Spring storm leaves many out of power

By Kevin Peterson Of the Herald

The April winter storm that wreaked havoc on the midwest from Sunday through Wednesday including Northeast Nebraska has kept the Wayne Public Power District along with the Northeast Nebraska Rural Public Power District based in Emerson with more than they can

Although the massive snowfall that fell in parts of South Dakota and Iowa missed the Wayne area, the ice did not and Wayne County Public Power general manager Sam Schroeder said problems caused from the ice storm were the worst he's seen in at least a decade

The first call because of a power outage came Monday night and things continued to get worse," Schroeder said. "Anytime you have temperature readings between 29 and 31 degrees and there's rain, you've got trouble and that's exactly what Wayne and the surrounding area experienced." Schroeder said crews from Butter County Rural Public Power District in David City and Elkhorn Rural Public Power District in Battle Creek were called in to assist the Wayne crews in répairing power lines and poles that were downed due to extreme ice accumulations This storm covered such a wide area which is why we needed to call in the extra help," Schroeder said. "Usually in an ice storm, there are pockets of trouble spots but this time, the trouble spot stemmed from the tips of Stanton, Cuming and Burt Counties through all of Wayne County and Northeast Nebraska Rural Public Power District in Emerson and its service area throughout Northeast Nebraska."

Schroeder said between the two power plants which share a management agreement, some 5400 people are served and nearly 80 percent were with out power at least some of the time between Sunday night and Wednesday.

"There are still people with out power in the area but we expect that to be solved by Thursday night or Friday," Schroeder said. "Public power-crews from Tekamah and West Point along with NPPD crews from Oakland, Hartington and Ponca were called in to assist in the Northeast Nebraska Rural Public Power District problems.

All Wayne area churches will have special events to commemorate this most holy of holy weeks. Christian tradition holds that on this very day, Jesus of Nazareth was crucified, only to be resurrected in three days, in fulfillment of Judaic prophecies. Logan Street work set to begin soon

Plans have been finalized for two construction projects on Logan Street, one to be completed this year and one in 1996.

According to City Administrator Joe Salitros, "work is expected to start soon on a storm relief sewer project. The project will be funded by local sales tax receipts and will begin south of Third and Logan Streets and proceed to Second Street. From there it will go east to Nebraska Street and south across city owned property near the Transfer Station to Fairgrounds Avenue: The project will relieve the stormwater drainage problems primarily north of Third Street in the central business district.

"We have hired Concrete Specialty Company of South Sioux City as the contractor for this project. They expect to begin work in the second half of April with a 60 "day construction schedule. During the construction period, there will be periods when the two streets in the project will be closed," said

THE SECOND part of the construction project involves the widening of Logan Street. A plan has been develop by the City Engineer of the widening and reconstruction of Logan Street from Third to Seventh Street.

"Included in this project will be the widening of Logan from Fourth to Seventh Streets, a new water main from Third to Seventh Streets, enlarging the storm sewer from Third to Seventh Streets and constructing new concrete paving with and integral curb and gutter

Trash-Off day is set April 29

The Nebraska Department of Roads is sponsoring a state-wide litter cleanup day on Saturday, April 29. This fourth annual "Great Nebraska Trash-Off" will enlist Adopt-A-Highway groups across. the state to pick up their adopted highway roadsides on that Saturday.

Nebraskans are proud of their 'good-life' state and its clean roadsides. Litter-free roadsides would be impossible to maintain without the help of concerned citizens and proud committees, said Roads Department Director Allan Abbott, The Trash-Qff program was designed to keep Nebraska roadsides clean and beautiful while promoting environmental awareness and community spirit.

Adopt-A-Highway groups are being encouraged to participate and make the Trash-Off a success. Over 1,600 organizations and groups have adopted 3,500 miles of roadside throughout the state. Adopt-A-Highway groups and other interested groups and organizations should contact their nearest state Roads Department maintenance office to be included in the massive state-wide litter cleanup day.

During last year's Great Ne-braska Trash-Off 350 groups, or about 5,000 persons, cleaned 875 miles of Nebraska's highways.

