

Tension mounts as rain delays planting

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Wet, damp, cold, and miserable are all words to describe the weather during the past few weeks.

The first week of May generally finds area farmers busy preparing soil and planting crops. This has not been the case in 1995.

As of April 30, only two percent of the corn in northeast Nebraska had been planted. This compares with 32 percent planted last year at this time and an average of 22 percent.

Moisture and cool temperatures are to blame for this difference. The Wayne area received just under four inches of rain in April. According to Wayne weather observer Pat Gross, this compares with 5.04 inches in 1993 and 8.74 inches in 1984. During the month of April last year, the area received less than an inch of precipitation.

"THE RAIN totals for April have not been in the record-breaking categories. We just haven't had a lot of drying weather during the month. It seems to be raining every other day," said Gross.

"Although there has not been much, if any, corn planted this spring, we have not reached the extreme point yet. We do need two or three days of sunshine and 60-70 degree temperatures to allow farmers to get in the fields and plant," said Keith Jarvi of the Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord.

"If the current conditions continue through the middle of May, farmers may need to consider exchanging the seed they have for shorter season varieties."

"AS TIME goes on, my greatest concern is that the farmers will be working long hours and may forget safety in an attempt to get the crops in the ground," said Jarvi.

"In addition, the later planting dates may have an effect on the amount and types of herbicide treatments needed to control weeds. More post-planting herbicides will need to be applied this year," said Jarvi.

The cool weather will have an effect on the time needed for the seed that is in the ground to germinate. "The longer the seed is in the ground before germinating, the more problems we are likely to have," Jarvi added.

ACCORDING TO Todd Peterson, a cropping systems specialist with the University of Nebraska, "when corn planting is delayed due to weather, producers are often anxious to get back to the field with heavy machinery. Since soil compaction can reduce yields for several years, farmers should consider delaying corn planting an additional day or two to allow the soil to dry out before entering the field."

For maximum yield potential, farmers should have their corn planted by mid-May in northeastern Nebraska.

As farmers anxiously await drying conditions, more rain is forecast for the weekend.

National Day of Prayer

May 4, 1995

"We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of heaven. We have been preserved, these many years, in peace and prosperity. We have grown in numbers, wealth and power, as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace, and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us; and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us; too haughty to confess our national sins, and to pray for clemency and forgiveness."

Nicotine Patch May Work for You If...

Although nicotine patches often are used to help smokers stop smoking, success rates vary widely. Why do patches work for some people and not for others? This question was addressed by researchers who recently reported their findings in British Medical Journal.

Almost 1,500 men and women between ages 18 and 70 were studied. All were smokers who expressed a strong desire to stop smoking. And all had smoked at least 15 cigarettes daily for a least three years. About 21% of these individuals had stopped smoking 26 weeks after their quit date. Persons who were found to be most likely to stop smoking had these five characteristics:

- male gender
 - age over 40
 - living with a spouse or partner
 - strong initial desire to quit
 - concerned about weight gain
- Smoking three or more cigarettes in the first four weeks after the quit date was strongly predictive of a return to tobacco.

Lions Club to host talent competitors here Sunday

The regional Lion's Talent Search Competition will be held in Wayne on Sunday, May 7 from 2 to 4 p.m. on the campus at Wayne State College.

Young performers who qualified at nine community competitions held earlier throughout eastern Nebraska will vie for the regional prizes and a chance to move on in the national competition.

Wayne area students who will be competing Sunday include Emily Bruflat, 7, who will perform a piano solo; Emily Kinney, 9, who won with a vocal solo in the local competition; Nancy Drevo, in the 12 to 14 age group who performed an original piano composition, and Todd Koeber in the 15 to 18 age bracket performing a piano solo.

They will be competing against students from Fullerton, Genoa, Columbus, Norfolk, Clarkson, Bennington, Neligh and Omaha as well as those who qualified from Wayne.

The competition will be split into two locations Sunday. The younger age groups will be performing in the Ley Theatre in the Brandenburg building. The older age students will be competing at Ramsey Theatre.

The Wayne Lions Club sponsors the annual local contest and this year will be hosting the regional event.

The public is invited to attend the performances. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Sculpture nears completion

Friday's Chamber Coffee was held on the Wayne State College campus in the old power plant which houses a sculpture being completed by artist and Wayne State College alumni Herb Mignery. The sculpture is nearly ready to be cast in bronze. After completion, it will become part of the Lyle Seymour Heritage Plaza. Pictured with the sculpture are WSC President Dr. Donad Mash, Sherry and Herb Mignery.

The high temperature during the month of April was 75 degrees on April 2 and 3. The low for the month was 19 degrees, recorded on both April 3 and 4.

The Wayne area received 30 inches of snow during the month, bringing the 1994-95 total to 27.50 inches.

Precipitation for the month was 3.80 inches which is 1.03 inches above the ten year average of 2.77 inches.

In 1995 the Wayne area has received 7.82 inches of precipitation nearly 2 inches above the ten year average of 5.83 inches.

"It is nice to start the spring season with almost 2 inches above normal moisture. We have learned a long time ago not to complain too quickly about too much moisture. May always offers hope and we know the temperature will warm up and the crops seem to always get planted," said Gross.

A blow to farmers

Area farmers suffered a blow last week with the court decision reversing a federal administrative ruling ordering ethanol to be used as a fuel additive in the smoggiest cities in the country.

Last year's Environmental Protection Agency ruling that ethanol should be used as a cleaner burning fuel additive in the nation's most polluted cities was seen as a boon to the Midwest's burgeoning ethanol and corn production industries.

But big oil interests filed suit to block the order and the courts have determined that the EPA cannot order the use of ethanol, a product of corn, over the cleaner burning additive favored by the oil companies—MTBE.

The oil companies prefer MTBE as the additive because it is produced from petroleum, that stuff that comes from those expensive oil fields they have developed and are seeking profitable returns on in the Middle East.

It is unlikely in a non-regulated environment, that very much ethanol will ultimately find its way into the fuel tanks of urban motorists across the country since the oil companies which will want to push their own additive, ultimately control what gets marketed at the pumps.

Thus, even though ethanol can be proven to be a cleaner burning, domestically produced, renewable energy resource, it will probably not be as widely used as MTBE because big oil controls the market.

And farmers take it in the shorts.

To make matters worse, farmers must rely on the fuel sold by oil companies as the prime energy source driving their grain production efforts.

We need to be more vocal in our demands for the development of newly engineered farm equipment that runs on alternative energy sources like bio-diesel and high percentage ethanol blends.

While the agricultural industry provides a small share of the business enjoyed by oil companies it would still be a significant impact if farmers were to unite in efforts to develop and manufacture their own fuel to be used in equipment that was engineered to use homegrown blends.

The new diesel powered standby electric generating station, being developed for Wayne also should be engineered to run on soy-diesel.

All of us who rely so heavily on a successful agricultural economy—and that is everyone in Northeast Nebraska—should continue to demand and use fuel with ethanol as an additive.

Developing our own markets for our own products may not bring the big oil interests to their knees, but we should take every opportunity to reduce our support of the industry which took great pleasure in kicking farmers in the teeth last week.

A case study of lobbyists losing

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — There's a tried and true principle in the Nebraska Legislature: If you really want to accomplish something, hire some expensive lobbyists and sic 'em on the senators.

It usually works. The health-care and insurance industries have used it successfully in recent sessions to make sure any health care reform efforts don't cut into their business.

A few years back, the gun rights lobbied effectively watered down a bill for a waiting period on hand-

And, despite a big push by Gov. Nelson, out-of-state utility companies were able to defeat any attempt to require a community consent vote for a controversial concrete bunker in Boyd County to hold low-level radioactive waste.

So what happened last week when the pro-gambling interests saddled up its legion of lobbyists to advance a bill allowing slot machines and video gaming?

