119TH YEAR — NO. 14

Detention Center survives vote

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Northeast Nebraska's troubled juvenile detention center in Wayne will stay open and the center's administrator will remain at his job, the board of directors decided Wednesday.

Center administrator Greg Eckel had said before the meeting that there was criticism of management practices and he could lose his job, the center could close, or both.

After coming out of an executive session called to discuss personnel matters, the board voted 13-0 to keep the center open and 12-1 to keep Eckel as administrator. Eckel has been head of the center for two years.

But the board said an executive committee would be appointed to formulate guidelines on how they want the administrator to operate and Eckel's performance would be reviewed at a later date.

The board also said that board attorney Chris Connolly of Wayne will act as spokesman for the detention center especially in discussions with the press.

Before going into executive session, board members were told by their accountant, Marta Nelson, that for the first time in several years, the Northeast Nebraska Juvenile Services Inc. center was in good financial shape.

Increased rates charged to counties that use the center and cost-cutting decisions helped bring the financial picture around, the board was told.

"Financially, we're really sound," said Jim Huggenberger, chairman of the board and a Dakota County commissioner.

But board members remained concerned about the amount of support from counties and what kind of help can be expected in trying to build a bigger and better designed facility.

Connolly told the Herald that Wayne was not the front runner in the sites being considered for a new center, but he added, the process of building a new center had probably been delayed by the decline in the number of counties involved and the other problems the facility has faced.

At one time there were 20 county members, but now the center is down to 14 and two American Indian tribes.

Madison County Sheriff Vern Hjorth said it is the board's responsibility to recruit those counties that have dropped away from the center. Hjorth said it would be difficult for sheriffs to find a place to send juveniles if the center were closed. His concerns over handling of juvenile cases if the center were closed were echoed by other county sheriffs at the Wednesday meeting, including Wayne County's LeRoy Janssen.

JDC board member Jerry Pospishil said a main problem the center has is not getting the full support of commissioners from each of the participating counties.

In July, Platte County Judge Gerald Rouse wrote a letter to the Nebraska Crime Commission, saying at least six prisoners at the center were assaulted by fellow prisoners and he would no longer send juveniles to the detention center because of lack of supervision.

Judges Mary Gilbride of Wahoo and Curtis Evans of York also reported that juveniles they had sent to Wayne have been threatened or assaulted, Rouse's letter said.

But that crisis calmed down and the judges have been sending teenagers to the center since September, Eckel has said.

An Oct. 31 letter from Kathy Moore, chair of the Nebraska Coalition for Juvenile charged mismanagement at the center as a reason for the rejection of a $32,500 grant requested by the board. The grant had been requested to help fund staff positions.

Ms. Moore told the board in her letter that the grant would not be considered until "significant man-

Zoning regs delayed

Zoning regulations for Wayne County will not be approved before the end of the year which was the original goal established by the county Joint Planning Commission.

Commission members agreed Thursday night to put off a scheduled public hearing on the draft of the zoning ordinance which had been set for Dec. 1 and reschedule it for sometime in January.

Several issues were raised at the Thursday meeting that will need to be addressed in new drafts of the zoning rules before the document is sent to county commissioners and villages for final approval.

Mobile home rules, definitions of existing farmsteads and proximity of livestock operations to residences in rural areas were among those issues.

The draft of the zoning regulations has established as 25 acre minimum lot size in rural areas of the county to discourage residential development in traditional agricultural areas, however, the impact of that rule on existing farmsteads has not been fully defined.

Additional questions remain on what is defined by intensive live-

On the move

A two-story house is shown moving along the county road south of Wayne Thursday with the community in the background. The house, being transported by Kay House moving of Wayne was on the site destined for the new senior center and public library. It has been relocated 10 miles south of town and will be the future home of the Les and Debbie Mann family. Thursday morning's move caused short term power outages and momentary loss of cable television service for many residents.

Voters want bigger project

'I wouldn't send my kids into that school building'

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

The only concerns expressed about the proposed Wayne school bond issue during an informational meeting Tuesday were over what things should be added to the building plans not items that could be eliminated to reduce the costs.

