

Wayne County approves joint planning board

Wayne County Commissioners this morning approved a resolution establishing a joint Planning and Zoning Commission for Wayne County and the villages of Carroll, Hoskins and Winside.

The new commission will replace a board established by the county earlier to begin the process of drafting comprehensive planning and zoning guidelines for the county.

The earlier commission was made of county residents in general. The new board will be comprised of six members from the rural environs of the county and one each from the villages who are a party to the joint agreement.

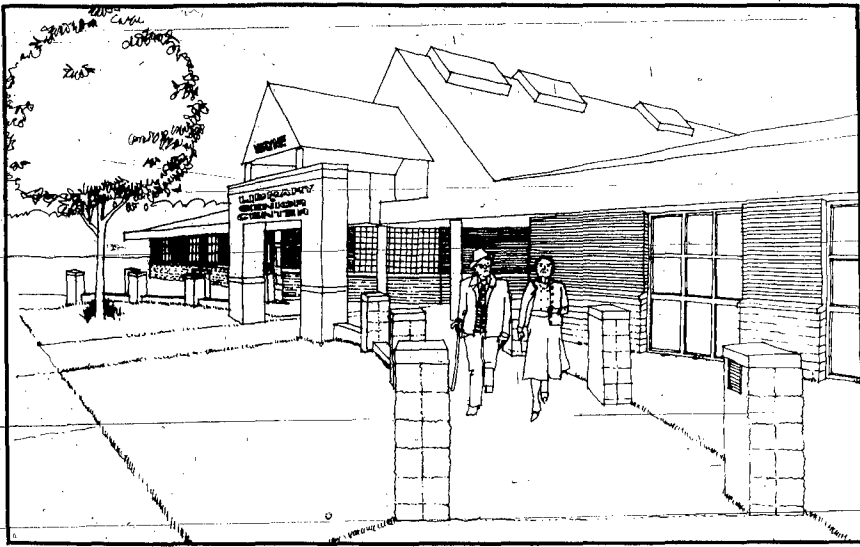

The new planning commission will take up the task of finishing the comprehensive plan for the county and later the zoning regulations. Both of these documents will be brought forth for public hearings and approval in coming months.

Many of the original planning commission members are expected to be reappointed to the new commission.

The drive to develop planning and zoning guidelines has been implemented as response to increasing development, especially in the southwest corner of the county where urban growth from Norfolk is spreading into Wayne County.

The City of Wayne is not involved in the county planning and zoning process since it has had zoning regulations implemented since 1979. Last summer the city completed extensive revision of the city plan and zoning regulations.

Three towns join to battle house fire

Fire units from three towns battled a house fire Sunday night which left the Carl Paustian family of rural Carroll homeless for at least a time. Carroll Fire Chief Rick Davis said the home east of Carroll suffered extensive smoke damage and two rooms were pretty well destroyed in the blaze which was reported by a neighbor at 6:20 p.m. Sunday.

He said the neighbor noticed the fire while passing by and thought the Paustians were burning trash. But when he drove to the house he discovered flames coming out of the bedroom.

Davis said no one was home at the time of the fire. Cause of the blaze is still under investigation, said Davis. Fire units from Carroll, Wayne and Winside battled the blaze until nearly 11 p.m., Davis said. The fire rekindled early Monday morning but Carroll crews made quick work of the mop-up activities.

Red Cross volunteers provided food and drinks for the fire crews while they battled the blaze. Davis Steakhouse fired hamburgers, The Station in Carroll sent out pop and snacks and Herb and Joyce Neimann also provided goodies, said Davis.

Murder suspect held in Wayne youth center

A 16-year-old boy was being held in Wayne at the Juvenile Detention Center this week after being arrested on a murder warrant from Wyoming's Fremont County.

Norfolk police said they arrested the Lander, Wyo., youth Sunday morning in a residential neighborhood in southeast Norfolk.

Police Capt. Leon Chapman said Wyoming authorities notified Norfolk police to be on the lookout for the boy because he had relatives in the area.

The youth, who was being held without bail in the Northeast Nebraska Juvenile Detention Center, waived extradition rights Monday and will be returned to Wyoming within two or three days according to Madison County Attorney Joe Smith.

Wyoming authorities said the youth was wanted in the shooting death last Tuesday of Michael Lee Adams, 18, also of Lander.

Land secured for project

Of the Herald

The Wayne City Library Board, Board of the Senior Citizen Center and Library Foundation have reached agreement on options for the purchase of property they hope will be the future site of the new library and senior citizen center for Wayne.

The group has signed options on three lots on Pearl Street across the street south of the Wayne County Courthouse, according to Pat Gross, who heads the library group.

He said the site, which will be more than a quarter block, will provide ample space for the dual use facility which is being designed on one level. Plus he said there will also be adequate parking space.

HE SAID THE senior citizen and library leaders were excited about signing the purchase agreements on the properties this week because that site was the first choice of both groups. The new complex will lie between the county courthouse and Wayne City Hall.

Though it is anticipated it will be two years before construction begins on the facility, even if the sales tax is approved, Gross said it is nonetheless exciting to have taken a major step.

The Library Foundation has also hired a professional fund raiser who has begun the process of seeking contributions from major benefactors toward the project.

Gross said the individuals have an opportunity to gift part or all of the site acquisition costs in the memory of family members or friends. He said suitable recognition will be provided for such gifts and that those interested should contact the Library Senior Center fund raising office at 375-2709.

College brought soldiers to Wayne

First in a Series

By Clara Osten
For the Herald

"Fifty years ago on March 2, I was one of about 200 men who came to Wayne State College to train for the Air Corps," said Roy Sommerfeld who was recalling the anniversary of his coming to Wayne to prepare to serve in World War II.

As the 50th anniversary of the the invasion of Normandy approaches, the Wayne Herald would like to publish stories from residents who were involved in the war effort in any way and from those who were left behind. Anyone who would like to tell his or her story is urged to contact the Wayne Herald as this will be an on going series.

Sommerfeld, a native of Chippewa, Wisconsin, was drafted into the army in Oct. 1941. "At this time the United States' Armed Forces was really non-existent. This was before the bombing of Pearl Harbor," said Sommerfeld.

He was stationed in the Aleutian Islands off the coast of Alaska. "This was very boring. I was a jeep driver but there still was very little to do. The only way to get away from there was to join the Air Corps, so that is what I did," said Sommerfeld.

SOMMERFELD was sent to Sheppard Field, Texas. There he received a list of who was going to be sent where. "I got on a bus and the next thing I knew, I was in Wayne, Nebraska. Before that, I had never even heard of Wayne, Nebraska and knew nothing about it."

At that time, Wayne State College had been converted into a training camp for the Air Corps. "There were only about three or four civilian men who were going to college here. Pile and Neihardt Halls were girls' dorms but everybody else on campus was a soldier," said Sommerfeld.

