Budget stew simmering for school board

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Wayne School Board members are already in a budget cutting stew over anticipated state aid cuts and spending limits for the next school year and much of the discussion at Tuesday's meeting centered around funding woes.

Still months away from final approval of next year's budget, the board has already ordered a plan to cut at least 30 percent out of school building budgets for next year, has sent letters to eight teachers telling them their positions will not be re-filled unless funding becomes available and is even considering the elimination of busing services in a cost saving move.

AMID THE GLOOMY financial prospects for the regular operation of the schools, comes the desire of the board to win voter approval for a bond issue, possibly this fall, to build new or remodel the old Middle School building. Board members expressed concern that the state aid funding reductions and levy limits might also have a negative impact on the voter perception of the need to address the building shortcomings of the district.

Board member Sid Hillier complained that the district is forced through the Court of Industrial Relations rulings to give teachers raises each year. "How can you give six to eight percent raises each year and live with a one percent spending lid?" he asked.

BOARD PRESIDENT Phyllis Spethman said about the only alternative, and one that she believes voters in the district would not accept, would be to raise the number of students per class and eliminate more teachers.

Board members agreed with the need to get serious about promoting a private foundation for additional funding for the schools through bequests and donations. They also said they need to become more proactive with the legislature in seeking state relief.

State aid projections for next year are 115,000 less than the previous year due in large part to a reduction in enrollment. That reduction comes on the heels of a $106,000 reduction last year. The board agreed Tuesday to a self-imposed cap on spending at $4.7 million for the school next year.

Nursing changes face schools

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The need for some kind of nursing in all schools regardless of size or age of the youth attending the school has prompted Educational Service Unit 1 to look into making some changes.

The 1995-96 school year according to ESU Administrator Rod Garwood will see no changes to the

'Bully' gets long sentence in shooting

PONCA (AP) — A Concord man who shot his ex-girlfriend and left her for dead in a ditch has been sentenced to 55 years in prison.

Brian Anderson, 22, had pleaded guilty to attempted kidnapping and use of a firearm to commit a felony in the October shooting of Laura Kucera.

Judge Maurice J. Redmond called Anderson a "bully" and a "coward" in sentencing him to 40 years on the attempted kidnapping charge and 15 years on the firearm charge.

The sentences must be served back-to-back. Anderson will be eligible for parole in about 27 years.

Anderson abducted Kucera Oct. 1, six days after he finished a 30-day jail term for violating an order to stay away from her. Kucera said Anderson's last words before shoot-present system and beyond that is still up in the air as to what if anything will be changed.

"The biggest problem we have is not knowing yet the best model program for school nurses and secondly, how to pay for it," Garwood said. "There's no one, quick easy answer to the solution."

The system that's in place at the present time has smaller school districts seeing a school nurse about once a week and the real small schools might not see the nurse but once every two weeks.

"The purpose of looking into school nursing is to come up with a program that allows every school in the ESU service area to have nursing of some kind at their fingertips," Garwood said. "We've had this same model we use now for quite some time."

Garwood said surveys were sent to all 25 schools in the ESU 1 service area on how best the ESU could serve them and the results will be analyzed by an outside person. An advisory council composed of school superintendents will meet to determine what if any changes should be made following the findings of the survey which is being analyzed by Dr. Filter at Wayne State College.

Currently there are 11 registered nurses that serve the 25 kindergarten through 12th grade schools along with the rural or private schools that educate K-8's and K-4's.

Of the 19 ESU's in the State of Nebraska, two others have nursing model programs like ESU 1. "There

Council evicts coeds

By Tom Mullen
Of The Herald

Neighbors of six Wayne State College coeds packed the Council Chambers Tuesday night to fight an appeal which would have allowed the women to remain in the house they rent from Rod Tompkins.

The house in question is located at 418 West 11th Street and the council voted unanimously to uphold an earlier decision by the Planning Commission which held that the occupants of the house are in violation of its R-1 zoning which allows only single family dwellings.

Tompkins petitioned the council for a use by exception permit for a two family dwelling, but faced stiff opposition from the council, who denied his request on the basis of not having enough square footage to allow a two family dwelling.

Councilperson Ralph Barclay addressed the pressure the council was feeling from the neighbors.

"I'VE HAD MORE phone calls on this than probably anything since I've been a council member.

"We owe it to the citizens to enforce the zoning laws and if we don't, we're going to create havoc throughout town.

The code refers to preserving the quality of a residential neighborhood, and these kind of things just don't mix," Barclay opined.

TOMPKINS BELIEVED that his request was being denied on the basis of his tenants not being a family.

"there are four people living upstairs and there are a lot of four

Chicken Show 'rooms to let'

"The Chicken Show presents a great opportunity to show off Wayne," contends Wayne Chamber Executive John Farnan.

"However, many of our guests spend their evening hours and entertainment dollars elsewhere. A solution to combat this problem has been developed, The Single Night Bed and Breakfast!" he said.

Under the new chamber proposal individual home owners would open their homes for one or two nights to out of towners attending the Chicken Show.

The home owner may charge whatever they feel is appropriate for a night's stay in their home.

"Lodging accommodations like these further develop the community based family entertainment concept that drives the Chicken Show," said Farnan.

The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce will coordinate this project. If you wish to host lodgers over the Chicken Show weekend, please contact the Chamber with the number of lodgers you can accept, what you as a home owner are willing to offer for extras (if any), phone number, contact person and the amount of money you will accept for one night's lodging.

When the chamber receives requests for lodging information, a listing of private homes offering rooms for rent will be sent with other information about the community.

The lodgers will contact homeowners directly to make the necessary arrangements. Those wishing to participate in this program should contact the Chamber of Commerce no later than June 1.

Guv urges grads to take chances

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

The largest group of graduates ever to received diplomas at a Wayne State College Commencement were encouraged by Gov. Ben Nelson Saturday to take chances and to try "if you can" to stay in Nebraska.

Nelson addressed the 360 graduates, who, with relatives, faculty and friends, packed Rice Auditorium to overflowing when the ceremony was forced out of the traditional Willow Bowl setting by persistent rain.

An overflow crowd watched the ceremony on a large screen television from nearby Ramsey Theatre on campus.

"THERE WILL BE times in your lives when you've got to leave the safe zones," said the Governor, who addressed the graduates in the cap and gown of his professional degree as a lawyer.

He said there were many who told him he should not follow his dream to enter politics and run for governor. "You're crazy in the head. The risks are too great. You might lose," he said was the advice he received.

"Losing is never trying," he told the grads. Never trying never gives you the opportunity to win, he said. He told the Wayne State graduates that he hopes later in life they will never look back and say, "I wish I had tried harder."

THERE WILL ALWAYS be people who

No decision on senate bid

Meeting with a group of community leaders and college supporters before the Saturday commencement service at Wayne State College, Nebraska Gov. Ben Nelson brought high praise to Northeast Nebraska for its local leadership efforts aimed at economic development.

He said there are still many areas of potential growth and promotion for the state, adding that one of the main audiences to convince about the quality of life, educational opportunities and even beautiful scenery of Nebraska was ourselves.

"There isn't a finer place anywhere in the world than Nebraska," said the governor, who told of visitors from outside the state who were convinced of that fact more so than even our own residents.

HE SAID ONE of his continuing goals as governor will be to continue to attract more people, as in workers, to the state. Low unemployment rate and lack of a labor pool is seen as one of the shortcomings of the state. But the governor said these problems were better than having high unemployment. By the same token, the state's chronic housing shortage is better than the alternative too, he said.

Senate

Just how long he intends to be governor was a question he faced during the Wayne talk. He said he has not decided what to do about a possible campaign for the U.S. Senate position being vacated by the retirement of Sen. James Exon.

"I'M NOT BEING convinced just don't know," he said of the potential senate bid. He said he weighed heavily his pledge to finish the term even though he counts that pledge no heavier than the oath of office he took to serve Nebraska as governor. He added that many supporters are encouraging him to break the pledge.

He explained that a possible senate bid in or even a presidential race in the year 2000 is also under consideration. "Timing is everything," he said. Nelson will finish his current term as governor in 1998.

THE GOVERNOR also addressed the property tax issue during his Wayne visit and he didn't have many words of encouragement for local government officials who are watching several new spending and tax limit proposals being suggested as constitutional issues.

He said there will have to be a reduction in spending "that is really revolutionary and strong," or the voters will pass one of the more damaging measures being placed on the ballot by the petition process.

the same amount as this year.

SUPERINTENDENT Dr. Dennis Jensen said he hopes the nearly $80,000 the district will save through the reduction of teaching positions will cover the mandated teacher raises for the remaining staff. The board has begun negotiations with the teachers' union for a new contract for next year.

"I'm not sure we can get any more frugal," said Hillier. He pointed out the district currently ranks 244th out of 271 districts in the state in the amount of money spent per pupil. He added that the Wayne district is also 210th in ranking of tax levy rates for schools.

Board member Will Davis said he thinks the district might be selling itself short by cutting too much. He said he was not sure he was in favor of major budget cuts before anticipated new spending limits take effect.

"I WOULD HATE to see us freeze ourselves earlier. I want to see us have the money to do what we need to do for the kids," he added. "Property tax is all we have right now."

Other board members said they feared a raise in property tax for regular operation of the schools might hurt the chances for passage of the school bond issue.

A facilities improvement strategic plan presented to the board Tuesday showed, which would need to be implemented to address immediate building needs and accessibility requirements if a new building project is not approved reflected and engineer's estimate of over $1 million just for the replacement of the current Middle School heating system.

DURING THE BUDGET cutting discussion, the board discussed the possibility of eliminating bus service to rural areas of the district and replacing it with direct payments to rural families with school children for mileage expenses to drive their kids to school.

Board member Jean Bloemenkamp said the district should consider the elimination of the busing because of "the possibility of significant savings."

Marion Arneson said he feared that would be a volatile issue.

