

The Agency was founded in 1978, with its care management program - then known as Project Independence - starting in 1983.

The program began as a pilot project in two counties, and has since expanded to the entire 22 county region. Ten part-time care managers provide services throughout the region. In 1992, nearly 650 people were assisted with the service designed to keep older adults as independent as possible, as long as possible.

There are 51 senior centers/nutrition sites in the area, with the centers serving as the focal point for aging services in their communities. Whatever type of service an older adult may need, they can learn about it, and in many cases receive it, through their local senior center.

In 1992, nearly 500,000 meals were served throughout the region to almost 13,000 older adults at congregate mealsites and through the home-delivered meal program.

The Agency also operates a respite care program in conjunction with its care management program. Through it, clients can receive help in paying for caregiver hours or the rental fee for LifeLine units. The program is so popular - and needed that there's a waiting list for its services.

The need for training - staff, senior center managers, senior center boards, etc. is also very important to the Area Agency and its director, Joann Forster.

'We provide at least six senior center manager trainings a year," said Forster. Topics covered range from new rules dealing with the Americans with Disabilities Act tossanitation training for meal sites to motivational, upbeat speakers."

A recent training series geared towards senior center boards, focused on how senior centers should be run like businesses, with unified boards. Board members were also given an outline of how services are provided through the Area Agency on Aging and where the money for aging services originates and is used.

It was a tremendously successful training with almost 200 board members attending," said Forster. "While to some the information covered was 'old hat', many went away enlightened, and hopefully, all left with a new sense of purpose.'

The area's being home to three Indian reservations also presents some unique challenges.

A pilot project which began two years ago provides legal services to older Indians in the tribe.

"The project focuses on Indian tribal law which can be very different from typical elder law issues," said Forster.

A legal aid attorney based in Walthill coordinates the program and visits senior centers on the reservations regularly.

The area is also collaborating with the University of Nebraska Medical Center on a grant to provide rural communities with Alzheimer's Disease education, Forster serves as co-chair of the group overseeing the efforts in the area.

For more information about aging services in northeast Nebraska, contact the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging, P.O. Box 1447, Norfolk, NE 68702, (402) 370-3454 or 1-800-672-8368.

The prospect of applying for social security benefits can be overwhelming

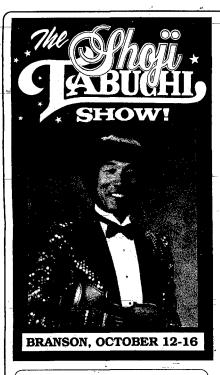

When people apply for Social Security benefits, they are usually in the midst of a significant life-altering event. They will be nearing retirement, or be unable to work because of a disabling condition, or be the survivors of a family wage earner.

Although almost everyone eventually applies for Social Security benefits, the prospect can be overwhelming!

The Social Security Administration (SSA) recognizes that claimants often are anxious and uncertain about the process. Starting by calling 1-800-772-1212 (7 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily) to explain which benefits you intend to file for. We will guide you through the process.

Most Social Security claims are for retirement or survivor benefits (70 percent of the 4.4 million claims in 1991), and the process is simple and straightforward. Information for the claim can be reported by telephone. The completed application is then mailed to the claimant for verification, signature and return to Social Security for processing. A birth certificate, proof of death or other documents (depending on the type of claim) will be needed at this stage. You may bring the original documents to the local Social Security office, where they will be photocopies and returned to you. Or, you can mail them to the office and the same procedure will be followed.

In a few weeks, you'll be notified by mail of your Social Security monthly benefit amount and the date it will begin. You'll also receive a Social Security booklet explaining your rights and responsibilities as a beneficiary and how to report changes that may affect your benefits.

Age doesn't mean a thing!

There's a tendency among advertisers and marketers to treat everyone over the age of 55 the same.

For some reason, stereotypes prevail ... people sitting in rocking chairs, baking cookies, staring out windows ... nothing could be further from the truth!

