State engineer opposes tax hike in Wayne talk

By Eric McCarty
Of the Herald

Nebraska Highway Director-State Engineer Allan Abbott said the state will be "very careful" before raising the gas tax rate again.

Abbott made the comments at the District 3 Highway commission meeting Wednesday night at Rileys Restaurant in Wayne.

"I do understand and sympathize with border cities when Nebraska's gas prices are higher than surrounding states," he said. "That's why we should not ask for an increase unless we really need it."

Thirty-eight people were present at the meeting including representatives from the city of Wayne and Wayne area residents who are concerned with the widening of Highway 35 scheduled for the fiscal year 1997.

CITY ADMINISTRATOR Joe Salitros conveyed a resolution passed by the City Council last week.

"We stand here this evening in support of the project to widen Highway 35 through Wayne," Salitros said. "The schools and even the cemetery said they will comply with the project."

Salitros urged the commission to conduct a corridor study on Highway 35 as a possible expressway from Sioux City to Norfolk.

Abbott later said that the use of Highway 35 as an expressway is still in the "early planning" stage of consideration.

SALITROS ALSO stated that the city will contact Nebraska's national representatives urging them to support of the National Highway System Act currently before congress which will continue STP funding for street and highway assistance.

Abbott said that all of Nebraska's national representatives are currently in favor of the bill.

Rick Endicott, owner of Pac N Sav Foods, told the commission that he was concerned with the widening of Highway 35 and how it would affect his business.

The only outlet from the store is onto Highway 35. Endicott believes that major construction on the highway would "shut [his] business down" with no way to get to it.

District 3 Engineer Tom McCarthy said he will contact Endicott soon to discuss possibilities for access to the business.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, Abbott said he is in opposition to increasing speed limits, if the state is given that opportunity.

Abbott said increasing speed limits would increase highway fatalities, not to mention increasing road costs. According to Ken Seickmeyer, of the Department of Roads, "highways are designed and built to handle certain speeds."

Abbott elaborated, "We would have to be sure that the roads people travel on are safe for those speeds, and that would cost money."

Privatized busing expanding in area

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Nebraska School Bus Inc. has been providing bus service to the Wayne Public Schools since January 1993. The company has recently begun serving the Emerson-Hubbard Schools and the Pender-Thurston school district.

The company, a part of Bennett & Bennett Management Corp., is based in Minnesota and currently has a fleet of nearly 300 buses. The company serves schools in Minnesota, South Dakota, Utah and Nebraska.

"We operate in schools of all sizes. We have schools with three buses and schools with over 50 buses. We also provide vans for the Utah Schools for the Deaf and Blind and are currently talking with other schools in this area and may be providing service to them by next school year," said David Roper, a representative of the company.

ONE OF the major concerns that districts often have is how hiring busing services could be more cost effective than the district owning the buses.

"We run several hundred vehicles and have contacts with a number of people in the busing industry. We purchase buses and parts at a lower price," said Roper.

"Also, we only do busing so we are able to concentrate on how to provide service as efficiently as possible. We are generally able to go into a system and eliminate

Waynians not surprised by O.J. verdict

By Eric McCarty
Of the Herald

Time stood still in Wayne as it did in much of the world at noon Tuesday, as the O.J. Simpson case verdict was read.

The Wayne Herald interviewed eight Waynians on Main Street shortly after the not guilty decision was aired and the comments were strikingly similar. Whether they thought Simpson was guilty or not, none was surprised that the jury acquitted him.

Wayne Gilliland explains, "I felt that he was guilty all the time. But I'm not surprised he's free."

Dave Lebsock also thought Simpson was guilty, but expected the jury would set him free. "I think it had something to do with the integrity of the LAPD," he said. "The collection of the evidence was so sloppily done."

"I think he's guilty," said Jane

Fletcher, a senior at Wayne State. "But they didn't have enough evidence to convict him."

Wilma Moore expressed similar feelings. "In my heart, I think he's guilty, but I guess the jury had some doubts."

Three of the eight stated that the jury made the right decision. Joe Shinstock, a senior at Wayne State said, "I don't think they proved that he was beyond a doubt guilty."

Kim Kruse said, "I don't think he's guilty, but I think he knows who did it."

Nine year old Emel Jones looked at another side. When asked if he thought Simpson was guilty, Jones responded, "No. Because I liked the way he played football."

And Cindy Chase had mixed feelings. "At first I thought he was guilty, but then I thought no. I was surprised that they came up with a verdict that fast."

What was your reaction to the O.J. verdict?

October is Physical Therapy month

The month of October has been designated Physical Therapy Month and as such Amy Bowers, Master Physical Therapist at Providence Medical Center offers several suggestions for avoiding carpal tunnel syndrome, "the malady of the information age."

"Carpal tunnel syndrome is a painful hand disorder caused by stressful and repetitive motions of the hand. Although the site of the injury is the wrist, pain is usually felt in the hand. Excessive movement of the wrists or holding the wrists in static positions for long periods of time can irritate the nerves, tendons and arteries inside a narrow formation of ligament and bone at the wrist, which is the carpal tunnel," Miss Bowers said.

The American Physical Therapy Association recommends that when using the keyboard or typewriter, move only the fingers and always maintain a straight-wrist position. If the keyboard has a pad at the bottom, use it to rest the wrists during breaks.

"There are precautions to take and procedures to follow to help reduce the risk of carpal tunnel syndrome. Before beginning a typing job and during breaks throughout the day, gently press the hand against a firm, flat surface, stretching the fingers and the wrist. Hold for five seconds," Miss Bowers said.

"It is also possible to strengthen the muscles along the wrist by clenching the fist tightly, then releasing, fanning out the fingers. Repeat this five times," she said.

None of the stretches or exercise should cause pain or discomfort. If symptoms of carpal tunnel are suspected, consult a physical therapist or other qualified health care practitioner for evaluation.

Goodwill drive will end on Monday night

Goodwill Industries of Sioux City has developed an "Ambassador Program," which is designed to help communities collect and donate no-longer-used items.

A community-wide drive in Wayne has been scheduled through Oct. 9. All material to be donated should be brought to the Goodwill Industries collection trailer at Pac 'N Save parking lot.

This trailer will be open on its first day at this site from its arrival (usually before 4 p.m.) until 8 p.m. and from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on subsequent days. Arrival times vary, depending on collection demands. Please deposit all items inside the trailer. Furniture and large appliances will not be accepted due to limited trailer space.

Donated goods from Wayne will be processed and received into one of the Goodwill retail outlets. Goodwill Industries provides rehabilitation services annually to over 400 persons with disabling conditions by providing work opportunities and training which enables them to become wage earners and tax paying citizens.

Road signs

Taxes, as much as we complain about them, they pay for the pipes running under the streets that bring us water, and for the pipes running under the streets that take it away when we are through with it. Taxes provided you with the education necessary to read this editorial, and it provided us with the ability to write it. And taxes pay for the roads. Roads that lead to your place of work, to the schools, to your best friend's house, and then they bring you safely back home again. But according to the latest figures from the Nebraska Department of Revenue, our roads are being used more and more to take us to big city shopping centers. Wayne and three other area towns share the dubious distinction of placing in the bottom eleven of a list of 160 Nebraska cities, when ranked according to increase (in this case decrease) in sales receipts for the first half of 1995. The direct effect of our consumer carousing can be seen in the loss in sales tax receipts. Funds which are earmarked for certain projects are either replaced other taxes, or the projects are eliminated. Indirectly, the local proprietors suffer, and faced with less customers, they hire less help, or perhaps they are forced to fire you, or someone you know. Business properties generally pay more taxes of every kind, and taxing bodies are forced to look more and more to the home owner when there are less businesses to pay those taxes. Anyone can complain about taxes. Here is an opportunity to do something about them.

Making progress more than 'illusion'

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

LINCOLN — There's a very funny saying about reorganization tacked on the wall of the State Capitol office of State Sen. Jerry Warner of Waverly, the dean of all state senators.

"We trained hard, but it seemed that every time we were beginning to form into teams, we would be reorganized," said the saying from a first century philosopher, Gaius Petronius Arbitrator.

Seems that Arbitrator was a bit disillusioned with efforts to reorganize and improve.

He said that in meeting any new challenge, reorganization was "a wonderful method for creating the illusion of progress while producing confusion, inefficiency and demoralization."

Hmmm.

Some state employees reacted the same way last week when the Nelson Administration unveiled a whopper of a plan to reorganize state government: merge four agencies that deal with health and human services programs into three new units, and create an appointed board to guide state policy in this complex area.

Gov. Nelson and Lt. Gov. Kim Robak, who headed up the reorganization effort, said it would save money, make it easier for people to sign up for such programs, and remove barriers and battles between the agencies.

It's a big deal because those state agencies — Health, Social Services, Public Institutions and Aging — account for about one-third of all spending in state government, and about one-half of the employees.

There's been some well-documented battles between the agencies lately, including several between Social Services and Public Institutions over who would take care of mentally troubled teenagers on welfare.