Pointing out that a new series of reading books being considered for the kindergarten through eighth grade students would cost $55 per book or a total of $36,000, Jensen asked the board members if they thought it would be more palatable for the district to cut curriculum or ancillary services like busing.

MRS. SPETHMAN said she would want to know what the impact of a board decision to have families self-transport would be before she made a decision. The board voted 5-1 to survey the families who have children who currently ride buses to school.

The board will be meeting in special session Monday, May 15 at the high school to review the survey questions being prepared for the public opinion poll of district voters on why they rejected the last bond issue proposal last December.

can out smart you, he said, but every individual can make a choice not to let anyone outwork them.

In presenting the graduates, Wayne State College president Dr. Donald Mash praised the parents and other supporters of the graduates who made "many sacrifices" to help get them through college.

One of the highlights of the commencement ceremony was the presentation of the Nebraska State College Board of Trustees teaching excellence award to Dr. Ken Halsey, Wayne State College business professor. Only the 11th recipient of the top honor bestowed by the trustees to college professors in the state college system, Halsey's award was presented by former State Sen. Jerry Conway, who is also a former Wayne State Business professor and is currently serving on the State College Board of Trustees.

Look at alternatives

Nebraska Governor Ben Nelson has only one political liability in his potential bid for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by the retirement of Sen. James Exon.

It is the little matter of a pledge he made to voters, saying he would not leave office in his last term as governor to run for a higher post.

His political opponents will beat him to death with that pledge if he does decide to run. While in Wayne Saturday, he told a group of community leaders that he considers the oath of office he took to serve the voters of the state the same as his campaign pledge. Either or both will be tough to break.

But the governor, for-obvious reasons, is being pressured by a strong contingent of state leaders to break his pledge and enter the senate race. He would be the best person the state could send to represent our interests in Washington at this time.

His proven leadership and fiscally responsible approach to government are attributes we need in Washington. If he runs for the senate now, that might preclude the folly of another Nebraskan failing in a bid for President in 2000, something he has shown interest in.

Leaving the state-governor's post would not leave the state in the lurch. Lt. Gov. Kim Robak, while never having faced an electorate for her position (she was appointed to fill the unexpired term of former Lt. Gov. Maxine Maul, who resigned to take the economic development post in state government), has also proven her leadership abilities and would be an able fill-in until the next election.

We have stridently opposed previous elected officials' decisions to leave office early to accept other posts. A pledge is a pledge and an oath is an oath.

But looking at the current slate of alternatives to a Senator Ben Nelson, we certainly could, and we hope the state's voters also would, forgive him this one broken promise.

Fun to watch

With several Wayne State College football players from the last two years making a splash in the professional ranks it adds an enjoyable new local flavor to the upcoming professional football season.

Additionally, it will be even more fun to watch the Wildcats take the field this fall as we wonder which future professionals we will be watching this year.

Capitol News--

Senators entering 'crunch time'

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — It's crunch time in the Nebraska Legislature.

And the Unicameral's captain of crunch, Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha, has already tacked up a couple of hides of dead bills on his wall.

The talkative senator is now taking aim at keeping Gov. Nelson's crime bill from passing this year. And, even though we can't gamble on slot machines in this state, it's a decent bet that Chambers might just succeed.

Right now, there are only three weeks left in the 1995 session. There's plenty of bills left to be debated.

Those include many major, controversial proposals like Gov. Nelson's crime bill and the Governor's bill to put a lid on spending by school districts and other local governments. Plus, senators must complete a usually lengthy debate over the state budget for the next two-fiscal years.

Progress on most other bills moving through the Nebraska Legislature has been painfully slow this year. Many days, only one or two bills are discussed. Lobbyists, cynically, refer to the "bill du jour"

(bill of the day) in describing how slowly the 1995 session has gone.

So, facing an already slow track, senators, the governor and, of course, lobbyists have already begun the effort of deciding which bills MUST be passed this year and which pieces of legislation can sit for another year.

We've already had a couple of casualties, and Sen. Chambers played a part in both of them.

One was the bill allowing slot machines and video gambling. Sure, it was controversial enough on its own, but lawmakers clearly decided they didn't want another long debate clogging up the session when they killed the bill recently.

Last week, the takings bill joined the pelts on Chambers' wall. The Nebraska Farm Bureau had backed the takings bill. It aimed to head off unreasonable regulations by state agencies by requiring a review to determine if the rules constituted a "takings" of property rights or values.

Rural senators had to invoke a rarely used cloture motion to halt a filibuster by Chambers and other senators and move the takings bill from first-round debate.

But, when second-round debate began, Chambers promised an all-out assault on the bill. Several other urban senators joined him in opposing the bill.

Facing that assault, and the prospect of upsetting other senators (who have their own bills waiting) by holding 16 hours of debate on the takings bill, Sens. Jim Jonds and Curt Bromm decided to back off and fight the fight next year.

You've got to admire Chambers. If he doesn't like a bill, he fights it like a wildcat, with all fangs and claws showing. Unless senators are willing to fight to the finish, Chambers can win by sheer will.

And if you delay enough bills long enough, then maybe you won't have time to debate other bills you really, really hate — like the crime bill.

With time running out, and the crime bill still awaiting first-round debate (as of this writing), Chambers' crunch-time strategy just might work again.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Students come first

Dear Editor:

After almost two years of waiting, the 1992-93 high school yearbooks are finally out. I was disappointed to discover that two tragedies that made a lasting impact on the lives of the students were made out to be "no big deal." The deaths of Jason Williams and Jay D. O'Leary were treated with less importance than any other event that occurred that year. In actuality, in the years to come, the students of Wayne High School are going to remember the year 1992-93 as the year that they lost two fellow students.

My understanding of the purpose of a high school year is so that the student can remember their classmates. These two young men have lost their lives and the only thing that the yearbook says about the tragedies is one short sentence at the end of a paragraph about the seniors stating "The class was saddened by the death of two classmates J.D. O'Leary and Jason Williams during the year." Near their pictures are the dates that they lived and died. My college roommate's school experienced three deaths during her senior year, and each one of the students that died had a page dedicated to them. Is the Wayne School system above that? Why is it that the only right thing to do has not been done? The deaths of the two students at Wayne High school have been passed aside as if they didn't happen. The lives of the two have been ignored, and very little has been included in the annual for them to be remembered.

I would bet that if the two students were more visible to the community they would have been remembered in a more proper way. It has taken me over two years to even come to terms with the death of my brother and get my life somewhat back in order. The friends of Jason and J.D. have also been on a long, slow journey back to recovery. The yearbook has only irritated the wound for me. I am extremely disappointed in the way the yearbook has dealt with the tragedies that have occurred.

The least that could have been done is having one page dedicated to the two seniors. The other students deserve a better way to remember their fellow classmates. The two students' lives are over and nothing has been done to remember them.

There is one thing that is accurate about this annual. It seems to reflect the school attitude that year. In turn, the school attitude reflected what I experienced as the views of the school officials during my junior and senior years. That attitude was that these deaths merely disrupted the school.

I am glad that I am old enough to vote because it seems to me that caring about the students is more important than building a new addition. It was my experience that

Momisms: Gems of wisdom from tongues of fire

It's Mom's week when columnists wax eloquent on their mothers. A couple years ago I came across a listing of quaint sayings that mothers use and I thought it makes the great basis for a Mother's Day tribute.

If you live with a mother all your life, or rather a whole herd of them as I have, you end up looking at the world, at least at times, the same way they do. They drill it into you. "Okay, okay, I shouldn't say I have lived with a whole herd of mothers, that sounds bad. We should probably call them a group... or gaggle... or, better yet, gang."

Men really do (or should) learn a lot about motherhood over the years, if they just listen.

Their own mothers lectured them, their wives lecture their children, their mothers-in-law pass on (ahem) wisdom, their grandmothers are never reticent to impart quaint platitudes to live by and their sisters who become mothers keep the motherly tongue sharp as well.

Author Michele Slung has made a study of mothers' sayings which she calls Momisms. They are the quaint sayings-one line lectures and sharp rebuttals that mothers for centuries have used to help bring up their children (and at times straighten out their children's fathers).

"Do you think I'm talking just to hear myself think," was one of the favorites I remember hearing my mother use. It's not one of the ones in Ms. Slung's books, however.

"If you are bored, go clean your room," is a favorite "Momism" used by the mother of my children. It is in the book as well.

I remember my grandmother's favorite retort when one of us snivel nosed little rug rats complained of being hungry was: "Eat a cold potato and wait."

Mothers can have cruel tongues even though few of us ever believed they would carry out their threats. More than once I remember creating enough frustration to hear "Stop it or I'm going to knock you clear into next Tuesday."

How could you ever trust a woman who takes a hickory log to your backside with the strength of Sampson and gleam of pure pleasure in her eye and while she is inflicting this mortal — albeit deserved — whipping she says something so idiotic as: "This hurts me more than it does you."

You'll never see a book of Dadisms. Fathers don't wax poetic. They don't say much of anything when they are angry. "AAARRGH! You idiot!" and

Mann Overboard
By Les Mann

"stopit stopit STOPIT STOPIT!" is about the extent of most of the verbal communication used by fathers.

They rely more heavily on other forms of communicating—the physical and blasphemous forms.

But mothers, oh, mothers can lay on guilt with a single phrase as easy as spreading jam on toast.

Here's a sampling of more of the "momisms" which have been indelibly etched in my memory by mothers I have known (For the sake of my own well-being I won't identify which mother I have known etched it there.)

"If you fall out of that tree and break your leg, don't come running to me."

"What I say goes in one ear and out the other."

"Don't you get smart with me."

"Save your 'hey' you might marry a donkey someday."

"It was that way when I was a little boy."

"If I had a nickel for every time..."

"Never do anything you wouldn't want to see published in our local paper."

"What would Jesus say?"

"This time make sure you use soap."

"If you pout like that a chicken is going to come and sit on your lip."

"Hush! or I'll give you something to cry about."

"I'm going to beat you to within an inch of your life."

"How do you know you don't like it if you haven't tried it?"