Instead of rounding up 25 votes, they shot themselves in the foot.

It was one of the few examples in the Nebraska Legislature where lobbying hurt, rather than helped, advance a proposal.

How did that happen?

1. The lobbyists spent as much time fighting among themselves as supporting the idea of expanded gambling. Keno operators were worried that they would lose a cut of the gambling pie, as were the charities.

The operators of Nebraska's thoroughbred race tracks and the people who raise and run horses fight like cats and dogs anyway, and they continued that spating-while-trying to reach some agreements on Legislative Bill 851, the slot machine bill.

2. Their strategy stunk. They took too long to reach a consensus on LB 851 and when they finally did, senators weren't clued in to the agreement.

Rather than explain it to his colleagues, Omaha Sen. Tim Hall, the chief sponsor of LB 851, decided to gamble, putting up a motion to kill his own bill in a bizarre attempt to gauge support for the measure.

Hall's strange game of Russian roulette, rather than serving as a springboard for LB 851, turned into a convenient chance for the fence-sitters on gambling to kill the bill.

Most senators didn't want another controversial and time-consuming bill clogging up the few remaining days in the session, plus no one really knew what the much-compromised LB 851 was going to accomplish.

The kill-the-bill buttons lit up the tally board like a marquee on a Las Vegas casino. Barring a miracle recovery, the gambling issue is dead for the 1995 session.

Besides the bungling by the gambling backers, senators seemed annoyed by the pressure tactics of about 60 bar owners who showed up on the day LB 851 was considered.

The bar owners, of course, wanted to tell senators that they needed video gambling devices to survive. Trouble is, many senators who might support slot machines at race tracks don't want addictive gambling videos playing where families (and little kids) eat supper or lunch.

The vote that killed LB 851 shocked the gambling lobbyists, and many senators.

But it served as a pleasant reminder that all is not preordained in the Nebraska Legislature, and that senators will, from time to time, vote their own convictions, despite the efforts of a lobbying army.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Wayne's two newspapers, The Wayne Herald and The Wayne Democrat, were on opposite sides of a heated debate over the opening of Logan Street to traffic south of the railroad tracks. The Wayne Herald, the depot manager and the owner of the stockyards, R. Philco and Son were all opposed to the plan. The Wayne Democrat's editorial writer wrote that the opposition's claim that the railroad owned the area was inaccurate, and that the stockyard manager's fencing off the area for stockyard use was illegal.

Remembering Earth Day - then & now

I remember the first Earth Day 25 years ago.

I never thought I would ever enter that special field of old newspaper geezers who constantly write reminiscence pieces about the "good old days."

I never had the urge before. But, last week when I began reading reports about the 25th anniversary of the first Earth Day celebration in 1970, which coincides uncomfortably with a milestone birthday, I realized that I had been there. I had done it. And I, like the other old geezers who fancy themselves as sage advisors for today's youth, I felt compelled to expound on the experience and try to relate it to modern times.

Sounds boring I know, but we geezers never let lack of reader interest stand in the way of a (ahem) good reminiscence piece.

Next week I can see myself writing a piece called "Les remembers Methuselah."

Hard as it may seem for some young people to accept (myself included), I really was there on the first Earth Day. Lying my green and white striped flag with the "Earth" symbol on it, marching in protest of everything polluting, plastic and disposable and helping with my hometown cleanup effort.

I spent most of the first Earth Day in and out of the back of a National Guard truck. We hauled several tons worth of huge discarded pieces of a monument to a wasteful and non-stewardship society pulled from the banks of the local river.

We were doing our part. Back then we thought acid rain was some kook dropping LSD out of an airplane. Nuclear energy was going to save our planet by eliminating fossil fuel power generation. We thought then that nuclear generated electricity would soon be so cheap we'd leave lights burning all the time to save wear and tear on the switches.

And we soon wouldn't have to be worrying about spending 35-cents a gallon for gasoline because we thought we'd all be driving clean electric cars.

Trees? Well, we knew we needed to do a better job of managing our resource but research indicated that trees used for construction and paper industries could be replanted and grown like crops—renewable. Clear cutting was a heated debated but we'd never heard of the spotted owl.

Ozone? Wasn't that an outrageous new hard rock musician from England?

Back in April of 1970, air pollution was choking our cities and toxic dumping was killing our streams. Our Eagle populations were still declining from the effects of DDT in the environment and mercury levels in the world's edible fish was alarmingly up.

That's the way the state of the environment shocked many of us into action back on April 19, 1970. But the Earth Day observances waned over the years. Yeah, we tried to get up the same excitement and activities in 1971 and 1972. But the fear and loathing incentives were not the same.

We got caught up in other issues. Three Mile Island and, later, Chernobyl, combined with the concern over what to do with the waste products from nuclear plants changed the world opinion away from nuclear power.

We have made some progress in pollution abatement in large cities and we tout the cleanup of rivers and waterways. But we learn that rain forests are being cleared and great holes are forming in the Earth's ozone layer. The continued reliance on burning of fossil fuels for energy is adding to the ozone depletion and acid rain continues to fall as we pump sulfur into the atmosphere from factories and coal-fired power plants.

The coal industry and big oil companies continue to do more damage to the environment and kill more people each year than would happen if we pulled the control rods out of every reactor in the world and let them all melt down.

Our disposable society has done little in the last 25 years to reduced or even properly manage the waste we produce.

Landfill situations are reaching crisis states.

We still don't recycle enough of our resources to make even a small dent in the tonnage of garbage we dump into the earth.

Gloom and doom you say. Too negative? You're right. But it's all true and you know it.

So what do we do.

It is nice to see the recent renewal of emphasis in Earth Day as a celebration of awareness, even if it is a misguided effort for aging baby boomers to try to relive their misspent youth. Besides the education effort there's several processes already in the works that we can support and become involved in.

Tree planting and replanting efforts need every individual's support. If person in America this year planted five trees, it would not come close to replacing the trees lost in a single month of rain forest clearing efforts in South America.

But we must plant them anyway while efforts are underway to reverse the tropical eco-cide.

We can get involved in recycling efforts which help recover resources which can be used again and again. We're not just talking about aluminum cans. We can also recycle glass, paper, oil and plastic right here in Wayne through the volunteer recycling center manned every Saturday morning.

Are you involved?

The newspaper industry is rushing headlong into use of recycled newsprint. Admittedly, and sadly, it has taken too long, but we are excited about the opportunity to increase the percentage of recycled newsprint used and returned to the manufacturing stream.

Individually, we can make a difference. Be it as little difference as using ceramic coffee cups instead of disposable foam cups, filling up with cleaner burning Ethanol (locally grown) fuel, using cloth diapers instead of disposable, both sides of the paper instead of one side and...

...joining in Earth Day activities next year instead of ignoring them.

Just what is a B-2 bomber worth locally?

Do you like to know where your tax dollars go?

Know the cost of one B-2 bomber? Or the cost of one 117A stealth fighter? We are not debating here whether or not we need them. Uncle Sam needs a potent U.S. Air Force. Let's simply equate costs.

The B-2 is 69 feet long, 17 feet high with a wingspan of 192 feet. The first one rolled out of a hangar in Palmdale, Calif. in November 1988, and first flew on July 17, 1989. Requires two pilots. Have your billfold handy?

Each B-2 costs taxpayers $901 million! Pow!

Other than one B-2, what else would $901 million buy?

Let's say it takes $20 million annually to fund Wayne State College. The money for one B-2 would operate WSC for 40 years with 100 million available for increasing

Merlin Wright

The State of Nebraska is 210 miles north and south, and 415 miles wide. This area contains 93 counties. Dividing the cost of one B-2 among the counties, each would receive more than $9.5 million. Hey! New bridges!

