

Parents learn about school building needs

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Wayne Elementary and Middle School parents learned first-hand about the shortcomings of the middle school building Monday night with tours sponsored by the elementary booster club.

The parents learned about plans for replacement of the 1908 building if the school bond issue is approved by voters on Dec. 13.

The small group of parents learned that the district plans to build the new middle school building as wing added to the high school plus address high school space needs in the same project would end up saving taxpayers over $3 million. That is what it would cost to build two separate facilities without shared spaces such as kitchen, dining areas, music rooms and additional physical education and sports facilities. A prime concern of the existing structure is that it requires students and staff--because of space limitations and shared faculty--to traverse back and forth the three and a half blocks between the high school and the middle school.

Wayne Superintendent, Dr. Dennis Jensen, told the group that old Middle School Building could be renovated but the cost of bringing it up to modern standards would be over 80 percent of new construction and the district would still be saddled with space limitations and an eighty year old building.

If the bond issue passes in December, the new facility would be ready for classes in September 1996, he said. Students would attend their regular classes at the Middle School and High School during the construction period.

Plans for the old middle school building if the bond issue passes have not been finalized, said Jensen. He said interest has been shown from private developers who indicated they might like to buy the structure. He said it would probably be offered for sale on sealed bids. If it did not sell, Jensen said it would probably be torn down and the school yard would be sold off for residential development.

Plans call for construction of a 66,000 square foot addition to the south side of the high school. Architects have estimated the construction cost at $78 per square foot which will require a total bond issue financing package of $7.9 million.

Passage of the bond issue would cause taxes in school district 17 to raise 39.9 cents per $100 of valuation or approximately $200 per year on a $50,000 piece of property. Jensen said that equates to about 55 cents a day.

For taxpayers in the affiliated districts who also must approve the bond issue before the construction plan can be implemented, the tax levy increase would be approximately 12.3 cents per hundred.

Affiliated district taxpayers will only be paying for the high school portion of the total plan. It is anticipated bonds would be retired in 20

Former Waynians honored as lifesavers

Two former Wayne residents have been honored for their lifesaving efforts to revive a golfer stricken with a heart attack in Englewood, Colo.

Pat McCright and Brian Fleming were high school friends in Wayne.

"We went our own way and both moved to the Denver area not long before this happened," Fleming told the Englewood Herald in a story about the two men receiving the American Heart Association award for saving the life of Glen Eloe, 70, who collapsed March 16 on the 16th hole of the Wellshire Golf Course.

McCright, 31, and Fleming, 32, were golfing together on the 12th green adjacent to where Eloe had collapsed when they heard his golf partner yelling for help.

"Brian and I ran about 75 yards to Glen and he didn't look very good," McCright said.

Fleming couldn't find a pulse and the stricken man stopped breathing.

"Pat began chest compressions and I gave Glen mouth-to-mouth resuscitation," said Fleming. "We didn't really think about it. We just did it."

McCright, who lives in Englewood, received his CPR train-

Chamber favors bonds

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors has endorsed the Wayne School Bond Issue which will face voters in the December 13 special election.

Following a survey of Chamber members which "showed overwhelming support for the school bond plan," Chamber President Chris King told Dr. Dennis Jensen, school superintendent in a letter that the "Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce believes community development begins with our youth."

King said 77 percent of the chamber members who returned their survey forms supported the bond issue and 23 percent were opposed. Thirty five percent of the chamber members returned their surveys.

"The board of directors fully supports the efforts of the Wayne Carroll School District to successfully promote the proposed school bond issue. When passed, the funds raised will allow our district's instructors and administrators to continue their record of excellence in the Wayne and Carroll schools," concluded King in his letter.

Parents to get help with financial aid

WAYNE — The Guidance Department has arranged a special meeting to help parents with the financial aid process. On Nov. 29 at 7 p.m. in the commons at Wayne High School, a workshop will be held. At that time, a packet will be provided to each parent with various financial aid and scholarship forms. Ideas and strategies in seeking scholarship and financial aid will be discussed.

Also at this workshop, Joan Zanders, Financial Aid Director at Wayne State College, will present a thorough explanation of the do's and don'ts of completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). The presenter is experienced and knowledgeable in working with federal financial aid application forms. Correct completion is important as errors will cause delays in processing. The FAFSA is used to apply for such need-based monies as the Pell Grant, College Work Study and Perkins and Stafford Loans.

Holiday fun, savings planned in Wayne

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

The official start of the holiday business season in Wayne is still a few days off but many residents have already gotten a head start on the holiday activities.

Wayne businesses and its three banks are once again offering interest free loans for Santa Cash to purchase holiday gifts in Wayne and over $9,000 worth of the interest free loans have already been issued.

The program means holiday shoppers can avoid interest charges often accrued on credit card purchases, said Wayne Area Chamber executive vice president John Farnan. He said many shoppers have said they will use anticipated income tax refunds they will receive next spring to pay off the Santa Cash loans and in this way can give their families more for Christmas than they otherwise would have been able to. "Everybody wins," said Farnan.

The shoppers save on credit card interest, businesses accepting Santa Cash sell more of their products and the economy of the whole community is more robust, he said.

Approximately 40 Chamber members accept Santa Cash. Local banks report loans going out at about the same pace as last year.

Those interested in Santa Cash loans can apply or obtain more information at any Wayne Bank.

The traditional start of the holiday shopping season will be this Friday when extended shopping hours will be available at many Wayne businesses. The festive lighting of the downtown buildings will also commence Friday night.