Numerous aging experts have said that advertisers/marketers are making a mistake when they treat everyone over the age of 55 alike, yet, few studies have been done that show just how wrong this tendency

However, a study conducted at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln attempted to answer the question, "are there similar interests among the elderly or do communicators have to deal with individuals when constructing their messages?"

And, indeed, similar interests were found to exist.

In the study, older adults' interests were examined through their use of magazines. Thirty interviews were conducted with persons of varying backgrounds, ranging in age from 55 to 94. Roughly two-thirds lived in the cities of Lincoln and Omaha, one-third lived in rural-communities.

Separate factors emerged for both men and women. When examined though, it was discovered that many similarities existed between the sexes.

People tended to form two groups:

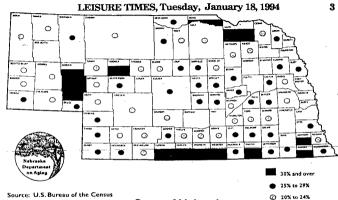

1) Those who were interest oriented. These people wanted to act on and use the information they received. They liked magazines such as The Workbasket and Popular Mechanics for their handicraft instructions and home improvement projects.

2) These people tended to store information for later use, perhaps to make an informed decision when purchasing a major appliance. In other words, they are information accumulators. They enjoyed magazines such as Consumer Reports. Newsweek and Times. The women especially wanted to be entertained by the media. They liked reading magazines for their "stories

This study found that for communication to be effective with this age group, segmented messages should be used that most notably take into account a difference in interests

For example, a fact-based communication geared towards persons interested in accumulating information for later use might not be effective towards people who tend to use, and act on, the information they receive

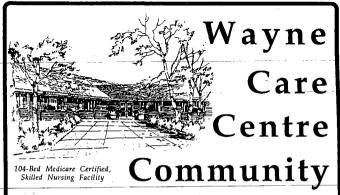

This study was exploratory in nature, but in all likelihood, these tendencies aren't age or magazine restrictive. If similar studies were conducted with other age groups, or using other media forms ... the same groups would probably emerge.

What's the secret to a good marriage?

By Sue Wortmann Cedar County News

"I guess we learned to give a little and take a little," said Alice Hansen. Alice and her husband Lawrence, the only married couple who live together at Parkview Haven in Coleridge, recently quietly celebrated 64 years together.

They both smile when they talk about what it was like back in 1926 when they were dating. "It wasn't a real big deal in those days, we didn't do a lot of activities. Sometimes we would go to a movie if we could scrape up a quarter."

"Lawrence used to dance, but I couldn't so that stopped that." Alice

Alice and Lawrence are not originally from the area. Both came to Coleridge in 1921. Alice from Germany and Lawrence from Minnesota. "I was twelve years old, they put me in Kindergarten with the other kids so I could learn the language." Alice said. I went from Kindergarten to tenth grade in four years and then I didn't go to school anymore." Instead she met Lawrence "standing on the street and talking to some other guys.

They married in 1929 and bought a 160-acre farm southwest of Cole. idge.

Maybe one of the binding ties in their marriage was all of the hard work and the hard times they shared.

"Back in the thirties we had all these chickens and one old rooster.' Lawrence said. "One time this magazine salesman came through and said if we'd give him that rooster, he'd trade us a year's subscription to his magazine. We traded that rooster in Nowadays, he probably wouldn't be good enough to cook in the not. We didn't have much time for activities, we just worked."

Food prices were quite different. "We sold our chicken eggs for 10 cents a dozen back then and we sure didn't throw anything away. We used to say the only thing that got thrown away when we butchered was the squeak of the pig."

Alice and Lawrence said medical bills where handled differently back then, too.

"Our local doctor had delivered eleven of the neighbor's kids. He told him he'd deliver their twelfth one free.

Both say that their nephews and nieces ask about the old times and then say they don't think they could live like that. "Then I ask them well what would you do - die?" Alice said.

