

Opponent seeks apology for bond campaign

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

School bond issues tend to be the most emotional of all political enterprises, according to Frank Daley, counsel for the Nebraska Accountability and Disclosure Commission.

Daley told the Wayne Herald last week that he has had several conversations about the failed Wayne School Bond issue with an individual in Wayne who is claiming irregularities in the handling of the campaign for the measure.

Voters rejected the $7.9 million proposal to build a new middle school and add on to the high school by a 876 to 956 margin. The Wayne School Board, under the gun to address accessibility deficiencies at the school, may ask voters to consider another issue or other options later this year.

If that should happen, Mark Griesch of Wayne said he wants to make sure the campaign is done right. Griesch, alleges the supporters of the bond issue last month were wrong to use middle school students on the radio encouraging voters to vote for a new school.

"They broke the law using kids," he said.

Griesch said he will be attending tonight's Wayne School Board meeting to ask for an admission of wrong doing and public apology for the mistakes made in the last election. If he does not get the apology he said he will file an official complaint with the Accountability and Disclosure Commission.

"If they admit they were wrong and apologize, then I won't file," Griesch told the Herald. He said that others might file if he didn't regardless of whether the school officials apologize.

Griesch said he thought the issue could be settled here without outside involvement of the state regulatory agency.

"The only way we are going to close the wounds is for the side that made the most mistakes to apologize and say they were wrong," said Griesch. "We have got to bring our town back together with our rural people."

He said he has resisted the urgings of people, even those who have offered him money, to file the papers.

Daley, from Lincoln, said he is "not inclined to offer any opinions" about whether there was any wrong doing in the Wayne Bond Issue campaign. He said he has only told those who have called what the laws are.

He said if someone files an official written complaint then his office is obligated to take action. Formal complaints must be made under oath, he said.

Daley said if his investigation uncovers reason to believe that there is probable cause for a hearing, the commission would be impaneled and a hearing similar to court proceeding would be held. The nine member commission would decide whether a violation has occurred. If there is a violation, the largest penalty would be a $1,000 civil assessment against the offending party.

He said there are provisions for criminal prosecution in severe cases with the stiffest penalty being a Class IV misdemeanor.

"Bond issues tend to be the areas where we have the greatest number of enquiries about official irregularities or campaign irregularities," said Daley. Most of the complaints involve the use of public funds or resources for the campaign, he said.

Daley did not issue an opinion on whether the bond issue supporters could use children in campaign commercials. Speaking in general terms, he said there is always potential for campaign abuse involving school

Housing efforts address Wayne shortage

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Housing development was identified as Wayne's greatest need by city officials and development specialists over a year ago and this coming construction season promises to be another busy one as programs are implemented to address those needs.

The Wayne Community Housing Development Organization has formed and will be hiring a part-time director this month to help administer development funds which are available for a variety of housing development programs which are being established in Wayne.

Nearly $350,000 has been allocated from federal and state grant funds for a rental housing rehabilitation program, a first time home owner program, a housing emergency fund and assistance for housing developers.

There has already been interest shown in these programs, said Dave Ewing, chairman of the CHDO in Wayne.

It is anticipated the housing administrator's office will be located in the Wayne Chamber of Commerce building. The programs will be funded in part from the Department of Economic Development Revolving Loan Fund which was established to assist with the financing of the Great Dane Trailer manufacturing plant in Wayne. Since the firm has paid back the initial development loan, the city of Wayne has allocated a portion of the loan proceeds approximately $200,000 to be used in housing development efforts.

Unused state grant funds in the amount of $149,000 which were allocated to help with the refurbishing of the old hotel building at Second and Pearl have also been shifted to housing development in an agreement between the state and the city.

The housing programs to be

Sledders out, take notice

Now that there is snow on the ground, sledders have taken to the streets, more accurately, Sherman Street between Second and Third Streets.

Wayne City police have placed barricades at both ends of the block to allow children the opportunity the ride sleds safely.

"This street has been blocked off for a number of years. The barricades are put up during the hours that children are not in school and on the weekends. Motorists need to be aware that sledders could be in this area and should be careful when driving near there," said Police Chief Vern Fairchild.

"Sledders also need to be careful because even though the street is blocked off, there are those people who live on this street that need to use it. We have not had any complaints or problems but everyone needs to be aware of what is happening in the area, said Fairchild.

City police put up the barricades after school hours and remove them each night after children have finished sledding.

Two names were reported incorrectly under the front page photo of Wayne County officials being sworn into office last week.

Lorraine Johnson, new county treasurer was reported as Lois Johnson, both on the front page and under an inside photo. Pearla Benjamin, clerk/magistrate was mistakenly reported as Perla Benjamin county judge.

Due to space limitations in the county court office where the swearing in took place, Mike Karel, member of the weed board, was not shown in the photo and Joyce Reeg was partially obscured.

These (and most other) errors are the responsibility of the editor/publisher who apologizes. A corrected caption and photo is on Page 5 today.

Bound over for trial

PENDER, Neb. (AP) -- A man accused of shooting his former girlfriend in the back of the head and leaving her for dead has been bound over for trial on a charge of attempted second-degree murder, authorities said Friday.

Brian Anderson, 22, also faces charges in Thurston County District Court of kidnapping and use of a firearm to commit a felony, County Attorney Matthew Samuelson said.

Anderson has pleaded innocent in Dixon County to kidnapping, use of a firearm to commit a felony and operating a motor vehicle to avoid arrest.

Defense attorney Doug Luebe had argued at a Dec. 14 hearing that Anderson faces double jeopardy because he has been charged twice with some of the same crimes.

But Judge Paul Robinson said in a ruling Tuesday that the hearing wasn't an appropriate forum for the double jeopardy claim and he overruled it.

Anderson faces a Feb. 1 arraignment in Thurston County.

He is accused of abducting Laura Kucera, 19, of Wakefield, shooting her and leaving her in an isolated part of northeast Nebraska on Oct. 1.

Clad only in a cotton shirt, T-shirt and shorts, Miss Kucera, 19, survived and was found late Oct. 4.

A Nebraska State Patrol investigator at the December hearing said Anderson had led police to where Miss Kucera could be found.

New doctor to join Wayne staff

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Mark and Gail McCorkindale have selected Wayne for their new home, even though they were wooed by many other communities both large and small.

The couple which will be locating in Wayne this summer are highly sought after medical professionals. Mark is a new physician who will be joining Northeast Nebraska Medical Group in Wayne and Gail is a physical therapist who is already commuting to work at Providence Medical Center from their home in Sioux City.

There is a lot for a young family practice physician to consider when selecting a place to start his career, said Dr. McCorkindale, who will be finishing his residency in Sioux City this summer. Many rural communities are offering incentives to try to attract family practitioners. Add to this the fact that physical therapists are often in greater demand today than rural physicians, and you have a family most rural communities would love to have.

But the McCorkindales chose Wayne over other towns, including one in Idaho, because they are Northeast Nebraska natives, they like the community and they especially like the professionals they will be working with.

Dr. McCorkindale, 33, is a 1980 Laurel High School graduate whose family still lives in the area. His father, John McCorkindale, owns the John Deere dealership in Laurel. Mrs. McCorkindale hails from Bancroft, where her parents, Elton and Jean Bray, still reside. The McCorkindales have one daughter, Hannah, 16 months.