If we stretched the cost of the new Wayne Public Library and Senior Citizen Center to $2 million, the money for one B-2 would build 450 such facilities.

Wayne County's annual operational cost is around $4 million. The money for one B-2 would fund Wayne County for over 200 years!

The F-117A stealth fighter has been flying since 1982. It is 65 feet, 11 inches in length; 12 feet, five inches high; wingspan of 43 feet, 4 inches. Uncle Sam got this radar evading beauty for a mere $45 million each. Right out of the Pentagon's bargain basement! We're not including the millions necessary for training pilots and continuing maintenance.

Legislature hashing out gambling laws

By Pat Engel
District 17 Senator

As you have probably heard by now, the Legislature killed LB 851, a bill that would expand gambling in Nebraska on a 25-17 vote. LB 851 would have permitted slot machines in Nebraska at racetracks without voter-approval.

If citizens later approved a ballot question on expanded gambling, as required under the legislation, the tracks could increase their slot machines by tenfold. LB 765, the other proposed gaming bill, would require a local vote before video gaming devices or slot machines could be operated. LB 851 is more favorable to bar owners, since it would not require a separate second vote on putting machines there.

LB 765 is considered more favorable to keno operators since it parallels the local control system under which they currently operate. Senator Eric Will of Omaha, on behalf of gambling supporters, has filed a motion to reconsider LB 851. The motion to be reconsidered had to be made by Tuesday in order for the matter to be taken up again. The measure would require 25 votes and Senator Tim Hall, sponsor of the bill, has indicated that he doubts the support is there.

If a local contractor had $45 million, he might build 450 homes each costing $100 thousand.

For $45 million, each of Wayne's 14 churches could build new $3 million structures with money left over.

How about comparative educational costs? If our Wayne-Carroll School System spent over $5 million annually, it could operate 150 years, including increases, for the cost of one B-2.

In 20 years the planes will likely be flirting with the scrap pile, but our most precious resource, our youths, will be running this country, solving its problems.

Should you see a B-2 or F117A flying overhead, you'll know partially how the Pentagon spent your hard earned taxes.

Hope you see a college or high school student graduating and realize their education cost you a little, but was it relatively expensive?

Deciding what is and is not expensive always rests on an individual's values.

The Department of Public Institutions had conducted a study regarding laundry services and on March 6, 1995, Director Dale Johnson announced that services being performed at three facilities would be consolidated at the Beatrice State Developmental Center in Beatrice.

Following the announcement, information was brought forward that had not been considered in the original study: DPI has announced they will suspend implementation of the planned consolidation to allow evaluation of this new information and has set May 1 as the new deadline for the completion of the additional decision-making process.

I have requested an update at intervals during the next study evaluation so that I may determine whether or not a sufficient study is being done at this time and so that I may respond to concerns with my constituents immediately. I have also requested that details criteria be sent to all facilities and a detailed implementation plan be drafted. It is vital that while we attempt to determine ways to improve government efficiency, we strive to maintain quality of services for these facilities and their workers.

WSC choir to present last concert

The WSC Concert Choir, Cornell Runestad, conductor, will present a free "Bon Voyage" concert on Tuesday evening, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. in Ley Theatre on campus.

The program will last but 45 minutes and will include selections that will be sung at the choir's appearance in Carnegie Hall, New York, on Saturday, May 13.

Sixty-eight choir members will participate in the New York trip which will also include a performance of the Verdi REQUIEM with choruses from Long Island and California accompanied by the Orchestra from the Czech Republic.

About 70 parents, friends and Wayne townspeople will accompany the choir.

The Carnegie Hall performance will mark the final appearance with the choir for Cornell Runestad who retires after 25 years at WSC choir director.

A tree was planted on the school grounds at the Wayne and Carroll sites. These trees were donated by Country Nursery and Carhart Lumber, respectively.

A similar program was conducted for St. Mary's Elementary School on Monday, May 1 by Rod Patent with a tree planted northeast of the St. Mary's Church. This tree was provided by the Pamida Store.

Tree planting is an important activity to the City of Wayne. Trees offer many benefits as well as beautification of the City. The City of Wayne, Nebraska Forest Service and the Extension Service all encourage the residents of the Wayne area to plant and carefully maintain trees.

Correction

An article submitted from the State College Board of Trustees Office in last week's Wayne Herald erroneously referred to Wayne State College's Dr. Glenn Kietzmann as an assistant professor at the college. He is actually an associate professor.

WAYNE STATE'S Betsy Wegner lays down a bunt during action against Dana College in what turned out to be the season's final contests last Thursday.

Wayne golf team notches best score of season at own meet

The Wayne golf team placed runner-up at the annual Harold Maciejewski Invitational at the Wayne Country Club, Wednesday despite notching their finest team score of the year with a 315.

Schuyler posted the championship team score of 313 while South Sioux finished a distant third with a 327 in the 19-team field. The weather conditions forced a couple changes in this year's meet including a shot gun start because of the rain.

There were no playoffs on the course with all ties being broken through scorecard playoffs. Oakland-Craig tied South Sioux in the team scores but lost on the playoff while Stanton placed fifth with a 330. Pierce notched a 338 for sixth place—edging Wayne's first reserve team by playoff.

O'Neill was eighth with a 343 and Laurel, ninth with a 361 while West Point Central Catholic rounded out the top 10 with a 367. The rest of the teams in order included Wayne's B reserves (371); Tekamah-Herman (373); Hartington Cedar Catholic (374); Columbus Lakeview (376); Wakefield (383);

West Point (396); Norfolk-Catholic (403); Battle Creek (408) and Pender (421).

"It was a very strong field of golfers," Wayne coach Terry Munson said. "There were some very good scores posted despite the bad weather. I do believe that wind was a determining factor in the scoring because if there had been much wind at all the meet would most likely have been cancelled."

Pierce's Nate Fuchthoff claimed top individual honors with a two-over-par 74 while Matt Ruehling of Schuyler placed second with a 76. Matt Nice of South Sioux was third with a 77 followed by a pair of Wayne golfers, Jason Carr and Ryan Martin with 78's for fourth and fifth place, respectively.

Aaron Rager from South Sioux was sixth with a 78 and Greg Wigginton of Schuyler, seventh with a 78. Ryan Pick of Wayne was eighth with a 79 followed by Jesse Vogel of Stanton with the same score. Tom Heacock rounded out the top 10 with a 79 from South Sioux and Alex Salmon of Wayne's A reserve team was 11th with a 79.

Kyle Schellpeper of O'Neill was 12th with a 79 and Andy Draper of Schuyler, 13th with a 79. Gus Ray of Oakland-Craig finished 14th with a 79 and Shane Schuster of Laurel rounded out the list of medal winners with a 15th place score of 80.

Nate Salmon fired an 80 for Wayne's varsity and Kurtis Keller carded an 83. Wayne's A reserve team was led by Alex Salmon's 79 and a pair of 84's from Terry Hamer and Adam Diediker. Lyle Lait notched a 91 and Ryan Sturm, 94.

Wayne's B reserves were led by Nick Hagmann with an 85 while Scott Olson carded a 92 and Brandon Novak, 93. David Boehle finished with a 101 and Erik Wiseman, 102.

"Coming into the meet shooting 315 was our goal," Munson said. "We were very pleased to come away with that score with the conditions we played in, and playing from the blue tees" (farthest back).

THE LAUREL Bears were led by Shane Schuster's 80; with Nic Dahl and Dustin Thompson firing 93's and Jeff Erwin, 95. Mark Johnson's 100 was not included in the team totals.

Wakefield was led by Austin Lucht with a 91 while Shad Miner carded a 94. Jason Thiel came in with a 95 and Travis Rouse, 103 while Tyler Peters carded a 105.

Wayne will be back in action on Friday at the Northern Activities Conference Golf Meet in Hartington before taking a 10-day break before the district golf meet which will be held in Wayne on Monday, May 15.

