120TH YEAR - NO. 22

Wiseman chosen Citizen of the Year

By Clara Osten Of the Herald

From selling newspapers on passenger trains at four in the morning to starting the first medical satellite clinic in Nebraska, the 1995 Wayne Citizen of the Year, has accomplished a great deal. At Sunday's Camber of Commerce Annual Banquet, DR. Willis Wiseman was cited for his accomplishments in the field of medical services to Wayne and N.E. braska as well.

"For over 20 years, Dr. Wiseman has effectively engineered a one doctor practice into what has become a model clinic with three satellite offices." said Gary Van Meter, who was Chamber manager at the time this took place.

THE SATELLITE office concept was first started in Wisner in the fall of 1979 and was recognized as the first of its kind in Nebraska. The move defined an "umbrella" of health care coverage served by Wayne area doctors and utilizes Providence Medical Center for acute care. Its success was opied no only in Laurel and Wakefield, but also by other clinics across Nebraska following the pioneering efforts of Dr. Wiseman and his partners recognized for initiating Wayne's first active doctor recruitment program in 1978. "Through collaborative efforts with the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, a successful venture in recruiting and hiring several of our present day physicians was accomplished thereby helping to make Wayne a quality center for medical services," Van Meter said.

WISEMAN IS also credited for having started among the first of a growing number of fitness centers connected with hospitals for physical therapy and wellness programs. The Providence Fitness Center was founded in 1979 under his direction and continues today as one of the early pilots for its type of service.

Dr. Wiseman, 53, was born in North Platte and grew up working in his parents' three restaurants and delivering the Omaha World Herald.

"It wasn't long before he started experimenting with selling World Heralds on early morning trains and discovered that wide awake traveling customer tip a lot better than his bleary eyed patrons on the regular route. Soon after he became a regular at the North Platte depot; selling papers, antiques, souvenirs and sweets from his parents and restaurant," according to Van Meter. WISEMAN WAS educated at

'Wayne' is the name of game

Wayne soon will become the name of a new board game.

The game is "Wheeler Dealer--The Game of Wayne Neb." and is tomized with local businesses.

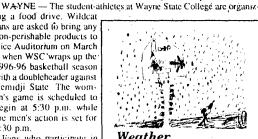

The Wayne Rotary Club will be selling the game board where play-ers can "wheel and deal around town" buying, trading, renting or selling familiar local businesses. The 40 local properties on the board represent businesses which buy advertising to help pay for the project The campaign to "sell" business ads will take place March 1-15 with Rotary Club members contacting local businesses. The game will also have an area for "VIP" listings which are available to anyone who would like to have their name printed on the keepsake board as a Wayne (and Rotary) supporter.

"The message is civic pride, with a little local advertising thrown in," said Wilma Moore, one of the Rotarians involved in the project.

LLOYD CASTNER, a representative of Nebraska Public Power District spoke in favor of bringing the dairy here.

"The dairy will be located on a half section of land and will bring in approximately 1,500 cows. They will, employ 15-20 people. Construction is set to begin soon and is estimated to cost $5-6 million. The dairy is expected to be milking by this fall," Castner said.

Dwight Anderson, a dairy farmer who lives north of Wayne said he felt this was not really a city matter. "I don't believe it is fair for this group to receive a loan when young farmers such as myself have to go to banks Farm Credit agencies to borrow money." "I also don't know where the employees are going to come from. Dairy farmers in the area have a hard time finding people willing to work. I feel the city should let the dairy come in on its own without help from the city."

School and city together

An item for consideration at the next school board meeting is to put the finishing touches on an interlocal agreement between the school and the city of Wayne.

When finalized, the agreement will clear the way for providing the public with an instructional course on using and accessing the Internet. Residents subscribing to the local telephone service will be able to enroll, attend a class, and use their home computers to utilize the Internet for pursuing educational research. Individual enrollees will be assessed a modest fee per semester.

and will need a home computer and modem.

We encourage those involved to finalize the interlocal agreement so area residents, both city and rural, can utilize computer communication to pursue personal educational goals. Following class instruction, users will be able to use home computers to search electronic libraries, access university databases. medical resources, real estate and tax data, travel information, weather conditions, and reach most federal and state agencies. Learning to use electronic mail is included in the educational study, enabling users to send and receive e-mail world wide.

Working together, the city and school will be providing an educational opportunity that is sure to be copied in other parts of Nebraska.

We congratulate those involved in coordinating the project for their foresight in providing such an extraordinary opportunity for area adults and youths wanting to pursue advanced educational objectives Already a community having good educational resources, we believe this new adventure appears to be the right step at the right time toward making Wayne America and even better place to live, work and study.