Friday also will be the first day for the Holiday Magic drawings. Under the Holiday Magic promotion, shoppers can get refunds on their purchases if their name is drawn. Each week during the holiday season,

Civil defense system to be tested

WAYNE — The City of Wayne will conduct the monthly testing of the Civil Defense Outdoor Warning System at 11:45 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 25.

Each siren location will be tested separately. The attack signal will be allowed to run approximately 15 seconds at each location to test the effectiveness of the system.

Immediately following the testing of the outdoor warning system, the city will test the Cablevision Emergency Alert System. This will mean disruption of both the audio and the video programming of every television set on the cablevision system that is in use. This test will last approximately 15 seconds, according to Vern Fairchild, Wayne County assistant civil defense director.

years and would have a projected annual interest rate of 6.5 percent. At $1.23 per $100 of valuation, the Wayne school levy for property taxes last year ranked at the bottom of school districts of comparable size in the state. The 22 other school districts on Wayne's comparison list had an average tax levy of $1.60 with the low being $1.35 at Gretna and the high of $1.87 at Raymond Central. If the bond issue passes and $39.9 cents is added to Wayne's levy, that would place the district at $1.63 or just about average for the rest of the districts if their levies do not go up.

Jensen said the Wayne School board has traditionally kept the levy here well below comparable schools by maintaining conservative fiscal policies.

ing in 1991 in the Army. Fleming, who lives in Littleton, Colo., received his CPR training at Wayne High School in about 1980.

"I just started pumping his chest," McCright said. "I heard his chest cartilage crack when I started but remembered being told that would happen, so I kept going."

Fleming said he applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. "I breathed twice for each five chest compressions," he said. "I've been told it is one breath per five compressions but right then, it didn't matter because Glen really looked like he needed oxygen."

Robert Fast, American Heart Association volunteer, said Eloe's son Bill nominated McCright and Fleming for the award.

Eloe met the pair who saved his life again on Nov. 8 and was beaming with joy.

"It is great to finally meet you and thank you for all you did for me," he told the pair. "I know you saw me but I don't remember seeing you."

About 25 percent of Americans have had CPR training according to the Heart Association. "But," Fast said, "not everyone is willing to try it in an emergency. In this case, Glen is alive because Pat and Brian didn't hesitate."

Eloe, who is a native of Aurora, Neb., told the Wayne Herald he thought the actions of the two products from Wayne ought to be featured in their hometown newspaper. He said Wayne is a nice town for having produced two fine young men.

All this wizardry, still no cold cure

Here's more about tomorrow's tech-wizardry.

Orbiting databases, reading your implanted I.D. chip, will track your whereabouts. Satellites already track ships and aircraft.

In 1500 A.D. folk didn't imagine telephones. Today one can call any one of eight million persons in New York City by dialing eleven digits. So it will be with I.D. chips.

A database will always know your location. Video maps in your car will show you your route.

Your database will maintain all personal information, except your private thoughts. Everything else about you, such as the types of items you buy and sell; your medical, military, and marriage records; Social Security, insurance and banking records; your organizational memberships, will all be included.

Even now Earth rotates beneath satellite cameras. That new $310 million building outside Washington, built by the National Reconnaissance Office, will house a top-secret agency that manages the nation's spy satellite system. It is on a 68-acre site near Dulles International Airport. The Central Intelligence Agency is the watchdog over the NCO. What do they monitor? Whatever they choose. Sophisticated satellite cameras can, from 23,000 miles, read your vehicle's license plate. With other satellites, investigators can eavesdrop on telephone calls, usually foreign.

What about entertainment in 2020 A.D.? Homes will have a picture wall nearly eight feet square. The wall transmits and receives information from any point on the globe. Telephone calls will feature video visitations. Libraries will store information in digital form. Sitting in front of your picture wall, after using your armchair device to select a book or magazine from a library database somewhere in the world, you'll watch it life size. Choose "Read" and the book will be read to you.

Or choose one of dozens of other entertainment channels.

Even now via the Internet one can join in global discussions on most any topic. Games will allow you to compete with someone in Japan or elsewhere on the globe.

The movies, shopping, and telecasts will be available through similar systems. Select your store and watch items of selected merchandise appear on screen.

You like a new garment? Touch the "order" button. Presto! The item will arrive within two days. Payment is handled electronically. The same for ordering groceries only they'll be delivered within an hour. You'll still have to prepare dinner, but new flash-bake ovens will cook foods within a minute.

Problem: still no preventative for the common cold.

Wakefield in running for Main Street funding

Wakefield is one of eight communities who have been invited to make presentations to the Nebraska Lied Main Street Program's selection committee Dec. 5 and 6 at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln Campus.

Selected with Wakefield to make presentations are Alliance, Callaway, Doniphan, Fremont, Grand Island, Minden and Red Cloud.

Four communities will be selected to participate in the first main street revitalization program.

"We are extremely encouraged by both the quality of community applications and the geographic representation of the community applications received," said W. Cecil Steward, dean of the UN-L College of Architecture. "It is especially significant in this first year of the Nebraska Lied Main Street Program to know that Nebraska has actively organized communities as small as 324 people, and a community of 40,000, and those of in between sizes, each with visions for growth, progress and sustainability."

The Nebraska Lied Main Street Program was launched this fall to help communities create comprehensive and effective commercial district revitalization programs. The Lied Foundation Trust contributed a $350,000 start-up gift to begin the program. State and local partners will provide a $1.30 match for every Lied Foundation Trust dollar contributed in support of the program.