Laurel will host the NENAC Conference Golf Meet on Saturday at Cedarview Country Club before they prepare for the district golf meet in Stanton on the 15th.

Wakefield's golf team will remain busy with action on Thursday afternoon against Wayne's B & C teams and Friday at the Stanton Invite. The Trojans will also have competitions on Monday and Wednesday of next week before they prepare for districts on the 15th in Ewing.

Wakefield golf course sold to local couple

Logan Valley Golf Course in Wakefield was sold to John and Carol O'Neill of Wakefield, recently by Dave and Kirk Gardner and Leslie Bebee.

"I've never owned a golf course before but I didn't want to see our local course bought by some out-of-town people," John O'Neill said. "I like our home town course and I wanted to keep it locally owned."

In order to put up the capital for the down payment the O'Neills offered some incentives through extended memberships to raise enough cash flow to get things in motion and the response was very good.

The approximate 160 members of the golf course will not see a lot of changes to the existing course but changes have been implemented which should see dividends for many years.

"We brought in a club-pro to run what we feel will be a very successful junior golf program," O'Neill said. "Mike Zadalis will run the junior program and will also give private lessons on a $15 per 45-minute period format. He will also conduct clinics for the juniors and just establish a program that we haven't had here."

Harold Schroeder of Pender will be the course superintendent taking the place of Jerry Royal who retired.

Membership prices under the new ownership is as follows: Family—$325; Individual—$290; College student—$225 and high school students—$150. Memberships can be paid in two installments. A range membership will run $85.

"We plan on having a number of tournaments to draw golfers in from throughout the area to see our course," O'Neill said. "Our first tournament will be held on Saturday, May 27 and is a Four-Person Scramble. The cost is $80 and all you have to do to enter is call."

John is a northeast Nebraska native from Jackson who's spent the last three years working for People's Natural Gas while Carol is the personnel manager at Waldbaum's.

JOHN AND Carol O'Neill recently purchased Logan Valley Golf Course in Wakefield from Dave and Kirk Gardner and Leslie Bebee. The O'Neills hired Mike Zadalis to be the club pro this summer. Zadalis will also conduct junior golf clinics.

Former WSC cage coach nets head position

WAYNE-Former Wayne State men's basketball coach Steve Aggers, an assistant for Kansas St. of the Big Eight last season under Tom Asbury, has accepted a head coaching position at NCAA-I Eastern Washington University in Cheney.

Aggers played basketball at Chadron State from 1968-70 and then coached the Eagles junior varsity team one season before graduation. Aggers, 44, has 15 years of head coaching experience at Mid-Plains Community College at North Platte, College of Great Falls in Montana and Wayne State.

He was the NAIA District 12 Coach of the Year in 1981-82 while at College of Great Falls. Aggers left Wayne State in 1990 for the assistant coaching position at Pepperdine University in California where.

Eastern Washington is located 20 miles from Spokane and has an enrollment of 8000. The basketball team was 6-20 last season and finished 2-12 in the Big Sky Conference. All five starters are expected to return next season.

WSC places at Lincoln track

Despite being short on numbers the Wildcat track teams made a strong showing at the Nebraska Wesleyan Open track meet last Sunday in Lincoln. "We weren't planning on going to this meet," head coach Rick Moorman said. "The meet in Hastings slated for last Wednesday was cancelled due to the weather so we added the Wesleyan meet at the last minute."

Freshman Michelle Baatz, who has recorded personal bests in every race she's run this season, lowered her 1500 meter best to 5:12.5. "Michelle has really come a long way in the last month," distance coach Brian Kavanaugh said. "Hopefully she can get 5:10 or better at the Howard Wood Invite."

Baatz also ran the 3000 for the first time this season, lowering her best for that distance to 11:47.5. Freshman Amy Gudmundson also had a good day, placing sixth in the long jump with a season best leap of 15-6.75 and placing second in the 200 meter dash in 27.43. Freshman Stephanie Lilja placed sixth in the 100 meter dash in 13.89.

On the men's side, freshman Donny Thongdy lowered his season best in the 1500 to 4:12.2, good enough for third place. "Donny looked much stronger than the last time he raced this distance," Moorman said. Thongdy also placed third in the 800.

Sophomore Mark Merritt also placed third in the 3000, an event not often run outdoors in collegiate track and field, clocking 9:15.5. "I would imagine that he would've run 16:00 in the 5000, so he ran much better this week," Kavanaugh said. Freshman Colby Laughhunn also recorded a personal best time of 4:45.7 in the 1500, and also placed fifth in the 800.

The 'Cats' close out their track season at the Howard Wood Relays in Sioux Falls this weekend.

Blue Devils win at Columbus and Oakland Golf team wins invites

The Wayne golf team's successful season continued with championships at the Columbus Lakeview and the Oakland-Craig Invationals last week while the reserves won a quadrangular in Pender.

In Columbus the Blue Devils fired a 324 team score to post a 13-stroke victory over runner-up Columbus Scotus. Schuyler placed third with a 338, while Norfolk's reserves placed fourth with a 355. Seward rounded out the top five teams with a 363 followed by Central City with a 371 and Lakeview with a 384.

Norfolk Catholic, Lakeview's reserves, Scotus' reserves, Elgin Pope John and Madison rounded out the field of teams in order. All five of Wayne's golfers placed in the top 10 with Nate Salmon leading the way with a championship score of 76 which included three birdies.

Jason Carr's 82 netted him a fifth place finish while Ryan Martin's 82 placed him fifth. Terry Hamer carded an 84 for eighth place and Ryan Pick's 84 landed him 10th.

"We played the front nine twice at the Elks Country Club due to maintenance work," Wayne coach Terry Munson said. "The greens had also been plugged and sanded so putting was affected some."

Munson said he was pleased with the balance of his squad and the competitive effort. "All five of our golfers placed in the top 10 of 60 total golfers," Munson said.

While the varsity was competing in Columbus the reserves were playing in a quadrangular in Pender with Wakefield, Pender and Bancroft-Rosalie. Wayne won the event with a 177 while Bancroft-Rosalie was second with a 188. Pender finished third with a 192 followed by Wakefield with a 201.

David Boehle was the top golfer with a 45 with Paul Zulkosky and Jason Heithold each firing 49's. Todd Koeber finished with a 54. "This was also a good meet for our younger golfers," Munson said. "Kurtis continues to improve and season personal bests were notched by David Boehle and Jason Heithold."

THE VARSITY golf team claimed championship honors at the 20-team Oakland-Craig Invitational on Saturday with a 319—edging Schuyler by one stroke. Oakland-Craig and Stanton tied with 327's while Blair carded a 341.

Laurel placed sixth with a 343 followed in order by Valley, Albion, Logan View, Lyons-Decatur, Pender, Tekamah-Herman, West Point, Beemer-Wisner-Pilger, Oakland reserves, West Point Central Catholic, Fremont Bergan, Bancroft-Rosalie, Blair reserves and Scribner-Snyder.

"Our balance continues to be our strenght," Munson said. "It was great to see Jason Carr play as well as he did despite the conditions of rain and cool temperatures."

Carr recorded four birdies en route to a 75 which placed him runner-up. Nate Salmon's 78 was good for sixth place and Ryan Pick's 82 netted him 13th. Ryan Martin carded an 84 and Terry Hamer's 87 was not included on the team total.

Teaching, a gift for a lifetime is the theme National Teacher Day, May 9

Wayne and thousands of cities and towns across the United States will observe National Teacher Day on Tuesday, May 9, spotlighting the crucial role teachers play in the lives of individuals and in the community.