"Don't crack your knuckles, you'll get arthritis."

If you understand all of those, you will have no trouble translating some of the momisms which they deliver in codes. Supposedly they think others within hearing distance cannot understand these little messages.

What young boy in a mixed group of his friends has not suffered the embarrassment of having his mom say, just loud enough for everyone to hear, "Les, X.Y.Z. (examine your zipper)."

Being embarrassed by momisms is not exclusive territory for boys. I've seen my sister and daughters turn mortal shades of red when their moms would say "S.H.D. (Slip hanging down)" or "It's snowing down south."

Another "Momism" code which was popular when I was growing up and has been used in our current gluttonous household on more than one occasion is "F.H.B." She utters it when there are guests at the dinner table and it looks like there might not be enough food to go around. It means, "family hold back" (i.e. Don't be the pigs that you normally are.) If you don't heed this coded warning you're likely to hear later about a quick trip to next Tuesday.

Next to the one about it hurting her worse than it did me, I suppose the most difficult "Momism" I ever tried to swallow was "You'll thank me someday."

But, she was right about that one.

Freedom issue

Dear Editor:

An open letter to the good people of Winside

As most of you know by now, I have been declared a public nuisance by the village board of Winside. This is supposedly due to the appearance of the property where I live, and operate a portion of my business. However, I feel that there is a much deeper issue at hand here. What is at stake here, I believe, is a matter of private property rights. This is I think, a test case to see how much power the "leaders" can assume in intruding in the private lives of the property owners of Winside.

If the "cleaning up" of the property were truly the issue, the letter I sent to the village (July, 1993) detailing what had been done, and what was intended, would have received an answer, or perhaps a follow-up list of questions. This was not the response, rather, I was greeted with a law suit.

I have incurred legal bills in excess of $5,000 trying to fight this action by the village. I have done this, not because I wish to live in a messy place, but because I believe an individual has the right (in this country) to do on private property, pretty much as one chooses. I think this is guaranteed as the "pursuit of happiness."

I firmly maintain that there are properties within this village that far surpass mine as far as being an "eye-sore" to the community. The courts and I are told by the village "representatives" that the only property to ever receive a complaint is mine. I find that very hard to believe.

Another opportunity for out of court agreement was overlooked when I purchased a structure "downtown" not only to allow for improved retail sales, but to serve as a storage area for some of the items that were presumably causing concern. The law suit continued unabated.

I firmly believe that if I lose this battle the residents of our fair city will suffer as well, in that private rights, on private property, will be diminished. It would appear that at any time someone doesn't approve of what YOU are doing on YOUR property YOU may be subject to being drug into court. If the town board wins this case, they will then have "precedence" on their side. In any future legal battle, this would weigh greatly in the town boards favor.

If in the end I do lose this fight, and decide to sell the property I will attempt to find a responsible owner such as a drug dealer, or maybe someone who steals money from the schools. Or perhaps I should allow the property to grow back to weeds and grass four feet tall again. (These seem to be acceptable practices for this area.) I will do my best however, to avoid selling to anyone that may try to make a dollar by operating an honest business from this locality.

I have been asked, why I don't just clean things up to the gratification of the village "fathers," the answer is easy (the battle is not). I am proud to have served along with many thousands of other men and women in an attempt to gain the rights we enjoy, (in this country) for people of other nations. I'll be damned if I will cheerfully turn my back while those same rights are diminished or destroyed here at home. Too much intrusion into our private lives and activities by government, at any level cannot be allowed to go unchallenged. "Big Brother" does not live in Washington only. He can be lurking anywhere we allow people to have control over our lives. If he is in my backyard today don't assume he won't be in yours tomorrow.

Jean de la Fontaine, once said: "Anyone entrusted with power will abuse it if not also animated with the love of truth and virtue, no matter whether he be a prince, or one of the people." Be ever watchful, a liberty or freedom given away lightly today, may tomorrow seem well worth fighting for.

Outdated

Dear Editor:

Recent articles and letters-to-the-editor printed in Wayne's newspaper have discussed various aspects of household waste recycling and pickup. My objective is to direct attention to Wayne's outdated household waste disposal procedures. Since the compaction machinery has been failing with increasing frequency, it seems like an opportune time to evaluate our waste handling program, investigate different alternatives and institute some changes.

As I understand it, several years ago Wayne entered into an agreement with surrounding towns, to construct a transfer station to compact household wastes before hauling them to the landfill. About the same time, other cities initiated recycling programs in an effort to reduce household waste weight and volume. Since tipping fees are assessed on a per ton basis, I feel strongly that Wayne made the wrong choice.

The capacity of the landfill at Jackson (compacted or not) is finite. I don't think I am being too presumptuous in stating that identification of a new sanitary landfill site will be both difficult and costly. Norfolk is a prime example. Wayne residents pay considerably less for waste disposal than in Iowa and Minnesota. It has been hypothesized that low waste disposal costs result when operators of sanitary landfills lack knowledge on how to estimate their true cost of operation. As the true costs become more apparent, our disposal costs will rise. Therefore, it is in our best interest to minimize the waste originating from the Wayne transfer station.

In my view, recycling should become a mandatory portion of waste pickup. My wife and I have voluntarily separated our household wastes into bins for nearly a year. Others have recycled household products for much longer. We haul these recyclables to the collection site supervised by various civic groups. I applaud those who have given their time to participate in the recycling effort. However, I believe that the current arrangement will not last. Information gathered about other volunteer-operated recycling programs suggests that such efforts are doomed to failure. Data collected indicate that volunteers eventually become tired of donating their time and they become disillusioned when they see other entities benefitting from their labor. For Wayne's recycling effort to survive, the cost must be included as a portion of the household waste handling fee.

Recently, composting has become another means of reducing waste hauled to a landfill. Composted material has typically been used as fertilizer for turf and cropland. I am aware of a composting business that has made overtures to obtain Wayne's household wastes. This company sorts the valuable items for recycling, hazardous wastes for proper disposal and hauls only unusable items to the landfill. I was informed by this company that less than 20 percent, and potentially as low as 10 percent of the wastes collected at the curb would need to be hauled to a landfill.

I feel that we should employ some combination of composting and recycling, and that a citizen advisory committee should be appointed to help identify which procedures are best for the Wayne community. I am convinced that grants, similar to the one used to purchase the wood grinder, could be obtained from a number of state sources to cover startup costs. Funds saved by paying lower total tipping fees could be used to offset some of the operating costs. An additional waste pickup fee would be needed to cover the remaining costs.

Finally, I realize that recycling may not be a very popular concept and that many feel that it must be self supporting. However, I feel that if we fail to take the initiative now, we will pay much higher costs in the future. Recycling and composting are methods that are available to begin the process. Wayne doesn't need to make changes all at once. However, I feel we need to develop a long range plan to gradually improve our household waste handling program. In a few years, Wayne could tout household waste disposal as another indication that it is truly a progressive city.

Bert and Ernie join musical fun

The Wayne elementary school spring musical, under the direction of Cheryl Kopperud was held Tuesday night at the high school. Part of the musical consisted of a variety of songs involving Sesame Street and some of its characters which is why the Bert and Ernie dolls are being held by some of the students.

Comparisons show true cost

You don't have to be a high priest of intelligence to be successful doing comparison shopping, providing you acquaint yourself with marketing tactics.

Here in America liquids are generally measured by capacity such as ounces, pints, quarts, and gallons. In contrast, pound is a weight measurement. Shrewd shoppers recognize the illusions frequently created in packaging.

Wrappings are the artwork of wizards in allurements. How do you sell a few cents worth of corn flakes for $3.95? By enhancing the flakes with extra ingredients, attractive packaging and repetitious advertising. Consumers pay the entire bill.

Looking for a best buy? Carry a calculator! A part of marketing, seemingly, is to make it especially difficult to mentally calculate the cost "per ounce" or whatever measurement is involved.

Businesses often take a loss on a "bait" or "leader" item to get you into the store. Supermarkets often place the more expensive products at eye level. Visual marketing is important! There is a constant battle for shelf space. Did you purchase an item on impulse because the items were in an oversize stack? Walk into a store asking yourself: what are they really trying to sell me?

Merlin Wright

Food is sold by the pound only when the price is attractive. Would you pay 99 cents a pound for hamburger? Sure! How about pizza, would you pay $8 a pound for it? Seldom! That's about what it costs, but advertising pizza per pound is a no-no. How about selling pizza by the square foot? Now you're talking!

Then there is gasoline. We buy it for $1.16 per gallon, or 29 cents a quart. Gasoline today can be bought for about 15 cents a pound. A bargain!

Even as a lot of monthly meetings are held for no better reason than it has been 30 days since the last one, so also are products sold by a particular measurement just because they always have been. Government regulations are also involved.

Genies of advertising strategies might think twice about revamping the system. However a real estate salesperson might give you an odd look if you inquired as to how much per ton your new house was going to cost!

Or the next time you buy a car, inquire as to why anything man-made should cost $10,000 per ton? Only Uncle Sam remains undisturbed when asked to pay $6 million a ton for a stealth bomber.

You saw your hat cost $10 an ounce?
Your money went to your head!

Many people buy health insurance known as "medigap" to augment Medicare coverage. In the past it was difficult to compare the many variations of medigap policies. In 1990 such policies were standardized and the selling of policies that duplicate coverage was forbidden. But some people were denied medigap policies if they kept insurance that only partially overlapped what medigap offered. Late last year Congress voted to change this. Now, when people turn 65 they can buy a medigap policy even if they retain coverage that includes some overlap.

In the 1930's a star quarterback led his high school football team to the city championship in New York. Next, playing for Columbia University, he was named All-American. In seven seasons as a pro, he led the Chicago Bears to four league championships. He long ago was inducted into the college and pro football halls of fame. Sixty years after his high school triumph, he returned to New York despite an illness that had hospitalized him. At age 78, he witnessed the dedication of his high school's renovated football field in his honor — "one of the most thrilling days in my life," said Sid Luckman.

