

College growth results in more support for WSC

Wayne State College's growth and its strong case for support have reaped another benefit for the school. The recent session of the Nebraska State Legislature approved significant funding increases for the college that will enhance teaching and instructional facilities.

The funding allocation was approved and further enhanced by the Nebraska State College Board of Trustees at their meeting last week in North Platte.

"The college did quite well in presenting the need for the increase in funding," said Senator Page Engel, who sits on the appropriations committee and represents the 17th legislative district in Nebraska. "The college's faculty and administration do such a good job of educating the young people of the state, and that was recognized through the case they presented to the committee," he added.

Engel said he looked upon higher education as a part of economic development and good colleges in the state were needed to keep good young minds in the state for future growth.

Engel also noted that no other state college has shown such marked growth in student enrollment in recent years, and the college's growing reputation also helped in the funding allocation process. "The job Wayne State is doing is the main thing," he said.

The increase in state funding will enable Wayne State College to hire additional faculty for the coming school year and for the 1996-97 year. The legislature approved a total of $500,000 over the two-year funding period for additional faculty at the state colleges. Wayne State will receive $395,000, or 79 percent of the total as a result of the allocation from the State College Board of Trustees.

General fund budget for Wayne State College also rose. The state college system-wide general fund increase was 10.26 percent for the 1995-97 biennium. WSC's increase was 11.22 percent. The general fund appropriation coupled with the tuition dollars the college collects supports the education and general budget of the college.

The Nebraska State College Board of Trustees approved a system-wide five percent increase in the in-state (resident) undergraduate tuition rate for the 1995-96 academic year. This means per credit hour rates for undergraduates will

Chicken Show plans ready; shirts on sale

Members of the chicken show committee flocked to a meeting Wednesday night to discuss plans for the Chicken Show to be held July 8.

The committee reported that they have been receiving between six and eight inquiries per day from people with questions regarding the show.

This year, the chamber will be placing visitors to Wayne during the Chicken Show into homes of interested Wayne individuals. Those interested in opening their coops to visitors should contact the Chamber.

T-Shirt sales began last week. The shirts, traditionally designed by Wayne-native Marla McCue are the primary source of funding for the Chicken Show. So far, committee member Jane O'Leary reported, they have ordered 1,300 shirts for sale and plan on placing another order. The committee hopes to sell between 1,500 and 2,000.

This year's shirts, which are blue and depict a marching band of hatching eggs in conjunction with the theme "Chickens on Parade", cost $10 until July 4th when the price will go up to $12.50. Shirts may also be purchased by mail for $15.

The committee also crowed about this year's planned events, including the annual parade. Those interested in participating in the parade should contact Kathy Varley, the parade's organizer. There is no

Pistol packin' plan discussed for Nebraska

By Claire Rasmussen
Of the Herald

Though Nebraska is currently one of nine states banning concealed weapons, a study is underway that may change Nebraska's gun laws. State Senator Stan Schellpeper of Stanton and Jerry Schmitt of Ord have introduced a resolution in the Legislature to study concealed weapons.

Senator Schellpeper says he and Schmitt were prompted to study the issue after a number of their constituents wrote them and urged them to introduce a bill to the state legislature allowing concealed weapons. Schellpeper said he was unwilling to propose a bill until the impact of laws allowing concealed weapons in other states was studied.

Sixteen states, including Iowa, allow individuals to obtain permits to carry concealed weapons under certain circumstances such as personal security or protection of money during transport. South Dakota also permits concealed weapons.

Schellpeper said his constituents had several reasons for requesting a concealed weapons bill.

"Most of the letters I received dealt with people's rights to carry concealed weapons. Many also mentioned that they currently carry concealed weapons when they travel and they would like to be able to do so legally."

Schellpeper said that he has received much feedback since he introduced the idea of the study to the legislature. "Most of the feedback has been overwhelmingly positive. There has been little opposition."

Schellpeper said the idea of the study was prompted entirely by the constituents and not by pressure from the National Rifle Association. In fact, Schellpeper said, the NRA was opposed to introducing the legislation at this time because they felt that it was "not right for Nebraska right now."

The NRA won a victory in the Nebraska legislature two years ago when laws governing gun laws in school yards were rewritten.

Schellpeper said he was not sure how he felt personally about the issue and could not make a judgement until the information from the study was received.

Part of the study will involve gathering information about the different types of laws regarding concealed weapons in different states. For example, some states require registration of concealed weaponry. Several states require background checks. This portion of the study will be conducted by the NRA. Schellpeper said he did not expect the information to be biased since it will be purely factual.

The second portion of the study will involve a study of the impact of such laws. Schellpeper said the

Governor is on militia groups' bad side

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

Pushing for greater states rights and work to reduce the power of the federal government to lord over individual states has landed Nebraska Gov. Ben Nelson on the bad side of militia groups, he explained to a group in Wayne Wednesday.

Speaking at the Wayne Rotary Club, Nelson said the ultra-right conservative groups, who he thought would have supported greater states rights, have labeled his effort as a conspiracy to revise the Constitution.

Nelson told the Rotarians 14 states have joined Nebraska in calling for a conference of states to address several key issues concerning the rising federal power. He said other states were expected to join in the conference before the "militia groups threw up roadblocks."

"They said the conference of states was part of the one world order plots," the governor explained. He said the attacks from the right wing extremists were nothing but fear-mongering. He said the groups have accused him of being part of a conspiracy to form a constitutional convention.

He said the conference of states effort was not a plan to form a constitutional convention. Instead he sees the conference of states as an opportunity to prevent the downsizing of the federal government from becoming a "downloading" of unfunded mandates to the states.

"We need to talk about the role and mission of government," he said.

He said one idea being discussed would be to develop "federal pre-emption" whereby if two thirds of the states agree, any federal law could be scheduled to expire.

He said when he talks about the ballooning power of federal government and the new regulations being forced on state and local governments, people accuse him of campaigning for the senate.

He added he has been discussing the same issues for over three years. "Things have got to change," he added.

Responding to a question on whether he will run for the Senate, Nelson said he is still not clear on his decision. He said, however, that he sees the pledge he made to voters and the oath of office he took as a contract with the voters.

"Like any contract, the two parties can come together to change the contract," he added. He said he and the voters of this state could change the contract they have with him, "with their vote. It is up to the people to ultimately decide."

Being cast as a bad guy by militia groups has definitely made the governor nervous. He said the Nebraska State Patrol has beefed up security measures.

He told the Herald after his address to the Rotarians that the armed militia groups currently in vogue were not what the constitution writers had in mind when it was enacted.

