Wayne Superintendent Dr. Dennis Jensen said Wayne's student enrollment ranks it 4th among the comparison schools and yet the total tax dollars raised places the system here 8th out of 14 schools.

The schools here raise just over $1.9 million in local property taxes. Jensen said he presented the figures to the school board to address the question of whether the local taxpayers would be overburdened by a bond issue to fund the proposed school building project. A public hearing on the school building proposal will be held next Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the High School Lecture Hall. A citizen committee has recommended to the school board to ask voters for approval of a $9.2 million bond issue to address the building needs.

Firemen from four departments were battling a large hog barn fire at the Greater Northeast Pig Co-op Tuesday afternoon at press time.

The fire was reported on the Russ and Jean Thede farm four miles south, two miles west and a quarter north of Wayne.

Four firemen were reportedly transported to the Providence Medical Center in Wayne complaining of smoke inhalation. The extent of their injuries were not known at press buildings in the complex and ham-pered fire fighting efforts. Water was being carried to the scene of the fire by semi trucks, concrete trucks, and chemical tanker units to help supplement the fire tanker units shuttling water back and forth from town

Early unofficial reports indicate the fire apparently started in one of the farrowing barns and spread to neighboring barns and nurseries

A plea was issued for neighboring farmers to come with stock trailers to attempt to evacuate surviving whelming but it was clear the loss of livestock and property damage was extensive.

Several of the barns appeared to be a total loss.

The fire was reported at 12:04 p.m. in Wayne and additional alarms were sounded for neighboring departments of Winside, Carroll and Wakefield shortly thereafter.

Witnesses said the fire spread very quickly between the buildings in the complex and the strong winds at the time of the fire were thought to be a contributing factor to the extensive

War fatalities happened even here

Seventh in a Series

By Clara Osten For the Herald

During World War II, no fighting took place on American soil. However, events did happen in the United States, even here in Wayne County that affected the lives of many residents. One such incident happened on Sunday morning, Oct. 4, 1942 on the Johanna Lutt farm two miles south and two and one-fourth miles east of Wayne.

Johanna's son Louis, her daughter-in-law Pauline and grandchildren were busy doing their morning chores when they heard a loud noise. "It was about 8:45 a.m. and I was making breakfast when I heard the planes. Our son, Louis Jr. and I went out to the porch. We saw five planes flying in formation, Pauline recalls.

"THEY WERE flying very low and kept circling. We waved at them and could see them waving back at us. After a while we went back in the house to finish breakfast. Then we heard a loud noise and my husband came in and told us of the planes had crashed and asked me to call the fire department," Pauline said.

The Lutts learned later that the five planes were B-24 'Liberators' in training from the Sioux City Air Base. They also discovered that five men who had been aboard the plane had parachuted to safety approximately a mile and a half south of the Lutt farm.

The plane had made a belly landing in a field that had been oats. The bombardier and navigator, who had been sitting in the front of the plane were killed instantly. Three others, the pilot, co-pilot and an unidentified man were trapped in the

Many people formerly confined to the hospital or a long-term care facility are now living at home, thanks to the availability of home health care. Many pharmacies are participating in this service, providing medication therapy and nutritional support to be given through the veins (total parenteral nutrition). The medications and nutritional supplements are prepared at the pharmacy and delivered by the nursing staff. This service allows many patients to recuperate at home, and still receive the proper medical care. If the need for this type of care arises, contact your pharmacist about the availability of home health care in your area.

Wayne State picked for scholarship funds

Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. of Bentonville, Ark., has selected Wayne State College as a 1994 recipient of a $20,000 Competitive Edge Scholarshin.

The funds will be received at $5,000 per year for four years and may be used by one or two students. Wayne State was also selected for the scholarship in 1993, the first year of the program, and the awards went to two students.

The scholarship program was developed by Wal-Mart as a commitment to the growth and strength of technology-intensive industries that affect America's success in the global marketplace, according to an announcement by Wal-Mart.

There are 135 colleges and universities participating in the Competitive Edge Scholarship Fund program, and they are selected on the basis of their technology-related

Students named to receive the awards must be freshmen who have declared their majors in an area of math, science or engineering and who remain in their majors during the four years they receive the scholarships.

gion Auxiliary with "From Willie and Joe to Beetle Bailey." Schelley's Saloon placed third in the theme division with "Andy Capp."

In the Open Class, the Hoskins community won first place with a 4th of July Celebration float while Maynard Mozer and Jim Eggerling of Norfolk placed second with the topless cars. Dennis and Brian Fuoss placed third with a G.P. John

A lip sync contest was also held at the Celebration with the threePierce, Crystal Jaeger, 10 of Winside and Ashley Jaeger, 7 of Winside teaming up to imitate Alvin and the Chipmunks. Runner-up honors went to Michelle Deck with a country song and line dance and third was a tag team with Christi Oberle and Monica Sievers.

The three-day celebration closed with a barbeque in the park on Sunday evening with music from the Elkhorn Valley Fiddlers.

GOTTHILF JAEGER, (92) and his wife Elta enjoy the barbeque at the Wayne County Old Settler's Celebration, Sunday. The Jaegers have seldom missed the annual Celebration in the 57 years they've been married.