Although they have no childrenone died at birth, they do have grandchildren. "One of the nurses that used to work here told us she'd like a grandpa and grandma. She didn't have one, so she adopted us. It's nice," she said.

potatoes, things they would have done at home," said Laurel's Hillcrest Care Center Administrator Carol Nierodzik

To alleviate anxiety, which occurs when patients aren't familiar with their surroundings, family members are encouraged to bring something from home that the patient is familiar with, such as a chair or wall hang-

"It is important to keep things as quiet as possible for the Alzheimer's patient. Simple things like the television can be very disturbing to them, they might think the characters are

Albrecht gives these tips to families and spouses of patients:

- 1. Talk to other people with the same problem.
- 2. Remember that there is nothing shameful about Alzheimer's, it is a disease.
- 3. Get help in your home with the patient, if possible.
- 4. If your loved one is in a nursing center, visit them regularly even if they don't seem to recognize you. They still need contact with people.

Although there is nothing easy about the disease, "The diagnosis does seem to get easier with time," Albrecht said.

This disease can be devastating to the family."

-Vlach-said-most families go_ through denial. "The way families treat this disease parallels the way families treat alcoholism" Vlach said. "After the initial diagnosis, the family really needs to meet together as a group with the physician, so they can all discuss their feelings, fears and what to expect from the disease."

"This is a disease, people shouldn't be ashamed of it or try to hide it."

As with any disease, doctors and scientists are continually working on improving treatment and an eventual cure.

Vlach said a new Parke Davis medication, Cognex, was recently released and is being touted as slowing down the progression of the disease. "I have not prescribed the drug yet, but it is worth considering for a patient in the early stages."

Hillcrest Care Center plans to add aviary

CEDAR COUNTY NEWS

LAUREL-Residents of the Hillcrest Care Center will soon have something to chirp about.

Administrator Carol Nierodzik said the Center plans to add an aviary sometime this spring which will contain a selection of twenty birds, doves, finches and canaries.

We wanted to put this in for the residents. They had been to another aviary and thoroughly enjoyed it so we decided it would be a good thing to have here.

Nierodzik said the aviary has many benefits. "It gives the residents something to talk about They are really excited about this.

The center is currently accepting donations for the aviary. "This project is completely funded by donations. When it is implemented there will be some on-going maintanence costs. We appreciate the community support.

Contributors names will be embroidered on a quilt which will be displayed in the living area of the Center.

The aviary will be open to the public

Lawrence had a stroke several years ago and moved into Parkview Haven in March of 1990. Alice, at home, was "lonely" without Lawrence and her arthritis caused her to join him in June 1992.

Being married for so many years must give them some knowledge of the secrets to a happy marriage. Lawrence just smiled and shook his head a little and said, "I just don't know," to which Alice added "Well, he never left me anyhow."

Alzheimer's Disease Treatment Difficult For Green Acres Resident

By William Huegerich

Alzheimer's Disease is not a new disease. but it is a new disease for people to understand and it's on the rise.

Melvin Keyser, a resident at Green Acres Care Center, apparently started to develop Alzheimer's 10 years ago, when he was only 58-years-old. His wife, Dorothy has been fighting the disease side-by-side with her husband. Dorothy kept Melvin at home and cared for him with some help from their children, until about 18-months ago. Like many people, it took her some time to admit that Melvin had Alzheimer's Disease.

"Every time a doctor told me he had Alzheimer's, I took him to someone else." Dorothy said. " That was a horrible word and I couldn't believe it."

She finally accepted it about four years ago when her daughter found a doctor at the hospital she works at in Omaha who did the test and again, she heard the same bad news.

Melvin received an early retirement from

"I had to watch him every minute so he wouldn't go away. It was 24 hours a day." Dorothy said.

Personal

Alzheimer's is a very personal disease. Different people have different symptoms. One common symptom, which Melvin has, is wandering.

"He walks constantly. He gets in other people's rooms and they yell at him," Dorothy said. "I don't blame those people. I wouldn't want someone in my room who didn't know what they were doing."