He said the cause of right-wing extremists was hurt in the country by the senseless bombing in Oklahoma City. He said he doesn't dis-

Help for families, communities is in the plan

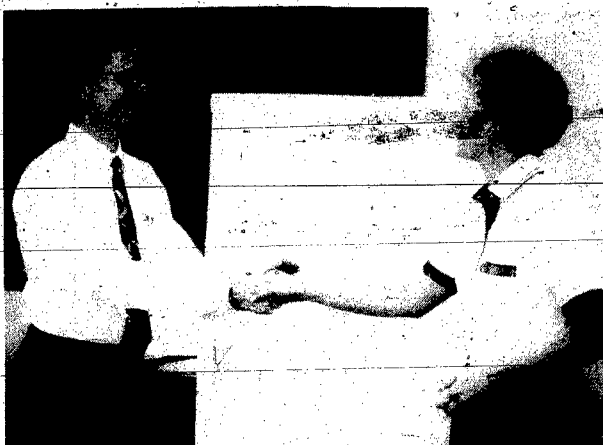

Jeff Hart, Planning Specialist with the Juvenile Justice Division of the Nebraska Crime Commission trained and certified eighteen community leaders to be local "Facilitators" of the "Partners in Planning" at a workshop held in Wayne.

The "Partners in Planning" program is a model process for community based comprehensive planning for children, youth family programs and services. Many state agencies have helped develop this process which is now required as a pre-requisite to receiving a variety of grant funds.

The goals of the program, developed in conjunction with the federal Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, are the preservation of the family unit, promotion of prevention and intervention programs, limitation on intervention, development of alternatives to youth out-of-home placement, treatment in the community as close to home as possible, and to encourage cooperative partnership efforts between the community and the state.

Hart said the program helps communities identify and solve human services problems such as teen pregnancy, affordable housing and transportation issues. Hart said the facilitators learned skills to identify problems and risk factors and plan an attack upon those problems. Hart said one of the greatest problems he sees in communities are parenting problems. Quite often, he said, children

The training was sponsored by the Wakefield Family Resource Center and the University of Nebraska at Lincoln Extension Office in Wayne County.

Area individuals certified as community facilitators are: Jill Jordan, Micki Anderson, Lynda Cruickshank, Daryl Wilcox, and Anneliese Cawthon, all of Wayne, Laura Knox, Andy Muller and Val Vanderveen, all of Wakefield, and Alice Rohde of Carroll.

Several of these facilitators will be participating in the two sessions of "A Comprehensive Community Planning" for Wayne and Dixon Counties scheduled for June 30 and July 21 at the ESU #1 in Wakefield.

Individuals wishing to be involved in the review process may contact Lynda Cruickshank at the Wayne County Extension for registration information (402) 375-3310.

Home loans offered low income families under economic program

The Rural Economic and Community Development (RECD) provides loans to finance homes and make it possible for families or persons of low and moderate income to become owners of decent, safe and sanitary housing.

Loan funds are available for purchase or construction of single family dwellings for applicants who are unable to obtain mortgage loans from conventional sources at rates and terms they can afford to repay, according to Michael Steffen, assistant county supervisor in Wayne.

RECD is placing emphasis on outreach for the socially disadvantaged, specifically those subject to ethnic or gender prejudice without regard to his/her individual qualities, and targeted funds have been designated for these socially disadvantaged groups.

Loans are made for 33 years at a fixed interest which is currently 8.00 percent. Loans can be made for up to 100 percent of the appraised value of the home. Individuals may be eligible to receive interest credit which may reduce the payments to an affordable limit. Individuals are expected to pay at least 20 percent of their income on housing costs.

Housing costs in excess of 20 percent may be subsidized, depending on applicant income and actual housing costs. FmHA also has loan/grant funds available to very low income applicants who own their own home and are in need of repairs to remove a safety or health hazard.

Equal consideration is given without regard to race, color, religion, sex, marital status, age, handicap or national origin.

RECD will help families determine the type of assistance that is suitable to their needs and their income. For additional information, contact the RECD office located in Wayne or phone 375-2360.

Fancy titles mean more compensation

Have a job title? Is it impressive?

Want a raise? Then ask your employer for a new title!

If you are a "Waste Management Technician", someone is sure to explain that when he had the job he was a "garbage man".

Or maybe you are working in social services: "Human Service Technician" rings more bells. "If you're handy as a Custodial Technician," doesn't that sound better than "janitor"? And it should pay more.

Few stores feature "clerks" anymore. They're long gone. Instead, a "Fabric Coordinator" or a "Sales Associate" now asks "May I help you?". Regardless of title, you reply, "No thanks, I'm just looking." Those of us who are "just looking" should have a name like "Visual Connoisseur", and after a lot of experience, we could advance to being "Visual Consultants".

Airline "flight attendants" are no longer "stewards" or "stewardesses". Most jobs are now reclassified.

Let's fantasize a few new occupational names. For instance, we'll call ourselves "Job Modification Engineers". That has to add bucks to the paycheck!

In a macrocosm of career titles, let's call parents "Disciplinary Consultants"; preachers could be "Word Shepherds"; teachers become "Knowledge Coordinators"; farmers might be welcomed as "Crop Specialists"; perhaps food handlers would work better as "Culinary Caddies"; barbers as "Head Engineers"; and pilots as "Control Supervisors".

Accountants, in our new bent on titles, would be addressed as "Digital Architects", and doctors identified as "Medical Chiefs of Operations". Dentists might distinguish themselves as "Oral Architects". We can't miss re-identifying the shoe salesperson as a "Podiatric Pro", and the auctioneer as a "Sales Linguist".

Why on earth be a clerk, worker, laborer, employee or flunky in 1995, when you can have a nice moniker? Go for it!

Why settle for being a wife or husband when you can be a "Complementary Sidekick"?

A well known discount store doesn't hire "employees", they recruit "associates". Other agencies and organizations offer a tier of "officers". There are bank officers, probation officers, police officers, and, of course, every club has officers. Get three Americans together and you must elect officers.

Military and law enforcement organizations glamorize their jobs with titles like: chief, chief deputy, deputy, captain, colonel, lieutenant, lieutenant colonel, general, brigadier general, and admiral.

We humans honor titles. The more creative the better.

"Your Honor" impresses judges more than "Hey there!"

When your honey gets home today, request a title!

"Dear, get me that..." no longer cuts it!

increase from $50 to $52.50. Total cost of attendance for an undergraduate student's tuition (including tuition, fees, room and board) will move from $4,410 to $4,565 at WSC, an increase of only 3.51 percent. "We still feel this is one of the best buys in higher education," said Dr. Donald Mash, president at Wayne State College. Graduate tuition rates will increase from $62.75 per credit hour to $66 per credit hour.