Tax breaks frosting on the cake By Melvin Paul Statchouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - We've all heard the saying about death and paying taxes Those two things are inevitable, the saying goes. Well, maybe not.

A recent Nebraska Department of Revenue report indicated that '54' Nebraskans — including 30 with incomes over $1 million — didn't pay a lick of state income tax in 1994

That's because those individuals qualified for tax credits under LB 775, the Employment and Investment Growth Act that was pushed through the Legislature in 1987 by then Gov. Kay Orr. Because those business people vere involved in partnerships or other privately held companies their tax credits are granted directly through their individual taxes. Big, publicly traded companies get their LB 775 credits via their corporate income taxes.

The report spawned outrage among LB 775 critics, who said it was offensive that people with multi-million dollar incomes weren't paying any state income taxes.

Sen. Don Wesely of Lincoln said it was stunning information. The revelation put LB 775 backers on the defensive. They said that providing the tax credits through an individual's tax return was the only way such smaller business owners could obtain the same benefits enjoyed by the larger, public companies.

The tas break they said is a re-ward for creating force of new tax-paying jobs and investing big bucks in Nebraska's conomy. Critics were overreacting, they manuaned. That all sounds good but the plain fact is that it doesn't look so peachy when millionaires aren't paying any taxes at all, no matter how many jobs they created. This is why people think a flat tax one that everyone pays without ex-emptions -- isn't such a bad idea.

Seven ordinary men, who leat a state constitutional amendment approved by voters in 1994. That amendment was passed after the court threw out a similar amend ment in 1992. In what appears to be egotism, the court seems to be saying we know these amendments are the will of Nebraskans in that they were approved by better than 2-1 ratios, but we seven ordinary men know better.

Gambling a ... nd lotteries have become idemic

Dear Editor Do you have a loved one who is addisted to gambling? Or are you a victim of it? If so you wouldn't want gambling legalized nor would you want to contribute toward it. This alone makes gambling wrong. It seems to be the worst kind of addiction:

What about those who can operate gambling places without paying taxes on it? How does this help reduce paying less taxes?

Gambling has become an epidemic. In fact, without gambling revenue the underworld would find it difficult to operate. No sweat for them if gambling is legalized. The more respectable gambling becomes less worry for them.

Lotteries haven't worked in the past. In 1818, New York lotteries caused idleness, fraud, theft; falsehood and wastefulness. The bigger the lottery business grew, the more corrupt it became. That is because it creates more customers for the criminal elements of gambling

Results of gambling makes more expense to enforce more police protection. There is a great of instability, higher suicides and divorce rates, family life is not good, a breakdown in society, high alcoholism, drug abuse, juvenile delinquency, prostitution, bills don't get paid and bad checks are written. Merchants' business falls off as it did in the past. Businesses were the most vigorous opponent of lotteries and not for religious reason but on the ground that it had become a serious social evil.

Compulsive gambling has become a menacing problem. Thus "Gamblers Anonymous" is expensive and takes lots of tax dollars. Not to mention the more serious side of compulsive gamblers. Their mate and children suffer the most. It is a bigger problem than alco-holism. Women addicts are growing rapidly. Addicted gamblers do any thing to get money to gamble with, event to the extent that they take money from their children's piggy banks

Addictive gamblers find themselves not being able to pay their bills, thus, depriving other people of the income to pay theirs. Gambling is parasitic, producing no personal growth, achieving no social good. The gain of the winner is always at someone else's expense. It is a selfish goal and nonproductive. An artificial risk with no social betterment. Therefore gambling is socially and morally wrong., Throughout history, men and omen have made investments and taken risks. Because of their courage and good motives, we have made may scientific and technological advances. This is enmade tirely a different result than that of gambling.

The Bible implores men to live The entire eleventh by faith. chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews relates how various Old Testament characters risked everything the had because of their faith in God. But this is not gambling. It is no gamble to go with God.