Melvin is also afraid of shiny floors and other things according to Dorothy. He hasn't been able to dress himself, shave or comb his hair for several years.

"He's to the point now where he doesn't know any of us," Dorothy said. " One in a while he does but not very often."

A common first symptom is loss of short term memory. The disease progresses taking more and more memory from the victim.

Not many people can say that their favorite car they ever drove was a Model T.

Barbara Kisely, however, is one of those people. She celebrated her 100th birthday on November 2. She is currently living with one of her daughters, Arlene Sudrla on Dakota Avenue in South Sioux City. Her other-daughter, Lillian Gibson, came from-California for the event. On the second, they celebrated only with immediate family

Gibson said they asked Kisely if she wanted to go out to eat for her birthday but she prefers a home cooked meal reflecting her Czechoslovakian background.

"What she likes are the sweet rolls called kolaches and one of her favorite foods is pork and sour kraut and potato dumpling," Gibson said. "So that's what we fixed for her dinner. "

The real celebration happened this summer in South Dakota where her parents settled when they came to the United Dorothy tried to take care of angry and has to be tied in bed and given a Melvin herself but found it to be a full-time sedative to make him go to sleep, according to Dorothy.

Dorothy said there are a lot more people with Alzheimer's than anyone realizes. Green Acres has several other residents with the disease. Although she believes the nursing home tries hard to be accommodating of those patients, it's an uphill battle. "As far as the nursing homes, it's a struggle because they don't have what Alzheimer's patients need," she said.

South Sioux City does not have a special care unit for these patients. There are two in Sioux City, one at Sunrise Manor and another in Indian Hills, but they aren't accessible for Dorothy and Melvin because they are

According to Barb Newhouse, executive director of the Alzheimer's Association of Sioux City, these special care units deal with not only Alzheimer's patients but all forms of dementia. They create an environment of less confusion for the patients to better cope with their disease. One example she gave was to imagine having a very high fever and not being in touch with what was going on. Alzheimer's patients live like that all their lives.

"If your one of those people having to deal with Title IXX or other assistance programs, it makes it difficult to cross the boundaries," Newhouse said.

MHC Needs Volunteers

Marian Health Center's Peer Counseling Program is in need of volunteers willing to donate one hour a week helping area senior citizens. The Peer Counseling Program matches trained volunteer counselors with an elderly person. The program is aimed at detecting depression in the elderly and helping them cope with their situation.

Jean Turner, R.N., project specialist, says the ideal volunteer counselors are mature individuals who have love and respect for the elderly and feel comfortable working with them.

Volunteers will undergo several weeks of free training. "During the training they will learn the skills necessary for giving their client support, " says Turner.

Turner adds that many previous volunteers have experienced the personal rewards of helping and supporting a senior citizen. Some of the volunteers and clients even form long-standing friendships. One volunteer even made plans to call their client from California while traveling.

"There are so many senior citizens who could benefit from contact with one our counselors," says Turner. "We are in need of volunteers wifting to become involved."

The Peer Counseling Program is funded by Marian Health Center and a grant received by the Siouxland Area Agency of Aging.

To sign up for the training sessions, or for more information, contact Jean Turner, project specialist at 279-5700.

If Your Mother Needs Special Care, She Deserves NorthPark Place

As she grows older, Vicki Wollman's mother Gladys may need help to continue living comfortably. Many Siouxland seniors find they don't need a nursing home, but they are unable to live alone. Moving in with family members is often impractical.

Now NorthPark Place offers a solution for many Siouxland families and their parents.

The Assisted Living Suites of NorthPark Place enable parents to preserve their independence while receiving assistance with daily activities like dressing, bathing and taking medications. Residents enjoy the privacy and convenience of their own apartments and the companionship of neighbors and friends. Three meals a day are served in an attractive dining room.

NorthPark Place also provides housekeeping services, transportation, organized activities and more. An emergency call system provides immediate, around-theclock security.

Daughters like Vicki now have the peace of mind knowing that there's a safe place for their parents as they grow older.

