

Providence shines on project

Sister Agnes Selber, Norfolk, turns over the first shovel full of dirt on the new $1.1 million hospital expansion project at Providence Medical Center. A new wing on the hospital will house the Northeast Nebraska Medical Group physicians offices and a new physical therapy department for the hospital. Scores of community leaders and health care providers attended Wednesday's noon ceremony. The Medical Center is operated by the Missionary Benedictine Sisters.

School bells ring in area

School bells will begin ringing in the Wayne Herald coverage area Monday as Allen students begin attending classes on a full-day basis right away. Classes will begin at 8:15 a.m. and be dismissed for the day at 3:35 p.m.

Wayne students will begin classes on Wednesday, August 24th at 8:15 a.m. with dismissal at 3:30 p.m. Wakefield students will begin classes on Wednesday as well at 8:15 a.m. but dismissal the first day will be at 2:30 p.m. Normal dismissal times will begin on Thursday at 3:44 p.m. for high school students and 3:30 p.m. for grade schoolers.

Winside students will start classes on Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. with dismissal time set at 3:43 p.m. for both high school and grade schoolers. Laurel-Concord students will begin school on Thursday, August 25th at 8:30 a.m. with dismissal slated the first two days at 11:45 a.m. Regular dismissal times are 3:35 p.m. for elementary students and 3:40 for high schoolers.

Baby stone ordered out

Members of the Wayne Greenwood Cemetery lot owners group voted at the annual meeting this week to have a marker commemorating babies who have died as a result of abortion or abuse removed from the cemetery.

Controversy has surrounded the "Baby" marker since it was erected in the center of the cemetery last May. Approximately 19 lot owners and representatives attended the meeting and a vote to force removal of the stone was reportedly six in favor of leaving it as is and 13 voting for removal.

The vote also prohibited the stone in question from being relocated anywhere else in the cemetery.

Pro-abortion supporters protested the erection of the monument on the cemetery grounds saying it was politically motivated by pro-life supporters and was in violation of the association's ban on advertising in the cemetery.

The stone carried an inscription saying it was donated by Rausch Monument Co. of Sioux City.

No deadline was placed on the removal of the stone.

County zoning goal set for end of year

A goal of implementing full planning and zoning regulations for Wayne County is attainable by the end of the year, according to members of the Wayne County Joint Planning Commission.

At their meeting Wednesday night, the commission, made up of rural representatives and those from Winside, Hoskins and Carroll, reviewed a revised draft of the comprehensive and set a date for a public hearing on the proposed document but the group failed to approve a budget request from the Wayne County Commissioners for operating the commission once zoning regulations are implemented.

The public hearing on the plan, which is the precursor to zoning regulations, will be held Sept. 1 at 8 p.m. in the Courtroom of the Wayne County Courthouse.

The commission decided to leave the allocation of budget amounts for the commission up to the County Commissioners. Sidney Saunders, who is secretary for the commission, suggested a bottom line budget of the next fiscal year of approximately $16,000 but the commissioners resisted from asking for any specific amounts for operating.

It is anticipated the building inspector/administrator which would be required to enforce the new zoning codes would be a half time position at approximately $12,250 per year. Other funds would be in mileage and office expenditures. The villages of Carroll, Hoskins and Winside will be sharing the expense of operating the commission with

Huge grant helps schools

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Wayne Public School students will be among the most technologically advanced students in the Midwest when they return to classes next week. Over the summer it was announced that the schools would be the recipient of a $90,000 grant from USWest to enhance computer networks and allow more students to connect to the Internet computer information network.

The newest grant will be used for additional computers and network systems for the high school and middle school along with communications equipment enhancements and staff training. It brings to over $300,000 the amount of money spent by the district in the last three years to upgrade its computer system.

One of the reasons Wayne schools was selected for the major grant by USWest is the commitment the district had already made to technology advances, according to USWest officials. That and the fact that the school had already implemented curriculum revision to address new technology needs, placed the local district well ahead of most others in the state.

USWest wanted its grant funds to go toward further development of state of the art computer systems in schools as a showcase for others to follow, said a spokesman for the company. He said that is exactly what Wayne Schools will become when their new system is fully operational.

What all the high technology equipment means is that more Wayne students will have access to an unlimited amount of research information from all over the world through the Internet system. There will also be better access for Middle School students into the high school's computer information network.

Japanese exchange student enjoys Wayne

By Clara Osten
For the Herald

Last September, Becca Dorcey registered her family's name as possible hosts for an exchange student. This was the beginning of their involvement with a program known as Labo, a Japanese International Exchange Program.

