118TH YEAR — NO. 96

Two churches combine to be Wayne's largest

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Wayne has a new church community and it will be one of the largest congregations in the community.

Members of the Redeemer Lutheran and St. Paul's Lutheran Churches in Wayne voted Sunday to consolidate the two congregations into one church which will have approximately 1,200 members.

The new church will initially be incorporated as Our Savior's Lutheran Church. No decisions have been made at this time on permanent use of buildings for combined congregation according to St. Paul's pastor Jack Williams.

THE TWO CHURCH families, both members of the same Lutheran synod, have been discussing merger possibilities for nearly two years and there still remains many questions of organization and structure of the new church, but resolving those issues "will be a labor in joy for most people," said Williams.

He said two-thirds of the members of both churches voted Sunday to consolidate. In a sense the two church communities have been together for the past 10 weeks. Redeemer's members have been holding their services at St. Paul's since a lightning-fire all but destroyed their church in June.

While the fire did not force the consolidation of the two churches, said the Rev. Michael Girlinghouse, assistant pastor at Redeemer's, "it definitely moved up the vote." He said the two churches were inevitably moving toward a vote on possible merger and that the fire may have speeded up the process.

A MAJOR stumbling block to start with in the consolidation discussion was the two properties, said Williams. He said the members of the Redeemer congregation have needed time to grieve the tragic loss of their sanctuary. To a certain extent, St. Paul's members will be needing time to grieve too.

"We've not lost our building and we're stressing that we will not be forgetting the past, but instead developing a new vision for the future," he explained.

"We are joining our strengths," said Girlinghouse. He said the response has been positive from both congregations and from throughout the community. "The prayer support from the other congregations has just been amazing," said Girlinghouse. "It shows what kind of community we have," he added.

THE NEW CHURCH will officially be formed on January 1. Until then the two congregations will continue with business as usual. The plans are to retain the pastoral teams of both churches under the new name. Besides Williams and Girlinghouse, the team includes Redeemer Pastor Frank Rothfuss.

"We are three pastors without a call right now," quipped Williams, who said they each anticipate receiving the call from their new unified congregation come January. He

OVER 130 WALKERS took part in the 6th Annual Women Helping Women Walk-A-Thon, Saturday in Memorial Stadium on the campus of Wayne State College. Coordinator Cyndi Wagner said over $8,000 has been raised so far with donations still coming in. Judy Sorensen was the top individual money raiser for the sixth straight year.

Women's walk-a-thon helps college

Of the Herald

The 6th Annual Women Helping Women Walk-A-Thon was held Saturday in Memorial Stadium to raise money for women's athletics at Wayne State College.

Despite the extremely warm temperatures and high humidity, 132 walkers shrugged the elements in support of female athletics.

Cyndi Wagner was the coordinator and chairperson of the event while Nebraska Lieutenant Governor Kim Robak and Nebraska State Treasurer Dawn Rocky were the co-chairs.

KCAU Channel 9's weather person Julie Negus and Nebraska Jaycees president Maria-Kaczor were the special guests and Pat Lutt was the master of ceremonies.

"It was a very successful event," Wagner said. "The turnout of walkers is one of the largest groups we've had." Wagner said the total dollar amount raised for women's athletics at WSC will not be official for some time because donations are still coming in, but at the present time over $8,000 has been brought in which is above average.

The Walk-A-Thon began at 9:30 a.m. followed by an omelette feed which was sponsored by the Milton G. Waldbaum Company. The feed was prepared and served by Bob Reeg, Randy Slaybaugh, Wayne Groner, Lyndon Wiseman, Eldon Hutchinson, Rico Burkett, Marty McDermott, Jeff Goldstein and Dennis Wagner.

Judy Sorensen was the top individual money raiser for the sixth consecutive year and a team directed by Joyce Reeg was the top group of

Stalker rumors unfounded say police

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The recent rumors that a stalker was driving around the elementary and Middle School in Wayne has apparently been discovered to be just that—rumors.

Wayne Police Chief Vern Fairchild said no report of any stalker was called in to the police

Group seeks meeting on baby stone

Twelve voting members of the Greenwood Cemetery Association have signed a letter to board members of the cemetery asking for a special meeting to discuss again the issue of the controversial monument to aborted babies which was erected at the cemetery last spring.

During the association's annual meeting August 16, members present voted to have the "baby" stone removed because on the grounds that it violates the prohibition on advertising in the cemetery. Many have said it advocates a pro-life political stance.

Members of the cemetery association, those who own burial lots in the cemetery, and others in the community have debated whether the stone should be removed or left alone since it was installed in May.

The twelve members who are calling for a special meeting on the issue said in their letter to Lu Hilton, association president, that they did not have notice of the agenda which was to have been discussed at the annual business meeting when the vote was taken to remove the stone.

"We feel it would be in the Cemetery's best interest and also in the community of Wayne's, to hold a special meeting of the lot owners to review the situation of the monument for deceased and abused children."

The letter is signed by Alice S. Sherry, Verna Reis, Della Agler, Flavia F. Sherry, Virgil and Verna department last week during the first few days of school.

Reports from unidentified sources say a man was driving around the schools in a white van last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and trying to persuade young girls to get into his van. The man, allegedly wore a ski mask.

There were no reports that anyone approached the man or the van. Wayne Elementary School principal Dave Lutt said he heard no such thing from anyone in grades K-4 and Middle School principal Richard Metteer echoed the same remarks concerning grades 5-8.

Chief Fairchild did say that if any child, regardless of age or grade is ever approached by a stranger they should back away immediately. "Anyone that feels someone is acting suspiciously should back away and head in the opposite direction from which the person is approaching," Fairchild said. "It's also helpful if they are ever approached by someone in a vehicle to get the license plates either by memory or by writing it on their hand or something."

Fairchild also said there are around 40 homes in Wayne who's residents are part of the McGruff Program which children can seek refuge for any reason.

"It's a place a child can go if they think they are in trouble," Fairchild said. "The residents will take the kids in and then notify the police. The McGruff stickers are easily noted by the McGruff sticker affixed in the front window of those involved."

Fairchild said the number of McGruff sponsors in the town is good but there is always room for more. Next Tuesday, Wayne police officers will be putting on a demonstration at the elementary school about the McGruff Program. In fact, McGruff the crime dog will

Wayne 'character' to move

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

One of Wayne's endearing characters and free-thinking promoter, Lyle George, will be moving to Seattle effective Monday.

The man responsible for convincing the city fathers to paint "Wayne, America" on the new water tower, one of the founding fathers of the famous Wayne Chickendales, the self-proclaimed commodore of the Wayne Yacht Club and the originator of the "Elvis Shrine" near his rented farm home south of Wayne will be moving his independent sales business to Seattle.

GEORGE SELLS products worldwide for Restful Knights as an independent contractor. He also sells artwork for Baker Street of Nellig. The move was prompted by "mid-life crisis and basic freak-out," said George, who added with phone, fax and his E-mail address he can basically conduct his business anywhere in the world.

