School-bond issue is back

Of the Herald

The Wayne Board of Education voted to table the building of a new athletic track and voted to accept the facilities committee recommenda tion of building a new middle school, and renovating the high school during their meeting Mon-

The board debated the track issue and decided that with the possibility of building a new middle school, it would be best to wait until the next academic year to pursue the issue.

The board heard from Jim Dyck, architect and AI Eveland, bond agent associated with the proposed building.project.

DYCK BRIEFLY described the architects' plans for the new building and renovation of the high school. He told board members that minor modifications may be made to the plans at a later date if deemed necessary.

Eveland explained the financial aspects of the project, including the costs of issuing the bonds necessary

District 17 voters would be responsible for funding the Middle School and the shared spaces at the high school. Cost for this is esti-mated at $5,572,929. Projected tax increases to District patrons for this portion of the project would be 25.41 cents per $100 of valuation.

COST OF the high school renovation is estimated at $2,606,676. District 17 fax payers would pay an additional 10.36 cents per $100 of valuation and those in affiliated districts would pay 9.64 cents for each $100 of their property's value.

Dyck told board members that 16 months would be an optimistic time frame for completion of the

The board voted 6-0 to accept ontion A which is the building of a new middle school and renovation of the high school. A board resolution must be filed with the election commissioner before March 1 if the issue is to be included in the May primary.

IN OTHER action, the board heard a report from Dr. Dennis Jensen, Superintendent of the Wayne Public Schools on proposed legislation which would affect the

"I feel this will be a very interesting session. The governor's pro-posal would result in cuts of $284,000 by the 1999-2000 school year. Combined with decreases in federal funding, caps on spending and caps on carry over, it is not a pictry picture." Jensen said.

Dr. Robert Uhing, Director of Special Education at WPS, briefed board members on the Special Edu-cation Funding Proposal LB 742 which would provide a new funding mechanism for the state. He outlined changes recommended by the lebraska Association of Special Education Supervisors, including he shifting of costs to our agencies responsible for special education

DR. JENSEN told the board that the district received a good audit and the school district is "as good shape as it can be."

A report on the air quality at the middle school indicated that con-cerns have to be attended to. Concern was brought on by the illness of a teacher. Middle School Principal Richard Metteer said a doctor has prescribed air purifiers for that patient.

A commercial painting firm recommended painting the walls with hypoallergenic with hypoallergenic paint. However, the paint will not stick to

"Due to the tremendous support of the Wayne businesses and contributions of many individuals throughout the Wayne area, the agencies receiving funds will see an increase in their requests, "said Curt-Frye, Chairman of the drive.

Frye said that not all communities make their United Way goal,

The United Way board will meet next month to discuss distribution of the funds and to discuss new members to replace those out-going members who have served for three years. Those members include two time president Curt Frye, Lorraine Slaybaugh and Mardell Wiseman.

Anyone who would like to served on the board may contact a board member or secretary Karen Karr at 375-4428.

Any pledges still out can be dropped off at Farmers and Merchants State Bank, First National Bank of Wayne and State National Bank and Trust Company. The United Way would like to thank these places for providing this service each year.

Volunteers are what make a community and many thanks to all who helped make the 199-96 drive such a successful one," said Frye.

She is the daughter of Anneliese Cawthon, assistant dean of students at WSC.

Anikputa, a fifth grader at Mayne Elementary School, will play the part of Sheyann Webb. Sheyann was a young, eight year old girl who marched with Dr. King in Selma. Her story, and that of Rachel another youth, will be told during the performance. Sheyann during the performance. Sheyann had a dream which is portrayed in the WSC performance and Anikputa will read.

Beyerly Soll, director of the Center for Cultural Officach, says that 'Anikputa's reading (Sheyann) is the most moving piece in the production because it centers around a young girl's fcar of dying while marching with Dr. King.