This year the Trash-Off is being held the same day as Keep Nebraska Beautiful's annual Spruce Up Day. A record turnout is expected.

. He said residents should not get in a hurry to attack damaged trees with pruning or other approaches unless there is a danger of more damage.

Rasmussen said the storm left many trees damaged in the Wayne area, especially the faster growing varieties such as silver maples, elms and willows. However, he said the extent of the damage this time was not as severe as that resulting from the storms in 1991.

He encouraged residents to seek the advice of his office in Concord or to call the Wayne Tree City program before considering toplacements for heavily damaged trees.

He said trees can generally be pruned and return to healthy status if less than 50 percent of their circumferance is damaged. He also said residents should not "top" trees as this will weaken them.

Rasmussen said the Wayne Tree City program has many quality trees in its nursery ready for transplanteither as numerous accidents were reported on Highway 35. In fact, traffic was halfed for more than an hour Monday morning as several. accidents left both lanes of High-way 35 near the Emerson turn off

One Wayne man was sitting in his car waiting for the highway to reopen when he was hit by another vehicle. Dave Diediker was on his way to work in Sioux City when the accident occurred.

"I was just sitting there waiting and then I looked in my rear view and all I could see was a freight. liner decal," Diediker said. "I knew I was going to be hit. The 18wheeler hit the car in back of me and shoved him out of the way so I could stop him with my car. Damages to the Diediker vehicle were over $4,000.

Diediker said the roads didn't appear to be that bad until people were getting out of their cars when traffic had stalled and they couldn't even stand up on the highway because of the slick conditions.

Two other accidents appeared to be the cause of traffic being halted but details were not released by the Dakola County Sheriff's office despite several contacts. "We were told by a police officer that we would be sitting right where we were for a while because of two accidents about a half-mile apart, Diediker said. "As it turned out, there was three accidents.

Capitol News — A special week

National Library Week, April 9 15, is a time to celebrate the lifechanging power of this great American institution and to show our support. This year that support is more needed than ever. At a time when information is literally exploding around us and our national leaders talk about constructing an electronic "information superhighway," many of our nation's school, public and college libraries are struggling to keep up. Right now Congress spend only 57 cents per person of our federal tax dollars on libraries - about the price of a pack of gum. The cornerstone of federal support for public libraries - the Library Service and Construction Act (LSCSA) — is up for renewal in 1995. Although the actual dollar amount is small some 30 years of federal support comes to less than the cost of one aircraft carrier - its impact is more, far-reaching. This is the money that helps libraries across the nation to expand and extend their services through the use of new technology, to build new branches and add ramps to the disabled, to operate bookmobiles (including to remote areas of Nebraska) and to provide services for the disadvantaged, the elderly and others with special needs

The American Library Association is asking Congress to renew LSCA in 1995 - and to increase funding - with a special focus on helping libraries to acquire the computers and install the wiring they need to connect to the information superhighway. The message: "Pass a buck for Limessage:

have the information they need to live, learn and work and govern in the Information Age.

For more than a century Americans of all ages have turned to their libraries for the information they need to live better lives. This week, National Library Week, the Wayne Public Library joins the American Library Association in urging everyone who values this great American institution to show your support.

Here's what you can do: First, you can use the library and tell others about how it can help them. Second, you can teach your children to use and support the library. And third, you can call, write or e-mail your U.S. Senators and Representatives and urge them to "Pass a Buck" for libraries. to become involved.) Thanks again to all for the suphere at the Wayne Public Library and to our other local libraries to all our community volunteers. our Grandmapa Storytime readers and all who visit and use the li-

Gov. Nelson is no great fan of

But even the critics of the out-he hit the bullseye when he lambasted the hiring of a $200-an-hour consultant by the Nebraska Department of Health.

The story revealed by Breslow had a definite odor, one that in our state is usually associated with livestock production.

The consultant, Robert Petrie of Omaha, wasn't among the original bidders for a contract to redesign the structure of the department until Health Director Dr. Mark Horton decided to include him.

That seemed kind of funny, since

Services for inadequate performance, work that had been supervised by Horton's own wife in that depart-

Horton, it was revealed, carpooled back and forth to Lincoln from Omaha with Petrie, which also seemed kind of funny. It makes you really wonder how he obtained a $200-an-hour consulting job?