Perhaps your mother could benefit from the many advantages that NorthPark Place offers, Apartments are available now. Call today for more information about how assisted living can be the best choice for your mom.

There's no place like home for the holidays

There is no place like home for a holiday. But, is home the place for an elderly couple's five children, twenty four grandchildren, a few grandchildren-in-law, a byfriend or girlfriend, a pet puppy, and lots of gifts?

At what time in a parent's life does having the entire extended family home at one-time get to be too much stress and work for the parents?

And it's not a matter of their not wanting all the family home. It's a matter of what's too much for the parents to handle. Although, one advantage to parents hosting family events is they don't have to leave their warm homes and venture out on cold, icy roads to see their children's families.

I have to admit. I like going home to Mom and Dad's for a holiday get together. But, I don't necessarily like imposing a work load on the hostess.

The daughters and daughtersin-law try to lighten the load by bringing salads, desserts, breads and vegetables. And even though we bring the other food collectively, we don't have to get up at 5 a.m. to get the turkey in the oven or cook and slice the turkey the day before. We don't peel potatoes

there are enough to cook. We don't clean up the house only to have young grandchildren ransack it. We don't have to set tables or relocate things in our cupboards that were misplaced by visiting dish wipers.

A holiday at grandpa and grandma's has the typical excitement and noise. I remember many Christmases as a child at my grandparents. Believe me, 14 children, and about 75 grandchildren were noisy.

When we go to my folks' home for a holiday, everyone knows their place. The women are in the kitchen, the kids go upstairs and bounce off of walls that haven't absorbed kids' energy in 30 years.

and the men sit in the living room. No one upsets the fruit basket, so to speak, until meal time and then it's adults in the dining room and kids in the kitchen for grandma to fall over when she sets the gravy on the tables.

Grandma's have a way of finagling tables and people into smaller rooms. No one feels crowded except Grandma who knows every inch of her house.

Being home for the holidays is a tradition. When my husband's family gets together, kids and adults go to the basement, and thank goodness, the food is upstairs to put some distance between first and second helpings. The first adults finished eating get the easy chairs in the living room and it's up to the others where we want to rest our over-loaded tummies.

Being home for a holiday is fun as long as the noise, clutter and work does not get to be more than what a mom or grandma can handle.

Parents and children need to mutually agree when the time comes for one of the children to host family get-togethers. And if that happens, fond memories of home will still be a part of family holidays.

Come and find the embrace of a family.

Tips to prevent a cold or the flu

Gearing up for that annual cold? Excited tems regular. Add unsweetened fruit juices about the possibility of days off from work or activities (miserable as they may be) not to mention the work that will need to be made up — while you feel tired and run

Or would you really and truly like to make it through the entire season feeling

Here's what you can do for your health's

•Wash your hands frequently with soap and water. Every time you touch something an infected person touches, you increase your chances for contacting their awful "bug." And, who knows that they've touched!

•Keep your hands and fingers away from your nose and mouth unless they've just been washed. That's where the "bug" enters your system to do its dastardly deed.

·Eat plenty of fruits and vegetables, at least five servings every day. And remember, frozen is just as good as fresh.

•Relax and get plenty of sleep. This gives your body time to repair and refresh ·Exercise. It keeps your body systems in shape, strengthens your immune system, and just plain makes you feel good.

Drink lots of water: 6 to 8 glasses to keep yourself hydrated and your body syswith vitamin C to your diet.

·Stop smoking. You're much more susceptible to respiratory diseases.

·Avoid crowds. Someone is bound to be

•Get a flu shot if you are over 65 or have a chronic condition that puts you at

•Think of others if you do have a cold or flu - be considerate! Stay home.

·If you have a fever, you're contagious. Stay home.

Don't sneeze or cough around others. If you must - cover your mouth and nose with a tissue, then wash your hands with soap and water.

•Use tissues (not a hanky) once, and throw them away immediately. It's more

·Buy a new toothbrush after your fever goes away, or you'll keep infecting yourself. Ever wonder why you get one cold after another?