The training was to last six months and after that the soldiers would be able to fly small planes at the Wayne Airport. Also stressed during the training was Military Courtesy and Leadership. However, after about six weeks the Air Corps decided that they had enough pilots and Sommerfeld never got to fly a plane.

ery Saturday to test our marching skills. The soldiers were divided into groups of about 50 soldiers called flights. The best flight then got to go to a dance at the Student Union which is now Connell Hall," said Sommerfeld.

SOMMERFELD'S wife, Mabel, said that during World War II the community stood behind their soldiers. "The community pulled together and supported the soldiers. Many of the local people even had soldiers in their homes for Easter dinner, said Mabel.

"I remember that during this time women went to work, really for the first time. They took the jobs that had been held by the men. I do remember my mother, and many others, warning all the girls to be careful and not get involved with the soldiers at the college," she said.

From Wayne, Sommerfeld was sent to Ft. Leonard Wood, Missouri and became part of the 97th Infantry. There the soldiers trained for combat in Europe.

In it together

The opening salvos are being loaded in what promises to be another divisive battle between rural and urban residents over the sales tax proposal facing Wayne voters in May.

However, we hope clear thinkers on both sides will help defuse the battle before it erupts. Sales tax votes have traditionally pitted rural interests against those in town. That has been the history of previous sales tax elections in Wayne.

Rural folks aren't far wrong when they complain that sales taxes, voted on by residents of a city, represent taxation without representation for non-city residents. Though they don't get a vote on the issue, they certainly have to pay the tax when they come to town to spend the millions of dollars keeping their farm operations running. We appreciate their sense of disenfranchisement during the election process.

However, there have been several developments in recent years that convince us that the traditional arguments which have pitted rural and urban residents against one another over the sales tax issue should be rethought.

Now more than ever, the interests of both groups are so inextricably intertwined that neither side should look on themselves as a separate entity but rather a part of the whole community. Working together on planning and zoning issues, school affiliation and consolidation and emergency services have brought the two groups closer together we believe. No one can argue that the two sides are acutely dependent on one another for lifestyle and economic well-being.

Rural residents are now sending their trash into town for disposal and paying the same for that federal mandated "privilege" that city residents pay. But it was the city tax payer that built the trash transfer operation.

City residents who annually share in the property tax assessment for the operation of county government could also sing the taxation without representation song. County tax resources especially for roads and law enforcement are traditionally expended in the rural areas and commission districts are traditionally drawn to reduce the likelihood that an urban resident would ever be elected to the commission. But, to complain about this arrangement would be as short sighted as saying rural residents shouldn't be allowed into Wayne City Parks because their taxes don't contribute to their upkeep.

We're all citizens of the same community and we all should share in the burden of its maintenance and improvement whether it be rebuilding rural bridges or remodeling the city auditorium.

There is a definite need for the capital projects outlined by the city in the sales tax vote. Each of the projects will benefit the whole community, rural and urban alike.

We would not be in support of sales tax passage if its purpose were simply to reduce property taxes for city residents. That is an unfair shift of tax obligation from a local group to a broader base. But for specific capital projects from which both rural and urban residents will benefit, we find ourselves on the side of supporting the new tax. It is made even more palatable by the definite voter mandated limit of 5 years regardless of the amount raised in that time.

We are equally convinced that the city should, with passage of the sales tax, eliminate non-resident charges for recreation programs, library usage and other fees charged by the city. We see the sales tax vote as one more opportunity to remove those artificial barriers. There shouldn't be a feeling of not belonging when rural residents go to town nor when town residents go to the country.

Neither can operate without the other and we must realize that to make our whole community better, we must work together.

Unicameral passes halfway point

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — We're past the halfway point in the 1994 legislative session. And like a high school basketball team, lawmakers headed to the locker room to figure out if their game plan is working.

Just like my years on a basketball team, there's plenty of scribbling on the blackboard and adjustments to make.

Take for example, the much ballyhooed juvenile crime bill.

You remember it: the plan of Gov. Nelson and a few key state senators, then the summit proposal of Nelson, Attorney General Don Stenberg and Omaha Mayor P.J. Morgan.

Now, it's in the court of the state legislature.

Last week, senators kicked out the boot camp provisions of the bill, LB 988.

In 1993, a boot camp was the only remnant of an ill-fated crime bill pushed by Stenberg and bashed by senators.

This year, the cost of building and operating the military-style discipline factory — $6 million plus — plus big doubts over whether push ups and order-barking wardens would reform a teenager will likely kill the idea.

Money, the kind that comes from taxpayers pockets, was finally injected in this debate and the first victim was the boot camp.

What's left in the bill is a number of steps to reform bad kids, keep them away from guns and — the bill's hallmark — construction of an $8.9 million prison for violent juvenile offenders.

Stenberg, a boot camp proponent, chastised the Legislature for booting the camps, but the slimmed down LB 988 now looks like it's ready for the second-half.

Two of the governor's other big priorities — welfare reform and health-care reform — are also seeing some halftime adjustments.

The most controversial portion of the health-care bill was getting tough on unfit doctors. But physicians balked at a change that would allow other health professionals, like nurses, to file reports on incompetent doctors.

Right now, Nebraska might have the nation's weakest system of identifying and disciplining unfit health professionals. It will be stronger under the health-care proposal, but like the youth crime bill, not as ambitious as first hoped.

The welfare-reform plan is also getting the chalkboard treatment.

It promised to end dependence on government assistance by making welfare recipients get jobs and keep their kids in school. The ultimate enforcer was a two-year cutoff on Aid to Dependent Children.

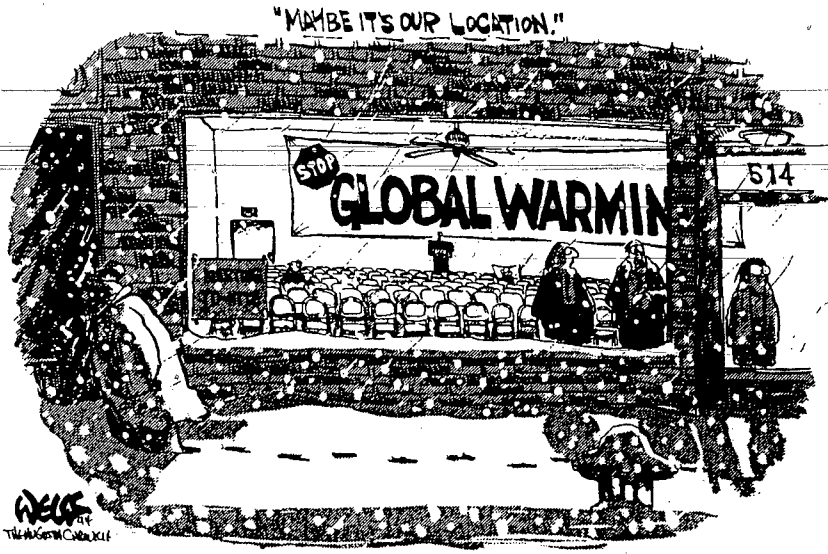

But many people called that idea cruel and not based in reality. What if there are no jobs? Proponents, however, argued that the days of the endless free lunch are over.