The day's theme, "Teaching: A Gift for a Lifetime," emphasizes the lasting impact teachers have in giving direction to young people's lives and in shaping good citizens. Throughout human history, teaching has been considered a special calling — a special mission. "From Socrates and Plato in ancient times, to the one-room school teachers of America's pioneer days, teachers have been the glue binding communities together. And that's still true today," said Rosemary Manges, president of the Wayne Education Association. Right in our own community of Wayne, dedicated teachers go to work every morning to pass along the knowledge that the next generation will need to achieve the American dream, she said. Mrs. Manges notes that despite all the new approaches and technologies sweeping through classrooms these days, the heart of education still comes down to one thing: the daily engagement between teacher and student, and the commitment that teachers bring to this task. On National Teacher Day, communities set aside time to salute the dedication that teachers bring to their job throughout the year.

"There is no other profession that touches so many people in such a vital way and with such lasting impact," said Mrs. Manges. "National Teacher Day is a tremendous opportunity for individual citizens to pick up the phone and say thank you to a teacher who made a difference in their lives. We should also remember the paraprofessionals, secretaries, janitors, cooks and administrators because all are members of the educational team."

Competition held in Des Moines, Iowa Advertising Club competes

Wayne State College's Advertising Club attended the American Advertising Federation's Ninth District Student Competition in Des Moines, Iowa on April 27 and 28. The ninth district includes the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri.

There were 10 college teams making campaign presentations to the judges, of those 10, WSC is the only one from Nebraska. The competition was the semi-final step for the AAF's College World Series of Advertising. After the student presentations were made, the winner of the ninth district was to be announced at an award dinner. This is the first year of operation for the WSC Advertising Club having received its chapter last fall from the AAF. The primary purpose of the club is to compete in the College World Series of Advertising. Each year AAF has a national sponsor who establishes guidelines and criteria for the development of an advertising campaign. This year's sponsor is Dodge Neon and the campaign's targeted audience was Generation X (college aged students). Club members consist of full-time advertising and marketing students at WSC. The presentation team from WSC included Robyn Weisse, Dan Fleeman, Renee Klein, Tricia Roseneer and Stephanie Geifenkirchen. Alternative presenters also making the trip to Des Moines were Joseph Stinstock, Denise Tworek and Jennifer Briesse.

"Their plan is probably the best first time effort I have seen from any group I have taken to an AAF competition," said Anthony Koehnhaas, advertising club advisor.

Cable rates to raise

Effective June 1, rates for cable service provided by Jones Intercable will increase.

Rates for limited basic service will increase from $10.07 to $10.38. Expanded basic service prices will increase from $10.97 to $11.19.

"I realize no one likes to see their prices change, but I would point out that this is the first increase in two years. In those same two years, Wayne customers have increased the number of channels and decreased overall costs of cable service," said Russell Gifford, general manager of Jones Intercable. Rules for cable TV rates are developed by the Federal Communications Commission and are under on-going review and revision by the Commission. The FCC recently authorized certain cable systems to increase rates to reflect a 5.21 percent inflation rate.

"Anyone wishing to submit complaints concerning the expanded basic service rate have 45 days after receiving the new bill to do so. Complaints should be directed to the Federal Communications Commission, Cable Service Bureau, Consumer Protection Division, 1919 M Street, NW, Washington, DC, 20554," said Gifford.

About the only person who wasn't smiling during the Wayne Eagle's Club recognition dinner for Wayne Police and Fire Departments Saturday night was the character at right, "Weeping Willy" also known as local comedian Doug Cole. Willy entertained the attendees after Sgt. Robert McLean of the Wayne Police Department and Fire Chief Dutch Sitzman made presentations. Over eighty attended the dinner at the Eagle's Club.

Eagles Club honors fire, police departments

The Wayne Eagles Aerie and Auxiliary hosted an appreciation supper for Wayne firemen and policemen on Saturday, April 29 with 83 guests present.

The honored guests were the Wayne fire and police departments.

The emcee Jan Gamble reported on the Eagles Memorial Foundation. This national charity was first formed to assist the Eagle families with children who lost a parent in the Armed Forces. It since has added parents of prison guards, firefigh-ers, law enforcement and ambulance drivers. If killed when on duty, the children would receive free medical, free dental, free glasses and a free college education. These free services are guaranteed if the parent was an Eagle benefit member. The Eagles provide these suppers to show their support and their thanks to the local departments.

Each police department employee introduced their guest and gave a short talk on their families and their law enforcement careers. Sgt. Bob McLean read a humorous poem on "What Do The Police Do?" He also reported on various community activities the department sponsors.

Each firefighter also gave a talk on their years involved with the department. Chief Dutch Sitzman spoke for the department. He told how a new applicant had to be approved by a board and the City Council before becoming a member. They are required to attend monthly meetings and other duties to retain their membership.

Gift certificates from Godfather's and Pizza Hut were then given in a drawing received by fire fighters Bob Stanley, Kevin Koenig, Harold Fleer and Terry Luhr. Jeff Ottens from the police department also won.

The program ended with a routine given by comedian "Weeping Willie", also known as Doug Cole of Wayne.

The Eagle members were thanked for their contributions for the event and rest of the evening was spent visiting.

THE IMPORTANCE OF DRINKING FLUIDS

Fluids play an important part in keeping a body healthy. It is advised that people drink eight 8-ounce glasses (the size of an average kitchen glass) each day. Fluids are important in helping the body eliminate harmful substances. Fluids are especially important in the treatment of mild to moderate diarrhea, since diarrhea causes a great deal of fluids to be lost from the body. If these fluids are not replaced, the patient can become dehydrated. The symptoms of dehydration include sunken eyes, dry mouth, and low urine output. Oral rehydration products are available for the treatment of mild diarrhea and are available without a prescription. Any problems should be brought to the attention of a doctor or pharmacist.

RECYCLING TRAILER

The Antelope County Recyclers will now accept chip board at the Wakefield Recycling Trailer. The recyclers cautioned that there are two types of chip board and that they must be kept separate.

The first type is that used in food containers like cereal, crackers or tissue boxes. The second type is that used in pop and beer boxes. No waxed cardboard can be accepted, such as milk and ice cream boxes.

The Wakefield Recycling Trailer is open Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. to noon.

The local group also asks that those who take items to the trailer to be sure to sort the different types of paper accepted. Don't mix newspaper with regular paper. Taking newspapers in grocery sacks works well.

It would also be helpful to trailer volunteers if the three types of plastic accepted would be sorted when taken to the trailer. Milk jugs and other similar containers should be separated from number 1 plastic (pop bottles, etc.) and number 2 plastic (detergent, shampoo bottles, etc.).

To be recycled, each type of container, paper/paperboard or plastic must be kept separate and be clean. The Antelope County Recyclers said, "We cannot overstate the importance of separating the different types of products." The Antelope County group currently has a contract with the City of Wakefield to process recyclables collected.

Wayne Museum: 'It's more than a place for dusty junk'

By Stacey Schaller
For the Herald

The Wayne County Historical Society Museum is not an old, dusty place where old, dusty junk is set on shelves and guarded by people who would be better as one of the artifacts than as a museum guard.

Though to some, county museums may seem that way, but a walk through time in the Wayne Museum is really an interesting trip.

The museum located at Seventh and Lincoln, was established in 1976 by the Wayne County Historical Society.

How many Wayne residents remember a time when traipsing down town may involve a wade through ankle deep mud? Would anyone remember Wayne's first water tower—perched right in the middle of mainstreet? What about the fire that burned down half a city block in Wayne?

THESE STORIES, and more, are told in the museum's photo archives. The museum building itself is an early member of the Wayne family of architecture. Built in 1900, it boasted of oak panel ceilings, parquet floors, and four coal-burning fireplaces. It was all built for $12,000.

Henry Ley bought the house in 1912 for $6,000. In 1976, Mr. Ley's heirs donated the house to the Historical Society and it was made into a museum.