Wakefield hires new principle

Jeanne Surface of Hastings has accepted the principal position at Wakefield Community Schools. She was in Wakefield on June 14 to sign her contract. She succeeds Joe Coble, who has accepted a similar position with the O'Neill school

For the upcoming year, Mrs. Surface will be the 7-12 principal and will also be assuming some of the responsibilities of the elementary principal position, under the supervision of Supt. Derwin Hartman. Hartman has continued to serve as elementary principal since he became superintendent of the school. He said that Mrs. Surface is currently working on an elementary principal endorsement and is expected to have the requirements completed by the following school

This is Mrs. Surface's first principal position. She did_her yearlong internship at Grand Island Senior High, which had an enrollment of 1,300 students. This past year she also worked on a graduate assistantship at the University of Nebraska-Kearney in research and administration. Before taking the year off from teaching, she was a home economics instructor at Silver Lake for five years. She has also served as an education consultantifor the Drug Free Nebraska

She earned her bachelor's degree at Kearney State College and earned her master's degree at UN-K.

Her family consists of husband. Shane, and three daughters. Shane is presently employed by Water Products of Nebraska, which deals mainly with municipalities.

Her daughters are Melissa, who will be a sixth grader; Katie, fourth grader; and Mary Beth will be in first grade.

It IS politically correct

Political rhetoric has been leveled in recent weeks at what many liberals fear is an organized effort by conservative religious organizations to force their political agenda on the mainstream

We find it no more fearful for religious conservatives to become politically active than for gays and lesbians, ultra-liberals, socialists, white supremists, members of the Nation of Islam, feminists, Democrats, Republicans, Libertarians or any of the thousands of other splinter groups that seek from time to time to win political support for their own views.

Isn't that the American way?

Evangelical Christians, who have been portrayed as Bible thumping fanatics and a group that should be feared, have as much right to participate in the political process as any other group.

The constitutional amendment insuring the separation of church and state only prohibits government interference with religion. It does not, as some would have us believe, prohibit church members from becoming voters and political leaders.

What seems to be putting the most fear in the hearts of the liberal critics is the amount of power the religious conservatives can wield if they become fully organized. But as we see it, the will of the people ultimately decides the issues and all groups should be invited and welcomed into the process.

Even those who may not currently be "politically correct."

Chickens

Some of them move, some just squawk

Chickens are in the news these days

A bunch of them disrupted the filming of the Willa Cather movie "My Antonia" near Rockville, Neb. last week. The chickens grabbed the headlines when they upstaged the actors and wouldn't keep quiet when the director yelled "quie the set.

The chickens were just doing their thing. But the Hollywood film crew didn't want any barnyard noises. while they were on location--at a farm-so the chickens had to be

By Les Mann

Mann

chased away or captured and relocated before the filming could proceed. There was concern earlier that there might not be enough Chickens for the Wayne Chicken Show which hits town in just over a week. Chicken show committee members, after an exhaustive search, have confirmed attendance guarantees from at least a few birds so the chicken show will not be totally chickenless this year, but the ratio of humans to chickens at the show again this year is expected to be in the neighborhood of 500 to 1.

A film crew in Rockville no doubt would be glad to send us a few noisy chickens. There probably would be a champion for the rooster crowing contest in the group. But if the film crew doesn't like chicken noise, it had better stay out of Wayne next week.

A big chicken was in the news this week in Wayne

Sasquawk; the big rooster statue that stands on the corner of Second and Main departed his perch for a time over the weekend.

At first blush it was thought his departure was the work of chicken thieves and there was talk of reimplementing the old west penalties for chicken

But one chicken committee member, recalling the legend of Sasquawk the big footed chicken whose tracks were seen coming out of Dog Creek near Wayne at the same time all the dogs living along the creek began disappearing, wonders if maybe the statue didn't actually come to life as legend foretells and stray off in search of dogs to devour.

She said she was keeping her pet pooch inside, just to be safe. Members of the chicken show committee retrieved the big bird from the yard of Dennis Carroll on Providence Road where the family awoke to find him staring in their front window Saturday morning.

Plans are to anchor the statue more securely so he doesn't take off on any more flights of fancy in the future. But until then, watch your pets.

Also in the news was the report of chicken bowling in Washington, D.C. This sounds like a great new event for the Chicken Show. Congressmen from California (where else) last week made a point about the agriculture department's definition of "fresh" poultry by using a few whole broilers, chilled to 20 degrees, to prove a point.

They bowled with the frozen birds.

By current USDA standards, 20 degrees, which is rock hard usually, qualifies as fresh in the poultry business. So the congressmen who want the government to change its definition of fresh, made their point by knocking over bowling pins with the frozen broilers.

Yep, right there on the balcony of the Rayburn House Office Building they lined up the pins and let fly with broilers that thumped and wobbled and did indeed knock over pins.

They'd fit right in with this year's Chicken Show Theme-Poultry in Motion. And they might provide a great suggestion for next year's theme--government chickens, no make that government gridlock chickens. Think of the t-shirt possibilities.

Valuation updates mean increase

By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - My eyes usually glaze over when the topic of property valuation comes up.