Budget on the floor

By Pat Engel
District 17 Senator

The Appropriations Committee has made its recommendations regarding the two-year budget and these recommendations will now be debated by the full Legislature. Governor Nelson will then veto, reduce or eliminate certain spending that has been approved by the lawmakers. If the Legislature decides to adjourn one day early and return on June 8, they may override the Governor's veto if 30 of the 49 senators agree.

Some of the major components of the $78 million differences include salaries, capping special education, developmental disability aid and pay equity, vacancy savings and state aid reimbursement to local districts for the cost of educating wards of the state. More than half of the proposed spending increases are outside the Legislature's control in areas such as Medicaid, salaries and state aid to education. Other differences between the Governor and the committee's proposals include operations increases, construction, mental health and welfare. We will spend half-days discussing and determining if additional cuts should be made until a fiscally responsible budget can be forwarded to the Governor.

Last week Wednesday I had the opportunity to visit with a number of elected officials from the district who were attending the County Legislative Day at the Capitol. As always, I value receiving any input regarding legislative issues and the chance to catch up on what's happening back home.

Nine Wildcats qualify for State Track Meet

Winside runner-up at districts

The Winside girls and boys track teams placed runner-up in their Class D District Track Meet, Wednesday at Wayne State College.

Jim Winch's boys team missed winning the district crown by two points as Wausa claimed the title with 104. It was virtually a two-team race throughout as third place went to Bancroft-Rosalie with 63 points while Newcastle placed fourth with 48 followed by Beemer with 42.

Coleridge notched sixth place with 31 and Dodge tallied 30 while Clarkson scored 29 and Afton, 21. Wynot placed 10th with 20 points while Macy and Walthill failed to score.

Five Winside boys will be competing at the Nebraska State Track Meet next weekend in Omaha in a total of seven events. Freshman Landon Grothe will compete in three events at State after winning the 200 meter dash at districts in 23.9 while placing second in the 400 meter dash in 53.2.

He also ran on the winning 1600 relay which was timed in 3:36.2 with teammates Chad O'Connor, Scott Stenwall and Jay Shelton. Holdorf captured first places in the 110 high hurdles in 15.9 and he won the 100 meter dash in 11.4 while O'Connor won the high jump with a 6-1 leap. Shelton placed second in the discus with a 123-5 toss to round out the list of state tournament qualifiers and events.

The sprint relay team placed third in 47.2 with Grothe, Holdorf, Shelton and Jeremy Barg while Holdorf added a third in the 300 hurdles in 44.9. O'Connor placed third in the long jump with a 20-1.5 leap, just missing a bid to the state track meet in that event by one inch. Jeff Bruggeman placed third in the shot put with a toss of 46-11 and O'Connor placed four in the triple jump with a 39-7.5 leap.

Barg added fifth place finishes in the 100 and 200 meter dashes in 11.9 and 24.9, respectively and Scott Stenwall placed fifth in the 400 in 56.0. Brock Shelton closed out the scoring with a fifth in the discus after a toss of 116-6.

THE WINSIDE GIRLS tallied 78 points to finish 16 back of district champs, Dodge. Newcastle finished third with 63 followed by Wausa with 59 and Allen with 54. Coleridge, Beemer, Bancroft, Clarkson, Wynot, Macy and Walthill followed in order.

Melinda Mohr closed out her district track career with four more gold medals with firsts in the 800 (2:29.5), 1600 (5:41.1), 3200 (12:08.2) and as anchor of the winning 3200 relay (10:39.4) with teammates Wendy Miller, Rachel Riley and Jenny Fleer. Mohr will seek to become a four-time gold medal winner in next week's State Track Meet in the 3200 meter run.

These four girls will represent Winside at the State Track Meet in four total events. Additional points at the district track meet were earned by Ann Brugger with a third-place in the discus with a toss of 105-10 and Fleer in both distance races, placing fourth in the 3200 in 13:16.1 and fifth in the 1600 in 6:14.4.

Rachel Riley was fourth in the 800 in 2:49.8 and Mindi Janke placed fourth in the 100 hurdles in 18.7—edging teammate Mandi Topp by two-hundredths of a second. Emily Deck placed fourth in the high jump at 4-8 and Brugger finished fifth in the shot put with a 32-5 toss.

The sprint relay team placed fourth in 55.6 with Amy Thompson, Jodi Miller, Deck and Janke while Miller and Bowers placed fifth and sixth, respectively in the 300 hurdles with times of 55.6 and 55.9. Deck added a sixth in the long jump with a 14-2 effort and the 1600 relay placed sixth in 4:51.4 with Stacy Bowers, Wendy Miller, Jodi Miller and Deck.

EMILY DECK flies through the air in the long jump during district action, Wednesday. Deck placed sixth in the event and she added a fourth in the high jump in helping lead Winside to a runner-up team finish. At right, Landon Grothe sprints out of the blocks of the 400 meter dash where he finished second, thus earning a trip to State.

MELINDA MOHR breaks the tape of the 3200 meter run during district competition, Wednesday at Wayne State College. Mohr captured four gold medals.

JAIMEY HOLDORF cruises to first place in his heat of the 110 meter high hurdles. He also won the finals as well as the 100 meter dash.

Wayne competes at Battle Creek and NAC track meets

The Wayne track teams competed at the Battle Creek Invitational last Thursday and the NAC Conference Track Meet, Saturday in O'Neill.

At Battle Creek the Blue Devils boys tied for third with 61 points. Atkinson West Holt edged the host team, 160.90-126.60. West Point Central Catholic was fifth with 57.50 and Elkhorn Valley, sixth with 55. Hartington Cedar Catholic, Battle Creek reserves, Lindsay and Winnebago rounded out the field of teams in order.

Andy Witkowski tossed a personal best 152-11.5 to win the discus while Jeff Hamer threw 50-10 to win the shot put. Clint Dyer sprinted to victory in the 200 meter dash with a 23.29 clocking while the 3200 relay placed runner-up in 9:06.69 with Cory Erxleben, Chris Headley, Matt Meyer and Clint Dyer. The 1600 relay was also second with Erxleben, Witkowski, Neil Munson and Dyer with the foursome being clocked in 3:39.51 and Matt Meyer placed third in the 1600 in 5:13.8.

The sprint relay team placed fourth in 48.34 with Chris Dyer, Neil Munson, Brian Fernau and Andy Witkowski and Hamer placed fifth in the discus with a toss of 128-9. Witkowski added a sixth in the shot put with a 44-5.5 effort and David Enz placed sixth in the 1600 in 5:19.47. Chris Headley notched a sixth place effort in the 800 in 2:09.47.

"Overall, I thought we had a great day," coach Dan Fehringer said. "We have some kids out with injuries right now and I felt the younger kids stepped up and competed very well with many personal bests being established."

Fehringer also said he was pleased with the performance of his throwers and Clint Dyer in the 200.

BATTLE CREEK'S girls captured the team title with 141 points followed by Atkinson West Holt with 110 and West Point Central Catholic with 65. Elkhorn Valley tallied 64 and Madison, 48 while Hartington Cedar Catholic finished sixth with 36. Wayne was seventh after scoring 31 points followed in order by Battle Creek's reserves, Lindsay and Winnebago.

Sara Kinney was the lone champion for the Blue Devils with a 12:17 clocking in the 3200 while Molly Linster placed third in the 1600 in 5:58.80. Mel Lage placed fourth in the 1600 in 6:01.41 and the 3200 relay was fourth in 11:23.71 with Anne Wiseman, Mel Lage, Carla Kemp and Piyali Dalal. The sprint relay team was fifth in 56.76 with Dalal, Stacey Lange-meier, Alycia Jorgensen and Sandy Burbach and the 1600 relay was fifth in 4:35.52 with Sara Kinney, Lisa Walton, Dalal and Burbach.

Walton added a fifth in the 3200 in 13:48.10 and Linster was sixth in the 400 in 65.8. "We had decent weather and almost all the girls ran season and/or personal bests," coach Dale Hochstein said. "We did not run everyone hard today as we were gearing up for conference."

SATURDAY AT the conference meet in O'Neill both varsity teams placed third with the boys scoring 47 points. South Sioux won the team title with 112 followed by O'Neill with 74. Hartington Cedar Catholic was fourth with nine.

Jeff Hamer won the shot put with a 49-3 toss while Andy Witkowski won the discus after a toss of 138-7. Hamer placed second in the discus with a 119-9 toss and Chris Headley was second in the 800 in 2:16.7. Wayne State track standout
Kathy Dalton breaks record

Kathy Dalton downed her sixth school record of the year and 11th of her career to end the season at the Howard Wood Relays last Saturday in Sioux Falls, S.D. The sophomore from Waverly placed fourth in the 3000 meter run in a time of 10:49.02 to break Anne Lunsford's old record of 10:57.60 from 1990.

"Conditions weren't exactly ideal," distance coach Brian Kavanaugh said, "yet she broke the record by nearly 10 seconds. If it hadn't been quite so cold and windy she would have been 10:40 or better."

Friday, Dalton also recorded a personal best in the 1500, clocking 4:54.22 for third place. "Kathy was in seventh place with a lap to go," Kavanaugh said. "Her finishing sprint put away several athletes in the final stretch."

Also on the women's side, freshman Amy Gudmundson placed fifth in the long jump with a season best leap of 16-2.5 and added a fifth in the 400 in a season best time of 60.31. Freshman Michelle Baatz lowered her personal best in the 800 to 2:30.11 and placed fifth and also clocked a 5:16.33 in the 1500.

The 1600 medley team of Charonna Chambers, Stephanie Lilla, Amy Gudmundson and Michelle Baatz recorded a season best time of 4:26.43 to place fifth—about half-second off the school record.

On the men's side, sophomore's

Mark Merritt and Mark Beran lowered their personal bests in the 5000 meter run to 15:41.5 and 15:53.0 respectively to move to numbers two and three on the WSC all-time charts.