His curt advice to friends who say they will miss him, "you're just going to have to deal with it." But he candidly admits that his departure may not be permanent. He plans to maintain his residence in Wayne for

Wayne team wins at fair

A Wayne High improvisation team took first place honors at the State Fair last Friday in the first competition of its kind.

Members Matt Chapman, Robb Heier, Liz Lindau, Claire Rasmussen and Tim Heinemann each received $200 in scholarship money to be applied to a college of their choice, a medal and other gifts.

Teams created a five minute impromptu performance incorporating beginning and ending lines and the setting which were drawn at random before the skit.

Second and third places went to Kearney and North High Schools.

This event was open to all schools in Nebraska and sponsored by Lincoln's Sowers Club.

a year, even though that is not a promise he will return either, he said.

THAT'S ABOUT as definitive as you can get from a man who will "neither confirm nor deny" involvement with the now famous Wayne Chickendales. The all-male, mostly flab, dance review team was pictured in hundreds of newspapers across the nation this year. They were photographed while performing in the Chicken Show parade.

"Isn't it really sad that one of the most famous things about the Chicken Show is the Chickendales," he added. He had no apologies for his idea to paint Wayne America on the water tower. "It provokes visitors to remember us," he said.

GEORGE SAID he is excited and concerned about his upcoming move. His new $615 per month apartment represents an "aggressive sales incentive. I'm approaching that big rent payment and the sales effort it will take to live there with a certain sense of terror," said George.

He said his family has been encouraging about the move, "but he adds he suspects that's just because they want his stuff. He's not taking much with him. What the family hasn't taken and he hasn't sold in garage sales, he's giving away, like the infamous Elvis Shrine—an inverted bathtub with a rotating Elvis statue which he established in his front yard—it will be going to friend and equally endearing character Paul Campbell.

George said he is looking forward to living in his new neighborhood in Seattle called the Fremont neighborhood. It was named after Fremont, Neb. and its city council calls itself the Republic of Fremont. "They have even applied to the United Nations for recognition. That's not one I would even bring up," he said. The community entrance welcome signs welcome people to the Republic of Fremont and encourage them to throw their watches away.

"That's a city council I can deal with," said George.

said the staff structure will allow specialization of responsibilities and duties. He added he has been a lone pastor for 21 years and will be looking forward to working as part of a pastoral team. He said he has a great deal of respect and admiration for the two other team members and they have already worked well together.

CALLING THE consolidation a unique situation, Williams said it will allow shared resources and permit additional emphasis in mission, ministry and vision for the community.

He predicted the combined congregation will find many things it can do better in the works of faith than the two could have done separately before.

"We will be sharing ministry instead of duplicating ministry," he said.

He said it is nearly unheard of to see two churches, both in good financial condition, growing and "at their peaks" joining together to share resources and fashion a new and even stronger faith leadership in their communities.

Communities deal with waste

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) -- Composting and recycling are the order of the day in Nebraska, and most villages and cities apparently have had few problems meeting the first of several waste bans for landfills.

"Yard waste accounts for 15 to 20 percent of the municipal waste stream," said Joe Francis, an assistant director of the state Department of Environmental Quality.

"By finding better alternatives for yard waste, we should be able to keep our landfills open longer, and delay the high costs of building new sites," Francis said.

Beginning Sept. 1, landfills won't be allowed to accept grass clippings, leaves and other yard waste, lead-acid batteries and waste oil.

The ban is a result of LB1257. Passed by the Legislature in 1992, the law redefines how Nebraska deals with its garbage and sets deadlines for achieving specific goals.

Last October, the state closed all unlicensed landfills in Nebraska. This year's Sept. 1 deadline is the first for waste.

Used oil and lead-acid batteries contain hazardous materials that can contaminate the state's land and water. They can be recycled at service stations, battery stores and scrap metal dealers.

Yard waste can be reduced by homeowners using mulching mowers or leaving grass clippings on the lawn, and it can be composted through backyard and city composting programs.

Most communities across the state have been working to comply with the Sept. 1 ban. Francis said the only city that apparently is experiencing problems is the state's largest -- Omaha -- which temporarily suspended its yard-waste collection program this summer.

A shortage of trucks left bags of yard waste on curbs throughout the city, and haulers were not able to keep up with collections.

Beatrice is one southeast Nebraska community that didn't wait until the last minute to comply with the Sept. 1 ban. City officials began a yard-waste program about three years ago.

Residents can haul grass clippings to a drop-off site or sign up for once-a-week pickup service with their hauler.

"We're just about banning everything now that DEQ is saying," said Mark Hyberger, director of public properties for Beatrice.

The city has a drop-off site for waste oil and it never has accepted lead-acid batteries at landfills because there is a market for those batteries, he said.

Some communities already are working on meeting future bans mandated by LB1257. They include:

--Sept. 1, 1995, waste tires (unless processed in a DEQ-approved manner) and household appliances.

--Sept. 1, 1996, unregulated hazardous waste, except household hazardous waste.

--Sept. 1, 1998, scrap tires in any form.

Rumors

be in attendance. The program is slated for 10:15 a.m.

Fairchild urges anyone in the community to call in to the police station if any suspicious behavior is witnessed. "One of the problems I think people have is being embarrassed if they think they witness some strange behavior, call it in to the police and it turns out to be nothing," Fairchild said. "We don't look at it that way. We would just as soon check the situation out because being safe is a lot better than being sorry."

SENIOR CITIZENS

A nice crowd attended the August birthday party held at the Senior Citizens Center. Those celebrating birthdays were Esther Koester and Densil Moseman. Cakes were furnished by Connie Lindahl, Sarah Haglund and Alice Steele. Ice cream was provided by Fay Isom.

The September birthday party will be held on Friday, Sept. 2 at 9:30 a.m. at the Center. Those celebrating September birthdays are Cotton Schroeder, Muriel Moseman, Vern Jones, Bill Snyder, Eva Audesmore, Harold Durant, Elizabeth Anderson, Clarence Jeffery, Fern Benton, Carol Schroeder, Ethel Fox, Helen Schroeder, Wendell Isom, Norma Smith and Mabel Mitchell, who will be celebrating her 100th birthday.

At the August card party, there were five tables of card players. Prize winners were Bill Snyder, Dorothy Brownell, Ardith Linafelter and Kenneth Anderson. Clair and Fran Schubert were hosts. Bill and Pearl Snyder will host the September party to be held on Thursday evening, Sept. 8, at 7:30 p.m.

The pollock dinner at the Nutrition Site will be held on Friday noon, Sept. 16. Kathy Gothier R.N. will speak on stress and how to help cope with stress in our everyday lives.

The Senior Citizens Center and the Golden Eagle Nutrition Site will be closed on Monday, Sept. 5 for Labor Day.

Chore and housekeeping services are available through the Senior Citizens Center and anyone interested in signing up for these services should contact director Joanne Rahn at the center.

The seniors will be having their annual farmers market on Saturday, Sept. 24. It will start at 8 a.m. and run until 2 p.m. They will be serving taverns, pie and coffee for dinner, with coffee, rolls and pie being served all day. They will have garden produce, a rummage sale, along with a bake sale. Volunteers are needed to work that day.

