119TH YEAR — NO. 44

Hey buddy can you spare a...

By Stacey Schaller
For the Herald

What is worth a dime, nowadays? Gone are the days when candy bars were a nickel and gasoline was 25 cents a gallon. No longer will a shiny dime fill the little school-boy's hand with pencils and a notebook; and eggs are more like a dollar-a-dozen than a dime-a-dozen.

But what can be bought for a dime or less? It might surprise you as much what can be bought as what can't be.

For ten cents, you can enjoy two Brach's caramels or three peppermint candies. A small banana can be found for a dime—on sale; though most fruits are 50 cents or more each.

HOW ABOUT the old penny a pencil? They can be found for a dime—if you buy a whole box at a time.

One can obtain ten cents worth of anything in bulk. How about ten inches of cheap lace, or a foot of telephone wire? Beads, ribbon, even nails can still be had for ten cents. A dime's worth of gas can still be purchased, though 1.4 oz. would not get someone far.

Everyone remembers "the time when..." when something cost less. One shopper at a local grocery store remembered when she called ice cream bars, "ice-nickles," and lean hamburger was 12¢ per pound.

BUT DO things really cost more? Probably not much. Frank Gilmore, of Farmer's State Bank in Industries to meet

Wayne Industries, the economic development arm of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual meeting next week.

Wayne Industries members and the general public are encouraged to attend the meeting which will be held Monday at 7 p.m. at Riley's Convention Center and will be repeated at 7 p.m. on Thursday, according to Mark Ahmann, Wayne Industries President.

The annual meeting is held on two nights to accommodate busy schedules. During the meeting plans are formulated for the focus of development efforts for the coming years as well as discussion on the activities of the past.

Queen for a second

Miss Nebraska, Jennifer Love, cuts up with Jane Ahmann, a member of the Wayne Rotary Club. Miss Love spoke to Rotarians as well as students and other service clubs during a stay in Wayne this week. She helped promote the Miss Northeast Nebraska Pageant on March 18 and talked to groups about avoiding alcohol abuse.

Miss Neb. on crusade

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Jennifer Love, Miss Nebraska 1994, is on a mission.

She told numerous audiences in the Wayne area this week that she is using her year as Nebraska's Miss to promote responsible use of alcohol products.

Speaking from the experiences in her life which involved alcohol, including the break-up of her parents' marriage because of an alcoholic father, and her own drinking experiences, she encouraged her Wayne audiences to use in moderation and if they are under age, not to use at all.

MISS LOVE was in Wayne to help promote the Miss Northeast Nebraska Scholarship pageant later this month, but she spent most of the time in her talks to young people in the schools, to students at Wayne State and to adults at club meetings and other functions, talking about the dangers of alcohol abuse.

She said she had made a vow to herself to never get involved with alcohol after she saw how it affected her father while she was growing up in North Dakota. However, she said she forgot all about her vow when in the eighth grade a friend asked her to share a can of beer.

"I made the wrong choice," she said. She drank in high school she said. She did so even after a good friend of hers killed himself after a New Year's Eve drinking bout.

In college she said she enjoyed going to parties and drinking but things changed when a friend of hers was raped following a party.

"NINETY PERCENT of all date rapes are alcohol related," said Miss Nebraska. "Had we not been there—had we not been drinking—it would

Concord man pleads

PENDER, Neb. (AP) — A man accused of shooting his former girlfriend in the back of the head and leaving her for dead pleaded innocent Wednesday to attempted second-degree murder.

Brian Anderson, 22, also pleaded innocent in Thurston County District Court to kidnapping and use of a firearm to commit a felony, County Attorney Matthew Samuelson said.

Anderson also has pleaded innocent in Dixon County to kidnapping, use of a firearm to commit a felony and operating a motor vehicle to avoid arrest.

Anderson is accused of abducting Laura Kucera, 19, of Wakefield, shooting her and leaving her in an isolated part of northeast Nebraska on Oct. 1. Clad only in a light jacket, T-shirt and shorts, Miss Kucera survived and was found late Oct. 4.

Authorities have said Anderson led police to where Miss Kucera could be found.

Air Force band to perform here

The Air Combat Command Band from Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha has scheduled a concert in Wayne Wednesday, April 5 at 7:30 p.m. at Rice Auditorium.

