Year in review

The year 1995 will be remembered by N.E.braskans for a number

A cool, wet spring, followed by a hot dry summer, followed by an early, killing frost will probably be how area farmers remember it. Several major fires in the Wayne com-munity will be what some remember. Still others will remember sports events such as state championship teams, records being broken or Wayne State College athletes being chosen to play professional football.

The Wayne Herald compiled a month-by-month list of some of the memorable happenings in the community during the past year. The months of January through June will be included in today's issue of the paper, while events in July through December will be included in next week's paper. January

Rare complication of influenza appears

Influenza complications have resulted in the deaths of two Midlands children and an adult this year. Health officials are urging family members of sick individuals to watch out for sudden confusion and disorientation which may indicate encephalitis, an unusual complica-

Two children -a seven-year-old from Norfolk and a three-year-old from Sioux City, Iowa and an adult from southeast Nebraska have died in the last several weeks of influenza A suspected of being com-plicated by encephalitis; which is a welling of the brain.

The symptoms of influenza currently making the rounds in the state include headache, body ache, fever, sore throat and respiratory congestion. The onset of encephalitis is sudden, and family members who notice signs of mental confusion and disorientation in the patient should seek mmediate medical care

Nebraska has been reported by the federal Centers for Disease Control Prevention as one of five states where the flu is widespread, meaning flu has been reported in counties that make up more than 50 percent of the state population. Widespread is the most severe designation.

The flu season does not appear to have peaked yet, according to the Nebraska Department of Health. The NDH says it is not too last to get a flu shot. It takes approximately 10-14 days before the shots provide substantial protection against influenza.

People over 65 years of age and anyone with certain health problems should be immunized. Any child with long-term heart or lung problems, kidney disease, cystic fibrosis, diabetes, anemia or severe asthma should be immunized. Children with immunological disorders or on long-term treatment with aspirin should also be immunized.

Although influenza immuniza tions are not usually recommended for healthy children, this year 80 percent of the cases of flu reported to the Department of Health have been among children one to 18 years of age. Health officials_recommend that parents consider having their children immunized this

Anyone with questions or concerns about influenza and immunizations should contact his or her physician or local health depart-to run a full fledged energy program as in the past," Leuenberger said. "However, for the time being, Ne braska's low income elderly and families with children will receive assistance to help with heating costs." Leuenberger said that the funds total approximately onefourth of the $9.5 million the Department would normally expect to receive from Congress to help with heating bills.

Payments totaling $1.6 million will be made early next week to approximately 9,000 individuals. Leuenberger noted that the Department will continue to monitor the payments as they are made to determine when the funds are nearing exhaustion. Crisis funds remain available for households that face an energy crises such as replacement or repair of a furnace or to respond to a shut-off notice.

Persons who wish to apply for the LIHEAP basic heating funds or the Crisis program should contact their nearest local social services office for more information.

_ Capitol News —

Solide waste plan discussed

Recently the Wayne City Council established a special committee of Wayne residents to develop a solid waste management plan. As chair of this committee I would like to open a dialogue with all residents of Wayne County. Let me begin by providing some information about a law that was passed by the Unicameral and signed by Governor Nelson in 1992.

The Integrated Solid Waste Management Act (ISWMA) or LB 1257 provided a time line for implementation of several new rules related to solid waste disposal. The Nebraska Department of Environ-mental Quality has already implemented many new rules. For example, unlicensed landfills have been closed, and they have banned yard wastes, batteries, oil, waste tires and household appliances from Section 31 of the legislation directed all cities and counties to develop solid waste management plans by Oct. 1, 1994. This plan was to identify how Wayne would meet the requirements regarding waste reduction, recycling and landfill disposal.

The ISWMA identified three long term benchmarks for waste reduction by all Nebraska waste generators. The goals are to reduce the volume of waste hauled to landfills

- a) 25 percent before July 1, 1996,
- b) 40 percent before July 1, 1999, and
- c) 50 percent before July 1, 2002.

Each month approximately 290 tons of solid waste is hauled from the Wayne Transfer Station to the Jackson Landfill. To meet the goal for 50 percent reduction-will-likely require changes in the way we run our solid waste disposal program. However, I feel strongly that we can easily meet these goals if evyone participates

The City Council has charged. our committee with developing a plan to meet Wayne's obligations under LB +257. At present-we arecollecting information on the op-tions that are available and what has worked well in other cities of similar size. If you have contacts in other cities with successful programs, I would like to hear from you. In February, we plan to host an open forum to provide informa-tion and to solicit discussion about solid waste management options.