Sarah Haglund has returned home from the hospital. She is recuperating and has had to do some therapy. In the meantime, the Senior Center can hire a Green Thumb worker to work four hours a day, 20 hours a week. To work with Green Thumb you must be 55 years of age and of low income. If anyone is interested in this position they should contact senior director Joanne Rahn at the Center in Allen or call the Green Thumb at the Department of Labor, 1-800-624-7899.

Legal Aid Mary Buford will be at the Center on Sept. 29 at 10 a.m. Please call for an appointment.

Zoning needed

Wayne County residents will have an opportunity to comment on the draft of the county comprehensive plan during a public hearing this Thursday.

The comprehensive plan is the first step toward extensive land use planning and zoning regulations for rural areas and villages in the county.

The city of Wayne implemented land use planning and zoning to control building and development in the 70s and the rural areas of the county have seen increasing numbers of acres converted from important agricultural uses to residences. The situation is most acute in the southwest area of the county which is experiencing growth from the Norfolk area.

County leaders are concerned about the future of agricultural production in the county if residential growth is allowed to continue its willy nilly trend. Problems with water use issues, transportation routes, school services, and farming practices such as pesticide use and manure disposal are all issues that will become more crucial if clearly defined rules and guides are not established.

The new planning and zoning process will undoubtedly mean the establishment of a county building inspector and will mean any time a farmer wants to fix his barn or add an out building he will be vexed to have to go get a building permit.

But the minor aggravation will be worth the trouble to avoid serious problems in the future--problems which in some counties is actually threatening the economic base of agriculture.

Waynians

A key one is leaving

I was disappointed to learn of Lyle George's impending move to Seattle.

Communities like ours will sorely miss free-thinkers like Lyle, who helped persuade the Wayne City Council to paint "Wayne, America" on the water tower as a means to get visitors to remember us.

He's had many other ideas--some of them good.

We know--though he won't admit it--that he is one of the founders of the Wayne Chickendales.

One of my fondest memories of Lyle, almost as fond as the "Almost Solstice" parties he threw, was the on-going argument the two of us waged over the proper reference for people who live in Wayne.

I contend they are "Waynians" because that fits neatly in headlines. Lyle said it should be "Wayne Americans." I'm more conservation minded.

Our argument developed into a belly butting contest in a downtown parking lot one afternoon last year. I won but Lyle's parting shot was, "Might doesn't make right."

I'm hoping he finds the gloomy rain of Seattle oppressive and will decide ultimately to return to God's Country. He'll always be a Waynian. Seattle sounds like something you'd shoot into space.

Lyle's departure is no doubt one of the reasons for the alleged retirement of the Chickendales. They say last month was their final appearance in a Wayne Chicken Show parade.

Incidentally, their performance this year was pictured in hundreds of newspapers around the country. The photo went out on the Associated Press wire.

We received clippings this week from the Dallas Morning News and the Rockford, Ill. Register-Star. The Illinois newspaper invited readers to suggest their own captions under a picture of the Chickendales. Some of the suggestions were hilarious.

"Fellas, I think we laid an egg with this performance," write one reader. "We won. That diet of scrambled eggs and cracked corn really worked," said another.

"Here a chick, there a chick, everywhere a chick in the Wayne Chicken Show, E-I-E-I-O," suggested another ersatz editor.

"A show even old hens will enjoy," said another newspaper reader.

Marion Arneson won the trivia question ten spot from last week, though I think he must have had some inside information. The connection between Fort Dodge, Iowa and Wayne has to do with Decker Trucking. The Fort Dodge company is buying the 20,000th trailer being built at the Great Dane plant in Wayne.

There was another answer that no one got. If you park 20,000 trailers end to end, they would equal the exact distance to Fort Dodge. Stay tuned for future teasers.

Speaking of being tuned, we at the Wayne Herald are considering dropping the television listings out of the paper each week and utilizing the space and resources for more local news and feature coverage.

Recent readership surveys have indicated the listings are being used by only a very small percentage of the newspaper readership, they are very expensive to purchase and publish and readers say they would prefer having more local news coverage.

What do you think?

Endless string of appeals over

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — For the first time in 35 years, Nebraska will put a man to death for killing another human being this week.

At least that's what it looks like as this column is being written.

Harold Lamont "Walkin' Will" Otey is scheduled to take a long last walk to the electric chair at one minute to midnight Friday morning.

For some, it will mean that justice is finally served; for others, it will be the height of injustice that Otey dies while other murderers live.

It has been a long, frustrating haul to get to this point.

Otey raped and murdered an Omaha student/waitress in 1977. J. James Exon was governor then; Roland Luedtke was Speaker of the Legislature. Cars cost less than $10,000 and disco music was the rage.

The long drama of this case, played out in countless court appeals and hearings, has worn on both those supporting and those opposing the death penalty.

The seemingly endless string of appeals eat at proponents of capital punishment. The victims of these crimes didn't get so many delays, they say. When justice is delayed so long, they contend, disrespect is fostered toward our judicial system.

"Fry Will," they cried at a recent rally in Lincoln.

Opponents of the death penalty, however, express frustration, too.

They point to studies that indicate that capital punishment is not a deterrent to murder. And, they say studies show it is cheaper to house a killer for life without parole than pay the legal fees and court time required to leap through the legal hoops required to take someone's life.

Two former Nebraska governors, Frank Morrison and Bob Crosby, recently joined in writing state newspapers about their opposition to the death penalty.

They said the money wasted on court appeals should be used to help the dependents of the victims of these horrible crimes. And that convicted murderers should be required to work, with the salary benefiting those dependents.

"The death penalty, influenced as it is by the economic status and race of the defendant and victim, by the location of the crime, and by the skill of the attorneys, is more like a lottery than a system of justice," Govs. Morrison and Crosby wrote.

I wondered about that a week ago as I sat in a Lincoln courtroom. There, lawyers were trying to decide if Erwin Charles Simants — who killed six members of a Sutherland family in 1979 — could join groups of patients from a state mental hospital when they went on therapeutic outings in Lincoln.

Currently, his outings are restricted. He can go only with one-on-one supervision.

Simants and Otey belong to a sad sector of society that needs to be locked up forever. Everyone agrees on that. But it is ironic that one week we're debating how many people need to hold Simants' hand and the next week we're strapping Otey into an electric chair.

If Simants' first conviction had not been thrown out (because the county sheriff played cards with jurors as they reached a verdict), it would be Simants making the walk Friday morning. (Simants was found not guilty by reason of insanity at a second trial.)

This week's scheduled execution raises hundreds of questions just like this one. Don't count on it supplying the answers.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Mann Overboard

Stuff day would help us clean up

SYS means Sell Your Stuff!

You know, all that aging stuff in your closets, your basement, garage, and attic!

What do you plan to do with it all?

How about those old phono records that cost you $10 each, and you never play? You haven't donated them to the Salvation Army or Goodwill because you might play them someday! Bet you also have the phonograph! Since the advent of tape and CD's, are those timeworn space takers worth keeping? SYS!