The Wayne appearance of the Heartland of America Band is being sponsored by the Wayne Herald and the Wayne State College Center for Cultural Outreach. Admission to the concert requires a ticket that can be obtained free from the Wayne Herald or the Center for Cultural Outreach.

Those wishing to obtain tickets may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Wayne Herald or may stop in at either sponsoring office to request tickets in person.

The band's 1995 Midwest tour will feature a commemorative program recognizing the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, according to tour coordinator SSgt. Dave Jenkins, who is from Norfolk.

Jenkins, who is a former music student at Wayne State College, said both the concert band and the jazz band "The Noteables" will perform during the Wayne appearance. Their repertoire will include popular big band tunes from the war era.

"We are excited about the opportunity to hear some of the best musicians in the region during their scheduled stop in Wayne," said Wayne Herald publisher Les Mann. It has been many years since the Air Force Band has performed in Wayne, he noted.

The Heartland of America Band, directed by Lt. Col. Craig D. Jessop, has won numerous awards and has presented live and broadcast concerts throughout the United States. It was the only Air Force musical unit deployed to support troop morale during Operation Desert Shield.

Council curbs alley pickup of garbage

By Tom Mullen
Of the Herald

Many area residents will be logging their refuse to the streets of Wayne, if a new amendment to the city code is passed by the Council.

Representatives of the city's two waste hauling contractors appeared before the Wayne City Council Tuesday night to plea for the elimination of alley pickup in the city, a sentiment that was shared by the majority of the council.

City Utilities Director Vern Schulz suggested that most of the money being spent on the maintenance of graveled alleys could be saved if curb side pickup was universal in Wayne.

Bill Lueder of Lueder's G-men, stated that although both his company and Mrsny Sanitary Service would continue to provide service under the present system, "Frank (Mrsny) and I are both ready willing and able to pick up on the street. It will be less wear and tear on our alleys and less wear and tear on our trucks."

"Besides ice and snow, we fight a lot of tree branches, fences, and power lines," argued Frank Mrsny of the dangers of driving the heavy garbage trucks through the alleys of Wayne.

Councilperson Jane O'Leary

spoke of her concerns.

"The alleys are more protected and the cans aren't as apt to blow garbage all over the neighborhoods," said O'Leary.

Mrsny disagreed.

"I think it will be a lot cleaner if people put their garbage in front of their house," he replied, reasoning that many people are more concerned with the appearance of their front yard than they are with what lies hidden behind their house.

Councilperson Patty Wieland warned her fellow Council members that this issue has been raised before.

"In the older neighborhoods the houses are set up with the kitchens in back so that it is easier to take the garbage to the alley. And I get calls from residents who don't want to take their garbage to the curb."

Mrsny agreed that changing the code will face resistance.

"A lot of people don't like change, and I'm one of them. But we're causing damage to people's alleys, bushes and yards."

The council directed city staff to propose an amendment change which will be considered at a future meeting.

Calf born at Chamber Coffee

An unusual event happened at the weekly Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce Coffee today. Chamber members were present when a calf was delivered by cesarean section. The chamber coffee was hosted by Wayne Veterinary Clinic. The heifer and 95 pound baby are doing fine.

Red Cross classes offered

The Wayne County American Red Cross will be offering safety classes during the months of March and April.

Community or Standard First Aid classes include cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR). Classes will be held March 20-22 from 6-10 p.m. Those attending the class may choose which section they wish to take.

Water Safety Instructor and Lifeguard Training classes require pre-testing of swimming skills. The Water Safety Instructor course runs for eight sessions which will be held March 31, April 1-2, 7-8.

21-23. The Lifeguard Training class consists of seven sessions which will be held March 12, 17-19 and 24-26. This class is the Revised 1994 format for pool lifeguards.

Review classes, challenges or Instructor classes may also be offered upon request.

Blood donors given thanks for donating

The Siouxland Blood Bank has cited Wayne area donors for their support of the Wayne blood drive held on Thursday, Feb. 23 at Providence Medical Center. Fifty-four individuals volunteered to donate, and 49 pints of blood were collected.

The Siouxland Blood Bank congratulated the following individuals: Seven gallon donor, Vern Schulz.

Six gallon donor, Loren Ellis. Three Gallon Donor, David Woslager.