It's not something that enters conversation very often, only when some darned tax commissioner or dad-gummed county assessor decides it's time to undate their valuations

Those "updates" normally translate into valuation "increases" that many times local governments use as an opportunity to raise revenue. The result? Higher taxes. Irate

Right now, more and more Nebraskans are seeing red because valuations are rising as assessors across the state scramble to comply with directives of the State Board of Equalization. A year ago, the board issued a stern warning to counties: either get your property values more in line with market prices or face a state

Several counties, including Douglas County, the state's largest, had been lagging behind in keeping

In Douglas County, valuations of homes had averaged about 79 percent of market value, way below the statutory requirement that resi dential property be valued at 100

That's a problem for commercial property owners in that county because their valuations have been closer to 100 percent — thus they're shouldering a higher burden of property taxes than they should.

It also presents problems for farmers if their property is valued closer to their statutory limit - 80 percent of market value - and for residents of adjacent counties who share a taxing district (like a school district or natural resources district that extends over county lines). They end up paying higher shares of taxes, too.

Douglas County is not alone. One county's values were 57 percent of market value. By contrast, one county's values were 108 permany counties have moved to increase their valuations to 95 percent, a target set by state property tax gurus

Lancaster County, the state's second-largest, is one of those.

Others, however, are playing a strange game of tax chicken, pushing their valuations up just a little in hopes that the state board will back down.

Douglas County is one of those.

The big showdown will be July 7, when the State Board of Equalization meets to decide whether to order Douglas County and other laggards to raise their values or whether what's been done is good enough.

Look for some squirming. Board members include Gov. Nelson and State Treasurer Dawn Rockey, who both are locked in re-election campaigns.

Ticking off voters is probably the last thing they want to do. If they raise values, they risk angering the largest voting area in the state, Omaha; if they don't, folks in Lincoln will be mightily upset - their property values have skyrocketed.

It's sometimes hard to imagine such political intrigue over a bunch of calculations and ballpark estimates, but people get plenty mad when they think their tax load is unfair or unequal.

At least the ones whose eyes aren't glazed over.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Choice is theme $\searrow$ Dear Editor:

What isn't controversy? Now it's the monument in the Greenwood Cemetery. At one time it was the sculptor at Wayne State College. Remember the name, Wayne America? Chicken days has been thumbed, too. Personally, I like Chicken days, maybe because it fiolds some childhood memories of my mother as she raised several hundreds of chickens which helped put bread on the table. In a couple of Bible verses, Jesus makes comparison of Himself to a hen and His children as chickens. The Chicken Show is good clean fun and have enjoyed it all these years but it doesn't have to be for all people. Although, I'm too much of a chicken to do all those funny crazy antics but appreciate those who do.

Controversy is good as long as we are not rude about it. It brings out different thoughts and feelings which sometimes can make one sec things in the right light.

The monument gave me a different feeling from those who didn't like it. Maybe I'm a softy when it comes to helpless children and to pain and death and not see a fetus grow to its full potential. Those who have miscarriages or cannot have children have a different feeling from those that don't want a child because they don't want to be burdened with them. Adopted children are greatly needed and appreci-the Bible, God told Moses what to do and led him through this era of killings. Once Moses didn't obey God and was punished for it. There is a great difference between this kind of killing from those of Hitlers. God was behind Joshua in the battle of Jericho, God was not behind the killings when the boy babies were to be killed and again when babies were killed in pursuit to kill the baby Jesus. God's judg-ment was behind the Egyptians first-born to be slain. There is a different when a baby is aborted for selfish reasoning to that of aborting a baby when the mother's life is at stake. Rape is a tragedy like many other things in life.

We cannot judge anyone as we do not know a man's inner feelings. The self-righteous Pharisees like the persistent sinner is not headed in the right direction either. Some ministers make last rites judgments but not one of us is without sin. How do they know what inner feelings went on in that last hour. I know this by the one thief's decision on the cross by Jesus. We are called to hate the sin and love the sinner as Jesus does, thus, I will not support abortionist as this is God's dominion and will not tamper with it. Neither will I stand behind the killings of those who perform the abortions. I will stand behind anyone's needs with compassion and forgiveness. I realize some people have misfortunes in life but that does not give them the right to kill, do drugs, steal, cheat and misuse sex. God made man and woman to multiply.

God gave man dominion over all the creatures of the earth. I know if I would destroy an eagle's nest of eggs I would be prosecuted by man's law not God's. I believe we need to give back God's right. I do fear God's wrath and His judgment. It's a real scary thing for me. Another frightening thing I just found out recently, particularly, the business places may lose their freedom of religious expressions in the work place. If this passes "free speech" and freedom or religion rights of all people of faith in the work place could be stilled. I wonder why just religion expressions. What about politics, profanity, etc? This doesn't seem like equal opportunity to me. There is much need for Christians to get out of the closet. Pray that the Holy Spirit will give us the strength to do so.

The monument is up so the thing to do is ask ourselves, is the monument showing any disrespect toward God. I accepted the words on this monument in reverence. I thought it was done in good fath and judgment. Most all of us will have a tombstone someday and why not the aborted and abused. This is a good recognition of them. Don't tell me there has been no sadness, tears and blood shed for them. Guilt still remains with many. But it doesn't have to be if one is truly sorry for this sin and ask God's forgiveness. Jesus told the prostitute to sin no more. Killing yourself like Indas doesn't make it right. God is always there for you.