How about those dusty books cluttering the shelves? But you might read them! You did once and you might want them as a reference someday.

Reference? When was the last time you did any serious research and reported on a subject? SYS!

Magazines! Got yours stored away? "I just hate throwing them away!" you say. Can you believe some of those mags were printed in the year of our Lord only knows when? SYS!

Many of us have stuff we don't even remember having. The drawers are full, the closets are jammed, the garage is bursting, the basement is filled and the attic is stuffed. Nevertheless, we think if we had just one more thing it would make us happy! Right?

If I could just have one more trinket, take one more trip, purchase one more antique, get a new car, or remodel the house, then I'd be happy! Happiness always perches on the next purchase. Smart marketing causes us to believe if we just had one more thing, Utopia! There are dozens of shoes in the closet, but you need one more pair to match the suit! Somewhere out there at rain-bow's end, after buying one more item, painting one more room, remodeling the kitchen or bathroom, getting new drapes, buying a new rocker and couch, renovating the rec room, acquiring one more rug, re-carpeting one more room, remodeling the basement, then profound joy will surely come!

How interesting, upon observing we have more stuff than we have room to store, we still want more! Does it ever end?

Here's my plan. Why don't we all just meet at the fair grounds with our stuff on "Stuff Day". I'll buy yours, and you buy mine. Simple!

At that time we'll finally have enough, living happily ever after!

If you believe that, I've actually got a final solution to wanting more!

But then, unfortunately, of course, it means departing this Earth!

Political statement

Dear Editor:

The letters from Clara Heineman and Jerry Vandeburg reinforce the fact that the monument in the cemetery makes a pro-life political statement. There is nothing wrong with that, just the location of the monument is wrong.

I disagree with Mr. Vandeburg that the monument commemorates all unborn lives. The focus seems to be strictly on the induced abortions. It does not remember the spontaneously aborted (acts of God?). There are more spontaneous abortions than induced. These fetuses mostly go down the toilet not into the trash bins, garbage disposals and incinerators. So why aren't they included on this monument? Because it's making a pro-life statement. Surely there is private or business property or one of the churches where the stone could be moved. That should end the controversy.

Betty Johanson
Wakfield

Still confused

Dear Editor:

The cemetery board has finally decided to remove the "baby" monument and the issues surrounding the monument are still being confused. Who turned the controversy into an abortion argument anyway? Certainly not those opposed to the stone. After reading the "Baby stone ordered out" article in the Aug. '19 edition, "Pro-Abortion supporters protested the erection of the monument...". I looked up all the articles and letters concerning the stone. The issues brought by those in opposition never took a stand on abortion one way or the other (with the exception of one who advocated choice). Since when does wishing to keep political and religious controversy out of a place that is supposed to be peaceful and serene make a person a pro-abortionist? I would suggest that the paper be very careful in applying labels to people without knowing the facts. McCarthyism is a dangerous thing.

Thanks Sievers

Dear Editor:

I want to thank Eileen Sievers for the great job she is doing at the cemetery.

Languages increasingly important

Learning a second language has become increasingly important in a diverse nation and in a world with advanced telecommunications.

And the importance of foreign language education is being felt by many schools across the country.

Edith Zahniser, a German teacher in Wayne, attended a presentation at South Dakota State University in Brookings Aug. 12 and 15. The presenter was Keith Cothrun, one of an 11-member task force for the National Standards in Foreign Language Education.

Cothrun presented a 75-page draft copy of national standard goals set for the year 2000 for students in kindergarten through grade 12. The draft contains content standards of what students should know and be able to do at varying grade levels. Although school curriculums are devised by their state, Cothrun said, this document creates a bridge between set national standards and curriculum requirements.

"Foreign language needs to be an integral part of everyone's education," Cothrun said. "There's going to be a real call for language educators as Americans realize the advantages of communicating in more than one language."

Zahniser said she appreciated getting an overview of the document and participating in a relaxed and interactive group discussion. "I will focus more on the national standards as I teach and plan a new curriculum," she said.

The document is not set in stone, Cothrun said. It's a constantly changing and evolving process. Traveling to places like SDSU, he said, allows the task force to set up forums with teachers to get their input. "If you want to initiate any changes in education, you have to make local teachers the players."

Donors cited

Pam Masching, director of donor resources for the Siouxland Blood Bank has cited donors for their support of the Allen Blood Drive held on Friday, Aug. 26 at the fire hall.

Twenty-one individuals volunteered to donate and 19 pints of blood were collected.

The Siouxland Blood Bank congratulated the following individuals: two gallon donor, Lyle Carlson and one gallon donor, Jacqueline Mitchell.

She issued a special thank you to the American Legion Auxiliary volunteers for their help in making the blood drive a success.

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

If we can't have a live baseball game, we can at least read about past glories. David Halberstam's "October 1964" and Mickey Mantle's "All My Octobers" recount the glory years when the New York Yankees dominated the game.

There are two new books about the "information highway" on the shelves. "Internet primer for information professionals: a basic guide to Internet Networking technology" by Elizabeth Lane Lawley and "The Internet Yellow Pages" by Harley Hahn (look in Reference section) are good sources of information about the fast-growing network.

Two books recently received take you "inside" Washington via the White House. H.R. Haldeman, "The Haldeman Diaries: inside the Nixon White House" and Bob Woodward, "The Agenda: inside the Clinton White House" should make for good reading — depending on your particular political viewpoint!

New videos on the shelf include "Thumbelina," Disney's "The Adventures of Huck Finn," "Spot Goes to the Farm" are all good children's stories. For those of you who can remember, "Roadsters, runabouts and country drives" should be like a Sunday afternoon ride in the old jalopy! Through the generosity of the Wayne Community Theatre we now have "The Diary of Adam and Eve; Take Five" and "Annie." That brings our collection up-to-date.

Don't forget the books on tape when you are facing a long trip by car. We have added these new titles: Mary Higgins Clark "That's the Ticket!"; Jonathan Winters, "The Best of Jonathan Winters"; Jack Higgins, "A Game for Heroes"; Louis L'Amour, "Riding for the Brand" and "Collect from a Corpse."

New on the adult fiction shelf — "Last Tango in Brooklyn" by Kirk Douglas; "First Offense" by Nancy Taylor Rosenberg; "Until You" by Judith McNaught; "Debt of Honor" by Tom Clancy; "The Homing" by John Saul; "Pretty Boy Floyd" by Larry McMurtry; and "The Gift" by Danielle Steel.

And then for those who are planning ahead for Halloween, you may like to check out Face Painting by Lyns Pinsent, Make Costumes! by Priscilla Hershberger or The No-Sew Costume Book by Michaeline Bresnahan, for some great ideas!

With the approach of Labor Day comes new library hours. Monday through Friday, 12:30 to 8:30 p.m., Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sundays, 2 to 5 p.m. The new hours begin on Tuesday, Sept. 5. The library will be closed on Labor Day Monday, Sept. 4.