State Sen. Jessie Rasmussen of Omaha is leading the halftime changing of the welfare-reform bill. It already has resulted in a softening of the two-year limit, and will probably lighten up on cutting off child care benefits for folks taking jobs.

Senators are now wiping the sweat off their foreheads and heading out for the second half.

It's a new ballgame. We'll see if those halftime adjustments work.

'Ethanol shouldn't get government help!'

Dear Editor:

Your recent editorial, "Use government moonshine," asserts incorrectly that the American Petroleum Institute (API) opposes the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) proposed ethanol fuel mandate because oil companies do not want to give up a portion of the gasoline market.

Ethanol certainly has a role to play in our nation's energy mix and it's a role that is expected to grow without additional help from the government. In fact, many of API's member companies already market gasoline with ethanol as a component. However, the EPA's proposed mandate is not based on producing social benefits; it is based on bestowing special benefits on some at the expense of others. That's why API opposes it. Consider the following:

• Dictating ethanol use will not help the environment, even though that's what should underlie any EPA action. EPA's own analysis says that ethanol won't reduce ozone smog. Other government studies show that it will increase greenhouse gases.

• Ethanol will not reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil. EPA says its proposal might reduce total annual crude imports by an infinitesimal one-tenth of one percent — about the amount consumed in two minutes on a daily basis — at a cost that is nine times the current cost of crude oil. There are far more cost-effective ways of dealing with energy security concerns associated with imports, including encouraging domestic oil production.

• Corn farmers will not be the primary beneficiaries of an ethanol dictate. Dr. David Montgomery of the nationally recognized economic consulting firm Charles River Associates says that the ethanol mandate is one of the least effective ways of helping farmers and that ethanol producers will get more than 70 cents of every dollar. (The majority of that would go to the single largest ethanol producer, the Archer Daniels Midland Co.)

Finally, our opposition to the proposed ethanol plan should not be construed as pitting the oil industry against corn farmers. The real is-ssues are whether the federal government should dictate how gasoline is made and whether this mandate really will help farmers while improving energy security and the environment. The answer to those questions is no.

Substituting the bureaucratic decision making of the federal government for that of the marketplace does not benefit the nation's agribusiness, nor the corn and soybean producers, nor economic or environmental interests.

It also violates EPA's negotiated agreement on a reformulated gasoline regulation, an agreement to which the environment and ethanol people were a party, and to which they each extended their agreement and acquiescence at the time of those negotiations.

Political season

Often it can be aggravating for Mr. Herald

The political season has arrived again and with it mailboxes all over the land are being filled up with pleading letters from candidates, political action committees and political parties seeking funds to spend millions on that all important television time.

It matters little that most voters say they make their decisions not on what they see in those slick image television commercials but rather on what they read and what their friends are saying. The politicians still are drawn to the almighty tube and its almighty campaign costs.

I got one of those computer-generated political solicitation letters the other day. It tried to convince me that "my" political organization (it wrongly assumed I was a member of that group) would fail miserably in the coming election if I didn't send money right away to help buy television time.

"We" have to fight the down-right dangerous message being delivered in the media by the other side, the letter said. The letter tried to convince me I was an integral cog in the wheel of truth, justice and the American way. The organization knew me and my clear minded position on the issues, the letter said and that's why its leaders were convinced I would help by sending money right away.

I wasn't convinced they knew me as well as they claimed, however, since the letter was addressed to Mr. Wayne Herald.

personal touch, yeah, like the political action committees, with a letter to Mr. Herald.

On a more positive note, I'm excited about a series of articles being introduced in today's paper of local folks who remember back about fifty years ago and the experience they had with the war effort.

The idea for the series was generated out of the Wayne Middle School where English students have been working with a cache of old newspapers discovered in an attic to help prepare stories about the history of our community.

Some of the students are focusing on the period of World War II. The timing is right. It was right at 50 years ago that the most decisive battles in the war were fought. And with the aging of those who were there, unless their first hand experiences are documented, their priceless memories may be lost forever.

An editorial in the Norfolk Daily News Monday almost hit the mark when it argued that the money Planned Parenthood intends to spend to convince the public abortion coverage should be included in the national health care plan might be more effectively directed to "educating teen-age girls" on why they should avoid getting pregnant.

Unless I'm mistaken, teen-age girls have an extremely difficult time of getting pregnant without the willing (and usually eager) participation of teen-age boys. The responsibility and the need for education rests with males too.

Incidentally, I hope everyone got to see that terrific Insight '94 special edition published by the Norfolk paper over the weekend. It was colorful, bright and full of good reading. I know the staff of that paper has worked for many months on that special project and they deserve congratulations for turning out another crowd-pleaser.

Yes, I agree with Dr. Wessel, who comments elsewhere on this page, that our street crews do a terrific job of clearing Wayne streets after a snow. It has always seemed to me that our crews are better equipped than most to accomplish the task.

The planning and foresight that went into equipping most city pickups with smaller, more efficient snow plow blades speaks well of the management of the city. This equipment and the dedicated handling of it allows our crews to hit the less traveled streets and get the alleys cleared long before most towns with their big truck plows have even tackled their thoroughfares.

Good work guys, but here's hoping you'll now be through for the season.

Only slightly less wrath inspiring than buddy-chummy fund seeking letters from people I don't even know are today's magazines. Since we're on the subject of peevish (because I couldn't find anything better to write about this week) I might as well complain about magazines. Television doesn't deserve all the heat.

It was while leafing through one of my favorite slick publications looking for a column subject that I discovered my hatred for one of the prime gimmicks used in magazines these days.

Those pull-out, fold-out, fall-out cards they put in them as "reader service" really chaps my cheeks. I can never find the particular article I'm looking for because the daggard card to order some porcelain dust catcher from some collector's supply house is in the way.

If they want me to buy the latest issue in the series of Elvis collectors plates or genuine hand-painted pewter warplane replicas they should do it with a

What we should tell our kids

QUESTION: My 4-year-old frequently comes running home in tears because she has been hit by one of her little friends. I have taught her that it is not right to hit others, but now they are making life miserable for her. What should I tell her about defending herself?

DR. DOBSON: When youngsters play together, they each want to have the best toys and determine the ground rules to their advantage. If they find they can predominate by simply flinging a well-aimed fist at the nose of their playmate, someone is likely to get hurt.

"I'm sure there are people who disagree with me on this issue, but I believe you should teach your child to defend himself or herself when attacked. Later, they can be taught to "turn the other cheek," which even mature adults find difficult to implement.