One gallon donors, Debra Mang, John Paxton and Mary Temme. First time donors, Margaret McClelland, Bonnie Otte and Joan Scherbrink.

"Having enough blood on hand when it is needed, is possible only if people donate regularly. Thanks to caring people like the Hospital Auxiliary members and all the volunteers, we are able to meet the needs of all our hospital patients," said Pam Masching, director of donor resources.

Wayne business picked to have product on TV

A dust ruffle with velcro fasteners by Restful Knights in Wayne is one of 20 Nebraska products and five alternates that have been selected by QVC as part of the home shopping network's "Quest for America's Best — The 50 in 50 Tour."

The products were selected from 200 applicants who brought their products to a trade show Feb. 13 sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development. QVC and the department will work to sell the products on a live broadcast from a Nebraska site on April 16. QVC officials plan to announce the site within the next few weeks.

The winners span the state from Omaha to Claydon and run the gamut from hairbrushes to food products.

"Nebraska is known for some of the greatest products in the USDA, and we saw many of them here," said Bill Lane, director of new merchandise development at QVC, Inc., the nation's largest electronic retailer.

Artist works on sculpture

Artist and sculptor Herb Mignery has set up his studio in Wayne State College's former power plant building to create a larger-than-life clay sculpture, according to college officials.

The sculpture will later be cast in bronze and erected in the Lyle Seymour Heritage Plaza. Construction of the plaza is scheduled to begin this spring, and is expected to be completed by the beginning of the fall semester. It is named for Dr. Lyle Seymour, president emeritus of Wayne State, in honor and recognition of his many years at Wayne State as a student, faculty member, division head, vice president and president. Seymour is a 1951 graduate of Wayne State.

The public may tour the former power plant building and observe Mignery at work.

Mignery, of Estes Park, Colo., is a 1959 graduate of Wayne State. He grew up in the sandhills of western Nebraska, and is one of America's foremost western artists. Mignery is among only a handful to be invited into the prestigious Cowboy Artists of America.

his annual report to council which cited over 6,500 man hours of service by the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department in 1994.

Attached to the report was a letter from Sitzman which outlined his many hours of uncompensated service and duties. Sitzman renewed his request for some sort of salary in the letter which is partially excerpted below:

"Other towns compensate their Fire Chief for the duties he performs. For example: Broken Bow has a full time paid fire chief; Kearney pays their fire chief who is a volunteer; South Sioux City wanted to pay their chief $1,000 a month; West Point compensates their chief $3,000 annually; O'Neill, Plainview, Pierce, and Lexington compensate their fire chief.

As I have stated before, the Fire Chief has to make a living also, as does any other Department Head. If he is expected to do so much for nothing, maybe he should be joined by other Department Heads."

Wayne standout establishes scholarship

Former Wayne State College football player Brad Otis, who is now playing defensive end for the Los Angeles Rams, has pledged $30,000 for scholarships to student-athletes and to help programs of the Wayne State College Athletic Department.

The Athletic Department will receive $15,000 for operating support, and $15,000 will establish the Brad Otis Athletic Endowed Scholarship Awards Program.

"I'm pleased to be able to do this in remembrance of my years at Wayne State," says Otis. "My hope is that it will encourage and enable young people to attend the college for an education and to participate in intercollegiate athletics."

Otis' hard work at Wayne State, combined with his power and quickness, enabled him to be chosen as the 56th player in the second round of the 1994 NFL draft. He finished his four-year career at Wayne State with 215 tackles — 107 of them solo — 45 quarterback sacks, 75 tackles for loss and seven forced fumbles.

Otis and his wife, Michelle, are from Fremont where they attended Bergan High School. They plan to reside in Fremont during the off-season and Otis will attend classes at Wayne State to finish his degree.

not have happened."

She said after that, she and other friends made a mutual pact to avoid alcohol for a year. They began encouraging other students at the University of Nebraska-Kearney, where she is currently a senior, to join them.

"That was hard for some who knew that I liked to party before to understand," she said. But when she became involved in the scholarship pageant and won the title of Miss Nebraska she said she found a new platform from which to talk especially to young people around the state.

"I can only hope that I'm having an impact on people around the state," she said.