Merlin Wright speculates on what aliens visiting Earth might think of us Human Types (HTs) He omitted a few examples of be havror our intergalactic visitors might be hard out to understand:

Young HTs paying to lie down in a little box and broil their skin so they can look like they ve been to Florida;

HTs who are not comfortable with the prospect that they might be more closely related to certain other life forms than they realize:

HTs who believe most every thing they see on the little picture boxes in their houses:

HTs who burn little tubes made of a poisonous weed and inhale the

I'm not sure how I'd explain all these things to our alien visitors. assuming they stuck around long enough to ask.

1996 more uncertain than recent years

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - The start of the 1996 legislative session began much like the finish of the last session - with a filibuster by Sen. Ernic Chambers of Omaha,

But with the uncertainty of the federal budget, the complexity of the property tax debate and a slew of other pending issues, this year's session promises to provide as much intrigue as any in recent

Heck there's already talk of the special session this year and senators are just finishing their first week of work.

Chambers gave notice early that he'll be his normal, feisty self.

The talkative senator aicd up the entire first day of debate in opposing a controversal reform proposal for the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

You remember the NEOC. That's the agency formerly headed by Lawrence Myers, who resigned and was reinstated a couple of times last summer before finally leaving

The NEOC's governing board had attempted to give Myers several thousand dollars for being so kind as to quit. That was before Attorney General Don Stenberg and a chorus of other public officials raised a ruckus over the gilt. Anyway, Gov. Nelson wants to take more control over the commission. Chambers argues that's a power grab, as did his un-likely ally in opposing the bill conservative Sen, Kate Witck of

We II certainty see more filt-Then there are those HFs in a busters from Chambers. He said as gwhite building whom the test, much as the first day of debate slipped away without a vote to advance the NEOC bill.

"It's a short session. It's a year of polities." he said. "Nobody expects to get anything done and I don't want to disappoint them.

But 1996 holds more uncertainty than recent years.

The state's budget could become a huge issue overnight if Congress and the President agree on a new federal budget that dramatically changes funding for the states

Expected changes in federal wellare spending could make Nebraska legislators scramble to cut programs and adjust statutes to reflect the changes.

Some senators are already predicting that a special session will be needed to wade through the budget mess, if and when it comes

There's also plenty of unknowns about what the legislature will do about property taxes. There are about as many proposed solutions as there were Nebraska touchdowns in the Fiesta Bowl.

Senators could cap local spending or local tax levies, they could shift a bunch of spending from schools, cities and countries to the state, or they could lump together a whole bunch of ideas.

Debate over property taxes began this week with the chairs of the Legislature's committees explaining their ideas. Next, each senator get their chance to explain what they'd like to see.

And, the legislature is planning to hold hearings on each of the petition drives pushing property tax proposals. We'll get to hear more pros and cons about the ideas pushed by the Nebraska State Education Association/Farm Bureau coalition, Ed Jaksha's tax-cutting forces and the property tax posse headed by Stan Dobrovolny at Atkinson

As the debate in the Legislature unfolds, expect to hear about 20 or 30 different opinions from the 49 senators. That, of course, will make it very difficult for everyone to agree on one solution.

lt_almost_makes_you_glad_to know that some things never change in the Legislature. Like a filibuster from Sen. Chambers.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska

Words are the cargo of communication

Our minds are reservoirs in tools with which to communicate hich to keep packnetive words, When you arise, the words you

III be using that day are at case, rate explain all fallon visitors, but you haven't the fogglest idea as but you haven't the fogglest idea as to which of the word soldiers you'll be calling up for duty. Not only are you'll chose the dark as to which words. you'll choose that day, but also you never know just how you'll use them, or with what mensity. Words are called to active dury on the wordfront each time you speak, and served with selected emotion. Your mind decides which words will best convey your idea or feeling, then puts them in a row, and marches them off to another person's hearing Because we humans are always communicating, either by words or actions, we have invented numerous

But words are always the cargo. The number one communication device is, of course, the human voice

Other than the voice, we use a variety of manmade gadgets to communicate:
Native Americans supposedly signaled with puffs of smoke, but think of how long it would take to hear the evening "news" that way!

The phone is a good invention with which to exchange thoughts and now we enjoy wireless cellular phones. We can literally call others from anywhere. We call because we have words we want another person

Telegraphed messages had a heyday, but they aren't popular now due to more modern devices, Tele-vision may currently be the most popular method of reaching, teaching, telling and yelling to others. Politicians favor this method of communicating because they can be both seen and heard.