I recently consulted with a mother who was worried about her small daughter's inability to protect herself from aggression. There was one child in the neighborhood who would crack 3-year-old Ann in the face at the slightest provocation. This little bully, named Joan, was very small and feminine, but she never felt the sting of retaliation, because Ann had been taught not to fight back.

I recommended that Ann's mother tell her to return Joan's attack if Joan hit first. Several days later, the mother heard a loud altercation outside, followed by a brief scuffle. Then Joan began crying and went home.

Ann walked casually into the house with her hands in her pockets, and casually explained, "Joan socked me, so I had to help her remember not to hit me again." She and Joan have played much more peacefully since that time.

Generally speaking, a parent should emphasize the foolishness of fighting. But to force a child to stand passively while being clobbered is to leave him at the mercy of his cold-blooded peers.

QUESTION: I am 13 years old, and I feel miserable about myself. Is there anything I can do?

Dr. Dobson

Answers Your Questions

DR. DOBSON: First, you need to understand that you are not alone. When you go to school tomorrow, quietly watch the students who are coming and going. I assure you, many of them have the same concerns that trouble you. They reveal these doubts by being very shy and quiet, by being extremely angry and mean, by being silly, by being afraid to participate in a game or contest, by blushing frequently or by acting proud or "stuck up."

You'll soon learn to recognize the signs of inferiority, and then you'll know it's a very common disorder. It will give you more confidence to know that everyone is afraid of embarrassment and ridicule--that we're all sitting in the same leaky boat, trying to plug the watery holes.

Second, I advise you to look squarely at the worries that keep gnawing at you from the back of your mind or from deep within your heart, causing a black cloud to hang over your head day and night. Then list all the things which you most dislike about yourself. Nobody is going to see this paper except the people you choose to show it to, so you can be completely honest. Write down everything that's bothering you.

Identify your most serious problems as best as possible. Whatever concerns you, write it down the best you can. Then when you're finished, go back through the list and put a mark by those items that worry you the most--the problems you spend the most time thinking and fretting about.

Third, think about each item on the list. Give your greatest creative thought to what might be done to change the things you don't like. If you wish, you might share the paper with someone in whom you have confidence. That person can then help you map out a plan for improvement. You'll feel better for having faced your problems.

The key to mental health is being able to accept what you cannot change. After you've done what you can to deal with your problems, I feel you should take the paper on which the most painful items are written, and burn it in a private ceremony.

What is Regularity?

Regularity as it applies to bowel movements should mean different things to different individuals, each person's predictable interval between bowel movements varying from another. Studies indicate that normal bowel movements for one person are as frequent as three times a day, while others are as infrequently as three times a week. Although bothersome, constipation usually is not serious and is helped by changes in diet and exercise. However, constipation lasting more than one week indicates that a physician should be seen.

Petition effort explained

Dear Editor:
I realize I'm not from your community, but it's my responsibility as State Coordinator for the People's Petition Network to let the citizens of Wayne and surrounding area know that they now have a P.P.N. Co. Coordinator.

Her name is Stephanie Sharpnack. She is a volunteer, who believes in OUR petition process as one of the ways YOUR voice can be heard on a state level. As a form of public service she has four of the five current statewide petitions.

Being involved in the petition process, she has also come to know that no group or organization can complete a successful petition drive. Only "the People" can. And ... quite frankly that's YOU. As a citizen of this state we all need to take the attitude that if we see someone with a petition, stop for 30 seconds and find out what they have. If it's a good idea, sign it AND take ONE petition form with you to get five or 10 of your friends, family or co-workers to sign it. It's the only way any idea (petition) will get on the ballot to be voted on.

To close, I've asked Stephanie to do a follow up letter. So support your local newspaper and grab next week's paper, to become informed on the statewide petitions being offered to you. Or give Stephanie a call, 375-4608. It's now her job to inform and assist. Public Service.

Ride the information superhighway

Merlin Wright

Grab your hat, folks, for the ride of the century on the new information superhighway! Looks like there will be lots of onramps, offramps, intersections, turnoffs, tourists, sightseers and collisions.

Faster than you can say Dick Tracy, the global electronic network is being connected. Even now cities are experimenting with community computing networks, dial-in information services run "of, by and for the people."

Municipal electronic bulletin boards are definitely in! At last count 25 city systems are up and running. Nebraska has its Nebraska Online on the road. Legislators are right now considering LB1359 to require computer access to legislative documents.

These information systems offer free or low-cost access to enormous amounts of information. All you need is a computer and modem. The nonprofit systems are dedicated to providing government documents and information on travel, medicine, legal matters, auto care, schedules of governmental agency meetings, tourist guides, heads of agencies and their phone numbers, plus school announcements, library services, real estate, etc.

Hamilton County has organized a 16-member Information Technologies Task Force and recently held a conference to help residents evaluate their needs in relation to the forthcoming info-road.

Wayne State College is already on-line, as is its library. WSC also has a Bulletin Board providing electronic mail, computer programs and other services.

Maybe its time for Wayne County to create an Info-Tech Task Force consisting of reps from all interested government, agricultural, educational and library entities. Such a Task Force could determine the level of interest in forming a cooperative electronic information network.

Need a name? How about calling it the "Electronic Information Network Study To Explore Interchanging Neighborhoods", or the "EINSTEIN" project.

Such a database could provide educational, business, agricultural and government data, electronic mail, a community bulletin board, business directory, health care services, library information, and recreational schedules. An electronic group discussion might draw the greatest participation.

What else is new? A modem permits computers to communicate by phone line, but now Comacs Enterprises of Hamburg, Germany says it has demonstrated a prototype modem that can transmit voice, video and data through any type of mobile radio, cellular or standard phone, satellite, cable, infrared or microwave link. Are you ready for wireless computing? Here it comes! Sending computer data via broadcast signals rather than phone lines is next! Looks like the information interstate will become an airway instead!

Think about this: no more trips to the Post Office, electronic mail received in seconds; talking to anyone anywhere from a small portable phone; getting news at will, and attending school by satellite!

Here comes 2001! The technology is ready, are we?

merfeld was sent to Europe. "By that time the war in Europe was almost over. The mission of the 97th Infantry was to help liberate some of the smaller concentration camps.

"I especially remember Flossenberg Concentration Camp which is in Germany near the Czech border. It had contained approximately 4,000 people. Those who were able to, walked out. Our job was to get the rest out. I never actually went in but those who did said the smell was terrible," said Sommerfeld.

After liberating the concentration camps, the 97th Infantry's next assignment was to go to Japan to help keep the peace. By this time, Sommerfeld felt he had had enough Army life. Instead of getting on the boat to go to Japan, he went AWOL (absent without official leave).

"I was not the only one to do this. Out of the 15,000 of us that were to get on the boat, about two or three thousand of us decided that we were not going to go," said Sommerfeld.