"I always knew I was going to go into a small town practice," said McCorkindale of his career plans after choosing family practice as a specialty. He said he made the choice of small town family practice because he likes the variety, the ability to develop a relationship with his patients and to follow-up. He said he likes the "complete patient care" approach rather than the same treatment day in and day out that is required of many specialists.

He joked that he chose the family practice area because he "liked working the longest hours for the lowest medical pay."

Coming from small town environments definitely had an effect on the McCorkindales' decision to locate in a small town he said. Even though he went through college and medical school before it was available, he said he sees the newly implemented Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) which helps small town kids get into medical school as beneficial toward the current shortage in rural medical professionals.

"An easier answer might be to pay family physicians in small towns comparably (to what larger community doctors make)," he said, adding that the pay issue might attract more young physicians into the field.

The McCorkindales selected their new town carefully, said Mark because once established doctors don't tend to move very often. It takes 3-5 years to establish a practice, he said.

Commissioners reorganize

By Clara Osten
For the Herald

Electing and appointing of persons to fill the various positions took up most of the Wayne County Commissioners meeting today.

In a re-organizational meeting required by state statute, the commissioners elected Bob Nissen as chairman and Dennis Dangberg as vice-chairman of the Board of Commissioners.

Merlin Beiermann was elected chairman of the Board of Equalization and Dennis Dangberg was chosen vice-chairman. County Clerk Deb Finn will serve as clerk to both boards.

Chris Connelly was appointed to serve as Deputy County Attorney and Dr. Jim Lindau will serve as the Coroners Physician.

Board members were also appointed to serve on several area and state boards. Bob Nissen will serve on the Area Agency on Aging Board, Dennis Dangberg on the Region IV Mental Health Board, and Merlin Beiermann on the Region IV Mental Retardation Board. Beiermann will also serve on the Northeast Nebraska Juvenile Services, Inc. Board and Dangberg was chosen to serve on the Ag Land Valuation Board.

In other business the commissioners re-appointed Sid Saunders County Highway Superintendent and updated the list of persons who are authorized by the county to acquire property from the State Surplus Property Office.

The commissioners also reviewed procedure guidelines for agendas and meetings.

assistance capital advance program. Under the rental rehab program, funds are available to either owners or tenants to help upgrade rental units.

In addition, a limited amount of funding will be available to help first time home buyers with up-front financing. Under the program qualified applicants can borrow up to $17,600 from the housing organization at extremely low interest. The funds would be used as a down payment for a home purchase. As written, the program allows for families who live in the same home for ten years after purchase to have their loans forgiven.

Ewing said the goal of the program is to promote long-term stability and help families with financing to make their initial home purchase.

Ewing explained that the housing organization is interested in developing new housing opportunities for the community and improving existing housing.

"We're not involved in rent control and we're not a housing authority," he said. He explained the role of the organization as one of helping with financial assistance for individuals and developers who will proceed with projects that otherwise wouldn't be undertaken.

The nine member board still has four openings and directors are especially needed to represent the low and moderate income sectors of the community, he said. Currently serving on the board are Pat Gross, Vicki Skokan, Valeria Palu, Bob Dyer and Ewing.

Those interested in more information about the assistance programs through the housing organization or those who would like to help by serving on the board should contact Ewing at 375-3385.

bond issues because well-meaning campaigners might use school resources like a copy machine for flyers.

School officials have said they carefully kept the campaign funds collected from local contributors separate from regular school funds and funneled them through the Wayne High School Foundation. They also said they obtained signed parental consent forms for Middle School student council members who volunteered to make radio commercials for the bond issue.

School superintendent Dennis Jensen said he met with Griesch to discuss his concerns. "We've looked into this matter and checked with legal sources," said Jensen. He added if a bond issue election is repeated this year, there will be things the school will do differently, but he added the committee which campaigned for the bond issue did nothing knowingly in opposition to campaign or other state regulations.

The couple said they like the quality of life they see in Wayne. Dr. McCorkindale has helped fill in on weekends in Wayne and worked for several weeks here to get a sense for the community and the other profes-

Married in 1990 after they met in Gross Anatomy class at the University of Nebraska Medical School, the couple will be building a new home beginning this spring in the Vintage Hills Addition in Wayne.

In spare time Dr. McCorkindale enjoys hunting, basketball and coed-volleyball. Gail enjoys playing the piano, rollerblading and volleyball. They will be joining the First Presbyterian Church.

Big endorsements

A pair of new medical professionals will join the Northeast Nebraska medical community this summer.

While many small communities go wanting when it comes to recruiting new physicians and physical therapists, Wayne area residents should consider themselves fortunate to attract these young medical professionals.

Making a community attractive to young professionals requires a considerable investment and we wish to take this opportunity to thank those we think are responsible for ensuring the future of medical care for the area.

The medical community which includes Providence Medical Center and the staff and management of the clinic which will move into new quarters near the hospital later this year, should receive a large share of our thanks. They have created a good environment for the medical professional and for the medical patient as well.

When young professionals look around at the many communities who are vying to attract them to locate in their towns, they often consider the quality of life issues and attractiveness of the community.

Good schools, parks, city services, recreational facilities, business and retail services and infrastructure in general are heavily considered in the decision.

In today's competitive medical field, it is a great endorsement of the quality of life of a community when it attracts a pair of new medical professionals.

Therefore, we would also like to thank everyone who makes an effort to keep their community vibrant, growing and attractive.

The whole town received a couple big endorsements this week.

Turnout shameful

Wayne resident Steve Gross took the Herald to task last week in a letter to the editor. In the letter he said an earlier editorial called the outcome of the school bond issue a shameful lesson for middle school students.

For the record, the editorial argued the low turnout of voters in the election was a shameful lesson for students.

We would be hard pressed to argue that the valid result of an election, no matter how many voters cast their ballots is shameful, even if we don't agree with the outcome.

But we still contend that students and the adults in the community should be ashamed of the low number of voters who thought the issue was important enough to even bother with.

Thanks for story

Dear Editor:

(Thank you very much for running a front-page story in the issue of Jan 3 about the postponement of the Wayne County Joint Planning Commission meeting from Jan. 5 to Jan. 19. It is fortunate that you did so, because some of the mailed notices of the postponement were not delivered in time.

Although I am no longer Clerk of the Planning Commission, Carla Gunn, who works in my office and in the County Clerk's office, still helps the Commission with copying and mailing. Acting on my instructions, she mailed notices of the postponement to KTCH Radio, to the members of the Commission and to about 20 other officials and interested citizens on Jan. 3. Since the envelopes were pre-stamped for the old rate of 29 cents, they were run through the county postage meter to add 3 cents postage to each envelope. In accordance with the instructions that the Wayne Post Office had given to county officials several weeks ago when the county bought the meter, the additional postage was printed on the back of each envelope.

On the morning of Jan. 5 some of the envelopes were returned to the county's post office box for not having enough postage. The County Clerk immediately re-mailed them, pointing out to the Post Office that they in fact had enough postage. I then hand-carried a copy of the notice to KTCH Radio, and they very kindly agreed to make an extra effort to get the word out. Ms. Gunn telephoned everyone on the mailing list and learned that only the envelopes with Wayne addresses had been held up. The envelopes addressed to people in other towns had already been delivered.

