

City: Heat does not mean hike

By Eric McCarty
Of the Herald

Even though power generation in Wayne and N.E.braska reached record highs in July and August, the city does not plan to implement across-the-board electric rate increases for at least two more years.

City Administrator Joe Salitros said the city hopes to fight high electrical demand with control devices instead of rate increases.

Salitros would like to continue Wayne's history of stable rates. The last flat rate increase was in 1982.

Gene Hansen, Superintendent for Electric Generation for the Wayne Power Plant (WPP), said the plant is in the process of assessing the figures from the past two months. "We're trying to find out what the damage was for the summer," he said.

Air conditioner load control devices have been offered to WPP customers at no extra cost over the past several years. Hansen said customers have requested a rebate for those using the devices since they are saving electricity.

Salitros would not comment on the city's considerations on the request.

BOTH THE NEBRASKA Public Power District (NPPD) and WPP are reporting new records in monthly and hourly electrical production during July and August. WPP is leased to NPPD. The Wayne plant buys wholesale electricity from NPPD and sells it to the customers.

The afternoons of August 28 and 29 pushed the WPP hourly peak record to 11.9 megawatts. One month earlier, the NPPD hourly peak climbed to a record high of 1,923 megawatts at 5 p.m. on July 28th.

Monthly generation records were

WSC, others don't need 'University'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska's three state colleges are proof that institutions of higher learning don't need the "university" tag to prosper and grow.

Skeptics thought the colleges would struggle and follow Kearney State's example in 1991 by joining the University of Nebraska system. However, enrollments and state allocations for Chadron, Peru and Wayne state colleges have done well in recent years.

"It was in the back of my mind that after the Kearney move, that somewhere within a three- to five-year period, we would put the other three under the (NU) Board of Regents as well," said state Sen. Jerome Warner, a member of the Legislature for 33 years.

That move now appears unlikely considering full-time enrollments have grown steadily this decade at Chadron and Wayne.

Chadron State grew 32 percent from 1,843 in 1990 to 2,425 last fall and Wayne State rose by 19 percent from 2,644 to 3,154. Enrollment dipped by about 2 percent for that same period at Peru, which has been plagued by financial problems. The college since has dug itself out of a $446,000 debt and is financially healthy, President Robert Burns told the Omaha World-Herald.

While Chadron and Wayne full-time enrollments grew from 1990, the University of Nebraska's Lincoln and Omaha campuses fell about 2 percent in their student numbers.

"In the years that I've been here, I don't think that I've ever seen the college so healthy, by most of the common indicators," said Sam Rankin, Chadron State's president since 1986.

The attraction for state colleges may be linked to their size and price tag.

"I think the students and families that are looking for small schools at very good value... are very pleased at what they find on the three state college campuses," said state Sen.

Countian killed in home fire

A mobile home fire early Sunday morning resulted in the death of 31-year-old Ted Risor of Winside.

The Wayne Police Department received a call from a neighbor at 3:58 a.m. to respond to the call. The Winside Fire Department was dispatched to the scene.

Donny Nelson, Winside Fire Chief, said the fire had been smoldering for about two hours when the department arrived. The Carroll Fire Department was also called onto the scene for the use of its ventilation equipment.

The fire was put out within minutes after the fire teams arrived.

The investigation completed Sunday revealed "careless handling of smoking material as the cause of the blaze," according to Assistant State Fire Marshall Curly McDonald. An "overstuffed" chair caught fire in the living room and spread throughout the mobile home. Risor was found in the kitchen.

Coroner Mike Pieper pronounced the victim dead at 5 a.m. of smoke inhalation. McDonald said that a smoke alarm did sound in the home, but was unable to tell whether Risor was awake at the time of death.

Plane was in Wayne before Omaha crash

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza airplane crashed at Eppley Airfield on Saturday during takeoff. One person was killed, three were in critical condition.

The plane had made a stop in Wayne earlier that day. Burt Hubbard, the pilot who was killed in the accident, had been in the area visiting relatives at Allen before flying to Omaha.

The other three passengers on the plane, Hubbard's wife Vickie, 42, of Colleyville, Texas; Hubbard's daughter, Schalee Lodge, 37, and her son Christopher Goff, 16, both of Sandy, Utah were injured in the crash and remain hospitalized at St. Joseph's Hospital in Omaha.

Hubbard's parents, Vern and Lesta Hubbard live in Allen and had arrived in Wagner, S. D. to attend a family reunion just hours before they learned of the fatal crash.

"I'm glad the family was all together and we weren't alone when we got the news," said Lesta Hubbard. "In Allen, we have no real close relatives at all—it's really been

One-woman play 'Chicks' kicks off new season

The Wayne Community Theatre's 1995-96 season opens Sep 14th with a one-woman show entitled "Chicks" a "Chicks" was written by Grace McKeane and explores the personal growth of Irish immigrant Mary Margaret Phallon, a midwestern, rural school teacher.

The four scenes of the play portray Miss Phallon at four different times in her life in her rural school room. The comedy and drama which abounds in her students' lives and in her own is brought to light through her unconventional teaching methods and personality.

"Rollickingly funny and touchingly poignant," is how Dan Badorf, of Wayne Community Theatre, describes the play.

STARRING IN "Chicks" is Gwen Jensen. She, husband, Alan, and children, Billie and Chad, live on a farm in Wakefield.

Mrs. Jensen was involved in theatre at Wayne High before graduating in 1978. She was instructed there by Ted Blenderman, who is directing "Chicks". Blenderman still teaches art at WHS and designed the set.

Mary Margaret Phallon (Gwen Jensen) rings school into session in the four-scene, one-woman play, "Chicks". The play begins Sep 14 at the Carriage House Theatre. Tickets can be purchased at State National Bank and Sav-Mor Pharmacy.

Over-the-counter Acne Products

Acne, the most common adolescent skin disorder, involves the oil gland and hair follicles of the skin, and results in white heads, blackheads, pimples, and blemishes. Acne is seen commonly at puberty and flare-ups may occur due to hormonal changes associated with menstruation or pregnancy, local irritation or friction, and some types of cosmetics. There is little evidence to support a direct link between diet and acne. A good starting point for the treatment of acne is proper skin hygiene. The affected areas should be washed twice daily (more frequently if the skin is oily), avoiding vigorous washing, oil-based cosmetic products, and picking at lesions. Many over-the-counter acne medications are available, but should be reserved for those with acne of mild to moderate severity that does not involve inflammation. The skin should be gently cleansed before applying a topical medication, and care should be taken to avoid the eyes and lips. If irritation or excessive burning occurs with any of the medications, they should be discontinued. Ask your pharmacist for more information on over-the-counter acne medication. There are many situations in which self treatment of acne is inadequate. If inflammatory acne consisting of pustules, nodules or cysts is evident or if attempts to cure acne results in unsatisfactory outcomes, the aid of a physician should be sought.

helpful to have our family around."

Airport executive director Don Smithy, who was in the tower at the time of the crash, said he saw the airplane attempting to take off before the pilot banked the plane to the left, apparently to avoid any buildings, and crashed in a grassy area, about 150 yards from the runway. The crash occurred around noon. It appeared the airplane could not gain altitude, Smithy said.

Some fuel spilled, but airport emergency vehicles had sprayed fire-retardant foam on the fuel within a minute of the crash, preventing any flames.

Smithy said it was the first fatal crash at the airport since 1976, when a four-engine DC-6 owned by the Mexican government crashed, killing the five-person crew.

The orange and white plane ended up nose down, with the wings perpendicular to the ground. The plane's fall was not evident from a nearby roadway. Smithy said the plane disappeared from the tower's view when it turned to the west and he was unable to say exactly how the plane hit the ground.

Seconds before the plane went down, the pilot asked the air-traffic control tower for permission to return to a runway for an emergency landing, Campbell said.

A controller cleared him to land "anywhere you want," Smithy said.

Andy Long is that kind of student. The senior said class sizes are small enough at Wayne that students have a chance to become acquainted with professors.

"I think a small campus gives students a better opportunity to get involved and to get to know more people a little better than they would at a Lincoln or an Ohio State," Long told the World-Herald.

The state colleges also charge less — $52.50 percent credit hour this fall, compared with University of Nebraska-Lincoln's $72.75, the

WSC telethon

The Wayne State Alumni Office will be conducting a telethon in conjunction with First Bank Card Center to market the WSC no fee Visa card.