Social Services, which administers the Medicaid program, began denying such kids admission to private mental hospitals to cut costs.

That tossed those kids over to the state institutions run by Public Institutions.

One state agency saved money while costs in another went up. Meanwhile, the two agencies argued over what care would be best for these troubled kids.

Relations got so bad that a state senator recently remarked about how nice it was to see the directors of those two departments sitting together, side-by-side.

Wait a second: aren't these guys supposed to be working together, working for us, serving our needs and, where possible, saving us money?

Nelson and Robak asked the same questions. Their answer was this reorganization plan, now called the Nebraska Partnership Project.

They said that Nebraskans would no longer be referred from agency to agency for help, but could gain government assistance through one "super" caseworker.

That and other changes would save money, they said, and eventually reduce the number of state employees.

Reaction was mostly positive. Of course, nobody opposes cutting costs, reducing confusion, and making government work for people. And Congress appears poised to cutback on funding for welfare and Medicaid and let the states take those programs over, putting more pressure on being efficient.

Some state workers, who have been through other "reorganizations" in the past, weren't so sure the new revamping plan would work. Past efforts, they said, mostly reduced the number of workers "at the front" while increasing the number of middle managers sitting in office buildings.

They're already overworked, they said, and this just sounds like a plan to give them even more work and eliminate some jobs.

But even they agreed that something should be done.

It will be up to the Nelson Administration to demonstrate that this is more than just an "illusion" of progress.

During a recent public meeting to discuss facilities needs for the Wayne school system, school officials, Dr. Don Zeiss, left and Dr. Dennis Jensen were photographed discussing the difficult issues facing the district and its voters concerning school building needs. Zeiss' expression mirrors the concerns most voters have. He and Jensen both appear to be worried about how the district can match the function of providing the best education for Wayne students with the form of the current facilities and the limits on what the taxpayers can afford. ## Letters

Dear Editor:

As leaders of Citizens for Responsible Tax Policy, we would like to respond to the Sept. 15 "One Nebraska Journal" commentary by Gov. Ben Nelson. We appreciate the governor's interest in the Citizens' Amendment to Reduce Property Taxes and his compliments for us. We also believe it is important to address his concerns.

The Citizens' Amendment is simple. It would provide real and lasting property tax relief by creating a balanced tax system and incentives for government efficiencies.

It is a reasonable and workable approach that will roll back property taxes by about $400 million, assure uniform real property assessment and ensure a quality education for all children in Nebraska.

The heart of the amendment would put in place caps on property tax rates at $1.80 per $100 of assessed valuation in cities and villages and $1.30 in unincorporated areas.

The governor claims that this proposal is a tax shift. That is simply not true. The Citizens' Amendment brings balance to Nebraska's tax system. It means everyone will better share the load of providing needed government services. Currently, that load is heavily tilted toward property taxpayers. In fact, in 1994, Nebraskans paid $1.5 billion in property taxes, more than sales and income tax receipts combined.

Nebraska needs balance in its tax system because it will help to keep tax rates low, which is good for economic development; it will make our tax system more stable; and it will minimize the defects of each particular tax, making the system more fair.

The governor also has concerns about loss of local control. The amendment should actually enhance local control because it will give citizens the ultimate say on tax levies through elections. Also, a scarcity of funds created by the levy caps will mean greater attention by the public to how those funds are spent.

We believe the Citizens'

Throw your eggs at that pheasant fella

Policies, rules and traditions are sometimes aggravating to people who deal with the newspaper. Rest assured these things are no less aggravating for those who work at the paper.

I had a conversation this week with a reader who wanted to submit an editorial opinion without his name. He wanted to rebut a recent Wayne Herald editorial which argued that a new curfew law for the city would be ineffective. The new ordinance being considered by the city would not cause young people to suddenly show respect for the property and rights of others the newspaper's editorial said.

He wanted to argue in the newspaper that a curfew law would be effective. I certainly wanted the reader to argue that position in a letter to the editor because the primary purpose of the newspaper's editorials is to generate discussion on an issue and thereby arrive at community consensus.

Open public discussion of issues is a cornerstone of the great nation we live in.

But, the reader didn't want his name used with the letter because he feared teens in the community might single him out for reprisals. The newspaper's policy is to run signed letters to the editor with the name of the writer included.

"Why is it," the reader asked, "that the writer of the newspaper editorial does not have to put his name with the editorial but you require others to sign their names?"

Doesn't seem fair, he said.

I explained, with little effect I might add, that the editorial opinion published on the editorial page of the newspaper is not a single person's opinion but is arrived at through discussion among the news staff at the paper. It is the newspaper's opinion and as such it many times runs counter to the opinions of single individuals at the paper—even those of the person assigned to write the opinion.

The reader thinks editorial writers at the newspaper hide behind unsigned editorials so they don't get their house egged and their mailbox knocked over.

If I were worried about that, I would have gotten out of the newspaper business long ago.

Anyone bright enough to decipher one of our unsigned editorials can usually reason well enough to read the staff box on the same page and deduce that the publisher or one of his lackeys must be responsible. All of us will stand behind the right to have opinions expressed freely. Sometimes that means being the target of dolts who have no more intelligence to express a countering view than to hurl an egg at a building.

Our nation was built, thankfully, by people (even some editorial writers) who had the courage to express their opinions openly and stand behind them and (maybe more importantly) it was built by people who joined in the open debate with countering views.

At the Wayne Herald, personal opinions are always expressed with the name of the writer. (This column, for example, is the personal opinion of the writer and no one else should be held responsible.) The newspaper's opinion is expressed in unsigned editorials. (That means the whole editorial staff of the paper is responsible. But don't egg their houses please. If you feel compelled to target one individual, target the publisher. What's his name?)

The point is, if the newspaper's editorials were signed, they would become personal opinions and that is not their function.

It probably wouldn't do much good to start having Dewayne sign the editorials. Dewayne Herald is our pheasant mascot. Some might argue that the inanimate pheasant graphic provides a prime example of our collective intelligence, anyway.

But that's another personal opinion.

Submit it signed and we'll publish it.

And if you think your opinions expressed here caused your house to get egged, I personally promise to come and help you clean them off.

Government coverups eventually come out

News sources are now revealing what our government did in the 1940's, activities horrifying to the public.

A story in Sunday's papers should upset more Americans than the O.J. decision. The story claims thousands of people were killed during horrible experiments.

Responding to pressure for information on alleged Japanese biological-warfare experiments on U.S. prisoners during WWII, the Pentagon has declassified a series of postwar cables that demonstrate how Washington protected Emperor Hirohito and Japanese war criminals from the Russians.

President Clinton pledged to release all government information on germ-warfare data related to American prisoners of war. Declassified documents disclose that U.S. intelligence agents did not pursue signs that American prisoners in Manchuria were used as human guinea pigs. Why? Because there was a secret agreement granting Japanese officers immunity from war-crimes prosecution in exchange for tissue samples and reports on their human experiments!

The recently declassified cables were between Washington and General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters. U.S. officials were concerned that the Australian government's search for Japanese war criminals would make it difficult for the U.S. to deny Moscow's request to extradite Hirohito along with four Japanese generals to the Soviet Union for trial.

The experiments, also performed on Koreans and Chinese, included injections of bubonic plague, typhoid, syphilis and others. The prisoners were routinely dissected while they were still alive and conscious...without anesthesia...to determine the results of the dis-

Sheldon Harris, a Southern California historian says "These were some of the greatest villains of the 20th century. It's an amazing story of cover-up."

Our government just didn't want anything out, even if that meant lying to allies such as the Australians."

Tuesday, an Associated Press story told of additional government sanctioned radiation tests during the Cold War. Most of the experiments, involuntary, involved adults being given low-dose radioactive tracers.

President Clinton ordered the review in 1993 after details about the 1940 experiments, sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission, surfaced. Eighteen ill civilians were injected with small doses of plutonium to learn more about the effects of radiation. Other cases included irradiating prisoners testicles, experiments involving school children and pregnant women.

A presidential panel investigating the reports claims "There would be little or no benefit in compensating or even notifying most of the people who took part." Incredible!

In the aftermath of Waco and Ruby Ridge, one asks: what is today's coverup?

Up from the ashes; burned church reoccupied

By Eric McCarty
Of the Herald

It took a little more than three days, but the temple has been raised again.

The congregation of Calvary Bible Evangelical Free Church has taken a fire-gutted, molded, rain-damaged building and turned into a beautiful worship and ministry center.

The burnt down Redeemer Lutheran Church was purchased for $1 after a devastating fire in June of 1994 destroyed the sanctuary and much of the rest of the building.

Pastor Cal Kroeker said that plans had been made to move into a bigger facility at a later time, but the deal was too good to turn down.

"We originally wanted to build in five years, but the pieces fell into place and we felt God was leading us," he said.

THE OFFICIAL WORK

began in January and is still going on.

"We removed a lot of sheetrock and tried to salvage most of the doors," said Virge Kardell, church board member.