Because of that incident, he then spent two months in jail.

"I wouldn't exactly call it hard labor. We went around the grounds with a long stick picking up cigarettes butts. After my two months were up, I received an honorable discharge on Nov. 19, 1945 and then returned to Wayne," said Sommerfeld.

WHILE HE HAD been at Wayne State College, Sommerfeld had met a local girl and had gotten married in June of 1944.

When he first returned to Wayne, he sold milk and cream for Ed Seymour. He later became a carpenter and put many of his war memories out of his mind. Only recently, after retirement has he renewed his interest in what happened during the four and a half years he served in the Army.

Two years ago he and Mabel went to a 50th anniversary reunion of the bombing of Dutch Harbor in the Aleutian Islands near where he had been stationed. "The reunion served as a healing between the people who were living there and the soldiers who had come in and forced them to leave their homes," said Mabel.

"A lot of the wives learned things from that trip that they had never known about their husbands. The men were finally able to talk about things that had happened 50 years ago," she said.

The Sommerfeld's have also attended reunions of the 97th Infantry in St. Louis, Mo. and Nashville, Tenn.

LAST YEAR they attended a reunion of those who were drafted at the same time as Roy in Chippewa, Wis. "Of the 35 men that were drafted, 20 of us were at the reunion," said Roy.

"A lot of things have changed since I was in the Army. When I was first drafted, I got $21 a month for a salary. Of that, they took out $6.60 for insurance and $1.50 for laundry. By the time I was discharged I was up to $36 a month," said Sommerfeld.

At 82, Gertrude Landau was honored in New York City on the 50th anniversary of her pioneering role — opening and directing the world's first senior center. A social worker, she was 32 when she volunteered to take charge of a room where older residents of a Bronx neighborhood could gather to play cards, socialize and listen to the radio. Art courses and other programs were added. Soon the center drew visitors as a model to duplicate elsewhere. There are now more than 15,000 senior centers in the U.S. Is she a regular at any center? "Not yet," says Landau, still busy as a lecturer and consultant.

Wayne boys earn spot in district finals with Scotus

MIKE FLUENT lays a shot over the rim for the first two points of Monday's semifinal game with Lakeview.

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

The Wayne boys basketball team clinched a berth in the B-4 District Championship—against—Columbus Scotus by blasting West Point, 71-42 on Saturday and Columbus Lakeview, 61-46 Monday at Northeast Community College in Norfolk.

The Blue Devils, top seeded will face second seeded Scotus in a 7:30 p.m. contest, Tuesday with the winner earning a state tournament berth in Lincoln, March 10-12.

Rocky Ruhl's squad breezed past West Point in the first round in a contest they never trailed in. The Blue Devils raced to a 21-6 lead after the first quarter and never looked back. Wayne enjoyed a 40-19 lead at the half and 58-27 advantage after three quarters. Sophomore Andy Witkowski and freshman Paul Blomenkamp supplied quality depth for Wayne in the second period as Witkowski scored the final four points of the quarter while Blomenkamp broke free from a double team and drilled a 15-foot jumper.

"It was a good team effort," Ruhl said. "We did a good job of finding the open man." Earlier in the season the Blue Devils struggled against the Cadets, winning by seven in West Point.

Matt Blomenkamp paced the winners with 13 points—all in the first half including eight in the opening stanza. Mike Fluent and Ryan Pick poured in 10 each while Robert Bell and Kirk Carmichael netted nine apiece in a well-balanced attack.

Wayne dominated the boards, 55-29 as Bell hauled down a career high 15 caroms while Fluent notched eight and Blomenkamp, seven. Wayne committed just 10 turnovers compared to 11 for the Cadets. The Blue Devils struggled from the foul line hitting just 11 of 26 while West Point was 10-17.

WAYNE DID not, however, breeze past Columbus Lakeview on Monday. In fact, the Vikings had a 37-32 lead midway through the third quarter before the Blue Devils started rolling and when they got things going, it was all Wayne as they out-scored the Vikings, 29-9 the rest of the way.

Robert Bell was the catalyst for three of Wayne's five, 3-pointers. Matt Blomenkamp and Ryan Pick each had a 3-pointer as well. Bell's first 3-pointer came at the 4:47 mark of the third quarter and it really started to change the momentum to Wayne's advantage.

Wayne trailed Lakeview, 15-11 after the first quarter and it appeared Lakeview was going to go into the locker room with a lead until Wayne ripped off six straight points at the end of the second quarter to take a 26-25 lead.

The Blue Devils led 39-37 after the third quarter and then out-scored the Vikings, 22-9 in the fourth period. "We really didn't play all that well," Ruhl said. "We only shot 38 percent but we did a better job at the free throw line."

Wayne was 24 of 33 from the charity stripe while Lakeview was 7-11. Ryan Pick hit 11 of 13 free throw attempts to lead the Blue Devils at the line. Blomenkamp led the team in scoring with 18 points while Bell poured in 17 and Pick, 16.

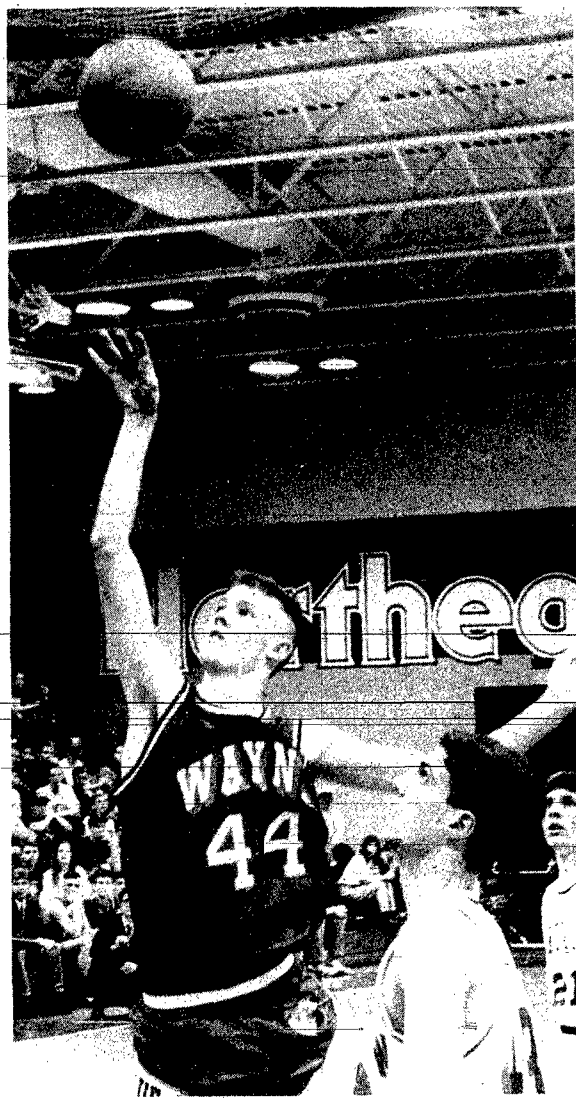

Wayne out-rebounded the Vikings, 25-20 led by Bell's nine rebounds. The Blue Devils committed just nine turnovers while forcing 13. Wayne will take an 18-4 record into the championship game while Scotus enters with a 16-6 mark.