Beginning September 11, WSC alumni will be targeted for the cards which will fund college programs at no extra cost to the user. "Every time you use the Wayne State Visa you will help fund college programs and create even more awareness of your Alma Mater," said Devon Coble, director of alumni affairs.

"Our Visa card program began in 1989 and now has 800 cards in use," reported Coble.

Friends of the college will not be called during the telethon, but are eligible for a card and are encouraged to pick up an application at the Alumni Office.

Coop success

Wayne State College's Cooperative Education Program had 79 students participating in career related work experiences this summer. "We have had a successful summer," said Jason Barellman, coordinator for Cooperative Education. She added, "Besides having increased participation in the program, we are also pleased with the number of full-time job offers our students received as a result of their Co-op experience."

Five Cooperative Education students were offered and accepted full-time positions with their co-op employers. All five of the students who were doing their co-op experiences with the First National Bank of Omaha were offered the opportunity to continue their co-op/internship at the First National Bank Card Center in Wayne. Nearly all of the 79 students who participated were visited by faculty members or Co-op Education Staff.

The Cooperative Education program combines undergraduate work experience with classroom learning. The work experience occurs in positions which are relative to a student's major, and which will enhance the undergraduate education of the student.

The Wayne Community Theatre is in need of financial patrons, according to Dave Headley of the group.

The Theatre needs funds to pay the $300 per month rent for their facilities at the Mineshaft Mall.

"We really need patrons to help with the cost of our facilities," said Headley.

ESU trains teachers on improvement

The new school year began on a little different note for faculty, staff and administrators at Wayne schools. Teachers, aides, administrators, staff and school board members gathered at Riley's Cafe Aug. 21 to listen to Betty Uhing, ESU #1, talk on an organizational plan for school improvement.

During the 1994-95 school year, Betty devoted time to training 16 teachers, administrators and a school board member on how to implement the plan called the McRel A+ Model of school improvement into the Wayne Community Schools. The group, now referred to as the High Expectations Committee, was trained to implement the program which emphasizes achieving educational excellence.

"The program is designed to improve the educational process for all students and set priorities," said Dr. Robert Uhing, the district's special projects director. "Like a thriving business, a great school system is continually looking for ways to improve. All the standardized testing administered to the Wayne school district students indicate they are receiving an outstanding education. Our teachers are doing a great job in the classroom," he said.

What the A+ program enables the district to do is have school staff examine ways the district can even get better, Uhing explained.

The program increases student achievement by improving the performance of teachers, paraprofessionals, staff and administrators.

Seven steps involved in the A+ program include: 1. develop a decision-making process; 2. collect information regarding current levels of school efficiency, effectiveness and excellence; 3. analyze the collected data and select a starting point for implementing the A+ program; 4. select the appropriate tactics; 5. set long range goals and develop a plan for achieving a higher-level of excellence; 6. implement the plan at the organizational and instructional levels, and continue to monitor efficiency, effectiveness and excellence; 7. adapt and institutionalize the most productive strategies and tactics.

Additional key points Betty Heier emphasized in her presentation were: this program of improvement is continual and ongoing; it demands a commitment by the school district; and most importantly, the decision-making process involves staff, faculty, administrators and board members working collaboratively to improve what we do for students.

When Betty's presentation on school improvement was finished everyone was asked to comment or ask questions. The overwhelming response by teachers, administrators and school board members was extremely positive.

"While everyone agreed this process will take time, energy and commitment the rewards seem well worth it," said Uhing.

School still needed

The Wayne School Board was correct in its decision earlier in the summer not to ask voters again this year to consider a bond issue for new school construction.

The need is still great to replace or remodel an antiquated old Middle School structure that is inaccessible to many, inadequate for today's curriculum demands and inefficient when it comes to energy consumption.

The timing is not right this year to win voter approval for the bond issue which was rejected by a narrow margin last December. Crop conditions, valuation changes and economic conditions make the board's decision to hold off until next year seem the wise choice.

We still believe, based on what we have seen in other districts which have tried to remodel old buildings into modern school facilities that the most practical and economical route for the district to take would be to build a new facility.

A new high school building with the middle school students moving into the old school building is one possible alternative being considered. Remodeling the old building is still being considered as are a return to the plan to add a new wing on the existing high school to be used by middle schoolers.

Whichever alternative comes out on top, it is important to remember the commitment the community has made to excellence in education and to accept the obligation to continue that commitment by providing adequate facilities for the students.

We are heartened to see students coming out of Wayne with among the highest test score averages in the state. Our teachers and administrators are turning out an excellent product.

It is our obligation as a community to continue to give them the tools they need to maintain those high standards.

We think a new building is part of that obligation.

Capitol News

Squeaky political wheel gets grease

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — There's an old saying in politics: the squeaky wheel gets the grease. Last week, a well-seasoned special interest squeaked a symphony at the State Capitol in drumming up support to save the threatened Medicare program.

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) organized a 30th anniversary party for Medicare, which was signed into law by then President Lyndon Johnson in 1965.

Usually, these kinds of symbolic commemorations by special interest groups (like tax groups, organizations that represent the poor, etc.) go largely unnoticed by politicians and the media.

But when senior citizens speak, politicians and the press listen. After all, these people vote and vote often (and, for that matter, buy and read newspapers).

That's why, on a muggy August morning, U.S. Sen. J.J. Exon, a Democrat, showed up to deliver a fire-and-brimstone speech against Republican plans to slash the Medicare budget.

That's why Gov. Nelson delivers an official proclamation commemorating the day, and why Lincoln Mayor Mike Johanns stops by to deliver a brief, welcome address.

It's just good politics.

The GOP plans to cut $270 billion from Medicare and $182 billion from Medicaid, the health-care program for the poor, over the next seven years as part of its effort to cut federal spending.

Republicans argue that the cuts are necessary to cut the federal debt and avoid bankrupting the Medicare program.

Exon said hogwash and some equally inflammatory things, proving that even at age 74, he can still deliver a pretty stiff political jab.

He said Republicans were putting Medicare on the chopping block to finance a $245 billion tax break that would help the rich. (This isn't so surprising. Aren't Democrats supposed to defend social programs and aren't Republicans always seeking tax cuts for the wealthy?)

"It's a disgrace and it should be so termed," the senior senator from Nebraska said. "And it will drive million of seniors over the edge, back toward poverty, back into fear and back into a second-class health care system."

Older Americans, Exon said, used to rely on charity to provide medical care. As early as 1959, one in three senior citizens lived in poverty, he said, a problem that has been resolved through Medicare and Social Security.

Exon emphasized, of course, that those two programs were enacted by Democrats over the protests of Republicans.

The Omaha World-Herald included a response from the GOP in its story.

State Republican Party Chairman Chuck Sigerson said Exon was fear mongering. He said the tax cuts would not affect Medicare, and that unless the Republican Plan is adopted, Medicare will go bankrupt by the year 2002.

"When you run out of ideas, all you can hope to do is scare people to death," he said.

Exon said it was the GOP that was spreading false alarms, and pledged to do everything he could in the Senate to halt the cuts.

The crowd applauded and prepared its banners and letters for the upcoming fight in Congress.

It's not too hard to predict who will be the winner.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

DEJA VU ALL OVER AGAIN

Happiness means many things

Searching for happiness?
The "pursuit of happiness" is a God-given unalienable right in our Declaration of Independence. Interesting how we humans differ in the pursuit!

Happiness may be the smell of fresh parked coffee on a cold winter morning...or the smell of hot buttered popcorn at the movies. Memories are often related to scents. Newly mown hay smells great...unless you have allergies. Then there's the smell of bacon and eggs sizzling in the skillet!

Happiness has to be fixing up the house! You paint here and dab there. Then you notice the old drapes, and buy new. The drapes look super, but the carpet shows wear, so happiness is getting new carpet. Immediately, everything is perfect...except we really should remodel the bathroom and kitchen. Happy yet? Nope! Just look at that old couch and chair. Ah!

Happiness will be here if we replace the furniture! Bingo! No sooner said, than done! Now we'll be happy!

Who's kidding who? We'll finally have happiness if we re-do the family room! O.K., O.K., I promise, this will be the final project! I know I'll be happy when we get the family room done.