A new roof had to be built in the sanctuary, while sheetrock and electrical wiring also had to be replaced. Ott Construction rebuilt the new textured roof, while T & H Drywall replaced the sheetrock, and Mitchell Electric rewired the church.

Much of the labor came in the form of volunteers from the church.

An estimated 10,000 volunteer hours went into the project thus far and that number continues to climb.

"The move has really energized our congregation," stated Kroeker.

THE RESULT IS

a stunning new building, slightly modified from its earlier days.

A few of the adjustments include an enlarged foyer, choir loft and baptistry.

Furnishings came from many sources. A handmade cross by Lawrence Carlson was brought from the old facility. Several items were left as memorials from Our Savior Lutheran. "Many things

Fire week is special in Wayne

If there is one promotional week Wayneans should pay attention to it is this one—fire prevention week.

Oct. 8 through 13 is National Fire Prevention Week. This year's theme is "Watch what you heat: Prevent Home Fires." The theme was chosen because the two leading causes of home fires are cooking and heating equipment.

The state fire marshal reports a total of 29 Nebraskans lost their lives last year. The total number of fires in the state jumped from 6,448 in 1993 to 8,214 in 1994.

Calvin Coolidge created the national event in 1925, after the great Chicago fire.

Several events have been scheduled in Wayne in keeping with this prevention week.

The Wayne Junior Fire Patrol will kick off its monthly meetings with a session at 7 p.m. at the Fire Hall. All Wayne area fourth graders have been invited. Parents and teachers are also welcome.

Grade school tours of the fire hall have been scheduled for next week.

some of the inefficiencies," he added.

ANOTHER PLUS for the busing company is that they are "use the finest school buses and are meticulous with maintenance" which helps buses last longer.

In the Wayne district, the company runs five routes each day and a kindergarten route. The Emerson-Hubbard district is also a five route system and the Pender-Thurston route is a three route system. In addition, the busing company provides a van to transport special needs students from Pender and Emerson to South Sioux City.

"This is another example of how we are able to save a district some money. If each of these districts had to provide their own transportation, it would cost them more than when we pick up students at both schools and make only one trip to South Sioux City," Roper said.

THE COMPANY also uses larger buses to help keep costs down. "It is more efficient to take 65 students to an activity on one 77 passenger bus than it is to run two 54 passenger buses," he said.

Busing companies are more common in Minnesota and South Dakota than in Nebraska. The Bennett & Bennett Corp. has been in Canton, S.D. for 18 years and in Elk Point, S.D. for 11 years. "After a one year trial, the Alcester (S.D.) school district signed a nine year contract with us. I think that speaks highly of the service we provide," Roper said.

"I believe that as budgets get tighter, more and more schools will look to busing services in an effort to save money. As legal issues become more complex, I feel it is in the best interest of school districts to let us deal with the responsibility and liability involved with busing," he said.

THE BUSING company works for the school district and our reputation is important to us. We have never lost a contract in the nearly 20 years we have been in business," Roper said.

"We try to be attentive to the issues. Our goal is to treat everyone fairly and safely. We recommend a routing system to the district for administrative approval. We also have a desire to maintain the current drivers because they are familiar with the routes and are often able to recommend ways to become more efficient. We pay our drivers by the route so it is in their best interest to find ways to make the route as efficient as possible," he said.

The company returned $2,625.20 to the Wayne district at the end of the last school year because of days that the buses did not run. "We are billed for 20 days each month and after the school year is completed, the company made adjustments because of snow days," said Dr. Dennis Jensen, Superintendent of the Wayne Public Schools.

At the present time, Brian Reinhardt manages the Wayne buses and handles major maintenance for the Pender and Emerson buses. "We have a nice facility here in Wayne and if new schools in the area join the company, there may be more job opportunities in the future," Roper said.

The company is currently looking for back-up drivers for the Emerson and Pender routes.

Call before digging is now the law

Effective Oct. 2 the Statewide One-Call Center must be notified 48 hours prior to any and all digging activities by contractors, excavators and homeowners. The result of LB421 passed in 1994, the law states that all operators with underground facilities must register with the One-Call Center, so that all buried cables can be marked prior to digging.

This free service is being directed by the State Fire Marshall's Office and Diggers Hotline of Nebraska is the contracted One-Call service provider for Nebraska. As the One-Call Center, Diggers Hotline notifies all members so that they may dispatch personnel to work the designated site. All buried facilities at the location are then marked, eliminating potential damage to essential services and avoiding life threatening accidents.

Weak offensive output costs Wildcats in loss

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

For the fourth week in a row Wayne State College threw an interception which was returned for a touchdown as Minnesota-Duluth defeated the Wildcats 22-15 last Saturday. UMD's Andy Wolf made the latest interception a game-winner, as he picked off a Jared Hendershot pass and return it 60 yards to break a 15-15 tie with 1:20 left in the game.

The game began as a defensive struggle as neither team could muster much offense. Both teams traded punts before Duluth finally began to move the ball late in the quarter. The Bulldogs ten-play drive ended when Steve Thompson missed a 33-yard field goal into the wind. After another WSC punt the Bulldogs went back to work. Minnesota-Duluth mounted an eight-play, 53-yard drive that ended with a 27-yard touchdown pass from David Floysand to Chris Tschida. The Wildcats seemed to come to life on their next drive, scoring on a Jason DeMartile one yard run after a 13-play, 77-yard drive that took 4:25 off the clock. Chad Miller's extra-point was blocked however, and WSC still trailed 7-6. On the ensuing kickoff, the Cats caught Duluth completely off guard with an onside kick that was recovered by the Specialist, alias Lamart Cooper. Wayne State could not convert on the opportunity as they were forced to punt after three plays.

The Wayne State offense was again lifeless as the second half started. A pair of punts were followed by a fumble by Kevin Swayne on Wayne State's third possession. No damage was done however, as Rick Kuiken intercepted a Floysand pass and returned it 17 yards to the WSC 47 yard line. The Wildcats took full advantage of this opportunity as Hendershot found Chris Baker for a 5-yard touchdown. Swayne could not break the goal line on the two-point pass from Hendershot, so the WSC lead was 12-7.

The Wildcats could not take advantage of a Bulldog fumble in the fourth quarter, but Brad Fitzke nailed a 52-yard punt to pin UMD at their own 10 yard line. After a 15-yard gain, Theelke, who replaced Floysand at quarterback followed a pair of blockers and burst up field on a 75-yard touchdown run. Theelke's two-point pass to Chris Tschida gave the Bulldogs a 15-12 lead. After the Wildcats were forced to punt, the Cat defense took over and forced UMD into its own fourth down situation. Freshman defensive back Rick Kuiken came up with the big play when it was needed as he blocked the Bulldog punt and the Wildcats recovered at the UMD 26 yard line. Wayne State couldn't punch it in however, and settled for a 24-yard field goal by Chad Miller to tie the score at 15-15 with 4:00 left in the game. The WSC defense returned the ball to the offense with 1:53 remaining and it looked like the Cats had another chance to pull out a fourth quarter win. On first down Hendershot found Ray Taylor on a 19-yard pass play to put the ball at the WSC 43 yard line. On the next

Too little, too late

Jared Hendershot looks down field in an attempt to bring the Wildcats back in the final seconds last Saturday. Hendershot's interception which was returned for a touchdown with 1:20 left in the game gave Minnesota-Duluth a 22-15 win.

Hendershot again looked down field, but the Wayne State comeback was not to be, as Wolf intercepted the quarterback's pass and returned it for the 60-yard game-winner.

Defensively, the Wildcats played an outstanding game. The Cats allowed only nine first downs and 277 yards of total offense. If you take away a 75-yard touchdown run by Bulldog's quarterback Trevor Theelke, the defense allowed just 2.9 yards per carry. Senior inside linebacker Jon Adkisson had a phenomenal game, recording 25 total tackles including 11 solo stops and one tackle for loss. Wayne State totaled six tackles for negative yardage on the day.

Offensively, it was another story. The Wildcats gained only 296 yards of total offense and were limited to 11 first downs. They didn't gain a first down until midway through the second period and went three and out on eight of their first nine drives. WSC completed only 42 percent of their passes and converted on just five of 21 third down attempts.

"Our offense did not play well from start to finish," said Head Coach Dennis Wagner. "It was a frustrating game offensively. Our receivers had nine drops and we gave up a crucial interception."

Wagner has also not been happy with the play of his special teams. "Over the years, special teams has been a big part of our success," said Wagner, "but we have been struggling with it lately. We have not been aggressive enough and we are making too many mental errors. I'm really disappointed in our special teams and our offensive performance. I can't explain how ticked off I am without swearing."

'Cats to face Lopers

Wayne State (3-2) travels to Kearney on Saturday to take on the UNK Lopers (2-2-1) and hopes to end their first two-game losing streak since starting the 1992 season 0-2.

great ball control offense. Defensively, this will be the best team we will face. We have a lot of work to do this week in practice."

Special teams help Devils in win

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

Senior Scott Sievers returned a blocked punt by for a touchdown and Jeremy Lutt also blocked a field goal as the Wayne Blue Devils spoiled West Point's homecoming with a 20-14 victory Friday night.

