

Ag heritage celebration seen in fair

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Wayne County's annual celebration of its agricultural heritage — the county fair — kicks off in less than two weeks for its 71st annual run.

An old-fashioned, fun-time, country fair is planned with several new events on the schedule explained Leland Herman, who serves as chief fair promoters and as a member of the ag society board.

Most of the new events have been added to boost participation on the opening day of the fair, Thursday, which is billed as "the old-fashioned county fair day." However, new attractions are planned on other days as well.

Auctioneer and celebrity announcer Col. Jon Phillips will be in attendance Friday during the day. On Friday evening, Mike Bishop and the Sweet 'N' Sassy with Country Time will perform on stage before the grandstand. The stage performance will follow the 33rd annual free barbecue which attracts upwards of 3,000 fairgoers on Friday night.

Key attractions on Saturday and Sunday evenings will be the sanctioned tractor pull and demolition derby, respectively.

New events on opening day will include a rolling pin throwing contest, buffalo chip throw, a cookie and jar contest and the return for the only the second year of the Wayne County ugly pickup parade and contest.

All four days of the fair people will have an opportunity to see how their great grandparents farmed and got their education through the agricultural heritage displays and the one room schoolhouse museum, explained Herman and Doris Felt, fair board secretary.

Among the items which will be on exhibit at the fair will be machinery used in Wayne County and dating back to 1880. Included is a plow used to cut sod blocks for some of the earliest sod houses in the county and a cement mixer used to mix mortar for some of the first bricks laid in Wayne.

The agricultural implement displays have been an important part of the fair through the years.

The old District 15 school house was moved to the fairgrounds last year to serve as a museum for the nearly lost era of one room school education in Wayne County.

Besides the opening of the ag heritage and early education displays, the first day of the fair will also feature the return of the Midway with Sam's Amusements, the musical trio We Three for a stage show beginning immediately after

Recycling payback reward is the future

By Clara Osten
For the Herald

"The payback for recycling is in the future, it is not in the money that the recycler receives," said Rev. Frank Rothfuss.

Rothfuss serves as coordinator for the Wayne Recycling Center and arranges for volunteers to man the center and stays in contact with Norfolk Recycling Center which picks up the recyclable materials generated in Wayne.

Rothfuss said he first became involved with recycling when the center on the east edge of Wayne closed. After that Norfolk Recycling opened a center at 209 Windom Street. However, Rothfuss said he went there to drop off his recycled materials and found no one there.

This prompted him to take charge of finding volunteers who man the center each Saturday morning from 8 a.m. to noon. "I contacted several of the churches and service organizations and several others have contacted me about working at the recycling center. Each group works for a month at a time and I like to train one or two persons from each group on the procedures involved. I do go down there most of the time to help get them started," he said.

"We are getting more materials all the time. People are learning how to prepare their recyclable materials and have been very respectful of the hours the center is open," Rothfuss said.

The center accepts glass, paper, tin cans, aluminum, corrugated cardboard, batteries, and plastic marked with a number one or two inside a triangle. "The container must have the number printed on it or we cannot accept it. Each number represents a different material used to produce it and they cannot be mixed together," he said.

Former Laurel teachers return from West Africa

By Clara Osten
For the Herald

For Jim and Grace Ronhovde and their children, Logan, C.J. and Sierra the past two years have been "a very wonderful experience."

The Ronhovde family has served as short term missionary assistants in the city of Ouagadougou in Burkina Faso, West Africa in connection with the Wycliffe Bible Translators.

Before going to West Africa the Ronhovde's had been teachers in the Laurel-Concord school system. After hearing a missionary speak at their church, they decided this was something that they would like to do. They did not do any actual missionary work but instead were teachers at the International School in Ouagadougou.

The school they taught at had approximately 85 students from age three through high school. The Ronhovde's taught middle school (fifth through eighth grade) students.

Department of Roads to host open house

The Nebraska Department of Roads will hold an information open house on Aug. 4 on the proposed improvement of Highway 35 (7th Street) in Wayne. The project begins on the west edge of Wayne, as County Road 35 by the fairgrounds, and runs east along 7th Street to the Logan Creek Bridge at the east edge of town.