Hon, I hate to say it, but I'm sure we'd have happiness if we converted that small bedroom into an office! Yes! We'll need office furniture. We'll need a computer and modem, so we can get online! I know if I get on the Internet and visit I'll find happiness out there someplace!

People spend thousands to fix, fix, fix the nest...but does it bring happiness? Probably not. Happiness is going someplace! All idiots know that! Happiness is shopping and buying something new! Happiness is beyond the next hill, the next vacation, or "getting away from it all".

You've got to be kidding! After spending $20,000 fixing up the house, why is getting away from it all, and going "some place else", more fun?

Getting home can make one happy, whether getting home from work, the hospital, a vacation, or from just about anyplace. Fun to go, but it is always nice to get home.

How many hours has it taken you to accumulate your "stuff"? Are you enjoying it?

Estate sales announce someone has left their "stuff" behind.

Others bid on it hoping they are but one more trinket away from satisfaction!

Is happiness what possesses you, or what you possess? Keep looking!

Week is crucial

Dear Editor:
This week is crucial to not only our country but to the world.

I wonder how many people are aware of what is going on in Beijing, China, where delegates from more than 170 nations are attending the United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women.

To begin with, it seems odd that

China was chosen to host the conference. No country has abused and oppressed more women than China. It has a forced abortion policy and allows only one child per family. China monitors menstrual cycles so it can identify young women with unapproved pregnancies and thus force abortions. China is so biased against women that the sex ratio in large regions of China favors males by 64 percent.

Also, the United States Foreign Relations Committee has begun investigations in China concerning the execution of young prisoners for the purpose of harvesting their organs while their bodies are still warm. The organs (kidneys, livers, hearts, etc.) are then sold at black market prices to Westerners. Another atrocity reported is aborted

End zone no place for public prayer

The football season is off and running and we have already enjoyed (mostly) a couple of exciting games involving the Wildcats and Blue Devils. And, oh, yes there was the Husker route last week that set the football juices flowing.

But the season hasn't started without controversy.

There's the new "no taunting" rule in college football which is a good thing, generally speaking, but has drawn criticism from religious circles who don't like the part of the rule which bans end zone prayers after touchdowns.

After recent year's outrageous field antics by mostly Florida teams in post season bowl games it was inevitable that the NCAA would pass a new rule. What wasn't anticipated was that the rule would include a ban on post-touchdown prayers as part of the improper on-field displays.

One of the first taunting calls of the season went against the Nebraska Cornhuskers, arguably the least likely of teams to be criticized for taunting. A finger in the air (the right one) signifying number one is now taboo, I guess. The penalty seemed a little petty to me.

In recent years Wayne State teams have been flagged occasionally for excessive exuberance. I saw a noticeable tone change on the sidelines Saturday in Omaha. It was probably the result of the new rule, but it also could have been the closeness of the contest. Anyway, more to the point, should the NCAA be telling players they can't kneel and thank The Almighty for safely delivering them from their enemies when they cross the goal line?

Mann Overboard
By Les Mann

My Christian brothers may vilify me for saying so, but I think the NCAA rule is right. Sports stars have much better opportunities to evangelize their Christian beliefs than to publicly pray so thousands can see them do it.

Somewhere in the Bible I once read that when we really want to talk to God the best way is to go to a private place and do so. He is telling us that prayers said for show, like the Biblical pharisees who prayed in public and beat their chests and wailed aloud, are not as good as prayers said privately.

Now the NCAA is telling us that too. Team prayers are okay says the NCAA, in correctly interpreting the Biblical principle, but the individual "Hey, look at me, I'm praying," displays are illegal.

On the subject of religion and sports, I noticed in my son's Sports Spectrum magazine this month a cover story on Tom Osborne. In it he talked about his faith and its relationship to his career.

"Faith and belief in God transcends what other people think and public pressure," said Osborne. "It is more important to me that I am true to my faith than that I please other people." He said he does not force his faith on other people, including his players but he makes sure they know about the importance of character and that they understand what his personal interpretation of character is.

In other words he leads by example. And the example he sets never tries to call attention to himself or his individual role.

That seems to fit in well with the new no end zone prayer rules.

Legends clothing redresses Main Street store

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

"We are trying to bring fashion and nostalgia together," said Ed Fletcher of Legends Clothing Store.

Ed and his wife Irene have done extensive work on the interior of the 100 year old building on the corner of Second and Main Streets since they moved into the building last winter.

The couple chose the name Legends for their store because of the history associated with the building. The north half of the store has been a clothing store continuously since 1890. The south half had been a bank for a number of years until sometime in the 1960's.

The store carries a complete line of men's clothing from men's small sizes through size 3X and tall sizes. In addition the store offers tuxedo rentals, alterations, gift certificates, free gift wrap and layaways. They also carry men's dress shoes.

"As we have been working on the renovation project we have received a lot of input from people in the community who had been involved in the building at one time or another. We appreciate all the comments and have been able to restore parts of the building to the original because of what others have told us about the building," said Ed.

The renovation included the unboarding of the south windows and replacing the window glass with low energy windows, exposing the original tile, recarpeting the south side of the building and adding light fixtures that were found upstairs that are original to the building.

"We also expanded the dressing rooms and added nostalgic doors that we found upstairs," said Irene. She also said that the upstairs was remodeled and includes four apartments.

Added to the new look were lights that had originally hung above the bank tellers in the bank portion of the building. The bank's marble walls were also uncovered during the renovation.

The carpet on the floor in the north part of the building was removed, the floor scraped and sanded and five coats of polyurethane finish were put on it.

"While we were doing the renovation, we learned that the ceiling on the north part of the building is very rare according to the Historical Society," said Ed.

Ed's research into the history of the building also indicates that the iron window guards on the south windows date back to the early 1900's.

"Throughout the remodeling project, we have tried to keep business in Wayne and are very grateful to those who have helped us in any way. I would especially like to thank Tom and Joyce Hattig and Teresa Albrecht of Superior Interior and Exterior, Mitchell Electric, Hammer Electric, Kuhn's Carpet and Drapery and Carhart Lumber for all their assistance and support during our project," said Ed.

Legends Clothing received a face lift earlier this week with a new panel above the main street entrance.

"I would also like to thank the Wayne County Museum for loaning us a picture of Wayne from years ago that will be blown up and hung up on the wall in our store."

Irene said another factor in the couple's decision to start a business on Wayne's Main Street was the Fast Track program they took at Wayne State College. "The program is offered through Nebraska Business Development Center and the University of Nebraska. It is an entrepreneurial short course to help you focus on what you are doing."

The Fletchers also credit Vic Reynolds and the Industrial Arts class at Wayne State College for designing the logo for the new store and Sandra Metz and the Interior Design class. Some of the classes designs were used in the renovation.

The Fletchers are hosting an open house at Legends through Sat. and invite all those who have classic cars to bring them to the store on Sat. where reserved parking has been arranged to display the vehicles.

In addition the the Fletcher's, the store employs three other people. Jane Ahmann is the store manager and Jay Choquette and Jamie Bennett are part-time employees.

A.C. necessary in August

Hot and muggy. Those two words describe the month of August. According to Pat Gross, Wayne's official weather observer, the average temperature for the month was 88 degrees, with fifteen of the month's 31 days being 90 degrees or above.

"Most of the nights were in the 65 degree plus category, making air conditioning pretty much a necessity," Gross said.

The highest temperature recorded during the month was 100 degrees on Aug. 9 with 51 degrees on Aug. 1 being the lowest temperature.

Rainfall for the month was 2.64 inches which is .41 inches below the 10 year average of 3.05 inches. The greatest daily rainfall came on Aug. 23 when .93 inches fell. The August precipitation brings the yearly total to 22.18 inches which is 2.58 inches above the ten year average of 19.60 inches.

"During the middle of the month, the crop was in grave danger, but what a difference two inches of rain made. It is not in the bin, but at least it looks like there will be something to harvest," Gross said.

human fetuses sold as a delicacy and health food in Chinese restaurants.

Yet, this is the country our President has approved for a conference on women's rights and has granted "most favored nation" status. It appears our President feels financial profit is more important than human rights.

What exactly is this conference hoping to achieve? In a nutshell it hopes to redefine traditional definitions of "family," "motherhood," "fatherhood," "gender," and others; and thus eliminate the family as we know it.