AFTER BASICALLY taking this year off from school to tour the state for appearances as Miss Nebraska, the 22-year-old North Platte resident will resume her music studies at Kearney. Her goal is a master's degree in music performance and ultimately to become an opera performer.

Miss Love said she enjoyed the competition for the Miss America title in Atlantic City last fall and was disappointed not to have made it at least into the top ten finalists. She added however, that the non-finalist challengers were reminded that they had made it to the top 50 out of 80,000 young women who compete in state and local pageants each year.

"It's okay if you didn't make it into the top ten if you look at it that way," said Miss Love.

Some of the items which can still be purchased for a dime are shown in this illustration.

Carroll, used a shirt for an example. When working on a ranch in the 1950's, his blue work shirt cost $5. Working for $5 a day, he could buy one shirt for one day's wages. For his first office job, he earned $15 a day, but his shirt cost $15. "[I made] three times what [I] used to working for Old Man Merrill, but [I was] still working one day for one shirt."

Gilmore explained, "The thing that makes the economy go is the relationship between what you [earn] and what you can buy." Basically, if prices go up, but your income increases proportionately, you are in the same spot financially.

Gilmore noted, "Everyone talks about how cheap things used to be. They were cheap, but so was your labor."

WHEN FACTORING in prices, one must consider that many things have also gone up in value. Gilmore bought his first car for $1875 new in 1954. For him, that was nine and one-half months of wages, and his car was a "plain-jane" two-door, six-cylinder coup with cramped quarters. Today, a $10,000 wage earner may be hard pressed to find a new car under $15,000, but such an auto would include Air-conditioning, AM/FM cassette radio, automatic transmission, power windows, and a 50,000 mile warrantee.

Some things have even gone down in price. The multi-million dollar mammoth computer of the 1940's can now be obtained for a few hundred dollars and carried about in an envelope.

Books, once relegated to nobles' shelves because of cost, can now be had for a song.

NOTING ALL the talk about inflation, Gilmore mentioned, "One thing inflation has done in the last forty-years is moved the numbers up. ... Today, if you're working for five dollars an hour, you can buy a whole lot more Coke-a-Cola than you could in the thirties, but they talk about the ... nickel Coke being the 'good-old-days.'"

So while we reminisce about how cheap things were, let's enjoy the things that have changed for the better. One thing, however, has not changed, peanuts can still be had— for peanuts.

Committee kills proposal

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A legislative committee killed a proposal Wednesday aimed at repealing Nebraska's constitutional ban on corporate farming.

In a hastily called executive session, the Agriculture Committee voted 6-1 to kill the constitutional amendment (LR40CA) offered by Sen. Joyce Hillman of Gering.

Sen. Owen Elmer of Indianola, a cosponsor of the measure, cast the lone dissent. A retired agribusiness owner, Elmer said he supports repealing the ban because it isn't working.

Mrs. Hillman, who made the bill her priority for the session, said she might ask the full Legislature to bring the issue to the floor. That would require 30 "yes" votes from the 49-member body.

"We will start working the floor, counting heads, and see what can be done," she said.

"If senators would vote in terms of their own personal opinions I don't think we would have much trouble," Mrs. Hillman said.

"My impression is that a good majority believes there should be change. But this issue is a very controversial one among a lot of people in the districts back home. When it comes to (Initiative 300) people either love it or hate it. You don't find middle ground," she said.

The committee heard five hours of testimony at a hearing Tuesday that attracted more than 200 people to the Capitol. Testimony was about three-to-one against the Hillman measure, said Sen. Cap Dierks of Ewing, committee chairman.

"I think that in fairness to everyone the committee wanted to act quickly on the bill," Dierks said following the committee's brief session on the sidelines of the legislative chamber.

Parents can help children learn to deal with conflict

By Karen Wermers
Dixon County Extension Educator

Parents can model a healthy attitude toward conflict by always treating it as an opportunity to solve problems rather than as something scary.

Conflict is often seen as anything bad that happens to a person. People can either run from conflict or fight back. Adults must show children that conflict is neither good nor bad, but a natural part of life. It's how people handle it that makes all the difference.

Nothing teaches children how to stay calm and defuse a tense situation better than watching Mom and Dad do it. By observation, children learn that it's OK to express negative feelings — as long as they aren't permitted to explode.