Research funds touted

Northeast Nebraska is not getting its fair share of the University of Nebraska's agricultural research, Dr. Keith Vrbicky, Norfolk, university regent candidate, told the Madison County Extension Service Board at an 8 p.m. meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 30 at the county extension service building.

Vrbicky said the university's Northeast Research and Extension Center at Concord serves 22 percent of the farms in the state but has only 16 percent of the professional staff assigned to such centers in Nebraska.

"Correcting this disparity in service to Northeast Nebraska," Vrbicky said, "will be one of my top priorities if I am elected as a regent."

Strengthening the extension staff in Northeast Nebraska will help improve agricultural profitability and increase food processing in the area, according to Vrbicky.

Scholarships available

High school seniors planning to attend college in the fall of 1995 should apply for financial aid and scholarships early — perhaps as early as this fall.

According to college planners, scholarships are available through corporations, foundations, trade associations and numerous other groups, but applications often are received too late for consideration. Some deadlines may be as early as a year in advance.

Among the organizations offering college scholarships is Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL), a fraternal benefit society based in Appleton, Wis.

AAL offers three scholarship programs to high school seniors who are AAL members: the All-College Scholarship, the Vocational/Technical School Scholarship and the Lutheran Campus Scholarship.

The All-College Scholarship is available to AAL members who are graduating high school seniors planning to enroll at any accredited college or university in the United States. Scholarship recipients are selected based on junior year class ranking and SAT or ACT results. Scholarships in the All-College program range from $550 for one year to $2,000 for four years. Last year, 870 AAL members received scholarships totaling more than $1.25 million.

High school seniors who are AAL members and are interested in attending a vocational or technical school can apply for the AAL Vocational/Technical School Scholarship. The scholarship is available to members who plan to enroll in an accredited vocational or technical institute or two-year college. Awards for $500 are given for full-time study and $250 for half-time study. Each year, 100 scholarship recipients are selected.

Applications for the AAL All-College and Vocational/Technical School scholarships must be submitted by Nov. 30.

AAL members planning to attend one of the 49 Lutheran colleges, universities or Bible institutes are eligible for the Lutheran Campus Scholarship. Awards range from $200 to $1,000 annually.

Students interested in the AAL Lutheran Campus Scholarship should contact the financial aid office of the college or institute they are planning to attend for application deadlines and selection criteria. Students can apply for both the All-College and Lutheran Campus programs; however, if selected for both, recipients can accept only one scholarship.

As part of its fraternal commitment to enable Lutherans to help themselves and others, AAL maintains one of the country's largest systems of private scholarships. For more information about AAL's scholarship programs, contact your local AAL district representative.

Poets sought for anthology

The National Library of Poetry has announced that $12,000 in prizes will be awarded this year to over 250 poets in the North American Open Poetry Contest. The deadline for the contest is Sept. 30. The contest is open to everyone and entry is free.

Any poet, whether previously published or not, can be a winner. Every poem entered also has a chance to be published in a deluxe, hardbound anthology.

To enter, send one original poem, any subject and any style, to The National Library of Poetry, 11419 Cronridge Drive, P.O. Box 704-1981, Owings Mills, MD 21117. The poem should be no more than 20 lines, and the poet's name and address should appear on the top of the page. Entries must be postmarked by Sept. 30. A new contest opens Oct. 1.

Blood given in Wayne

Sixty-seven individuals volunteered to donate, and 63 pints of blood were collected during the Wayne blood drive held on Thursday, Aug. 25 at Providence Medical Center.

"Our ability to fulfill our commitment to our hospital patients is dependent on the support of local communities like yours," she said.

The Siouxland Blood Bank congratulated the following individuals: six gallon donor, Larry Hansen; five gallon donor, Alan Niemann; four gallon donor, Leon Meyer; three gallon donors, Lyle George and Kenneth Liska; and first time donors, Jill Hanna and, Carrie Pochop.

Sugar, Sugar Substitutes, and Hyperactive Children

A long-standing belief held by many parents is that excess amounts of sugar and other sweeteners cause children to be hyperactive. Studies of the effect of sweeteners on normal and hyperactive children have shown conflicting results. In two studies sugar did not produce an stimulating effect on young boys who were labeled as "sugar-reactive." These studies have been criticized based on study design. A study published recently in the New England Journal of Medicine evaluated children whose parents said there were behavioral or cognitive (learning) problems due to sugar or aspartame (a sugar substitute). They were compared to children whose parents said that sugar did not cause problems. Parents and teachers rated each child weekly. Researchers concluded that preschool and school-age children did not suffer adverse behavioral or cognitive effects from high levels of sugar or aspartame.

Bruggeman - Nixon married at Wayne

Marnie Bruggeman of Lincoln became the bride of Kyle Nixon, also of Lincoln, during a ceremony Aug. 6 at Grace Lutheran Church in Wayne.

The bride is the daughter of Dean and Diane Bruggeman of Wayne and the groom is the son of Lonnie and Marcia Nixon of Laurel.

Rev. Jeff Anderson officiated at the afternoon double-ring ceremony.

Lisa Benson, Holstein, Iowa sang "Only God Could Love You More". Claudia Dvorak, Laurel, sang "He Has Chosen You For Me". Bonnie Hansen was the organist and Daniel Hansen played the trumpet. Both are from Carroll.

Wearing a white satin gown with full skirt and cathedral length train, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bodice of her gown featured a sweetheart neckline and off the shoulder short sleeves. The gown was embellished with seed pearls, iridescent sequins and lace.

She carried a cascade of white lilies, mini carnations, roses, stephanotis, pearls and greenery.

Maid of honor was Heidi Reeg, cousin of the bride, from Wayne.

Bridesmaids were Stacy Nixon, Laurel, sister of the groom; Kristy Hansen, Lincoln; Liz Reeg, Wayne, cousin of the bride; Suzy Lutt, Omaha, and Michelle Prescott, Sioux City.

The attendants wore black crepe dresses in tea length.

Jessica Dickey, Wayne, was flower girl. Candle lighters were Ann Swerczek, Wayne, and Christie Hall, Carroll. The bride's personal attendants were her cousin, Cher Reeg, Wayne, and Stephany Madsen, Lincoln.

Jay Lake, Omaha, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Nixon

Groomsmen were Matt Bruggeman, Kearney, brother of the bride; Tyler Nixon, Laurel, brother of the groom; Greg Lambers, Lincoln, Steve Schmitt, Laurel, and Brad Prescott, Sioux City.

Serving as ushers were Jed Reeg, Lawrence, Kans., cousin of the bride; Larry Rassmussen, Lincoln; Tony and Matt Krusemark, Wakefield, cousins of the groom.

A reception at Riley's Convention Center in Wayne followed the ceremony.

After a wedding trip to Colorado, the couple is at home in Lincoln where she is a substitute teacher in the Lincoln School system and he is a student at UNL and an employee of United Parcel Service.

The new Mrs. Nixon is a graduate of Wayne High School and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Her husband is a graduate of Laurel High School.

Who should teach children about sex?

QUESTION: Who should teach children about sex and when should that instruction begin?