Becca, her parents Jerry and Linda, and her brothers and sisters, Jack, Jeremy and Karissa are now hosting a 13 year old Japanese boy, Koichiro Nagasaki. He arrived here on July 23 and will be leaving on Aug. 26.

The Dorceys attended an orientation program and learned what would be expected of them through the program. "We were told to treat them as normal as possible and not do anything special for them. They are here to learn about American culture and what it is really like to live in America," said Linda.

"WHEN KOICHIRO first came, we had no idea where his interests were. The first week, he suffered from jet lag and did not feel well. The second week we spent a lot of time at the Wayne County Fair and he really enjoyed that. It has taken us a couple of weeks to get to know each other and now it is almost time for him to go home," said Linda.

Koichiro has been impressed with several things that most Americans take for granted. For example, in Japan only Coca Cola is available but while here, Koichiro has taken a liking to Pepsi. He also has been impressed with the availability of meat and the inexpensiveness of food here.

"Koichiro loves Pizza Hut and playing Nintendo games. He was amazed to find that it is possible to rent the games here. He is very good at figuring out these things and is very quick at math," said Linda.

BEFORE KOICHIRO arrived, the Dorceys received a box of food which his parents had sent. He was able to prepare and share the food with the family. "The students were also taught how to make sandwiches before they arrived. They were told that most American women work outside the home and no one would be home to prepare meals."

"In Japan the students are not expected to help with preparing meals or other household chores. They are expected to spend their time studying. There is a lot of pressure to get good grades because grades will determine what college or university they can attend," said Linda.

Adopt-a-student program seeking host families

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

In a graphic display of their welcoming and caring nature, many Wayne families will be opening their homes to incoming freshmen students through the Wayne State College "Adopt-a-Student" program.

The community is entering the second year of the program which seeks to make incoming freshmen, who may be far from home, feel more like Wayne is their home away from home.

Implemented through the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce last fall, the program matched more than 30 new students who offered to allow themselves to be "adopted" with volunteer families in Wayne.

Many of last year's participants say they have developed such close bonds between the students and their

Wayne families that they plan to maintain the friendships throughout their college years and beyond.

Though praised by the college administration and staff members, the "adopt-a-student" program is not sponsored by Wayne State. It is a function of the Wayne community organizers and the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

"The adopt-a-student program truly demonstrates the community's sincere and serious intentions of becoming in FACT the Friendliest of All College Towns," said Bob Zetocha, Wayne State director of admissions.

Curt Wilwerding, one of the organizers of the program in Wayne, called it an effort to help students make the often difficult transition into college and independent living.

"The program recognizes the fact that first year college students are faced with many challenges, decisions and responsibilities. This community effort serves as a support system to college students wishing to take advantage of the friendliness and knowledge that Wayne citizens possess," he added.

Typically, Wayne families who volunteered for the program would invite students over for dinner or to attend family outings as a break from dorm life. Cookies at midterm and finals time, assistance with transportation difficulties, or just being an adult friend the students could confide in, were some of the positives cited by last year's participating students in discussing the program.

Host families also say they are more inclined to participate in college functions--to attend programs with their adopted students--than they were before they had a close connection to the campus.

Those real parents, often nervous about sending their young freshmen off to a distant and unfamiliar community, have said they appreciate knowing there are "adoptive parents" in Wayne who take an interest in the progress and well-being of their student.

One student said she missed her younger brothers and sisters who were more than 300 miles away, and enjoyed visits with her host Wayne family which had young children.

Wilwerding, who participated in a similar program while a student at Peru State College, said he still maintains friendship with his former host family. He recalls one semester when he was very sick and host family helped him recover.

After a sign-up period during the first few days of the new semester, students who want to participate are asked to fill out a questionnaire outlining their background and interests.

A community recruitment effort of host families is underway with volunteers being asked to contact the Wayne Chamber of Commerce at 375-2240.

The committee of chamber members who are organizing the effort will meet to try to match the student interests and backgrounds, as near as possible with those of the host family.

A kickoff party is planned for early to mid-September when students and families will be introduced.

"The program is a unique opportunity to make your years at Wayne State College more meaningful and enjoyable," said Wilwerding.

Those freshman students interested in participating in the program are also encouraged to contact the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

Grant

The Middle School will benefit from the lion's share of the new grant funds. Over $40,000 has been earmarked for the purchase of hardware for a new computer lab at the middle school.