If the mother and father have arguments and one of them always runs out of the room and slams the door, the children will learn that this is a way to solve conflicts. Actions speak louder than words.

It's better to sit down and work through a dispute in a civil way. This shows a child that disagreeing in and of itself isn't bad; it's neutral, and resolving a problem is good.

Another key is to stand back and let children solve problems for themselves. A child, whose parent always jumps in to help, learns that they are not responsible for their own solutions to problems. Continually offering advice invites them to be dependent upon you. In addition, some children resist taking advice.

Parents usually want their children to "be nice" and sometimes it's hard not to intervene when they argue with other kids. As long as they're not hurting each other, let children figure out for themselves how to handle their disputes.

There are steps a parent can use to facilitate a child's own problem solving. 1. First, identify the problem. A parent might say, "You're angry because..." or "It seems that you feel..." 2. The next step is to explore alternatives by brainstorming. A statement like, "What are some things you could do?" can lead off thinking and exploring by the child. 3. After identifying alternatives, a parent can assist a child to choose a solution by asking, "Which idea do you think is the best solution?" 4. Within that discussion, look at probable results of the decision. Ask "What will happen if you decide to do that?" 5. Lastly, ask what the child has decided to do and if they can let you know of the outcome.

A child does not have the life time experience of a parent. If a child does not have ideas on how to solve the problem, a parent can tentatively share ideas. A comment like, "What if you did..." shares a thought yet does not require the child to accept the alternative.

A parent who allows a child to find solutions to their own problems encourages self-confidence and resourcefulness.

Dawn Wickett

Dawn Wickett in art show

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wickett of Laurel, parents of Dawn Renae Wickett, attended the Scholastic Art Competition Show on Feb. 18 at Dana College in Blair. Dawn, who is a Laurel-Concord High School senior, was presented with two gold keys, two silver keys and one honorable mention at the state-wide contest with over 3,000 entries. Only 500 pictures being chosen, Dawn received five awards which was the most awards given to one student in the state of Nebraska.

Her portfolio will be presented next in New York at the national contest. Dawn is a student under the direction of art instructor Artlyls Monson.

April Mae Wickett, Dawn's sister, who is currently studying art at Concordia College in Seward joined her family at the program. April received the same awards in 1993 when a student at Laurel-Concord High School under the direction of Monson.

PEO Chapter ID has program on Native American culture

PEO Chapter ID met in the home of Lois Youngerman on Thursday, Feb. 23. Deneil Parker assisted as co-hostess. The meeting was led by Marian Clark, who read the annual President's Letter which described the many activities of the chapter during her year as president.

Ten members welcomed special friends of Julie Benson, Ruby Bellanger from Winnebago and her daughter Vicky Frenchman from Sioux City. They gave an informative and inspirational presentation about Native American culture. As representatives of the Winnebago Indian Club they used show and tell artifacts including baskets, pottery, games, ribbon work, beaded and feathered items to illustrate Indian life. Among the many items was an Eagle feather which belongs to Ms. Bellanger. She explained that any Native American male can wear an Eagle feather but native females must be presented a feather by a combat veteran in order to possess one. The Winnebago Indian Club promotes cultural awareness for their non-Indian friends.

The next meeting of Chapter ID will be March 13 in the home of Marj Porter, with Jerry Sharpe assisting as co-hostess. Betty Heier will present the program. There will also be election and installation of officers.

Rural student has her poem published in book

Lila Preston, 13, a student at Wayne County Rural School District 57, south of Wayne has had one of her poems selected for publication in the "Anthology of Poetry by Young Americans."

The daughter of Carol and Richard Preston of Wayne, Lila said she was surprised and pleased by the selection of her work for inclusion in the book.

She said she decided to send her poem "Where the Wind Blows" to the anthology after her teacher, Mrs. Maggie Huetig told her about it. But she explained she didn't get anything for becoming a published poet.