The World Bank, the United Nations Population Fund, the United Nations Development Program, the International Planned Parenthood

Federation and the United States funded Population Council, working together, want to breakdown laws restricting abortion in every country in the world, and want to force this through economic requirements (reduced economic aid to countries that don't agree with their policies) imposed through World Bank policies.

Why was I not surprised to find out that Mr. Clinton's birthday party was given by the World Bank President?

We are no fools to President Clinton's agenda. He does not represent the majority of Americans and we will let him know this now and in 1996.

Wayne High's Josh Starzl (#24) tries to hold on to the ball as Jeremy Beckenhauer (#66) blocks off a defender.

Defense shines in Devil's season debut

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

In a defensive battle Friday night, the Wayne High Blue Devils suffered a narrow defeat to Schuyler 7-3. Neither team could muster much offense, combining for just 310 yards.

Schuyler took the lead when Bob Marxsen scored on a 57-yard touchdown run midway through the second quarter. Wayne responded with a 25-yard field goal by Brian Fernau with two seconds left in the half. That was all the closer the Blue Devils would come as neither team could score in the second half.

"At times we played very well," said Wayne Head Coach Lonnie Ehrhardt, "but, our defense was on the field too much in the second half because of turnovers."

Wayne took just 17 snaps in the second half compared to 35 for Schuyler.

Wayne also had trouble scoring when they got close to the goal line. The Blue Devils were inside the 20 in the first half and inside the 30 twice in the second half, but couldn't reach the end zone.

"We kept the pressure on them," said Ehrhardt, "but, we didn't score when we needed to. It was just a hard fought battle for both teams."

One bright spot for Wayne was the performance of Josh Starzl who rushed for 116 yards on 15 carries. That however, left the rest of the Wayne rushers with a negative 14 yards on 14 carries.

Defensively, the Blue Devils were led by Jeremy Lutt who recorded 16 tackles. Josh Starzl and Jeremiah Rehwisch also chipped in with 14 and 11 tackles.

On Friday, the Blue Devils host Hooper-Logan View at 7:30 p.m. for parent's night.

"They're a very physical football team," said Ehrhardt. "It's going to be a big ball game for both teams."

Explosive 2nd half gives 'Cats victory

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

The Wayne State football team survived a poor first half and a wild second half on Saturday to post a 37-30 victory over Nebraska-Omaha. The Wildcats struggled with their ground attack (only 29 rushing yards) and with their defense (allowed 455 total yards), but they managed to come up with big plays when they were needed (Seven plays over 40 yards).

Sophomore quarterback Jared Hendershot ended Wayne State's first two possessions with interceptions as UNO took a 3-0 first quarter lead. WSC took over the lead in the second when freshman linebacker Jesse Wavrunek drilled Mavorick quarterback Troy Kloewer. Kloewer coughed up the ball and Art Maulupe scooped it up and ran 16 yards for the touchdown. Nebraska-Omaha quickly responded with a six play, 65-yard drive that culminated with a 29-yard pass from Kloewer to Jake Young. The Mavs added a safety and headed to half-time with a 12-7 lead.

When the two teams came out for the second half they must have thought it was the fourth of July, because that's when the fireworks began. UNO running back Jermaine Hill, who had 274 all-purpose yards on the day, took the second half kick-off and returned it 93 yards to give the Mavs an 18-7 lead. After the Wildcats went three and out, UNO again began to move the ball down the field, and WSC looked to be in trouble. Just when Maud Cave seemed headed for the endzone, he fumbled and former-Mav Lamont Gilchrist picked up the loose ball and returned it 47 yards to the UNO 43. Five plays later, Ray Taylor scored on a 3-yard plunge and Wayne State was right back in the game. On the Mavericks next possession, Cave redeemed himself, when he rumbled 44-yards down the left sideline to increase the UNO lead back to 11 points.

The fireworks continued on the ensuing kick-off. Wildcat senior Lamart Cooper, who returned four kicks for touchdowns last year, broke a tackle at the 30, cut back to his left and exploded for a 95-yard touchdown. It was the fourth longest kick-off return in school history and it cut the UNO lead to five.

The Mavericks continued to battle into the fourth quarter, scoring again at the 14:09 mark on a 3-yard touchdown pass from Kloewer to Ed Thompson. The 'Cats stormed back less than a minute later. After a 9-yard completion to Dan Aguayo, Hendershot launched a 71-yard bomb to junior college transfer Kevin Swayne that pulled WSC within 5 points.

The score remained 30-25 until the Swayne pulled down a 56-yarder from Hendershot to put the ball at the UNO five yard line. Two plays later, the Wildcats had the lead on a five yard sweep by Hendershot with three minutes left.

Wayne State apparently had the game wrapped up when the defense stuffed a UNO run on fourth and one. But, with less than two minutes to play Hendershot fumbled on a roll-out and the Mavericks had one last chance. After moving the ball into Wayne State territory, Kloewer dropped back to pass. He fired a bullet down field, but it was picked off by linebacker Marcus Alridge, who bolted 61 yards for the touchdown that sealed the victory.

"I was happy we didn't quit or give up hope," said Head Coach Dennis Wagner. "We didn't play well, but we took advantage of the opportunities that we were given. Regardless of how we played, we won the game. Good teams find ways to win."

The Wildcats had many outstanding performers on the day. Swayne finished with nine catches, and his 217 yards are second in school history behind the 231 Byron Chamberlain racked up last year against Bemidji State.

"Kevin has the ability to be the best receiver ever to come out of Wayne State," said Wagner. We are looking forward to watching him improve each week."

Cooper had a 61-yard catch to go along with his kick-off return. Hendershot shook off his two early interceptions to pass for 320 yards. Defensively, Jon Adkisson led the squad with 19 total tackles and Alridge and Marcus Rankin each intercepted passes.

Wayne State hosts Chiefs

The Wildcats take on the Morningside Chiefs on Saturday in the seventh annual Egg Bowl. Last week, the Chiefs tied Nebraska-Kearney 10-10.

"Morningside has a good football team," said Wagner. "They like to establish the running game and keep the ball away from you. That will be a challenge for our defense. We must play better than we did at UNO."

Saturday's game starts at 5:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium.

Trojan depth contributes to win

By Lee Koch
For the Herald

Winside played Wakefield on an even par for the first half of Friday night's football game before Trojan depth and experience started to show as the host team posted a 36-19 victory over the visiting Wildcats.

The teams played a scoreless first quarter before Landon Grothe's 8 yard touchdown run and Chad O'Connor's point after kick gave the Wildcats a 7-0 lead with 8:34 left in the second quarter as Winside drew first blood in the 'Cats first 11-man game since 1983.

Wakefield retaliated with Justin Mackling's 5 yard run at 5:29 with the point after passing attempt failing. Winside wasted no time in extending their lead to 13-6 as Jaimie Holdorf returned the ensuing kickoff 81 yards.

The fast scoring pace continued as Justin Dutcher scored on a 1 yard quarterback sneak with 3:03 left in the half and Wildcat Robert Wittler answered with a 13 yard scoring run off a broken pass play to give the Wildcats their 19-14 lead.

"That second quarter was some exciting football," said Wakefield head coach Dennis Wilbur. In 11-man we're not used to that much scoring. It was more like an eight-man game for a while," he added.

The second half proved to be an all Wakefield show as Dutcher scored his second touchdown of the night on another 1 yard sneak with Mackling adding the extra point to give the Trojans a 22-19 lead which they never relinquished. Lance Jacobson added a 1 yard run with 1:47 left in the third quarter to extend the Wakefield's Mike Rischmueller hauls in one of his six catches against Winside last Friday.

Trojan margin to 28-19.

Mackling, who led the Trojan rushing attack with 20 carries for 109 yards, scored the game's final touchdown with 10:38 left on the clock.

Winside coach Randy Geier and Wilbur showed mutual respect for the efforts of each others effort and determined play on the night.

"We were disappointed we couldn't control the line of scrimmage," said Geier. "Only have 25 carries and gaining 75 yards rushing was disappointing. Football games are won and lost on the line."

Wakefield was as well coached and as well prepared as we expected."

Wilbur states, "We came out sluggish while trying to feel things out. We didn't generate any offense until the second quarter. A lot of this was due to Winside being quicker and tougher than some of our kids thought they might be."