"We were happy with the win," said Head Coach Lonnie Ehrhardt. "The kids really played hard. It was a challenge and the kids responded well."

After a scoreless first quarter, West Point got on the scoreboard first with an 11-yard pass from Brandon Grimm to Josh Reeson. Wayne responded with 35-yard strike from Ryan Junck to Paul Blomenkamp to even the score at 7-7. With 5:00 left in the half, the Cadets were forced to punt. Junior Tony Hansen blocked the punt and Sievers scooped up the loose ball and raced 39 yards for the go-ahead score.

The Blue Devils added their lead in the third quarter when Junior Tyler Endicott scored on a 16-yard run to give Wayne a 20-7 lead. West Point scored on another Grimm touchdown pass in the fourth quarter to cut the lead to six points, but Sievers intercepted a Grimm pass late in the game to seal the win for the Devils.

Wayne (2-3) heads for O'Neill (0-5) on Friday to battle the Eagles. According to Ehrhardt, O'Neill's record is not a good indication of the talent on the team.

"They've got a good football team," said Ehrhardt. "It's going to be a big ball game. If we're going to have a winning season, we have to win this one."

JV falls to Schuyler

The Wayne JV football team saw their record drop to 0-2 last week as they were beaten by Schuyler 20-14. The team played hard but had four turnovers, three in the second half, and a lot of penalties that hurt them. Wayne gained 229 yards of offense and 118 yards on kickoff returns including an 85-yard touchdown romp by Brad Maryott. The squad also blocked a punt, but still has yet to put a complete game together.

Wakefield stays unbeaten

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

Wakefield improved to 5-0 Friday night with a 20-14 win over Emerson-Hubbard. The Trojans trailed at halftime before taking the lead for good late in the third quarter.

"It basically was a typical Wakefield-Emerson football game," said Head Coach Dennis Wilbur. "Emerson controlled the ball by going three or four yards at a time. We were fortunate that we were able to stop them enough to let our offense have the ball."

The Pirates controlled the ball most of the first quarter as they drove 77 yards in 13 plays to take an 8-0 lead on Wakefield. The Trojans responded with a Justin Mackling 4-yard touchdown late in the second quarter, but the two-point conversion failed and Emerson took a 8-6 lead into halftime.

Wakefield fed the Pirates a little of their own medicine in the second half. The Trojans had a 46-play, 77-yard drive ending with a 14-yard Mackling touchdown run in the third quarter and a 12-play, 67-yard drive in the fourth quarter that culminated with a 1-yard run by Justin Dutcher.

Emerson scored late in the fourth quarter on a 7-yard touchdown pass from Josh Hassler to Mike Hassler, but it was too little, too late.

"It was a hard hitting game," said Wilbur. "We had the game in hand a little better after the first quarter."

This weekend will showcase two of the best teams in the area as Wakefield (5-0) travels to Hartington to take on the Wildcats (5-0) in a key Lewis & Clark Conference match-up.

"Hartington is a very powerful and formidable team," said Wilbur. "It should be a great game."

Hartington speed too much for 'Cats

By Lee Koch
Of the Herald

Deja-vu all over again. Hartington's big play capability proved to be too much for a Wayne County football team for the second week in a row as the Wildcats of the north dumped the host Wildcats in Winside 33-7 Friday night.

The game, that in some respects was an instant replay of Hartington's win over Wayne a week ago, saw the visitors accumulate 233 of their 337 yards of total offense on just seven plays. Touchdown runs of 76, 48, and 46 yards proved too much for Coach Randy Geier's 'Cats to overcome in order to pull off an upset over their northern cousins.

"Basically, their big plays and speed were too much for us."

Although he was not happy with the outcome Geier added, "I was happy with the intensity level and overall effort the kids gave. We missed a couple of scoring opportunities that we need to cash in on to be successful."

Winside stopped Hartington's game opening drive that covered 81 yards on nine plays as the host defense stopped the visitors on a fourth-and-three situation at their own 11 yard line. Geier's crew then put together a 12-play scoring drive that went 89 yards ending with a 28-yard touchdown pass from Robert Wittler to Chad O'Connor to draw first blood with 3:27 left in the opening quarter.

Retaliation came quickly as Wyatt McGhee returned the ensuing kickoff 96 yards for Hartington. Lightning struck again as quarterback Eric Wynia gave the Winside crowd an example of Hartington's speed as he pulled away from the home team's defense for a 46-yard scoring sprint to give the visitors a lead that was never threatened by the home team.

Joe Schwedhelm (9), Josh Jaeger (8) and Dave Paulson (6) were the leading tacklers for Winside, while Cory Brummels recovered a fumble caused by a Brock Shelton hit.

Winside (2-3) travels to Ponca (3-2) next week to face a team that features a strong running game led by Tom Nelson, a running back who many coaches feel may be the best in the conference.

Wayne State drops two of three matches

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

The Wayne State College volleyball team competed at Omaha last weekend and lost two out of three matches to drop their record to 10-8.

On Friday, the Wildcats were defeated by Nebraska-Omaha 15-1, 15-7, 15-11. Senior co-captain Lora Grant recorded four kills, seven digs, two total blocks and one service ace. Freshman Renee Fuhr tallied six kills, while junior Jennifer Svitak had two total blocks. Junior setter Tracy Wessel led the team with 19 assists.

On Saturday, Wayne State rebounded with a 15-11, 15-7, 15-13 win over South Dakota. Grant had a dozen kills, eight digs and one service ace, while the 'Cats other co-captain, senior Annette Fluckey, recorded eight kills, 10 digs and three total blocks. Tammy Gablenz had seven kills, while Sophomore setter Kari Pichler added 21 assists, two block assists and one service ace.

The Wildcats lost their final match to North Dakota 16-14, 15-12, 15-6. Gablenz tallied eight kills and 12 digs, while Fluckey had six kills, eight digs and two total blocks. Sophomore Amy Gudmundson contributed seven kills and two service aces, while senior Laura Pfister had seven digs and two block assists.

"I think we should have left there 2-1," said Coach Sharon Vanis. "I think we were a better team than UND. They just caught us when we weren't playing well."

One bright spot for the 'Cats was the selection of Gablenz to the all-tournament team. The 5-10 senior finished the tournament with 18 kills, 15 digs, four assists and three block assists.

"Tammy has always done a great job for us from the right side, both hitting and blocking," said Vanis.

The Laurel-Concord Bears were tested Friday night, but were able to keep their perfect record intact with a 7-0 victory over Plainview. After breezing through its first four games by an average score of 55-7, Coach Tom Luxford's team passed their exam with a stingy defense and a solid rushing attack. The Bears allowed just 173 yards to the Pirates, while racking up 219 yards on the ground.

"It was a very physical ball game for us," said Luxford. "It was the first time we had to play on a long field, but we got through it and learned from it."

Jeff Wattier scored the game's only touchdown on an eight yard scamper in the second quarter and also led the Bears with 86 yards rushing. Kody Urwiler led the defensive effort with 16 tackles, while Ryan Kvols played the part of thief with a fumble recovery and an interception.

Laurel (5-0) tries to stay unbeaten on Friday when they host the Elkhorn Valley Falcons Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

"This week is going to be a challenge," said Luxford. "Elkhorn Valley is for real and it's going to be a stiff challenge."

WSC gets verbal commitment

Stanton head boys basketball coach Curt Lammers has announced that Jon Dolliver has given a verbal commitment to Wayne State College to play basketball there next season. The signing will be made official on November 8, the first day of the early signing period.

Last season Jon averaged 29 points and nine rebounds per game in leading Stanton to a 20-4 record and a state tournament appearance. The 6-5 guard is the school's all-time scoring leader, and already has scored over 1,000 points for his career. As a sophomore he was second team all-state and as a junior he was first team all-state in class C-2.

"Wayne was the first school to show an interest in me," said Dolliver, "and I'm excited to get the opportunity to stay in northeast Nebraska and be a part of their program."

Dolliver chose WSC over Creighton, Nebraska-Kearney and Northwest Missouri State.

Laurel-Concord sweeps own tournament

By Jeremy Buss
For the Herald

Laurel-Concord went 3-0 Saturday to take first place in their own tournament. Laurel would not lose a set the entire day.

The Bears first opponent was Wakefield, who fell in two sets 15-8, 15-1. Laurel's next opponent was Randolph, who also fell in two sets 15-8, 15-4. The Wayne Blue Devils were the Lady Bears final victim. They too would lose in two sets 15-11, 15-13.

"We played some quality competition," said Coach Patti Cunningham. "We played well throughout the day. We had aggressive front row play and we were able to shut down attacks."

Wayne finished second in the tourney with a 2-1 record. Randolph was the Blue Devils' first opponent of the day. After a brief delay for a fire alarm, Wayne would take the game 15-9, 15-9. Wayne would also beat Wakefield in two sets 15-9, 15-13 before dropping their final match to an aggressive Laurel team.

"I was really pleased," said Coach Joyce Hoskins. "We played a really good tournament and we played Laurel tough."