The Nebraska Lied Main Street Program was organized by the efforts of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Architecture, the Nebraska Department of Economic Development and the Nebraska State Historical Society.

Also participating in the program are the University of Nebraska Foundation, the National Main Street Center/National Trust for Historic Preservation, Gov. Ben Nelson's office, Nebraska Rural Development Commission, Nebraska Community Foundation and the Nebraska Historic Preservation Council.

"The program will encourage communities to reinvest in their older, historic town centers through historic preservation," said Lawrence Sommer, director and state historic preservation officer with the Nebraska State Historical Society.

Dr. John Gaber of the UN-L College of Architecture and director of the Nebraska Lied Main Street Program said this "is a wonderful opportunity for smaller communities to work with one of their major assets — their historically significant main streets — as a way for community revitalization."

Community presentations will be in the City Union Building on UN-L's campus, and will be in the Pewter or Georgia rooms from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Dec. 5 and 6. Finalists are being notified of their presentation time and room location.

'Room at the Inn' are offered

The Wayne Super 8 Motel at 610 Tomar Drive will participate in Super 8 Motels' 1994 Rooms at the Inn holiday program. Motels taking part in the fifth annual Rooms at the Inn promotion will offer free accommodations on Christmas Eve to anyone visiting a friend or relative in a nursing home, veterans' home, hospital or treatment center. The Wayne Super 8 will offer free rooms anytime throughout the 1994 holiday season.

"Super 8 began Rooms at the Inn to ensure that the cost of a motel room doesn't stand in the way of visiting a friend or relative over the holidays," said Super 8 President Robert N. Weller. "We sincerely hope the program makes holiday gatherings a little bit easier for those in need."

Rooms at the Inn was inspired by a similar program started in 1987 by Super 8 franchisees Linda Tharaldson and Gary Tharaldson of Fargo, N.D. Linda said, because they experienced several family tragedies around the holidays, "Christmas and Thanksgiving were associated with a lot of bad memories for us. We decided a program like this would help us change that, would turn a negative to a positive."

Super 8 Motels, Inc. adopted the program in 1990. Last year approximately 500 Super 8 motels in the United States and Canada donated 1,289 rooms. This year the chain expects to give away even more rooms.

Advanced registration is not required but recommended since the number of available rooms may be limited. Reservations can be made through Superline, Super 8's toll-free reservation center, at 1-800-800-8000.

Super 8 Motels, Inc., founded in America's heartland 20 years ago, now has approximately 1,200 motels representing 73,000 rooms throughout the United States and Canada. Super 8 is a subsidiary of Hospitality Franchise Systems, Inc. (HFS), the world's largest hotel company.

Pierce woman killed in accident at mall

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP) -- Madison County Attorney Joe Smith Monday reviewed police reports about the death of a Pierce woman in the parking lot of a Norfolk shopping mall.

Smith said an autopsy showed that Marilyn Ronspies, 57, died of chest injuries after she was run over by a van in the Sunset Plaza parking lot. The van was owned by the mall's hired security company, Armored Knights of Omaha, but the name of the van driver was not released.

Smith said he would review reports on the Saturday morning accident to determine what if any charges ought to be filed.

The accident happened just after 9 a.m. CST on the south side of the mall, in front of the main entrance.

Capitol News —

Audit (finally) raises few questions

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — The best things in life are worth waiting for. At least that's how the saying goes.

Several state senators disagreed with those words, however, when it came to the audit of their expenses released recently by State Auditor John Breslow.

True, it took a long time: more than two years. Over that span, senators and the auditor exchanged some mighty sharp words, and staged a much publicized legal battle over whether the auditor had the right to examine legislator's long-distance phone bills.

No one really won that one. Most folks thought senators had something to hide — why else would they deny someone a look at their taxpayer expenses?

Breslow, the watchdog of public funds, burned dozens of bridges with state senators (the folks who, if they chose, could grant the auditor his much coveted desire to do performance audit of state government functions) and won a reputation as a headline grabber.

But was the audit, in the end, worth it?

It cost $40,000, according to Breslow, which included about $15,000 in legal bills (for the court battle).

If you compare that with the actual amount of long distance calls made during the two years audited ($59,381 worth during the 1989-90 and 1990-91 fiscal years) it's a pretty expensive study.

On top of that, there were no solid findings of wrongdoing by senators, other than suspicions about the $6,915 worth of calls they blacked out as "confidential" and the $720 found to be personal in nature.

(State phones are only to be used for state business, except for emergencies. Senators paid all that money back except for $20 from Sen. Don Wesely of Lincoln. He said he didn't recall the nature of the calls and thought it unfair to be forced to repay for something that was probably business related).

But the bottom line on most audits is not only "were violations found?" but "how closely is spending monitored?"

On that second count, the Legislature struck out.

It's practice of handing out 1,500 stamps to each legislator during interims between sessions is wide open to abuse. Who could tell if a stamp goes on a state mailing or to send in a personal utility bill? Breslow asked.

No one, is the answer. Breslow said one former legislative employee told him the practice had been abused.

The audit also found that about $28,000 worth of state furniture and equipment was missing from the Legislature's required inventory. Sloppy, sloppy.

The probe also criticized the Legislature's incomplete self-auditing of spending on per-dime expenses given to each senator.

"The current situation could allow the same travel expenditure to be reimbursed twice or allow the reimbursement of expenses never incurred," the audit said.

Incredibly, Sen. Rex Haberman of Imperial told the Omaha World-Herald that he knew of no one abusing the system so there was no need for tougher controls on legislative expenses.