The open house will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Wayne City Auditorium, 3rd and Pearl Streets. Department of Roads personnel will be on hand for informal, one-on-one discussions of the project. Proposed work on this project includes construction of a new three-lane highway with the center lane as a common left-turn lane, curb and gutter along the new three-lane roadway, a new drainage system, minor grading at the intersections, retaining walls and sidewalks to be built where necessary. Some driveways may be closed or rebuilt. Realignment of some city streets may be necessary. The work is currently scheduled to begin in the 1997 construction year.

the presentation of the Kilroy award, which takes place at 7:30 in the grandstand. A square dance sponsored by Leather and Lace dance club of Wayne follows in the Little Theater.

Also on the busy schedule for the opening day will be the annual "Meatheart of the World" celebrity beef cook-off. Mae Greve, Lizz Ekberg and Mary Bruns will oversee the competition that this year will feature county bankers cooking up their best.

The public is invited to watch the cook-off doings beginning at 4 p.m.

Registration for the rolling pin contest, which is billed as a contest of skill between husband and wife to determine who is the boss, will be refereed by Harvey Brasch.

Fair organizers have announced that the newspaper and the radio station in Wayne have challenged each other to team competition in the buffalo chip throw. "These two organizations really know how to throw the stuff around," said Herman. He added that the contest is open to other individuals and groups who want to vie for the gold plated buffalo chip which is first prize.

Well-known auctioneer and radio personality Col. Jon Phillips will be in attendance at the Wayne County Fair on Friday, Aug. 5.

The ugly pickup parade takes center stage at 7 p.m. and anyone with a pickup they think might be eligible for prize money and the ridicule of judges, is encouraged to enter. Parade organizer Gary Rober, who said he knows ugly when he sees it, said the audience is encouraged to assist the judges in making their decisions as the pickups roll past.

Other fun and entertaining events at this year's fair are also offered. A teen dance is offered on Friday night and a Saturday dance to the Moonlight Express will both be held in the Little Theater.

Teachers

French colony and the public schools are French. "Many of the missionaries, ambassadors and others who are in the country doing development work want their students taught in the English language. Some people home school their children and others send them to boarding school but boarding schools are two days away and parents want their children at home, so this is where the International School comes in," said Grace.

International Schools are not publicly funded and therefore are very expensive. The average cost of sending a middle school student to school is $9,800 per year. "Most of the others attending the school have this tuition paid as part of their salary. However, missionaries do not receive money for this," said Grace.

Sponsoring churches and other individuals help provide money for the tuition. Jim and Grace donated their salaries to help children of missionaries attend the school.

One of the biggest obstacles the Ronhovde's faced in Ouagadougou was language. Most people speak French and nearly all goods are bought by bargaining with street vendors. "We did learn the names of the money and some of the people who were selling things had hand held calculators so sometimes when I went to buy things the person would punch in a number and I would look at it, shake my head and punch in a number. The person would then punch in another number and so on until we agreed on a price," said Grace.

"The country produces cotton so there is a lot of fabric, some of it very excellent quality. Labor is inexpensive so the price of clothing is not high," said Grace.

There are not a lot of stores in this area and not many convenience foods. Those that are available are very expensive. For example, a box of corn flakes costs $10. We learned to make a lot of things or do without," she said.

The area of West Africa the Ronhovde's were in is very warm and very dry for eight or nine months of the year. "We were just on the edge of the desert and it was 105-110 degrees most of the time. Some of houses had air conditioning but electricity is four times as expensive there as in the United States because they don't have rivers to produce hydro electricity," said Grace.

At the end of this school year, the Ronhovde's time with the Wycliffe Bible Translators was up. However, Logan and C.J. expressed a desire to stay in Africa.

This past Christmas the family spent a week in Accra, Ghana in West Africa. This city is on the coast and while visiting there, Jim and Grace were offered jobs teaching math, science and language arts to seventh, eighth and ninth graders at an international school in Accra.

Ghana is a British colony and Accra is a city of approximately one and a half million. "Because it is on the coast, there is a lot of international trading done there. We will now have stores similar to what we have in the United States," said Grace.

The Ronhovde's have a two year contract to teach in Accra and are looking forward to staying in contact with some of the people they became close to in Ouagadougou.

"There have been a lot of changes in our lives in the last two years and things in Africa are very different but it has been a wonderful experience. I really believe the Lord has given us this opportunity."

"I think the Lord gives us all the opportunity to live our lives for him. Not everyone has to go to a foreign country, we can witness to the Lord right in our own community," said Grace.

Crops doing well in Northeast Nebraska despite scattered dry areas and storms

Despite scattered dry areas and some storm and insect damage, crops in Northeast Nebraska are doing well overall, according to local and state agriculture officials.