"We are pleased with the recognition of our quality and our growth, as well as our service to the Nebraska region," said Mash. "I believe the legislature and our Board recognize the need for the additional funding to enable us to catch up with our growth and the support is also a response to the fine performance of the college," he added.

Faculty and staff at Wayne State College, and the other state colleges, will receive an average four percent salary hike as a result of action approved by the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State College System.

Wayne State will also be tied into the state-satellite system, known as NEB*SAT, which will allow the college to offer courses to other sites and receive courses from other campuses as well. The legislature approved $88,000 for the installation of the NEB*SAT system and an additional $25,000 to equip a classroom for NEB*SAT operations. One of the advantages of this system will be the ability to offer classes jointly with other institutions at multiple sites simultaneously.

"The additional funding will enable WSC to enhance the quality of teaching for students, continue to improve instructional facilities, and generally improve the quality of the education received by students at Wayne State. "We are in an ideal position to continue offering a top-quality education at a very affordable price," Mash concluded.

Schellpeper said he could not predict the outcome of the study or whether or not the study will become a bill in the legislature.

Wayne Chief of Police Vern Fairchild said he would oppose a concealed weapons bill for a number of reasons. While he could not predict the outcome such a bill would have upon crime in the area, Fairchild said he did believe the bill would have a negative impact.

"It would certainly make our job more difficult. I think it would send a bad message to everyone that they are free to run around with a gun and when they get angry, they can whip it out and wave it around or even shoot it."

Fairchild said he did not think guns were an effective deterrent to crime.

SHOULD YOU TAKE AN ASPIRIN A DAY?

You may have heard several reports that taking one aspirin a day will reduce the risks of heart attacks and stroke. The theory behind the studies utilizes aspirin's ability to thin the blood and therefore reduce the chance of blood clot formation which could potentially cause a heart attack or stroke. These studies prove aspirin to be effective, but not without risks. Before using this daily regimen, it is important to consult with a physician regarding the need, dosage, and risk factors. In addition, the pharmacist can help in choosing the type of aspirin that would be most appropriate and can assess the safety of aspirin with any other medications that you may currently be taking.

Wayne 18-under fast pitch team wins two

The 18-under fast pitch girls softball team from Wayne blasted Wisner, 11-2 last Thursday night in Wayne and improved to 10-1 on the season with a forfeit over Uehling on Monday.

Against Wisner, Wayne pounded out eight hits while pitcher Wendy Beiermann kept the visitors at bay by striking out 11 and allowing just two hits.

Jenny Thompson and Shona Stracke each singled twice to lead the winners while Katie Lutt doubled. Carrie Fink, Molly Melena and Heather Nichols also singled once. Wayne never trailed in the contest, scoring once in the second and four in the third. Wisner scored its two runs in the fourth inning.

Despite earning a forfeit over Uehling, a game was played with a partial team comprised of Uehling players and one Wayne player along with a couple boys that attended the game in Uehling to support the Wayne girls team.

The Wayne girls still came out on top of a 12-5 decision with Wendy Beiermann striking out 10 and allowing six hits in the process. Half of Uehling's hits came from the two Wayne boys, Tim Reinhardt and Mark Zach.

The stats from the game will not count in the season stat totals but unofficially, Beiermann gave up her first homerun of the season to her boyfriend Mark Zach.

Tim Reinhardt, meanwhile, found out when it comes to game-time his girlfriend Heather Nichols is all business and he found out the hard way as Nichols threw him out at first base after snagging a line drive, and later she tagged him out at second when he tried to steal on catcher Carrie Fink.

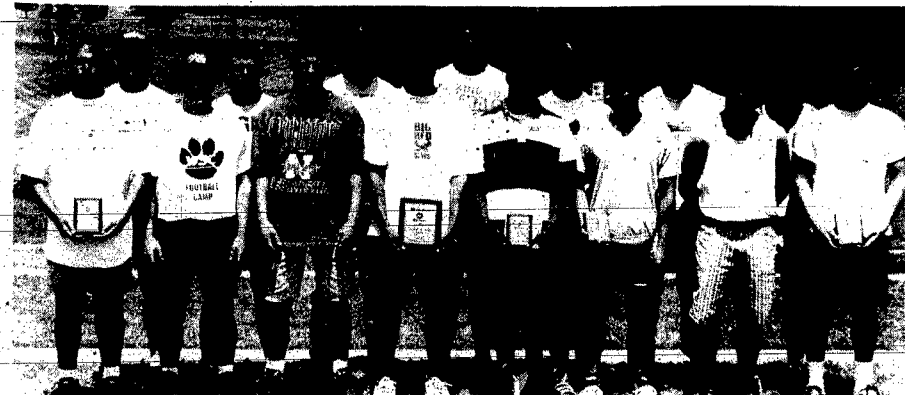

Wayne pounded out 19 hits led by Katie Lutt's homerun and three singles. Heather Nichols tripled and singled twice and Molly Melena doubled and singled twice. Carrie Fink, Jenny Thompson and Shona Stracke each singled twice while Jenni Beiermann, Wendy Beiermann and Kristen Hurlbert each had one base hit.

Wayne will play in Pender on Thursday night before playing in the league tournament over the weekend in West Point. The locals will play Uehling on Saturday morning at 10:45. A Wayne win would advance them to a 9 a.m. game on Sunday in the double elimination format.

Also last week, the 18-under team played a couple practice games with Emerson with Wayne winning both. Katie Lutt struck out nine in leading Wayne to a 15-4 win and Shona Stracke struck out seven while Wayne won the second game with Emerson, 19-13.

Wayne was slated to play in district competition in Fremont, the first weekend in July but all four teams in Waynes' district received automatic bids so no district tournament will be held.

Rare plane returns to Siouxland

By Lee Wrede
For the Herald

A rare Lockheed Constellation military transport made a stop at Sioux City Airport last weekend. Mid American Air Museum sponsored the visit which was tied to a Fly-In/Drive-In Breakfast and Annual meeting.

The Lockheed Constellation reigned as queen of the skies post-World War II before the jet airliner came of age. Between 1943 and 1958 there were 856 "Connies" built. Depending on the layout of the cabin, between 44 and 88 passengers flew in pressurized and air-conditioned comfort that was the best of any plane at that time.

The "Connie" was designed by Howard Hughes for TWA but was flown by airlines all over the world. Hughes flew the first proto-type from Burbank, Cal. to Washington, D.C. in six hours and 57 minutes, setting a new cross-country record.