Since then, it has been filled with the memories of Wayne.

"EVERYTHING IS stuff that's been donated to the historical society by either present or former citizens of the county," commented Lorreta Tompkins, one of the museum guides.

The Museum is set up to "look like a home at the turn of the century," beds made, dishes in the china cabinet, even mom-and-pop's hats on their pillows. It takes the dusty, institutional feel out of a museum tour.

Numerous items have been donated over the years: the first desk of the first court house, a treadle sewing machine, little boys' dresses (yes, for boys), and even the old camera that shot many of the archives photos.

THE TOUR MOVES from the foyer to the attic, with little tidbits of stories telling how people live in the "old days," what they did for fun, and how they ever managed to survive without TV.

The Museum opens in May, and most tours take just over an hour. The Historical Society requests a dollar donation to help with the maintenance of the Museum.

When the town nearly burned down

The young Wayne community was devastated in 1891 when a whole half block of Main Street burned to the ground. This photo of the day after the disaster of more than 100 years ago, is in the extensive collection of historic views of Wayne County which are preserved at the Wayne County Historical Society Museum in Wayne.

Step back in time

Beautiful word work, restored furniture and period costumes are featured in the Wayne County Historical Society Museum housed in the restored Ley Mansion at Seventh and Lincoln in Wayne. The Museum opens annually for summer schedule of tours in May.

'Please mom, don't sing so loud'

It's another rainy day, and the natives (farmers) are getting restless. It's time to plant corn!

Folks in our new community have been wonderful, but we still miss "those dear hearts and gentle people" in our hometown. So, when we have a chance to visit Hoskins or Winside, we take advantage of it.

I do like to sing, most of you know that, and my voice is fairly strong. So strong, in fact, that my kids don't like to sit by me in church. I have a tendency to harmonize, and they are especially uncomfortable about that.

Consequently, as I drove to Winside to church on Sunday, Ann was saying, "Now, Mom, don't sit too close to the front, and don't sing too loud!"

We found a pew three rows from the back, and I did pretty well at holding it down until after the sermon, when communion began.

The organist played the first verse through, and I followed the notes. They were obviously not the ones for that song! She must have gotten the wrong one. Since I've had that happen a time or two when I played, I know what an embarrassment that can be.

It was a familiar melody, so I turned pages until I found the right hymn. I started singing with confidence. Soon, the two ladies in front of me noticed I was singing different words, so they looked back for what I thought was the right number.

We all sang together for five verses, and that was all there was. But the organist played two more verses, and the rest of the congregation sang right along. Turned out she was using the more familiar melody for the other hymn.

Of course, by this time, Ann was acting as if she didn't know me, and the rest of us were giggling. In fact, I had to control myself as it was soon our turn to go forward for communion. So it was a good thing she made us sit in the back. Actually, only about half a dozen people knew what I had done; until I confessed to the pastor after the service.

The Farmer's Wife

By Pat Meierhenry

I seem to have a talent for faux pas. In fact, I'm glad I learned about that expression a long time ago.

We had five overnight guests in March, and it promised to be a busy weekend. I planned to serve quiche for breakfast, so purchased prepared pie crusts for the first time ever.

When I cut the slices, I discovered a white paper in the bottom of one! That's as bad as finding the bag of giblets after roasting the turkey.

Oh, well, if we can't laugh at ourselves:

I heard a cute story during the sermon on Sunday. It seems George Bush was making a public appearance at a nursing home when he observed a lady in a wheelchair who seemed to be ignoring him.

He went over to her, took her hand, and said, "Ma'am, do you know who I am?" She responded helpfully, "No, but if you go and ask that lady at the desk, she can tell you."

Pray for sunshine!

The "Word" for the Week

Trouble, hope and praise

Trouble often brings depression. We pity ourselves. We ask, "Why me, Lord?" Kids are especially prone to pity parties. So are adults. Psalm 43:5 gives us a solution. "Why are you in despair, O my soul? And why are you disturbed within me? Hope in God, for I shall again praise Him, the help of my countenance, and my God."

First, being disturbed, getting down and being troubled are real experiences. We should never put down people who go through such times of depression. Second, we should recognize God is the answer to our troubles and depression. We should not look at ourselves and engage in self pity. Instead, we should hope in God. Third, the hope mentioned in the Psalm is not some vague euphoric feeling about the future. We have this nebulous hope when we hope tomorrow will go well. Rather, the hope mentioned here is a gift of the Holy Spirit. It is a solid foundation upon which to build our present lives. Fourth, since hope is a gift from God, it must be used. It must be exercised. We exercise hope when we turn to God and offer Him praise and thanksgiving. Finally and fifth, guess what? Praise and thanksgiving put a glow on our faces. Inner hope is turned to outward joy. We move from the pits to the pinnacle.

Why children misbehave

Children are humans with emotions like adults. Their reactions to situations may not be appropriate because of immaturity or just lack of experience or knowledge. The way adults respond to children can help the child to learn how to react appropriately in situations. Parents can gain insight into their child's behavior by looking at the cause or impetus.

Children misbehave when they don't feel well. Children need plenty of sleep, nutritious food, exercise and fresh air. When they don't get these things, they are often hard to get along with. A tired child can be a cranky child. A hungry child is irritable. A sleepy child becomes fussy. A sick child can be cross.

Children misbehave when they feel rejected. Children who feel unloved and unwanted can become resentful, moody and ill-behaved. When parents or other adults ignore children's thoughts and feelings, youngsters tend to think of themselves as unworthy.

Children misbehave when they lack knowledge and experience. Children are not little adults. They are not born with information and wisdom. Mistakes and some misbehaviors are part of the learning process. Many acts that parents call "bad" are simply mistakes. These mistakes only need to be talked over and explained.

Children misbehave when they are upset or feel insecure. Children need constant attention and the security it provides. Change causes upsets. When mother is sick, when a new baby arrives or when the family moves to a new neighborhood, misbehavior is much more likely. Spend time with children to build feelings of security.

Children misbehave when they

Karen Wermers
Dixon County

are discouraged. Children who experience failure are more likely to be at risk for misbehavior. Failure experiences can be part of the home or school environment. Teasing and ridicule are discouraging. Children need to receive recognition for the positive things they do.

Children misbehave when they feel unloved. Children want to please those who love them. Without a loving relationship, children have no reason to behave in acceptable ways — except to avoid punishment. It is not enough that parents love their children. That love needs to be shown and demonstrated.

Children misbehave when they lack confidence. Feelings of inadequacy may cause children to brag, boast or fight. Or, they may be unwilling to try new things and withdraw. "Put downs" make children feel worthless; encouraging words help children feel confident.

Children who are deeply hurt may seek revenge. When a child is emotionally hurt, it is not uncommon to want to hurt back. Pushing and shoving fights and name calling may be a result. A child must learn that it is better to discuss a problem rather than to seek revenge.

Ways to Prevent Misbehavior

Effective parents know and use strategies and techniques to prevent a child's misbehavior. Misbehavior may be prevented in the following ways:

- Change the setting. Put dangerous items, breakables and valuables out of the reach of infants and toddlers. For preschoolers, have places to play that are safe and worry-free.
- Provide interesting playthings. Playthings prevent boredom and misbehavior. They need not be expensive or store-bought.
- Make clear rules. The fewer rules you make the better. They should be reasonable. Consistent enforcement provides security and tells the child rules are important.
- Be flexible. There may be special times when rules can be relaxed, but not forgotten. Rules will need to change as the child grows in ability and responsibility.
- Set a good example. Children imitate those around them. They learn what they live.
- Give choices. When you can, give children a choice of several things to do, this helps them feel in more control of their situation and teaches resourcefulness.
- Get the child's attention. Say the child's name, touch them and look them in the eye before you talk to children or give them instructions.
- Give warning time. Tell children five to 10 minutes ahead of time that you want to change their activity. Let them get ready to go on to something new.
- Spend time with your children. Children need undivided, personal attention regularly with their parents.