While the contest was played on an even keel the first half Trojan depth took its toll as the Trojans dominated the line of scrimmage in the second half. Mackling went to work from his tailback spot when the Wildcats failed to move the ball after receiving the second half kick off. Mackling carried the ball nine times in an 11 play 68-yard scoring drive that started on the Trojan 32 yard line.

The Wildcats gave Dutcher too much time to find his receivers in the second half. Geier admits, "They controlled the line of scrimmage in the second half. They picked up on our stunts and we couldn't get any pressure on the quarterback."

Wakefield (1-0) faces Ponca (0-1) on the road Friday night. The Trojans expect a physical game out of the Indians and their option offense in a game that Trojan leader Dennis Wilbur says past performance and records don't necessarily mean anything.

Winside (0-1) travels to Pender (0-1). According to Winside mentor Randy Geier, the Pendragons are a physical team and have a good offensive line.

Laurel-Concord eyes state after rout

By Corey Berg
Of the Herald

The Laurel-Concord Bears took the first step toward a state championship on Friday by dismantling the Randolph Cardinals 49-8. The Bears capitalized on six Cardinal turnovers to build a 42-0 lead at halftime.

The Bears opened up the scoring when senior Jeff Wattier ran 63 yards to give his team a 7-0 lead. Junior Vince Ward made the score 14-0 on an 8-yard scamper and senior Tyler Nixon made it 20-0 with a fumble return for a touchdown. Randolph tried to fight back, but senior Dan Peters intercepted an Eric Schnell pass to end a Cardinal drive late in the first quarter.

The second quarter spelled more of the same as senior quarterback Tyler Erwin scored to make it 28-0. Erwin then hooked up with Wattier on a touchdown pass that put the Bears up by five touchdowns: Just when it couldn't get much worse for the Randolph, the Cardinals sent a snap sailing over the punter's head, and it was recovered by the Bears. Laurel-Concord scored on a touchdown pass from Erwin to senior Kyle Macklin with 28 seconds left in the half.

With the game out of reach the second half wasn't quite as exciting.

Todd Arens scored a touchdown in the third quarter to close out the scoring for the Bears. Randolph finally got on the scoreboard with a touchdown pass with 2:10 left in the game.

"Our defense dictated early in the game and gave us great field position," said Head Coach Tom Luxford. "Offensively, I think we played pretty well, but we only had 15 or 16 snaps with our first team. I'm very proud of our kids' efforts, but I'm not satisfied because we still have a lot of work to do."

The Bears are on the road against Creighton this Friday at 7:30 p.m.

"Creighton is a much improved football team and we've got to be ready to play," said Luxford.

Turnovers spell defeat

By Corey Berg
Of the Herald

When you turn the ball over eight times it's very hard to win football games. That's exactly what happened to the Allen Eagles on Friday night. Six first half turnovers helped Coleridge build a 43-0 halftime lead that the Eagles could not recover from. Allen scored two touchdowns in the second half to make the final score 43-14.

Coleridge scored early and often in the first half, throwing for three touchdowns and rushing for three more.

"We played really bad in the first half," said Head Coach Warren Jensen. "We just didn't play well." The Eagles came out with a much better performance in the second half. Allen scored two touchdowns and held Coleridge scoreless. Jeremy Kumm got Allen on the scoreboard in the third quarter with a nine yard touchdown pass to Brett Sachau. David McCorkingdale added the two-point conversion to make the score 8-43. Later in the quarter, McCorkingdale scored on a 7-yard run to end the scoring.

"I was really proud of our kids in the second half," said Jensen. "We played much much better. It was a moral victory after the disastrous first half."

On Friday, the Eagles travel to Winnebago for a 7:30 p.m. game that Jensen feels his team can win.

"I'm really confident that if we do what we did against Coleridge in the second half, we'll come away with a victory on Friday night."

Junior Mindy Eaton was nine for nine in serving with three aces. Juniors Sarah Ehlers and Becky Schroeder each added three kills, while Senior Heather Cunningham added two kills.

"We still have some work to do," said Head Coach Patti Cunningham. "Things are starting to fall into place, but our goal is to get better and better each game."

The Lady Bears began the 1995 season last Thursday with a 10-15, 15-9, 15-3 victory over Randolph. The squad was led by Ankeny, who was 17 for 19 hitting with 14 kills and Adkins, who was 22 for 27 hitting with 10 kills and 12 for 14 serving with five aces. Schroeder tallied six blocks, including three ace blocks. Senior Gina Monson also contributed with 65 for 65 setting and 30 assists.

Height deficit is no problem

By Lee Koch
For the Herald

Coach Marty Slaughter's Wakefield squad didn't let Winside's height advantage or their own lack of experience bother them as they downed the host Wildcats in straight sets Thursday night by scores of 15-13 and 15-6.

Slaughter's first post game comment was a resounding, "Wow!" He went on, "I tell you what, we are very young but these girls just love the game of volleyball. To tell you the truth it doesn't really surprise me that we won. Every practice they work extremely hard."

The first set saw both teams displaying opening game jitters as can be expected. Missed serves, failure to take advantage of freeballs and a lack of timing plagued both squads in an evenly played set that saw the Wildcats look like they may overcome a 14-9 deficit only to lose the set by a score of 15-13.

Wendy and Jodi Miller led Winside scoring with 5 and 4 points respectively. Sara Marotz also added 4 tallies to the Wildcats total. Wakefield scoring was led by Jenny Sandahl with 10 points while Bree Oswald and Allison Benson contributed 5 markers each.

Good test scores still the norm for Waynians

Wayne High School graduates rank above those in the state and nation on composite scores on the ACT college entrance exam according to figures released this week. In addition to higher scores, a higher percentage of students are taking the test at Wayne High.

The national average for 1995 graduates on the 36 point test was 20.8. In Neb. the average was 21.4 and at Wayne High the average was 21.8.

"I think it is significant to note that the class of 1995 data is based on 89 percent (58 out of 65 students) taking the test. Past year's data was based on lower percentages," said Terry Munson, High School guidance counselor.

In 1994, 73 percent of the students took the test, in 1993, 87 percent of the students took the test and in 1992, 79 percent of Wayne High seniors took the ACT test.

"These figures indicate that our students take learning seriously and are concerned about lifelong learning," said Dr. Dennis Jensen, superintendent of schools.

The Nebraska percentage, which is tied with Louisiana and North Dakota for the highest percentage of students taking the test, is 75 percent. North Dakota's average score was 21.2 and Louisiana had a 19.4 average.

THE NATIONAL average was the same as last year's average, while the state average was up one-tenth of a point. The Wayne average was down from last year's composite score of 26.3 but was still above the state and national averages.

Wayne High students rank above the state and national averages in all areas covered in the exam which measures four main areas: English, math, reading and science reasoning. In the area of English, the national average is 21.4 or those taking core classes. The Wayne average is 23.7.

In the math area the national average is 21.5 and the Wayne average is 23.2. In the reading area the national average is 22.4 and the Wayne average is 24.5. Wayne students do better in science reasoning also, scoring 26.2 on the exam compared to 22.0 for the national average.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS see the test results as an indication of the educational success of the school system. "The Wayne students, as a group score very well on the exam compared to the national average. We also consistently have a 98 percent graduation rate," said Jensen.

"In the 16 years I have been in administration, this is one of the best schools pertaining to how students perform," he said.

Busy times in Wayne

The first days of the new college semester are busy ones for most students. And most of their busy time seems to be spent standing in lines. Fee paying, book buying, class changing and record keeping all take student time. To make matters worse, another year of enrollment growth means the lines are generally longer.

Guardian angels are at work

I have often had discussions with people who grew up believing in their own personal guardian angel. I don't remember that philosophy particularly verbalized in our home; but I do remember a picture on the wall of my grandmother's bedroom of a very large, beautiful angel standing behind two children walking on a treacherous-looking bridge. It impressed me a lot, and I looked hard for one like it; finally finding one last year.

I began collecting angels long before they were "in," and had pretty well decided that I did have my guardian several years ago. I've never met him, and don't expect to, but I have been aware of his presence on occasion.

I like to read descriptions of other folks' encounters with mysterious happenings, and I have a little book of sayings about angels. For Student joins in honors

The Nebraska Wesleyan University chapter of Zeta Psi fraternity has received national recognition for excellence.

Marcus Tappe of Wakefield was one of the chapter members who attended the national convention.