Meanwhile, I will be providing scenarios of recycling, reuse and waste reduction ideas for everyone to consider.

Clarify recent Herald article

Dear Editor:

I would like to clarify a few things that were mentioned in last week's Wayne Herald.

In the city council article mention was made that Brent Pick, rep! resenting BBC, had asked that water and sewer hook up fees be reduced for a house that had been moved to Roosevelt Park addition. However, reasons why this was asked for were not. I feel that the people of Wayne should hear the whole issue, not bits and pieces like the article men-

I think the Herald and the city. council missed the whole issue. The reason for asking for a reduction in hook-up was the fact that the City of Wayne only paid approximately for 25 percent of the water and sewer in Rooseveli Park. The rest was paid for by a federal grant in 1985. At that time, people in Roosevelt park were charged no fee. We were not asking for this. We asked for a reduction in hook-up fee. We are willing to reimburse the city for their part of the project.

One councilman. Doug Sturm: supported the issue and helped back it by bringing up what this prop-erty was doing for the tax roll in Wayne. He explained that the taxes would go from approximately $30 a year on a vacant lot to $1,000 a year on the improved property.

I don't think it is right that any big business can come into town and ask for huge tax breaks and get Wayne tries to help improve the town and asks for a small, very small, break - gets denied.

I would like to leave you with a few things to think about. What Kind of politics do we have going on in this town? It's obvious to me. Where do you think grant money comes from to begin with? Tax payers. Am I a taxpayer? Yes, I am. Do you like paying for some thing twice? I didn't think so. Do you think I am happy with the outcome of this issue? I don't think

Melvin's top news stories of 1995

By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - Time again for Melvin Paul's sorta-kinda, not-soserious but sometimes sober list of the Top Ten news stories of 1995 in our humble prairie state.

Your humble servant in Lincoln has tossed his news clips into a blender, added some ice cream and milk, and shook up the following

1. Can there be any question about what's No. 1? You guessed it: the Nebraska's football team's convincing win over Miami in the 1995 Orange Bowl and the year-long good vibes that spread across Cornhuskerland for becoming national champions places this story

2. Husker team changes team colors from red and white to orange to match prison uniforms. The screes of incidents involving Nebraska football players, and the on-going series of court appearances and team-status decisions kept us watching the police blotter.

3. Ben Nelson breaks pledge to inish his second term as governor to run an ice cream store with Grateful Dead guitar player Jerry Garcia. The death of Garcia, how-ever, ends the Ben & Jerry's endeavor and a grieving Nelson files for the U.S. Senate.

4. Nebraska gives away the state's sink in an unsuccessful at-tempt to attract Idaho computer state, however, is successful in giving away millions of dollars in new tax breaks to Cargill, Unfortunately, that company was already located in Nebraska.

5., Robert Williams escapes death in Nebraska's electric chair at the last minute after a juror in his trial says she looked at maps not presented as evidence. Williams also escapes being a subject of one of Attorney General Don Stenberg's campaign ads for U.S. Senate. 6A. Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission agrees to pay its long-time executive director, Larry Myers, thousands of dollars to resign after he's spotted with a female staffer.

6B. Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission agrees to rehire Larry Myers after deal ruled illegal.

6E: Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission agrees to pay Myers several thousand dollars to resign. 6D. Myers stays on, doesn't get

6E. Myers decides to resign.

Whew 7. State Sen Ernie Chambers sets new land speed record for crossing Nebraska in a well-used Honda Civic, after the U.S. Congress votes to allow states to raise the speed limit. 8. State passes new McDonald's Academy Law, mandating that all poor people get off welfare and get a real low-paying job flipping hamburgers. Hoping to capitalize on new labor pool, scores of fast-food outlets, from Subways to A&W, flock to Nebraska.

9. Trials in murder case of roman-dressed-as-a-man in Falls

City conclude. Movie is planned. Beevis and Butthead are chosen to star as convicted murderers. 10. Union Pacific threatens to leave state to build a new headquarters building. State retrieves the ofticial state sink from Idaho, applies some spit and chrome polish, and offers it to the great big rollin' railroad in hopes that it won't move away. Mike Harper is hired by U.P. to shine, stomp and otherwise bully legislators into coughing up more

Dedication at Grace Lutheran

Members of Grace Lutheran Church dedicated an addition to their church on Sunday after the 10:30 a.m. service. Construction of the 6,400 square foot addition on the north side of the present building began in the spring of 1995 and is expected to be completed in the spring of 1996. The addition is two stories high and contains space for Sunday School rooms, a fellowship area, handicapped accessability, including handicapped restrooms and an elevator, and office space for the pastors and the secretary. Otte Construction is the general contractor for the project. Pictured above are Pastor Jeff Anderson and Mern Mordhorst, a trustee of the others, were the corrections of the addition. The building project are tee of the church, near the cornerstone of the addition. The building project at Grace Lutheran Church is only one of a number of such projects being undertaken by churches in the Wayne community.