Should our coins change from "In God We Trust" to "In Luck We Trust"? Games of chance seem to pervade every society and intrigue

Prison workcamps priority bill

by Senator Pat Engel District 17

Senators were required to have priority bills designated by Wed. Feb 21. Each senator may designate one bill as a priority bill. Such priority bills need not be the designator's bill, but the principal introducer must concur with the designation as a priority bill. Priority bill designation may be made at any time prior to the annual des-ignation deadline which shall be prior to the 45th day in the ninety day session and prior to the 30th legislative day in the 60 day ses-sion. Each chair person of the committees which are authorized to hold public hearings on bills may designate as priority bills two of the bills referenced to that committee and on which the committee has held a public hearing. The Speaker of the Legislature may designate up to 25 additional priority bills s I have selected LB 1171, which creates prison workcamps for nonviolent offenders, as my priority bill for this legislative session. The intent of LB1171 is to reduce prison overcrowding and ultimately to provide the offenders with necessary life skills, including education and treatment needs which will aid in everyday life, both within and outside the correctional system. I will provide a more detailed account of the bill at a later date. LB1205 has advanced from General File on an 36-6 vote and requires that nearly all of the state school lands, approximately 1.5 million acres, be sold by Jan. 1, 2012. The land is the remainder of 2.8 million acres granted to Nebraska for support of schools as a condition of statchood in 1867. By its admission it assumed the privi-leges and duties of statehood, including those imposed by the congressional Enabling Act which in-cluded the acceptance of the lands and funds for the common schools of the state. The land is valued at about $335 million and generates approximately $18.5 million in rental revenue each year to be distributed to schools.

Every Nebraskan benefits to one degree or another from the school lands trust. However, the trust was created to provide a means of funding the public education system of the state, and its ultimate beneficiaries are the children who attend public schools. Pursuant to Article VII, Section 9 of the Nebraska Constitution, the net income of the School Trust is distributed annually to Nebraska's K-12 public schools as, the Legislature may provide. To prevent revenue losses to the school districts in which tax exempt

School Trust Land is located, distributions are first made to those. schools districts in lieu of tax. The net School Trust income remain after these in field of the payments have been made is then distributed to public schools statewide, including the school districts where School Trust Land is located, on a per pupil basis.

LB1205 would require that the Board of Educational Lands and Funds develop a plan by Dec. 1, 1996, to sell all of the state-owned lands set aside for the support of common schools. The sale of the lands would begin by July 1, 1997 nad be 95% completed by 2012. Proceeds from the sales would go into the state's Permanent School Funk and earnings from the investments would be distributed to the schools.

Legislature finding ways to fund education

Senator Stan Schellpeper

Finding new ways to fund education is a high priority of mine and I have been encouraged to see my Colleagues introduce proposals that address this issue as well. In-novative ideas are finding their way on to the floor of the Legislature Some have merit, others are a good place to start and some just don't make sense.

Legislation that would allow for the sale of some educational school land passed the first round of the debate on the floor this week. LB 1205 would require the Board of Educational Lands to develop a plan-by Dec 1, for the sale of nearly all state school lands by Jan 1, 2012. The idea behind this proposal is to use revenues from the sale of the all men. The idea it taking a chance and getting something for nothing has universal appeal. Will legalizing gambling cut down on crime? Do you tame a tiger by building up his appetite? Legalizing gambling opens the door to more abuses.

Here is an important issue for churches. They must seek to prevent state lotteries and gambling places from being given a welcome place in American life. Isn't gam-bling a "victimless crime?"

Thanks and a good pat on the back to the 36 senators (out of the 45) who voted against gambling. They made a wise and good vote. They stood behind the state's motto -- Nebraska...the good life, not the gambling life.

Most of these viewpoints come from William J. Peterson's book, What You Should Know About Gambling." In this book he pre-sents a clean viewpoint on what our decisions must be. There is much more to learn from this book. If possible, read it.

land to provide for more diverse in-vestments to support our schools. I support selling some of the land and investing the money in other guaranteed investments, but some parcels should not be sold, because they provide a significant return and there would be no clear benefit to selling off these assets. One benefit of the sale of school lands would be that, by placing the property in private ownership, it would return the land to the tax rolls. The additional property tax revenues would provide added support for counties, community colleges, natural resources districts and other government agencies that depend on property tax revenues. Schools would not see additional benefits of property taxes from the school lands. While I have some reservations, I do believe this proposal has the potential to provide additional support for our schools and could, in the long run, reduce dependance on property taxes for the bulk of educational funding.

A new proposal for taxing the residents of Nebraska-was infroduced to the revenue Committee. This alternative revenue system is known as a transaction tax. Under this system every monetary "transaction," which includes transfer of property, services or other value between persons, would be subject to a tax. Transactions would be taxed at 1%, with each participant paying half of the tax. from property taxes because the participant paying half of the tax, state currently makes "in-freu-of- This system would replace prop-tax" payments to adjust for the loss, crty, sales and income taxes. property tax opponents say that this tax would shift the tax burden to those with more ability to pay. At this time, I don't agree with that argument. While I don't believe that our property tax system is fair, basing our tax structure on the number and size of transactions does not equate to an ability to pay and could be equally unfair to farmers. This is a very drastic move away from our current system and a shift to an untried program would put Nebraskans at financial risk. The transaction tax system has been proposed in many states, but has not been enacted in any way. We do need to amend our tax structure in Nebraska, but we need to be cer-

Wakefield's drive for state ends

By Korey Berg

6A

Wakefield was denied a trip to the state tournament with a 71-56 loss to Stanton in the C2-4 district championship on Tuesday in front of over 1,200 fans at Wayne State's Rice Auditorium.