Third place went to the Randolph Cardinals with a 1-2 record, while Wakefield completed a rough day on the court with an 0-3 record after losing to Randolph 12-15, 10-15.

"This was a disappointing tournament," said Coach Marty Slaughter. "We're not playing as a team and we're not playing to our full potential."

Injuries hurt Eagles' chances

By Corey Berg
Of the Herald

With injuries to both running backs, the Allen Eagles had slim hopes of defeating Wausau last Friday as the Vikings went on to a 60-20 victory.

"It was just one of those games where you do what you can," said Head Coach Warren Jensen. "Our kids tried hard, we just weren't able to stop them."

Allen was held to just one first down and 18 yards of total offense, while Wausau rolled up 320 yards of offense. Michael Blohm had two catches for 59 yards and scored two of the Eagles' touchdowns. The first came on a 49-yard pass from Jeremy Kumm, while his second came via a 65-yard kickoff return. Brent Sachau scored Allen's final touchdown on a 20-yard return of a fumbled punt.

David McCorkindale, who suffered a partial cartilage tear in his knee Sept. 22 against Cedar Bluffs, is Allen's leading rusher this year and hopes to return for this Friday's game.

The Eagles (1-4) hope to regroup as they host the Beemer Bobcats on Friday.

Gridiron battle is special to Waynian

By Shawn Kitzing
For the Herald

For Matt Bruggeman, this Saturday's University of Nebraska at Kearney vs. Wayne State College football game is a different type of homecoming.

Bruggeman, the UNK starting nose tackle, graduated in 1992 from Wayne High School, where he lettered three years in football, wrestling and track. The defensive lineman said his decision to attend UNK was nothing against Wayne State.

"I came on my recruiting trip and liked what I saw," Bruggeman said. He explained that he saw a chance to play early in his career at UNK and he hasn't looked back since.

Last year Bruggeman recorded 33 unassisted tackles and 35 assists for a total of 68 tackles. Fifteen of those were for losses totaling 43 yards. He also had three fumble recoveries and broke up one pass.

This year he is leading the team on defense with 25 unassisted tackles and 14 assists for 39 total tackles. He has eight tackles for losses totaling 16 yards.

UNK Defensive Coordinator Terry Renner said Bruggeman is a solid anchor in the middle of the defensive line.

"He picked up valuable experience early in his career and has continued to get better and better," Renner said.

Bruggeman said he didn't receive negative comments from members of the Wayne community for leaving his hometown in favor of Kearney.

"The people of Wayne supported me and continue to support me," he said.

The decision to attend Kearney was left up to him and he has gotten nothing but support from his family since making that decision.

Bruggeman said he has no regrets for passing up a chance to play football in the friendly confines of his hometown.

Wayne State will enter Saturday's game with a 3-2 record, while UNK is 2-2-1. Despite the importance of the game to both teams, Bruggeman is taking the game pretty much in stride.

"I look at this as just another game," Bruggeman said. "We'll face this challenge and take it no differently than any other we've already faced."

Devils 2nd at Iowa Tourney

Gayle Olson tallied eight points and two aces on 12-14 serving and a dozen kills on 49-56 hitting. Junior setter Melissa Weber had 43 assists on 128-136 setting and added three points on 11-11 serving.

Wildcats split team honors

The Wayne State Wildcat cross-country teams split the team honors with Dordt College at the 5th Annual LeRoy Simpson Cross-Country Invitational on a cold, windy and wet day last Saturday. In what turned out to be a dual meet between the two schools, the men won easily with a low score of 17 to 42 for Dordt's A squad and 85 for their B squad, while the women lost to Dordt 23 to 38.

In the men's race the Wildcats took first through third and fifth through seventh with junior team captain James McGown winning easily in 27:54.4.

"McGown was by himself for the first mile," said Coach Brian Kavanaugh, "yet still managed to run a great time despite the conditions."

In the women's race, junior team captain-Kathy Dalton was the runner-up, clocking in at 21:08.6, behind Sarah Plum of Dordt with a winning time of 20:57.3.

"Kathy ran a great race," said Kavanaugh, "but she let Plum get too far ahead of her early on. She closed the gap by at least 10 seconds in the final 1,000 meters."

Former countian focusing on Huskers

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

When the Nebraska Cornhuskers took the field last Saturday against Washington State thousands of eyes were focused on Tommie Frazier, Damon Benning and the rest of the defending national champions. One man had more than his eyes focused on the action. Wayne county native Bob Berry had his camera focused and ready to take 12 to 15 rolls worth of Cornhusker action.

Berry, 31, is a free-lance photographer who shoots mostly for Huskers Illustrated and occasionally for Nebraska Sports magazine and the Nebraska athletic department.

After graduating from Wakefield high school in 1983, Berry joined the Marines. That's where he first picked up a camera.

"I bought my first camera in Cuba to document what I did," said Berry.

Berry didn't take any classes to learn photography. He taught himself by reading magazines and books and also by taking a lot of pictures.

"I was in the security force down in Cuba," said Berry. "If we weren't standing on the line, I was reading photo magazines and books and shooting. I have a lot of pictures of Cuba."

After fulfilling his obligation to the Marines, Berry returned to northeast Nebraska to attend Wayne State College. He was the photo editor for the Wayne Stater for two years and also took pictures for the Wayne Herald. Berry graduated from Wayne State in 1993 with a degree in Communications.

Berry's first chance to show what he could do came from a shot in the dark phone call to Huskers Illustrated.

"I feel fortunate because I called Huskers Illustrated out of the blue to see if they had any openings for someone to shoot once in awhile just so I could get my foot in the door."

Berry was lucky because the magazine didn't have a photographer for the upcoming season. His first assignment was to shoot a Huskers spring football game. Huskers Illustrated liked what they saw and hired Berry to shoot for them.

Berry has shot many different sports and has found that it's different shooting for each sport.

"I think volleyball is probably the hardest to shoot," said Berry. "Volleyballs get hit so hard and so fast that you can only fire off about one shot and get the ball near their hands before it really starts to take off. Football is a sport where I think some of the best sports shots can really come out because of the action."

Covering the Huskers has allowed Berry to meet many people in the photography field including five or six Sports Illustrated photographers. He has also found that you have to push and shove at times to get your shot.

Although the photography field is very competitive, Berry likes his chosen occupation.

"It's fun and it's rewarding to see your work published," said Berry. "I wouldn't want to change anything. Things are always growing and evolving in photography. Part of the fun of it is getting to work with new equipment and trying to do things that other photographers don't do."

While it may be a rewarding career, it can also be expensive. Berry owns approximately $25,000 in camera equipment. He gives thanks to his wife, Kathy, for support during the lean times.

"She's been very supportive," said Berry. "There were times when she was working and I was doing nothing but sitting on my butt hoping for something to happen."

Despite his success so far, Berry doesn't feel like he's made it in the photography field quite yet.

"I still see myself as an outsider trying to knock down the door," said Berry.

Berry, who has only a verbal agreement to shoot for Huskers Illustrated, would like to find a job with a little more security.

"I would like to be either a contracted photographer or get a full-time job for a sports publication," said Berry. "Shooting constantly. Shooting so much that I get sick of it."

Berry's dream job would be for Sports Illustrated or National Geographic. Even if he never reaches his dreams, not many people can say that their job is more fun than work.

"To me, I'm just taking pictures," said Berry.

Freelance photographer and Wayne county native Bob Berry poses with some of his $25,000 worth of camera equipment.

Bob Berry took this photograph of Damon Benning headed up field two weeks ago in the Huskers 49-7 win over Pacific.

Wayne golfers headed to District meet

TBN doesn't get the job done

I've always believed that the people who run Major League Baseball don't really know what they're doing. On an individual basis these people are probably very intelligent, but something happens when you put them all in a room together to make a decision. The powers that be in baseball have once again proven to me that their collective brain isn't running on all cylinders.

From the same people who brought you the last two strike-shortened seasons, the 1994 Phantom World Series and a play-off system that rewards the wildcard Yankees with home-field advantage over the Western Division Champion Mariners, we now give you The Baseball Network.

The Baseball Network, as I like to call it, has to be one of the most ridiculous concepts that our friends in charge of MLB have ever thought up. TBN enables the few people who do not receive cable TV to view baseball that they otherwise would not have seen. The problem is that most of us have cable television and are able to watch the Braves on TBS and the Cubs and White Sox on WGN every night of the summer. We can also see many other teams on ESPN every Sunday and Wednesday. When TBN had its Baseball Night In America, no other stations could broadcast baseball. All this did was force baseball fans in Minnesota to sit through another Twins loss and Braves and Cubs fans in other parts of the country to miss out on their favorite team.

I made it through the summer without becoming too upset at the baseball bosses, but then along came the play-offs. With the expanded play-off format this season, TBN decided to broadcast only one of the four Division Series on a regional basis. That means for those of us in Nebraska, we were able to enjoy the Colorado Rockies host the Atlanta Braves. Wait a minute. I'm a sports fan. Maybe I want to watch all the games. This is the play-offs. These are important games. I need to see these games. Don't worry, TBN has the cure. They'll give us updates of the other games in progress during our game, kind of like the during the Final Four. It sounds like a good plan, but baseball is not like basketball. In basketball you can tell when a team is starting to make a comeback. In baseball anything can happen at anytime.