DR. DOBSON: For those parents who are able to handle the instruction process correctly, the responsibility for sex education should remain in the home.

There is a growing trend for all aspects of education to be taken from the hands of the parents (or the role is deliberately forfeited by them). This is unwise. Particularly in the matter of sex education, the best approach is one that begins in early childhood and extends through the years, according to a policy of openness, frankness and honesty. Only parents can provide this lifetime training.

The child's need for information and guidance can rarely be met in one massive conversation provided by reluctant parents as their child approaches adolescence. Nor does a concentrated, formal educational program outside the home offer the same advantages derived from a gradual enlightenment that begins during the third or fourth year of life and reaches culmination shortly before puberty.

QUESTION: We have a 1-year-old daughter, and we want to raise her right. I've heard that parents can increase the mental abilities of their own children if they stimulate them properly during the early years. Is this accurate, and if so, how can I accomplish this with my baby?

DR. DOBSON: Research indicates that parents can increase the intellectual capability of their children. This conclusion was one of the most important findings derived from a 10-year study of children between 8 and 18 months of age. This investigation, known as Harvard University's Preschool Project, was guided by Dr. Burton L. White and a team of 15 researchers between 1965 and 1975.

They studied young children intensely during this period, hoping to discover which experiences in the early years of life contribute to the development of a healthy, intelligent human being. The conclusions from this exhaustive effort are summarized below as reported originally in APA Monitor.

Dr. Dobson

Answers Your Questions

1. It is increasingly clear that the origins of human competence are to be found in a critical period of development between 8 and 18 months of age. The child's experiences during these brief months do more to influence future intellectual competence than any time before or after.

2. The single most important environmental factor in the life of the child is his mother. "She is on the hook," said Dr. White, and carries more influence on her child's experiences than any other person or circumstance.

3. The amount of live language directed to a child (not to be confused with television, radio or overheard conversations) is vital to the development of fundamental linguistic, intellectual and social skills.

4. Those children who are given free access to living areas of their homes progress much faster than those whose movements are restricted.

5. The nuclear family is the most important educational delivery system. If we are going to produce capable, healthy children, it will be by strengthening family units and by improving the interactions that occur within them.

6. The best parents were those who excelled at three functions:

1. They were superb designers and organizers of their children's environments.

2. They permitted their children to interrupt them for brief, 30-second episodes; during which personal consultation, comfort, information and enthusiasm were exchanged.

3. They corrected their children when necessary, while simultaneously showing great affection for their children.

These conclusions are exciting to me, for I find within them an affirmation and validation of the concepts which I have devoted my entire professional career: the dedication of mothers during the early years; the value of raising children; the stability of the family, etc.

Your Medicap pharmacist

Pharmacy Education

Do you ever wonder what kind of education is required to become a pharmacist? Each registered pharmacist has completed a pharmacy program at a college of pharmacy, and passed a licensing exam. The 5 year Bachelor of Science college program encompasses chemistry, biology, anatomy, and many courses on drug therapy and action. Once they begin working, registered pharmacists must obtain continuing education each year to insure that each pharmacist is current with new advances in the health care system. Some colleges of pharmacy also offer a Doctor of Pharmacy degree, either as a post-graduate degree or a 6 year program. Some colleges are no longer offering the 5 year Bachelor of Science degree and only offer the 6 year Doctor of Pharmacy degree. They believe the additional education is necessary as pharmacy becomes more challenging with the advances in health care. Use the education of your pharmacist, for they are the medication experts!

Is a Thing of Beauty a Joy Forever?

Breathe springtime freshness into your winter-wear draperies with professional drycleaning care. Removing airborne soil helps prevent fabric deterioration and extends the life of your draperies.

While your dry-cleaner can, and often does, perform miracles in restoring beauty and freshness to your draperies, there are some stains that are very difficult to remove. These are stains that were present when you gave your draperies to the drycleaner but didn't appear until after the soil was removed. "Water rings" and yellowish stains are caused by moisture that comes in contact with the fabric. Moisture can come from open or leaking windows, radiators, moisture build-up in the home, or pets. Call or stop in today!

New challenges face new Wayne A.D. Marlene Uhing

By Kevin Peterson
Sports editor

New Wayne High Athletic Director Marlene Uhing faces many challenges in her first year as the Blue Devil A.D. but the former volleyball and basketball coach is ready to meet those challenges head on.

Uhing, a graduate of Mt. Marty College taught and coached for 10 years at Hartington Cedar Catholic before coming to Wayne in 1985. She takes over the athletic directorship from Ron Carnes. Uhing has two master's degrees and is working towards a specialist degree in educational administration from Wayne State College.

Upon completion of the specialist degree, Uhing would be able to be a school administrator. She is currently two-thirds of the way through the program.

Wayne High has been moved to Class C this year—down one class from where they've been for many years. The reclassification system designed by the Nebraska Schools Activities Association affects the majority of schools in the state as Class A went from 32 to 24 teams and Class B picked up the next 32 largest schools.

"Class B used to have 64 schools and Class A, 32" Uhing said. "Now, we have the top 56 schools in the state in enrollment making up Classes A and B instead of the top 96."

Uhing said there isn't a lot you can do about the reclassification format so you might as well turn it into a positive situation. "Overall, I don't consider being moved to Class C-1 a step down because of the decrease in teams from 96 to 56 in the top two classes," Uhing said. "Our track teams and girls golf team will still be competing in Class B as will our non-athletic teams, speech and drama."

"At any rate," Uhing added, "playing on the C-1 level should make us stronger and we'll be playing a very competitive schedule."

This season, Wayne's volleyball, girls basketball and boys basketball teams will be playing post-season sub-districts prior to the district championship whereas in the past, it's been simply eight-team districts.

Wayne's sub-district will consist of Tekamah-Herman, Hooper-Logan View and West Point and the winner of the sub-district will play the winner from the sub-district containing Albion, Battle Creek, Norfolk Catholic and Madison for a state tournament berth. Six of the eight total teams were Class B a year ago.

Uhing said in the past some of the dilemma's of fitting out a schedule in our area stemmed from Wayne being a Class B school—too big to compete against.

Uhing said the schools in the state had a say in the reclassification format and the new format is what resulted. "We really need to give this a chance before we judge for or against it," Uhing said.

The football format next year, however, will be different again as all 64 teams in Class C-1 earn a state playoff berth. The regular season schedule of nine games will be trimmed to seven with the playoffs beginning by seeding, in week eight.

Of course the biggest difference in this format is the NSAA receives the gate receipts for all state contests and with Wayne trimming two games off its schedule, it could turn out to be the two biggest gate receipts of the season because Hartington Cedar Catholic and Pierce are currently the final two regular season games for Wayne each year and they have yielded the best receipts in the past.

PERHAPS THE BIGGEST challenge for Uhing will be the search for a conference. At the end of the 1994-95 school year the Northern Activities Conference consisting of Wayne, Hartington Cedar Catholic, South Sioux and O'Neill will dis-band. The only school of the four that hasn't already been accepted into a new conference is Wayne.