Stanton bolted out to a 5-0 lead and also went on an 8-0 run to build a 15-6 lead. A steal and dunk by Stanton's Ion Dolliver ended the first quarter scoring and saw Wakefield trailing 26-14.

The Trojans scored the first two buckets in the second quarter, but Dolliver scored the next seven points to boost the Mustangs' lead to 33-18. Wakefield was not duite ready to surrender however, as they went on 14-4 run to cut the delicit 37-32 and gain momentum heading into the locker room.

Tory Nixon's three-point bomb to open the third quarter cut the lead to two, but Wakefield couldn't manage to snatch the lead. The Mustangs built their lead back to nine at one point and held a 51-44 lead after three quarters.

Wakefield stayed within striking distance until Dolliver hit back to back three-pointers midway through the fourth quarter that made the

Jaeger follows in father's footsteps as state champ

By Lee Koch For the Herald

It's been a long time between state wrestling champions for the Herb and Dave Jaeger families of rural Winside. Almost a quarter of a century — 24 years to be exact since Herb watched son Dave wrestling at 112 pounds become the Wildcats' second state champion by defeating Willie Lillichorn of Bertrand by a 4-2 score in 1972.

Herb and Dave both sat in a packed Devaney Sports Conicr in Lincoln a week ago Saturday, watching Josh Jaeger on his way to becoming the second half of. Winside's first father/son combination and winning Winside's 22nd gold medal with a 5-3 win over Mike Morgan of Republican Valley in the Class D 140 pound weight class.

Dave, with a career record of 88 wins (at the time a school record), sported a 27-1-1 record as a state champion. Ironically, his lone loss and tie were to Paul Sok, current tutor of the Wildcats and the mentor who coached son Josh to his state championship win. Both Sok (Class C) and Dave (Class D) wound up as state gold medal winners that year.

"This one was the best," said grandpa Herb. "He's (Josh) my grandson. There weren't many people from Winside in the crowdwhen Dave won, but a lot of people were there to support Josh.

Dave agrees saying, "I enjoyed this one more. He worked harder and put more effort into it than 1 did. He deserved it more.

The Jacger name is prominent in-Winside wrestling circles. Cousins Mike and Terry were among the proneers of Wildcat wrestling, accounting for numerous wins and being among the first of the school's wrestlers to qualify for the state meet in Lincoln. Doug Jaeger, an uncle, was a state medalist and 63 match winner. Mom Joni (Langenberg) along with Deb (Dahl) hold the distinction of being the sports first mat maids in Nebraska.

Josh doesn't feel his state meet was his best tournament of the year. "I held back in the semi-finals," he said. "I didn't want to get too crazy and make any mistakes. 1 d very cautiously

Late in his finals match lacger found himself in trouble and had flashbacks to the only loss he suffered this year. Wrestling Josh Akerson of Wahoo and leading 9-0. Jacger wound up getting pinned late in the match as a result of bad body position.

"I remembered that," said Jaeger. "I wasn't going to let it happen again. That loss may have been the best thing that happened to me all Jacger attributes his success to a lot of hard work and long years of preparation having wrestled since kindergarten. He also says his teammates contributed greatly to his success, feeling the Winside lineup of solid wrestlers on both sides of his 140 pound weight class were a tremendous help in the practice room.

Josh's athletic abilities are not. limited to the wrestling mats. He was an all-conference football player as a junior and senior and was named to the all-state academic football squad this year. He will be automatic selection to the academic all-state wrestling squad this year.

Last year laeger, who carries a 4.0 GPA, was nominated by principal Ron Leapley as a candidate for the Wendy's High School Heisman award. finished as a Nebraska top ten finalist. Nationwide, over 26,000 student-athletes were nominated for the Wendy's award, which is based on athletic and scholastic achievement as well as community involvement.

Jaeger is also busy with sativities outside the school, serving as vice-president of the SL. Paul's Lutheran youth group as well as the Blue Ribbon 4-H club. He has been successful in showing dairy caule, being a consistent purple ribbon winner at the Wayne County Fair as well as being a top showman in the swine division.