Wayne (71), West Point (42): Wayne—Matt Blomenkamp, 13; Mike Fluent, 10; Ryan Pick, 10; Robert Bell, 9; Kirk Carmichael, 9; Joe Lutt, 7; Jason Carr, 4; Andy Witkowski, 4; Paul Blomenkamp, 3; Ryan Martin, 2.

Wayne (61), Columbus Lakeview (46): Wayne—Matt Blomenkamp, 18; Robert Bell, 17; Ryan Pick, 16; Kirk Carmichael, 6; Mike Fluent, 4.

JOE LUTT alters his shot attempt during fourth quarter action of the Blue Devils 15-point win.

MATT BLOMENKAMP follows through on an off-balance shot for two of his game high 18 points.

Freshman girls win Wakefield tourney

WAYNE—Troy Harder's freshman girls basketball team captured top honors at the Wakefield Tournament, Saturday after defeating Plainview in overtime and Stanton in the championship.

Against Plainview the Blue Devils trailed by five points with less than a minute to go but Kellie Lubberstedt hit a bucket to pull the Wayne team to within in three. Then Plainview missed the front end of a one-and-one and with four seconds to go Anne Wiseman drained her first 3-pointer of the season to send the game to overtime.

The only point scored in the bonus period came on a Melissa Weber free throw and the Blue Devils advanced to the championship with a 33-32 final. Weber led the winners with 17 points while Katy Wilson netted six. Lubberstedt finished with four while Wiseman and Katie Lutt had three each.

In the finals Wayne defeated Stanton in a high scoring contest, 53-48. The Blue Devils led by a 27-19 margin at the half and managed to hold off Stanton's rally attempts. Katie Lutt poured in 27 points to pace the Blue Devils while Anne Wiseman netted a dozen. Katy Wilson was in double figures with 10 while Melissa Weber and Kellie Lubberstedt tallied two each.

Wayne State women grab win 21 with rout of Lopers

By Kevin Peterson
Sports editor

The Wayne State men's and women's basketball teams closed out the regular season home schedule with a split against rival Kearney, Saturday in Rice Auditorium. The Wildcat women won their 21st game of the season and if Mike Barry's team defeats the Lopers on Wednesday in Kearney, the chances of WSC hosting a first round playoff game are legitimate. The WSC ladies blew out the Lopers, 77-53 after leading by a comfortable margin of 19 at the intermission, 42-23. The win closed out the 'Cats season at home with an undefeated mark of 12-0 and guaranteed the winners of their second best season in Wayne State history.

Coming into the contest Kearney was ranked fourth in the all important Region and WSC was fifth followed by Denver. The top six teams automatically qualify for the post-season NCAA-II Playoffs.

Reasonable thinking had WSC moving to fourth with the blowout of Kearney but voters had other ideas as on Monday morning Barry found out his 'Cats were ranked in the same slot, fifth. Kearney had dropped to sixth and South Dakota State leaped from eighth to fourth due to its upset win over Augustana over the weekend.

Now it appears that WSC's only chance at making the playoffs is by beating Kearney again on Wednesday in Kearney. "We are going to Kearney with one thing in mind—winning," Barry said. "Whatever happens after that is out of our control."

The Lopers will enter the season's final game with an undefeated record at home, so WSC will have its hands full. However, if the 'Cats are able to play the same style of ball they did against Kearney on Saturday, there's a good chance of two, firsts happening—UNK would suffer its first home loss and WSC would qualify for the first time in school history, the NCAA-II Playoffs.

"We played a great game against Kearney on Saturday," Barry said. "We got the tempo going our way early with a couple of steals." The two teams enjoy opposite styles as WSC likes to push the ball up the floor while the Lopers like the patient half court game.

Barry felt his squad controlled the tempo on both ends of the floor. Lisa Chamberlain paced the 'Cats on offense with 19 points while Amy Brodersen chipped in 12. WSC out-rebounded Kearney, 47-42 led by Linda Heller with seven caroms while Chamberlain and Brodersen hauled down six boards each.

Brodersen also dished out six assists and Chamberlain blocked five shots. WSC committed 15 turnovers and forced 18. Kearney shot a dismal 29 percent while the 'Cats connected on 27 of 61 shots for 44 percent.

THE WAYNE State men's team was defeated by the Lopers, 84-67 as head coach Mike Brewen coached his final home game as the Wildcat mentor. Brewen announced his resignation last week.

The 'Cats started off strong against Kearney but an ankle injury to starting guard Kyle White early in the first half sidelined WSC's leading scorer for the remainder of the contest. Coming into the contest WSC was without the services of starting post player Terry Mailoux who was suspended for one game for a fracas that broke out against Minnesota-Morris.

Still, the 'Cats trailed by just six at the break, 40-34. Kearney came out gunning in the second half and WSC virtually never recovered as they were outscored by a 44-33 margin leaving the 'Cats with a 7-18 record while UNK improved to 17-9.

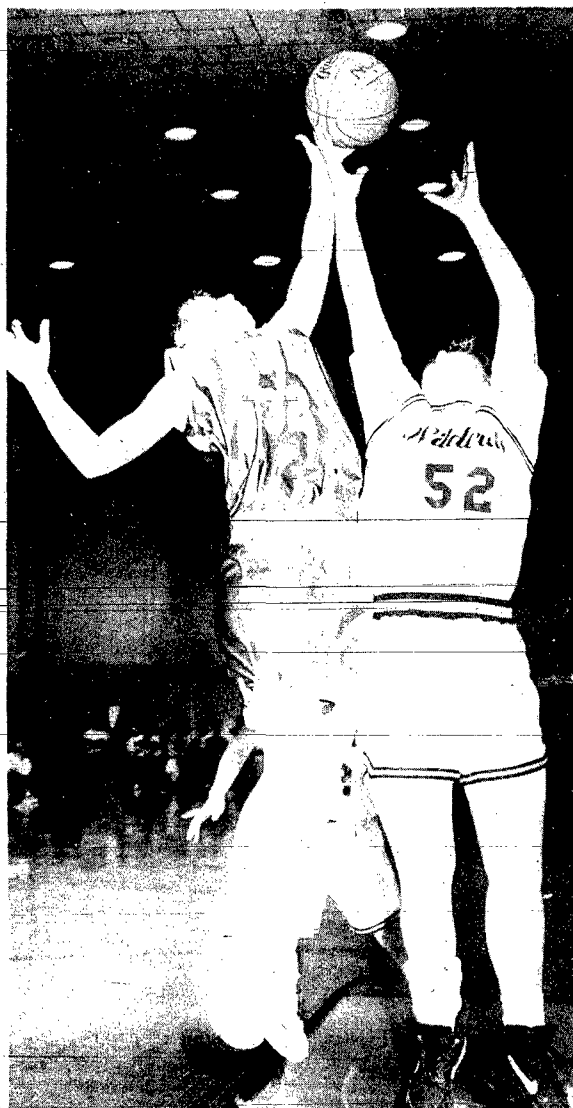

Dan Anderson led WSC with 17 points followed by Billy Patterson with 13 and Mike Mitchell with a dozen. WSC did win the battle of the boards, 47-42 as Greg Ryan led the host team with eight caroms while Brad Uhing and Anderson hauled down seven apiece.