Breslow also criticized the work performed by Petrie. He said most of the job was performed by committees of state employees, not about what work Petrie was supposed to perform and no estimates on how much money he was going to save the state.

If you're going to pay someone the big bucks to save tax dollars, Breslow reasoned, they ought to be able to estimate how much tax dollars they are going to save.

Gov. Nelson defended the 239,000 contract, saving it would ultimately save the state $5.8 million over five years.

Other administration officials said the $200-an-hour fee was not out of line.

But you could tell the governor wasn't exactly happy about it. He quickly signed an executive order requiring state agencies to better justify how much they were paying a consultant and why they were reeded.

Agencies would, in most cases, have to take competitive bids for such contracts and, in all cases, report what they have done

Publicly, the governor wouldn't attack or defend Horton's decision. But Nelson did say that downsizing government is not painless, and when bureaucracies are being streamlined, displaced bureaucrats are going to find something to gripe about.

That sounds reasonable.

What doesn't sound reasonable is paying someone $200-an-hour to appoint a bunch of state employees to study the structure of their own agency.

And the state's watchdog is growling to prove it."

When the proposed retirement plan changes were initially explained, a small number of employees expressed their concern about the account fee. For the vast majority of employees, the new retirement savings plan was viewed as beneficial to the City, their employer and themselves - and the account fee was not a concern.

Unfortunately, the Wayne Herald reported in the March 31 edition that 'employees,' seemingly everyone, were upset with the proposed plan changes. In the following week's edition, the editor seemed to draw an image of the entire City employee corps as unappreciative.

I would like to believe that the Wayne Herald perhaps meant to question comments made on behalf of a small number of employees; and not necessarily to tarnish the image of City employees as a whole.

Craig Shergold may never die. Back in 1989 the then nine-yearold boy in England was diagnosed with a terminal brain tumor and his thought-to-be-dying wish was to make it into the Guiness Book of World Records for having collected the most greeting cards in the world.

His wish has set off a worldwide chain letter that refuses to quit and looks like it may insure Craig's immortality. It will guarantee his name will live, at least in the halls of the Postal Service, forever.

But the Make-A-Wish foundation would like the chain-letter to die a quick death:

You see, Craig, who is known in some versions of the chain letter as Craig Sherford or Craig Sherwood, collected more than 16 million greeting cards in 1990-But a much better wish was granted in 1991 when the English youngster underwent successful surgery on his tumor.

He is now healed and he, his family and the Make-A-Wish foundation have many other interests than the thousands of cards which clog the mails each day. And they all are asking the world to "stop with the cards already."

Since 1989 I have personally received at least 10 copies of the Craig Shergold chain letter requesting cards--two within the last month. The plea in the letters really tugs at your heart strings. Who wouldn't want to help a dying young man with so simple a request. Office workers have been known to collect thousands of cards, sending them to an incorrect address in Georgia:

The Make-A-Wish foundation is buried in questions and mail about Craig.

Several versions of the letter exist, most of which wrongly claim that the boy remains terminally ill and now wants to receive the largest number of business cards," said James Gordon, chairman of the board of the Make-A-Wish Foundation. He explains that the addressee on the letters is encouraged to gather business cards, forward them to an address in Atlanta and then forward ten copies of the chain letter to friends and business associates.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation, whose purpose it is to finance the requests of young patients with life-threatening illnesses has never been involved in the Craig Shergold chain letter.

"But, we continue to receive phone calls daily in our office," writes Evonne Williams, executive director of the Make-A-Wish foundation of Nebraska. "Unfortunately, this takes valuable time from our staff and volunteers, not to mention the time of generous individuals wanting to help then they receive the chain letter."

There's even an official 800 number to call if you have questions about the Shergold chain letter. You can listen to a prerecorded message by dialing 1-800-215-1333, ext. 184.

Do Craig and the great volunteers of the Make-A-Wish Foundation a favor the next time you receive one of the chain letters--break the chain. I'm sure it will bring you lück if you do.