"When everything is installed, Wayne students will be in the top ten as far as what they can be exposed to in the technology field," said Jensen. He added the new system will allow entire classrooms, each student on their own computer to be on the Internet, at one time.

There are over 120 high school students who are enrolled in computer technology courses which means the lab installed last year is full-up and another is needed to allow more students to utilize the computer network out of class time.

The new fiber optic technology being installed in the schools will allow hundreds of times more information to pass back and forth on the Internet system than what the schools currently have. In addition, members of the community with computers and modems, may sign up for access to the Internet through the schools.

The schools will be integrating the technology in all subject areas, said Jensen. For instance, he said language arts students will be able to communicate with foreign language compatriots throughout the world.

Elementary students will also benefit from the USWest grant. They will be receiving 15 laptop computers in an expansion of the program adopted last year to allow 4th graders to take the small portable computers home with them to do homework and share computer exposure with their parents.

The schools will also use some of the grant funding to hire a computer specialist to perform staff training. Jensen said local computer specialist Mike Eckhoff, a Wayne High Graduate, will work with the teachers to train them on optimum use of the system.

Planning

the county through a joint operating agreement which keeps each entity from having to set up their own individual regulations, permit and inspection systems.

It was assumed Wednesday that the finished zoning document when and if it comes before the commission will include provisions requiring building permits and construction inspections on all building in the county.

The commission also discussed limiting the size of subdivision tracts to only 5 acres in the rural areas of the county as a means to protect productive agricultural land from being taken over by urban expansion.

Of a more general nature than the specific regulations anticipated in a zoning document, the draft of the comprehensive plan is available for review at the county courthouse and the village offices.

Judge blasts JDC

COLUMBUS, Neb. (AP) -- Until state officials meet with area judges about safety issues at the juvenile detention center in Wayne, one judge says he will continue to place juveniles in other facilities -- although it can be a hassle.

"Until we can really sit down and visit ... our concerns will continue," Platte County Judge Gerald Rouse told county board members on Tuesday.

Rouse wrote to the Nebraska Crime Commission on behalf of the six judges in the 5th Judicial District last month expressing his concerns about the supervision of juveniles at the Wayne facility.

The letter cites reported incidents of juveniles being threatened, suffering abuse at the hands of other inmates or hurting themselves.

Around the same time, he and other judges began looking for alternative placements.

"It's a question for all the counties in the district," Rouse said. "We're all scrambling, looking for temporary places."

The Nebraska Crime Commission is arranging a meeting with county judges of the 5th Judicial District and officials from the Northeast Nebraska Juvenile Services Inc. of Wayne, Rouse said. The date hasn't been set.

Engagements

Holdorf-Gibson

Randy and Joni Holdorf of Carroll have announced the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Shannon Jean, to Brian Lee Gibson, son of Gary and Linda Gibson of Tyndall, S.D. The couple will be married on Sept. 17 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Shannon is a graduate of Winside High School, attended Northeast Community College in Norfolk and is currently a junior at Wayne State College, majoring in physical and special education.

Brian is a graduate of Bon Homme High School and also a graduate of Northeast Community College with an associate degree in turf and horticulture. He is presently the superintendent of the Hartington Golf Course.

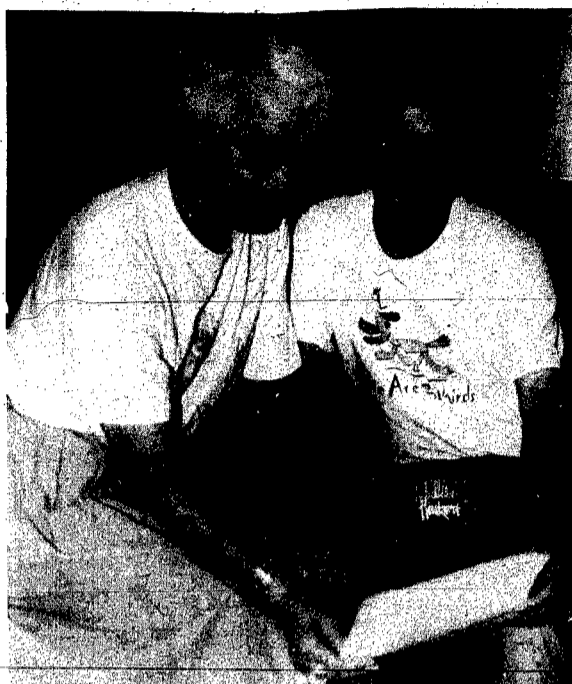

Nuernberger-Salmon

Mr. and Mrs. James Nuernberger of Wakefield announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Susan, to Scott Salmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Salmon of Wakefield.