Straight to the Kore

By Korey Berg

So, I was watching game one of the Braves-Rockies series on Tuesday. With the game tied at 1-1 in the fourth inning and Vinny Castilla at bat with one man on base, TBN elected to update us on another game. I'm not sure which game. I was still trying to watch my game even after it had been muted and squished into the upper left-hand corner of my TV screen. While we were away, Castilla proceeded to crush the next pitch out of the park to give the Rockies a 3-1 lead. TBN brought us back to Coors Field just in time for Castilla to cross home plate. That's not how I like to watch my baseball. What if it was the ninth inning instead of the third and it was the game-winning hit. This is important stuff to me. I can't afford to be missing important home runs. Obviously, TBN didn't want to miss the home run, but they don't know what's going to happen. The only way to solve this problem is to show us all the games. If TBN doesn't want to broadcast all the games, let the other networks broadcast some. I'm sure TBS wouldn't mind broadcasting some Braves play-off game and I think between ESPN and ESPN 2 we could find some time. After all, if we have time for O.J. we have time for baseball.

German exchange student enjoys new home

By Eric McCarty
Of the Herald

When the Berlin Wall came down in 1991, a whole new world opened up for communist East Germany.

For 16-year-old Vera Muller, that new world includes N.E.braska.

Muller is participating in an exchange student program which has taken her from a comfortable suburban lifestyle in Brandenburg, Germany, to rolling hills farmland near Hoskins.

The exchange program is through the Education Foundation (EF), based in Cambridge, Mass. EF matches interested students with families, arranges travel plans, and provides orientation activities for the students.

Terry Post, International Exchange Coordinator, recruited Doug and Beth Deck as host parents and matched them with Muller.

"WE WANTED A girl from Germany," said Mrs. Deck. "We also wanted someone who wasn't from too big of a town, who liked animals, and would be active with the girls." The Decks have three daughters--Emily, 17, Rachel, 14, and Laurie Beth, 12.

Muller fit the mold perfectly. Brandenburg is a city of 88,000 compared with Berlin which is over 5 million, she requested to be on a farm, and she is active in Winside High School sports with the girls.

Muller is on the Winside junior varsity volleyball team which she estimates is better than her team in Brandenburg. "Ygs, I think they would beat us," she said.

MULLER SAID HER only requests were to be on a farm in the United States.

She applied for the program in fall of 1994 and found out she would be coming to N.E.braska shortly before her arrival in August. Muller said her first reaction was, "It sounds cold."

What Muller was not ready for after a two-week language program in New York was the intense heat and humidity that covered

N.E.braska for much of August. Strong winds and violent thunderstorms, which are common to the area, were another eye-opening experience for the 16-year-old.

Brandenburg is an industrial city approximately 50 miles from Berlin. Surrounded by forests and rivers, Muller canoes, bicycles and rides horses near her home.

A recent trip down the Niobrara was a fun one for the Decks and Muller. She explained that the Niobrara was more exciting than the rivers near Brandenburg. "It was a lot faster," she said.

THERE HAS NOT been much of a culture shock for Muller, who might have been misled one German misconception--that the United States is full of big cities.

Her first impression of the Decks is one she found to be true for most N.E.braskans. "I thought they were very friendly and funny," she said.

After four years of English, language is no barrier for Muller. "We were very pleased with the English she could speak," stated Mrs. Deck.

MULLER REFLECTED briefly on the state of the former East Germany and the changes that took place after the fall of communism there.

"There have been changes in lifestyle," said Muller. "There were special things like certain fruit that you could not buy all the time. You can buy anything now."

Not all changes have been for the good, Muller said. "Before everyone had a job. Now, there are many people who don't have one. But I think most people are happier now."

Muller said she speaks to her parents every weekend over the phone. They hope to come to the United States before Muller leaves in June.

WHEN MULLER LEAVES for Germany next summer she plans to take more than she came with. The list includes videos, books of Nebraska, and blue jeans. Muller said jeans are about three times more expensive in Germany.

A sight seeing trip has been scheduled for EF area students to Fort Robinson and Mount Rushmore in the near future.

Anyone interested in hosting an exchange student or being an exchange student through EF should contact Terry Post at (402) 375-3655. Post said she is constantly seeking more parents for the program.

The Farmer's Wife

Late babies a family tradition

We seem to have a family tradition of late babies. Sue was due on St. Patrick's Day and was almost an April Fool's baby. Her boys were both two weeks late. It seems the whole nine months is long, but going overdue is the longest time of all.

You get the baby bed ready, and wash all the little clothes. You pack your suitcase. You clean the house, do the laundry, and wait.

People say things like, "are you still hanging around?" or "when the apple is ripe, it will fall." Every day seems like a week.

This fall, it was Ann's turn to experience it. Max was getting calls from customers and truckers all over the country, asking if he was a father yet.

The date was Sept. 19. I cleared my calendar for the whole week, got the other home health nurses to see my patients, and tried to get caught up on paper work (which actually never happens). I even scheduled an inservice at a nursing in Norfolk that Friday, assuming I would be up here anyway.

We should have known better. So, we all went back to regular schedules. And Ann resigned herself to being pregnant forever. I gave her my pager number, just in case.

On Monday, the 2nd, the Big Farmer announced at noon that there was a huge train wreck in Louisville. I had a hospice referral in Peru. All the Krajicek boys had

Placed 12th

Angie Jones of Allen placed 12th in the National Barrel Horse Association World Championships held in Augusta, Ga. from Sept. 22 to 29. A total of 1,600 members participated throughout the week, making this a huge event.

There were 936 contestants who competed in the Open 3D divisions, with the remaining contestants competing in the senior and youth 3D divisions.

Each contestant competed in two go rounds, then each person's fastest time was taken, placing them in one of three time divisions. The 40 fastest times were then picked out of the first, second and third divisions and these winners advanced to the finals.

Angie tied for second place in the first go and then advanced to finals where she placed 12th out of 40 contestants. Top 20 contenders in each division received belt buckles and cash awards.

Angie is a 1988 graduate of Allen Consolidated Schools and a 1992 graduate of University of Nebraska Medical Center in Lincoln. She is employed as an RN at Pender Community Hospital.

The Wayne Postal Service is requesting its customers allow for curbside delivery. Postmaster Dave Kirkpatrick predicts, "mounted delivery will mean better service to customers and less cost to the Post Office."

The Golden Years

Why are some older people more physically fit than others? Studies of men and women age 55 and over who participate in the National Senior sports classic provide some answers. About 1400 of them participate in the study, conducted every two years at the sports event. Four out of five choose foods that are healthful and almost all eat breakfast regularly. The six in 10 who drink alcoholic beverages do so sparingly. Seven in 10 get an annual medical checkup. A separate study of 425 men and women participants, age 55 to 99, found that they average 7.5 hours a week in fitness conditioning or playing sports.

In the 1930s, social worker Louis Euster decided to open a furniture store in New York with a difference. Instead of the usual traditional styles, he was one of the first to introduce contemporary pieces of functional, uncluttered design. In 1955 he moved to much larger quarters in suburban Armonk. At age 90 he puts in four or five full days a week, when he isn't roaming Europe to scout new finds. "I'm always planning the next day, the next move," he says.

Dixon clubs vote to nix affiliation

The Dixon County Association for Family and Community Education (FCE) Clubs (formerly called Extension Clubs) have voted to not affiliate with the national, state and county associations. A variety of changes have occurred in the national association in the past couple of years which have impacted the state and county affiliation.

The four remaining clubs consisted of Merry Homemaker and Friendly Neighbors from the Concord area, Twilight Line of Dixon and Wakefield Happy Homemakers of Wakefield. Most of the clubs plan to continue to meet and participate in University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension lesson trainings and provide community service projects.

The county's council treasury will be used to provide a possible flag pole and landscaping at the entrance to the Dixon County Fairgrounds. Deb Clarkson and Judy Martindale of Concord and Roscann Hintz of Dixon are providing leadership to this project.

Other areas discussed were presided over by chairperson Judy Martindale of Concord. The group discussed the guest storyteller that they had secured for the County Fair who was Matthew "Sitting Bear" Jones. The speaker was financed through the Nebraska Humanities Council. Friendly Neighbors also had a story time at the Concordia Lutheran Church in Concord during the Fair.

Remaining clubs expressed a desire to continue hosting the open class division at the County Fair. Lastly, the two silver services will be sold and funds added to the county fair entrance project.

The Dixon County clubs celebrated 60 years of existence from 1935-1995 through a slide program Spring Event held in April. The Merry Homemakers Club was a charter club in 1935 and was the only charter club remaining through this year.

October is Head Start Awareness Month. Head Teacher Erika Fink, Nutrition and Disabilities Aide Shelli Roeder, Teacher's Aide Joyce Sebade and Supervisor Deb Alleman will host an open house Oct. 10. The program started in 1964 and is designed to give pre-school children from low income homes a head start with formal education.