"As of right now, we're kind of in limbo," Uhing said. "We've been trying to get into the Mid States Conference and talks are continuing but as of now, we're independent."

Uhing said finding a conference is important for financial reasons as well as easing the schedule search. "Coaches always want to be a member of a conference because it gives them new goals," Uhing said.

Wayne already finds itself playing the majority of the teams in the Mid States Conference which is a positive sign and the Blue Devils have good fan support which is what conference officials want.

"We also have some sports that not all the conference members have which could help give a boost to the conference," Uhing said. "Another pro that we should look at is the resources available with Wayne State," Uhing added.

On the cons side right now, some Mid States officials do not want an extra school in the sports that field eight teams already. Also, O'Neill had been promised first consideration if and when the Mid States ever accepted any more schools but they've recently inked with the Rangeland Conference.

"For the most part, the talks with Mid States officials has been positive," Uhing said. "We'll just have to wait and see. The next meeting for the conference is in September and we'll continue to apply."

Uhing said no matter what happens with the Mid States the search for a conference will continue. "We can't afford to put all our eggs in one basket," Uhing said. "Ideally, however, the Mid States appears to be our best option at this point."

UHING ALSO finds herself in a unique situation as being the athletic director in that there are only a handful of female A.D.'s in the whole state. "I think the fact that the administration appointed me to the position reflects well on them," Uhing said. "I really appreciate this opportunity and I really enjoy working with the coaches."

Uhing said she feels the athletic department as a unit should share in the same goals as the rest of the school. "I think the vision of the athletic department should be tied directly with the vision of the school," she said. I plan on making decisions based on what's best for our athletes first, followed by the coaches and for what the community wants."

The former coach said there's a real big difference between coaching and being an athletic director. As a coach, you're focused solely on building your program," Uhing said. "As an A.D., you get to look at the whole picture and you don't get caught up in building just one area but all the programs and how one affects the other—that process itself really motivates me."

One last scrimmage

Wayne State football quarterback Ray Powers calls out the signals before the snap of the ball during Saturday's final scrimmage before this weekend's season opening tilt with the UNO Mavericks. The contest will be played at Memorial Field in Wayne at 1:30 p.m.

Cornhusker QB transfers to WSC

By Kevin Peterson
Sports editor

One of the most sought after quarterbacks in major college football last year was Sioux City West signal-caller Jon Elder. In fact, Elder had home visits from the likes of Notre Dame's Lou Holtz and of course, Big Red mentor Tom Osborne.

After much deliberation, Elder chose to become a Cornhusker. During that recruiting process Wayne State head coach Dennis Wagner made a brief appearance at the Elder home just to let him know that the Wildcats would like to have him on their team as well.

"We knew Jon was getting a lot of Division I attention," Wagner said. "I just told him then that if things didn't work out where ever he chose, to give us a call."

Elder signed his national letter of intent to attend the University of Nebraska and appeared to be on his way in the so-called "big's." Things, however, did not appear to be working out for Elder and before the Huskers took the field in East Rutherford, New Jersey in Sunday's Kickoff Classic, Elder had already enrolled at Wayne State and had changed from a Husker to a Wildcat.

Due to the fact that Elder signed a national letter of intent and did not spend a full season at his chosen school, he must not only sit out a year from playing football, but he loses a year of eligibility.

"This was a pleasant surprise for us," Wagner said. "No one knew he was unhappy in Lincoln and even if we did, it's an NCAA violation to start talking with anyone after they've signed a national letter of intent."

Wagner said Elder called Wayne State a week ago Monday night and on Tuesday he showed up after practice with his parents. "As a college, we couldn't say anything until after he had enrolled for classes which he did Wednesday morning," Wagner said.

Although Elder has to sit out a season, he can still practice with the Wildcats which he began doing Wednesday. "Jon came from a high school that pretty much runs an offense like ours," Wagner said. "He's a very talented quarterback but he's not that strong of an option quarterback which Nebraska relies a lot on."

Wagner also said that when the Wildcats are recruiting athletes that are getting Division I attention he always tells them if they are ever unhappy to give WSC a call. "I believe we always have to leave the door open to those kinds of players," Wagner said. "If we are recruiting a kid that can't decide between Division II schools and he doesn't choose us, we're not likely to give them the same courtesy by leaving the door open."

Tailgate party set for WSC's opener

The Wayne State Wildcats will open their 1994 football campaign at home against the UNO Mavericks on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. but pre-game festivities will begin at noon with a tailgate party.

The tailgate will be under the big top at Memorial Stadium sponsored by the Milton G. Waldbaum Company. Grilled chicken breast will be the featured entree, prepared and delivered by Pac-N-Save of Wayne.

The food is free for anyone with a reserve game ticket and $3 for those who don't possess one. For ticket information call 375-7526. All general admission tickets are $5 each and are available at the gate.

UNO fans attending the game will be seated in the East stands while Wildcat fans will be seated in the West stands. The WSC student section will be seated in the end zones on both sides of the field.

Wildcat spikers to begin year, Thursday

The Wayne State volleyball team will begin their season at home, Thursday when they host the Chadron State Eagles in a 7 p.m. contest in Rice Auditorium.

Second year coach Sharon Vanis looks to turn around last season's performance of 9-28 with a successful and productive season this year.

Vanis has five returning starters from last year's team, yet still have just one senior on the squad in setter and team captain Jaime Melton.

Leading hitter Lora Grant returns to the Wildcat team for her junior season as does right side hitter Annette Fluckey and middle hitter Laura Pfister. Sophomore Jennifer Svitek will return to her starting middle hitter position.

This experienced crew of spikers will look to set the example for ten new Wildcats (eight incoming freshman and two transfers.) The two junior transfers are Tammy Gabienz, a right side hitter from Platte Community College in Columbus and Carol Sigdestad, an outside hitter from San Bernadino Valley College in California.

The eight newcomers include; Pam Drickey, a middle hitter from Spencer; Renee Fuhr, an outside hitter from Columbus; Jill Grant, an outside hitter from Elkhorn; Amy Gudmundson, a middler hitter from Kearney; Jennifer Hinman, a middle hitter from Callaway; Tina Masek, a right side hitter from Valparaiso; Kari Pichler, a setter from Winside, and Jennifer Reed, a middle hitter from Winterset, Iowa.

THE WAYNE STATE volleyball team will open the 1994 season campaign on Thursday night in the friendly confines of Rice Auditorium against Chadron State at 7 p.m.

HONOR MEMBERS

It was announced at the Aug. 2 meeting of Golden Rod Chapter 106 that Euginia Pospisil and Eulalie Maxim will be 50 year members. Mrs. Pospisil will be honored during a special day at the Wakefield Health Care Center and Maxim will also be presented her pin.

The July 5 meeting brought a thank you from Melissa Wirth for receiving the OES Scholarship. A joint Masonic/Star sweet corn feed was planned but was later decided to just sell the corn. Robert Jones gave the obligation. Allen Hickson read the Landmarks. Hosts were Tom and Brenda Gustafson. The Grand Officers visit was July 20 in Hartington and Wakefield was in charge of decorations.