Incidentally, the situation points up the good works that the Make-A-Wish Foundation has done both nationally and in Nebraska. They have been involved locally in helping youngsters. The organization, based in Phoenix, has 80 chapters in the United States. Any child between the ages of two and a half and 18 who has been determined to have a life-threatening illness is eligible to receive a wish. .

The first wish was granted in Phoenix in 1980 and since then the foundation has granted more than 33,000 wishes, ranging from building a back yard fishing pond to an all-expense paid trip to Disney World.

The Nebraska chapter is close to fulfilling its 550th wish. Ms. Williams reports that a recent audit indicated that 94 percent of every dollar spent by the organization is applied to the wish granting program.

Habitat for Humanity group forms here

By Clara Osten Of the Herald

Habitat for Humanity is planning to form an association in Wayne that will be affiliated with the group in Norfolk. The group will hold a meeting Thursday, April 20 at 12:30 p.m. in the Plains Room of the Wayne State College Student Center

Founded by Millard and Linda Fuller in 1976, the organization's goal is to eliminate poverty housing and homelessness. The group is a non-profit, non-denominational, international, volunteer organiza-

"We are seeking to start a Wayne chapter to work with the Norfolk chapter. Our goal is build awareness and funds and find people who are willing to spend time in the actual projects," said Joan Zanders, who is heading the effort to start a chapter in Wayne.

Towns of less than 10,000 are discouraged from forming their own affiliate, but are invited to secure with other affiliate. There are hearly 1,200 affiliates across the country. Habitat for Humanity can also be found in 40 countries around the world. Soon we will be building our 40,000th home," said

One of the groups most wellknown supporters is former President Jimmy Carter. Recently Carter was involved in a "Blitz Building Week" South Dakota, The group built several homes in a week on an Indian reservation. Carter has also been-involved in numerous other Habitat for Humanity projects throughout the United States

The Norfolk affiliate has purchased five lots and is starting their first house this spring. We hope to complete two houses this year and start on a third," said Zanders.

Habitat for Humanity works with people who would not otherwise be able to afford to own a home of their own. "The people who are selected for this program are required to put in a certain amount of "sweat equity". This is time spent constructing their own home and other homes being built by Habitat for Humanity. This gives them a sense of ownership because they have been directly involved in the construction of their .home," said Zanders.

We have had a tremendous amount of support from the com-munity. We usually have between 40 and 50 people at each of our meetings. Lots of church youth groups have volunteered their time to work with this project. Anyone can become involved. It is not necessary to be able to swing a ham-mer to be useful."

The group is also looking for donations of new or good, used supplies. Anyone needing more information can contact Zanders at

Riders seek donations

Rainbow Riders is currently seeking donations to help defray the costs involved with their therapeutic horseback riding lessons for handicapped and other individuals.

"During 1994 we were able to provide riding lessons for 25-30 handicapped riders, sponsor a Ride-A-Thon for our riders as well as the public, offer a Horse Safety Semi-nar to the public, sponsor an instructor workshop for a four state area and build a safer catch pen," said Connie Thompson, one of the organizers of Rainbow Riders.

"We were also able to develop a Junior Volunteer Program which focuses on management and leadership skills, and provide and care for seven school horses and ponies for our riders," said Thompson

"Through funds raised by the generosity of people in the community, we were able to meet our financial obligations such as insurance, therapy evaluations, feed, board and veterinary bills."

Rainbow Riders utilizes volunteer help and accepts donated items to help defray costs but some expenses can only be met with funds raised from throughout the area.

Donations made be made by sending a check payable to Rainbow Riders, Rural Route 2, Box 170, Laurel, NE 68745.

Low Magnesium Intake And Asthma

A study recently conducted n'Nottingham, England showed that individuals who obtained very little dietary magnesium were most likely to have lung problems According to a report in The Lancet, a medical journal, the intake of dietary magnesium was determined for 2, 633 randomly selected adults aged 18 to 70. A questionnaire concerning eating habits was administered to each study participant, and lung function was scientifically determined. On the average, individuals with the lowest magnesium intake were found to have the weakest lung function. Also, their lung passages were hyperreactive a characteristic that is consistent with asthma. Finally, self reported wheezing was more frequent among indivuduals who had the lowest amounts of the mineral magnesium in their diets. The researchers

"The Holmes course we played in Lincoln was in decent shape but the greens were rock hard and virtually incapble of holding an approach shot," Hutchison said. "It caused our golfers to make large adjustments in their club selections and approach maneuvering, but that's the game of golf."