Folk knowing how to "sign" communicate well, but the rest of us who do not "sign" have no idea at all what is being said since it is a "seeing" language rather than a "sound" language

We also communicate a lot using printed word soldiers. That's how I prepared this column, simply by lining up 400 words, one in front of the other, and parked them on a computer disk. A printer revives them and puts them right here in front of you Husbands and wives may often speak without words. They can look at each other and exchange instant understanding!

Computers are the latest word processors, and its enjoyable to visit world-wide via e-mail. Words, long or short, can be cheap or expensive.

So what do you say? . "

Which petition(s), if any, should sign? It's a question that many Nebraska voters will ponder over the next six months.

Three different "initiative" petitions are being circulated, each of which would alter the Nebraska Constitution. They all focus on taxes and/or spending by state and local governments in Nebraska. If any of the three is approved next November, many citizens would be significantly affected. During the weeks ahead, the

-The Property Tax Relief Amendment would climinate tax levies on real (estate) and personal property as of Jan, 1, 1998. In addition, the petition would guarantee equal protection of the law to all citizens and limit the growth of government. Formerly called the Trio Amendment, primary sponsors, led by Stan Dobroreside in the Atkins

The Citizens' Amendment to Reduce Property Taxes would reduce property taxes through constitutional levy caps, require govern-ment efficiency standards, assure fair and uniform assessment of real property and guarantee access to a quality education for all Nebraska children, Primary sponsors are the Nebraska State Education Association the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation and other agricultural organizations -Nebraskans for Tax Relief are proposing an amendment that would freeze state and local spending for three years, beginning July 1997. Future increases are permitted for population growth, inflation, special temporary emer-gencies and federal mandates. Beyond that, any additional spending would be permitted only if approved by the voters. Primary spons Ed Jaksha of Omaha and Paul Nelson of O'Neill.

Note that the first two petitions zero in on property taxes, the primary source of revenue for most local governments in Nebraska. The third petition is more broadly based in that it addresses spending by implication, taxes — at both the state and local levels.

An unfortunate side effect of this group of medicines is stomach ulcers. Ulcers occur for two reasons. These agents are acidic and irritate the stomach lining, and they deplete substances in the stomach lining (prostaglandins) that help protect against ulceration A unique medicine called misoprostol beins replace protective prostaglandins that are depleted by nonsteroidal monsteroidal antinilammatory agents.

The medicine may be prescribed by physicians to patients who are at high risk of developing ulcers. As we age, we produce fewer prostaglandins. Therefore prostaglandins. Therefore, the elderly are at high risk. Also, persons who have a history of ulcers are at high risk.

Winside wins own invite

Winside dominated the field as the Wildcats hosted the 27th annual Winside Invitational on Saturday. The Wildcats outscored second place Ainsworth 198 to 127 while advancing nine wrestlers to the championship round.

Justin Bowers, Robert Wittler, Cory Brummels and Josh Jacger were all Gold Medal winners for Paul Sok's Wildcats.

Sok thinks the Wildcats may have had a letdown after wrapping the tournament up prior to the final matches.

R. Wittler

"Overall think we got a good effort out of the kids," said Sok. "However, we lost momentum going into the finals. We should have been more competitive in the last 11.

Deadline near

Scholarship application deadlines for various Elk's scholarship pro-grams are quickly approaching and high school seniors are reminded that they need to meet these dead-lines to be eligible fro the various Elk scholarships.

Applications for the "Most Valuable Student" scholarship award must be received at the Nor-folk Elks lodge by Jan. 18 for judging at the local level. Awards vary in this program up to $5,000 per academic year for four years.

Eligible students must have an outstanding academic record in addition to proven leadership activities as well as extra curricular activities and non-school related civic activities. Anticipated awards in this program should be $2.1 million across the United States.

Nebraska Elks Association Past Exalted Ruler's Scholarship Program, the Golf Scholarship Program and the J.B. Ferguson Golf Schotarship Program are due at the Norfolk Elks Lodge by Feb. 15. Awards in these programs are one time awards and vary up to $500.