That sort of head-in-the-sand attitude is one that some institutions in Nebraska hit by embezzlement scandals now regret, namely the Franklin Credit Union, the Central Interstate Compact and Commonwealth Savings.

Some senators indicated a willingness to look at tighter controls on how senators are spending their tax dollars.

If that happens and some changes occur, then we can rightly say that good things are worth waiting for.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Thanks Be To God

How thankful are we that god does forget... the evil wrong doings and the wicked ways set... in our path by satan, so sinful and strong, determined to lead us in pathways of wrong. If we live close to our Lord, both the weak and the strong, He will lead us anew in fresh, sweet accord... Remembering the covenant made in long days of yore, Forgiving our iniquities, remembering our sins no more.

There is much conflict and confusion regarding national health care reform. One part of this trend is the push for states to establish a tighter control of their Medicaid budgets. Currently, the Nebraska Department of Social Services has a shortfall of many million dollars and this is a real concern for all of us. One of their solutions is to establish a "Managed Mental Health Care System" for Medicaid recipients, and they are soliciting bids from agencies interested in providing this.

The Department of Public Institutions and CMG Health, Inc. are bidding to provide these services. CMG Health, Inc. is a national managed behavioral health care firm. They have expertise in full utilization of state and federal funds and provide services in many states, including Iowa and Missouri — they are familiar with rural mental health concerns. Their clients are from both the public and the private sector.

We have read CMG's proposal and listened to their presentation. They care about people and are consumer oriented. We are satisfied that this company will work well with DPI and do an excellent job of providing the necessary managed care framework. We also are very supportive of the current Nebraska mental health authority (DPI) to continue providing mental health coverage for our clients. They have done so for over 100 years and are the logical choice for providing future services. Under the leadership of Director Dale Johnson, they have provided cost effective services that offer choices and hope for a fragile and sometimes difficult population. They balance their budget and do not experience any large deficits. Any choice other than DPI/CMG for delivering managed care services may result in mass confusion, chaos and interruption of services.

So, who is their competition? It is our understand that several major hospitals and large, out of state, insurance companies are also submitting bids. We question their motivation and sudden interest in Nebraska's Medicaid population. They have experience with providing services for wealthy, healthy, employed individuals who purchase insurance to pay for their services. They have little experience in providing care for the poor and uninsured. Many do not have specific knowledge of or experience in providing mental health services for the indigent. They could have trouble justifying ongoing payment for extended treatment for mental illness.

The Medicaid mental health managed care responsibility in Nebraska should be awarded to DPI/CMG. To help Gov. Nelson make the right decision, we are asking you to lend your support to their proposal. We have included a sample letter you could write to the Governor — it would be even better if you wrote your own letter, using your own words. These letters will have an impact in the decision he will make. Please return your letter to R Way immediately. Consumer Advocate Frank Schlangen and R Way Director Jeannia Bresler will hand carry these to Gov. Nelson after Thanksgiving. Please write your letter now. Nebraska's mental health consumers are relying on your support. If you have any questions, feel free to call me.

Support schools

Dear Editor:

The people of the community of Wayne have a proud heritage of being strong supporters of outstanding educational systems in the community. This tradition needs to be continued into the future, and must keep pace with the growing community. The Wayne Middle School building was constructed in 1908 and has served the community well for 86 years, but the time has come to build a facility more benefiting the needs and demands of today's children and curriculum.

The Wayne High School is included in the building project consistent to the need for more classroom space for science, math, special education, foreign languages, music, home economics, business and better accommodations for physical education and competitive sports. The "Shared Space Concept" the Citizens Facility Student Committee recommended to the Wayne Board of Education appears to be an idea based on sound rationale allowing the district to provide quality facilities at a much lower cost than building separate attendance centers.

As a lifelong Wayne community resident, I support the efforts of the Citizens Committee in the pursuit of a new middle school and the renovation work in the high school.

Good schools cost money, poor schools cost more!

Chilling dissent

Dear Editor:

The UN-L thought police have scored again, chilling dissent against the politically-correct party line by ousting from a candidate search committee a faculty member who dared to express the view that his religious beliefs condemned homosexuality.

Historically, American institutions of higher education have inculcated in their students social studies learning steeped in the tradition of basic inalienable rights such as freedom of speech, thought and religion. The UN-L administration apparently does not believe that such tradition extends to employees who ascribe to traditional values, even though the victim had no accusation of actual discrimination filed against him.

Led by Chancellor Graham Spanier, UN-L has sent a pointed message to all employees that they had better genuflect before the party line laid down by the ruling elite. Spanier, whose family suffered terribly in the Holocaust, should feel ashamed that he is denying the same human rights to a fellow American as those denied his kin for the same reason, religious intolerance.

The Board of Regents should urge Dr. Spanier, when his contract expires, to find suitable employment in a more congenial political climate, like Cuba or North Korea.

School needed

Dear Editor:

After viewing a video tape presentation at the High School Tuesday night showing the condition of the Middle School facility, there is no doubt in my mind, and in the minds of many others (parents, kids, teachers, administrators) that this building must be replaced now.

This facility, built in 1908, has long outlived its usefulness. It can no longer meet the needs of today's students. Although it is true that

Males learning about unreal expectations

Several recent national news articles and features, all on a related subject, came to mind the other day when I realized how remarkably difficult it had become to bend over and tie my shoes.

I was reminded of all the do-gooder health organization press clippings and warnings about the health dangers of a gluttonous, sedentary lifestyle, but I always thought those warnings were directed at the all the other sedentary gluttonous slob and not me. I was also reminded that the health warnings were never heeded the way they should be.