Only All-American Janet Lee has run faster, having clocked a 4:43.26 at the 1982 NAIA Outdoor Track & Field Championships. Kathy ran an outstanding race, WSC coach Brian Kavanaugh said.
"She went out fairly conserva--74.9 for the first quarter and about fifth place—but kept moving up. In the final 150 meters she blew by the leader and won by nearly four seconds."

There were other solid performances on the women's side as well including Michelle Baatz in the 1500 with a personal best of 5:20.88 for 10th place.

Junior Charronna Chambes won the 100 preter dash in her outdoor debut in 13.16 and placed eighth in the 200 in 27.44. "Last year at this meet Chambers got out to a great start in the 100 only to pull upwith a season-ending groin injury, head coach Rick Moorman said. So this race was very important from a psychological standpoint."

Cinda Wheeler placed fifth in the high jump at 4-11 and junior Deedra Haskins improved her seasonbest in the triple jump by placing fifth with a 34-2 effort. Freshman Amy Gudmundson placed third in the 400 meter dash in 62.85 and Dalton added a fourth in the 3000 meter run in 11:12.3. The 400 me ter relay team placed sixth in 53.14 with Stephanie Lilja, Chambers, Haskins and Gudmundson.

On the men's side, freshman Donnty Thongdy knocked more than a minute off his best in the 3000 meter steeplechase, clocking 10:22,37 for fifth place. Sophomores Mark Beran and Mark Merritt placed second and fifth, respectively in the 5000 meter run with times of 16:08.98 and 16:24.90.

"It had gotten quite windy and cold by the time the 5000 meter run started," Kavanaugh said. "Even so, his was less than four seconds off Beran's best time and Merritt looked strong after taking nearly a month off from either bursitis or tendinitis of the knee.

Freshman Jeff Dobson ran an 11.5 in the 100 medter dash and freshman Colby Laughhunn lowered his season-best in the 800 me-

Amy Gudmundson won the 400 meter dash in 60.96 and placed sixth in the long jump with a 15-4.73 leap. Michelle Baatz was fifth in the 1500 meter run in 5:21.3-10 seconds better than her previous best and Kathy Dalton was timed in , 11:02.2 in the 3000 meter run for fish place. She also added a fourth in the 800 meter run in 2:30.85. Deedra Haskins rounded out the field of placers with a third in the triple jump after a leap of 32-4.25.

On the men's side. Donnty Thongdy provided some comic relief in his debut in the 3000 meter steeplechase, though he placed second in 11:25.9. "On the third or fourth water jump, Donnty badly timed his steps to the barrier and instead of jumping the barrier, he used his hands and vaulted like a gymnast," Kavanaugh said. "I had to check the rules to see if that was legal and it was and it brought a roar from the crowd as well."

Mark Beran finished seventh in the 5000 meter run, knocking 25 seconds off his previous best time with a 16:05.2 effort. In the field events, freshman Chris Walker placed sixth in the discus and javelin, throwing 125-4 and 125-7, respectively. "Chris struggledthrough the indoor season with the shot put, which is not really his event," Moorman said. "Now that we're outdoors he can finally throw his specialties."

Home loans for needy available

One-percent home repair loan funds are available for qualified homeowners," stated Mark Moser, County Supervisor for Rural Economic and Community Development (RECD), formerly the Farmers Home Administration

Moser said that qualified homeowners can receive up to $15,000 for home repair under RECD's Section 504 loan program, designed to assist eligible, very-low income homeowners to improve and modernize their homes

Moser explained that RECD has not promoted the home repair program in the past due to the limited funding received. However, that changed last fiscal year when the Agency received a significant increaser in funding for the program The funding level was continued this fiscal year

Financial assistance is limited to homeowners in rural areas. Rural area is generally defined as communities of 20,000 population and less. Repayment terms cannot exceed 20 years and homeowners must provide adequate security to justify the loan

"Personally," Moser said, "I believe this is an excellent program to assist qualified homeowners in making repairs to their homes which they may have been putting off for a number of years." More information on this program and application forms can be obtained from the RECD office located at 709 Providence Road, Wayne. The telephone number for the RECD office is 402-375-2360.