Head Start program to host Open House Oct. 10

October is Head Start Awareness month and the Goldenrod Hills Community Services Head Start Center will hold an open house on Tuesday, Oct. 10 from 4 to 6:30 p.m. at the Head Start Center four miles west of Wayne on Highway 35 at the District 51 School.

Head Start was created in 1964 under the Economic Opportunity Act. The program was designed to provide pre-school children with a "Head Start" on formal education. The primary goal of the program is achieved through the implementation of a comprehensive child development program which would provide for the physical, social and intellectual growth of children.

As a comprehensive community-based program concerned with health, education and welfare of its participants, Head Start provides nutritional, medical, dental and social services and actively involves the parents, family and community in the child development center.

Outreach to-home and community, and the involvement of parents and community members in the program, is one of the most unique features of Head Start, and established a model for similar child development programs. The Wayne Head Start program has been in existence since January 1992.

Staff members include Deb Alleman, center supervisor/family service worker; Erika Fink, head teacher; Shelli Roeder, teacher's aide, nutrition aide and disabilities aide; and Joyce Sebade, part-time teacher's aide.

There are 18 students in the Wayne program who are three to five years of age and are from income eligible homes. To be eligible, a family must meet federal poverty guidelines, although 10 percent of the enrollment may be from middle income categories. Head Start also includes the college community through its service to WSC students who are parents.

Twenty percent of the Head Start budget must be matched from local resources. In Wayne, this means parents and other community members volunteer work time or make donations. In the past years, volunteers have included Wayne State students, Wayne High School students, local parents and community people.

Anyone wanting more information concerning the Head Start program are encouraged to call the center Monday through Friday between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Staff are also available to speak at your groups or clubs.

The Head Start pre-schoolers will also be active in Red Ribbon Week which will be held during the week of Oct. 16. They will be given red ribbons to wear and will also be doing an activity with the Friends Group.

Does caffeine affect performance?

Does a swig or two of coffee before an athletic event help with performance? What about sports drinks?

These and more exotic ergogenic aids were discussed at the Lillian Fountain Smith Conference for Nutrition Educators in Fort Collins, Colo. The conference is sponsored each year by the Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition at Colorado State University with an endowment from the Lillian Fountain Smith Foundation.

According to Dr. Melvin Williams, director of the Human Performance Laboratory at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va., an ergogenic aid is any substance or treatment theoretically designed to improve physical performance above and beyond the effects of training.

Because human energy is the basis of all sport performance, ergogenics are designed to enhance either the production, control or efficiency of that energy. An ergogenic aid that may be useful in one event, eg. a short, high-speed race — may actually hinder performance in another type of event, such as a marathon.

Caffeine is a common stimulant that has long been theorized to improve athletic performance in long endurance events. Caffeine's action is somewhat unclear, but is thought to be associated with increasing the level of free fatty acids in the blood and helping spare needed glycogen.

Caffeine is currently banned by the International Olympic committee at levels of 12 micrograms of caffeine per milliliter of urine, which is the equivalent of drinking five to six cups of strong coffee in a short period of time.

Sally Ebmeier
Cooperative Extension
Cedar County

According to Williams, research evaluating the effectiveness of caffeine on performance is inconclusive, primarily because the effect is highly individualized. On tasks which require quick reaction time, caffeine appears to be most useful for those individuals who are mentally fatigued. A good night's rest might have the same effect.

As for its effect during prolonged aerobic endurance events, such as half marathons and marathons, studies have vacillated between no effect and increased performance in events longer than an hour. In a recent series of studies in Canada, intake of 9 milligrams of caffeine per kilogram body weight before the event enhanced performance in both prolonged running and cycling tests.

Caffeine may be disadvantageous to athletes exercising in hot or warm environments because it's a diuretic and increases basal heat production.

Dr. Williams noted to get the maximum effect from caffeine, marathoners who are caffeine users may wish to abstain for four to five days prior to the event, and then supplement with caffeine. That is, of course, if they can stamp the caffeine withdrawal headaches.

Should a child be punished for bed-wetting?

Q. Should I punish my son for bed-wetting?

A. Absolutely not! It is never appropriate to punish a child for any involuntary action. To punish someone for something he simply cannot avoid doing is to set him up for serious problems.

Of course, if you have reason to think that your son is awake and simply lies there in bed and urinates because he is too lazy to get up and go to the bathroom, that is another matter. However, true enuresis is totally involuntary.

Q. Can you offer any advice for dealing with recurring bed-wetting in a 6-year-old boy?

A. Enuresis can produce emotional and social distress for the older child. Thus, it is wise to help him conquer the problem as soon as possible. I would recommend that you make use of a buzzer device (such as a Wee Alert), which I found effective when used properly for children 4 years of age and older.

Bed-wetting occurs in most cases as a result of very sound sleep, which makes it difficult, if not impossible, for the child to learn nighttime control on his own. His mind does not respond to the signal reflex action that ordinarily awakens a lighter sleeper. Fortunately, that reflex action can be trained or conditioned to awaken even a deep sleeper.

The Wee Alert system, for example, produces an irritating sound when urination occurs at night. The child has been instructed to awaken one parent, who must place him in a tub of cold water or splash cold water on his face. Both alternatives are unpleasant, of course, but are essential to the success of the program.

The child is told that this is not a form of punishment for wetting the bed. It is necessary to help him break the habit so he can invite friends to spend the night, and so he can go to other homes as well. The cold water awakens the child fully and gives him a reason not to want to repeat the experience. It is a form of aversive conditioning, such as is used to help break the smoking habit. Later, the relaxation immediately prior to urination is associated with the unpleasantness of the bell and the cold water. When that connection is made, urinary control is mastered.

Your Questions

Q. My husband and I are distressed because our teenager seems to be rejecting her religious beliefs. My inclination is to panic, but before I do, can you offer a word of encouragement?

A. A small child is told what to think during his formative years. He is subjected to all the attitudes, biases and beliefs of his parents, which is right and proper. They are fulfilling their God-given responsibility to guide and train him.

However, there must come a moment when all of these concepts and ideas are examined by the individual and either adopted as true or rejected as false. If that personal evaluation never comes, then the adolescent fails to span the gap between "What I've been told" and "What I believe." This is one of the most important bridges leading from childhood to adulthood.

It is common, therefore, for teenagers to question the veracity of the religious instruction they have received. They may ask themselves, "Is there really a God? Does He know me? Do I believe in the values my parents have taught? Do I want what they want for my life? Have they misled me in any way? Does my experience contradict what I've been taught?"

For a period of years, beginning during adolescence and continuing into the 20s, this intensive self-examination is conducted. This process is especially distressing to parents who must sit on the sidelines and watch everything they have taught being scrutinized and questioned. It will be less painful, however, if both generations realize that the soul-searching is a normal, necessary part of growing up.

National 4-H Week is observed Oct. 1 to 7

National 4-H Week is being observed Oct. 1 to 7 to recognize 4-H's rich past, successful present and growing future.
 Nebraska's 4-H program is a strong one; more than 91,000 — almost one-third — of Nebraska's 321,457 youths ages 5-19 are involved in 4-H activities. In addition, more than 15,000 adults volunteer their time to organize programs and work with 4-H youths.

 In Wayne County, approximately 300 youth participated in 4-H this past year. Almost 80 percent participated via organized clubs with the remainder in school enrichment programs and through individual study.
 Each of the state's 91,000 4-H members can choose one or more of either specialized curriculum areas. The most popular areas are Healthy Lifestyle Education including health, nutrition and safety; and Plants and Animals, which includes showing animals, gardening and crops.

 Other areas available are Environmental Education and Earth Sciences (38,270 participants); Consumer and Family Science (35,251 participants); Science and Technology (22,695 participants); Personal Development and Leadership (22,695 participants); Citizenship and Civic Education (18,492 participants); and Communications and Expressive Arts (12,551 participants).

There are three permanent 4-H camps in Nebraska. Specialized sessions, such as water sports, confidence courses and outdoor skills camps are available in the summer. Last year, more than 8,000 young people took advantage of these camps.

More important than camping or learning about particular curricula, 4-H allows youths to learn how to make decisions, to appreciate themselves and others, and to develop life skills that will help them succeed in a complex world.

For more information about the 4-H program, contact your local Cooperative Extension office.

CROP Walk will be Sunday

This Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. the 1995 CROP Walk will be held. The walk will begin at the First Church of Christ, 1110 East 7th Street, and continue on a 10 kilometer (6-mile) path around the city of Wayne. Walkers are urged to gather at the church between 1:30 and 2 p.m. in order to turn in their donation forms and money.

CROP walk is an annual event to raise money for hungry people around the world, including here. Ten percent of everything that is raised in this year's walk will be returned to the Wayne area to help support the local food pantry and the emergency assistance fund of the Wayne Association of Congregations and Ministers.