God does not deny a woman's privilege to choose an abortion. from the beginning but directs us with His Holy Word. Compare the two-choices of the thieves that hung on the crosses by Jesus and you'll see they, too, had the right to choose. Here we learn that the right choice leads to paradise when you go along with Jesus My prayers will always be with these little innocent victims that Jesus loves so much. It tears my heart apart to even think about it.

Children's blood flows like a river through our land. Thanks Rausch Bros. Monument Co. for the loving monument to let us know these children did not die in vain. They are now safe in the arms of Jesus and the stone helps give me that reassurance.

I write this for the sake of all God's children.

Great session

Dear Editor:

1994 has been designated as the "Year of the Family" and on June 10-11, Wayne State College played host to a National Conference on_ the family (The Evolving Family, Perspectives for the Future).

The conference came about through the efforts of Dr. Deborah Whitt and Dr. Ron Whitt and was a great success, due to their dedication to make it happen. As a result of their efforts, a good number of people left the conference with a wealth of insight and information from top quality speakers about the issues facing today's families.

Topics that were covered included family values, health care issues, domestic violence, job issues, step-families, single parent families, Native American families, Spanish families and more. In addition to the valuable information presented at the conference, Deb and Ron Whitt out-did themselves in the hospitality department. With the services of Wayne State Col-lege's food service PFM, the food was fantastic; with the cooperation of Wayne State College, the accommodations were great and with the good Lord's blessings, the weather was perfect.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Deb and Ron Whitt for their accomplishments and to tell them it was a privilege to have taken part in the conference.

Choice. What does that mean to us? For some Americans it seems to mean the right to choose whatever makes me feel best. Our right to do whatever we please, to whomever we choose, whenever we want to, because it is our right of free choice. Today I read Ann Meyer's letter implying that it is men in our society who are against the pro-choice movement. I beg to differ. Many women feel they have a choice, but that choice is whether or not to have sexual intercourse and take the chance of conceiving a child. Why is this choice never brought up in the argument? It is only after the woman has made this choice and conceived a new life that she wants the right to choose whether or not to kill it. We would be outraged by any administration or foreign power that came into our country and forced us to kill our unborn children. Yet there are mothers that demand this right. What kind of country would give so little regard to human life? Ok, now you're saying "What about young, un-wed mothers who are unable to care for this child, and what about incest and rape victims?" I believe God can make good come out of the worst situation if we only believe in Him and ask for His help. Also, what percentage of abortions are actually incest/rape victims? My guess is that it is a small percentage. And now, what about the many women who were killed in the back alleys by quacks? Ok, let's look at that situation. They made the choice to have sex and happened to become pregnant. They then chose to kill their baby in this way and in so doing, died themselves. Which is sadder? I agree with her that women are intelligent enough to make choices that affect their lives. This choice is before conception. Where is the baby's right to choose? What would they choose? Life or death? What do you think? Our parents allowed us to live so that we can choose. I choose life - no matter how bad things gef. What about you, what

I'll end with words from "Give Me A Chance" by Roger Cooper. "Read it in the magazines, see it on TV, the faces of their faded children starving overseas. Hear me say, "To ignore their plight is murder all the way." Yet we murder unborn chil-dren everyday. Legalized abortion and there's abortion on demand, and people here appease their guilt and wash their bloody hands by helping starving children in countries far away. If the unborn child could have a chance, I'm sure he'd want to say, "Give me a chance to be a baby in this world. Give me a chance to be your little boy or girl, Give me a chance to press my lips against your face, Give me a chance to feel your warm embrace. Give me a chance to grow up to be like you, Give me a chance to enjoy life as you do. For life that many haven't had, to say I love you mom

Remote it

Dear Editor:

I grew up in Wayne, but I haven't lived there in 60 years. When I return as a guest, I have no right to try to impose my views about abortion on anyone else. But many of my family members are buried in Greenwood Cemetery where I come to find solace and remembrance, not confrontation, and where I do have the right to ask that they be allowed to "Rest In Peace."

Please count my vote for removal of the controversial stone

Sidetracked

Dear Editor:

There have been many thoughtful and interesting letters in the paper regarding the Pro Life monus ment in the cemetery. I found it of-fensive, also, because it ignores the fetuses that often go down the toilet as a result of spontaneous abortion. Some people say this is God's will when a woman spontaneously aborts. If so, maybe God isn't so untight about induced abortion either. God allowed me to have a body that would carry a fetus to a full term baby only after enduring brief pregnancies to get my body used to being pregnant. I did finally have two children for which I'm thankful -- I wanted them. Some women have bodies that will easily. go the nine months, but for various reasons their minds say no - that's their choice. Funk and Wagnalls New Encyclopedia published, I believe, in the late 70's, states that 25 percent of all human pregnancies terminate spontaneously in abortion (under 20 weeks gestation). I think God cares the same for the fetuses from both the induced and spontaneous abortions and for the women experiencing them.

We should spend our time, effort and love on the people who have made it into this world. Families are different now than when I grew up. We seem to be in a time of transition, but I don't want to go back 20 years or so when wives were beaten and they never told.