"You even have to pay to get a copy of the book," she added. Her published poem follows:
*Where does the wind blow?
Where does it come from?
Why does it blow?
And why do we have it?*

*The wind blows to the deep valleys
Of the Grand Canyon.
It blows to the high mountain tops
Of the Rockies.
It blows to the great flat lands*

*Of the plateaus.
And to the deep, wet earth of
The oceans.*

*Wind comes from everywhere:
From the south, the north, east,
Or west.
From up, down, right, or left:
From high above, to deep below;
And from the ends of the earth and on.*

*The wind blows to take away our sorrows
It blows so our happiness, our fears and joys.*

*Our sadness, our anger can go from one Person to the next,
And it blows so we can live and breathe
The nice fresh air.*

*We have wind so it will help us live.
It will keep us going.
It makes us colder in the winter
And keeps us cool in the summer.
It makes our storms, our breeze,
And our movement of air,
And we should be thankful
For wind.*

Lila Preston, a 13 year old student at District 57, proof-reads her poem which was published in a book of poetry entitled "Anthology of Poetry by Young Americans". She is shown with her teacher, Maggie Huetig. The poem is titled "Where the Wind Blows".

UMW observes a call to prayer and self-denial

The organization of United Methodist Women of the Dixon United Methodist Church in Dixon will hold its annual A Call to Prayer and Self-Denial observance at 2 p.m. on Thursday, March 9 at the church.

Almost a million women in 15,000 local units of United Methodist Women will participate in the observance at some time during 1995.

The focal point of the afternoon activities will be a quiet day service. During that event, a special offering will be taken for use relating to the year's theme, "Love Expressed..." The offering will be used to provide pensions and health care for retired deaconesses and missionaries who served many years in community centers, schools, clinics and other church agencies ministering to the needs of women, children and youth. The author of the Quiet Day Service is Noemi Toirac de Guilbeaux.

The Women's Division of the General Board of Global Ministries, the United Methodist Church, sponsors a Call to Prayer and Self-Denial each year.

EVEN DOZEN CLUB

The Even Dozen Club met Feb. 21 for a potluck supper in the Cindy and Randy Bargholz home with 11 members present. Husbands were guests, also Harvey and Irma Relitz of Emerson, Damon Henschke and Jamie Bargholz.

A business meeting followed with Dorothy Meyer, president, presiding. Leona Hammer read the minutes of the previous meeting and Darlene Dolph gave the treasurer's report. Members were reminded to wear something green to the March meeting for St. Patrick's Day. The birthday song honored the February birthday of Verona Henschke.

Pitch was entertainment for the evening. High prize winners were Leoma Baker and Harvey Relitz and low were Florence Geewe and Dan Dolph. Traveling prize was won by Cliff Baker.

The next meeting is March 21 with Mylet Bargholz as hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hansen were Saturday evening guests in the Willis Hanson home in Sioux City, Iowa.

Jerry Kingston of Phoenix, Ariz. was a Feb. 23-26 guest in the Gertrude Ohlquist home. He also visited in the Frances Kingston home in Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Meyer of Colorado Springs, Colo. visited Alice Muller last Friday.

Water conference set for students

Water is the life blood of every living creature on earth. Approximately 70 percent of the earth's surface is covered with water. Through the wonders of nature, water can take on many different forms, from the water we drink, to the ice we use to chill a glass of lemonade, to the water vapor used to steam clean equipment. The majority of the water that we drink is groundwater. Groundwater is only six-tenths of one percent of the total water on the earth. As our population grows it becomes more important that we understand the importance of a clean water supply.

To stress the importance of a clean water supply, a program will continue in its third year in Northeast Nebraska. Six hundred forty-eight pre-enrolled fifth grade students will participate in a series of workshops on March 6 and 7 at Wayne State College. The program is called Aqua-Fest.

The keynote speakers will be Jeff Jensen from KTIV telephone, and John Pollack from the National Weather Service. The presenters are from the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension, the Junior Academy of Sciences (which includes college and high school science instructors), the Natural Resource Conservation Service, the Nebraska Well Drillers, the Nebraska Game and Parks and Northeast Community College Science and Agriculture departments. Support and assistance for the program comes from the Lewis and Clark Natural Resource District, the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District, the Papio Missouri Natural Resource District, the Department of Environmental Quality and the Wayne State Math/Science Department.

The fifth grade students will go through a variety of workshops on water education. It is the hope of the presenters and planners of Aqua-Fest that students will realize the importance of a clean water supply.