One group of parents expressed concern over the condition of the track facility and said it was unsafe and should be a higher priority on the school building list. Another group of parents said the construction funding plans should include provisions for a new school in Carroll. Other parents asked about the building needs at the elementary schools and whether the plans for the middle school and high school were cut too severely forcing consideration of future improvements just a few years down the road.

All of those concerns were acknowledged by the school's fiscal agent Darwin Reider who has been hired to help sell the bond issue proposal to voters.

He said in his 20 years of experience helping school boards with building financing plans he has "never seen a school district with a more critical need than in Wayne."

"I wouldn't want my children going into that middle school building," he told the audience of approximately 75 who attended the informational meeting.

He said however, that in spite of all the capital needs of the district, the citizens committee and the school board had carefully considered all the options and placed the highest priority on the middle school and high school needs.

Other problems with the elementary schools and other facilities would be addressed through the district sinking funds as phase two of the facilities improvement plan, he said.

He said the school board was trying to "keep the taxpayers pocket-books in mind" when it reduced the original "ideal" facilities improvement plan from over $15 million to the $7.9 million voters will be asked to approve in December.

The bond issue would build a 65,000 square foot addition to the high school with a wing for the Middle School and a large area of shared facilities space such as

How do you decorate a moving car?

Lighted Christmas decorations on moving vehicles (especially farm implements) will be a feature of the Christmas parade in Wayne Dec. 1.

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce has fielded several questions about how to power the lights, according to John Farnan, executive vice-president.

A portable generator of the kind typically used in motor homes or on construction sites is one possible power mechanism, he said. Another is an "inventor." These are devices plugged into a vehicle's cigarette lighter which can convert the car's DC electricity to AC household-type current.

Farnan said either of these two options should provide ample power for lighting floats or other vehicles entered into the parade.

Those interested in more information about the Wayne Christmas Parade should contact the Chamber office at 375-2240.

Cranes at 'Dane'

Giant girders were being raised Thursday as part of the newest expansion project at the Great Dane trailer manufacturing plant in Wayne. Additional space on the west end of the massive factory building is needed to provide room to do finishing work on the trailers. Production levels have increased dramatically at the plant in the last three years. The factory recently produced its 20,000th trailer.

Wind-fanned fire blackens 1000 acres

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

A fire burned over 1000 acres of land before firefighters from six departments in Northeast Nebraska managed to get it under control, Wednesday near Allen. A couple airplanes from the Martin Flying Service in South Sioux City and Becker Flying Service in Hartington were also called in to help put the blaze out which began spreading wildly with the aid of strong winds. Volunteer Fire Departments from Allen, Dixon, Concord, Martinsburg, Wakefield and Laurel were called to assist in putting out the fire.

The fire started approximately four miles northeast of Dixon around noon near the Regg Lubberstedt farm. The fire spread quickly over hundreds of acres of CRP land, harvested cornfields and other crop lands.

The fire jumped the road on at least two occasions according to one firefighter, Dan Nice of Allen. Nice is the bus driver for Allen school kids but when the call came for volunteers to help, he went.

"I heard the firefighters needed volunteers with shovels following behind the fire trucks to put out small blazes and I went," Nice said. "There were about a dozen of us that did that and there were about six tractors and disks from farmers that stopped what they were doing to help out."

The fire was so close to the Gene Thomsen farm that evacuation from the home was necessary, forcing Wilbur Thomsen to leave. The fire did surround the house but firefighters kept the blaze from causing any damage to the building.

The airplanes that were called in to help landed on the highway north of Dixon to reload with water and foam. They continually circled the Thomsen farmstead to keep flames away from buildings.