MORE LETTERS PAGE 4A

Children were physically and sexually abused and never told and no one questioned what was happening to them. Women were raped and didn't tell for fear that people would say it was their fault. Many pregnant, unwed daughters were sent away to have their babies and were made to feel ashamed. Men, both in the ropes and pregnancies, were not held responsible for their actions by society. If this is the traditional family values everyone talks about, m not interested.

Jesus tried to focus our attention on caring, forgiving and being compassionate to others. His followers, down through the ages, have gotten sidetracked at times and taken the focus off of Him and put it on causes they attribute to Him. This in turn has turned many away from the love and forgiveness He offers.

Recognize life Dear Editor:

Much has been written and discussed regarding the "baby" monu-ment in Wayne. I would like to address the issue as neither pro or con. I would like to suggest that our Wayne community look at the reasons for the placement of such a monument.

The reasons I see, that a kind, gentle person donated the monument to our cemetery is, that he wished to declare that all babies are God's gifts to us. Some babies are destroyed and live for a relatively short time on earth. Some do not live at all. Mr. Rausch in placing this monument in our town, in our cemetery, is speaking out, silently for those lives created by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Those who have gone on before us, who are in our us, who are in our cemetery, are also ones, who foved children, grandchildren and babies. They would be proud to see such a stone to be placed in their final resting place.

I suggest, that we as Wayne citizens; recognize this monument as a gift, and recognize that Jesus is the author of life and death. In so doing, we give the glory and honor of this stone to God our Creator and Sustainer of all life.

I hope we all will one day, be in the joy and splendor of eternity, but until we arrive at our own moment of death, let us unite in peace and joy, and honor all life, which God our Father creates, and gives to us to protect and to prosper. Some lives are short-lived, others are lived to the full, but all life is a gift of God who creates, sustains and sanctifies it.

Thank you, for using our cemetery as a place to recognize "all life" as God gives it.

Nifty folks

Dear Editor:

The just completed Nifty Fifty reunion was a great success. This would not have been possible without the help of a great number of people and their efforts.

The class representatives, the treasurer, the guest speaker, the registration volunteers, the Wayne High and Middle School staffs, the Wayne museum staff, WSC housing, the Wayne Chamber of Commerce and the fine staff at Riley's.

To mention each and every name involved in the reunion would possibly take up too much space on your letters to the editor page.

Thus, to all those who contributed their time, effort and expertise, I, as the coordinator of the Nifty Fifties reunion would like to congratulate and thank them.

Reading your paper last week, I was totally surprised that the 30's decade of Wayne High Schoolmates had had a reunion of their own back a few years ago.

Had I known that, I would have asked for knowledge from them on how to proceed with our Niity Fifties reunion held this past week-

We started from scratch and devised our own methods. Conferring with others who had already gone through this similar experience possibly would have been a great help and time saver for us.

In reference to their letter about their 30's reunion, ours was billed as the first of its kind, a 50's decade reunion and it was a first of the 50's decade reunion, not to be confused with a first decade reunion ever Possibly in the future another 50's reunion will be held. We've shown that it can be done and will certainly be smoother sailing now that it's over and we've shown the way: Tom Roberts

Gene E. Yuss rolled his eyes. Looking up from the sports page he whooped, "I can't believe these loonies who compete and try to prove they're better than everyone else!"

Calm down, Gene. What's got you going?

"You've heard of Outcome-based Education (OBE)? It suggests competition should be discarded. In fact, a California school board did away with any senior being a valedictorian. It makes the other kids feel unworthy and less important,"

I heard that on the telly. So hat's the problem?

"It's terrific! Wouldn't the athletes be better off if the Olympic committees dumped all those silly medals? Why give gold, silver and bronze awards to a select few? Think how bad the losers feel! Why not simply recognize all participating athletes based on their Olympic-Based Experiences

You think that would work?

"Think of the soaring team spirit and self-esteem if the speedier downhill racers were obligated to spend their practice time helping slower athletes! Instead of greedily going for the gold', the faster skiers would stop and return uphill to help the slow guys who slipped or hit a flag pole!"

But how could anyone win?

O.K., instead of recognizing first place finishes, sportspersons would be rewarded for demonstrating an appropriate attitude and gratitude for the talents of others!

What about old fashioned competition?

"It's true, top achievers would slacken their pace, but Olympic-

Merlin Wright

Based Experiences would abandon biased judges and their silly point system. Judges would simply acr as commissioners of 'feel good' tactics midst participants. Really neat!

You'd actually eliminate the motive to excel?

"Not really, it would just level the playing field so when all the athletes returned home they could all be cheered instead of just the winners!

After all, the boasung of getting a gold medal has no place in today's global fellowship."

Global fellowship? You mean we Americans shouldn't even try to teach our kids that democracy is the best in world competition?

"It's a problem," Gene said. "If we think we're, the best, then it makes other nations feel bad. The global OBE concept is that we send our billions to other countries, and help them catch up! Like Robin Hood, we take from our rich and give to their poor."

Billions in foreign aid? "What's wrong with socialism? There's no winners or losers!"

Everyone would excel in mediocrity! That's Marxism! "So what else is new?"