Susan is a graduate of Wakefield High School and a 1994 graduate of Wayne State College. She is employed by Wayne State College.

Scott is a graduate of Wakefield High School and is employed by Great Dane Trailer.

The couple plan a Sept. 24 wedding at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Wayne.

Marie George visits with Yukihito Torimura, a leader of a group of Japanese exchange students. Torimura stayed with the George family eight years ago on an earlier exchange trip.

Japanese leader likes it here

Thirty students and three sponsors are currently in Nebraska through the Labo program. Nationwide, there are 1,000 students in 35 states. The students spend the month of August here and then return to school in Japan which is in session 11 months each year.

The Labo program works through 4-H in the United States and is a program of language learning, cultural exploration and personal discovery and growth. The goal of the program is to develop well-rounded, open minded and responsible members of society.

In Japan there are 60,000 Labo members. "Many children begin their involvement in the program as early as three years of age and continue through high school. They meet two days a week after school. The program provides an extensive program of English study," said Marie George of Dixon who has been involved in the program for a number of years.

"THE JAPANESE parents are very involved with their children's extra curricular activities. Labo is very popular and some parents begin saving for their child's trip to America when they are born," said Marie.

In 1975 the Georges hosted a Japanese student through the Labo program and in 1985 Yukihito Torimura stayed with the George family. Yukihito is a sponsor with the program and is available to the students should an emergency arise.

Since 1985 the Georges and Yukihito have stayed in touch and when it came time to be assigned a place to stay this year, he asked to stay in the George home.

"Yukihito works with students, most of them between the ages of 12 and 16 who are preparing to come to the United States. He is here to provide emergency referral services should one of the students need help. He hasn't had any major problems but he does receive letters from some of the students telling about what they are doing," said Marie.

IN PREVIOUS years' the Japanese students have been located mostly in the eastern part of Nebraska but this year there are students in Scottsbluff, North Platte, Cherry and Box Butte counties as well as throughout the eastern areas.

These students come from all parts of Japan and most are amazed by the open spaces in Nebraska. "Except for the northern part of Japan, there really is not a lot of farmland in Japan."

The Labo program has been in existence since 1966 and students have been coming to Nebraska since 1975. The program works closely with 4-H and is constantly seeking host families.

Linda.

This past week Koichiro met with Wayne mayor Bob Carhart and presented him with a mug from the mayor of his hometown, Kawarishi. Along with the mug he presented the mayor with a letter from the mayor, which says, in part, "Our most important treasure is the youth and it is the youth that makes our world brighter, full of hope and happiness."

THE LETTER continues, "What a wonderful thing it is to understand our mutual culture and society and deepen our friendship despite the difference of the languages and the customs. I wish with all my heart the enthusiastic power of the young to build the hopeful, bright and peaceful world."

Koichiro is returning to Japan with a key to the city of Wayne and a Nebraska sweat shirt which he purchased on a recent shopping trip.

"This has been a great opportunity and a wonderful learning experience for our family. I think we have learned as much from Koichiro as he has from us. I think at times he may have been overwhelmed with our large family, with kids and grandkids in and out all the time. He has just one older sister. His father is an accountant for Panasonic and his mother is a housewife," said Linda.

Winside Twins celebrate their 90th birthday

Twin sisters, Anna Westerhaus and Louisa Schuetz of Winside, were honored for their 90th birthday with an open house on Sunday, Aug. 14 in the village auditorium from 3-8 p.m. Irene Damme of Winside registered the 120 relatives and 88 families who attended from Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Illinois, Nebraska, Maryland, Missouri, Washington D.C. and Germany.

The sisters arrived at the event in a 1929 Chrysler driven by Marlin Westerhaus and Everett Schuetz. The sisters were attired in matching dresses.

Corsages were presented to the two of them and decorations for the event were done in the colors of blue, lavender, green and white.

Everett Schuetz served as master of ceremony for a program presented by their families. It opened with Anna reciting two verses of the song "The Love of God," then the two of them singing the chorus. She also gave a personal history on their birth Sept. 1, 1904 at Herman, Mo. They were named after the Louisiana Purchase, her name being Anna Louisa Lochnig and her sister, Louisa Anna Lochnig.