Patterson dished out nine assists and notched three steals for team honors in both categories. WSC had 18 turnovers in the game compared to a dozen for Kearney. Both teams shot poorly from the foul line with WSC hitting just 12 of 24 while Kearney connected on 10 of 21.

The 'Cats will close out their season this week after visiting Kearney on Wednesday and Quincy, Illinois on Saturday.

WSC women (77), Kearney (53): WSC—Lisa Chamberlain, 19; Amy Brodersen, 12; Linda Heller, 8; Marla Stewart, 7; Lynn Nohr, 6; Brenda TeGrotenhuis, 6; Ann Kramer, 6; Minda Jensen, 6; Deb Kostreba, 5; Deedra Haskins, 2.

WSC men (67), Kearney (84): WSC—Dan Anderson, 17; Billy Patterson, 13; Mike Mitchell, 12; Nate Parks, 9; Omar Clark, 6; Greg Ryan, 6; Brad Uhing, 2; Aaron Frank, 2.

JODI OTJEN stretches for a rebound against Kearney's Tami Tully during first half action of Saturday's game in Wayne. The Wildcats blew out the Lopers by 24 points and in doing so ensured the 'Cats of their second best season in school history.

WAYNE STATE'S Billy Patterson leans in for two of his 13 points during second half action of the Wildcats 17 point setback to rival Kearney, Saturday in Rice Auditorium. It was the final home game of the season for WSC and for coach Mike Brewen.

Allen gals prove they can over come

The Annual Nebraska Girls State Basketball Tournament gets underway, Thursday in Lincoln and among the eight teams in Class D-1 competing for the coveted state championship is the Allen Eagles.

Of course the odds are stacked against Gary Erwin and Lori Koester's squad but hey, they've overcome a lot of obstacles in the last several years and yet this group has soared to new heights and have re-established a standard of excellence that once beamed through Allen high school's hallways.

Five years ago a former Allen standout athlete decided to return to her alma matter in an attempt to turn a program around that hadn't soared since the early 80's. Lori Erwin Koester along with her father Gary, had a major mountain to climb and they set out to conquer it together along with the hard work and determination of some Allen athletes.

The first year was difficult to say the least as Allen won just one game. To be quite honest, the Eagles weren't even close in the majority of their contests but Koester and Erwin remained optimistic because they saw a vision of the future.

The second season was better for the Allen mentors as the Eagles won four games but came close to

For Pete's Sake

By Kevin Peterson

An old adage states that "Success Breeds Success" and for Allen that seems to fit. Lori Koester was a phenomenal high school player for the Eagles and her collegiate career at Wayne State was extremely colorful. In fact, she is still ranked third on the all-time scoring list for the Wildcats.

The bottom line is, she's a winner and that winning aura has changed the attitude of Allen girls basketball and most likely—forever.

So as starters Steph Martinson, Dawn Diediker, Jamie Mitchell, Holly Blair and Tanya Plueger take the floor Thursday in Lincoln, they will begin a new era of basketball at Allen High.

So you say the odds are stacked against the mighty Eagles as they play top ranked and undefeated Chambers, Thursday at 7 p.m. at Lincoln Southeast—so what. Allen has proven they are winners regardless of the outcome of Thursday's contest.

GOOD LUCK EAGLES!

Wayne ASCS office to have WRP signup

Starting Feb. 28, the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will open signup for the second Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP). Intentions will be accepted through March 11, according to ASCS official Terri Post.

The WRP offers landowners a chance to receive payments for restoring and protecting wetlands on their property. "It provides a unique opportunity for farmers to retire certain cropland and reap the many benefits of having wetlands on their property," Post said.

In 1992 the first WRP signup was held in nine states with a maximum enrollment of 50,000 acres set for the pilot WRP. USDA accepted 49,888 acres from 265 farms. The 1994 program was expanded to include 20 states with a maximum enrollment of 75,000 acres.

"The program protects and restores habitat for migratory birds and other wildlife, helps purify water supplies and helps absorb flood waters," Post said.

Under the WRP, permanent easements are purchased from participating landowners of farmed wetlands; prior converted croplands; lands substantially altered by natural floodwaters; and riparian areas that link wetlands. ASCS will pay landowners for the acreage covered by the easement, plus up to 75 percent of any needed restoration costs to ensure wetland conditions prevail. Specified compatible uses as identified by USDA's Soil Conservation Service and Department of Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service are permitted on the restored acreage by the landowner and any successors.

Acceptance in the WRP is based on eligible owners providing an acceptable easement deed on land not subject to other prior security interests, and in most instances the contract value must be verified by an official appraisal.

Enrollment in the 1994 WRP is authorized in Arkansas, California, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

Through WRP, USDA plans to restore and protect 975,000 acres by the year 2000.

Interested landowners should contact their local ASCS office for more information on the WRP.

Area cattlemen to hold annual meeting in Wayne

The Northeast Nebraska Area Cattlemen will hold their annual membership meeting on Sunday, March 6 at the Black Knight in Wayne. The social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the meal at 7:30 p.m. Walco International of Fremont will sponsor the social hour. The meal will be free to all who have paid their 1994 dues or join that night. Wives and guests are most welcome to attend.

Featured speaker for the evening is Shane Belohrad, Nebraska Cattlemen's Membership Director. Shane will present the current membership status of the Northeast Nebraska area affiliate and the importance of a strong membership participation.

The organization will also be electing new officers to serve the 1994 year. For more information contact Tim Ahlers, president, 863-2324.

Farm Credit customers to get interest rebates

Over 44,000 customers of Farm Credit Services in the Omaha District will soon receive interest rate rebates totaling $3.5 million, more than twice the amount distributed last year, according to Nick Leuschen, manager of the local Farm Credit Services of the Midlands (PCA/FLCA) office.

The rebates were made possible by yet another year of strong financial performance for the Farm Credit Bank of Omaha and Farm Credit Services of the Midwest. Leuschen said the decision to once again pass along interest rate rebates capped another year of extraordinary financial performance.