Redeemer Lutheran is site for Barner-Yerger double ring ceremony

Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne was the site for the June 11 wedding of Tresha Barner, Wayne, to Ray Yerger, O'Neill. Theirs was the last wedding at the church before the tragic fire on June 18.

The bride is the daughter of Bonna and the late Darrell Barner of Wayne. The groom is the son of Sue Yerger of Coleridge.

The Rev. Frank Rothfuss presided at the 3:30 p.m. double ring cer-emony. The church was decorated in purple, black and silver fans. The bride's wedding ring was that of her grandmother Hamilton. The groom's ring was that of his great-grandfa-ther Post.

Vocalists Missy Eckhoff, Wayne, and Doug Tippery, Kennard, Neb. are both friends of the bride. They were accompanied by Vera Hummel, Wayne, on the organ and Brett Fuelberth, friend of the bride from Irwin, Iowa, on the piano. Missy sang "One Hand, One Heart" and 'The Wedding Song". Doug sang "The Lord's Prayer"

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. The bride chose an antique white satin gown from the Jean Phoenix designer collection featuring a Sabrina neckline and long pointelle sleeves.

The Basque bodice and sleeves were embellished with beaded Alencon lace. The vee point waist fell into a ball-gown skirt with sweeping panels of hand-beaded face, finishing with a cathedral train. She also wore her mother's veil, which was designed and made by her aunt. She carried a bouquet of antique white flowers with purple.

Matron of honor was Beth Tippery, friend of the bride from Kennard, Neb. Becky Barner, sister in law of the bride from Omaha, and Paris Bartholomaus, friend of the bride from Sioux City, were brides maids. The attendants wore purple satin tea length dresses. They carried fans with purple flowers.

Flower girls were Anne Marcuzzo,

Cleaning the Skin Before Injecting Insulin

Most diabetics who need insulin have been taught to prepare and administer their own insulin injections. Steps involved in preparing insulin typically include mixing contents of the insulin vial by rolling the vial in the palms of the hands. Diabetics also are taught to check the expiration of the vial and carefully read the vial label to make certain the correct strength and type of insulin is being used.

Nurses and other health providers teach diabetics to rotate (change) insulin injection sites. If sites are not rotated, there may be a loss or thickening of subcutaneous fat Heerie Either of these changes in the skin around the injection site can interfere with the absorption of insulin. In the past, diabetics were taught to pull the skin taut and use an alcohol swab or cotton soaked in alcohol to clean the skin.

It may not be necessary to clean the skin with alcohol before each insulin injection.
A recent report in American Pharmacy indicates that washing the skin with soap and water is just as effective as swabbing with alcohol. The report indicates that soap and water also avoids the sting that sometimes occurs on injection. Diabetics with insulin Diapetics with insulin pumps or those with suppressed immune systems are instructed to use alcohol to reduce the possibility of local infections.

Mr. and Mrs. Yerger

Calif., and Hilary Wadzinski, Dodge, Neb. both are friends of the bride. Denise Bilbrey, Wayne, friend of the bride, and Denise Karloff, West Point, cousin of the bride, were candlelighters. Ring bearer was Sam Kurpgeweit, Wayne, friend of the bride.

Mark Hansen, cousin of the groom from Billings, Mont. was best man. Groomsmen were Todd Barner, Omaha, brother of the bride, and Jeff Bartling, Verdigre, Neb., friend of the groom.

Ushers were Galen Moes, Omaha and Darrin Barner, Wayne, both cousins of the bride and Gene Dobias, Verdigre, friend of the groom.

A reception attended by 200 guests followed the ceremony. It was held at the American Legion half in Nor-folk. Hosts were Peter and Jean Marcgzzo of Oakland, Calif. and Diane and Tim Stewart of Yankton.

The couple are at home in Yankton. The new Mrs. Yerger is a 1987 graduate of Wayne High School and a 1991 graduate of Wayne State College with a bachelor's degree in criminal justice. She is employed at Springfield Academy in Springfield, S.D.

The groom is a 1985 graduate of Coleridge High School. He also graduated from Northeast Community Collège in-1991 with an associate's degree in air conditioning and industrial maintenance. He served in the Army from 1985 to 1988. He is employed at the Springfield Correctional Facility

Wounded partners need to recover

QUESTION: I have a friend who was married for nine years before her husband left her for another woman. I think she was a loving and devoted wife, yet she seemed to feel that the break-up of her marriage was her fault. As a result, her self-esteem disintegrated and she has never recovered.

DR. DOBSON: It has always been surprising for me to observe how often the wounded marriage partner-the person who was clearly the victim of the other's irresponsibility--is the one who suffers the greatest pangs of guilt and feelings of

. How strange that the one who tried to hold things together in the face of obvious rejection often finds herself wondering, "How did I fail him? . . I just wasn't woman enough to hold my man . . . I am 'nothing' or he wouldn't have left . . . If I only had been more exciting as a sexual partner . . . I drove him to it . . . I wasn't pretty enough . . . I didn't deserve him in the first place.