·Beware of habits that may be getting you into trouble like sharing popcorn from a common container, sharing the phone or pencil of an infected person and not washing your hands frequently.

Consider these tips and try not to "bug" others.

Stay in touch with your travel agent

"Staying in touch with one's travel agent can result in greater savings and satisfaction," says Becky Keidel of Trio Travel. Dozens of travel options offering new prices, dates and rules cross a travel agent's desk weekly. Some merit mass advertising; others are exactly suited to ccrtain clients whose travel habits and inclinations the agent has come to know well. The rest are of no value if the agent is unaware of who might benefit from Therefore, if you're needing airfare to Florida in April, want to take the family on an Amtrak vacation this summer, longto see Hawaii at a really good price or would always consider a low fare to New Orleans to visit family, your travel agent needs to know it. Such travel requests become part of Trio Travel's "watch list," according to Keidel.

While agents cannot guarantee to notify a client about each travel opportunity that arises, they certainly make every effort to do so. Making your travel needs known to your agent maximizes your chances of learning about the best travel values in time to take advantage of them.

Travel agents are also able to save you valuable time. They have access to the current rates and availabilities of dozens of airlines, hotels and auto rental companies. A single call to your agent puts you in touch with all that information.

Your agent can offer you motorcoach tours from a variety of tour operators. "At Trio Travel," says Keidel, "you may pick up a single sheet listing all tours leaving from our area during a given month."

If you don't have a travel agent, stop in or call and begin now to develop a relationship of comfort and trust. If you have already done this, communicate your travel needs to your agent, and remember to update those needs as they change. Don't be hesitant to check back occasionally. Your agent is always ready to share the latest travel offerings, such as those contained in Trio Travel's ad elsewhere in this issue.

Confusing questions answered

Advanced Directives? Living Wills? Durable Powers of Attorney for Health Care? What are they? What do they all mean? Do I have to have one, or all? What happens if I don't?

If you've asked yourself these or similar questions, you're not alone. Many are confused about these things. Hopefully, this information can help.

An advance directive is, very simply, a direction you give to someone else about your medical care prior to the time you need the medical care. If you tell someone, "Oh I would never want to be kept alive by machines," you have made an advance directive. That's probably not a good way to do it, however, because it's not likely your doctor or family will know that you made that statement or to whom you made it.

What is the best way to make an Advance Directive?

The best way to make an advance directive is in writing. The two most common forms of written advance directives are Living Wills and Durable Powers of Attorney for Health Care.

A Living Will is a written statement that states your wishes if you aren't physically able to express your wishes at the time you need medical treatment.

To understand a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, it's first necessary to understand what a Durable Power of Attorney is. A Durable Power of Attorney is a document you sign in which you appoint an agent to make decisions on your behalf. The agent is then entitled to make decisions for you based on what's in the document. For example, if you sign a Durable Power of Attorney that allows your agent to handle your finances, your agent will then be able to handle your bank accounts, investments and other financial matters.

A Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care is simply a Durable Power of Attorney through which you give your agent the authority to make health care decisions for

Are Living Wills legal?

That's been asked a number of times in Nebraska. The answer has never been an easy one until 1992. In 1992, the Governor signed into law LB 671. LB 671 authorizes the use of living wills in Ne-

Is a Durable Power of Attorney for health care legal?

Durable Powers of Attorney have been authorized by Nebraska law for quite some time. However, there was never any provision specifically authorizing the use of a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care decisions. In 1992 though, the Governor signed into law LB 696, which specifically authorizes such a Durable Power of Attor-

you want to happen to you. It's your decision and your document. If you want everything done to keep you alive, you should state that in your advance directive. If you want nothing done, you should state that, too. The more specific you can be, the more likely people will understand what your desires are.

Who should have a copy of your Advance Directive?

Certainly your family should have a copy of your advance directive. Your doctor should also have a copy. It may be wise to also give a copy to the clergy of your church, if you have one.