Dr. Road Kill: Professor uses frozen fauna for classes in college biology

Tucked away on the second floor of Wayne State College's Carhart Science Building, are several large, upright freezers. Students there, burning the midnight oil, might be drawn to those freezers, in search of a late night snack.

What is opinion about Nintendo?

Question: What is your opinion of Nintendo and other video games? They've been claiming a big percentage of our son's time few months, and I'm getting a little anxious about it.

Dr. Dobson: Depending on the particular games in question, you may have a valid cause for concern. Vince Hammond, head of the National Coalition on Television Violence, stated that some studies have highlighted the potentially harmful nature of video games, especially those with violent themes--for example, "Renegade," "Wizards and Warriors" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr.

Some observers have come to the conclusion that these games can become obsessive and encourage aggressive behavior. There's even evidence to suggest that children between the ages of 8 and 10 are 80 percent more likely to fight with one another after playing with them.

I want to make it clear that I'm not necessarily recommending a total ban on all Nintendo games. I'm simply suggesting that parents be aware of and seek to deal with two dangerous aspects of these games: the element of violence that plays such an important part in some of them, and the addictive qualities that seem to be a distinguishing mark of all.

I'd advise you to put clear limits on the amount of time your son be allowed to spend with video games so that he won't become obsessed with them. Help him avoid the violent ones altogether. With realistic guidelines, I think it's possible to keep this kind of activity under control rather than letting it control your son and your family.

Question: Our family has always been very close. Since the children were small, we've enjoyed doing things together. But lately I've seen a change in our 13-year-old son. I get the feeling he'd rather spend time with anyone but us. He actually seemed embarrassed to be seen with us at a restaurant last week, and he declined an invitation from his father to go fishing on Saturday. Are we wrong to

Dr. Dobson: Your feelings are understandable, but so are the changes painful for both of you at times--growing up! At 13, he's moving rapidly into adolescence, and you need to be aware of what that means.

It's natural that his interest in his peers and the world outside should be rowing. The center of his social life is slowly shifting away from the family, and he's beginning to branch out and become his own person. He senses (though he may not put it into words) that the old "parent-baby" relationship is no longer appropriate--and it isn't!

Here lies one of the unsung pitfalls of conscientious parenting. From the moment their newborn arrives, caring parents devote themselves to the nurture of their bundle of joy. They walk the floor with haggard faces and warm bottles at 2 a.m.

They read and re-read the same two or three books to jelly-faced toddlers. They take time away from business, housework or personal pleasure and sink it into soccer games, camping trips, days at the beach and visits to museums with rambunctious youngsters.

And just when they feel ready to begin reaping some returns on all this expenditure of time and energy, their assets turn around and walk away from them! No other investment works that way!

No wonder it hurts. But I think you'd do well to accept this healthy aspect of your son's development without being defensive. I'd even encourage it-with limits, of course. Times of family togetherness still have their place, and you're right to stress their importance.

But as you travel together through the tunnel of the teen years, your relationship has to change. It can emerge deeper and stronger--though different-in a few years. It will never be a parent-child phenomenon again, but that's as it should be.

Credit cards for high school students could be risky benefit

High school students owning credit cards may be deluged with other credit offers before they are fiscally responsible.

If a young person has had enough previous financial responsibility to handle credit, enough owning=credit cards can be a tool leading to greater understanding in managing personal finance. Other students; however, could find themselves getting sucked into debt that could take years to pay off.

Income and payment record often determines the amount of offers they receive from credit card owners. The more responsible the track record, the more offers they will re-

However, student holders of even one credit card may charge it to the maximum, obtain another one, and repeat the same process, losing sight of the total debt.