The Lockheed military transport plane known as the Constellation, made a stop at the Sioux City Airport last weekend. The plane was considered a luxury plane in the 1940's and 50's.

The Lockheed Constellation used by the military was known as the C-121A.

The "MATS Connie" is one of the last flying Lockheed Constellation aircraft in the world. It was delivered to the Air Force on Dec. 31, 1948. During its career, it participated in the Berlin Air Lift when based at Westover Air Force Base and did VIP at Andrews Air Force Base until its retirement in April 1968.

The Siouxland Aviation Historical Society is planning the construction of Mid America Museum near the site of the original airport. They hope to restore the original terminal building to its 1940's decor as well as construct a new museum. One of the areas of interest will be Army Air Corp and Air Force use of the Sioux City area. They are looking for information and aviation artifacts.

For more information contact the Mid America Air Museum, Siouxland Aviation Historical Association, P.O. Box 709, Sergeant Bluff, Iowa 51054-709 or the Constellation Group 15111 North Hayden Road #160-190, Scottsdale, Ariz. 85260.

Kerrey helps schools with access change

Sen. Bob Kerrey (D-Nebr) has offered an amendment to the telecommunications-reform bill being considered by the Senate to make educational technology more affordable for schools in Northeast Nebraska by removing a legal technicality that prohibits US West from offering a direct telecommunications link between the schools and the Wakefield Educational Service Unit.

The provision would aid schools in South Sioux City, Jackson, Hubbard, Walthill, Rosalie, Macy, Winnebago, Homer and Dakota City. It could aid other schools faced with similar problems in gaining affordable access to the Internet because of technicalities in telecommunications law.

"Corporate interests of every stripe have had their influence on telecommunications reform, and now it's time to cut our kids in on the deal," Kerrey said. "This amendment will help secure access to educational technology for schools that currently cannot afford it simply because of a legal technicality that can be easily corrected."

Several schools in the region cannot afford connections to the Internet, distance learning and other educational technology services because of a technical dilemma created by the court ruling that broke up AT&T in 1984. Kerrey's amendment resolves the dilemma.

Under the AT&T ruling, the country is divided into Local Access Transport Area — or LATA — zones. Residents of each LATA receive phone service from a designated Bell Operating Company, such as US West. Bell phone companies like US West offer service within the LATA, but are prohibited by the court order from providing service across a LATA boundary.

The dilemma for schools in Northeast Nebraska is created by the fact that the LATA boundary in the area separates several schools from the Wakefield Educational Service Unit. As a result, US West is not allowed to provide service that would carry connections to the Internet, distance learning or other educational services directly from several schools in Northeast Nebraska to the Wakefield ESU, making those services prohibitively expensive.

Kerrey's amendment changes the law so that regional phone companies are allowed to provide service across LATA boundaries for primary and secondary schools. The Senate adopted it Tuesday night.

"Artificial lines drawn by a court order shouldn't keep kids from access to educational technology that can make a difference in their lives," Kerrey said. "This amendment makes a common-sense correction in the law that will help bring educational technology to all of our kids. The law should help, not hinder, our efforts to educate our kids — and that's what this amendment does."

Celebration planned for Friday

A victory dedication celebration will be held at the Willow Bowl on Friday at 7:30 p.m. to announce the amount of money collected for the Oklahoma City Disaster victims.

The ceremony will consist of prayer time, devotions and music. Pastor Mark Steinbach is in charge of the ceremony, with at least five area pastors assisting him.

During the ceremony, the organizers of the benefit will announce the total amount of money collected and where the money will be going. The group will also explain why they chose the Funds that will receive the money.

Refreshments will be served following the ceremony. "We have received donations of soft drinks and cookies from people who continue to be very generous to our benefit," said Ralph Etter, organizer of the benefit.

"We want a good crowd to share with us and pray with us. The exact amount of money won't be announced until the victory ceremony, but I will say that the amount is over $7,000," said Etter.

In case of rain, the ceremony will be held at Ramsey Theatre on the Wayne State Campus.

Residents raise concerns about Logan Street project

By Claire Rasmussen
Of the Herald

Over fifteen residents of Logan Street attended an informational meeting regarding the proposed street project between 3rd and 7th Logan Street.

The plan, outlined by Salitros at the beginning of the meeting, involves the replacement of the current 4-inch water main with an 8-inch pipe, the replacement of the storm sewer system and a widening of the street to standard 41-foot width. The street is currently 41 feet wide at its widest point but between 4th and 5th street, the street is between 31 and 32 feet and between 5th and 6th streets, the street is 25 feet wide.

The city would pay for the water and sewer improvements. State and federal funds would pay for 80 percent of the widening because Logan is an arterial street, meaning it has sufficient traffic to receive federal monies. No cost would be assessed to the property owners.

Preliminary estimates for the project place the cost for the project around $603,000.

The surface of Logan Street, which is currently brick, would be replaced with cement.

Residents were satisfied with the improvements in water and sewer systems, but many expressed concerns about the effects the widening of the street would have upon their neighborhood.

Recently, twenty-seven out of forty-four property owners along the street signed a petition protesting the proposed project.

Salitros mentioned the petition by saying, "That petition is a cross on my back, and should be on all of yours, too. As long as that petition exists, we cannot legally proceed with any part of this project."

Several objections to the widening were raised at the meeting. Residents were concerned that a widened Logan Street would attract more traffic from Main Street because Logan has no stop signs. Concerns were also raised about Logan being declared an official truck route for Wayne.

Resident Theresa Wurdeman noted, "We have ten kids living in our block and more coming. These kids have to cross the street every day to get to school. We already have traffic from Main Street all the time. And people speed and don't stop at the stop signs crossing Logan."

Many residents also had concerns about the appearance of the street.

Property owner Doug Taber commented, "The attractiveness of the street comes from the bricks and the trees and the irregularity. If you remove that, it will just become another homogenized zone. The quality of life on the street would be seriously damaged."

Also attending the meeting was an engineer working on the project, Mike Yost from Olsson Associates, based in Lincoln. Yost said he noted the complaints of the residents and said his company would consider them in their plans. Yost also noted that no land would have to be taken from residents and all construction would occur outside of property lines.

Vern Schultz, who oversees Wayne streets and sewers, noted that Logan Street was put on a list for improvement in 1971 because it is traditionally known for the heavy traffic and is narrower than new streets. Schultz also noted that the surface under the bricks is deteriorating and needs to be replaced.

Said Schultz, "We need to do the improvements anyway because the sewer system is grossly undersized and the street needs to be wider handle the volumes of traffic. On some parts of the street, there is little room when trucks and cars meet."