The Omicron chapter received the Order of Excellence, the highest honor Zeta Psi can award a chapter, during the fraternity's annual convention in New Orleans, La., Aug. 15-19. Only four chapters in the history of Zeta Psi have received this award, which recognizes ongoing excellence in all areas, including academics, finances, membership, alumni activities, and philanthropy. This marked the second consecutive year that the Nebraska Wesleyan chapter has received the Order of Excellence.

"It was a real honor," says Doug Kosmicki of Grand Island, a senior at Nebraska Wesleyan and president of the Omicron chapter of Zeta Psi. "We really worked hard during the last year in all areas."

Wife

"Ever since our girls had that accident nine years ago, I've acquired the seat belt habit. When you put as many miles as I put on, the law of averages says there will be accidents. You've all shared my problems with automobiles the past 12 years.

My Sis says we should never drive faster than our guardian angels can fly; and I try not to. Who knows how fast angels fly? Do they fly? Maybe they ride in the back of the car, or on the top.

Anyway, the law of averages caught up last week. I had just acquired a second Buick Park Avenue, one with 100,000 fewer miles less than the one I'd been driving. I was 5 1/2 miles west of the Farm House. It was mid-morning, with perfect road conditions, and excellent visibility. I was going under speed limit when I found myself completely spun around and in a ditch. There was shattered glass everywhere. I could not imagine what had happened.

There was a dark-haired woman at the car door, crying, and questioning, "Are you okay?" I answered that I guessed I was. Someone with a cellular phone came along and called a rescue squad. I had to wear a cervical collar, be strapped to a back board, and have a ride to the ER.

The other driver had come from a side road, stopped, looked both ways, and proceeded. There is a barricade on that side of the road that must have been in her line of vision. She thought her engine had exploded until she saw the debris.

I know; cars can be replaced. But it's the nuisance of dickering with insurance, looking for another one, taxes, registration, etc. Our family has had way too much experience with these things.

I can walk, and move, and carry out my tasks — sort of. My whole left side, chest and shoulder blade, is sore. I'm using lots of Motrin. And I'm thanking God I can tell you about it today. He'd better keep directing that angel.

Detention Center staff attends training session

The third annual Heartland Juvenile Services Training Institute was held at the Red Lion Inn in Omaha Aug. 20 to 23. The conference which was sponsored by the Heartland Juvenile Detention Association and the Nebraska Juvenile Justice Association focused this year's training on developing work relationships and further coordinating efforts of all those involved in the Juvenile Justice System, including those in juvenile detention/corrections.

Northeast Nebraska Juvenile Services, Inc. employees attending were Mike Applegate, administrator; Tracy Henschke, assistant administrator; June Baier, Kristin Frevert and Brian Creemers, supervisors; Tracy Olson, Jared Ross, James Gooch and Mark Benne, assistant superintendents; Twilla Kessinger and Laurie Burney, line staff; and Kevin Roberts, faculty educator.

Each of the employees attended various seminars geared to their job description to enhance their knowledge and work performance at NNJS, said Applegate.

Some of the courses that were attended were how to be an effective supervisor, stress management, planning and programming juvenile facilities and effective discipline and use of consequences with juveniles. Each NNJS employee averaged approximately 20 hours of continued education at the conference.

"The courses gave each employee a better understanding of how we relate to and fit into the puzzle of juvenile service and it enabled all to become more effective in their delivery of services to children, youth and families," said Applegate.

Head Start earns honor

Goldenrod Hills Head Start received a national award from "Community Health Promotion Program." The Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services recognized "Healthy Choices for a Healthy Tomorrow" as an outstanding community health program in Wisner.

Mark B. Horton, Director of Nebraska Department of Health, was in Wisner to present the awards to Bev Frese, pilot project supervisor, and Rita Eichelberger, HS program administrator, as well as the 67 staff.

"Healthy Choices for a Healthy Tomorrow" is a substance abuse curriculum guide used by HS staff in the 12 county service area of Goldenrod Hills. The program's goal is to teach preschool aged children effective life skills that will prepare them to cope with the pressures they may encounter later in life, such as alcohol and other drugs. This comprehensive program also targets the families of preschoolers.

The program was written by Head Start staff and Center for Prevention Programming in Lincoln. Funding for this project came as a three year pilot project in hopes that it could be replicated in other areas of the country. This award was sponsored by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention and signed by David Satcher, M.D., Ph.D., Assistant Surgeon General. Nominations were received from 38 states and one territory.

It was an honor for Head Start to receive this award, with an even greater honor to have Dr. Horton present it. For 13 years Dr. Horton did all Head Start physicals in N.E.braska. According to Dr. Horton, "My experience with the Head Start program has helped me many times in my present job, to know first hand about health concerns of rural children and families." The curriculum guide will be available for dissemination later this year. For further information, call 402-529-3512 and ask for Bev Frese.

The ants go marching in your cupboards?

By Karen Wermers, Dixon County Extension Educator

At least a dozen species of ants, varying in color, size and mobility, can invade Nebraska homes.

Most species of ants live outdoors in colonies in the soil or in rotted wood. Occasionally, ants can establish colonies indoors between walls, around window frames or in crawl spaces. Workers from these colonies may forage for food, including bread crumbs or garbage scraps in the home, but generally cause little harm other than being a nuisance.

Ant activity in the home may be dealt with in several ways.

1. Keep food in tight containers.
 2. Clean up food spills immediately and keep areas vacuumed.
 3. Empty waste containers regularly and place garbage in tied plastic bags.
 4. Caulk cracks and crevices in walls and foundations.
 5. Flood flower pots occasionally.
 6. Tanglefoot or Stickem may be used to keep ants out.
 7. A stream of ants can be wiped up with a soapy sponge. Rinse them down the drain.
 8. Use ant baits which contain a slow-acting poison such as boric acid, hydramethylnon or in some cases, arsenic. Place baits so they are not exposed.
 9. Use diatomaceous earth or a silica aerogel/pyrethrin combination (Revenge, Drione).
 10. Use insecticides carefully and as directed on product labels.
- Large black ants can probably cause structural damage to the home. While they do not eat wood, they do construct galleries which become their living quarters and can cause considerable damage if the infestation goes undetected. They are usually associated with a roof leak or other water-related damage. If they are active indoors, you may find coarse sawdust which contains insect fragments and other debris. Also, carpenter ants may be entering the home from a hollow tree or a nearby wood pile. Even a single piece of wood can harbor a carpenter ant colony. The best strategy in many cases may be to hire a qualified pest control operator.

Several household insecticides are available to control ants. Options include diazinon, chlorpyrifos (Dursban), pyrethrins and propoxur (Baygon). Thorough housecleaning will reduce the availability of food for foraging ants. To prevent ants from entering the home, a treated perimeter can be established around the structure. A four-foot wind band can be treated with chlorpyrifos (Dursban), diazinon or carbaryl (Sevin). Follow the directions.

The Golden Years

By: Connie Dishrow

Grandparents Day was proclaimed nationally for the Sunday after Labor Day by President Jimmy Carter in 1977, but it originated more than two decades earlier. A public relations executive recalled that nursing homes in New York City began celebrating Grandparents Day in 1956 as a means of honoring residents of the homes who were grandparents. But the idea didn't start there. The public relations executive acknowledged that he was inspired to stage the event after he read a news item about a Grandparents Day that was celebrated "somewhere in the Midwest."

Wakefield is scene for Owens ceremony

Wendy Kratke and Greg Owens were united in marriage July 29 at Salem Lutheran Church in Wakefield.

Pastor Mark Wilms officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony with Rev. Gail Axen of Stanton serving as lector.

Parents of the couple are Gene and Marcia Kratke of Wakefield and Keith and JoAnn Owens of Carroll. Clara Doescher of Wakefield was the honored grandparent.

Keyboard and organ music for the ceremony was provided by Lynn Wilms. Scott Johnson of Lincoln sang "Friends", "There is Love", "He has Chosen You for Me" and "I Swear".

"The church was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of plum and white with gold accents.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a white satin gown with an open neckline. The fitted bodice and long sleeves with shirring were enhanced with Schiffl lace adorned with seed pearls and sequins. The back of the bodice featured a keyhole back with dangling pearls. The fully gathered skirt with matching appliques fell into a cathedral-length train with tucking and edged with ruffles and finished at the waistline with a large bow centered with a rose and draped pearls.