No, the news article that came most prominently to mind as my face reddened in the strenuous effort of reaching those laces, was the piece in the Wall Street Journal recently. The article told of the booming male vanity business.

What years of health warnings, doctor's lectures, cholesterol tests and sound logic have been unable to achieve a few well-placed glances from pretty girls have.

Men are spending millions trying to get healthy-looking, according to the latest reports, not because it is the right thing to do, but rather because women have started looking at them.

It goes to show that death is not a good motivator but sex is.

Women have begun to notice and they prefer the trim models. That's why you are seeing more and more advertising messages that portray muscular, flat-tummyed, male hunks shilling products to women these days.

Another report indicated that women exercising in health clubs watch the men more than the men exercisers watch the women.

Men are becoming sex objects too and it serves us right. For years the perceived image we men have held—having been taught through the media of the perfect female body, has been unrealistic. No real live women live up to the perfectly proportioned, air-brushed images we see in men's magazines, Barbie dolls and on car and beer commercials.

Look around, they don't exist. Yet we have saddled ourselves and the women we love with this unrealistic ideal that they are supposed to try to achieve. And we have done it with often tragic results.

Now I'm waiting for reports on the rise of male anorexia. The tables are turning and men will soon be learning what torture it is, and how expensive it is, to live up to an unattainable ideal.

We are a major new market for fat creams, liposuction and diet pills reports the Wall Street Journal. The Journal doesn't mention a probable rise of male patients seeking mental health counseling. And it is coming about because women are ogling men more.

They talk more openly about men's bodies. They whistle and pinch when they see that ideal v-shaped torso with pencil thin waist. Have you noticed the Diet Coke commercial where the office women scramble to gawk lustfully from their windows as a construction worker sheds his shirt and gulps a can of pop?

Look around guys. How many of us look like Arnold Schwarzenegger or that construction worker?

Women weren't all that successful in convincing men there were more important features than looks when they were the only ones treated like sex objects. What I want to know is, will we be any more successful in convincing women now that the shoe is on the other foot?

I doubt it.
Pass the Slim-Fast please.

buildings do not educate kids, it is our responsibility as taxpayers, mature adults to at least provide students with a safe, functional environment in which to learn. If we don't, then we have side-stepped our responsibility.

If, for some reason, you think that this propaganda or you "don't believe what you hear, but only what you see," I suggest that you arrange for a tour of the Middle School or ask for a copy of the video by calling the High School.

Now that you are convinced that a new school should replace the old one and a bond issue is needed, the objection that one could possibly have is cost to you personally.

Here are some important facts to consider:

1. A $300 increase in your property tax amounts to 82 cents per day. What does it cost for a doughnut and a cup of coffee? What about a pack of cigarettes? A bar of candy? A can of soda or a beer?

2. A building project will never be any less expensive than it is today.

3. Interest rates for bonds are probably as low as they are going.

The bottom line is this folks, think about what your priorities are and then ask yourself, "how can I deny these kids the facilities they need for a better education for 82 cents a day (based on a home in Wayne valued at about $75,000)?"

Book thanks

Dear Editor:

A big thank you to the parents of Wayne-Carroll elementary students for signing reading coupons and sharing books during Children's Book Week. Nov. 14-18.

The theme for the week was, "Go Hog Wild Over Reading" and the students "Pigged Out On Books!" Special thanks to all the teachers who planned special book activities with their students.

Thanks to the fourth graders and their teachers for totaling the daily reading coupons and bar graphing the results. First graders read 373 books, second graders read 373 books, third graders read 5,900 minutes (99+ hours) and fourth graders read 5,453 minutes (90+ hours).

Over 150 students were recognized with pig-errific reading awards. On Friday, a mysterious pink pig traveled room to room with me congratulating students and passed out dilly bars compliments of the Dairy Queen. Thanks to everyone for a successful week of pigging out on books!

the stove feels good in the evenings.

Some more Wayne county folks have found their way to the Farm House.

One was a former rural school teacher. She brought back fond memories of visits to rural schools and friendships formed with some wonderful people. I'd love to have an opportunity to visit these gals at their Wednesday coffee.

You know, my brother-in-law was the son of a Wayne County rural school teacher, born in the old hospital, and adopted by a couple from York. I've always wondered if I knew his mother. I'd like to tell her what a fine husband and father, and son, he is.

I've been hearing about a new group from Winside, the Singing Nuns. Rumor has it they will be appearing at Winside's High School Christmas music concert, so put that on your calendar now.

Pheasant hunters have been having good luck, as have the bow and arrow folks looking for deer.

We paused for reflection on Veteran's Day and moved right on to Thanksgiving plans. I still think Hallsgivingmas is appropriate. Blessings!

Holiday—

$500 worth of refunds will be given to shoppers who register.

"Judging by the outflow of Holiday Magic entry blanks, early holiday sales are going well," said Farnan.

One of the highlights of the holiday season in Wayne will be the opening of Fantasy Forest on Dec. 1. The lighting of the specially decorated trees in the National Guard Armory will be preceded at 5:30 p.m. by a parade of decorated vehicles down Main Street. Farm implements festooned with Christmas lights will be a highlight of the parade which will start at First and Main and proceed to the Armory.

Besides the viewing of the Fantasy Forest trees, there will be pictures with Santa, the Rotary Soup and Pie supper and musical entertainment following the parade.

Rotary members, who underestimated turnout at the Soup and Pie Supper last year and ran out of food, have promised not to run out this year.