State AAUW meeting held here

The American Association of University Women of Nebraska met in Wayne on Friday evening and all day Saturday, April 28 and 29, at the Wayne State College campus. Amy Swauger, Deputy Director of Program and Policy for AAUW, gave the keynote address "Girls To day - Terrific Tomorrows." She discussed the AAUW Initiative for Educational Equity and Peggy Orenstein's book "Schoolgirls." Swauger's AAUW responsibilities include administrative management of the AAUW Program and Policy Department and oversight of management of the AAUW Legal Advocacy Fund. She works to ensure integration of program and policy efforts with the AAUW Educational Foundation's project on gender equity in elementary and secondary schools.

Yvonne Concell, AAUW Regional Director from Moorhead, Minn. was another special guest attending the convention. She joined in the celebration of the 75th anniversary of Women's Suffrage at the luncheon Saturday.

An attraction at the convention was the exhibition, Girls & Girlhood: A Perilous Path, hosted by Wayne State College. The world-class exhibit has been on display previously at the World Trade Center and the United Nations Building in New York City. The exhibition combines the arts of storytelling, book and graphic illustration, painting, stage scenery, advertising, cartooning and film-making to guide the viewer through the maze of the various stages of a girl's development from pre-birth and birth, infancy and early childhood, and adolescence through teenage years.

Well-known contemporary children's authors, illustrators and publishers have collaborated with UNICEF, the United Nation's Children's Fund, to make this unique exhibit possible.

AAUW is a nationwide grassroots organization of 135,000 individuals dedicated to promoting equity and education for women and girls. Membership is open to anyone who holds a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university. For information call Julia Slaymaker, 375-4547.

The fitted bodice, covered with beaded lace, was styled with a Queen Anne neckline and Basque waistline. The long sleeves were full at the shoulder and tapered to a bridal point at the wrist. A heart shaped open back was trimmed in pearls and a lace trimmed peplum was sewn in at the waist in the back.

Her veil was a wreath of satin flowers with a pouf and four layers of veiling. She carried a bouquet of white roses, silk lily of the valley, mini carnations, baby's breath and white ribbon.

The Golden Years

By: Connie Dishrow

Even if you have prepared a will, your executor and heirs need more than that to proceed. They should know whom to contact at banks and other places holding your assets: savings and checking accounts, IRAs, Keogh plans, 401 (k) plans, insurance policies. Do you have a safe deposit box? Where is it? What are the contents? Is a balance owed on your mortgage, car, loan or other debts? Where are the titles to your property and car? Along with a will, you should spell out needed information.

Five days a week, six women friends in New York's Sunnyside section get together for mutual support and fierce competition at cards. Aged 67 to 86, five are widows, one never married. They have played cards for more than 20 years. "We've got a routine, just like when we worked," said one. Despite ills like breast cancer, a heart attack and hip surgeries, "we're not hurting," said one who had taken a hand with a royal flush. "And right now I'm hurting the least of all of us."

How to show a child your love

Question: What do you think of the phrase "Children should be seen and not heard"?

Dr. Dobson: That statement reveals a profound ignorance of children and their needs. I can't imagine how any loving adult could raise a vulnerable little boy or girl by that philosophy. Children are like clocks, and they must be allowed to run.

Question: Would you go so far as to apologize to a child if you felt you had been in the wrong?

Dr. Dobson: I certainly would—and indeed, I have. One time, I was burdened with pressing responsibilities that made me fatigued and irritable, and I was especially grouchy and short-tempered with my 10-year-old daughter. I knew I was not being fair, but I was simply too tired to correct my manner.

Throughout the course of this evening, I blamed Danae for things that were not her fault, and I upset her needlessly several times. After going to bed, I felt bad about the way I had behaved. I decided to apologize the next morning.

After a good night's sleep and a tasty breakfast, I felt much more optimistic about life. I approached my daughter before she left for school and said, "Danae, I'm sure you know that daddies are not perfect human beings. We get tired and irritable just like other people, and there are times when we are not proud of the way we behave. I know I wasn't fair with you last night. I was terribly grouchy, and I want you to forgive me."

Danae put her arms around me and shocked me down to my toes. She said, "I knew you were going to have to apologize, Daddy, and it's okay. I forgive you."

Can there be any doubt that children are often more aware of the struggles between generations than are their busy, harassed parents?

Question: Is it possible to love a child too much?

Dr. Dobson: Not if the love is totally mature and unconditional. However, not everything that is called "love" is healthy for a child. Some Americans are excessively child-oriented at this stage in history; many parents have invested all of their hopes, dreams, desires and ambitions in their youngsters. The natural culmination of this philosophy is overpro-tection of the next generation.

Answers Your Questions

I dealt with one anxious parent who stated that her children were the only source of her satisfaction. During the long summers, she spent most of her time sitting at the front room window, watching her three girls while they played. She feared that they might get hurt or need her assistance, or they might ride their bikes in the street.

Her other home responsibilities were ignored, despite her husband's complaints. She did not have time to clean her house or cook meals; guard duty at the front window was her only function. She suffered enormous tensions over the known and unknown threats that might hurt her beloved offspring.

Childhood illness and sudden danger are always difficult for a loving parent to tolerate, but the slightest threat produces unbearable anxiety for the overprotective mom and dad. Not only do they suffer; their child is often a victim, too.

Question: What is the best source of compensation for boys in this culture, especially for the kid who is hurting inside?

Dr. Dobson: Because of the status athletes have in today's high schools, I believe this avenue of compensation should be explored by the parents of "high risk" boys.

If a child is reasonably coordinated, he can be taught to play basketball, football, tennis, track or golf. I have seen some of the most homely adolescents who were highly respected for helping Thomas Jefferson High School win the state tennis championship.

The key to athletic excellence is to give Junior an early start. We do not hesitate to provide piano lessons for our 8-year-olds; why should we not give basketball training at the same age?

Good year for weeds?

For the third year in a row, farmers may have to deal with unusually intense weed pressure during the growing season, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln agronomist warned.

Severe weed infestations in 1993 and 1994 have left a large weed seed bank behind, setting the stage for another problematic summer, said Alex Martin, an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources weeds specialist.

The weather will determine how intense the weed pressure is this year, but farmers should not expect to get by with minimal control efforts, Martin noted.

"We're not telling farmers to go out and put top rates of herbicide on their fields, but in the past they may have been able to skip a cultivation or skip a post-emergent treatment altogether," the agronomist said. "They may not be able to get away with that this year."

Many farmers may have worked out a preliminary weed-control strategy, but they should keep a close eye on fields for the first few weeks after planting to see if it's working, Martin said.

"In the first 3 or 4 weeks, you can basically tell how severe a weed problem you're going to have," he said.

Odd pasture guests

A group of cattle egrets has spent time in area pastures recently on their migratory trek. This fellow was photographed Friday in a pasture northeast of Wayne.

Computer takes guess out of kitchen work

I've been CD roaming recently. My family finally replaced our "old" home computer. The poor thing must be all of five years old now: ancient by today's standards, but young compared to its predecessor, still enshrined under the basement stairs.

But enough sentimentality. The new one's got CD-ROM! To the computer illiterate, and count me among them, that basically means that the new computer plays music and shows video clips that are of near-TV quality. Mostly, I know this from watching our sons work on the computer. Probably "play on the computer" describes it better. Both of them sure do play a mean pinball, courtesy of CD-ROM.

But once in a while, when the boys are in bed, I get a chance to play with the computer. My first toy is a CD-ROM cookbook, "Better Homes and Gardens Healthy Cooking." By the standards of print cookbooks, it's a little skinny: only some 400 recipes. But hey, what fun you can have with that 400! It takes you where no cookbook has gone before.