Terri Post, Wayne County ASCS director knocked on wood before she gave a glowing report about crop conditions locally.

"We've had storm damage all around us, but right here we're looking pretty good," she said. Crops are well ahead of last year and yield potentials look promising she said.

University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialists provide equally positive reports for the whole state.

Nebraska's major crops are a week to 2 1/2 weeks ahead of normal in their development, according to Steve Meyer, an University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural climatology specialist. Meyer said stable weather conditions were a major contributor to the crops' quick development.

"We've had fairly consistent warm temperatures," the IANR scientist explained. "I think that's helped the crops sustain their rapid growth."

Al Weiss, an IANR climate resource specialist, said abundant precipitation was another big factor.

"Anytime you have a lot of precipitation combined with average temperatures, you tend to get very good growth," Weiss said.

Meyer gave a quick rundown of the status of some of Nebraska's crops:

•Eighty-four percent of the corn and 90 percent of the sorghum crops are rated good or excellent.

•The wheat harvest is 91 percent completed, 2 1/2 weeks ahead of normal.

•Yields were lower than normal but higher than expected earlier in the year.

•Most soybeans are flowering now, 2 weeks ahead of normal. Sixty-four percent of soybean crop is rated good and 27 percent excellent.

However, not all crops have fared as well, especially in the Panhandle, said Weiss.

Intense rains in mid-July dumped as much as several 100 percent of normal precipitation on parts of Nebraska, but there were scattered dry spots. Portions of the Panhandle went without rain; in areas without irrigation, crops are stressed, Weiss said.

The same storms that produced the heavy rains also generated some hail. A 23-mile long, 3-mile wide swath of the Gering Valley was pounded by hail, severely damaging sugar beets, corn and dry edible beans, Weiss reported.

Insects also have been a problem, said Gary Hein, an entomologist with the NU Panhandle Research and Extension Center at Scottsbluff. Wheat stem sawflies damaged some wheat in the far west side of the Panhandle, the first time sawflies have done damage of economic consequence in Nebraska. So far, though, the sawfly infestation is limited to a few fields and hasn't become a widespread problem, Hein said.

Entomologists aren't sure why sawflies just moved into Nebraska in the last few years. If it's because of the odd weather patterns of recent summers, sawflies may retreat from Nebraska when the weather normalizes, Hein said.

Grasshoppers also have been a problem, not just in the Panhandle but throughout the state. In some areas, population densities of 50 grasshoppers per square yard have been found, according to Hein.

Keith Jarvi, NU extension pest management assistant in Concord has been monitoring corn borer moths in this area and reports that weather conditions have been ideal for the development of the yield robbing pests. He said a second generation of the moths has taken flight. He encouraged producers to scout their field every three to five days to determine if treatment is necessary.

Spider mites developed very rapidly this year and already have caused some damage to corn, Hein said. Rain and cooler temperatures in the last week have slowed the mites down, but another spell of hot, dry weather in the Panhandle could lead to major problems, the entomologist warned.

SUBWAY/APCO'S Doug Manz rips the ball for one of his four hits in six at-bats during double-header action, Tuesday against Godfather's. The two teams split the twinbill in two very low scoring contests. Godfather's won the opener, 2-0 but lost the nightcap, 3-1.

18-under team ends season on positive note

The Wayne girls 18-under fast pitch softball team closed out their season on a high note this week with two shutouts. Wendy Beiermann tossed a one-hitter, Tuesday in Wayne against Schuyler to help Wayne to an 8-0 victory.

Beiermann struck out 10 batters en route to the victory—her 28th win of the season. Wayne's offense pounded out 15 hits led by Jenny Thompson and Traci Oborny with a double and two singles each.

Jenni Beiermann tripled and singled and Carrie Fink, Katie Lutt and Wendy Beiermann each had two base hits while Heather Nichols had one single.

Wednesday, the 18-under team defeated Oakland, 12-0 as Beiermann allowed just two hits while striking out three. Wayne played a very good defensive game according to head coach Bob Oborny and the locals closed out the season in fine fashion.

Wayne's offense produced 13 hits against Oakland led by Molly Melena with a double and two singles. Jenny Thompson, Katie Lutt, Heather Nichols and Wendy Beiermann each had two singles while Carrie Fink and Jenni Beiermann had a base hit each. Wayne ends the season with a 29-11 record.