Her finger-tip veil was accented with scattered pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white enchantment lilies surrounded by plum colored roses and accented with pearl drops with ivy and tulle garlanding throughout.

The maid of honor was Lynn Kratke of Wakefield, the bride's sister. Bridesmaids were Renee Nixon and Kristen Miller of Wakefield and Melaney Kuhl of Wayne. They wore long plum velvet dresses with plum satin shoulders sheered to a v-back accented with a long satin bow.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens

Best man was Randy Owens of Carroll, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Mick Samuelson of South Sioux City, Tim Wacker of Lincoln and Todd Kratke of Wakefield.

The groom was attired in white Christian Dior talls with white stain glass vest and tie. The attendants wore black Christian Dior talls with plum colored stain-glass vests and ties.

Stephanie and Logan Owens of Carroll, niece and nephew of the groom were flower girl and ring bearer. Candlelighters were Jason Wacker of Lincoln and Bryce Owens of Carroll, nephews of the groom.

Guests were seated by Charles Morris, Dean Burbach and Greg Jenkins of Carroll and Eric Wacker of Lincoln.

Desiree Salmon of Lincoln attended the guest book.

A reception, dinner and dance followed at Riley's in Wayne. Don and Joyce Kuhl of Wakefield and Jesse and Marion Truby of Lincoln were host couples.

Lori Owens of Carroll served as personal attendant and Cinda Wacker, sister of the groom, was in charge of flowers.

Diane Magnuson of Wakefield served punch. Julie Lund of Springview, Larina Klausen of Springfield and Eleanor Owens of Carroll cut and served the cake.

Following their honeymoon, the couple will be at home on a farm west of Carroll. The bride is employed at Heritage Homes and the groom is engaged in farming.

How to make a family feel 'together'

Q. My family lives together under one roof, and we share the same last name, but we don't "feel" like a family. How can I begin to put a sense of togetherness into our harried household? How do you put meaningful activities into your family?

A. I've written and spoken extensively on the "dangers of overcommitment and routine panic," and I will not repeat those warnings here except to say that you should make a concerted effort to slow the pace at which your family is running.

Beyond that advice, however, I would emphasize the importance of creating special traditions in your home. By traditions, I'm referring to those recurring events and behaviors that are anticipated—especially by children—as times of closeness and fellowship between loved ones.

For example, when our two children were growing up, some of our important holiday traditions centered around food. Each year during Thanksgiving and Christmas, we prepared tremendous meals involving a huge turkey and all that goes with it. A great favorite of ours was a fruit dish called ambrosia, containing sectioned oranges and peeled grapes. The family peeled the grapes together the night before Thanksgiving.

The Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays were wonderful experiences for all of us. There was laughter and warm family interaction through the day. We looked forward to that festive season, not just for the food, but for what happens between loved ones who convene.

Back in those days, before I changed my diet following my heart attack in 1990, we tried to have specific foods on each holiday throughout the year. On New Year's Day, for reasons which I cannot explain, we always enjoyed a southern meal of pinto beans cooked at least eight hours with large chunks of lean ham, served with cornbread and little onions. It was so good!

On July 4th, we usually invited 30 or more friends and served barbecued hamburgers and baked beans in the back yard. This became a prelude to the fireworks display.

Obviously, many of our traditions (but not all) focused on the enjoyable activity of eating together. Another example occurred immediately prior to the Thanksgiving dinner. After the food was on the table and family members were seated, I read a passage of Scripture, and Shirley told the story of the Pilgrims, who thanked God for helping them survive the ravages of winter. Then each person was given two kernels of Indian corn to symbolize the blessings he or she was most thankful for that year. Our expressions of thankfulness inevitably involved people—children and grandparents and other loved ones. As the basket moved around the table, tears of appreciation and love were evident on many faces. It was always one of the most beautiful moments of the year.

This brings me back to the question about harried homes. The great value of traditions is that they give a family a sense of identity and belonging. All of us desperately need to feel that we're not just part of a busy cluster of people living together in a house, but we're a living, breathing family that's conscious of our uniqueness, our character and our heritage. That feeling is the only antidote for the loneliness and isolation that characterizes so many homes today.

Q. How do you feel about having a family council, where each member of the family has an equal vote on the decisions affecting the entire family?

A. It's a good idea to let each member of the family know that the others value his viewpoint and opinion. Most important decisions should be shared within the group, because that is an excellent way to build fidelity and family loyalty.

However, the equal vote idea is carrying the concept too far; an 8-year-old should not have the same influence that the mother and father have in making decisions. It should be clear to everyone that the parents are the benevolent captains of the ship.

Wakefield man will smuggle Bibles to China

Craig Nelson of Wakefield will be traveling to Beijing on a mission to smuggle Bibles into the communist country on October 1st.

He will be part of a 20 member team from the United States on the trip which will be documented by a television crew from CNN.

Nelson says Bibles and church services are illegal and punishment includes persecution and jailing. According to Nelson, some 20,000 Chinese are becoming Christians every day, but there is a shortage on Bibles.

The trip will be cosponsored by China Harvest Adventures of Virginia Beach, Virginia and Allied Tour and Travel of Norfolk. Chinese nationals will take the Bibles to areas most needful in China.

The trip will take 11 days and the cost is approximately $3,000 per person. The team will travel by train and buses and will depart from Hong Kong.

Nelson is seeking prayer and financial support for the trip. Those interested can contact him at Rural Route 1, Box 78 in Wakefield.

Law degree would help top farmers

Roger McEowen teaches an undergraduate agricultural economics course at Kansas State University. It's got a bona fide course number, but to the students, it's a heavy dose of "Reality 101."

McEowen figures 80 percent of students taking the course are going back to the family farm after college. The students know a good deal about crop and livestock production from having lived and worked on a farm, but that's not half of what they need to know to be successful as ag producers. McEowen's course introduces them to the regulatory maze farmers and ranchers face everyday. "Agriculture is THE most heavily regulated business in the United States today," he warns them.

Agriculture is subject to 10 major federal environmental regulatory acts. Most anybody can probably name several, such as the Clean Water Act and the Safe Drinking Water Act; the Endangered Species Act; and the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act. But there's also the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act; the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act; the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act; the federal water pollution control amendments; and the federal swampbuster and sod-buster regulations.

Those are the major federal acts affecting agriculture. However, there are numerous state and local environmental regulations that affect farmers as well. And, more often than you might hope, an agency implementing one regulation can see a situation in an entirely different light than another agency enforcing another regulation. Much too often, it's the farmer who's caught in the middle.

For example, a farmer cleaned out a drainage ditch as required by a plan approved by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. However, that action violated Army Corps of Engineers regulations, and the farmer faces, potentially, $8 million in fines.

In Maryland, a landowner placed fill materials on wetlands while attempting to create nesting ponds for ducks and geese. He'd consulted with local, state and federal officials, but a change in how "wetland" was defined put the landowner in violation of federal law -- and at jeopardy for six months in jail, plus other penalties.

The lesson for McEowen's students is simple: "Just because you have authority from one agency doesn't mean you are free and clear," he emphasizes. "Farmers need to understand that multiple government agencies have regulatory authority over the same function."

Too many farmers "go down the road and get too entangled without

How long should fields be irrigated?

Producers may find that they are asking themselves "how long do I need to irrigate?" Bill Kranz, NU Extension Irrigation Specialist, outlines a three-step process that will assist producers who are unsure of their irrigation needs as the growing season winds down.

The first step involves determining the amount of current water available. This can be estimated when producers pick up a handful of soil and squeeze it. Soils at the 100 percent capacity level will leave a wet outline when released. "Soils will tend to stick together better at the 75 percent available water level than the 50 percent level," Kranz said. NebGuide "Estimating Soil Moisture by Appearance and Feel" (G84-690) is available at local extension offices for a more detailed explanation of this "hand-feel method." Producers need to estimate current water availability for each foot in the top three feet of the soil. Kranz recommends they determine water availability in several areas of the field to get more accurate results.

The second step requires that producers estimate the total available water still in the soil. Soil texture directly affects water capacity. At capacity, fine or loamy sands hold one to 1.1 in./ft.; sandy loams - 1.4 in./ft.; loams or silt loams - two to 2.5 in./ft.; and silty clay loams or clay loams - 1.8 in./ft. Multiply the current water availability, as a decimal, of each foot or soil from step one by soil water capacity. For example, a silty clay loam at 75 percent available water still holds 1.4 inches of water. Add these three numbers together to determine water capacity.