How do I make an Advance Directive?

There are many, many forms available for making an advance directive. If you use one of these, it's important that you understand it and that it reflects your desires. It's best to consult with a lawyer when making an advance directive because he or she is familiar with what is required under the law.

Flu vaccine is safe

Did you know that influenza and pneumonia combined are the fifth leading cause of death in adults ages 65 and over?

Today's flu vaccine is safe for nearly everyone. You simply can't get the flu from a flu shot!

According to the American Lung Association, influenza can be prevented-when-aperson receives the current influenza vaccine. The viruses in the vaccine are killed or inactivated so that someone vaccinated cannot get influenza from the vaccine. Instead, the person develops protection in his or her body in the form of substances called antibodies.

The number of antibodies is greatest 1-2 months after vaccination and then gradually declines. For that reason, and because the influenza viruses usually change each year, a high-risk person should be vaccinated each fall with the new vaccine. Amantadine (A medicine) can also be used to help prevent flu.

Pneumonia is the leading cause of death by infectious disease in the U.S. and is the most common complication of influenza.

In the past, the pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine was considered a once-in-a-lifetime shot. This is still true for most people. However, revaccination is now considered after three years for high-risk children who received their initial vaccination when they were younger than five years of age; and after six years for older, very high-risk individuals.

The Nebraska Department on Aging has teamed up with Area Agencies on Aging, the American Lung Association, AAROP and Parke-Davis because we're concerned about the low immunization levels among older Americans for influenza (flue) and pneumococcal pneumonia.

Talk to your doctor, or the people at your local health department, or senior center. They'll help you with any questions you may have. Or, contact the American Lung Association of Nebraska, 401 E. no known cause and no cure for the disease. It is now the fourth largest cause of death with over 40,000 diagnosed cases in Nebraska including 355 in Dakota County. Newhouse pointed out that these numbers are only for people who have been diagnosed leaving out many more who may be in an early stage or just haven't been noticed yet.

"There's a real tendency just to say, 'Oh mom's just having a bad day, and not look at what's really going on." Newhouse said.

Newhouse said it costs an average of $18,000 per year to care for an Alzheimer's nationt in the home. This compares to about $25,000 to $30,000 in a nursing

Some other common symptoms of dementia, which Alzheimer's is the most common form of, are memory loss, impaired judgment, lack of concentration and disorientation

Difference

"The difference between dementia and a mental illness is dementia has something physically happening in the brain." Newhouse said

People are often confused between the two. For that reason, the Alzheimer's Association is starting to train law enforcement agencies and first response teams to recognize the symptoms.

According to Newhouse, an Alzheimer's patient may wander off at night, not knowing who or where they are or how to get home. Furthermore, they could walk into a store and pick something up and put it in their pocket, not intending to steal but not realizing they did anything wrong.

"Obviously that's going to take some assessment for law enforcement officials to recognize the difference between Alzheimer's Disease and criminal behavior," she said.

They are also going to offer a series in South Sioux City open to the public.

"We're going to be starting in January, a four week series in South Sioux City on how to cope with Alzheimer's Disease," Newhouse said.

She said if someone sees some symptoms they think might be Alzheimer's, they should first see their family doctor. Then, they should get an assessment done. The closest place for this is Marian Health Center, according to Newhouse. Finally, if they need any information on Alzheimer's or how to deal with it, they can contact the 'Alzheimer's Association.

She said 10 percent of the people over the age of 65 are infected with the disease. Once they reach the age of 85, the average jumps to 50 percent. People in good health can expect to live from three to 20 years with 'Would I like to see a special care unit over here?" Newhouse said. "You bet "

Until that day comes, Dorothy Keyser will continue to visit Melvin at Green Acres about every other day like she always does. Her only other options for special care units are in West Point or Omaha and she doesn't want to take him that far away from home.

"It's tough to see him like this," Dorothy said. "I could spend an hour and a half with him and I only understand two or three sentences. But I think he understands us."