Owning several cards and maxing them out may unfavorably affect future credit. Loan officers, checking into credit history may frown at such a high debt record, leading them to deny the student a car or apartment loan.

Amazingly, some high school and college students for some rea-- son don't even realize they have to pay their credit cards off! Many are merely naive having never been in charge of handling their finances before. Others who aren't of legal age aren't therefore legally considered an adult. In Nebraska, the legal age is when they turn 19. Before 19, they can legally get out of paying the bill, leaving their parents to pay off their debts. However, this typically only happens once before - and parents - bethe business? come aware of what is going on.

'Financial advisers recommend that students getting credit cards for the first time stick to one card and put a limit on what they spend each month. They also recommend that parents be involved, know what their son or daughter's credit limit is and help him/her map out a

Ask Karen... Q. When I brought my spring wardrobe out, I noticed yellow stains on some of my clothes. They looked clean when I stored them. What caused this? A. These stains are caused by spills of juice, beer, pop or anything that contains sugar. Although Invisible at first, storing the clothing in a warm closet caramelizes the stain; making it yellow or brown. Some of these stains can be removed, usually depending on the age of the garment. Talk to your drycleaner before having it cleaned:

What is a Water Pill?

A water pill is also known as a diuretic. It is used to relieve water retention, weight gain; bloating, swelling or a "full" feeling. There are a few diuretics available in over-the-counter preparations for use to relieve these common. discomforts. Northern Nebraska's Cataract Specialist

"I Ran A Baling Wire Through My Eye Six Or Seven Years Ago."

Shirley Brokaw had a Cataract.

She had No-Stitch Cataract Surgery.

"I wasn't afraid of cataract surgery because I had run a baling wire through my eye six ör seven years ago. I couldn't see anything right afterward. After Dr. Feidler took care of that, it has been just perfect. That hurt much worsesthan cataract surgery. There is not much to cataract surgery.

I noticed when I was driving at night that my eyes were blurry. Just kind of clouded over. Headlights seemed very bright. At a routine eye examination I found out I had cataracts. I learned about cataracts from what they told me at Feidler Eye Clinic. When the time comes, I want to get my other eye done because I know it is not that difficult.

I think that Dr. Feidler is just great. He's kind and a good doctor. I've always gotten my glasses here for years. It is the only place I've gotten them. I've had such great luck with my glasses, too."

The "Word" for the Week -Jesus lives and so shall I

Christianity is not just a set of moral and ethical values taught by Jesus Christ long ago. Christianity exists because Jesus Christ now lives. That's right. Jesus Christ did not remain in the grave. He rose again. He lives. The central celebration of Christianity is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

This means people who follow Jesus do not just follow His teachings. The disciples of Christ have the hope of following Christ by also being raised from the dead. You see, "If Christ has not been taised, your faith is worthless; you are still in your sins" (1 Corinthians 15:17). "But now Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who are asleep" (1 Corinthians 15:20). This means Jesus Christ was the "first fruit" of a great resurrection harvest. At that resurrection harves, "the dead will be raised imperishable." Listen, this is the hope of every person who trusts in Christ. "Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed" (1 Corinthians 15:51-52).

Do you have this "living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead" (1 Peter 1:3)?

Egg month research proves value, nutrition to Linda Braun, Consumer Services Manager, American Egg Board, it's certainly not price! In 1979, on average across the country, large eggs retailed for 84.5 cents a dozen. Since then, egg producers have employed highly efficient production and management techniques as well as improved hen nutrition to keep production high and costs low.

While other food prices have skyrocketed, eggs are still a bargain in the '90s! In 1994, the average retail price for large eggs was only 86.28 cents a dozen, a mere 1.74 cents rise per dozen over more than a decade. At these prices, an egg costs just under 8 cents today just as it did over 15 years ago!

Braun reports, that cholesterol is down, too. In a 1989 assay conducted cooperatively by the United States Department of Agriculture and the egg industry, it was found that the average large egg contains 213 milligrams (mg) of cholesterol, down from the previously recorded 274 mg. Even more important is the fact that scientists have found that too much fat in the diet, especially saturated fat, has a much greater influence on blood choles-

What's up with eggs? According terol levels than dietary cholesterol!