You can page through this cookbook as you would a printed one, or you can jump in anywhere. There's an alphabetical index, but what fun is that? Why not search by key words, or rather, key ingredients? Enter "beef" for example, and you're informed of some 60 beef recipes. Add "asparagus" to your search and the number drops to a couple. Want to see one? Click your mouse and there you are: a color photo and lots of options.

Want to see the recipe? Click and there you have it. Unless you choose otherwise, you will hear music. You can choose from about 30 kinds. Or, let the computer decide and it will play you something appropriate to the ethnic origin of the recipe you've selected: country western, Eastern European, Middle Eastern, etc. Want to print out the recipe? No sooner said than done. Want to plan a whole meal? Select several recipes, print 'em out if you want, then hit "Shopping List": you get a complete alphabetized list of how much of every ingredient you need for the whole meal, or the week's trip to the grocery store.

You say you want to cook a meal, but you haven't got much time, since you've spent a chunk of it on the computer? No problem: just search for all the recipes that can be made in the time you have available. Watching your fat grams?

Midland View

By Cheryl Stubbendieck

Nebraska Farm Bureau

Limit your search to low-fat recipes. Or search only for low cholesterol foods, or do both at once. If you want, you can minutely examine each recipe for its fiber, fats, salts and calories.

Is that recipe too small for the crowd you're going to serve? Again, no problem. Don't do higher math. Let the program figure out what two-and-a-half times one-and-a-quarter cups adds up to.

Does your recipe call for a cooking utensil you're not familiar with? Your ignorance is about to end. Cruise back to the introductory menu to view a photo and brief description of what you can do with that rotary beater. And you say you've forgotten how to grease and flour a baking pan? Not a problem — just click on one of the 80 videos that shows cooking techniques. Watch them over and over until you've got it.

You say you like to mark your favorite recipes in your hard copy cookbooks so you can find them quickly. With this program, you don't mark the recipes; you save them in the directory called "bookmark."

If you do more looking than cooking when it comes to cookbooks, don't despair. The program will let you view full screen slides of the recipes in gorgeous color, one after another. Page forward or backward, but don't put this on the coffee table.

If there's one drawback to this cookbook, it's that you can't add your own recipes; other CD-ROM cookbooks do have this feature. And the $40 price tag is steep compared to the kind you put on the counter and spill things on. But it's fun, it's fun. I complain to my sons that hours go by when they're playing on the computer and they have no clue that so much time has passed. But now they tell me I do the exact same thing.

Special pestwear handling touted

Clothing worn while using pesticides needs special handling to avoid contaminating the launderer, other clothing, and the washer and dryer.

Laundering methods for pesticide-contaminated clothing vary depending upon the type of and amount of chemical that gets on the clothing, said Rose Marie Tondl, University of Nebraska-Lincoln clothing and textiles specialist.

Pesticide-contaminated clothing shouldn't be washed with other clothes to avoid contaminating them also, Tondl said. The washing machine should be properly cleaned, using one complete cycle with detergent and the hottest water available, to avoid any possibility of contaminating subsequent washings.

Some general rules of thumb when handling pesticide-contaminated clothing include:

- Wear rubber or latex gloves
- Air clothes out before laundering to help chemical breakdown.
- Keep clothing in a well-marked garbage bag until it's laundered.
- Wash only the same pesticide-contaminated clothing together.
- Treat clothing with a prewash or soak before washing
- Wash water should be at 140 F or higher; rinse water temperature is less critical and can be cooler.
- Use a heavy duty detergent for oil-based emulsifiable concentrate formulations for oily soils. Powdered phosphate detergents work best on wettable powder formulations, as do heavy-duty detergents.

- Use more detergent for heavily soiled clothing or in hard water, but no more than twice the recommended amount. Excess suds can cushion washing, actually decreasing soil and pesticide removal. Use a normal, 12-minute cycle.

- Bleach doesn't help rid clothes of pesticides. However, adding one-half cup of salt to clothes contaminated with paraquat helps remove that pesticide.

- Line-drying the clothes in sunlight helps break down pesticides. In some cases pesticides need high temperatures of up to 400 F to decompose to trace amounts. Home dryers aren't recommended, as their temperatures commonly reach only 200 to 250 F.

- For most effective cleaning, rewash contaminated clothing two or three times. Clothing doesn't need to be dried between each washing.

- Wash only a few contaminated garments at a time.

- Launder clothing daily when applying pesticide daily — don't re-wear clothes.

- Discard clothing that has been saturated, contaminated with highly toxic pesticides, or is made of leather. Follow pesticide labels for proper disposal. The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said.

For more details about laundering pesticide-contaminated clothing, ask for NebGuide G89-943-A at a local Cooperative Extension office.

Disease-free status nears

Nebraska State Veterinarian, Dr. Barry Williams, reports the Nebraska Brucellosis Program, in the process of being evaluated for brucellosis Class Free status. Brucellosis is a cattle disease which causes contagious abortions in cattle and undulant fever in humans. Nebraska cattlemen have been working to eradicate this disease for 40 years.

A station review by USDA/APHIS/VS (U.S. Department of Agriculture, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Veterinary Services) officials will be held in Lincoln during the week of May 1. Past history indicates an announcement of Class Free status could be forthcoming 60 to 90 days after the review.

"As we wait to hear if Nebraska is declared brucellosis free, the Department's Bureau of Animal Industry is reviewing brucellosis laws and regulations which may need to be changed to accommodate the new status," Williams said. "We're also looking into livestock dealers and auction market laws which have significant references to brucellosis testing requirements."

Williams said the most significant change for producers will be the discontinuation of change of ownership testing of breeding cattle. The slaughter surveillance (backtagging program) would continue for cows and bulls moving directly to slaughter. The process to change regulations will begin as soon as Nebraska is given Class Free status. A hearing on proposed regulation changes could be held as soon as this fall.

Williams said the cattle industry should be proud that Nebraska has reached this stage of the brucellosis program. He also commended auction market owners and market veterinarians as well as other accredited veterinarians for the role they are playing in the successful completion of this program.

'The Living Waters' theme of soil and water stewardship observance

NORFOLK—fresh, clean water is the lifeblood of the universe, and individuals have a stewardship responsibility to assure a continuing adequate supply. To emphasize this point, the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District is encouraging interested individuals and organizations to join with the National Association of Conservation Districts in celebrating the annual Soil and Water Stewardship observance during the week of April 30th through May 7th. This year's theme is "The Living Waters."

The Lower Elkhorn NRD, which works throughout the year to encourage soil and water conservation practices, provides literature and information assistance to local churches, civic organizations, and schools interested in furthering good water conservation practices.

Lower Elkhorn NRD Information and Education Coordinator, Julie Schmit, stated that the requests for literature this year were overwhelming. Schmit commented, "The materials for this year's Soil and Water Stewardship Week were very popular with the schools and churches in the area. We had a tremendous amount of requests and even ran out of several items because of the high demand."

The modern conservation practices of farmers and ranchers go a long way toward protecting the quality of public waters that run from their land, but responsibility for water quality also rests with suburban and urban dwellers. On a per-acre basis, it has been estimated that 10 times more fertilizer and pesticide are applied to suburban lawns and gardens than is applied to farm fields. Keeping the living waters clean and healthy today is a challenge for everyone who manages land everywhere.

A national effort is under way to help people understand that they are part of a watershed, which can be an area of small streams or a larger river basin. That fact is, whatever any of us do within our watershed affects the quality of water for others who may live downstream. Water quality citizenship is a civic lesson all of us should master.

To obtain informational materials on this and other conservation observances and practices, contact the Lower Elkhorn NRD during business hours at 700 West Benjamin Avenue in Norfolk, (402) 371-7313.