Correspondence at the Aug. 2 meeting included announcing 4-H Achievement Day on Aug. 20; a thank you from the Grand Officers; Start on the Happy Heart Project in which Golden Rod will participate 100%.

Worthy Matron Mary Ellen Sundell thanked the pro-term officers for taking over during Alvin's eye surgery recuperation. Mrs. Sundell and Bonnie Bressler spoke of the visitation in Hartington. The decorations made by Paul Byers will also be used for 1995 Grand Chapter. Hosts were Charlene Schroeder and Harold Lewin.

Friendship Night will be observed on Sept. 6 with Brenda Gustafson in charge of the program. Hosts will be Paul and Norma Byer, Ronnie Gotch and Barbara Strivens. Officers are reminded to wear their formal outfits for the evening. Aug. 29 has been set as a cleaning night beginning at 6:30 pm with a small dinner provided for the workers.

Bonnie Bressler showed the angel pins which sell for $4 each. She also reported that JoAnn Koehler was appointed Grand Representative Iowa in Nebraska.

APPOINTED TO COUNCIL

At a special City Council meeting recently, Tom Henderson was appointed to fill the unexpired term of councilman Terry Trube. Trube submitted his resignation to Mayor Lefty Olson earlier this month. Trube has accepted a job out of town and he and his family will be moving.

Trube's term would have expired at the end of the year and he had filed for re-election. Henderson had also filed for the council position from Ward II. Henderson was also appointed to serve on the recently formed Wakefield Community Redevelopment Authority Board.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The Wakefield Community Foundation is continuing its membership drive. To date these additional persons have become members: Rodney Garwood, Dennis Wilbur, Mardell Wilson, Kathy Johnson, Norman Minola, Val Bard, Marvin Bichel, David Gardner, Michelle Simons, Larry Soderberg, Sidney Preston, Butch Utemark, Tom Anderson, Harry Mills, Jean Minola, Leslie Bebee, Dan Gardner, Merlyn Holm, Connie Utecht, Charles Soderberg, Gary VanMeter, Randy Lanning, Lowell Johnson, Ardeth Mills, Vivian Olson, Tim Bebee, Jeannie Gardner, Edell Peterson, Roy Wiggins and Paul Eaton.

NEW SALES TEAM

A new sales team is now in place at Ekberg Auto Parts.

Sandy Thiel, who started the first of April, is now managing the store and handling outside sales in Wakefield, Allen and Concord. She has more than 20 years of experience in the automotive parts industry.

Tom Jones of Wayne began his job as counter salesman recently. He previously worked at a Big A Auto Parts store in Laurel and at a NAPA store in Wayne. He also has more than 20 years experience in the industry.

ATTEND CONFERENCE

Three Wakefield teachers, Kathy Mitchell, Jennifer Goos and Susan Tyler attended the 1994 Nebraska Vocational Education Conference in Kearney Aug. 9-11. The Theme of the conference was Vocational Education: Gateway to Living and Working.

The sessions included motivational speeches, exhibits and rotational topics in areas relating to business, technology and family and consumer sciences.

PEO MEETS

PEO Chapter CZ met at The Hotel Aug. 15 with Sandra Driskell and Karen Jones as hostesses. The meeting was presided over by President Brenda Gustafson.

A reciprocity meeting will be held at the First Lutheran Church in Oakland on Sept. 10 at noon. Tickets are available for $7. Any members wishing to attend should contact Vivian Muller no later than Aug. 31.

The Sept. 29 meeting will be at Mary Ellen Sundell's home with Shelly Anderson as co-hostess. Kathy Muller will present a program on Nebraska.

SCHOLARSHIP

Shawn Meyer has been awarded a $700 scholarship from the Beta Sigma Psi Educational Foundation to continue his education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The scholarship funds are provided by alumni of the fraternity.

Shawn, a graduate of Wakefield High School is majoring in Agricultural Engineering at UNL.

Old house has great features

The house we live in is one hundred years old, and has a lot of interesting features: ten foot ceilings, wainscoting, hardwood floors, a long staircase.

But the thing I love most about it is the front porch, which has become the most-photographed front porch in this county, and the porch swing.

My Grandpa's house is Waco had a front porch to the north, just like this one; with an old porch swing for grandchildren to daydream in on long summer days.

It's the most relaxing thing to sit there and swing back and forth. It's a great stress-buster; I can literally feel the tension slip away.

When the grandsons were here a couple of weeks ago, Alex was cutting teeth and cranky. So, in the evening, I'd take him to the porch swing. It always calmed him.

The fireflies have been magnificent this summer. The out of state guests have been intrigued by them. We hosted a family from Colorado whose father used to own the house. The grandchildren had never seen fireflies. And they staged a wonderful show for them that night.

One of my Hospice patients had a glider chair in his living room. I sat in it whenever I visited, and always commented on how comfortable it was. He'd been gone a year and a half when I came home to find one at my back door.

By Pat Meierhenry

David put it together for me, and it's on the front porch, too. If someone else is in the swing, the glider chair provides the same effect.

A grey cat adopted us several months ago, and blessed us with kittens in July. At first, they were in the wood box in the basement.

During my class reunion, too many people were looking. So she moved them to the doll house in the garage. When our guests from Dallas found them there, she moved them one last time to a window well next to the porch.

Now, she stretches out for a nap while I rock. We make a very lazy pair. But I'm not going to need valium as long as I have a front porch.

Bumper soy crop could help foreign trade

The bumper soybean crop being predicted by the USDA, has led to brisk advanced sales of U.S. soybeans to foreign countries. According to Steve Censky, Executive Director of International Marketing for the American Soybean Association (ASA), "With the new marketing year beginning Sept. 1, we're seeing outstanding sales. Registrations for sales are going way, way up. Europe is back in a big way. Mexico is buying heavily and overall our exports worldwide are really showing a marked improvement."

Despite strong sales to Japan and Mexico last marketing year, overall export sales of U.S. soybeans were down 25 percent from the previous year. "Our exports last year were affected predictably by the flooding in much of the Midwest," commented Censky.

According to Censky, two of the main reasons for the early increase in export sales, is having a bigger than predicted supply and the fact that the South American exporters are pretty much sold out. Censky added that worldwide demand for soybeans and soybean meal has increased as well. "As incomes rise around the world, consumers are demanding more and more meat products in their diet. Of course if they want pork or poultry, a big component of hog and chicken rations is soybean meal." Much of the promotional efforts of ASA has been to work with foreign livestock producers to demonstrate the high protein content and higher quality of U.S. soybeans and soybean meal.

Traditionally strong foreign buyers, like Japan and Mexico, are expected to purchase increased quantities of U.S. soybeans in the upcoming marketing year. But Censky points out, that promising new markets like the one in South-east Asia, are spurring hopes of big increases in export sales. "Comparing this year to last year, USDA is projecting increased exports of about 15 percent. I'm optimistic. I think we can do better than that." And based on the positive results of promotional efforts that have been conducted by the American Soybean Association and Checkoff, Censky's optimism is well founded.