Councilperson Jane O'Leary backed Schultz by saying, "The traffic patterns are already there. Patterns aren't set by the city council, they just happen."

Salitros agreed to confer with the state about the minimum width Logan will need to be to receive federal funds.

Since an objection to the plan was filed in the form of the petition, the council will hold a public hearing on the issue next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in City Council chambers.

Co-op Ed places most students ever

The Wayne State College Cooperative Education program has placed a record number of students this summer, and will undergo several changes in the fall.

The Cooperative Education office placed 67 students throughout the region this summer, the largest number of students ever placed in Cooperative Education settings. On-site visits are scheduled for each of the students over the course of the summer.

In the fall, the Cooperative Education program will be combined with the Placement Office, to allow students to have expanded access to placement information. The new office will be called Career Services, and will be located in the new Student Center.

Career Day will be held on Nov. 1 in the Conference Center of the new Student Center, and will be combined with the Social Science/Criminal Justice Division Career Day. The event is expected to attract between 50 and 60 employers.

Psoriasis Responds to Prescription Topical Vitamin

Psoriasis is an incurable skin condition in which there are flat, pink or red lesions covered with silvery scales. The most common form of psoriasis, which is called plaque psoriasis, affects the hands, soles of the feet, knees, elbows, legs, and scalp. If more than 20% of the body is affected, the condition is labeled "severe."

Over-the-counter psoriasis products ingredients deemed safe and effective by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration include coal tar and salicylic acid.

Most of the prescription medicines dispensed for psoriasis are for topical steroids. An ointment approved in 1994 for this condition is calcipotriene (Dovonex). This new medicine is a synthetic form of vitamin D. It is thought that the drug clears psoriasis by stimulating the development and growth of skin cells. The ointment should not be used on the face. Studies show calcipotriene is safe and effective when used in treatment periods of eight weeks.

Old hobby now is new business

Look out Uncle Henry, you've been challenged to a shoot out. Wakefield Band Director Curt Jeffries' summer hobby has turned into a full time business.

Keepsake Video recently opened for business at 216 Main Street and Jeffries, who has made a name for himself video taping weddings and anniversaries, is gunning for Uncle Henry.

"My biggest competitor is an Uncle Henry, who owns a video camera. They figure, 'I'll just get Uncle Henry and he won't charge me anything,' but the comparison is like night and day," explained Jeffries.

"The quality of the picture is dependent upon the quality of the equipment."

And that's just the half of it according to Jeffries.

"How many times have you seen a tape of a wedding, where the most important part, the exchange of the vows, is completely missing?"

"I wire the groom for sound."

Although he is filling his summer months with transferring slides, photos and film to video, and recording special events for people, Jeffries is not ready to give up his teaching career.

There was some fear that maybe there wasn't the market here for this type of business, but by covering Northeast Nebraska, I've been able to keep busy.

"It could be a full time, year round business. But I'm not sure that I want that. Its definitely good for me in the summer, when I'm off from teaching."

Nebraska wants to beef up its image and attract potential workers with an advertising campaign featuring multi-billionaire investor Warren Buffett of Omaha, the chairman of Berkshire Hathaway Inc. and one of the nation's richest men. But a bill to pay for the $1-million marketing effort didn't pass the Legislature.

In northeast Nebraska, the South Sioux City Area Chamber of Commerce worked with officials in Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska on brochures to find workers.

About 50,000 "Come Home to Siouxland" pamphlets were mailed asking people in the area for the names and addresses of family members or friends who might be willing to relocate if the right job were available. About 600 names came back, chamber president Dennis Lauver said, and letters were sent to them.

Some 80 people returned application forms. As of about a month ago, a dozen people had relocated to the area.

"We have two firms in the area that would add 1,000 jobs tomorrow if we had the people," Lauver said.

A major insurance company had been prepared to consolidate its regional offices and add 700 jobs to South Sioux City. "They looked at our low unemployment rate, saw it was tough to find people we need," Lauver said. "They were interested in being here, but passed us up."

Not every city in Nebraska has been hurt by low unemployment rates. Economic development officials in Scottsbluff and North Platte report few problems in filling jobs. But economic development has been hurt in other areas, particularly in the east, which holds most of the state's population.

"There is a labor shortage," said Batt, who worked on the governor's committee that studied the problem. "It is real and it's going to be around for quite a while."

Take care with fireworks

Fireworks related injuries decreased 25 percent in 1994. Sixteen percent of the 79 injuries were caused by illegal fireworks, such as M-80's, cherry bombs and bottle rockets. Before using fireworks, make sure they are permitted in your state or local area.

Second degree burns continue to be the leading type of injury received. Eyes are the most injured part of the body. Over half of the injuries occurred because the victim was in the vicinity of the device when it went off. Do not try to re-light or handle malfunctioning fireworks. Douse and soak them with water and throw them away. Always make sure other people are out of range before lighting fireworks, and never ignite fireworks in a container, especially a glass or metal container.

Fireworks should be used with extreme caution. Older children should be closely supervised and younger children should not be allowed to play with fireworks. Remember, sparklers can reach temperatures in excess of 1,200 degrees.

Parents should supervise the ordering and use of mail order fireworks kits. These kits are illegal components of fireworks which can produce dangerous explosives.

For the safest 4th possible, attend a public display. Check your local newspaper for listings of communities in your area sponsoring firework presentations.

Wakefield firm earns honor from groundwater group

The Groundwater Foundation Association celebrated its 10th anniversary with an awards program. The program was held in Lincoln in May.

The award, named after the late Maurice Kremer of Aurora, honors Nebraskans who have made notable contributions to the conservation and protection of the state's water. Fred Salmon of Wakefield, representing the Salmon families who own the Salmon Well Co. in Wakefield, accepted the award trophy. Others attending were Michael Salmon, Kenneth Salmon, Elaine Salmon, Ruth Salmon, Phyllis Salmon, Dean Salmon and Caroline Gordon.

For over 80 years, the Salmon Well Co. has made significant contributions to the wise management of the state's groundwater. Since 1914 three generations have drilled wells in 14 Nebraska counties, three Iowa counties and three South Dakota counties, involving many thousand feet of test hole drilling. Over the years, 16 members of the Salmon family have worked a total of 452 years, either in the field or in the office. The Salmon families have also made a large contribution to the history of the Nebraska Well Drillers Association. Over the years, Fritz Salmon, Fred Salmon and Kenneth Salmon have served as president of the Association.

Each generation has exemplified professionalism and excellence in the groundwater industry, actively supporting key legislation that promotes proper well construction and abandonment. As family business owners, the Salmons have been active in their community and state contributing time and talent to many groundwater related causes. Their strong groundwater focus and family tradition of service made the Salmons ideal recipients of the Groundwater Foundation 10th Kremer Award.