Hunger for learning

SCHOOL BOARD

The three members-elect of the Wakefield School Board were present at the regular meeting Nov. 14, along with three Wayne State College students.

Superintendent Derwin Hartman reported on the fall school board-administrator convention which was held Nov. 17 and 18 in Omaha and the new board member workshop which will be held in Kearney on Dec. 7. All three new board members will be attending the workshop in Kearney and Mr. Hartman and two or three board members will be attending the meeting in Omaha.

Mike Salmon and Derwin Hartman visited with the board about evaluation instruments to be used for administrator's evaluations at the December board meeting.

Mrs. Surface reported on basketball practice schedules, all state music selections, absenteeism and technological concerns.

Jim Stout, chairperson of the building and grounds committee, shared his views on the two architects' proposals to continue the facility study. As a result of the buildings and grounds committee recommendation the board voted to contract with Dana Larson-Roubal Associates to continue the study.

The board approved a fire arms and weapons policy which will be implemented on Dec. 1, 1994. The board moved into executive session at 10:05 p.m. to discuss several personnel matters including new teacher evaluation. The board returned to regular session at 10:50 p.m.

The board approved the National Honor Society's request to attend the Elizabethan Dinner on Sunday, Dec. 11.

Lana is a Wakefield High School graduate and is the daughter of Lyle and Marvene Ekberg.

ELECTION HELD

The second grade at Peterson School in Paso Robles, Calif. held an election of a Toon Town president. Winner was Twenty Bird. Wakefield students took part via the computer network. There were 31 schools in the United States, Canada and South Africa participating.

Wakefield students favored Minnie Mouse for the position. Classroom instructor Jan Johnson said that after a different winner was declared nationally, the class had a discussion about a winning candidate in one state still might not win a national election and the possibilities of why he won in one state and not another.

Adult attitudes are conditioned

QUESTION: Why are some men and women less sensual than others?

DR. DOBSON: Adult attitudes toward sexual relations are largely conditioned during childhood and adolescence. It is surprising to observe how many otherwise well-adjusted people still think of married sex as dirty, animalistic or evil.

Such a person who has been taught a one-sided, negative approach to sex during the formative years may find it impossible to release these carefully constructed inhibitions on the wedding night. The marriage ceremony is simply insufficient to reorient one's attitude from "thou shalt not" to "thou shalt regularly and with great passion."

That mental turnabout is not easily achieved.

But I should emphasize another factor: not all differences in intensity of the sex drive can be traced to errors in childhood instruction. Human beings differ in practically every characteristic. Our feet come in different sizes, our teeth are shaped differently, some folks eat more than others and some are taller than their peers.

We are unique creatures. Accordingly, we differ in sexual appetites. Our intellectual "computers" are clearly programmed differently through the process of genetic inheritance. Some of us "hunger and thirst" after our sexuality while others take it much more casually. Given this variability, we should learn to accept ourselves sexually, as well as physically and emotionally.

This does not mean that we shouldn't try to improve the quality of our sex lives, but it does mean that we should stop struggling to achieve the impossible; trying to set off an atomic bomb with a match stick!

As long as the husband and wife are satisfied with each other, it doesn't matter what Cosmopolitan magazine says their inadequacies happen to be.

Sex has become a statistical monster: "The average couple has intercourse three times a week. Oh no! What's wrong with us? Are we under-sexed?" A husband worries if his genitalia are of "average size," while his wife contemplates her insufficient bust line. We are tyrannized by the great, new "sexual freedom."

QUESTION: Describe in greater detail the mood fluctuations that are associated with the menstrual cycle each month. Is it true that this chemical influence is evident not only during or before a period, but at other times also?

DR. DOBSON: It has been said, quite accurately, that the four weeks of the menstrual cycle can be characterized by the four seasons of the year. The first week after a period can be termed the springtime of the physiological calendar. New estrogens (female hormones) are released each day and a woman's body begins to rebound from the recent winter.

The second week represents the summertime of the cycle, when the living is easy. A woman during this phase has more self-confidence than during any other phase of the month. It is a time of maximum energy, enthusiasm, amiability and self-esteem. Estrogen levels account for much of this optimism, reaching a peak during mid-cycle when ovulation occurs. The relationship between husband and wife is typically at its best during these days of summer, when sexual drive (and the potential for pregnancy) are paramount.

But alas, fall must surely follow summer. Estrogen levels steadily dwindle as the woman's body prepares for another period of menstruation. A second hormone called progesterone is released, which reduces the effect of estrogen and initiates the symptoms of premenstrual tension.

Self-esteem deteriorates day by day, bringing depression and pessimism with it. A bloated and sluggish feeling often produces not only discomfort but also the belief that "I am ugly." Irritability and aggression become increasingly evident as the week progresses, reaching a climax immediately prior to menstruation. Then comes the winter period of the menstrual flow.

Women differ remarkably in intensity of these symptoms, but most experience some discomfort. Those most vulnerable even find it necessary to spend a day or two in bed during the "winter" season, suffering from cramping and generalized misery. Gradually, the siege passes and the refreshing newness of springtime returns.

REYE'S SYNDROME

Reye's Syndrome is a serious, potentially fatal illness that happens mostly in children and adolescents. It has a sudden onset and symptoms include vomiting, central nervous system damage, liver damage and low blood sugar. Symptoms usually begin after a bout of chicken pox or the flu. Evidence suggests that children who are given aspirin to treat symptoms of chicken pox or flu are more likely to develop Reye's Syndrome. To be safe, treat children's flu or chicken pox symptoms with acetaminophen (Tylenol). If he or she develops symptoms of Reye's Syndrome, consult your physician.