We're cleaning out the file today with miscellaneous observations: Next time an annoying telemar-

Lawyers now complicate their procedures in order to tangle us up in litigation."

Information is rapidly becoming the new wealth, they say: If that be true, I know a neighborhood gossip who must really be rich!

A little advice to those of you who tied the knot this year: try praising your wife even if it does

Are you ready for the windy city of 1996 politics? If you think your TV network is twisting the news this year, wait until next! Potholes on the campaign trail of meaningless promises will include Medifraid, Medipaid, and Medicharade. We're bound to hear about the nogrowthers, political tour-o-mania in televictuals, and losing at saving. Don't forget taxflation.

A column that didn't get written this year dealt with the subject of what one thinks about while pretending to listen to a human windmill. Everything!

Can any of the rest of you remember in 1939 BT (before television) when most of us carried our stumbling blocks around with us...oftentimes camouflaged with a Special thanks to everyone reading this part of the paper. May your New Year be the greatest yet! Please don't slam your mind in my face in 1996 as I may occasionally cause you to re-route your eye-

Are you going to make a New Year's resolution?

Well, if you do you will be one of 240 million people who make one each year. Making one is one thing, living up to it is another. The so called experts say about 20% make good on the promise each year. I must admit, I fall into the other 80% category

Some people say it is a foolish wish, noone keeps them. They are right about some wishers. But remember, the only person who cares if you keep it or not is you Also, if you don't make one, you might not have something to really strive for in 1996. A lot of great things have happened just because someone made a promise

So here are my top 10 New Year Resolutions

1. Spend more time with my family. My wife will really like that, well at least for a while. At that point, the kids and I will go play golf.

- 2. Be more patient with people
- . 3. Be a better listener 4. Improve my golf game
- 5. Spend more time in being creative at my job. How this is going to happen with me spending more time at home will be a real challlenge.
- 6. Make more moola $$$$. We all make that promise, just a few of us really succeed.

7. Spend more time on the improving my golf game. My short game is a little rusty.

8. Remember things more carefully, so that I will not be in hot water at home. By not being in hot water as offen, I can play more golf.

9. Lose 25 pounds: My long irons shouldl be better.

10. Be sure to keep all the promises on this list. This will make my wife happy, kids happy and me happy.

Finally, I hope this year you will be more successful at keep your list than I usually do. If I keep this list of promises, certainly will be better off than I was in 1995. Happy New Year everyone!

It was a "sad-glad" holiday! Such a mixture of emotions, it left me exhausted. Just a week and a half ago I spent the night with a 47-year old man dying of a brain tumor. When I made the bereavement visit one week later, there were poinsettias everywhere and even a giant Christmas wreath.

The day after caring for him, I admitted a 63-year old with end-stage emphysema to the hospice program. He had been in and out of hospitals and nursing homes for seven months and just wanted to "go home". He'd been on ventilators three times in his life and he never wanted that again. He died one week later, in a hospital bed in his living room, beside a Christmas tree, with children and grandchildren all around.

We had overnight guests five nights in a row, including two dear friends from Norfolk, and six people for a ham dinner on Friday. (Had to scrub the dining room floor that night because of wet snow and ice melt crystals).

There was a wonderful children's Christmas program, "Three Wise Men and a Baby", a neighborhood pot luck, caroling and a Christmas Eve candlelight service.

Our family get-together was at Sue's and featured their new "recroom" in the basement. Jon fixed theirs up two years ago and Max has created a "sprine to Nebraska football" in theirs. All of which inspires us to do something with the 10 foot deep space under our home. It will be a real challenge!

I had written our annual holiday letter the first week in December, but didn't get the copies mailed until last week. In fact, I have a few more to address today. Our staff party is this week, we ran out of time for it before.

I received three new cook books. The first, from Mariyee, the preacher's wife, is "Cream Peas on Toast", by the author of the Lutheran Church Basement Women's Cookbook. It features photos from the 40's and 50's and spoofs of Norwegian Lutheranism, which must be a lot like the German denomination. Anyway, it's good for chuckles.