"They both had personal bests for 3200 meters in the race, going through in 9:54 and 10:00, and Beran also had a personal best 1600 meters, clocking 4:51 for the first 1600," Kavanaugh said. Unfortunately, the rest of the men didn't fare as well.

Chris Walker, Donny Thongdy and Colby Laughhunn all came down sick for the second day of competition. "I don't know if it was something they ate, or their room or something else," head coach Rick Moorman said. "Chris did manage to throw with in two feet of his personal best in the javelin—throwing 136 feet but Donny struggled through the steeplechase and Colby wasn't able to run at all. All three are freshman, however, so they will all get another chance at Howard Wood."

Last Thursday the Wildcats held their annual awards banquet with Donny Thongdy and Amy Gudmundson being honored as freshman MVP's. Michelle Baatz was recognized as "most improved", Mark Beran and Kathy Dalton received MVP awards and James McGowan and Dalton were voted captains for the 1996 season.

Marcia Jane Prussa of Central City, the daughter of Vernon and Jane Behmer of Hoskins, graduated from Kearney State College on May 5 with a master's degree in science, psychology and counseling. A dinner was held in her honor at the Holiday Inn following the ceremonies. Area relatives who attended the graduation and dinner were Vernon Behmer, Richard and Connie Behmer and Jon and Peg Behmer of Hoskins and Rick and Ryan Jacobs of Wisner.

Robert Fletcher of Cedar City, Utah was a May 5 weekend guest in the home of his mother, Irene Fletcher. On Saturday they visited her brother, Charles Rohrbeg, in the Osmond hospital. Robert Fletcher also visited in the Vernon and Jane Behmer home.

Jessi Anderson, Melanie Liverman and Jennifer Bond, watch the tally of council votes as the Council decides unanimously to reject their landlord's appeal which would have allowed them to continue living in their residence.

person-families," he reasoned. "Four people does not make a family. Four individual college students doesn't make a family," replied Councilperson Patty Wieland.

THE SITUATION arose when neighbors of the women complained to the city of late night parties and debris.

Councilperson Verdell Lutt assessed the problem.

"This is a stand by the neighbors to keep their neighborhood clean."

"I'm sorry, but 90% of the college kids trash their apartments and if the landlord isn't living there, how is it going to be kept clean?" Lutt queried.

MELANIE LIVERMAN was the first of the three college women present to speak in defense of her roommates.

"After we heard that our neighbors were upset, we felt awful that our neighbors were upset with us. We wrote them a page and a half letter to all of our neighbors and delivered them in person."

"We are all from far away, and we are very close to each other. We don't want to lose our home without putting up a fight." She stated, adding, "and I want to thank Rod because without him, we wouldn't have this house, and we wouldn't have our jobs at Riley's."

COUNCILPERSON LOIS Shelton sympathized with the women, but not with the issue at hand.

"It's all fine and good to say that we trust you, but if we grant this exception, it's forever."

One of the tenants, Jessi Anderson pleaded with the council.

"You say that we are not family, but to me these people are my family." Duane Schroeder, attorney for Tompkins, charged that the true issue was not being addressed.

"I recognize the square footage problem, but I think we should be careful in how we approach this," he stated.

"WE SAY THAT the neighborhood is taking a stand, but what we are really talking about is keeping out the undesirables."

Wayne resident Steve Meyer was one of the neighbors to address the council.

"I live down the street from the girls. I don't think the problem is the girls, it's the people they attract. There had people driving in my yard," he complained, stating further, "in my day, we had our parties out in the country where we couldn't do much damage."

"I'M SICK AND TIRED of it! I don't drive over Rod's yard and throw beer cans in his yard and expect him to take it."

After the meeting, tenant Jennifer Bond questioned the council's action.

"They said it was all about square footage, but then why was all of the discussion about us?"

Winside Legion is honored for diamond jubilee

Roy Reed Unit No. 252, American Legion Auxiliary, Winside, was host to the diamond jubilee (75 years) celebration honoring the chartering of the Roy Reed Post 252, the American Legion, Winside, on Friday, April 28. A potluck supper was served with 42 in attendance. Gertrude Heins, unit treasurer, served as mistress of ceremonies. Musical entertainment was provided by pianist LeNell Quinn and soloist Dorothy Wert, who is a member of Unit 252. A medley of service songs and World War II era was provided.

Roy Reed Post No. 252 was chartered on April 26, 1920 under the name of Winside Post, Department of Nebraska, No. 252. There were 15 charter members at that time. They were Edwin W. Damure, Frank O. Krause, William M. Rhudy, Jesse Witte, Chester B. Wylie, Howard Porter, Fredrick Hansen, Henry Nelson, Clinton J. Perrin, Louis G. Heyer, Roy A. Carter, Fritz Swanson, V.L. Siman, Frank Wilson and F.J. Dimmel. The Post was re-chartered on April 20, 1937, with the new name being Roy Reed Post No. 252.

Roy Reed was born near Winside on May 3, 1895, and was a school teacher at the time of his induction into the United States Army at Wayne on Sept. 5, 1917. He was attached to Company I, 355th Infantry. Mr. Reed died on Dec. 31, 1918, as a result of wounds received in action.

It is not known for sure where World War I members conducted Post meetings, however, it is believed they were held in the back room of the old city hall. As time passed, meetings were held about the Weible Store and the upstairs of the Winside Auditorium.

On Jan. 5, 1953, the Post purchased a building from John and Mary Loeback for $1,750, which building was located on the west side of the Winside State Bank, making that the first permanent post home.

In November, 1990, after 37 years at this location, the building was sold to the Winside State Bank, with final transaction occurring in March, 1991. A new post home was envisioned at this time.

On July 21, 1987, the Post received a generous donation from Alfred and Lena Miller of city lots where the former N and M Oil Company was once located. In September, 1987, Post members tore down the station and moved the underground storage tanks.

On Oct. 9, 1990, a special meeting was held where at last final plans for a 32-foot x 80-foot building was approved. It was determined the only way the Post could afford to build was by volunteers and this was done. Water and sewer lines were laid on site in September, 1990; footings and concrete work was completed in October, 1990, with construction of the building itself beginning on Nov. 10, 1990, with the final touches being added on Jan. 19, 1991. On Feb. 5, 1991, the Post held its first meeting in the new home with 24 members attending.

In total there were 53 volunteers, some of whom were not Legion members, 94 donors and 13 "in memory of" donors. The Auxiliary to the Post had 10 donors contributing toward the fund to furnish the kitchen. Kitchen cabinets were built and finished by Norman, Fern and Dale Deck. Richard Schmidt of Schmidt Construction was lead carpenter, having guided the volunteers in their tasks.

Today, the Post has a membership in excess of 100 and continues its active involvement in summer recreation, Legion baseball, Boys State and many more programs.

Jerol Rademacher is the current Post Commander at Winside and was in attendance to receive the special plaque and cash gift from Unit President Beverly Neel on behalf of the Auxiliary. Following the presentation of honors, the group played 10 point pitch. Committee members included Lila Hansen and Mary Weible for cards; Lorraine Denklau, Rose Janke, Audrey Quinn, Marilyn Morse, Irene Dittman and Gertrude Heins, planning; Audrey Quinn, Doris Murtoz and Beverly Neel, decorations. Anniversary cakes were prepared by Lorraine Prince.

Post 252 holds monthly meetings each first Tuesday of the month at the Post home beginning at 8 p.m. Anyone wishing to learn more about the programs and events of the Post may contact any of the current members. Anyone interested in joining Post 252 is welcome to contact any member of visit with the post on their meeting night.

Ask Karen...

Q. When I brought my spring wardrobe out, I noticed yellow stains on some of my clothes. They looked clean when I stored them. What caused this?

A. These stains are caused by spills of juice, beer, pop or anything that contains sugar. Although invisible at first, storing the clothing in a warm closet caramelizes the stain, making it yellow or brown. Some of these stains can be removed, usually depending on the age of the garment. Talk to your drycleaner before having it cleaned.

Home Economics professor retires after 27 years

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Third in a series of articles featuring Wayne State College faculty and staff that are retiring.

"Since 1968, Lavera Roemhildt has been 'infecting' students with an informal, gentle, respectful style of instruction," said Wayne State College President Donald Mash in a letter written for Lavera's retirement celebration.

Roemhildt will retire this spring following 27 years as a Professor of Home Economics at WSC. She and her husband Elmer and five children came to Wayne from Minnesota. "We came from Minnesota as part of the farm crisis movement. We were looking for something in a rural area and were very grateful when I was offered a teaching position here," she said.

A GRADUATE of Mankato State in Minnesota, Roemhildt had taught at the high school level and had been a graduate assistant at Mankato State before coming to Wayne. When she first came to WSC, Home Economics classes were taught in the Physical Education/Industrial Building located just east of where the present Applied Sciences building is located.

Since coming to WSC Roemhildt has earned her doctorate from Texas Women's University in Denton, Texas. She has taught all levels of students. "When I first came here, most of the students in this department were involved in teacher education courses. Through the years this has changed. Today, most of our students are non-teaching majors," she said.

To reflect the change in the nature of the courses offered through the department—the name Home Economics has been changed to Family and Consumer Sciences. "Our numbers have remained fairly stable through the years due to our ability to design a curriculum to meet the needs of our students," she said.

ROEMHILDT HAS enjoyed working with students, both in and out of the classroom and has learned of the part she played in the lives of her students. "As part of my retirement celebration, former students were asked to send letters with what they remembered about me. Several mentioned me as sponsor of the Kappa sorority. I will miss working with students in an informal manner such as this," she said.

Several of the letters recalled fashion merchandising field trips to Minneapolis and other locations. "Experiences outside the classroom can be valuable learning experiences. They also help you to get to know students in a different way," Roemhildt said.

Through all the letters, Roemhildt has become aware of the influence she has had on her students. "The effect that we, as educators, have on students doesn't really impact you until you see it in writing," she said.

ALTHOUGH SHE will miss the students at WSC, Roemhildt plans to be more active in the lives of her nine grandchildren when she retires. "I have lots of talented grandchildren who are involved in competitions that I have not been able to attend. I hope to change that now that I won't be teaching," she said.