The fire continued to spread,

NRD will be partner in learning center

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) will become a partner in the Lifelong Learning Center at Northeast Community College in Norfolk. It was approved at the recent Board of Directors meeting to send a letter of intent to be a partner in the center for the new LENRD office. The LENRD and its legal counsel are developing a lease agreement that includes all issues regarding the long term lease with the center. General Manager Stan Staab said, "The learning center is a prototype of the future. Of course, we're still waiting on the commitment of the other partners, but I think it will be a great opportunity for the NRD to be in a location with agencies that we work with on a regular basis." Staab added, "This cooperative venture is the way government should go in the future. It's easier to serve the citizens with 'one-stop shopping'." The purpose of the Lifelong Learning Center is to provide quality opportunities to gain information and skills in an efficient and effective manner. The center will serve as a gateway of learning and videoconferencing for all of Northeast and North Central Nebraska. The Lower Elkhorn NRD will be one of five agencies located within the center which will be built just west of the college. It is projected that a spring 1995 ground breaking, with completion in early 1996, is feasible. Architect Richard D. Nelson is in the process of designing the facility to best meet the needs of the various partners and the public in general. In other action, the Board refused requests from the City of Norfolk for assistance on the Prairie Street and Georgia Avenue storm sewer projects. The Board approved the recommendation by the projects subcommittee to cost share 50 percent of the Wakefield levee project feasibility study with the City of Wakefield. A recommendation by the programs subcommittee to approve the Streambank Protection Practice, for wildlife habitat improvement, as a pilot program in the Maskenthine and Willow Creek Reservoir watersheds was also passed.

Cheers work featured at Smithsonian next year

Michael Cheers, visiting assistant professor at Wayne State College, has had his touring photo-journalism exhibit "Songs of My People" accepted by the Smithsonian Institution to become part of its permanent collection next year. Cheers is one of 50 photographers to have work featured in the exhibit, and is co-editor of the book "Songs of My People."

The exhibit, consisting of 10 sets of 155 photographs, will tour 50 U.S. cities and 58 foreign countries through the end of the decade. At the end of November, one set is being donated to The Museum of Fine Arts, Houston and one set is going to the Smithsonian Institution's National African American Museum Project, according to Cheers. Press clippings and videos about the exhibit will also be donated.

"Must interest from throughout the world has been generated concerning this exhibit," says Cheers. "Rather than break up the exhibit, we've made 10 sets of it. It will give historians and scholars the opportunity to study the exhibit in its complete form."

Cheers has also received a grant from Kodak to conduct five three-week photography workshops in South Africa beginning in January. During 1995, Cheers will be a Fulbright Fellow in South Africa. Cheers has been a photographer for Ebony, Jet and EM magazines, and has covered assignments in the United States, Africa, the Middle East, Europe, Asia and Central America, including the release of Nelson Mandela, the civil wars in Angola and Mozambique, the Persian Gulf conflict, and the Armenian earthquake. He is currently at work on a photo-biography of the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Cheers has a bachelor's degree and master's degree in journalism from Boston University, a master of arts degree in Afro-American studies from Boston University, and will receive his Ph.D. in African studies and research from Howard University in December.

however, and jumped to the Vince Kavanaugh farm land. According to sources, a couple acres of corn were disked under to prevent the fire from spreading. The cause of the fire was not determined at press time but it did affect farmlands owned by Fred Mattes, LeRoy Penlerick and Gaylen Jackson as well.

Urwiler Oil in Laurel volunteered the use of some of his liquid fertilizer trucks that had been washed and were ready to be put away for the winter. They were used to haul water.

The fire was estimated to be under control shortly before 3 p.m. The investigation into the cause is ongoing.

These shirts stink

Wayne Herald Publisher Les Mann and Sports Editor Kevin Peterson wore Auburn High School t-shirts this week in payment on a bet they lost to their Auburn, Neb. counterparts over the first round match in the state volleyball tournament. Auburn newspaper publisher Mark Cramer is formerly from Wayne. Peterson said the expression portrayed in the photo does not mean he and Mann think the Auburn team, which beat Wayne High in the first round of the tournament stinks. "It's these shirts," said Peterson, "The bet was the losers had to wear the winners shirts all week and toward the end they were a little gamey."

Women's cage team set for season debut

The members of the 1994-95 Wayne State College women's basketball squad are looking to bring the program its fourth straight winning season under sixth-year head coach Mike Barry.

That task will depend on team chemistry, depth and how fast the newcomers can adjust to the Wildcat system.

"We lost six good players from a year ago on a team that went 21-6," Barry said. "We won't be as strong with our team depth and experience this season because those two things will be hard to replace right away."