The second, the new Lutheran Hospital cook, book, came from dear friend Judy Miller. All the familiar names in it make me very homesick. I can hardly believe that the two hospitals in Norfolk are merging. I've said for years it was the only sensible thing to do, but now that it's actually happening, it's another Big Change.

The third book is the Chicken Soup for the Soul Cookbook a collection of down-home recipes with their stories. If you haven't sampled the two Chicken Soup for the Soul anthologies, I suggest you do so, soon. They are guaranteed to make you feel good.

Now it's time to visit a third patient who is deteriorating fast. As I closed in our holiday letter, "working in hospice makes us aware of the necessity of keeping our affairs in order: emotionally and spiritually, too!

Scholarships

For over 25 years, the Nebraska State College System has sponsored the prestigious Board of Frustees' Scholarships. These are full tuition scholarships, renewable over four academic years, awarded to academically gifted high school seniors planning to attend Chadron State College, Peru State College or Wayne State College.

Last year, more than 200 students applied for the scholarships; 60 will be awarded this year. The Value of each scholarship, if renewed for four years, is approximately $5,500.

To be eligible for a Board of Trustees' Scholarship, the applicant must be a graduating senior of a Nebraska high school; be enrolling for the first time as a full-time colfege student; be in the top 25 percent of his or her highrschool graduating class; score above the 85th percentile on a college entrance exam (ACT score of 25, SAT score of 1100); and provide at least one written reference from a high school teacher or administrator.

"These scholarships help outstanding Nebraska students get a first rate education at one of Nebraska's three excellent State Colleges," noted Jerry Conway of Wayne, Chair of the State College Board of Trustoes:

Your goal is to Keep Nebraska talent in Nebraska. Students at Chadron State, Peru State and Wayne State Colleges benefit from close teacher-student interaction, historic residential campuses and counseling and support services," Conway added.

"Because of the quality of scholarship recipients, the program is an investment in the future of Nebraska"

Applications and additional information are available from all public and private high school guidance counselors in Nebraska, or from Financial Aid officers at Chadron State College, Peru State College or Wayne State College.

Deadline for application is Jan.

How to make a child less fussy

Q. I have a fussy 8-month-old baby who cries whenever I put her down. My pediatrician says she cries just be cause she wants me to hold her all the time. I do give her a lot of attention, but I simply can't keep her on my lap all day long. How can I make her less fussy?

A. The crying of infants is an im portant forms of communication Through their tears we learn of their hunger, fatigue, discomfort or dianer disaster. Thus, it is important to listen to those calls for help and interpret them accordingly.

On the other hand, your pediatrician is right. It is possible to create a fussy, demanding baby by rushing to pick her up every time she utters a whimper or sigh. Infants are fully capable of learning to manipulate-their

Thus, a healthy baby can keep his mother hopping around 12 hours a day (or night) by simply forcing air past his sandpaper larynx. To axold this consequence, it is important to strike a balance between giving your baby the attention she needs and establishing her as a tiny dictator. Don't be afraid to let her cry a reasonable period of time (which is thought to be healthy for the lungs), although it is necessary to listen to the tone of her voice for the difference between random discontent and genuine distress. Most mothers learning recognize this distinction in time:

I used to stand out of sight at the doorway of my daughter's nursery for four or five minutes awaiting a monitoring full in the crying before going to her cribe as o doing. I removed the pairses rather than the tears.

You might try-the same approach.

Perhaps it would be helpful to illustrate this point by sharing a-tetter that reached my desk.

Last September my wife gave birth to a beautiful baby boy. He is just wonderful-but very demanding. At night, he cries and sobs the whole time. Then I would either hold him because if I didn't, he would awaken and continue crying, or if I did get to lay him down, I wouldn't make any noise because I was afraid I would wake him up.

That's why it has been such a depressing time for me. I just can't handle all that crying. I love our baby a lot and wouldn't trade him for anything in the world, but we can't seem to get him to go down for the night before 11 p.m. or midnight, and then he wakes up twice every

If you have any insights as to what we should do, please let me know! It is difficult to believe that a 10-month-old baby could take complete charge of two mature adults and mold them to suit his fancy, but that is precisely what this child is doing. He fits the pattern of an extremely strong-willed baby who has already learned how to manipulate his parents to achieve his purposes. If they put him to bed or even set him down, or if they turn their backs on him for a moment—he screams in protest. And being peace-loving parents with great needs for solitude and tranquillity, they jump to satisfy the baby's noisy demands before he gets agitated. In so doing, they "reinforce" fils tearful behavior and guarantee its continua-

I would recommend that these parents feed and diaper their son, then proceed to let him cry himself to sleep at about 7 p.m. every evening for a week. As this little fellow becomes convinced that the exhausting work of continuous crying is not going to accomplish his objectives, the behavior will disappear. Likewise, they should give him plenty of love and attention and then go about their duties and activities. He will get the message in time.