The Roemhildts have five children. Sherry Kraemer operates a day care center in Norfolk, Shirley Lesch is an independent cosmetic consultant in Omaha, Shelley Horak is an attorney-at-law and lives in Hubbard, Arthur manages a pizza restaurant in Omaha and Louis is a registered nurse who is a first year medical student at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha. Retirement will offer them the opportunity to visit children more often.

Now that Lavera is retired, she and her husband plan to go fishing at "Beautiful Lake Osakis" in Alexandria, Minn. "Elmer is semi-retired and works for a long distance phone company but has his own hours. We will be staying in Wayne where I hope to do some serious cooking, read, go swimming and 'plunk' on the piano," she said.

is no consistent model across the state because needs from one ESU area to another differ depending on size," Garwood said.

Although no solution has been determined to solve the lack of nurses in the schools, one theory is to have a health aide present at every school each day. If a need arises where a registered nurse is a must, the process would revert back to its present system of making a phone call.

Wayne school superintendent Dr. Dennis Jensen said some schools have hired health aides that work under the supervision of a central registered nurse which allows the school more immediate attention to student health needs than sharing a nurse with other school districts.

"We (Wayne school system) have a full-time registered nurse contracted through the ESU," Jensen said. "We have over 900 students and that dictates the need for it."

Jensen said the call for a change is because many of the schools in the ESU service area don't have the enrollment that dictates for full-time nursing.

"The idea of the health aide concept is to give more time to the students in need of health care in all schools rather than wait for a nurse who may be en route from another school," Jensen said. "The health and safety of the students is the top priority."

"Today, there are more involved health cases coming to schools than ever before," Jensen added. "Schools must be staffed and prepared for this plus their regular day-to-day health concerns."

Innocents abroad: Wayne's Johnsons enjoy month-long Thai sojourn

By Stan Johnson
For the Herald

My wife, Tippy, and I recently returned from a 30-day visit to Thailand — her native land. Tippy's relatives met us at the Bangkok Airport and drove us to their new home in Phanom Sarakham, about 100 kilometers east of Bangkok. The highway was built as a two-lane blacktop by the United States, during the Vietnam conflict, to serve military bases in the area. Thailand has completed two adjacent lanes (some concrete) making a modern freeway. Also completed is a modern two-lane highway from Phanom S. south to Sattahip on the Gulf of Siam.

Our host family was Tippy's cousin Kasam's oldest son, Phit and his wife, Phon and their young boys, Gung and Golf. The family homes are of concrete and tile (Mission style), adjacent with town houses on one side and rice paddies on the other. They own a Mercedes, BMW, Toyota and a Mercedes bus used for their tour business. Kasam is a retired school superintendent with wife, Shaun, they share their home with another son, his wife and two young boys. Phon has a sewing enterprise with three employees in her home. Tippy's home village is three kilometers east (of Phanom S.) with many old homes in a jungle setting with outlying paddies and gardens.

Thailand's people are industrious, devoted to family yet very independent. Their government is a monarchy with a parliament. State, county and city governments similar to ours. Buddhism is the national religion with freedom of religion for all.

Shortly after arrival, I went to the local doctor who diagnosed my strep throat and prescribed penicillin and pills. The nurse gave me the shot and a three-day supply of medicine. Including waiting room, this took less than 15 minutes for a cost of about $10 (U.S.). A week later, I went to the doctor again. This time he looked at my nasty mosquito bites. The nurse gave me two antihistamine shots and a three-day supply of medicine. All this cost 180 Baht ($7.50 U.S.). In the robes, not saffron.

With five other visitors from the U.S., we chartered a van and driver for a four day tour to the northernmost part of Thailand and return. This was an enjoyable trip to the scenic mountainous region with many Buddhist temples and historic sites. At Chiang Mai, we were denied rooms at a hotel because we were foreigners. We went to a nearly international hotel and had a pleasant stay with the Africans, Eurasians, etc. Coffee and karaoke is popular in the evenings.

TV fare consists of Thai soap opera or Chinese movies with Thai dubbing and mismatched U.S. background music.

At Chai Rai, we found the border with Burma (Miranmar) closed. This was due to an incident in which a Thai shopper without a visa was shot by Burmese police. Perhaps this would work with Mexico. If someone crossed the border illegally, simply close to the border. We also toured the Chiang Rai area before returning to our host family.

Tippy and I made a trip to Sattahip to buy some jumbo shrimp (Oxymoron) for our going home party. While there, our friends invited us to a picnic on the beach, at the Naval Station. An alert guard found me standing by a palm tree trying to look invisible.

I could remain on the base by filling out lots of forms. This did not appeal to us so my well-meaning friends took me off the base. The prince had just delivered a new boat with the latest electronics.

We had an enjoyable farewell party with the family and friends at Tippy's home village and were all too soon homeward for at least 20 hours of flights. We enjoyed airline food and arriving at our home in Nebraska.

Weather observer cited

Pat Gross of Wayne was presented with a National Weather Service (NWS) 25 year service certificate on May 3. Terry Landsvork, Cooperative Program Manager from the NWS office in Valley made the presentation.

Gross has observed and reported weather conditions in Wayne since February of 1970 using official NWS equipment to measure and record precipitation amounts and high and low temperatures on a daily basis.

No stranger to receiving awards for his volunteer weather watching, Gross was the 1992 recipient of the John Campanius Holm Award, a national award recognizing outstanding contributions in the field of Meteorology. This award is presented to no more than 25 Cooperative Weather Observers annually.

The data provided by cooperative observers is used extensively by the National Weather Service, State Climatologist and numerous others in the public and private sectors. It eventually becomes a permanent part of the climatic record for the local area and nation. The observers record a variety of weather elements such as precipitation, temperature, river water level and severe weather phenomenon.

There are over 300 official volunteer cooperative weather observers in the state and nearly 11,000 nationwide. Observers are located at private residences, farms, municipal facilities, utilities, dams, parks, game refuges, radio stations and many other locations. Official NWS observations were first taken and recorded in Wayne in January of 1945.

"The nation owes a sincere debt of gratitude to the cooperative weather observers who have quietly and steadily built up what amounts to a priceless national treasure in the finest tradition of volunteer service to their country," said Landsvork. "The United States Government, National Weather Service and State Climatologist greatly appreciate this service and extend their congratulations to Gross for a job well done," he added.

The service award consisted of a framed certificate and lapel pin.

Blood Bank honors students

The Siouxland Blood Bank conducted a blood drive at Wayne High School on May 2. A total of 39 pints of blood were collected from the 46 individuals who volunteered to donate.

First time donors included Adam Bebee, Jeremy Beckenhauer, Chad Billheimer, Maria Brown, Jolene Bruna, Ron Carnes, Matthew Chapman, Erin Granberg, Amy Guill, Joan Hanson, and Tim Heinemann.

Other first time donors were Troy Jeffrey, Andrew Metz, Matt Niemann, Amy Post, Jenny Reinhardt, Tisha Rothfuss, Nathan Salmon, Carl Samuelson, Carl Sorensen, Angela Webb, Erick Wiseman, Damon Wiser, Andy Witkowski and Jason Zulkosky.

Pam Mashing, Director of Donor Resources for the Siouxland Blood Bank said, "a sincere thanks goes out to Mr. Munson for all his efforts in preparing for the blood drive. Thanks also to the Student Council members for sponsoring the drive and to all the volunteers who spent their time helping before and during the drive."

U.S., two lawyers graduate for each doctor, perhaps this trend should be reversed.

The mosquito is an endangered species. Motorcycles are multiplying at a faster rate, besides emitting fumes lethal to the lowly insect.

Traffic is challenging with a high volume of mixed vehicles on most roads. Driving is on the left side. The two-second rule is unknown. Cut-offs are common with a smile and a blink of the headlights.

Rice is produced in quantity to supply world markets. Fresh produce is provided for open-air markets. All this results in lengthy truck convoys to Bangkok and other cities. Shopping for food is done early in the morning at street markets before the heat of the day. Temperatures range from 75 to 95 degrees year round.

Students select top prof at Wayne State

Dr. Glenn Kietzmann, associate professor of biology at Wayne State College, was selected "Professor of the Year" in the Division of Mathematics and Science for the 1994-95 academic year.

The award, which is presented annually, is awarded based on votes submitted by the students in the Math and Sciences courses. These include Biology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Earth Science, Pre-Health Professions, Mathematics and Physics. This year the voting was conducted and supervised by the Health Sciences Club, and the award was presented by Ms. Shannon Karr, president of the Health Sciences Club, at the Math Sciences Division's annual banquet held on April 20.

"Glenn is an outstanding example of the type of quality faculty that we have at Wayne State. He is an outstanding teacher and is committed and dedicated to the students," said Dr. J.S. Johar, head of the Mathematics and Sciences Division. "He is very current in his area of Biology and is a major contributor to the phenomenal success of our Life Sciences and Health Professions students. I am pleased to note that the students have recognized him for his outstanding teaching," Johar added.

Dr. Kietzmann earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from South Dakota State University, and Ph.D. from Iowa State University. He was appointed assistant professor of Biology in the fall of 1989 and was promoted to associate professor in 1994.

Press women aspire to become 'glocals'

I find, in my old age, that I'm not as anxious to join organizations as I used to be. I avoid business meetings as much as possible. Heavens, I helped organize a League of Women voters once, met some fascinating people, including Mimi Waldbaum, and then dropped out because of members with much more liberal views than mine.

So, when Phyllis Buell, my neighbor, suggested I join Nebraska Press Women, I hesitated. I don't think one column a week really makes a "press woman." I had turned down their invitation several years ago, even though it was obvious Joan Burney, Mary Pat Finn and Gwen Lindberg enjoyed it a lot.

They had an associate membership, sans national dues, that was affordable, so I bit. Then I never seemed to be able to make the conventions.