Honors dealers

Golden Sun Feeds, Inc. has just completed a series of Dealer Recognition Meetings where selected dealers received plaques noting their achievements in sales, service and training. Golden Sun Dealers from Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Tennessee and Kentucky attended the meetings. Farmers Feed and Seed of Wayne was honored for feed sales achievements at Golden Sun's dealer recognition meeting. Persons attending were Skip Kinslow and Ken and Joyce Bohlken. Skip and Ken accepted the award from Jerry Venjohn, Fremont plant sales manager.

New fashion statement is milky moustache

Ladies, the latest must-ha fashion and health trend is as cool as your refrigerator.

No, not another avocado masque, egg protein hair treatment or power breakfast from the blender. It's the milk moustache, currently showing up on the faces of some 20 women celebrities. The likes of Lauren Bacall and Christie Brinkley are sporting white wonders above their lips in 60 current magazines, Newsweek being one of them.

Must be a fashion trend, or at least a fad, with so many hot celebs doing the milk thing, right? We'll have to see. Actually, the "lady loves milk" deal is part of a $52 million advertising campaign launched by the National Fluid Milk Promotion Board to encourage women to drink more milk.

Between 1976 and 1994, average per capita consumption of milk of all kinds dropped from 28.7 gallons to 24.7 gallons. According to a study by KRC Research and Roper Starch Worldwide, the biggest reason women don't drink milk is fear of fat. With nutritionists recommending adults limit their fat intake to about 65 grams a day, an 8-ounce glass of whole milk at 8 grams of fat seems like too big a chunk of the day's allotment. After all, you can eat two-thirds of certain candy bars for the same number of fat grams.

Adults, and women especially, need the calcium in milk at all stages of life. But 75 percent of women are not getting their recommended daily requirement of calcium, says the National Institutes of Health. That puts them -- us -- at risk for osteoporosis, a bone disease characterized by loss of bone density.

Midland View

By Cheryl Stubbendieck

Nebraska Farm Bureau

David McCarron, a professor of medicine at Oregon Health Sciences University, calls women's lack of calcium "the No. 1 nutritional problem in this country." He notes, "Many women think they can only get the calcium they need by drinking whole milk. This is absolutely false. They can also get it from skim milk," which has less than half a gram of fat in 8 ounces. Surprised? The milk folks thought so, and that's why their ads end with: "Milk -- What a Surprise."

For the next 15 months, the Milk Board will be doing its best to dispel myths about milk's nutritional value and working to get women and other Americans to increase their use of moo juice. That means we'll be seeing moustached mugs of Vanna White, models Naomi Campbell and Iman and others. In other words, food on your face will be fashionable.

That's tremendously reassuring to me. Many is the time I've gotten the day's first good look at my sons during the Sunday sermon. Matching blond hair, matching blue eyes, matching milk moustaches. I used to think they looked messy, but now, they're just being fashionable.

Tractor safety classes are open for youth

Registration material is available at your local Extension Office. Registration must be received no later than March 17. Youth from Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne County may attend this training. Enrollment fee of $8 must be included with registration. Checks may be made out payable to the Northeast Youth Fund. Your Social Security number is needed for the permanent record.

This training is conducted to fulfill requirements of part of the 1500.70 Child Labor Regulation, U.S. Department of Labor By County, Area and State Agricultural Extension Service, University of Nebraska-Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The Cooperative Extension Service provides information and educational programs to all people without regard to race, color, national origin, sex or handicap.

All 14 and 15 year old youths must have an exemption from the Hazardous Occupation Order, Department of Labor to work with most tractors and field machinery except on their parent's farm. The order covers a number of hazardous jobs in agriculture. You may take this course if you will be 14 in 1995. You will not receive your certificate until you are 14.

Exemption can be obtained only after the boy or girl has completed a formal training in the safe use of tractors and other farm machinery.

The training will provide instructions in safety, tractor operation and maintenance.

Exemption certificates will be issued after completion of the course and successful completion of the written examination and practical driving test.

This is by no means a complete tractor driving training course. Additional training will need to be given by your employer. In brief, the training will allow the youth to operate a tractor of over 20 PTO horse-power, or connecting or disconnecting an implement or any of its parts to or from such tractor.

Those completing the course and passing the required tests may also apply for the Nebraska Special Permit for operating tractors and other farm equipment on the roadways of Nebraska.

Be prepared for miserable weather -- we will be outside for part of the training, if possible. Bring warm clothing.