I most sincerely regret any inconvenience that anyone may have suffered as a result of this incident.

Crash diet for bureaucracy

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — If Gov. Nelson gets his way, the 1995 Legislature will be remembered as the one that converted state government into a lean, mean machine that costs less tax money to run.

That was the challenge that the governor plans to lay down this week in his State of the State address.

Look for Nelson to consolidate some state agencies, eliminate others and generally put bureaucracy on a crash diet.

It's part of a plan he outlined last week to save $70 million and return it to voters in the form of an income-tax cut.

The cut wasn't much — $37 for a married couple with one child and a $32,500 gross adjusted income — but it is a cut.

Such income-tax cuts have been popular nationally in recent years, mostly with Republican governors seeking to stimulate economic growth. But Nelson, a Democrat, has always seemed as much aligned with the GOP.

Speaking of political parties, Nelson continues to sound like a candidate. Tax cuts are usually proposed when someone is running for office.

Last week, we learned it might be Nelson for President. He said several "elected officials" across the country had urged him to consider seeking the Oval Office.

Most of the inquiries came out of his well-publicized national efforts to convene a conference of the states to reduce those nasty, unfunded federal mandates that everyone is complaining about these days. Nelson's landslide re-election only fueled the talk.

Nelson said he was flattered but didn't plan to challenge Bill Clinton in 1996, or Nebraska's most-recognized presidential candidate, U.S. Sen. Bob Kerrey.

But the governor indicated that the 2000 election was a different story.

Nelson for President? The Capitol crowd questioned whether he has the magnetic personality for a run for the White House, but his conservative politics is attractive to a Democratic Party that just lost the middle of the political spectrum.

Who knows?

I do know that proposing an income-tax cut in a state starved for relief from high property taxes will take some explaining.

Rural senators are already taking aim at the $70 million in extra funds the governor says can be found. If there really is that much money, why isn't it going toward property tax relief? Income tax cuts, after all, don't benefit farmers as much as your typical wage earners in the city.

Nelson has several answers. He can't do much about how much property taxes are levied by local school districts, cities and counties. Sending more state aid to such local governments only shifts (and doesn't cut) taxes.

Plus, Nelson said, if he sets a good example in cutting spending and taxes, maybe they will follow his lead.

This all sounds good. Of course, everything sounds pretty good before things hit the meat-grinder of debate in the State Legislature.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Justice for all guaranteed

Remember when you first committed these majestic words to memory, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all"? More than likely somewhere along yesteryear's path in elementary school a teacher helped you memorize these impressive words.

"Justice for all"? Powerful words when put into practice. Even with "under God" few objected!

"Justice for all" is guaranteed on the city, county, state and national levels. Justice must prevail regardless of race or creed.

Abraham Lincoln, asked in his first inaugural address in 1861, "Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people? Is there any better or equal hope in the world?"

Then there are these potent words in the Declaration of Independence, "We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed..."

Justice is a magnificent companion for declared equality. The two make brilliant conceptual neighbors.

Did you notice in the Declaration the words "all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator..." Wow! Zingo! Such words offend some now! Our forefathers believed and proclaimed

Merlin Wright

As you pursue your inalienable rights in 1995, endowed by your Creator, what are you going to do with your life, liberty and pursuit of happiness?

You will likely spend your life as you please. That's freedom. Pursuing happiness is generally a daily endeavor. But what will you do with your precious liberty?

Will you use it by voting and expressing your views to public servants at all levels of government? Government employees work by permission of the governed.

Remember, "governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed..."

Wow! Government "of, by, and for" the people!

Want more? Nebraska! Home of national champions!

Champion liars young and old

Lying is an art in Burlington, Wis. where the Burlington Liars Club crowns a liar of the year, but those honored this year can't hold a candle to world class liars I have known.

"Did you break that (whatever item lays in shambles at the youngster's feet)?"

"No, not me," says child thinking quickly. "It must have been (which ever sibling isn't there to defend themselves)."

"Are you sure?" asks parent with unabashed doubt.

"Well, maybe he didn't. I don't remember."

"Remember? So, you were here when it happened?"

"Well, uh, no, uh, well, maybe I was but I didn't want to be. It was an accident."

For pure lying under pressure nothing can top a ten year old. When I was ten I had achieved world class status. At least that is what I thought until my mom caught me in a whopper one day. Her cure, and let me tell you it works, was cayenne pepper on the tongue.

Sooner or later all liars get caught, I have since learned. I still remember the day my mom introduced me to cayenne. She just asked me an innocent sounding question. And I answered it in that offhand, matter of fact manner all truly great liars perfect over time.

Unbeknownst to me she had learned the truth earlier from another mother (those crumbs always stick together). She played me like a trophy big mouth bass. And I took the bait deeper and deeper.

I don't remember the pain as much as the humiliation of becoming a dethroned champion liar. I knew back then I would never make it to Burlington.

What distresses me about the Burlington Liars honored this year is they have all the time in the world to compose their whoppers. True champions should be judged on their ability to perform under pressure.

I'll bet the competition would be different in Burlington if the non-

Mann Overboard

By Les Mann

winning liars had to take a dose of my mom's remedy. That would put a little pressure on the competition wouldn't it?

Anyway, the winner this year, Donald Theisen says his grandfather could sharpen a kitchen knife like no one else.

So how sharp was it?

Well, Theisen said his grandmother could use it to slice bread so thin that a piece had just one side. To apply butter, you had to fold it first.

That's the tall tale that won Theisen, 72, of Appleton, the "Liar of the Year" award from Liars Club.

"I always knew that I would be famous for something," said Theisen, who gets a certificate for submitting the winning lie in the annual contest.

The club also awarded 10 honorable mentions. Some samples:

"Every year around Christmas it gets so cold in Rochester (N.Y.) that men with toupees wear them inside out." From Len Squires, of Rochester.

"During the rainy season in Stuart (Fla.), the rain comes down so hard and so fast that automobile dealerships in the area consider cars as standard equipment." From Jearrette La Forest, of Stuart.

"The potholes in my street are so bad that whenever I play my car stereo, the radio station's record skips." From Russ Lawson, Racine, Wis.

"There was this lady on a tour of the Endless Mountains of northeastern Pennsylvania. Upon visiting a mink ranch, she asked the rancher how often could he skin the mink. 'Well, not more than twice,' he said. 'They get pretty damned mean after that.'" From Rupert Turrell, New Milford, Pa.

"Last year, when the old sheep farmer finished shearing his big flock of sheep, he ended up with a very sore back. The next day he went into town and bought a big bag of buttons. He then went home and sewed four or five buttons on the belly of each one of his sheep. This year, when it came time to shear, all he had to do was unbutton their new wool coats and remove them, just like a pair of long-handled underwear." From Jack D. Sorensen, Kenosha, Wis.

The Liars Club was started in 1929 by local newspaperman Otis Hulet. Theisen is the third winner from Appleton in the past seven years, but John Soeth, Liars Club president, said that fact is pure coincidence.