"I'm pleased with the way we performed this year," Oborny said. "Unofficially, we placed third in the league with four losses and West Point finished the regular season with just three losses and two of them were to us."

Wayne sophomore nets a hole-in-one

Wayne sophomore-to-be Ann Swerczek recorded a golf rarity, recently, playing in Lincoln during a practice round prior to the Cornhusker State Games Junior Golf Tournament.

Swerczek aced the number six hole on the Jim Ager Memorial Golf Course in Lincoln. Unfortunately, Swerczek did not see the ball go into the hole but the club professional who was playing right behind Swerczek and her mother, Kay, did.

"I used a seven-iron on the 117-yard par three," Swerczek said. "The ball bounced once on the green and then rolled right up into the cup. I had turned around after I hit the ball and then all of a sudden I heard the guy on the putting green behind us start yelling."

Swerczek said his reaction started her because she thought he was talking to someone else when he asked if it was her first hole-in-one.

Swerczek is a member of the Wayne High girls golf team.

Leaders called to promote

Community leaders in Northeast Nebraska have been invited to a meeting to help promote local investment in efforts to boost youth and families.

The meeting will be Friday, July 29 in Wayne at Riley's Convention Center and will feature state specialists on community planning and juvenile diversion issues.

Also featured will be a teleconference video on the "Family Investment Project," which allowed residents from across the state to share their views on family and juvenile issues in a video town meeting last month.

Jeff Hart, Community Planning Specialist in juvenile division of the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice will provide an orientation and serve as discussion leader for the Wayne meeting. Lynda Cruickshank, Wayne County Extension agent, will also help lead the discussion and is the conference organizer.

Those interested in attending are asked to contact the Extension Office, 375-4939 by July 25.

Goals outlined as part of the community-based efforts across the state will be:

—preservation of the family unit.

—promotion of prevention and early intervention programs for youth.

—limitation on intervention, with services provided within the least intrusive and least restrictive settings.

—development of alternatives to youth out-of-home placement.

—treatment in the community as close to home as possible with active family participation.

—encouragement of cooperative partnership efforts between community and the state.

Those area leaders encouraged to attend, according to Mrs. Cruickshank are specialists in substance abuse, health care professionals, youth activity providers, teachers, social service providers, probation personnel, service club representatives, local government officials, Chamber officials, law enforcement officials and judicial system representatives.

The event will begin at 8:30 a.m. and is scheduled to conclude at 2 p.m.

Dance against drugs

A community dance is being sponsored by the Wayne FRIENDS drug free youth group. Moms, dads, teens, kids and grandparents are all encouraged to attend the dance, which will be in the 4-H building on the Wayne County Fairgrounds on Saturday, Aug. 13.

Roller skating and roller blading is offered from 7 to 8 p.m. and dancing will go from 8 p.m. to midnight. Music will be provided by the Hitmen and will feature music for all ages.

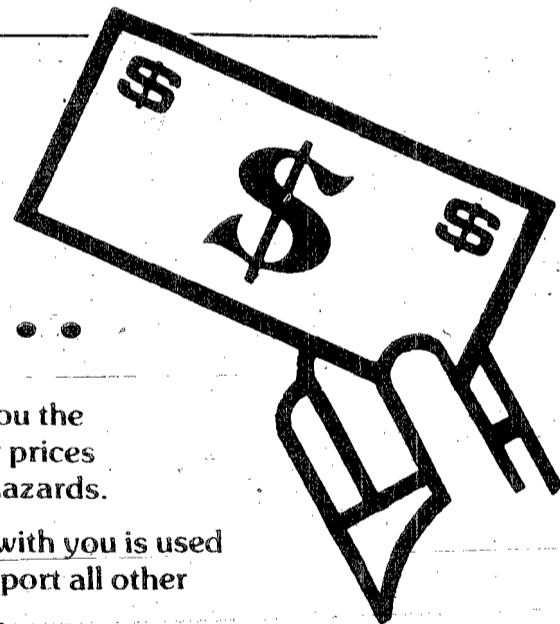

Concessions will be available.

The funds raised at the dance will benefit the drug free youth group's development in the community.

You get more for your money when you buy at home . . .

It is simple logic. Home area businesses give you the same or equivalent goods at the same or better prices with far less traveling time, cost and highway hazards.

And part of their profit on every deal with you is used to help you pay local taxes and to support all other good and useful community activities.