Registration fee covers course materials, snacks and noon meal.

'NebFacts' access now on Internet

Nebraskans now can access more than 200 "NebFacts" prepared by University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension via the Internet, a worldwide network of computers and data bases.

"NebFacts" cover a wide variety of topics in production agriculture, horticulture, home economics and natural resources. These brief fliers are designed for immediate decision making. They are available on the Internet 24 hours a day.

Other information on the Internet includes the UNL Library System and the Nu Frontier for academic information. Plans are being made to add "NebGuides" various subject matter newsletters and other information.

Persons accessing Internet will find that tools such as electronic mail, Gopher and WorldWide Web (WWW) play a major part in it's use. Through electronic mail (e-mail), users can direct questions to NU specialists.

Gopher is a menu-driving searching tool to find information. The address for the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources or IANR gopher is "unlvml.unl.edu" on the computer. Once at IANR's menu, users can find IANR and other UNL information as well as information on how to use the Internet. The IANR gopher is interconnected with more than 5,000 known gophers located literally around the world.

WWW is another searching tool to find information. The IANR address is "http://unlvml.unl.edu" on the computer. This tool allows users to move about on the Internet by selecting a word within a document to move to the next related piece of information. IANR is again linked to the world so users can move about the world's data bases. By the same token, the world can come to Nebraska to obtain information from IANR researchers and specialists.

Internet access requires a computer, phone modem and a commercial online subscription. Information on subscriptions may be obtained from firms such as America Online, 800/827-6364; CERFNet, 800/876-2373; CompuServe, 800/848-8199; Delphi, 800/695-4005; GENie, 800/638-9636; Prodigy, 800/776-3449; PSI InterRamp, 800/psi-3031; and UUNET, 800/488-6383.

Darrin Clarkson

Loan officer at Farm Credit

Farm Credit Services of the Midlands has announced the addition of Darrin Clarkson to the loan officer staff in the Norfolk lending branch.

Darrin joined the Norfolk Farm Credit office on Dec. 27, and will serve customer credit needs as a loan officer. Darrin, originally from Arlington, Neb., is a University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate and was formerly a loan officer in a community bank in Iowa. Darrin joined the Norfolk office as a result of previous internal promotion.

Darrin and his wife, Julie, live in Norfolk.

Deadline nears for insurance

Any producer who anticipates applying for a farm loan from USDA must obtain at least Catastrophic (CAT) crop insurance coverage on all crops of economic significance as required by the Federal Crop Insurance Reform Act of 1994.

This coverage must be obtained before the sales closing date for the producer's particular crops. The requirement applies to both direct and guaranteed farm ownership, operating or emergency loans administered by the former Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) offices, now using the working name Rural Economic and Community Development (RECD).

In Nebraska the sales closing date for all eligible 1995 crops is March 15, 1995. This date is crucial because once it passes and the loan applicant has crops without CAT coverage, they will likely have to wait until the following year to be eligible for loan assistance.

Further information about the coverage can be obtained from any local crop insurance agent or the CFS (formerly ASCS) office. Questions regarding the loan requirement can be answered by the local RECD (formerly FmHA) office.

PARASITE EVALUATION CLINIC
Wed., March 8, 7:30pm
Black Knight Restaurant, Wayne
7:00 Social Hour — 7:30 Supper

Your Golden Sun Feeds Dealer and Hoechst-Roussel are proud to bring you a Parasite Evaluation Clinic, to help you monitor your herd health program. On Wednesday, March 8th, Hoechst-Roussel will evaluate feces samples from your operation, determining the extent and types of worm infestation in your herd. Participating producers will receive the results of the P.E.C. at the evening session. Strategic deworming programs will be covered for each producer. Due to the substantial impact of herd health on animal performance, we encourage each of you to take advantage of this opportunity and come!

BFGoodrich Tires

Radial All-Terrain T/A
Race-Proven...Designed For On- and Off-Road Use.

- High void tread pattern has deep gouging power for significantly better off-road traction.
- Low noise due to a unique tread pitch...inter-locking tread elements provide even wear.
- Open shoulder grooves speed water away and resist hydroplaning.
- The strength of two steel belts means improved handling and long treadlife.
- No two-ply sidewall here - unique three-ply Tri-Guard construction means greater structural integrity and puncture resistance.