"We pay no attention whatever to where the lies come from," Soeth said. "But it does kind of make me wonder if there's some kind of tall tale virus going around in that area."

If there is such a virus I know the perfect cure.

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

Right now, the sun is shining — deceptively! You know, however, the minute you poke your nose out the door it is going to be COLD! How about curling up with a good book until the cold snap quits biting your nose?

For those of you who have enjoyed Norman Rockwell's illustrations over the years, we recommend "Norman Rockwell's America." It is a beautiful collection of his paintings and magazine covers. Look for it on one of the tables in the reading room.

And as long as you are in the library, we invite you to sit down and browse through "The Bulfinch Illustrated Encyclopedia of Antiques." A truly fascinating collection for the antique lovers among you. Sorry, this book is a reference book and stays in the library.

Time hanging heavy on your hands? Try learning a new game from "The Games Treasury: more than 300 indoor and outdoor favorites with strategies, rules and traditions" by Merilyn Simonds Mohr. All kinds of board games, card games, paper and pencil games for all ages are included. Get your family involved as well!

We have just the cook to help you plan your get-away to New York City. "Exploring New York City" has maps and color pictures of places of interest as well as recommended restaurants and hotels and much, much more.

When your meals become boring the same-old menus, try "The Bubba Gump Shrimp Co. Cookbook." There are recipes using shrimp that will shake up your meal times!

While you are just sitting there, thinking about money (and/or the lack of it), try reading "How to Make Money in Stocks: a Winning System in Good Times or Bad" by William J. O'Neil.

Then again, if you have dreams of really getting rich, you might be interested in a new biography — "The Warren Buffet Way: Investment Strategies of the World's Greatest Investor" by Robert G. Hagstrom Jr.

And it is never too early to think about summer vacation. Let "The Complete Guide to America's National Parks" give you ideas for short hops or long stays at national parks around the country or close to home.

"The whole world is brighter...literally brighter."

Charley Meyer had Cataracts.

He had No-Stitch Cataract Surgery.

"I came in to get my glasses changed and Dr. Feidler told me there was no use changing them until I got rid of the cataracts. I came to Dr. Feidler because he had done my mother's eyes back in the '80's.

The biggest problem was night driving. I got to the point where I couldn't drive at all at night. When I would meet a car on the road I had no idea where I was on the road. The lights had no shape, I'd lose track of the roadway, and reading was getting to be a problem.

I had the choice of when to have cataract surgery. The recovery from cataract surgery wasn't long. I had the second eye done 16 days after the first. The recuperating time is so short you can go about your activities in a few days.

When I drive, the lights have shape now. Things are back to normal. As far as Dr. Feidler is concerned, I couldn't ask for anyone better."

Teen years may bring rebellion

QUESTION: My son Brian is now 14 years old and he has suddenly entered a period of rebellion like nothing I've ever seen. He is breaking the rules right and left, and he seems to hate the entire family. He becomes angry when his mother and I try to discipline him, of course, but even during more tranquil times he seems to resent us for merely being there.

Last Friday night he arrived home an hour beyond his deadline, but refused to explain why he was late or make apologetic noises. We are in the midst of a nightmare I never anticipated when he was younger.

This is my question: I would like you to tell me exactly how to approach the situation, even role-playing my task of confronting him. I need to know what to say when that moment arrives.

DR. DOBSON: I would recommend that you invite Brian out to breakfast on a Saturday morning, leaving the rest of the family at home. It would be best if this event could occur during a relatively tranquil time, certainly not in the midst of a hassle or intergenerational battle. Admit that you have some important matters to discuss with him which can't be communicated adequately at home, but don't "tip your hand" before Saturday morning. Then at the appropriate moment during breakfast, convey the following messages (or an adaptation thereof):

1. Brian, I want to talk to you this morning because of the changes that are taking place in you and in our home. We both know that the past few weeks have not been very pleasant. You have been angry most of the time and have become disobedient and rude.

And your mother and I haven't done so well, either. We've become irritable and we've said things that we've regretted later. There has to be a more creative way of solving our problems. That's why we're all here.

2. As a place to begin, Brian, I want you to understand what is happening. You have gone into a new period of life known as adolescence. This is the final phase of childhood, and it's often a very stormy and difficult few years. Nearly everyone on earth goes through these rough years during their early teens, and you are right on schedule at this moment.

Many of the problems you face today were predictable from the day you were born, simply because growing up has never been an easy thing to do.

There are even greater pressures on kids today than when we were young. I've said that to tell you this: we understand you and love you as much as we ever did, even though the past few months have been difficult in our home.

3. What is actually taking place, you see, is that you have had a taste of freedom. You are tired of being a little boy who was told what to wear and when to go to bed and when to eat. That is a healthy attitude which will help you grow up.

However, now you want to be your own boss and want to make your own decisions without interference from anyone.

Brian, you will get what you want in a very short time. You are 14 now, and you'll soon be 15 and 17 and 19. You will be grown in a twinkling of an eye, and we will no longer have any responsibility for you.

The day is coming when you will go to whatever school you choose, select the profession or job that suits you and marry whomever you wish. Your mother and I will not try to make those decisions for you. We will respect your adulthood.

Furthermore, Brian, the closer you get to those days, the more freedom we plan to give you. You have more privileges now than you had last year, and that trend will continue. We will soon set you free.

4. But, Brian, you must understand this message: you are not grown yet. During the past few weeks, you have wanted your mother and me to leave you alone to stay out half the night if you choose, to fail in school and to carry no responsibility at home. And, you have "blown up" whenever we have denied even your most extreme demands.

Dr. Dobson

Answers Your Questions

The truth of the matter is, you have wanted us to grant you 20-year-old freedom at age 14, although you still expect to have your shirts ironed and your meals fixed and your bills paid. You have wanted the best of both worlds with none of the responsibilities. So what are we to do?

The easiest thing would be to let you have your way. There would be no hassles and no conflict and no more frustration. Many parents of 14-year-old sons and daughters have done just that. But we must not yield to this. You are not ready for the complete independence, and we would be showing hatred for you (instead of love) if we surrendered all the time. We would regret our mistake for the rest of our lives, and you would soon blame us, too.

And as you know, you have two younger sisters who are watching you very closely, and must be protected from the things you are teaching them.

We have responsibility as parents to do what is right. Mothers and fathers are expected to train their children and discipline them when required.

5. That brings us to the question of where do we go from here. I want to make a pledge to you: your mother and I intend to be more sensitive to your needs and feelings than we have been in the past. We're not perfect, and it is possible that you will feel we have been unfair at one time or another. If that occurs, you can express your views and we will listen to you.

We want to keep the door of communication wide open between us. When you seek a few privileges, I am going to ask myself this question: "Is there any way I can grant this request without harming Brian or other people?" If I can permit what you want in good conscience, I will do so. I will compromise and bend as far as my best judgement will let me.

6. But hear this, Brian: there will be a few matters that will not be compromised. There will be occasions when I will have to say "no." And when those times come, you can expect me to stand like the Rock of Gibraltar. No amount of violence and temper tantrums and door slamming will change a thing.