To replace those key factors, Barry will look to his three seniors in guard Deb Kostreba, forward Kristy Twait and center Deedra Haskins. Kostreba, who played in all 27 games while starting 21, is the second leading returning scorer at 7.2 points per game to go along with 2.4 rebounds and 2.1 assists per outing as well.

Twait, who averaged 4.0 points per game while playing in 25 games last season, will likely step into the quick forward spot after spending the last three seasons backing up Lisa Chamberlain, the school's third all-time leading scorer (1586 pts.).

Haskins played in all 27 games and averaged 5.2 points and 3.3 rebounds per outing. "Our seniors must play well for us this season," Barry said. "We look to have a big year from Deb, and Kristy finally gets her chance at what will be a crucial position for us. Deedra showed flashes of greatness last season and has the athletic ability to get the job done. Her success could be huge for us and make the difference in this team being just average to very good."

A very good performer Barry has returning is sophomore guard Amy Brodersen. As a rookie last season, she started 24 of the 27 games she played in. She led the team in assists (3.0) while averaging 8.6 points and 3.2 rebounds per outing.

"Amy is as good an athlete we've had here," Barry said. "She will be our floor leader. Her scoring will take care of itself but if she improves her ability to draw the defense and pass the ball, we will be a better team."

The team success will also depend on the play of several returnees. Sophomore forward Mindi Jensen will be looked upon to score and rebound. She averaged 4.7 points and 4.1 rebounds last season to go along with 20 blocked shots.

Sophomores Marla Stewart and Liz Reeg have good experience and will add depth to the Wildcats squad. WSC newcomers will also play an important role during the 1994-95 campaign. Junior college transfers Susie Osborn and Lori Zeimetz are two 6-0 performers who will add experience and size to the team. Junior Danyel Grammer, a transfer from Teikyo Westmar University, is expected to help with the perimeter game.

To assist in replacing the loss of Chamberlain, Jodi Otjen and Linda Heller from last season's squad, Barry has brought in six promising freshmen including Renee Belz, Lisa Davids, Julie Heine, Jodi Heller, Kara McLarty and Courtney Klein.

"One of the key concerns this season will be our ability to rebound," Barry said. "We lost a lot of rebounding power from a year ago but I feel we have some players that have the ability to get the job done. They just have to go out and do it."

"For the season as a whole, we are going to need some luck avoiding injuries, good team chemistry and some positive breaks on the floor," Barry added. "The confidence of this team will be tested right away. We have a very tough schedule early on."

During the 1994-95 season, the Cats will play several North Central Conference teams including Morningside, South Dakota and St. Cloud State as well as Kearney, Fort Hays State and Northern State, which was 32-1 and won the NAIA-II national championship last season. Their lone loss was a 75-71 setback against Wayne State in the season-opener.

WSC will open up the season on Saturday when they host York in a 5:30 p.m. contest. Barry enters his sixth season with a 67-66 record, but more importantly, three consecutive winning seasons.

Cross Country award winners

WAYNE-The Wayne State College cross country team had their annual awards banquet, Tuesday night with several awards being given. Kathy Dalton and Mark Merritt were recognized for their hard work and dedication to the team as team captains while Michelle Baatz and Donny Thongdy were selected as freshman MVP's.

James McGown and Angie Chvala were recognized as team MVP's while Chris Garvin and Charonna Chambers both received "most improved" runners. Scott Holley, who trained with the team but was unable to compete as a Wildcat this year due to transfer rules, was recognized as an "honorary letterman." James McGown and Kathy Dalton were elected team captains for the 1995 cross country season.

The final award presented was the "A.D. Benson Memorial Award" named in honor of the 1966 cross county All-American killed in Vietnam in 1969; This award is presented annually to the cross country athlete who best represents the athletic ability and high standards of leadership, discipline, dedication and honor set by the late A.D. Benson. This year's recipient was James McGown.

Wayne athletes earn all-conference

WAYNE-Several Wayne High student-athletes were named to the final Northern Activities Conference All-Conference Team, recently. The all-conference volleyball team of six girls has a pair of Wayne athletes on the first team in Jenny Thompson and Carrie Fink while Angie Hudson and Katie Lutt made the honorable mention team.