The walk itself will last approximately two hours. Transportation is available should a walker become injured or otherwise unable to finish the walk. Drivers in Wayne are urged to be on the lookout for walkers Sunday afternoon.

If you would like to participate, or make a donation but have not been approached, you may contact Craig Holstedt at 375-2990 during the day, or 375-5702 in the evenings.

Theologians to speak at Kearney

More than 300 pastors and associates in ministry are expected to consider "Making Christ Known" with best-selling author the Rev. Loren Mead at the 1995 Theological Conference scheduled Sunday, Tuesday, Nov. 5-7, at Kearney's Ramada Inn.

The Rev. Dr. David M. Rhoads, known for his performances/proclamations of scripture, will present "The Sermon on the Mount" at the Sunday evening banquet. A hymn sing is also planned.

The Nebraska Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America organizes the annual theological gathering to provide church workers in Nebraska an opportunity for fellowship, inspiration and spiritual renewal, said Marybeth Peterson, Assistant to the Bishop.

Speakers plus fellowship and worship events are scheduled during the two-and-a-half day event. Augsburg Fortress will provide a "book store" for participants' convenience.

The Rev. Dr. Mead's presentation "The Once and Future Church" is scheduled for 8:45 a.m. Monday. Dr. Rhoads will address "Hypocrisy or Integrity" at 10:15 and Eucharist will be celebrated before lunch with Nebraska Synod Bishop Richard N. Jessen preaching.

The afternoon features six workshop sessions and unscheduled time for recreation and fellowship. Dr. Mead will talk about "Transforming Congregations for the Future" during a 7:30 p.m. presentation, which will be followed by evening prayer and an ice cream bar.

A time slot Tuesday morning will allow participants to talk with Bishop Jessen on whatever matters concern them, and Dr. Rhoads will discuss "Household of Faith."

The Rev. Mead is an educator, consultant and author who has worked widely with religious leaders to strengthen the life of religious organizations — particularly congregations. An ordained Episcopal priest, Rev. Mead's career has been dedicated to working with lay people, clergy, executives, bishops, teachers and others who have worked to enhance religious life throughout the world. He has been a pioneer in bringing organization development and behavioral science skills to religious systems.

FSA committee elections to be held

According to Teresa Post, acting county executive director of the Wayne County CFSA office, all eligible voters which includes but not limited to farm owners, operators, partners of a partnership, etc. are encouraged to obtain a nomination petition from their local CFSA office to nominate a producer of your choice for the upcoming committee election.

The nomination for the election of responsible farmers is important to all farmers. Farm programs administered by county FSA committees include:

- commodity price support loans and payments
- establishment of allotments, yields and marketing quotas
- farm loans
- grain reserve

- conservation cost-sharing
- incentive, indemnity and disaster payments for some commodities
- other farm disaster assistance

In addition, county FSA committees hire County Executive Directors.

This year all of the districts in the county will be included in the election. Local Administrative Area (LAA) #1 has, to our knowledge, 854 eligible voters and consists of Deer Creek, Sherman, Strahan and Wilber townships, LAA #2 has 989 eligible voters and consists of Brenna, Hunter, Leslie, Logan and Plum Creek Townships and LAA #3 has 905 eligible voters and consists of Chapin, Garfield, Hancock and Hoskins Townships. So there are a lot of eligible voters out there that could be entering their nominations for the FSA committee.

Fleets such as this one run by Ag Processing Inc. of Sheldon, Iowa, are trying biodiesel, a fuel made from modified soybean oil and other renewable resources, to demonstrate its environmental advantages over petroleum-based fuel.

Biodiesel cuts emissions

Big city dwellers may be able to breathe easier knowing officials can actively improve air quality, and N.E. braska residents can take pride in knowing agricultural products are contributing to the solution, according to Lyle Brown, a Wakefield seed dealer.

Recent studies show that using biodiesel fuel made from modified soybean oil and other renewable resources can significantly reduce hazardous emissions without requiring any major engine modifications. "Fleet operators looking for ways to reduce pollutant levels and improve our nation's energy security are considering biodiesel as a viable solution," said Kenlon Johannes, executive director of the National Biodiesel Board.

Environmental benefits of biodiesel include lower carbon monoxide production by the engine, lower particulate matter emissions (a human health hazard) and lower sulfur dioxide exhausts—a leading cause of acid rain.

"Use of soybeans in biodiesel expands and improves markets," said Brown, who sells Latham Seeds in N.E. braska.

Researchers continue to work to find the optimal blend of biodiesel to produce the best fuel possible. Results of an extensive biodiesel demonstration at Five Seasons Transport in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, using a blend of biodiesel and ethanol, showed a 30 percent reduction in emissions, improved engine performance and no cold-weather fuel problems. Five Seasons Transport continues to use biodiesel in their mass transit system.

Beans may be salvaged as feed

With immature and frost-damaged beans, the only option for bean salvage may be to feed them to livestock, say NU beef and swine specialists.

The following guidelines for feeding soybeans to cattle and swine were compiled by Terry Mader, beef cattle specialist and Mike Brumm, swine specialist, from the University of Nebraska Northeast Research and Extension Center at Concord.

Guidelines for feeding soybeans to beef cattle:

1. Do not feed soybeans at levels above about 3 or 4 lbs. per head per day; or no more than 15 to 20 percent of the ration. Introduce soybeans first at levels of 5 to 10 percent, before increasing it further.

2. Feeding beans at 1 to 2 lb/head/day is preferred. At these levels, beans can be substituted for the protein coming from a supplement depending on the supplement protein content. Additional vitamins and minerals will still need to be provided. Whole beans will be 35 to 40 percent crude protein and contain nearly 20 percent fat, which makes it an energy source approximately equal to corn.

3. During hot weather, roll or crack soybeans once or twice weekly in preparation for the ration, otherwise the soybeans may become rancid. In cold weather this is not a problem. Mature soybeans can be fed whole in feedlot diets, particularly high roughage diets, while smaller and immature beans may need to be rolled to ensure optimum utilization.

4. Do not include urea in rations with raw beans.

5. If excessive levels of heads are fed, cattle may scour.

6. Mold should not present any problems for cattle, however if

Top showmen honored

Kristie Harmon, 19, of Tekamah was the champion market beef showman at the 1995 Ak-Sar-Ben 4-H Livestock Exposition in Omaha Sept. 25. Placing second in the contest was Matt Bruner, 18, of Winfred, S.D. Third place went to Vaughn Sievers, 16, of Randolph. Pictured are Larry Hafer and Debra Core, judges of the contest; Vaughn, Matt and Kristie with their steers; Jessica Thurmond, granddaughter of J.L. Thurmond; and Harold Stevens, superintendent of showmanship at Ak-Sar-Ben. The winner of the contest received a check for $150 from the J.L. Thurmond Memorial. The second place winner received $100 and $50 went to the third place winner. The top two received a plaque from Nebraska Farmer magazine. All three showmen qualify to compete for the $500 J.L. Thurmond Superior Showman Scholarship.

mold is excessive, a test for aflatoxin or other mycotoxins may be necessary.

7. Cooking (roasting) or extruding the beans will potentially improve the value of soybeans. However, experimental results have not produced consistent improvements.

Guidelines for feeding soybeans to swine:

1. For swine other than the breeding herd, soybeans (mature or green) must be heat-treated (roasted or expelled) to destroy the anti-growth factors which severely reduce gain and feed intake. Recent research at South Dakota State University has demonstrated that green soybeans, when heat-treated, have a feed value similar to mature beans.

2. To be economically used, a producer should use the heat-treated beans as a replacement for soybean meal in a corn-soy-premix diet. If a producer is using a concentrate (24, 27, 38 or 40 percent product), as his supplemental protein source, he can not reduce the amount of concentrate in the diet by substitution with heat-treated beans. His only option in this case is to substitute corn with the heat-treated beans on a pound for pound basis. Limit this substitution to 200 pounds of heat-treated beans per ton of diet.

3. Raw, mature soybeans can be incorporated into gestation diets. However, it is unknown if green, immature soybeans are acceptable for gestation diets. Raw soybeans are not recommended in lactation diets.

4. Mature soybeans have an estimated crude protein content of 35-37 percent compared to the 41, 44 or 46.5 percent of soybean meal. If whole soybeans are used as a substitute for soybean meal, reformulation of the diet is necessary. Submitting a sample of the beans for a protein analysis is recommended since there can be variations in protein content.

5. If diets containing whole beans are stored for any length of time, the inclusion of an antioxidant to prevent rancidity is recommended, especially in warm weather.

6. If the beans are moldy, heat treatments will only stop further mold growth. Heat will not destroy any toxins that may already be present from the mold growth. The presence of mold does not necessarily mean aflatoxins are present.

7. Do not feed moldy beans to replacement gilts or the breeding herd due to the risk of aflatoxins.

8. Further information on the feeding of whole soybeans is available in a NebGuide entitled "Full-Fat Soybeans for Pigs" (G90-994-A). Suggested diets formulated with whole soybeans are available in the publication entitled "Swine Diet Suggestions" (EC92-210). These are both available at your local extension office.