—In fact, if you choose to fight me on those remaining rules, I promise that you will lose dramatically. I can make your life uncomfortable, and that will be my goal. Believe me, Brian, I'll lie awake nights figuring out how to make you miserable. I have the courage and determination to do my job during these last few years you are at home, and I intend to use all my resources for this purpose, if necessary.

So it's up to you. We can have a peaceful time of cooperation at home, or we can spend this last part of your childhood in unpleasantness and struggle. Either way, you will arrive home when you are told, and you will carry your share of responsibility in the family and you will continue to respect your mother and me.

7. Finally, Brian, let me emphasize the message I gave you in the beginning. We love you more than you can imagine, and we're going to remain friends during this difficult time. There is so much pain in the world today. You haven't felt much discomfort yet, but you'll taste it soon enough. So with all that heartache outside our door, let's not bring more of it on ourselves. We need each other. We need you and, believe it or not, you still need us occasionally.

8. Do you still have things that need to be said to us? The content of this message should be modified to fit individual circumstances and the needs of particular adolescents. Furthermore, the responses of children will vary tremendously from person to person. An "open" boy or girl may reveal his deepest feelings at such a moment, of communication, permitting a priceless time of catharsis and ventilation.

On the other hand, a stubborn, defiant, proud adolescent may sit immobile with head downward. But even if your teenager remains stoic or hostile, at least the cards have been laid on the table and parental intentions explained.

It's not just fat, it's calories, too

National surveys have shown that fat intakes as a percent of calories are decreasing in American diets from 36 percent in 1978 to 34 percent in 1990. We still have some more changes to make to reach 30 percent of calories from fat as a national average but we seem to be heading in the right direction.

At the same time, National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS) data indicate the proportion of adults who are overweight has increased eight percent over the last decade to 33 percent. The nutrition education message of recent years may have left the impression that the only dietary factor of concern was fat intake. These recent national surveys suggest that total calorie intakes also must match energy demand.

Why has there been increased obesity even as fat intakes are declining? Reduced physical activity may be a prime suspect. As Americans become more sedentary, energy needs also decrease. Even if calorie intakes remained the same as in years past, decreased energy demand created by less physical activity would mean that people should be eating fewer calories. Increased television time, more use of automobiles, less physical education in schools and a decline in the number of jobs that require physical activity are possible reasons for reduced activity levels.

There is also evidence that American adults aren't holding the line on their eating. Total energy intakes have not remained at the same level as previous years. The average calorie intake has increased from approximately 2,000 calories to 2,200 calories in the last 15 years.

Fat is not the only source of calories. Calories come from protein and carbohydrates. Fat, however, is more calorie dense.

Total energy intake must match energy demand in order to avoid increasing obesity. To increase energy demand, U.S. adults need to develop a more active lifestyle.

A drawing is also being held for two half processed hogs, an Afghan, haircut or products from the Headquarters and Costs Cutters of Norfolk. Anyone interested can contact Joyce Wurdeman at 375-4305 or Sue Denklau at 375-2241.

Problems with "Oral Syringes"

Hypodermic syringes that do not contain needles sometimes are dispensed by physicians and pharmacists to help give small amounts of liquid oral medicines — often to infants or children. Such syringes may include a small plastic cap or cover.

According to a report in Journal of the American Medical Association, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) warns that such devices can cause problems. The plastic cover can accidentally fall off the syringes into a medicine bottle or directly into the patient's mouth. The FDA has received three reports of infants choking on covers and two reports of them being swallowed. Problems may be widespread since many incidents may not be reported. The FDA cautions that covers should be removed from syringes before drawing medicine or giving it to a patient. "Once removed the cover should be discarded; it is not necessary to recap the syringe."

The Golden Years

By: Connie Dishrow

What if a grown son or daughter asks for financial help, say for a down payment on a car or a house? If you have the means and want to help, the simplest method is to make an outright gift. Bear in mind: The amount of any gift that exceeds $10,000 may be subject to Federal gift tax. If you want to help by making a loan, financial advisors recommend putting it on paper, in a promissory note which obligates the grown child to repay at an interest rate acceptable to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). You must pay income tax on interest received.

JASON WYLIE makes short work of his semifinal opponent in the 119 pound category of Saturday's Winside Invitational. Wylie went on to win the championship.

Laurel remains perfect at 8-0

The Laurel girls and boys basketball teams earned a split with the Pierce Bluejays last Friday in Pierce with Rick Petri's girls losing a 47-41 decision while Clayton Steele's boys remained undefeated with a 67-48 victory.

In the girls game turnovers spelled doom for the Bears as they suffered 33. "Pierce really did a good job with their press," Petri said. "We out-rebounded them and made more free throws but we had 13 more turnovers which gave them that many more opportunities."

The Bears trailed by a 12-4 margin after the first quarter but managed to knot the game at 21 at the intermission. Both teams scored 10, third quarter points before Laurel was out-scored, 16-10 in the final stanza.

Becky Schroeder led the team with 18 points while Alissa Kric and Cathy Mohr netted six each. Dawn Wickett and Tracy Ankeny each added three while Heather Cunningham and Megan Adkins tallied two each. Gina Monson rounded out the attack with a free throw.

The Bears out-rebounded Pierce, 41-38 with Schroeder leading the way with 12 caroms and Laurel was 15-26 from the foul line while Pierce hit nine of 26 from the charity stripe.

"We made more free throws but that's where we struggled down the stretch," Petri said. "We missed four front ends of one-and-ones in the final three minutes." Laurel fell to 5-5 on the season and will play at Creighton, Friday.

THE LAUREL boys trailed by one point after the first quarter, 15-14 but took control in the second and never relinquished it en route to an easy 67-48 win.

"We got up and down the floor real good," Steele said. "We had several fast breaks where the kids looked good running the floor but we didn't convert."

Still, the Bears improved to 8-0 on the season and kept their number four ranking in tact. Jeremy Reinohl paced the winners with 23 points while Cody Carstensen poured in 16 and Jared Reinohl, 12. Shane Schuster tossed in six and Rich Rasmussen tallied four while Travis Stingley scored three and Tyler Erwin, two. Kyle Macklin rounded out the scoring with a free throw.

The Bears owned the boards, 34-15 with Jared Reinohl leading the way with nine caroms while Stingley had five. Laurel committed just 11 turnovers while Pierce had 10 and the Bears were 8-19 from the foul line compared to seven of nine shooting by the host team.

Winside places third at its own wrestling invitational

The annual Winside Wrestling Invitational was held Saturday with Oakland-Craig coming out on top with 180 points while Ainsworth finished runner-up with 172.5.

Winside placed third at its own meet with 171 points in what turned out to be a three-team race for the championship. Atkinson West Holt was fourth with 71 points while Battle Creek scored 67 for fifth. Randolph, Osmond, Stanton, Plainview, O'Neill St. Mary's and Winside's reserves rounded out the field of teams in order.

Winside put seven grapplers into the finals with three emerging as champions. Jason Wylie captured the 119 pound category with a 4-0 championship win over Kyle McCabe of Oakland-Craig while Lucas Mohr breezed to his gold medal at 142 pounds with a pin of Ainsworth's Daniels in 3:44 of the finals.

Lonnie Grothe made short work of his opponent in the championship match at 172 pounds by pinning Kyle Blomenkamp of Oakland-Craig in 41 seconds.