Dog relief fund is termed huge success

Pet groomer Kimberlee Lowe declares the Oklahoma K-9 Relief effort to be a great success.

"It's right at $500," said Lowe, referring to the monies donated to help fund search and rescue teams working through the debris of the Oklahoma City bombing last month.

"The dog handlers do this on a volunteer basis. They are not paid for their work," she said, adding that she hopes that she will soon have T-shirts available, picturing a dog in a rescue vest.

"This is now an ongoing fund. They're keeping it going so the next time something this devastating happens, there will be funds available to help defray the teams' expenses."

Couple is host to celebrity guest

Between the months of May and September the Farm House Bed and Breakfast at Murdock, owned by Mike and Pat Meierhenry, is always busy but this May they had some special visitors. Actress Laura Dern who was starring in the movie "The Devil Inside," being filmed in Nebraska and several other film crew members stayed at the Meierhenry's Bed and Breakfast throughout much of May.

Dern requested to stay at the Bed and Breakfast after traveling from a filming location in Omaha to the Louise Miller home, another filming location. Dern's production company reserved the guest rooms through much of May.

Dern starred in the films "Wild at Heart" and "Jurassic Park." In 1992, she received an Oscar nomination for her role in the film "Rambling Rose."

Also visiting, the Meierhenrys reported, were Mark Espá, Dern's bodyguard, Alexander Payne, the director of the film, Jim Glennon, the Director of Photography for the film and Jim Taylor, co-author of "The Devil Inside." Dern's mother, Diane Ladd, an actress also appearing in the film, spent one night at the Meierhenry's.

The Meierhenry's were allowed to visit the set while filming was in progress. While on the set, the Meierhenrys were also introduced to actresses Swoozy Kurtz, Mary Kay Place and Kelly Preston, wife of John Travolta.

Since the visit of the crew from "The Devil Inside," the Meierhenrys have also provided lodging for Dave and Barb Anderson, nationally known Christian singers and several of their production crew.

A father's prayer for children

As you may have noticed, it's Father's Day. Which prompts all kinds of cards, ties and sentiment. Our father spent it like he has several other years, chopping more fistles. He's kind of a determined cuss.

So, I went to church by myself, and then out to lunch by myself, over at the Platte River State Park. The buffet featured roast buffalo, which is really quite tasty, and supposedly low in cholesterol. Fortunately, two ladies from church joined me so I didn't have to eat alone.

I spent the rest of the day washing sheets and cleaning showers. Our guests last night were a farm wife from Gering, Neb. and her two daughters. We had such a good visit at breakfast, I was almost late to church. It's amazing how similar farmers are, whether at the eastern end of the state, or the western.

One of the idiosyncrasies has to do with coming to the dinner table. I've decided this is peculiar to men,

Church merger is 'going well'

By Stacy Schaller
For the Herald

Last January, the congregations of St. Paul's Lutheran and the Redeemer Lutheran formally combined to form Our Savior Lutheran Church. Many were excited about the move, and some skeptical. But only time could tell how the arrangement would work out.

Six months have passed since the merger and Pastor Jack Williams was asked to give a "state of the union" address for the Wayne Herald.

PASTOR JACK Williams described the last six months as going quite well.

"I think most people are attempting to make this happen," he said, adding that both the attendance and the giving have increased with the congregation's excitement.

"The Spirit is alive here," Williams commented, describing the driving force behind the consolidation success. Williams added that this move was not without its bumps along the way.

"NOT EVERYTHING is real smooth because things were done differently between the two congregations," said Vice Chairman Dave Olson, noting that the people are having to form new traditions out of the combined traditions of the old churches.

Diane Fry, a member of Our Savior, agreed with that analysis.

"Change has been the biggest obstacle to overcome. It's gone well, and I think it should have been done a long time ago."

THE BIGGEST benefit, mentioned by all those interviewed, was the increase in the number of people to fellowship with.

Leah Dunklau, 12, likes the merger "because I get to meet a lot more people than I knew before." "People are getting to know each other," added Olson.

Not all obstacles have been overcome yet. Because the Redeemer building burned, Our Savior moved into St. Paul's building, which is too small for the entire congregation.

"WE'RE TALKING TO an architect right now concerning an addition or a new complex," Pastor Williams stated. In the mean time, the church is not holding Sunday School for lack of room, and it has added a Saturday evening worship service at 6 p.m.

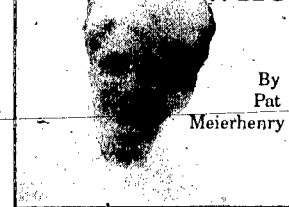

The other current obstacle is locating a new pastor.

Pastor Frank Rothfuss recently moved to a congregation in Hamilton, Ohio. Pastor Williams will also be leaving Wayne and is confident that the Calling Committee will be successful in finding a new pastor.

The old Redeemer building was purchased by the Evangelical Free church of Wayne.

Volunteers from that congregation have been renovating the building and hope to hold the opening service this September.

to another. It still needs new curtains and bedspreads.

Anyway, our service today centered on Family. One of the prayers was by Charlie Shedd: "Lord, I want to remember that my children are not my children. Let me have them manage themselves at the right pace. May they have the self-respect which comes from a growing self-government. Free them from unnecessary resentment.

"From infancy up, may they know how to love because they have seen love at its best. Here in our home may they be taught that they are children of God. May they sense the Divine in others.

"May they know the joy of work well done. Early may they learn what they need for discipline and staying power. As they tie into the problems of society, may they be angry when they should, as they should.

"For the future of all, this is my prayer." And all the people said, "Amen."

Family Resource Center sponsoring community assessment planning effort

There was a story about a man who was standing by a river and saw a child out in the water struggling to stay afloat. The man swam out and rescued the child, but shortly there was another child, and then another child that had to be rescued. After saving the third child a fourth one was spotted. The man who had rescued the first three turned to leave when an onlooker said "Hey, where are you going? There's another child out there." The first man's response was "Why don't you go rescue him? I think it's more important that I go upstream to stop whoever is throwing them in."

Schools, community agencies, volunteers and local governments face a similar dilemma, are they focusing their resources on the urgent rather than the important issues that face youth and families today. They also must ask if they are eligible to receive new program funds from the state and federal government? Do funding guidelines encourage collaboration and prevention or do they have allow for more bureaucracy? Are policies consistent with providing sustained support for families?

These are just a few of the questions volunteers and professionals serving Wayne and Dixon County will be discussing during two sessions of a Comprehensive Community Planning scheduled for June 30 and July 21 at the ESU #1 in Wakefield.

