118TH YEAR — NO. 6

Crops 'probably the best'

By Les Mann Of the Herald

With the 1994 harvest about half way done, Wayne County Extension Agent Rod Patent had glowing words about the prospect of near record crop yields and conditions.

About the only things local agricultural producers can't look to with joy are commodity prices.

Yields, moisture conditions and test weights have all come in great, said Patent. But local farmers need those advantages to balance the price declines which have corn returning them less than $1.90 per bushel and soybeans resting at $4.80.

"THIS IS PROBABLY the best crop, condition-wise and yield wise, this area has had for a very long time." said Patent. Even the weather has been cooperative for the most part he said.

Evenly spaced rains have created built-in rest periods during the harvest season. Plus, this year there isn't the frantic effort to get the crops in before snow and other damaging conditions reduce the return, the way there was the last two years.

Local elevators report over 90 percent of the soybean crop is in the bins with the average yields in the 55 bushels per acre range compared to about 40 bushels per acre last year. Some local farmers have enjoyed yields up to 65 bushels per acre reports the Carroll Elevator. Condition of the crop when it arrives at the elevator has been reported as well above average.

FOR THE CORN crop, local 15 percent with yield reports well above average at over 125 bushels per acre. Winside Grain and Feed reports an average yield to date of 160 bushels but Rich Beemer said that lofty figure may come down as more of the harvest comes in Some of the early fields have vielded as much as 200 bushels, he said but with only ten percent of the area fields harvested the 160 bushel average is not likely to hold as less productive fields are figured into the total.

In the Winside area, test weights have been coming in at 56 to 57 pounds and moisture content of the corn crop has been averaging 18 percent. Carroll reports show 56 pound test weights and 17.5 percent moisture average.

WAYNE GRAIN and Feed reports from 30 to 35 percent of the area corn crop in with yields averaging 150 bushels per acre. Some fields have recorded 200 bushels locally. Crop conditions have been excellent reports Jason Berg. Moisture. content has been much dryer this year with some samples showing as little as 14 percent, he said. Soy-beans have averaged upwards of 55 bushels he said with some farmers reporting 70 bushels.

By comparison last year at this time only about 65 percent of the soybeans were harvested and almost none of the corn was in the bins. Corn yields in 1993 ended up around 100 bushels per acre on average last season and there were considerable drying costs as the late season caused moisture levels to be high. The harvest last year was about three weeks behind this year's schedule.

The Wayne Library Foundation has received a $5,000 grant from the Omaha World Herald Foundation it was announced this week.

John Gottschalk, president and chief executive officer of the newspaper company said the employee owners of the World-Herald are pleased to assist in the Wayne project and sent best wishes for its successful completion.

"As the major newspaper in the state, it is obvious the World-Herald stands ready to support community improvements such as our library/ senior center," said Wayne Library Foundation chairman Pat Gross, "We are very pleased the World-Herald has chosen to assist our drive and the community of Wayne," he added.

The latest funds bring to over $460,000 the amount committed to the Wayne project from private funds to date. A $125,000 challenge grant from the Peter Kiewit Foundation in Omaha is figured into that total.

The Kiewit Grant must be matched by additional funding from local sources. Members of the community pledged $331,000 earlier in the year during the major portion of the funding campaign before the pas-sage of a one cent sales tax which will be used to help build the facil-

Professional troupe stages 'Golden Pond'

Troupe America, Inc. will present Ernest Thompson's classic play "On Golden Pond" on Wednesday, Nov. 9 at Wayne State College.

The performance, at 8 p.m. in Wayne State's Fine Arts Building, is part of the college's 1994-95 Black & Gold Series.

As a young boy, the playwright Thompson spent summers with his family on a lake in Main. The adventures he had there, fishing, telling stories and feeling the nurturing weave of his family's lives give "On Golden Pond," his hit Broadway play, its warm glow.

The play's gems are the perfor-Thompson has given his crusty characters wise and wonderful things to say about coming to terms with mortality. Investment club earns while it learns

By Les Mann Of the Herald

Learning the ins and outs of investing and hopefully earning in the processes has been the goal of a twoear-old investment club in Wayne.

Formed in 1993 by a group of women to help them learn more about financial investing and the stock market, the club meets monthly to socialize, hear experts on invest-ing and plan investment strategies for the club treasury.

Each month the members contribute at least $20 to the club's investment pool and they share in the profits of the club's investments based on the amounts they have contributed.

"IT'S GREAT FUN and it has been a great way to learn," said Pam Potter, president of the club, which is called the E & L Investments Club. The E & L stands for earning and learning. The group has done more learning than earning in its first two years, she explained. Their portfolio reached a profit level for the first time last month, well ahead of the averages for new investment clubs. she said. Experts advised the group not to expect to see a profit from their investments for more than two

The 21 women who are members of the club are showing assets of nearly $12,000 after two years of earning and learning. They celebrated their second anniversary with cake during their business meeting Tuesday night.

The Chair of the Nebraska State College Board of Trustees announced new efforts to ensure that the State Colleges at Wayne, Chadron and Peru are in compliance with newly-revised board policies

Dr. Kathy Swanson of Alliance said she has asked the Academic Affairs Subcommittee of the board to coordinate the effort. Dr. Larry Schultz, associate director for academic affairs and legal services for the state college system will work with the committee. Board member Jerry Conway of Wayne is chair of the subcommittee.

"Given the relative newness of the revisions — in some instances, overhauls — we are making sure, from a system perspective, that the policies and procedures are known no misunderstanding about either the content of the policies or the intent of the board to oversee

Most of the revised policies received Board approval in June, 1993, with others being approved since then in November and March. Policies involve academic issues such as program review and transfer of credits; personnel issues such as grievance procedures and standards for promotion and tenure; student affairs procedures, including conduct and discipline and due process; and financial procedures and computerrelated acquisitions.

The campuses have been asked by the system office, through Dr. Schultz, to provide a report on compliance with board policies at the Jan. 12 board meeting.

Highlights of their season included a first place win at the Wynot Junior High Volleyball Tournament, where they defeated Osmond and Wynot. Coach Tim Stubbs said "the girls played with a lot of con-fidence. They ran the offense well and played great defense. Starters were Shannon Jaeger, Amanda Paulsen, Amy Riley and Sonya Sievers. The team did an outstanding job of serving, especially Amanda, Amy and Sonya. Jessica Janke and Becky Fleer served well coming off the bench.