The Wildcats had a couple close calls in the championship matches which resulted in runner-up medals instead of first place medals. Justin Bowers lost a 10-8 decision in overtime to Justin Huggins of Ainsworth at 106 pounds while Scott Jacobsen lost a 6-5 decision to Oakland-Craig's Del Hawkins at 126 pounds.

Dave Paulsen lost a 6-2 decision to Battle Creek's Tom Uhlir at 185 pounds for the championship Shaun Magwire was pinned by Justin Johnson of Ainsworth at 160 pounds in the finals.

Josh Jaeger placed third after dethroning Brady Davis of Ainsworth by an 8-3 margin while Jeff Jacobsen placed fourth, losing a 12-1 decision to Frank Ashoff of Osmond at 112 pounds. Joe Schwedhelm also placed fourth, losing by pin to Les Painter of Ainsworth in 4:28 at 215 pounds.

Winside will compete in a triangular at Stanton on Thursday before competing at the Battle Creek Invitational, Saturday.

WINSIDE SENIOR Lonnie Grothe works over his opponent during semifinal action of the Winside Invitational, Saturday. Grothe went on to capture first place in the 172 pound category and helped his Wildcats to a third place team finish.

Blue Devils will compete three times this week

Grapplers place sixth

The Wayne wrestling team placed sixth at the Wisner Invitational, Saturday and the Blue Devils broke the 100 point mark for the first time this season.

The host Gators won their own invite with 195.5 points while West Point Central Catholic finished runner-up with 153. Creighton was third with 134 and West Point was fourth with 106.5 while Schuyler rounded out the top five with 105.5.

Wayne headed the second five teams with 100 points even while Norfolk's reserves were seventh with 73. Fremont Bergan, Pierce, Wisner's reserves and Pender rounded out the 11-team field.

Once again the Blue Devils had just seven wrestlers competing on the varsity level and six came away with medals led by Ryan Brown at 160 pounds as he came away with a championship medal. Tyler Endicott, Jeremiah Rethwisch and Jeff Hamer each placed third while Jeremy Sturm and Dusty Jensen each placed fourth.

"Ryan really had a great day," Wayne coach John Murtaugh said. "He showed what can be accomplished when you wrestle with desire and intensity."

The Wayne coach also said he was pleased with the Blue Devils overall performance. "We were able to score 100 points with seven wrestlers scoring," Murtaugh said.

Endicott wrestled at 119 pounds and won his first match by pin and then won by default in the second round. He lost by pin in the semifinals and won by pin in the consolation finals before winning by a 15-2 margin over Scott Kline of Norfolk for third place.

Jody Campbell wrestled at 126 pounds and did not place. He lost his first match by pin and won by pin in the next round before bowing out of the tournament with a 6-2 setback.

Jeremy Sturm at 151 won his first match by pin and won his second match, 22-12 before losing by pin in the semifinals. He then bounced back to win by pin in the consolation finals before losing a 5-1 decision to Wisner's Adam Ott in the match for third place.

Brown at 160 started his championship run with a pin in the first round and a 11-6 victory in the semifinals before he pinned Wisner's Jed Erickson in the finals in 3:25.

Dusty Jensen struggled some at 172 but still managed to medal. Jensen won 8-3 in the first round but lost 3-1 in the semifinals. He then won by pin in the consolation finals but lost to Pender's Jeremy Olson by a 9-4 decision in the match for third place.

Jeremiah Rethwisch lost a 12-2 decision to Norfolk's Ryan Wildermuth in the first round and the 185-pound sophomore received a bye in the next round before he won a 5-2 decision in the consolation finals.

He then faced off with Wildermuth again in the match for third place, and this time he won by a 3-2 margin and earned some revenge in the process.

Jeff Hamer wrestled at 215 pounds and the senior won his first match by pin but lost, 6-0 in the second round. He won by pin in the consolation finals and won by pin over Jason Meiergard of West Point Central Catholic in just 60 seconds in the match for third place.

Wayne had three reserves compete including Anders Lundsgaard at 126 pounds. Lundsgaard lost by pin twice while Brian Campbell at 160 pounds wrestled five times. Campbell won by pin, lost 14-3, won by pin, won 6-3 and lost, 10-0.

Cory Erleben also competed at 160 pounds and lost by pin, won 13-4 and lost, 6-3. Wayne will have its make-up dual with West Point on Tuesday in West Point before dualing in South Sioux, Thursday. The Blue Devils will compete at the Elkhorn Invitational, Saturday.

Allen cagers split with Ponca

The Allen girls' and boys' basketball teams earned a split at Ponca last Friday night with the girls team improving to 6-3 with a 58-41 victory while the boys remained winless on the season at 0-9 after an 80-60 setback. Lori Koester and Gary Erwin's crew jumped out to a 17-10 lead after the first quarter and never looked back as four players finished in double figures.

Tanya Plueger led the way with 14 points while Mindy Plueger tossed in 13. Abbey Schroeder and Jaime Mitchell each poured in 12 while Holly Blair netted six and Shany Moran, one.

"We played pretty well for the most part," Koester said. "The one glaring downfall was turnovers. We had 20 which is way too many, especially when a good share of them were unforced turnovers."

The Eagles did shoot the ball well from the field, connecting on 28 of 59 attempts and they out-rebounded the host team, 26-19 led by Tanya Plueger's nine caroms and Mindy Plueger's seven. Allen was 2-4 from the foul line and Ponca was 5-13.

The Eagles will travel to play undefeated and highly rated Bancroft-Rosalie on Friday.

DOUG SCHNACK'S Allen boys team may have lost the game by 20 points but the Eagles mentor was pleased with the improvement from the first time the two teams tangled in which the Eagles were shot down by a 78-42 margin.

"We are playing better," Schnack said. "I always tell the kids when they come off the floor if they've given 100 percent the score doesn't matter and they really are giving it all they have."

Allen trailed, 45-27 at the half but played with the Indians in the second half, falling by just two points, 35-33. "We still didn't do a very good job on the boards," Schnack said. "We couldn't hold Dean McCluskey off as he scored 31 points, mostly on second chance points from offensive rebounds."

Allen's offense produced its most points in a game this season with Davis Miner leading the way with 22 while Josh Snyder and Craig Philbrick each tossed in 10. Scott Williams added seven and Michael Blohm tallied six while Jeremy Kumm rounded out the attack with five.

Allen was beaten on the boards, 35-17 with Miner leading the Eagles with six rebounds while Blohm hauled down four. Allen committed twice as many turnovers as the host team, 28-14 and the Eagles were 14-23 from the foul line compared to four of five shooting by Ponca.

FIRST AID KITS

Whether at home or on the road, it's a good idea to keep a first aid kit available in case of emergencies. These may be purchased or assembled at home, but they should include a few basic supplies. Gauze pads can be used to clean wounds and stop bleeding, while Band-aids can protect minor cuts and scratches. An antiseptic wipe would be helpful to disinfect wounds; and a first aid cream such as Neosporin would help speed healing. Medical tape may also be useful. It would also be wise to include road flares and orange roadside distress signals in a first aid kit for the car.