My wife has been coming to Dr. Feidler for 11 or 12 years. I remember how hard cataract surgery was for my granddad. A lot of our friends have had cataract surgery, so I knew cataract surgery wasn't very hard nowadays.

There wasn't much to the surgery. I took the patch off at 3:00 p.m. that day. It took a day or two to clear up completely. It's just that simple. I want to have the other eye done. I do a little farming and I want to wait until I'm not in the dust as much. Dr. Feidler told me it was entirely up to me when I had it done. He keeps you informed."

'Cats defeat York by 99 points in record performance McDermott era begins at WSC

The head coaching debut of Greg McDermott will be a memorable one for a very long time at Wayne State as the first-year men's coach watched his Wildcats completely out-class the York Panthers, Saturday by a 137-38 margin.

It was the largest margin of victory by the men's basketball team in history and it was the most points ever scored by a WSC men's team, breaking the mark of 127 set in 1975 against Peru State.

WSC was awarded two free throws to start the game because York received a technical foul when the official saw one of the players dunking the basketball in warm-ups.

The 'Cats missed both free shots, however, but that was about the only miscue by the host team as they steam rolled to a 74-12 halftime lead.

"I was very happy with the intensity we started the game with," McDermott said. "I was also pleased that we didn't drop the level of our play based on our opponent's talent level."

WSC played at the tempo they dictated the entire night and all 14 players that suited up saw plenty of playing time and all 14 hit the scoring column led by Dan Anderson who came off the bench to score 21 points after connecting 10 of 11 shots from the floor.

Freshman forward Craig Phillip followed with 16 points in his collegiate debut and Kyle White tallied 15 including 12 points on four, 3-pointers. Omar Clark and Greg Ryan scored 13 each and Curt Woodin netted a dozen while Gary Kneiff notched 10 points.

Mike Fitzner and Joe Gnat each scored eight points and Justin Malcolm scored six while Harlin Welch and Billy Patterson tallied five apiece. Terry Mailloux and Mike Mitchell rounded out the scoring with four and one points, respectively.

The 'Cats knocked down 56 percent of their shot attempts, 58-103 and hit 11 of 27, 3-point shots. WSC simply dominated the boards, 53-23 led by Mailloux with 10 caroms while Phillip and Ryan had seven each.

The high octane Wildcat offense produced 32 team assists and just eight turnovers. Patterson had eight assists to lead WSC while Fitzner dished out five. Woodin led the team in steals with four while Clark had three. "Our team chemistry was very good," McDermott said. "We'll have to continue that Tuesday when we host Dana College."

WSC women cagers beat York despite sluggish first half

The Wayne State women's basketball team opened up season play, Saturday at home against York College in the friendly confines of Rice Auditorium and Mike Barry's squad had to overcome a less than stellar first half performance to defeat the Panthers going away, 66-51.

"It wasn't too pretty a performance in the first half," Barry said. "I thought we had a better shot selection than York but our shots just weren't falling and the game was tied at 19."

Barry said things got even more complicated in the opening stanza when his 'Cats got a little panicky when the shots weren't falling.

"Overall, I'd say the first half went about as bad as it possibly could have," Barry added.

The host team got things rolling a little bit in the second half and quickly showed their superiority over the Lady Panthers. "We ran a few specialty plays at them and it kind of loosened things up for us," Barry said. "I told the girls at half that we were getting better shots so we just had to keep shooting the ball like we had been. Our full court defense in the second half produced some turnovers and points."

Bears tamed in championship

Tom Luxford's Laurel football team reached the pinnacle of their season last Friday as they hosted the C-2 State Championship Football Game. Unfortunately, that meant hosting a Cambridge team that hadn't lost since the championship game of 1992 in Bloomfield, a streak of 25 games.

Cambridge scored touchdowns on its first nine possessions of the game and led 55-0 over the Bears before Laurel managed to hit paydirt on a trick play with Jeremy Reinoehl hitting his twin brother Jared on a 48-yard scoring strike.

Laurel trailed the visitors, 28-0 after the first quarter and 48-0 at the intermission. The Bears did manage to score 28, second half points but gave up 73 in a 45-point setback.

"On film Cambridge is a little bit deceiving," Luxford said. "We really felt we would be able to do some things against their defense but our quarterback just didn't get the time he needed to throw the ball. Cambridge has one complete football team."

Luxford said the Cambridge defense deserved a lot of credit for stopping the Bears offense. The Cambridge quarterback had plenty of time to throw the ball and Ed Thompson took full advantage of it as he connected on all 11 pass attempts for 193 yards.

In fact, Cambridge rolled up an impressive 556 total yards of offense against a stingy Bear defense. "Nobody likes to lose a game by this much of a margin in a championship game but I don't think our team should have to hang their heads because they had one heck of a football season," Luxford said. "We won more games than any other team in Laurel history and won a conference championship for the first time in 24 years."

Laurel's other scoring plays against Cambridge came on a 17-yard pass from Tyler Erwin to Jeremy Reinoehl with Erwin hitting Jared Reinoehl for the two-point conversion. Cody Carstensen sprinted 20 yards to paydirt for the third Bears touchdown and Vince Ward scored on a 13-yard run to close out the scoring.

"We were first team this season to score on Cambridge's first team defense," Luxford said. "We can take some consolation in that. Carstensen led Laurel in rushing with 60 yards on four carries while Ryan Kvols had 44 yards on just two attempts.