The Wakefield Family Resource Center in Wakefield is sponsoring the community assessment and planning sessions which are funded by a grant from the Nebraska Commission for the Protection of Children. Over 200 invitations to the planning event have been sent out, however, individuals wishing to be involved in the review process, are asked to contact Lynda Cruickshank at the Wayne County Extension Office for registration information, 402-375-3310.

Methodist women host 82

The United Methodist Women entertained eighty-two area women at the group's Guest Day held June 14. Guests attended from Wisner, Pender, Laurel, Winside, Logan Center, Belden, Carroll, Pilger, Stanton and Dixon Methodist Churches.

Julie Clabaugh gave the welcome. Donna Hansen gave devotions and Doris Stipp and Mary Wax presided orsages for Missions to the presidents of groups attending.

Reverend Main led the group in prayer.

Charolotte Reed of Corfolk, President of the Care Planning Committee for the district, was the guest speaker.

Gerda Lipp was the soloist for the event. Connie Webber was chairperson of the serving committee.

The Methodist Women's next will be a 10 a.m. brunch on July 12.

Keep communicating with caregiver

Good day care is tough to come by. There's so little of it that once you've found a place that's right for your child, it's worth putting some energy into seeing that all concerned stay happy and satisfied.

Brushing up on your communication skills can help ensure a mutually satisfying, long-lasting relationship with your child's caregiver. Recognize that certain attitudes curtail the normal flow of communication. We all have them, and we can't betray ourselves in the few moments we have for a quick chat amid a bunch of active children. Some examples of "communication blockers" are:

•Blaming, as in "It's your fault my daughter's cranky in the evening."

•Generalizing by using such words as "always" and "never," as in "You never look in your mailbox to see if I left a note for you there," or "You always give snacks too late so he won't eat his dinner."

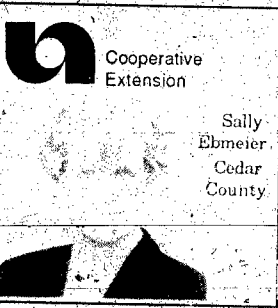

•Name-calling, as in "You're such a disorganized person you can't set up an activity, so the kids end up watching too much TV."

•Labeling, as in "You're such a child care expert, I can't expect that you'll follow my way of disciplining my own child."

•Giving unasked for advice, as in "If you moved those two tables to the corner, the kids would have more room to play."

•Moralizing, as in "Day care providers who really care about children don't give them sugary snacks."

•Giving orders or threatening, as in "I want you to change my daughter's diapers every two hours whether she needs it or not," or "I'll

Cooperative Extension
Sally Ebmeier
Cedar County

pull my son out if he gets any more bruised knee."

•Excessive questioning: "Diverting or avoiding the other's attention."

Some of the examples here are a bit heavy-handed to make the point; nonetheless, most of us can recall falling back on perhaps more subtle forms of blame or labeling, or conveniently "not hearing" a caregiver's complaint, especially when we're tired or frustrated as is often the case when picking up a child at the end of the day.

Acknowledge communication blockers for what they are — counterproductive habits likely to turn a good thing sour.

To further the open give-and-take needed to build an enjoyable and enduring relationship, try instead communication helpers. These get people talking to each other in the best of times so when problems arise you can work together for mutually satisfactory solutions. Try this instead:

•Door openers, which are invitations to talk, letting the other person decide whether or not to proceed, as in "You look tired. Been a tough day?"

•Encouragers, as in "I'd like to hear more about the teachers' concerns."

•Open question, as in "What do you hope my child will gain from being here?"

These let other people know that you want to hear what they have to say, you are concerned about them and appreciate their points of view.

Communication helpers are most effective if you convey attention by looking the other person in the eye and keeping your body relaxed. If possible, move slightly away from the children so you both can focus on the conversation with less distraction. Using communication helpers conveys your intention to be a good listener.

How to get a child out of a bad mood

Q. My little girl is sometimes sugar-sweet, and other times she is unbearably irritating. How can I get her out of a bad mood when she has not really done anything to deserve punishment?

A. I would suggest that you take her in your arms and talk to her in this manner: "I don't know whether you've noticed it or not, but you have two 'personalities.' A personality is a way of acting and talking and behaving. One of your personalities is sweet and loving. No one could possibly be more lovable and happy when this personality is in control. It likes to work and look for ways to make the rest of the family happy.

"And all you have to do is press a little red button, 'ding,' and out comes the other personality. It is cranky and noisy and silly. It wants to fight with your brother and disobey your mom. It gets up grouchy in the morning and complains throughout the day.

"Now, I know that you can press the button for the neat personality or you can call up the mean one. Sometimes it takes some punishment to make you press the right button. If you keep on pressing the wrong one, like you have been today, then I'm going to make you uncomfortable, one way or the other. I'm tired of that cranky character, and I want to see the grumpy one. Can we make a deal?"

When discipline becomes a game, as in a conversation such as this, then you've achieved your purpose without conflict and animosity.

Q. How can I teach my teen the value of money?

A. One good technique is to give him enough cash to meet a particular need, and then let him manage it. You can begin by offering a weekly food allowance to be spent in school. If he squanders the total on a weekend date, then it becomes his responsibility to either work for his lunches or go hungry.

This is the cold reality he will face in later life, and it will not harm him to experience the lesson while still an adolescent.

I should indicate that this principle has been known to backfire. A friend of mine has four daughters, and he provides each one with an annual clothing allowance when they turn 12. It then becomes the girls' responsibility to budget their money for the garments they will need throughout the year.

The last child to turn 12, however, was not quite mature enough to handle the assignment. She celebrated her 12th birthday by buying an expensive coat, which cut deeply into her available capital. The following spring, she exhausted her funds and wore shredded stockings, tattered panties and frayed dresses for the last three months before her birthday. It was difficult for her parents not to intervene, but they had the courage to let her learn this valuable lesson about money management.

Perhaps your son has never learned the value of money because it comes too easily. Anything in abundant supply becomes rather valueless. I would suggest that you restrict the pipeline and maximize the responsibility required in all expenditures.

Q. Do you believe that genuine love between a husband and wife is permanent, lasting a lifetime?

A. It can be, and indeed, should be. However, even genuine love is a fragile flower. It must be maintained and protected if it is to survive. Love can perish when a husband works seven days a week . . . when there is no time for romantic activity . . . when he and his wife forget how to talk to each other.

The keen edge on a loving relationship may be dulled through the routine pressures of living. Where does your marriage rank on your hierarchy of values? Does it get the leftovers and scraps from your busy schedule, or is it something of great worth to be preserved and supported? It can die if left unattended.