WAKEFIELD'S JUSTIN Dutcher fakes out this Pender defender during the Wakefield Tournament finals on Saturday. Dutcher poured in 22 points but the Trojans lost to the ninth-ranked Pendragons by six.

Wakefield notches runner-up finishes at own tourney

The Wakefield girls and boys basketball teams placed runner-up at their own Post Holiday Tournament which concluded Saturday night. Brad Hoskins' boys lost to Pender in the championship game, 85-79.

The Trojans lost to the Pendragons in the season opener by 28 points in Pender but this game was not decided until the final minutes as the ninth-rated team in C-2 prevailed.

Pender took a 17-16 lead over the Trojans after one quarter of play but the two teams were knotted at 36 at the half. The visitors again took a one point lead after the third quarter, 60-59 but Wakefield managed to lead by as many as five points in the final stanza before the Pendragons reclaimed the lead and down the stretch they hit their free throws to preserve the victory.

"Pender hit seven of eight free throws in the fourth quarter," Hoskins said. "They were 13 of 18 for the game while we were just 14 of 22. We also scored just three times in our final 13 possessions of the game."

Cory Brown played a phenomenal game for the Trojans despite playing in pain. Brown spent three hours in therapy before stepping onto the court because of a back injury but he managed to pour in 27 points to lead all scorers.

"Cory really played an outstanding game," Hoskins said. "You could tell he was in pain but he kept pushing which really shows what kind of player he is. In fact, this was his best game of the year as he finished with 27 points, nine rebounds, eight assists and seven steals," Hoskins added.

Justin Dutcher did a good job of running the point according to Hoskins, scored 22 points while Wes Blecke tossed in 11. Mike Rischmueller added eight and Matt Kucera, six while Luke Tappe and Travis Birkley rounded out the attack with three and two points, respectively.

Pender out-rebounded the Trojans, 38-29 with Brown leading Wakefield with nine caroms while Birkley had five. Wakefield had just 13 turnovers in the game and forced Pender into 24. "We had trouble keeping them off the offensive boards," Hoskins said. "We gave up 13 rebounds which resulted in 13 second-chance points."

Wakefield will host Walthill on Tuesday and Winside on Friday.

GREGG CRUICK-SHANK'S girls team defeated Homer in the first round of the tournament on Friday night, 49-35 but lost in the championship to highly rated Emerson-Hubbard, 46-32.

The Trojans jumped out to an 11-3 lead on Homer after the first quarter never relinquished the lead despite struggling some in the second quarter. "We played well in the first quarter but we had a couple breakdowns in the second period," Cruickshank said. "We didn't block out very well on the boards and we weren't getting back on defense fast enough."

The Trojans did regroup and led by seven at the half, 22-15. Mary Torczon led the winners with 15 points while Alison Benson tossed in 10 and Jenny Haglund, eight. Stacey Preston scored six points while Kristin Preston and Jamie Paulson netted four each. Carly Salmon rounded out the attack with two points. Wakefield was 9-15 from the foul line and Homer was 7-17.

In Saturday's championship game with Emerson-Hubbard the Trojans played good with the exception of two stretches. "In a five minute span in the first half we had two stretches where Emerson went on a 9-0 scoring run," Cruickshank said. "That was the ballgame because in the second half we played them even."

Emerson jumped out to a 9-0 lead to start the game but Wakefield managed to cut the lead to four at 15-11 before the Lady Pirates went on another 9-0 run. Wakefield trailed, 27-13 at the half.

"When you play a team like Emerson you had better be ready to play for 32 minutes and not just a couple quarters," Cruickshank said. "During those two scoring runs we suffered some turnovers against their press but we also had some unforced turnovers which proved costly."

Jamie Paulson led the Trojans with 14 points while Mary Torczon scored five. Kristin Preston and Jenny Haglund each netted four while Stacey Preston scored three. Amy Hattig and Alison Benson each tallied two. Emerson was 13-15 from the foul line while the host team was 2-6. The 6-5 Lady Trojans will host Walthill on Tuesday and Winside on Friday.

Wayne loses to Cardinals

The Wayne Blue Devils girls and boys basketball teams were dealt setbacks at South Sioux, Saturday night with Roger Reikofski's team getting blasted by a 90-26 margin while Rocky Ruhl's boys team fell, 60-47.

The girls had a tall order in competing with Class B's second-rated Lady Cardinals but Reikofski's team failed to show up and compete as South Sioux raced to a 20-1 lead after the first quarter and were never threatened.

"We were 0-13 from the field in the first quarter," Reikofski said. "It looked to me like we were apprehensive and very tentative." Wayne was led in scoring by Jenny Thompson with 10 points while Carrie Fink netted six and Erica Stoltenberg, four. Melissa Weber and Molly Linster each tallied two and Katie Lut finished with a free throw.

The Blue Devils were dominated on the boards, 56-19 with Thompson leading Wayne with 10 caroms. Wayne committed 46 turnovers compared to 21 for the host team and the Blue Devils connected on five of 13 free throw attempts while South Sioux was 8-13.

"We just didn't come ready to play," Reikofski said. The 5-5 Blue Devils will host Randolph, Tuesday. It was also noted in Saturday's game at South Sioux that the Lady Cardinals, despite leading by a fairly comfortable 47-8 margin at the half, felt it necessary to keep the first stringers in the entire game with a full-court press while Wayne played a number of reserves in the final period. Incidentally, the score after three quarters of play was 69-16.

THE WAYNE boys fell to 2-6 with their 13-point loss to the Cardinals. The Blue Devils led 14-11 after the first quarter but trailed by four at the half after scoring just six, second quarter points, 20-20.

"We just didn't play very well overall," Ruhl said. "We ran out of gas down the stretch." The Wayne coach said his team lacked emotion and enthusiasm. "We only scored six points in the second quarter," Ruhl said. "You don't win many games by scoring in the single digits in any quarter."

WSC Wildcats split with Bemidji State to start new year

The Wayne State men's and women's basketball teams were back in action, Saturday after a lay-off from the Christmas Break and the Wildcats earned a split in Bemidji, MN., as Mike Barry's women's squad fell below the .500 mark on the season with a 95-85 setback while Greg McDermott's men's team improved to .500 at 5-5 with a come-from-behind 70-61 victory.

In the women's contest the Wildcats gave up 51, first-half points and they could not overcome a 16-point deficit despite out-scoring the host team, 50-44 in the second half.

Bemidji connected on nine of 14, 3-pointers in the game which proved to be the difference as WSC hit five from bonus range which is a difference of 12 points.

WSC trailed by as many as 22 points in the second half but managed to cut the gap to five at 82-77 with about three minutes remaining. Marla Stewart came off the bench to lead WSC with 19 points including three, 3-pointers while Deb Kostreba scored 13 and Susie Osborn, 12. Minda Jensen was also in double figures with 10 while Amy Brodersen tossed in nine and Danyel Grammer, six on a pair of 3-pointers.

Liz Reeg tossed in six points while Deedra Haskins and Kristy Twait each finished with four points each. Kara McLarty rounded out the attack with two points.

The Wildcats were 29 of 66 from the field for the game for 44 percent while the host team was 30-62 for 48 percent. WSC was out-rebounded by a 44-35 margin with Deb Kostreba leading the 'Cats with eight caroms.