The blame for marital disintegration is seldom the fault of the husband or the wife alone. "It takes two to tango," as they say, and there is al-ways some measure of shared blame for a divorce. However, when one marriage partner makes up his mind to behave irresponsibly, to become involved extramaritally, or to run away from his family commitments and obligations, he usually seeks to justify his behavior by magnifying the failures of his spouse culpability. For a husband or wife with low self-esteem, these changes and recriminations are accepted as fact when hurled his way. "Yes, it was my fault. I drove you to it." Thus, the victim assumes the full responsibility for his partner's irresponsibility, and self-worth shatters.

By increasing the guilt of his partner in this way, he reduces his own

I would not recommend that your friend sit around hating the memory of her husband. Bitterness and resentment are emotional cancers that rot us from within. However, if I were counseling her, I would encourage her to examine the facts carefully. Answers to these questions should be sought: Despite my human frailties, did I value my marriage and try to preserve

Did my husband decide to destroy it, and then seek justification for his

Was I given a fair chance to resolve the areas of greatest irritation?

Could I have held him even if I had made all the changes he wanted?

Is it reasonable that I should hate myself for this thing that has hap-

Your friend should know that social rejection breeds feelings of inferiority and self-pity in enormous proportions. And rejection by the one you love, particularly, is the most powerful destroyer of self-esteem in the entire realm of human experience. She might be helped to see herself as the victim of this process, rather than a worthless failure at the game of love.

Wayne 18-under gals place second pitch softball team placed runner-up at the league tournament in Oakland over the weekend. Bob Oborny's squad lost in the first round but battled back through the loser's bracket before losing in the championship game to West Point.

Wayne played with out the services of starting shortstop Jenny Thompson and starting catcher Carrie Fink in the first game and the locals came up two runs short of Wisner, losing 11-9.

Wendy Beiermann took the loss from the mound despite seven strikeouts. Wayne had six hits in the game compared to five for Wisner. Jenni Beiermann paced the offense with two singles while Wendy Beiermann, Traci Oborny, Heather Nichols and Rochelle Carman each had one base hit.

Wayne led 6-1 after two innings of play but gave up eight runs in the third inning. Wayne battled back and scored three in the final inning and left bases loaded.

In the first game of the loser's bracket Wayne defeated Tekamah, 18-3. Wendy Beiermann struck out six and allowed just three hits while Wayne pounded out eight led by Traci Oborny, Jenny Thompson and Katie Lutt with two base hits each. Molly Melena tripled and Jenni Beiermann singled to round out the hitting. Wayne scored 10 times in the third inning to put the game

Athletes of Year honored by Wildcats

Wayne State Wildcat athletic director Pete Chapman has recently announced the 1993-94 scholar-ath lete awards. This year's recipients of the Cunningham Student-Athlete of the Year Awards were senior Jackie Heese (cross country/track) for the women and Lamont Rainey (football) for the men.

Arguably the best middle-distance runner in WSC history, Heese set or lowered school records eight times including the 1500 meter indoor record twice and five relay records with her termmates. By the end of the spring semester, she had raised her cumulative GPA to 3.76.

In addition to raising his cumulative GPA to 3.47 this past year, Rainey was a major contributor to the success of the Wildeat football team which finished 9-1 in the fall.

Rainey led the team in rushing with 1031 yards and 13 touchdowns on 148 carries. His 13 touchdowns is a school record for most touchdowns

During the spring semester 73 of 195 student-athletes reached the athletic honor roll by obtaining at least a 3.0 GPA. Of the 73, 61 were above 3.2 while 32 were above 3.5. There were 13 above the 3,8 GPA status and five student-including Brian Lentz, Cory Reeder and Darin Gregory in baseball, Kathy Dalton in cross country/track and Pekka Liikanen, football.

Forty-six of the student-athletes ere awarded Presidential Scholar-Athlete Awards for having GPA's above 3.2 while lettering in their respective sport.

The fire department roped off the area to keep people away. By this time there was a steady stream of cars driving past the area to get a glimpse of the plane. At approximately noon an ambulance from the Sioux City Air Base arrived on the scene.

The plane crash made the Lutts thankful that the war was not being fought on American soil. "We were still fearful because of Offut Air Force Base in Omaha, I remember several families in Wayne building bomb shelters in their homes. Sev eral places, including what is now Wayne Middle School, were designated as bomb shelters. They were stocked with food, water and medical supplies."

"AT THE SAME time that the plane crashed on our farm, lots of other things were happening in the area to help the war effort. Prices were frozen, the speed limit was lowered to 35 m.p.h., everyone was urged to by war bonds and people were told to save scrap iron to be melted down and reused.

Rationing stamps were used to purchase gas, tires, shoes, sugar, flour, coffee and meat. At this time. 25 men left from this area to serve in the Army. The whole country was behind the war effort," Pauline

Jensen said taxpayers in the district get "good bang for their buck," in educational value and the fact is borne out when you compare Wayne figures with other schools

"The average community pays more for the operation of their schools than does the Wayne community," said Jensen.

Meanwhile, residents of Carroll have expressed concern over the study committee's recommendation that repairs or replacement of the Carroll Elementary School should be paid for out of the district sinking fund and not be a part of the bond

A community meeting was held in Carroll Monday night for residents to organize their position on the school plans. Many have expressed fear that the school district goal might be to close the Carroll School, however, that subject has never been suggested in school board meetings. Indeed, at the last meeting, a couple of school board members said the bond issue should not be sent to the voters unless it included funding provision for building of a new school building or major renovation of the Carroll Elementary School.