Early this year, the newsletter announced this spring's would be in Norfolk. There was an intriguing theme: think globally, act locally. And the list of speakers was amazing. I'd been reading about Gerda Daub O'Dey and wanted to hear her.

Natalie Hahn, with UNICEF in Molawi, Africa, was from Polk, close to my old neck of the woods, and would be presenting.

And the banquet was in the ballroom at the Uptown, one of my favorite restaurants. So, I sent my check.

Gerda has written a book about her days in Hitler's youth organization. I shuddered as she recounted her escape to north Germany as the Russians advanced. And I was struck by the way she emphasized her father's sense of humor through it all. There are things to laugh about in the gravest situations. And laughter defuses tension. There was plenty of that.

By Pat Meierhenry

We saw some marvelous slides by two lady journalists, featuring families from all over the world. And the dinner featured ethnic foods of Africa, South America and Sweden. Some were other, others were just different. All were well done.

Natalie summarized the day for us by christening us all "glocals" global locals, which we all felt like by then. This world has become very small, thanks to technology.

After the meal, awards were present. My neighbor, Phyllis, got first place for her personal column in the humor category.

It was a consciousness — expanding day, even in the rain. Global: a local who thinks globally. Something to aspire to.

Dixon County FCE Clubs commemorate 60 years

The Dixon County Associate for Family and Community Education Clubs (formerly called Home Extension Clubs) held a special event on April 29 at the Northeast Research and Extension Center in Concord in memory of their 60 years of existence. The event began with a brunch at 9:30 a.m. The "Down Memory Lane With Our Dixon County Extension Clubs 1935 - 1995" program featured a slide presentation covering activities through the years, narrated by long term member Suzie Johnson from Concord. County Chair, Judy Martindale, Concord, welcomed and was mistress of ceremony for the approximately 40 current and former members in attendance. Marilyn Creamer, Laurel, brought back memories of singing by leading the group in songs from a 1959 Song-A-Month booklet.

The group enjoyed reminiscing through the years. Some of the year's annual special event highlights included a hat program, members modeling their wedding dresses, homemaker showcases with each club teaching a skill, health screenings at the County Fair, all kinds of community service projects, tours, monthly lessons, etc.

The group had some fun by giving awards to those present at the program. Deb Clarkson and Suzie Johnson presented each person a plant. The oldest member was Evelina Johnson, Merry Homemakers from Concord; youngest member, Adel Bohlen, Friendly Neighbors from Concord; oldest car, Harriet Stolle, Artemis from Concord and Muriel Kardell, Twilight Line from Dixon; most children, Eva Armstrong, Sunshine from Ponca and Velma Dennis, Twilight Line from Dixon; first one to plant their potatoes, Lyla Swanson, Merry Homemakers from Wayne and Della Mattes, Friendship from Wakefield; the person who came the farthest was Phyllis Dirks, PaPa Partners from Coleridge; longest nylon runner, Helen Domsch, Wakefield Happy Homemakers from Wakefield; and those who have been involved with Extension Clubs the longest was Doris Lipp and Lola Belle Ebmeier, both of the Laurel Farmerettes from Laurel.

Extension Educator, Karen Warmers gave out certificates to Suzie Johnson and Deb Clarkson for organizing the event. Suzie Johnson was also recognized for serving the most terms as County Council Chair with six years. Each of the current dues paying FCE clubs received a certificate including Merry Homemakers, Concord; Twilight Line, Dixon; Wakefield Happy Homemakers, Wakefield; Friendly Neighbors, Concord; Merry Homemakers was especially recognized for being a county charter club beginning in 1935.

The program included a listing of the County Chairs, the top lessons and changes in clubs and enrollment all going back to 1935. Enrollment peaked in 1959 with 16 clubs and 270 members. Club and county past projects, pictures, scrapbooks and lessons were on display.

The Cultural Arts Contest winners were announced by Doris Nelson, Laurel. Verlyn Anderson received first place and will represent the county at the State Convention June 7-9 at Broken Bow. She made an appliqued baby quilt. Evonne Magnuson, Laurel, received second place with her Grandmother's Fan quilt.

Should dads be involved in discipline?

Question: Traditionally, fathers have been relatively uninvolved in the discipline of preschool children. How do you feel about the importance of paternal involvement?

Dr. Dobson: It is extremely important for fathers to help discipline and participate in the parenting process. Children need their fathers and respond to their masculine manner, of course, but wives need the involvement of their husbands, too. This is especially true of homemakers who have done combat duty through the long day and find themselves in a state of battle fatigue by nightfall.

Husbands get tired too, of course, but if they can hold together long enough to help get the little tigers in bed, nothing could contribute more to the stability of their homes. I am especially sympathetic of mothers raising a toddler or two and an infant at the same time. There is no more difficult assignment on the face of the earth. Husbands who recognize this fact can help their wives feel understood, loved and supported in the vital jobs they are doing.

Question: My son is an outstanding gymnast. Yet when he is being judged in a competitive meet, he does terribly! Why does he fail?

Dr. Dobson: If your son thinks of himself as a failure, his performance will probably match his low self-image when the chips are down. In the same way, there are many excellent golfers on the PGA tour who make a satisfactory living, but they never win. They consistently place second, third, sixth or tenth.

Whenever it looks like they might finish first, they "choke" at the last minute and let someone else win. It's not that they want to fail; rather, they don't "see" themselves as winners, and their performance merely reflects this image.

I talked once with an outstanding concert pianist who resolved never to play in public again. She knows she is blessed with remarkable talent, but she believes she is a loser in every other regard.

Consequently, when she played the piano on stage, her mistakes and errors made her sound like a beginner. Each time this mortifying experience occurred, she became more convinced of her own unworthiness in every area. She has now withdrawn into the secluded, quiet, talentless world of have-nots.

Dr. Dobson

Answers Your Questions

There is no question about it: A lack of self-confidence can completely immobilize a talented person, simply through the threat of failure.

Question: I have observed that elementary school and junior high school students, even high schoolers, tend to admire teachers who are more strict. Is this your experience as well?

Dr. Dobson: Yes, teachers who maintain order are often the most respected members of the faculties, provided they aren't mean and grouchy. A teacher who can control a class without being oppressive is almost always loved by his or her students.

One reason is that there is safety and order. When a class is out of control, particularly at the elementary school level, the children are afraid of each other. If the teacher can't make the class behave, how can she prevent a bully from doing his thing?

Second, children love justice. When someone has violated a rule, they want immediate retribution. They admire the teacher who can enforce an equitable system, and they find great comfort in reasonable social rules. By contrast, the teacher who does not control her class inevitably allows crime to pay, violating something basic in the value system of children.

Third, children admire strict teachers because chaos is nerve-racking. Screaming, hitting and wiggling are fun for about 10 minutes; then the confusion begins to get tiresome and irritating.

I have smiled in amusement many times as second- and third-grade children astutely evaluated the relative disciplinary skills of their teachers. They know how a class should be conducted. I only wish all of their teachers were equally aware of this important attribute.

The 54th annual session of Cornhusker Girls State will be held on the University of Nebraska City Campus - Lincoln during the week of June 4 to 10. Girls State is a program sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary Units in all states. The Cornhusker program was inaugurated in 1939 as a concerted effort on the part of the American Legion Auxiliary to bring to the young women of Nebraska a knowledge of the fundamental principles of American government, through actual practice and control of the state offices during Girls State. Girls State remains the major project of the Auxiliary's Americanism program. It is the firm belief of the American Legion Auxiliary that an interested and intelligent citizenry, devoted to democracy, is America's best defense.

As future voters and office holders, the young women should have an understanding of the problems of elective officials, their duties and their functions. Girls State affords the opportunity to learn the fundamentals in the State of Nebraska each year to 425 young women selected by their local American Legion Auxiliary units.

The expense of the program for the selected delegate is borne by the sponsoring local unit. Any personal expenses the delegate may have are at her cost. For many young women, this week of learning in our state's capitol city will be their first glimpse of the city as well as the campus. This program is graciously supported by the University system for this week and many long hours and months of preparation go into the planning and implementation of the programs. An interesting fact of Cornhusker trivia is that the Girls State program in Nebraska is held during the same week as the Cornhusker Boys State program. The Department of Nebraska is the only Legion/Auxiliary Department in the nation which holds both sessions at the same time. A great deal of responsibility lies with the young people who bring with them high morals and ethics as they demonstrate their respect and willingness to learn. We can all be proud of the youth of Nebraska who continue to keep this special distinction solely to their respective Boys or Girls State programs. It is only through the inappropriate behavior of participants that Nebraska could lose this distinction.

During this week many activities will keep the delegates on the go. Some of these include election of their own state officials, including governor and other state officials, members of a unicameral legislature and city and county officials, in accordance with Nebraska law. These young ladies will organize their own unicameral, where they introduce, argue and pass bills; conduct court sessions, trying actual cases. They apply for and are appointed to the various positions in state government; visit the State Capitol where each delegate receives instruction in the office corresponding to the one she holds in Girls State. Every girl has an active part in government and learns by doing that her government is just what she makes it.

As the delegates do conduct their own campaigns and elections, they are "divided among" two parties, "Federal" and "National." These are purely mythical and are in no way connected with existing political parties.

Additionally, delegates are welcome to bring their musical instruments and participate in the Girls State band or they may desire to be an active participant in the Girls State newspaper. This one short week of learning will address many areas of government, parliamentary procedure, as well as a bit of exercise as their feet will take them everywhere they go. At the conclusion of this week, many lifelong friendships will have developed and these young ladies will return home more mature, better versed in government and an example of citizenry as she will have a graduation ceremony which will take her from the status of delegates to the status of Girls State citizen. She will be asked to bring back to her school and sponsoring unit a detailed report of her week as well as a demonstration of her growth in her form of government. These are exciting times for some 425 young women in the State of Nebraska.