"Interest rates to our borrowers continue to be at very low levels yet net income remained very strong throughout the year," Leuschen said. He noted that with the unusual weather across the Midwest this past year and resulting damage to farms, ranches, crops and facilities, rebates now being mailed to Farm Credit customers will help put money back into local economies. Rebates to eligible members will be calculated based on the average amount of their loan or loans outstanding during 1993 and payments will be made by the end of the first quarter of 1994.

"Many producers were hit with severe weather this past summer, and in total this rebate represents $3.5 million that's being pumped back into local economies," Leuschen said. "Farm Credit Services is an ag lending cooperative, and our efforts to keep rates competitive and this rebate program are part of our philosophy of sharing and giving something back to the members whenever possible."

Financial results for the year ended Dec. 31, 1993 were also announced. As the leading ag lender in the region, Farm Credit Services of the Midlands (PCA/FLCA) provides credit and related services to farmers, ranchers, agribusinesses and rural home residents through its lending office in Norfolk, along with a satellite contact point in Wayne.

Vote indicates a soybean checkoff

Unofficial reports from state and county ASCS offices indicate that 54 percent of the over 86,000 soybean farmers who voted in the National Soybean Checkoff referendum favor continuation of the current soybean checkoff.

"We are pleased at the large number of soybean farmers who voted on this important issue," says Alay Puzey, a soybean farmer from Fairmount, Ill., and chairman of the United Soybean Board (USB) which has responsibility for administering the National Checkoff. "We did all we could to ensure a large voter turnout because it is important that the vote is as representative as possible of soybean farmers' opinions. This vote clearly demonstrates that the majority of soybean farmers in the U.S. want us to continue the work we have been doing to improve the profitability of soybean farming." USB officials stress that while the vote numbers are accurate totals of ASCS counts, they are unofficial until announced by the Secretary of Agriculture.

With just a few remaining votes to be counted in Nebraska, unofficial numbers indicated that approximately 57 percent of the 4,628 producers who voted in the referendum, cast ballots in favor of retaining the National Soybean Checkoff that has been in operation for about two years.

The National Soybean Checkoff Program was created in the 1990 farm bill and called for a uniform checkoff rate of half of one percent of value in all soybean producing states. The order had also called for a national referendum vote on the program within 36 months of initial operation.

Women in Ag Conference leads to marketing

Based on requests for more marketing education, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Agricultural Economics will offer a series of four workshops in 1994, said farm management assistant James Friesen.

The "Women In Ag Marketing Curriculum" workshops will begin with a March 15-16 session at Columbus, Neb. All four workshops, based at the New World Inn in Columbus, will begin at 10 a.m. on the first day and conclude at 4 p.m. the next day, Friesen said.

The workshops will give progressively more advanced training to participants, he said. Topics in March will include why you should market, what terms you need to know, how to get started keeping marketing records, how to figure your costs of production, and how your personality affects the way you market.

Women attending Nebraska's annual "Women in Agriculture: The Critical Difference Conference" have asked for more marketing sessions, Friesen said. Rosemary Hartter, a farm wife and marketing instructor from Eureka, Illinois, a group of Nebraska ag women, and Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources staff at UNL developed this series to offer that training.

Later workshops will review material from those preceding and then will cover topics like marketing alternatives, developing a marketing plan, the sell/store decision, understanding the markets and advanced marketing tools.

Workshop II will be June 14-15; Workshop III, August 16-17; and Workshop IV, Nov. 21-22. The registration fee of $75 for each workshop will include materials, breaks, an evening banquet and continental breakfast and noon luncheon the second day. Registration will be limited to the first 75 applicants.

For a detailed outline, and to register for the sessions, call 1-800-535-3456.

The workshops are being sponsored by Cooperative Extension and the agricultural economics department at UNL.

Valentine gifts vary from sweet to nutty

Hasn't this weather been an absolute gift? We were in St. Joe on Friday and it was 65°. Quite a change from the week before.

Elatine Menke writes that she keeps a diary, and the pre-Christmas storm I referred to was in '83, not '82. She and Les were one of the couples who stayed at the parsonage that night. She says, "I will never forget that night. Periodically, Pastor Hafermann would lead us in prayer for the safety of those out in the storm. One by one, they arrived home and called to tell us they had made it." I guess we all had guardian angels that night.

The week before Valentine's Day, I took great pains to tell the Big Farmer about the florist in Weeping Water. Our Home Health Care office is located in that village, and I stop at Carole's Flowers for cards, balloons and flowers. I had taken an arrangement from there to Sue on the 2nd, and one week later, they still looked very good.

I baked him a heart-shaped chocolate cake, and presented him with a lovely card on Monday morning. Then I went off to work, anticipating a floral offering later in the day.

By the time I got to the office that afternoon, Carole had made three trips. Donna got a plant, Jeanette had a lavender arrangement and Marilyn had a fresh cut arrangement and a teddy bear, sporting a heart on his sweater.

The daughter of one of my patients had a dozen roses. The secretary at Mike's office had a lovely arrangement from the florist in Louisville.

I arrived home to find: a jar of peanuts! And a card that said "I love you, and my cat loves you — and you know how finicky my cat is." The cat is not a bit finicky; and I couldn't help thinking, "sweets to the sweet — nuts to the nutty."

I was complaining about my valentine in the Lincoln office on Wednesday. A gal named Jan said she had hinted about a candlelight dinner. So, when she arrived from work, the perfumed candle from the bathroom was in the middle of the kitchen table and runzas and onion rings were arranged on paper place mats! Some men are romantic, others are creative.

Actually, Mike's cat turns out to be the romantic. My neighbor across the road tells me he's been over there, chasing the females! And I didn't even think he knew it was Valentine's Day! (He's definitely not finicky.)

WSC students chosen

WSC program set for Tuesday night

Wayne State College's Center for Cultural Outreach will present "An Eclectic Program of Chamber Music for Voices and Instruments" at 8 p.m., Tuesday, March 1 in the Brandenburg Education Building's Ley Theatre. The public is invited.

The program includes pieces for violin, voice, trombone, French horn and piano in various combinations.

"This program is different from many of our productions because it is not focusing on a particular subject," says Beverly Soll, director of the Center. "It is a lighter and more entertaining concert, and some of the pieces have a decidedly popular flavor."

Soll will be joined by Wayne State music faculty members Dr. Christopher Bonds, violin and Dr. Craig Hancock, trombone. Also performing will be Debi Bonds, violin, Janelle Rockwell, soprano; and Andrew Soll, piano.

Wayne State College alumni Sharon Whipple Ostrem, mezzo-soprano, and Denise Whipple, horn, will also perform.

Day care will be provided for the children.

There will be a time of fellowship following the services in the fellowship hall in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. All interested men and women are encouraged to attend.