Pork Producers to celebrate 35 years

Swine Council, the Nebraska Pork Producers Association will celebrate its 35th anniversary when it holds its annual meeting and state convention in Grand Island Jan. 18-20. Presiding over the convention will be Elwyn Fitzke of Glenvil, president of the Nebraska Pork Producers Association John Mangels of Winside will represent the Wayne County Pork Producers during the convention.

The convention's theme, "NPPA - Serving Nebraska's Pork Producers for 35 Years" embodies the spirit of the producers who first organized their peers to promote the interests of their industry. In 1961, a group of producers met at Prenger's Cafe in Norfolk to set out objectives and bylaws for the infant organization. Their purpose then was much as it is now: to promote pork and the pork industry; promote better breeding, growing, and mar-keting of swine; and provide a voice to support programs in the best interest of pork producers as a group.

Up until 1966, the organization was funded solely by donations and membership dues. In the late 1960s, the organization supported the move toward a voluntary. checkoff program to fund both state. and national programs. The voluntary checkoff officially started in Nebraska on Jan. 1, 1968. Through work on the state and national level, the checkoff became mandatory through federal legislation in 1986. Since then, the state producers' organization has continued its commitment to quality by support-ing checkoff programs which focus on promotion, consumer information and education. Programs which address food safety, continuing education for pork producers and envi-ronmental awareness have arisen as the industry continues to change

According to Fitzke, the annual meeting and convention is probably, the best time for producers to share their ideas and concerns about the industry. "The direction our organization takes is the direction our producer members give us. As leaders we try versionard to listen and get that direction from Ne-braska's producers." The board of directors, will discuss bylaws. directors will discuss bylaws changes which would increase produger representation in the organization during the annual board meeting

Two educational seminars are an vention. The programs are designed to guide producers in meeting challenges as they look toward the future. Dr. Angela Baysinger and Scott Jeckel will be the seminar presenters.

Herd health can have a dramatic your operation's profitability. Dr. Angela Baysinger, UNL interim extension veterinarian will present "Emerging Diseases: Old Friends and New Enemies:" Hear an update on some of the emerging diseases finding their way into the industry and how new technology may help you manage your herd's health.

Scott Jeekel, a pork producer from Illinois will share his experi-ences in his presentation titled "Information: The Key to Competitiveness," Jeckel will share his family's experiences, tips on how they improved their operation's competitiveness, and how their business fits into the bigger picture of family and community life.

Other highlights of the 35th anniversary convention will kick off on Thursday evening; Jam. 18 with an anniversary reception to honor past leaders of the organization. The selection of the Nebraska Pork industry Ambassador and recognition of producers for outstanding accomplishments in production and leadership areas will be announced during the association's awards banduction Friday evening, as well

Larry Graham, Executive Vice President of the National Pork Pro-ducers. Council will be on hand during the Priday function to address producers about his vision of the U.S. pork industry.

Conservation cost share programs

The Lands for Conservation program provides landowners with an ncentive to get conservation structures constructed on the land during the growing season.

The Lands for Conservation program will be on contractual basis between the landowner and the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District for one year while conservation practices are being established. Applications will be accepted beginning in January at the appropriate local Natural Resources Conservation Service office.

Lower Elkhorn NRD assistant manager of programs, Ken Berney, says "The program greatly extends the construction season by making crop land available for construction in the summer months and compensates landowners for changing their cropping plans."

Terraces with grassed waterways and terraces with the outlets qualify for this program and may be cost-shared through the ACP program administered by CFSA. If these funds are not available or if the total cost is too high, cost-sharing assistance can be obtained through the Lower Elkhorn NRD's Conservation Cost-Share Program

Participating landowners have one of two options with this program: OPTION 1

Construction must be done between April 1- and July 31, NRCS personnel and the contractor will determine the area needed for terrace construction prior to planting time and the landowner will leave that ground idle (except for cover crop), all summer. Payment of $75 per acre will be made on the smallest area that contains the

OPTION 2

Construction must be done between April 1 and Sept. 15. The field must be available for construction by Aug. 1. The field may be planted to cover or a crop preceding or after construction. The crop or cover may be harvested or pastured during the contract period. Payment is $50 per acre.

The Lower Elkhorn NRD board has budgeted $120,000 for the Lands for Conservation Program.

For further information on this and other programs, contact your local Natural Resources Conservation Service office.