Jensen said it matters little what the figures show for averages of local property taxes compared to other communities, no one seems to be happy about paying them. He said of the average family income of $43,793 in Nebraska, $11,526 or 26 percent goes to pay all forms of

Hoppers plague local hay crop

Potato leafhoppers are currently increasing in some eastern Nebraska fields, said Keith Jarvi, NU extension IPM assistant.

We have detected adults, but no nymphs here at the Northeast Center, indicating that they have re-cently migrated here from southern " Jarvi said, "Growers seeking to produce high quality alfalfa must actively manage this insect."

The adults are approximately one eighth of an inch long and bright green, while the nymphs are yellow-green and about one sixteenth of an inch. Both adults and nymphs feed with needle-like mouth parts that they insert into the plant to suck out liquids.

This feeding disrupts the flow of water and nutrients, and the symptoms are often mistaken as drought, disease or sulphur defi-ciency," Jarvi said.

The first sign of potato leafhoppers is a yellow discoloration of the leaflets that begins at the tip-and moves towards the base in a Vshape pattern, which is often called hopperburn or tipburn. If feeding continues, the leaves may become purple and die. Severely affected plants become stunted, and entire stems or plants may eventually die.

"Stands planted last fall or this spring are not very tolerant of this feeding, and may be severely damaged or killed," Jarvi said. "We have experienced severe damage to newly inted fields in northeast Nebraska the last three to four years."

The leafhoppers have been seen feeding on soybeans with similar damage, but this has not been a serious problem in Northeast Ne-

To estimate leafhopper populations in a field, use a sweep net with a 15 inch diameter. Sweeps are taken by moving the net vigorously through the foliage at 180 degree arcs at several field locations. At least 25 sweeps per five field locations should be taken. A plastic ice cream bucket or similar device may be used in a pinch.

"Unfortunately, research has shown that once the feeding symptoms on alfalfa become visible significant damage has already occurred," Jarvi said.

He added that harvesting will cause the adults to leave the field, and will kill nymphs through starvation and exposure. Fields can be reinfested from nearby fields, so weekly scouting is necessary. If alfalfa is severely damaged, it should be cut to allow recovery and re-growth even if there is hardly any harvest to be taken.

For help in determining control farmers can get the NebGuide C93-1136 at their local extension office.

Hay ground in the Wayne County area takes on picturesque properties this time of year with colorful windrows of new mown hay and interspersed bales and stacks. This view was taken in recent days south east of Wayne. Alfalfa stands have been fargeted by pests but control measures and recent moisture promise to make second and third cuttings better than the first cutting.

Prevented Planting and Failed Acres apply if abnormal weather conditions, insects, plant disease, quarantine imposed by a State or local agency, or other conditions beyond the producer's control exist.

The purpose of Prevented Planting credit is to allow P&CP credit for those acres that a producer was unable to plant. The FCIC established final planting dates to be used for determining prevented planting and whether the producer was prevented from replanting failed acreage. The final planting dates for our area are as follows: Oats, April 15; Barley, April 15; Corn, May

Pork seminar offered

Kent-Feeds Inc. will be presenting an educational seminar called Leading the Way Through Linchpin" on July 20 at the Marina Inn in South Sioux City. The meeting is intended to strengthen the lines communication between hog producers, meat packers and agricultural lenders. The meeting will not be a sales presentation; it will present information on how independent pork producers can raise the types of hogs that will receive top prices from meat packers and also how to attract investment capital from lenders.

Key pork management information, such as nutrition, financial management and engineering will also be presented. Attendees will have the opportunity to ask questions of the experts at the meetings. The meeting will start at 10 a.m. and will end at 2:30 p.m.

Any pork producers, as well as people related to the pork industry, such as persons from banking, farm credit, FmHA, veterinarians and extension, are welcome to attend. Interested persons should contact their nearest Kent dealer for more information.

Local artists refurbish Kansas Christmas display

By Les Mann Of the Herald

Folks in Liberal, Kans. have grown up enjoying a massive Christmas display put up there every Decem-ber. It is-the creation of Carlos Frey of Wayne.

Thirty-two years ago, while he was a young teacher and artist in Liberal, businessman George Rosel asked Frey to create an outdoor Christmas display for his home.
The result was what the South-

Wedding touches memories

On a cool fall evening a long time ago; about 1980, I think, the Winside football team traveled to Ewing in the first round of the state championship football playoffs.

I can still remember the game against Hartington, the last of the regular season; the boys had to win in order to get into the playoffs. It was on the home field, sort of a natural bowl; and Hartington had someone with a walkie-talkie on the west hillside, getting a great view, calling plays to their coach on the east side of the field.

Gilbert Foote figured that was giving our opponents an unfair advantage, so he went to the radio in his pickup and honed in on their frequency, effectively blocking transmission. I was very impressed!

Anyway, we fans went to Ewing with high hopes. But the Tomjack brothers were pretty tough to stop. Jeff was quarterback, his little broker Mike was a receiver, and they moved the ball steadily down the field. Jeff went on to play for Ne-