The Blue Devil football team landed 12 players on the first team, the most of any of the teams represented: Jeff Hamer and Jeremiah Rethwisch were named to the offensive line squad while Jason Starzl and Jason Carr earned first-team status from the receivers positions. Ryan Pick was selected as an all-conference quarterback while Dusty Jensen and Josh Starzl made it on the first team as running backs.

Defensively, Jason Zulkosky and Scott Sievers were named all-conference defensive backs while Erik Wiseman and Nate Salmon were honored on the first team for their line play. Jeremy Beckenhauer was an all-conference linebacker.

Honorable mention all-conference honors was won by Brian Fernau, Nick Vanhorn, Ryan Brown and Cody Stracke.

Wildcat men to sport new coach, look and attitude

A new season—a new attitude. That is the approach first-year coach Greg McDermott is taking as he works on rebuilding the Wayne State College men's basketball program.

The Wildcats, which have won a total of just 32 games the last four seasons, return all five starters from last season's 7-20 team. Those five experienced players will be key factors in this year's attempt at a successful campaign.

"I am extremely excited about the challenge of turning this program around," McDermott said. The new coach came to WSC after a five-year stint as assistant coach at the University of North Dakota. "As a coaching staff, our biggest challenge will be to change the attitude of the players," McDermott said. "We have to instill in each individual the belief that we are going to win every game. We are going to do everything we can to pump confidence into these guys and get them to believe they can be successful."

A successful season could depend on the production at the point guard position, where senior Billy Patterson and sophomore Curt Woodin, a transfer from North Dakota, are both expected to see a lot of minutes.

Patterson started 26 games last season and was the team leader in assists (4.7). He also was the third leading scorer (12.6) and rebounder (4.5). Woodin played in 29 games for the Fighting Sioux where he averaged 2.4 assists per game as a reserve.

"Regardless of who starts, they provide us with two different styles of play," McDermott said. "Bill is an athletic one-on-one player who can put some pressure on people defensively. Curt is a floor general type who will get us into our offense. They will allow us to give the opposition different looks."

The opposition can look for three-point shots from WSC's shooting guard position. Junior Kyle White and sophomore Mike Fitzner, another player who followed McDermott from UND, will be looking to launch the ball from long distance range. White, who tied for the Wildcat scoring lead last season at 13.0 points per game, hit 66 baskets from behind the arc while Fitzner connected on 30 of 60 attempts from three-point range for the Sioux.

"I am expecting big things from these two young men with their ability to shoot the three-point shot," McDermott said. The WSC mentor is also looking for big things from senior small forward Omar Clark, who averaged 10 points and four rebounds per outing last season as a guard.

"Omar is an excellent one-on-one player," McDermott said. "He has the ability to dominate people defensively. We need to get him the ball on the wing so he can take it to the basket or create opportunities for his teammates. We need a big season from him if we are going to be successful."

Senior Mike Mitchell, an experienced player with strong leadership skills, will also play some important minutes at the small forward spot. At the power forward position, McDermott will rely on a veteran and a newcomer to provide some much needed scoring and rebounding.

Junior Terry Mailloux and freshman Craig Philipp will compete for playing time. Mailloux, a starter in 26 games last season, was the 'Cats top rebounder at 9.5 cars per game. He also scored 8.5 points per game and had a team-high 19 blocked shots.

"Terry gives great effort everyday in practice and I expect the same during the games," McDermott said. "I look for a big year from him. Craig has a great understanding of the game. He has a knack for scoring, not only inside, but can also step outside and shoot the three-point shot as well."

Controlling the middle for the Wildcats will be juniors Dan Anderson and Grey Ryan. Anderson shared team honors in scoring last season at 13.0 with Kyle White, while grabbing 4.9 rebounds per game. Ryan was good for 7.7 points a game and 4.0 rebounds per outing. Both players shot better than 54 percent from the field.

"We need some consistency from the center position," McDermott said. "If we can get some much needed rebounding and a solid defensive effort from our post players, we'll be in good shape."

The Wildcats, with their new season, new attitude and new leader, appear to be in good shape to have a successful 1994-95 season.