LEAD POISONING

Lead poisoning, while a threat to teens and adults, is most prevalent in children from toddlers to six years of age. Exposure generally results when children eat paint chips that contain lead. Lead based paint is more common in apartments or homes built before 1960. Both adults and children can be exposed to high lead concentrations from lead pipes that carry the water supply into older homes. Lead glazed pottery, the soil and even the air we breath can carry significant levels of lead. Although exposure of lead from the air has declined since the removal of leaded gasoline from the market. Lead affects the central nervous system, peripheral nervous system, kidneys, and blood. Toxicity can be difficult to diagnose, but generally evolves into lethargy and confusion in adults and notable learning disabilities in children. Children at high risk of exposure should be screened regularly for blood levels. Ask your pharmacist for more information about lead poisoning, and the risk it poses to your health.

Kerrey urges local environment control

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - The environment needs more local control and greater agricultural stability, Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., said Monday to launch the three-day symposium on the sustainable future for the North American Great Plains.

As economic and environmental interests become less contradictory, sustainable agriculture and conservation can move from theory to practice, Kerrey said. "Farmers cannot sustain themselves environmentally unless they can sustain themselves economically. Theory does not matter when the bank calls the loan."

Local debate can bring that interdependence to the policy table, he said.

Getting local interests and government together on the Conservation Reserve Program, which takes land out of production for wildlife and soil conservation, could result in a program more precisely targeted to a region's needs.

Greater local debate on wetlands also could make regulation more accountable to citizens, Kerrey said. Otherwise, he said, the perception that some regulations have been unreasonable and complicated result in a loss of government credibility and effectiveness in protecting wetlands.

"It is very difficult political work."

he told more than 125 people at a conference. Unlike with the broadly supported CRP, Kerrey said, "We do still have a problem with wetlands regulation."

As a whole, sustainable development, which tries to marry economic progress with resource conservation, faces several obstacles, he said. One is less federal money to spend. Kerrey noted that "agricultural research will be squeezed once again this year."

People also need to gain a greater understanding of the interdependence among states in the Great Plains, he said. Kerrey noted that water coming from mountain states flows through Nebraska to other Midwest states, affecting several economies and environments.

The symposium, involving officials from the United States and Canada, is part of a worldwide discussion on sustainability, organizers said.

"The big issue now, worldwide, is the issue of sustainable development, resulting largely from the Earth Summit held in Rio de Janeiro in 1992," said Don White, symposium co-chairman and director of the International Drought Information Center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. "Everyone has their own definition" of sustainability.

Planting delays worst in 10 yrs.

The Nebraska corn crop is off to the slowest start in more than 10 years thanks to an onslaught of spring rains that have made fields too muddy to manage, the Nebraska Agricultural Statistics Service reported.

Only 5 percent had been planted by Sunday, the smallest amount since 1984, when only 4 percent had been planted by this time, the service reported Monday.

Last year, 54 percent had been planted. The five-year average is 48 percent.

Wet conditions are keeping farmers out of their fields, said Ken Burgert, a University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension agent who works in Auburn.

"Everything is really saturated at this point," he said.

Soil temperatures also are too low, he said. Corn that was planted three weeks ago is just starting to emerge, he said, adding that corn usually emerges within days after being planted.

When seeds stay in the soil that long, there is an increased chance of damage from fungus and insects, Burgert said.

Even if it stopped raining Monday and the ground was given 10 days to dry out, farmers wouldn't be able to plant corn until May 18, Burgert said.

Once it gets past the middle of May, there is a greater potential for yield loss, he said.

"Everybody's getting real antsy ... discouraged," Burgert said.

After May 20, farmers probably will switch to shorter-season corn, which has a greater potential for yield loss, Burgert said.

Past June 1, farmers probably will switch to soybeans, he said.

The statistics service also reported Monday that winter wheat was rated at 1 percent poor, 18 percent fair, 72 percent good and 9 percent excellent.

Oat planting made little progress, while sugar beet planting made some progress where conditions allowed.

Alfalfa condition was rated at 1 percent poor, 17 percent fair, 76 percent good and 6 percent excellent.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources advised alfalfa producers to scout their fields carefully for weevils.

Officials in Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Iowa have reported heavy weevil infestations, said Steve Danielson, a UNL entomologist.

A few minor infestations have been reported in southern Nebraska. Cool, wet weather has slowed the development of the pests, but better weather could make them a problem, he said.

"It might mean we won't have many weevils this year, but then again it could mean they just haven't hit us yet," Danielson said in a statement issued Monday.

Leave me alone

Now that spring is here and baby animals are becoming more abundant, Nebraska Game and Parks officials urge anyone finding young or injured animals in the woods or on the ground to leave them alone. Unable to fly yet, this youngster was thought to have still been protected by its mother who was no doubt watching nearby. This Great Horned owl was photographed on the ground in a woodlot southwest of Wayne last weekend.

Court should reverse ruling

Sometimes it takes years for the U.S. Supreme Court even to agree to consider an appeal from a lower court, let alone get around to doing it. This year, this spring, the Supreme Court needs to move swiftly to take action on a truly dumb decision by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals.

That lower court decided that a farmer's routine application of fertilizer to his fields constitutes a "point source" discharge of pollutants, which therefore is subject to particular provisions of the Clean Water Act. Traditionally, and correctly, agricultural operations have been regulated under "non-point source" regulations of the same act. What's the difference?

A point source is defined as an easily recognizable source where pollutants emanate from a specific point or pipe. Point sources are most often associated with industrial sites, for example, a pipe from a factory illegally discharging waste into a river. In contrast, non-point source pollution occurs when the source of the pollution can't be readily traced back to a specific site or pipe. So, if a farmer consistently applied too much nitrogen fertilizer to his fields, the excess could leach into the groundwater, and over time could cause nitrate contamination. Because it is difficult to trace the source of this kind of pollution to its origin, it's regulated as non-point source pollution.

The difference is more than semantic — particularly to farmers who are beginning spring field work and applying nutrients and crop protection products. If applying ag chemicals is defined as a point source discharge of pollution, farmers could be charged with polluting the waters of the United States when they conduct their usual and customary field activities. If the decision by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals isn't overturned, the court's ruling could force farmers to secure federal permits before conducting many routine farming practices. Typically, federal permits are neither cheap nor easy to acquire.

The situation which resulted in the Second Circuit Court's decision occurred in New York. Neighbors of Southview Farm, a dairy farm, said Southview's practice of recycling cow manure by applying it to crop fields constituted a point source discharge of pollution under the Clean Water Act. A provision in that act allows citizens to bring suit in instances of point source pollution. It's very possible that

Prairie tour offered

A Living Prairie Tour will be held May 18 on the farm of Rose, Larry and Monty Mason located approximately 10 miles north of Concord. The Mason's are converting their farm into a living prairie. Until this year their farmland consisted mainly of CRP acres.

The two-hour tour will be open to the public starting a 1:30 p.m. and repeated again at 7 p.m. Keith Jarvi, JPM Specialist; Tim Powell, Farm Management Specialist; Terry Gompert, Extension Educator and the Masons will be present to discuss the living prairie which they call "Tarbox Hollow Living Prairie".

In addition to hearing about the project, tour participants will have a chance for a prairie walk, to see the Mason's buffalo herd, visit converting CRP to grass demonstration plots and observe stewardship in action.

There is no fee for the tour. For more information call the Mason's at (402) 584-2337 or the Knox County Extension Office at (402) 288-4224.

INITIATE NEW EVENT

The Wakefield Community Club hopes to be able to hold BYOB (Bring Your Own Business) every three to four months depending upon turn out. The idea is for three or four businesses to sponsor each BYOB event through a cash donation and the evening would be highlighted by a brief talk about the hosting businesses and its employees.

The first BYOB is scheduled for Thursday evening, June 15 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Logan Valley Golf Course. Tickets purchased in advance will be good for a drink and hors d'oeuvres. Tickets will be available at the Wakefield Dental Practice, Wakefield National Bank and Logan Valley Golf Course for $3.50. Tickets will be $5 at the door.

The Wakefield Community Club has extended an invitation to all business members of the community, spouses and employees to attend.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

The 1995 Governor's Conference on Aging was held April 14-16 in Grand Island. Peggy Gustafson, Dixon County member of the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging Advisory Council, attended all three days.

A public forum was held on Monday to acquaint people with the issues to be covered at the White House conference to be held the first week in May. The White House Conference is held once each decade. The forum was packed with people standing out into the halls, as issues were discussed by a panel and then the floor was open to individuals who wished to make personal concerns and views known to the 18 delegates who will be representing Nebraska in Washington, D.C.

HAPPY HOMEMAKERS

The Wakefield Happy Homemakers Club met May 1 with Pauline Fischer as hostess. The Club Creed was read in unison. Roll call was they had to pay 25 cents if they had not done any work in their garden or flower bed and 10 cents if they had. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was given.

The president thanked Lois Berns and Janice Newton for making muffins for the spring tea held April 29 at the Northeast Station. She thanked Evelyn Kahl for the history she had written about the club and the poster she had made. The poster was on display.

They changed their plans for the tour. They will now go with the Senior Citizens of Emerson to the Bell of Sioux City and Winnadegas on Wednesday, June 28.

The group will host the Ag building at the Dixon County Fair on Monday evening at 6 p.m.

Evelyn Kahl had the lesson on "Positive Effects of TV."

EARN HONORS
Mike McQuistan and Andy Muller, who will graduate from Wakefield High School, have each earned national honors.

McQuistan is one of only 2,000 students throughout the country who have been named a National Merit Scholar. He will receive a $2,000 National Merit Scholarship. He has also been selected as one of eight Nebraska and Northwest Iowa students to earn an Ak-Sar-Ben scholarship. This scholarship is a $4,000 annual award to be applied toward tuition, fees, books, college room and board.

Muller was selected as one of the top five students research projects in the state of Nebraska to be presented at the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) National Convention to be held next February in Baltimore. Md. Muller's selection was made at the Nebraska Academy of Sciences annual meeting in Lincoln on April 28.

"His research project was "Laryngotracheitis: Finding the Right Vaccine." As a result of his effort, he will receive an all-expense paid trip for five days to compete against student scientists from around the country.