The Golden Years

By: Connie Dishrow

The number of living veterans of world War II has declined to about nine million — all in their late 60s or older. A total of 18 million Americans served in the ArmForces in that war. About 40 percent were volunteers, 60 percent draftees. More than 300,000 lost their lives in World War II, including 11,000 merchant seamen. Although the U.S. has engaged in several wars since 1945, those who served in World War II still represent one-third of the veteran population.

Gerald Marks at 94 recalled the break that launched a songwriting career that included "All of Me" and "Is It True What They Say About Dixie?" He had visited New York from Michigan in 1931 to sell "All of Me," but music publishers rejected it. Back in Detroit he sang it, playing a piano, in the dressing room of popular vaudeville singer Belle Baker. "She plugged my song and made it a hit all by herself."

City Administrator Joe Salitros, right, receives a check from Cap Peterson, Employers Mutual Insurance Company representative. The city of Wayne received a refund of over $4,000 for participation in an employee safety program.

Safety effort saves city insurance costs

By Les Mann
Of the Herald

The City of Wayne has received a check for over $4,000 as a refund from its insurance carrier.

The funds were being returned to municipalities which participated in an employee safety program implemented three years ago in Nebraska.

"The program resulted in fewer personal injury losses among the 291 cities and the corresponding loss ratio savings were returned to those cities in the form of $264,578 in dividend payments," explained Cap Peterson, Wayne insurance agent who represents Employers Mutual Insurance Companies, the underwriter for the city.

He said Wayne's participation in the successful program not only represents a monetary savings to community tax payers, but also represents an even more valuable human savings from fewer injuries and personal losses.

In announcing the program savings, EMC Companies quoted former Wayne Mayor Bob Carhart, who was instrumental in implementing the program through Nebraska Municipalities.

"There is something we, the city leaders, can do to save insurance dollars and personal cost of injuries," said Carhart. "We should plan to control insurance expenses rather than plan to pay their expenses."

Peterson, a principal with Northeast Nebraska Insurance, said the program developed employee participation and intra-city review of safety and work practices in different municipal departments.

Employee committee participation in developing safety programs has been proven successful, said Peterson. He added Wayne city employees and leaders were at the fore in developing new safety practices which have resulted in direct cost benefits for municipal taxpayers.

Nitrogen loss feared with moisture

Continual rains throughout May kept soils more than adequately wet and nitrogen losses are expected. "Concern about early applied nitrogen remaining in the corn root zone is valid under these circumstances," said Charles Shapiro, NU Extension Soils Specialist. "Producers may want to move sidedress nitrogen applications ahead or apply additional nitrogen through irrigation systems if their situations indicate excessive losses."

Nitrogen losses could have occurred through two processes: denitrification and leaching.

Denitrification occurs when soils remain waterlogged, Shapiro explained. "Under saturated conditions, certain bacteria thrive in soil which converts nitrate to several gaseous nitrogen forms which are lost to the atmosphere." Typically this is not a problem in Nebraska. Significant nitrate losses occur when soils are saturated for several days, Shapiro said. "This process proceeds more rapidly as temperatures rise." Temperatures have been relatively low this season so most areas will not have excessive denitrification losses.

Potential leaching losses are a concern on sandy soils. Because some sandy soils are shallow, less than two feet deep, nitrate movement beneath the rooting depth requires additional nitrogen to achieve acceptable yields. Since the nitrogen has been wet, roots will never grow into nitrogen as they might in deeper soils.

To estimate potential leaching, the following information is needed: soil texture, infiltrated moisture and pounds of nitrate in the soil. "Soil texture gives the amount of water holding capacity and an estimate of movement and infiltration," Shapiro said. Generally sandy soils hold about one inch of water per foot while heavier textured soils hold about two inches per foot. Water movement can be calculated based on water infiltration. "If three inches of water entered the soil then, for sands, the top three feet will be saturated," Shapiro said. If the same amount of water entered a silt loam, only the top 18 inches will be saturated. Leaching becomes a greater problem if soils were already saturated.

The nitrate concentration is already diluted with the additional water and this diluted concentration will leach.

Sandy soils that receive more than three inches of rain will have moved early applied nitrogen below the developing root zone.

Shapiro noted that it is difficult to estimate precisely how much nitrate is in the soil solution. Early nitrogen applications of anhydrous ammonia take time to convert to nitrate. "With the cool spring weather, the conversion process was slower than usual," Shapiro said. Other materials such as ammonium sulfate, and urea need to convert to nitrate as well. Nitrification will be complete in three weeks if temperatures are above 75F. At 52 F the process will take 12 weeks to complete with about half of it completed in three weeks. The conversion factors are not exact, but will allow producers to estimate what losses may have occurred and whether any corrections are necessary.

Another method to determine additional nitrogen needs is to take soil samples. The sidedress nitrate test (PSNT) can determine the need for supplemental nitrogen. "The PSNT is most useful in situations where mineralization may occur such as following alfalfa or annual applications of manure," Shapiro said. Either one- or two-foot samples can be taken, but under Nebraska conditions a two foot sample may give more consistent results. Local research has not been completed so the test is still in the experimental stage, but Iowa recommendations suggest taking at least 24 cores per sample. "Where fertilizer is applied as a band," Shapiro said, "the distance between bands should be sampled at eight equidistant locations at three areas in the field."

No additional nitrogen is needed where soil nitrate levels fall between 21 and 25 ppm, however, if nitrate loss is suspected, nitrate levels will most likely be much lower. Iowa recommendations indicate it takes eight pounds of nitrogen to increase soil nitrates one ppm. "Remember, this test was developed for making nitrogen recommendations and not to determine mid-season nitrate losses so caution must be exercised when using the procedure for this purpose," Shapiro said.

CRP tour is Friday

The public is invited to the 1995 CRP tour at the Northeast Research and Extension Center at Concord on Friday, June 23 beginning at 2:30 p.m. Topics will include the latest information on returning CRP land back into production.

Moths show up

Light traps at the Northeast Center near Concord caught a significant number of European corn-borer moths on the night of June 14, said NU Extension Entomologist John Witkowski. This first catch is at least two weeks later than usual, Witkowski added.

Moths will deposit egg masses on corn within the next two weeks, but survival will primarily rely on the weather and corn height. "Survival of the small larvae is poor in susceptible corn less than about 17 inches in extended leaf height," Witkowski said. Because of this, corn height is likely to be the most limiting factor. High temperatures and humidity favor survival.

Field scouting in early July will determine the severity of the first brood corn borer problem, said Witkowski.