"Everything is in place for us to build a winning program in Wayne," McDermott said. "This is going to be a fun place to be."

The 'Cats open up season play on Saturday when they host York College in a 7:30 p.m. contest in Rice Auditorium.

First deer

Wayne 14-year-old eighth grader Ben Nissen got his first deer, recently, while hunting with his father, Tom west of Wakefield. Nissen said his deer was a 9-pointer and he shot it with a .243 Weatherby.

Alumni hoop game planned

WAYNE-Fifteen former Wayne State women's basketball players are returning to their alma mater to play in an alumni game prior to the Wildcats' season opener, Saturday.

The game, scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m. will feature three of the school's top four all-time leading scorers including the number one scorer, Linda Schnitzler, 2224 points, ('85-'89); Lisa Chamberlain, third leading scorer with 1586 ('90-'94) and fourth leading scorer Lori Erwin-Koester, 1517 ('77-'81).

G.I. Willoughby, the school's all-time winningest coach with 119 victories ('70-'77) will serve as honorary coach for the game. A luncheon to honor Willoughby and the former players is scheduled for noon the day of the game at the Black Knight in Wayne.

Junior high cage squads compete

WAYNE-The Wayne seventh and eighth grade boys basketball teams won their season openers, Thursday afternoon at the City Auditorium in Wayne over West Point.

The seventh grade team won a 23-19 decision led by Clint Keller's nine points while the eighth grade team won, 30-25 with Ryan Dahl and John Magnuson sharing team honors with eight points each.

Wayne will play at Pender on Nov. 28. The teams are being coached by Dan Fehringer and Dale Hochstein. "We're stressing the team concept at this point," Fehringer said. "It is starting to take affect. Both teams played hard the whole game but we know we need to keep improving if we are going to have a successful season."

Bear Pride

The Laurel football team advanced to the state championship game in C-2 after defeating Oakland-Craig, 15-13 in Oakland last Saturday. NOW is the time to order TREES!

Now? We're still harvesting and just too busy. Can I decide later?

Yes, you're busy! BUT, trees are an investment for future generations. You can wait to decide about ordering your trees, but if you wait too long you may not get the tree species you desire. With the help of your Natural Resources District or local Soil Conservation Service, it doesn't take long to plan your tree planting.

Call us before you jump on the tractor, during your lunch break at work, or stop in with the kids after school.

Your SCS or NRD tree planners will be glad to discuss tree varieties, location, and care.

They will also discuss cost-share options with you in order to maximize your investment and reduce your net cost.

The next meeting will be Monday, Dec. 5 with Janice Newton. They will reveal their secret sisters with a Christmas gift. Officers will be in charge of the entertainment.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

Lorraine Feala of the Regional Center in Norfolk spoke to 20 members of the Wakefield Health Care Center Auxiliary during their general meeting on Nov. 2.

The program also included some Bible verses on joy by Anna Anderson and a poem entitled "Our Unfinished World," read by Lois Schlines.

It was reported that a total of $2,440.28 was received at the Fall Festival and $249 for the Blue Light fund. The general fund has a balance of $615.32 and the savings account, $5,552.24.

Betty Bressler presented the nominating committee report. Following the report, Sue Nelson was elected president of the auxiliary and Lois Schlines, vice-president.

Lois Schlines, who is the current president, thanked everyone who helped with the Fall Festival.

Reports from the festival included Emma Brown who said more food was needed to sell. Clarice Schroeder suggested more emphasis be placed in raffles.

Sylvia Olson stated that it helped to have rummage items priced when brought to the festival. Marge Johnson volunteered to be in charge of the book sale next year.

A motion was made to give the Legion Post $50 for the use of the building. It was also decided to use some of the Blue Light money for maintenance on the new aviary at the center.

Lois Schlines also acknowledged those who worked when the bloodmobile was in town and those who contributed cookies.

Sue Miller, Arlene Benson and Betty Bressler will buy lights and decorations for the Christmas trees. Refreshments were served by Lois Berns, Arlene Benson and Anna Anderson.

TREE REPLACED

Earlier this fall, new trees were planted along the south side of the cemetery to replace the ones which were removed in the spring.