Louisa read a poem she had written and then recited the song "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Other entertainment included songs by Anna's great grandchildren, Candace, Tristia and Lacey Jaeger of Winside.

A German song by John and Maria Kenney, Missionaries from Germany, was sung. Maria is the granddaughter of Louisa.

Shawn Jones, a great great nephew of the ladies did several juggling acts and the Jaeger Trio of Winside (Gothilf, Albert and Herman) sang three German songs.

A dinner was served along with a decorated cake made by Carol Schuetz. It was served by Jerane Dobson and Doris Bohl. Cards and gifts were arranged by Christine Lueker of Winside.

The event was hosted by the ladies children and their families. The children of Anna are Marlin and Donald Westerhaus of Winside and Jerane Dobsen of Phoenix, Ariz. One son, Norris Westerhaus is deceased.

Louisa's children include Everett and Howard Schuetz of Stanton; Virgil, Lyle and Larry Schuetz of Colorado; Doris Bohl of Washington, D.C.; and George Schuetz of St. Louis, Mo.

They're back

Students returned to the campus of Wayne State College when the dorms opened, Sunday. On Monday, the rush was on for last minute parking stickers, rec center passes and other items which kept Hahn Administration offices buzzing all day with lines of people. Classes began on campus, Tuesday.

College students have impact

By Clara Osten
For the Herald

A steady stream of cars made their way into Wayne over the weekend. These cars were filled with students headed to Wayne State College for the start of the fall semester.

According to the latest figures available nearly 1,600 students will be living in dormitories this fall and more than 900 others will find off-campus housing.

Statistics released by the college indicate that more than $5 million will be spent by students on non-college related goods and services.

These numbers represent an economic boost to the Wayne community. Wayne Mayor Bob Carhart says "the students have lots of cars that need gas, visit the food places and entertainment places generally benefit from the college students."

"I AM ALWAYS energized when I see the students come back to Wayne. There is lots of activity and a whole new schedule of activities such as athletic events, concerts, programs and recitals that Wayne residents can enjoy," said Carhart.

"The college makes Wayne a more vital place to live and brings enrichment to the lives of the people of Wayne. Through the activities that the college sponsors, many other people come into the community. Activities such as Math Day, Science Day and Band Day help create a favorable impression of Wayne State College and the city of Wayne," he said.

Dean Carroll, manager of Pamida said the economic impact of the college is "considerable, especially during the first two weeks of school. The students are looking for things they forgot or didn't bring with them."

"Activity levels off after the first couple of weeks but we have students in here throughout the year. In fact, we order special merchandise geared toward the college students," he said.

In addition to the students who are purchasing merchandise at Pamida, 10 college students are employed by the store.

EIGHT OF THE 13 employees at Runza Restaurant are college students and manager Shelley Murphy says that "business began picking up last week and the past two days we have been incredibly busy."

"I expect us to be this busy for a while and then things will probably level off. I have been told that certain nights, Thursdays and Sundays, are usually pretty busy."

Ken Jorgensen of the Max Lounge said that "nearly 70 percent of our business is from college students. Our summers are pretty quiet and we expect to be busy now that school is back in session."

"In fact, we are in the process of putting in a grill to better serve the needs of the community. We will also be open seven nights a week. Right now we employ eight college students and are always looking for help. I expect this to continue now that we will be open more," he said.

"In the 17 years I have been in business I haven't had any major problems with the college kids. I think their being here affects everything in the community. I don't think there are any businesses who don't benefit from the college kids."

BOB NELSON at M & H Apco said "the college helps a lot. I would say that at least 20-25 percent of our business is from the college students and their parents. We have been very busy the last couple of days."

"The college has a big impact on the community of Wayne. I appreciate the college. We have a nice bunch of kids and I try to employ

Bereuter blasts house passage of costly crime bill

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Rep. Peter Hoagland, D-Neb., was the only Nebraska lawmaker to vote for the $30.2 billion anti-crime package the House passed 235-195 on Sunday.

Reps. Bill Barrett and Doug Bereuter, both Republicans, voted against the package.

"Despite the good bargaining efforts of about 30 House Republicans, the latest conference product is still a weaker and more expensive crime bill than the first House version, which I voted against as an ineffective and extremely expensive measure," Bereuter said.

The package approved Sunday would help put 100,000 more police on the streets and ban assault-style firearms. The House shelved a $33.5 billion version on Aug. 11.