Students interested in any of these programs should contact their high school counselors for informa tion and applications. All applications have been distributed to more than 50 counselors in N.E.braska and are no longer available through the Norfolk Elks Lodge.

What to do with a 2-year old in church

Q. My 2-year-old boy will not sit still and be quiet in church. He hits his toys on the pew and talks out loud. What should I do?

A. Mosi 2-year-olds can no more fold their hands and sit still in church than they could swim the Atlantic Ocean. They squirm and churn and burn because they must. You just can't hold toddlers down. All their waking hours are spent in ac-tivity, and that's normal for this stage of development.

recommend that your child be left in the church nursery where he can shake the foundations without dis turbing the worship service. If there is no nursery, I suggest--if it is financially possible-that he be left at home with a sitter until he is at least three years of age.

Your

Question:

Q. Isn't it our goal to produce children with self-discipline and self-reliance? If so, how does your approach to external discipline by parents get translated into inter-

A. You've asked a provocative question. There are many authorities who suggest that parents not discipline their children for the reason ime plied by your question. They want their kids to discipline themselves. But since young people lack the maturity to generate that self-control, they stumble through childhood without experiencing either internal or external discipline.

Thus, they enter adult life having never completed an unpleasant assignment, or accepted an order that they disliked, or yielded to the leadership of their elders. Can we expect such a person to exercise self-discipline in young adulthood? I think not. He doesn't even know the

My concept is that parents should introduce their child to discipline and self-control by the use of external influences when he is young. By being required to behave responsibly, he gains valuable experience in controlling his own impulses and resources. Then as he grows into the teer years, the transfer of responsibility is made year by year from the shoulders of the parent directly to the child. He is no longer forced to do what when he is young. Then somewhere during the mid-teens, his own selfdiscipline should take over and provide the motivation to continue the task. If it does not, the parent should close the door and let him live in a dump, if necessary

Q. I know children can be hateful and mean, especially to the handicapped child or one who is "different," Should adults intercede when a child is being attacked by his peers?

A. Yes, and I am well aware of the danger you described. When I was 8 years old, I remember a visitor coming to my Sunday school class. His name was Fred, and I can still remember Fred's ears. They were curved in the shape of a reversed C and protruded noticeably.

I was fascinated by the shape of Fred's unusual cars because they reminded me of jeep fenders (we were deep into World War II at the time). Without thinking of Fred's feelings, I pointed out his strange feature to my friends, who all thought Jeep Fenders was a terribly lunny name for a

Fred seemed to think it was funny, too, and he chuckled along with the rest of us. Suddenly, he stopped laughing. He jumped to his feet, red in the face (and ears), and rushed to the door crying. He bolted into the hall and ran from the building. Fred never returned to our class

Looking back on the episode, I wish my teachers and parents had held me responsible for that event. They should have told me what it feels like to be laughed at ... especially for something different about your

The 1996 Northeast Nebraska, the targrounds which will be heated rm, and Edulphient, Show, is, and Edulphien Show, inc. said that with the additional space, nearly 400 exhibitors will be accommodated.

A new feature to this year's show is the Equipment Parade each merning and afternoon in the arena building. Large equipment ex-hibitors will highlight specific pieces of equipment for show patrons as part of the parade.

In addition, virtually all displays? will be inside the heated buildings on the grounds. According to Riby. parking at the fairgrounds will be more than adequate for the 4,500 or more area farmers who are expected to attend. "Plenty of room for pickups and traders," he said.

Educational programs this year include a workshop on the transition of farm ownership from one generation to the next on Tuesday morning and a presentation on res-piratory risks associated with confinement livestock operations on Tuesday afternoon.

Wednesday morning the national radio talk show, "AgriTalk...Live" will originate from the show. Host Ken Root will be on hand to talk with audience members and take with audience members and take phone calls from across the nation. Wednesday afternoon John Jordison of—the Nebraska Tax Research Council will analyze the financial impact of the various personal property tax limitation proposals being discussed in the state.