Finally producers need to determine how much, if any, additional irrigation is necessary. Corn in the dough stage requires about seven inches of water while corn in the blister kernel stage needs almost ten. If soybeans are in the beginning seed fill stage (one pod in the uppermost four nodes contains a seed 1/8" long), they will require about seven inches of water. Soybeans in the full pod stage (one pod in the uppermost four nodes contains a seed 3/4" long) need about nine inches.

Producers need to subtract these water need estimates from the current water availability found in step two. If the result is negative, irrigation should continue, Kranz said. However, if the result is positive, irrigation can cease. "The goal is to use as much soil water as possible while keeping the soil water content greater than 40 percent of available water," said Kranz.

an attorney," he warns. His future farmers quickly understand that getting a good lawyer is as necessary as getting a good veterinarian or a good accountant.

It used to be, in the "olden days" -- maybe 20 years ago -- that when a farmer needed to do something like install conservation measures to control soil erosion, he'd stop by the local Soil Conservation Service office. He and the SCS folks would figure out a solution to the problem, and the farmer would go on his way, confident that what they'd agreed to was agreeable to everybody. As McEwen's college students learned, now a whole bunch of agencies may need to be consulted and what's agreeable to one isn't necessarily acceptable to another.

What's behind the change? McEwen believes many agencies have a regulatory mindset. "Primarily in the environmental area with respect to wetlands, (many regulatory agencies) are simply regulating property for the sake of regulating property." They believe they have the power, and so they use that power. Increasingly, the rules farmers and others run up against are not being set by the elected Congress, but by bureaucrats who write the rules and regulations that implement laws. And these individuals are not elected and are not accountable.

All of this means farmers need to be as involved in the regulatory process as they are in the legislative process. And, oh yes, they need a good lawyer.

Commissioners honored

Wayne County Commissioners, from left, Dennis Dangberg, Robert Nissen and Merlin Beiermann were recently honored by the National Guard and Reserve for establishing and maintaining a policy which fosters guard service by county employees. The county was presented a plaque by Ralph Barclay, who is the local representative for the National Guard employers committee.

Nebraska life on the edge...of town

By Doug Peters
IANR News Assistant

More and more Nebraskans are living on the edge these days.

The edge of town, that is.

"We've seen an increased number of people living on the edges of our major urban areas," said University of Nebraska-Lincoln forester Rich Straight, "and they're facing some unique situations."

Straight is the coordinator of Forestry Field Days, a free, annual program conducted by the Nebraska Forest Service and UNL's Department of Forestry, Fisheries and Wildlife (FFW). This year's program, titled "Living on the Edge...Where Town and Country Meet," will offer solutions to some of the key problems faced by newcomers to a rural or semi-rural environment, Straight said.

The event, which also is sponsored by the Nebraska Tree Farm Committee and the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District, will be held, rain or shine, Sept. 10-17, at the Horning Tree Farm just south of Plattsmouth, Neb. Signs will be posted on U.S. Highway 75 to point the way to the farm.

At the field days, visitors can take walking tours of the 240-acre farm and can visit booths with information on natural resources districts, burning regulations, insects, tree diseases and other topics, Straight said.

The booths will provide visitors with important information about cost-sharing initiatives that are available for landowners wanting to develop conservation practices, and about other issues of which many rural newcomers may not be aware, he said.

"But the most popular attractions of the field days, Straight said, are the hayrack tours. These tours will stop at sites providing information crucial to making the most out of rural living. The tours will include programs on sharing the environment with wild animals, tree planting and other topics. Strategic planting of shelterbelts for protection from the elements and pond management are among the topics to be addressed at the hayrack tour stops, he said.

Both the hayrack tours and the walking tours will depart every 30 minutes between 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. The hayrack tours will last about 90 minutes.

In addition to the tours, visitors can enjoy apples and apple cider from the Arbor Day Foundation Orchard in Nebraska City. Baked goods also will be sold, with proceeds going to a memorial fund to be used by UNL students and the FFW. Visitors also are encouraged to pack lunches and spend the day, Straight said.

Straight said he expects the visit to the Horning Tree Farm to be an eye-opening experience for many visitors who hope to improve their personal environments but don't know where to start.

"One of the things that people are amazed at is that when you get out there, you see these big, beautiful trees," he said. "People don't realize that just 40 years ago, it was just terraced farm ground."

Straight said that southeast Nebraska's good soil and moisture levels help trees grow quickly.

"In a fairly short period of time, people can change their landscape considerably," he said, adding that trees can make a major difference in an area's appearance in as little as 15 years.

Forestry Field Days aren't just for new arrivals to rural and semi-rural areas, Straight said. Even for those who don't live "on the edge," the visit can be enjoyable. He added that many people who are already familiar with the farm and the issues presented at the field days still come back year after year -- and with good reason.

The field days offer people their only chance to see the Horning Tree Farm, which is normally closed to the public. Straight encourages people to take advantage of the opportunity.

"It's a pretty place," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources forester said. "It's a great place to spend a day out."

For more information about the 1995 Forestry Field Days, call Straight at (402) 472-6637.

CRP sign-up to begin Sept. 11

The 13th sign-up for the Conservation Reserve Program will be held Sept. 11-22. The goal of this sign-up is to accept acreage that will meet higher environmental and conservation criteria thereby providing significant soil erosion, water quality, tree planting or wildlife benefits. Only the most environmentally beneficial acres per dollar of government expense will be selected. Enrollment of filter-strips and riparian buffers adjacent to waterbodies is encouraged because of their important role in improving water quality.

During this sign-up, each applicant will be required to submit a bid. Before a bid is submitted, the county CFSA office will determine the bid cap for each offer. The bid cap is the maximum bid amount that CFSA will accept for the acreage offered. By bidding below the bid cap, the likelihood that an offer will be accepted may be increased.

To be an eligible participant, landowners must have continually owned the farm, or operators must have continually leased the farm for three consecutive crop years before the close of the current sign-up period. If there is any combination of continuously leasing and owning by the same producer for three consecutive crop years before the close of the current sign-up period, then the participant would also be eligible.

Eligible land for enrollment in the CRP includes cropland that has been planted or considered planted to an agricultural commodity in any two of the five crop years 1986 through 1990 that is physically and legally capable of being cropped at the time of enrollment. There is additional criteria the land must meet to be eligible.

If you are interested in submitting a bid on your farm contact the CFSA office to make an appointment, 375-2453.

are now 59 paid members.

Lorraine Denklauf, unit member, who serves as the Wayne County Auxiliary president, asked the members for input as to when to hold the county convention. The members recommended Saturday, Oct. 28 as their first choice, with Friday, Oct. 27 as second. These dates will be presented to the other county officials for final determination.

The Unit received monetary prize for its float entry in the Old Settler's parade. Theme was "Three Rings For Freedom" related indirectly to a three-ring circus for the overall theme was "Under the Big Top."

The Auxiliary was invited to the annual Legion picnic on Aug. 27.

Hostesses for the evening were Arlene Pfeiffer and Carol Rempler. Next meeting will be held on Monday, Sept. 11 beginning at 7:30 p.m. Please note the time change, the group will meet a half hour earlier from now through March. Hostesses will be Marcella Schellenberg, Goldie Selders, Mary Ann Soden and Eva Mae Thies.

The national convention will be held in Indianapolis on Aug. 31 through Sept. 6. One issue of great importance to membership is the strong possibility that the dues will be increased by $2 at the national level to be effective with the 1997 year. Keeping this in mind, it is important that all members realize an increase at the local level would be inevitable should this dues increase resolution be voted upon and approved. Unit dues are currently $8 for senior members, with $7.25 being sent to Lincoln to cover department and national obligations per senior member.

Should this resolution pass, unit members still have time from now until the close of the current administrative year in June 1996 to become a permanent member. Your life membership would be based on the $8 dues currently and also your age. Keep in mind that the $8 dues paid already this administrative year would be subtracted from the life dues on the charts. Any member wishing more information on this process, which in all likelihood will be saving members money if they pay a life membership, may contact any local member in Winside or the Unit President Beverly Neel. Gertrude Heins, membership chairman, would have the forms for anyone wishing to pay for life.