Erwin was 8-18 through the air for 86 yards while Jeremy Reinoehl was 2-2 for 81 yards. Jeremy was also the leading receiver with six catches for 52 yards while Jared Reinoehl had two receptions for 81 yards.

Defensively, Dustin Ankeny led the host team with 17 tackles while Kody Urwiler had 13 and Carstensen, 10. Jeff Wattier and Ryan Kvols had nine tackles each while Jeff Erwin and Vince Ward had five each.

LAUREL QUARTERBACK TYLER Erwin gets a little time to pass the ball on this play before the Cambridge defense converged on him.

CODY CARSTENSEN gets gang tackled by a ferocious Cambridge defense which matched up with Laurel's speed—the only team that matched the Bears quickness all season. Laurel was defeated in the championship game, 73-28.

JEFF WATTIER looks to follow the block of Eric Abts during first half action of the Bears championship game with Cambridge, Friday night.

Haskins for coming off the bench and having a good game on both ends of the floor. "Deedra hit five of her seven shots from the field and collected nine rebounds," Barry said. "She really did a nice job for us."

Deb Kostreba led the 'Cats with a dozen points followed by Haskins with 11 and Amy Brodersen with nine. Kristy Iwait knocked down seven points and Mindi Jensen scored six while Marla Stewart, Danyel Grammer and Susie Osborn tallied five each.

Liz Reeg finished with four points and Lori Zeimet rounded out the attack with two points. WSC out-rebounded the Panthers by a 49-45 margin led by Haskins' nine caroms. Osborn had eight rebounds and Jensen notched seven.

Stewart dished out a team high four assists and the 'cats turned the ball over 24 times while forcing 35 turnovers. Jensen blocked five shots and Haskins recorded four steals.

WSC back gains honor

Dixon County Legion and Auxiliary convention is held in Allen Nov. 11

The Dixon County American Legion and Auxiliary Convention was held in Allen on Veterans Day, Nov. 11. Sixty-three Auxiliary members from Allen, Emerson, Newcastle, Ponca and Wakefield units met at the First Lutheran Church for a business meeting at 4:30 p.m. Each unit gave a report of its past year's activities. Newly elected officers for 1995 are Nancy Mackling from Emerson, county president; Vernice Kingsbury from Ponca, county vice president; and Rachael Belt from Emerson, county secretary.

Following the business meeting, a narration of wars America has been involved in since the Revolution to the present time was given. Songs associated with each conflict were sung by the Auxiliary chorus. Table decorations and name tags carried out the theme of the 50th anniversary of World War II.

While the ladies met, the Legion posts were meeting in the Allen fire hall. Thirty members were present. Newly-elected officers for Dixon County are Fred Mackling from Emerson, commander and Ron Mahler from Ponca, vice commander.

The banquet, held in the school gym, followed the business meetings. Acting as waiters for the 181 people in attendance for the catered meal were Allen FFA chapter members. The 57-member Allen High School band, under the direction of Richard Lacy, performed seven songs with patriotic and 1940's themes.

Dixon County Legion Commander Melvin Vavra and Dixon County Auxiliary President Deenette Von Minden introduced dignitaries at the head table and guest speaker, Sgt. First Class Jerome Donner of Laurel. Sgt. Donner of the Nebraska Army National Guard gave a slide presentation and narration of his experience this summer as part of the 134th Infantry Honor Guard attending the 50th anniversary of D-Day in Normandy France.

Following his presentation, President Von Minden reported that Allen has been designated as a World War II 50th commemorative community by the Department of Defense and displayed the certificate of recognition of this honor. All World War II veterans in attendance were then given a pin similar to the WW II honorable service lapel button (ruptured duck), originally issued to all veterans honorably discharged between Sept. 8, 1939 and Dec. 31, 1946. Members of the Auxiliary/Legion commemorative community committee were given pins of recognition and the 50th anniversary of WW II flag was unveiled. Banquet decorations also carried out the 50th anniversary of WW II theme. The certificate and flag have been placed in the American Legion and Auxiliary meeting rooms, which also serve as the senior citizen center and Golden Eagle Nutrition Site. The rooms are open daily to the public.

The 50th anniversary of WW II commemorative community program is a "grassroots" initiative designed to encourage communities, cities, states, federal agencies, military installations, service/social and veterans organizations to thank and honor WW II veterans through commemorative events and activities. This program not only allows Americans an opportunity to recognize and remember the sacrifices of our armed forces, but also to recognize those who served on the home front. It offers Americans a chance to study the history and lessons of WW II. It gives Americans an opportunity to say "a grateful nation remembers." The commemoration period continues through Veterans Day, 1995.

The Golden Years

By: Connie Dishrow

On a spring morning, 35 employees of a large corporation showed up at a Yorktown, New York, home where an 87-year-old woman lives alone. They spent all day making renovations and repairs and painting. On the same day the scene was repeated at 151 other homes in New York, Connecticut, Colorado and Georgia. The program of the not-for-profit AmeriCares in Darien, Connecticut, has grown each year since its start in 1987. The organization recruits volunteers from companies, civic organizations and churches and seeks donated paint and other supplies. By helping low-income elderly or handicapped homeowners with the upkeep they can't perform, the program also bolsters their hope and dignity, an AmeriCares spokesperson explained.

Composer Gian Carlo Menotti, 82, was "astounded" when 900 people turned out to honor him at a party in New York. "I thought people in New York had forgotten me," he said, because he has worked in Italy and lived in Scotland for years. He told party guests he has yielded the presidency of the Spoleto Festival to a son ("I don't want to go over the books") but continues as artistic director of the festival and the Rome Opera as well.