So, it must be fat, right? No, again! The same assay that showed eggs have 22 percent less cholesterol also showed that today's eggs provide 10 percent less fat! The average large egg has only 5 grams of total fat compared to the 6 grams that older figures suggested. Most of that 5 grams is unsaturated fat, the "good" kind that doesn't raise blood cholesterol levels!

So what's up with eggs? Consumption! Buoyed by the news that healthy people with normal cholesterol levels can eat an egg a day with little to no effect on their blood cholesterol levels, Americans are eating eggs again! From a 1991 yearly low of 233.5 eggs per person, egg consumption rose to 238.5 per capita in 1994, according

Is the lowering of cholesterol concern the whole reason for this increase? Probably not. The natural nutrition of eggs appeals to anyone who has become disillusioned about processed foods. The affordability of high-quality egg protein plus the egg's array of vitamins and minerals is important to those who want good meals at a fair price. And, all

Whether you're concerned about a healthful diet, your food budget or your time schedule, eggs can help you balance your meal plans. It's no wonder that men, women and children across the country are eating more eggs!

QUICK AND EASY IDEAS!

Scramble your morning eggs in the microwave over your favorite flavor ingredients i... crumbled bacon, mushrooms, green pepper and onion are very easy to microcook. For a special treat, stir some cottage cheese and fine herbs into your beaten eggs before cooking!

Make your toast and eggs at the same time! Simply-use a glass or cookie cutter to cut a hole in a slice of bread or frozen waffle. Slip an egg into the hole and cook in a skillet (along with the cut-out circle of bread) on both sides until done. Grab a ready-made tortilla, spread with canned refried beans and top with a fried or poached egg. For finishing touch, sprinkle shredded cheese over the top.

For economy and efficiency make leftovers a delicious new meal by using them as a base for eggs. Steam leftover rice, stir in salsa to taste, top with a poached egg and shredded cheese. Property rights issues deal with dreams Compensation is only an issue

In "The Big Orange Splot," Daniel Manus Pinkwater tells the story of Mr. Plumbean, who lives on a street where all the houses look the same, "This is a neat street," his neighbors tell each other. Then one day, a seaguil spills a can of bright orange paint on Mr. Plumbean's roof. "Ooooh! Too bad!" the neighbors say, for they expect Mr. Plumbean to paint. his house again, and soon:

But Plumbean doesn't -- not until the neighbors say, "We wish you'd get around to painting your house." Here the plot thickens, for Plumbean doesn't paint his house to look like every other one on the street. Instead, working at night, he paints his house with bright colors and drawings of elephants, lions, pretty girls and steamshovels. Next he installs exotic plant life and an alligator, and the place looks like a

The neighbors are upset, but Plumbean tells them, "My house is me and I am it. My house is where T like to be and it looks like all my dreams." But the neighbors want their neat street back, so the man next door is dispatched to talk to Plumbean. Talk he does, and Plumbean listens, all night, as they drink lemonade. The next day, the neighbor, who had always loved ships, makes his house look like one. One by one, the neighbors visit Plumbean and talk about their dreams. Day by day, they make over their houses -- into a giant hot air balloon, the Taj Mahal, a castle and a Grecian temple.

The best stories lend themselves to many meanings, and I find a lesson about private property rights in this one. When the neighbors had a problem with Mr. Plumbean's new way of using his property, they talked with him about it. And he listened, all night long. Not only to complaints about his new paint job, but to their dreams, to what they truly wanted to make of their lives and their homes -- their pri-vate property. Perhaps Plumbean wasn't thrilled to be living next to a ship, but he respected his neigh-bor's right to use his property in American Farm Bureau Deputy Chief Economist Ross Korves points out that property rights are fundamentally about relationships, as Plumbean and his neighbors illustrate. As people live in closer proximity, how they use their land, buildings and other belongings begins to affect others. The right to own and use private property allows Rorves' comments are relevant as the federal government and many of the states, including Nebraska, consider private property rights legislation. He says, "The focus should not be on compensation. The focus should be on the rights which property owners have that govenments are created to protect.