Kostreba and Twait shared team honors in assists with four each and WSC committed 19 turnovers compared to 18 for the host team. The 'Cats were 22-30 from the free throw line while Bemidji was 26-36.

THE WAYNE STATE men showed the effects of a long lay-off in the first half with a sluggish performance but, still, the 'Cats found themselves tied with Bemidji at 24. At the halfpoint of the second half WSC was trailing by 11 points before staging a comeback.

The 'Cats out-scored the host team, 26-4 over a nine-minute period to put the game away. Free throw shooting was a key factor in the victory as WSC nailed 29 of 33 for the game for 88 percent. In the second half the 'Cats hit 24 straight from the charity stripe and 25 of 26 over the final 20 minutes.

"We went 13 days without practice over Christmas break," McDermott said. "Obviously, our timing wasn't quite there but I thought our defensive game plan was executed well the whole game."

Sophomore guard Mike Fitzner tied his career-high of 27 points as his performance included five, 3-pointers and a perfect 10 of 10 shooting from the free throw line.

Senior forward Billy Patterson added 20 points and a game-high five assists. Patterson was 10 of 12 from the charity stripe. Junior forward Dan Anderson came off the bench to contribute 11 points and seven rebounds while Terry Mailoux netted four. Curt Woodin, Craig Philipp, Omar Clark and Kyle White each tallied two points.

WSC edged the host team on the boards, 34-33 with Mailoux, Anderson and Woodin sharing team honors with seven rebounds each. The 'Cats committed 14 turnovers and forced 18.

Free exams are offered

A program to provide eye examinations to low-income working people and their families gets underway in this area this month.

The program, called Vision USA, is being sponsored by the Nebraska Optometric Association and is part of a nationwide effort initiated by the American Optometric Association.

Local optometrists and Lions Club members are participating in the project.

Low-income workers can sign up for the free eye care by calling 375-1781 or 375-7346 in January, according to John Lange, O.D., chair of the Vision USA program in Nebraska.

The eye exams will be given in optometrists' private offices in March, coinciding with the 68th anniversary celebration of Save Your Vision Week, March 5-11. The optometrists are volunteering their time and services as "a way of giving something back to the people of our community," Dr. Lange said.

To qualify for the free eye care, persons must: have a job or live in a household where there is one working member; have income below an established level based on family size; and have had no eye examination within 12 months.

This is the fourth year the Vision USA program has been offered nationally. Last year, more than 55 NOA-member optometrists across the state donated their services and nearly 300 people received the free eye care.

Area receives grant funds for shelter

Northeast Nebraska has been chosen to receive $16,638 to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the area.

Goldenrod Hills Community Services was selected by a national board and consists of representatives from the Salvation Army; American Red Cross; Council of Jewish Federations; Catholic Charities, U.S.A.; National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.; and United Way of America which will provide the administrative staff and function as fiscal agent.

The Board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress "to supplement and extend ongoing efforts to provide shelter, food and supportive service for homeless and hungry individuals nationwide."

A local board made up of government; United Way; Salvation Army; Red Cross; Native American representation; National Council of Churches of Christ; Catholic Charities and homeless will determine how funds awarded to the Northeast Nebraska region are to be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by the local services organizations in the area. The local board is responsible for recommending agencies to receive these funds and any additional funds available under this phase of the program.

Under the terms of the grant, local governmental or private volunteer organizations chosen to receive funds must: 1) be non-profit; 2) have an accounting system and conduct an annual audit, 3) practice nondiscrimination, 4) have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs, and 5) if they are a private voluntary organization, they must have a voluntary board. Qualifying organizations must follow a formal application process with applications being mailed to Goldenrod Hills Community Services by Jan. 13.

Goldenrod Hills Community Services had distributed emergency food and shelter funds previously in Northeast Nebraska with Nebraska Indian Inter-tribal Development Corporation, Salvation Army, Bright Horizons, Good Neighbors, The Link, Norfolk Community Soup Kitchen and the Norfolk Food Bank.

Further information on the program and the required application procedures may be obtained by contact Robin Snyder, Goldenrod Hills Community Services, 402-529-3513.

To host session

Wayne State College's Conn Library has been asked to host and participate in a state telecommunications planning session on Monday, Jan. 16. Other Northeast Nebraska institutions have also been asked to participate.

This planning session, which builds from information during Gov. Ben Nelson's conference on information technology in March and the Challenge Nebraska conference on educational technology sponsored in May by Sen. Bob Kerrey, will continue Conn Library's contribution to WSC planning initiatives which began in April 1994.

Those participating include Jan Brumm, Marilyn Liedorff and Angela Taylor from the WSC Conn Library, and Wayne Public School librarians Jolene Klein, Faunil Bennett and Sue Buryanek.

The planning session is part of a grant awarded to the Nebraska Library Commission by the United States Department of Commerce under the Telecommunications and Information Infrastructure Assistance Program for fiscal year 1994.

Following a dream

In the mail yesterday, I received a souvenir from Florida. It's a white T-shirt that says "61st FedEx Orange Bowl, Jan. 1, 1995. Nebraska vs. Miami." There is also a shiny ticket, cost $42 and a copy of the Orlando Sentinel on Jan. 2. My friend Marlyce really came through.

She's been to previous Orange Bowl games. She even admitted to me she roots for Florida State because her daughters graduated from there. And, besides, "Bobby Bowden is such a great guy."

After attending the Wyoming game with me, she began planning for another trip to Miami.

First, there was the matter of tickets. But Lutheran ministers have connections. A Miami mortuary always buys some as a business deduction. This particular undertaker needed a man of the cloth to conduct a funeral. So their pastor friend negotiated a deal.

Two of their daughters, a son-in-law, another member of the clergy and his wife and Jerry and Marlyce rented a van and headed south on Sunday. I guess they had high hopes. I know I thought of them as the game unfolded.

Four of our neighbors joined us for lasagna and settled on couches in front of the new 27-inch screen our kids presented us for Christmas. I had an ache in the pit of my stomach.

By the third quarter, I got up, went to the kitchen, and washed pots and pans. "Not again," I thought to myself. Had I known what I've since read, that the players still felt they would wear them down in the fourth quarter, maybe I'd have been more confident.

When that kid from Duncan

By Pat Meierhenry

went into the east end zone for the second time, I could not believe it. And the last interception by the Black shirts was just the icing on the cake. Soon, our kids and my Mom were calling, I could hear a wild celebration in the background at Kevin Jaeger's, and Channel 6 was at some bar in Omaha where people were going nuts.

We watched Dave Weber until they turned out the lights in the stadium. I replayed the fourth quarter from 1:7 to 7:00 as I tried to sleep. On Monday, I made my Home Health visits, all my octogenarian patients had stayed up, too!

I beat it home in time to watch the official welcome at Devaney and we both had tears in our eyes as Coach Osborne took the mike, and I whispered, "I don't think he can imagine how much respect this whole state has for him."

Last night, we watched "Rudy," just to be certain why Matt Turman was compared to him. It's more than about football, though. It's about following a dream, knowing your heart's desire, and going after it. The Huskers did that. Let the celebration continue!