"The cost of the crime bill grew like wildfire," Bereuter said. "The original omnibus crime bill that was introduced in the House of Representatives was estimated to cost $5 billion. The cost of this bill has increased significantly every time Congress has considered it."

Some of his main problems with the package was its failure to reform the appeals process and its failure to provide for exemptions under the exclusionary rule, under which evidence can be deemed inadmissible if it was obtained improperly.

Bereuter questioned how much of the money would reach his constituents.

"The relatively few dollars that could come into a state like Nebraska under a formula skewed to urban states are heavily conditioned with federal requirements," he said.

Bereuter favored the alternative, stripped-down measure sponsored by gun-ban opponents Bill Brewster, D-Okla., and Duncan Hunter, R-Calif.

Pumpkin Days nearing

Plans are firming up and t-shirts sales have begun for next month's Wakefield Pumpkin Days.

The annual harvest time celebration will be Sept. 17 and will feature the traditional parade and community-wide yard decorating contest. Other events will include the Show 'n Shine car show, organized by Lyle Ekberg and Tim Bebee; the kids parade; a pedal tractor pull, omelet feed, bike ride, pumpkin decorating contest, Pumpkin Days Market and seniors golf tournament.

The Wakefield Little Red Hen Theatre is hosting Dr. Richard Thill who will talk Saturday afternoon about the origins of Halloween. Pete Brown is busy organizing a team penning contest for the horsemen in the area.

Alice Hartman will again be coordinating the Pumpkin Days. Anyone interested in setting up a craft table or other merchandise should contact her at 287-2560.

Pumpkin days shirts and caps, which are bright orange with green and yellow design are on sale for $9.50 at the Wakefield Republican office, Wakefield Drug and The Wakefield Cleaners.

Business After Hours is scheduled

WAYNE — A special Business After Hours program of the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday, Aug. 29 from 5 to 7 p.m. to welcome returning faculty back for the new school year.

The event will be at the Black Knight and is open to teachers. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce.

Adopt a student

AREA — Wayne area families are encouraged to volunteer as "adoptive" host families for first time Wayne State College students who are attending classes from far away.

Hosting usually involves inviting the student over for dinner once in a while and baking cookies or goodies for the student during exam time. Host families serve as a local contact to help the students feel more at home in their new surroundings.

Those interested should contact the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce at 375-2240.

Civil defense testing to be held

WAYNE — The City of Wayne will conduct the monthly testing of the Civil Defense Outdoor Warning System at 11:45 a.m. Friday.

Each of the six siren locations will be tested separately. The hi/lo-signal will be allowed to run approximately 15 seconds at each location.

Immediately following the testing of the outdoor warning system, the city will test the Cablevision Emergency Alert System. This will mean disruption of both the audio and the video programming of every television set on the cablevision system that is in use. This test will last approximately 15 seconds.

Second half real estate taxes are due

WAYNE COUNTY — The second half of real estate taxes will become delinquent Sept. 1, and start drawing 14 percent interest after that date. Please bring or send your statement when you pay your taxes.

Season plagues allergy sufferers

It's the season for that sniffly, sneezy, scratchy feeling and according to allergy experts, this may be a banner year for it.

A bumper crop of pollen is taking its toll.

"There's lots of really healthy ragweed this year," said Peg Bolick, associate professor of biological sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The rain came at just the right time for the plants to grow, she said. So they're not only abundant, they're in good shape.

Dry weather in recent days has sent pollen counts up.

Ragweed is the most common allergen in Nebraska and its effects range from symptoms that are a mild annoyance to a major disability.

Bolick, who takes a daily pollen count, said ragweed pollen started showing up on her collector around the first of the month and has been increasing steadily. Last week it accounted for 20 percent of the 200 or so grains of pollen per cubic meter.

It only takes about 25 grains to start people sneezing and eyes watering.

"I've been getting a lot of calls and questions," Bolick said. Even people who don't usually

Fire call is goose chase

The Wayne Volunteer Fire Department was called to the campus of Wayne State College shortly before 2:30 p.m., Tuesday afternoon.

A call came in from a residence assistant in Berry Hall after a fire alarm had gone off in the building. When three units of the fire department arrived, the alarm proved to be false.

Extra courteous

Teresa Schmeits, who is a shift leader at the Dairy Queen in Wayne, was presented the quarterly Congeniality Award from the Wayne Ambassadors. The organization votes on the most courteous service workers in the community to present the award to. Shown presenting the honor at the Chamber Coffee which was held at Dairy Queen Friday is Ambassador Past President Mark Sorensen.