There will be no more dicting according to Jaeger, who has no plans for continuing his wrestling career in college. "I'll never see 140 pounds again in my life," he said.

Present plans include attending pre-pharmacy school at Lincoln with an eye to continuing his education at the University of Nebraska Medical School in Omaha. The wait may not be so long for the Jaeger families between state champions this time. Josh's brother Jeremy will enter high school next year and will be competing for a varsity spot on the Wildcat wrestling team. Josh, who finished his career as a Wildcai with 124 wins, has this advice for youngsters wanting to be successful on the wrestling mats of in anything else they may try

"Work hard to fulfill your dreams. Being a state champion has always been my dream and hard work and effort oot me there."

When Winside's Josh Jaeger (left) won the Class D 140-pound state wrestling title on February 17, he joined his father, Dave (right), as a state champion. Dave won the 112-pound title for the Wildcats in 1972.

that we played well in a long time;" said Barry. "We had a three-minute stretch right before halftime that really hurt us and we went into halftime down nine points. We played well in the second half and finally took the lead at 56-55. After that it was a close game right down to the buzzer. Their best player got a good look at a three-pointer with 11 seconds left and hit it." •NO BOXSCORE AVAILABLE•

Wayne State closes out the season at home against Bernidji State on Saturday. Seniors Danyel Grammer, Susie Osborn, Marla Stewart and Lori Zeimetz will be participating in their final game for the Wildcats. Earlier this year WSC lost to Bemiliji State-94-65.

Wildcats can't find the way on latest road trip

By Korey Berg Of the Herald

The Wayne State College men's basketball team continued to struggle on the road this week, losing a pair of games. The 'Cats fell to Minnesota-Morris last Friday and to Briar Cliff on Wednesday. Briar Cliff 73,

Wayne State 66 Wayne State lost a 73-66 decision to Briar Cliff on Wednesday. The Wildcats shot 42 percent from the field and held the Chargers to 33 percent shooting, but half of BCs baskets were from behind the three-point arc. Briar Cliff also outscored WSC 23-12 at the free throw line and outrebounded them 44-38 Wayne State led 35-31 at halftime, but the Chargers rallied to hold a 42-31 advantage in the second half.

"It's beginning to get old," said Head Coach Greg McDermott, "but we cannot seem to pick up a win on the road during a close game. We did not rebound well and we turned the ball over too many times (16). Chad Nelson played a solid game as he led us in both scoring and rebounding. We must get a better overall effort if we expect to win on the road.

Nelson scored 19 and grabbed 11 rebounds, while Mike Fitzner tallied 10 points and Kyle White had eight.

Wayne State 89 (OT) Wayne State College played its third overtime game of the year and came up on the short end of a 101-89 score on the road against Minnesota-Morris.

The Wildcats led 36-35 at the half, but the Cougars took the lead in the second half, but WSC rallied to tie the game at 80-80 and send it into overtime. Morris outscored the Cais 21.9 m the extra period to take home the win.

Wayne State shot just 35 protection the field and connected only 14 percent of their three-point shots

"We played well enough in most aspects of the game to win," said McDermott, "but as much as we rely on the three-point shot, go four for 28 we have a difficult time being successful. Our inside tandem of Dan Anderson and Craig Philipp was outstanding. just one of those nights that the outside shots wouldn't fall."

Philipp scored 24 points and had 13 rebounds, while Anderson poured in 21 points. Jaime Jones added 11 rebounds, while Curt Woodin had 10 rebounds and five assists.

How to make a child leave breakables alone?

My toddler frequently to touch the chinaware expensive trinkets that and decorate our home. How can I ave these breaks make her le ble things alone? A. I caution parents not to discipline toddlers for behavior that is natural and necessary to learning and development. Exploration of their environment, for example, is of great importance to intellectual stimulation,

You and I as adults will look at a crystal vase and obtain whatever information we seek from that visual inspection. A toddler, however, will expose it to all of her senses. She will pick it up, taste it, smell it, wave it in the air, pound it on the wall, throw it across the room and listen to the pretty sound of shattering glass. By that process, she learns a bit about gravity, rough versus smooth surfaces, the brittle nature of glass and some startling things about mother's anger.

WAYNE, NE 68787

I am not suggesting that your child be allowed to destroy your home and all of its contents. Neither is it right to expect her to keep her hands to herself. Parents should remove those items that are fragile or particularly dangerous, and then strew the child's path with fascinating objects of all types. Permit her to explore everything possible and do not ever disci-pline her for touching something that she did not know was off limits, egardless of its value

Q. At what age should a child sit quietly in church?

A. The ability to sit quietly in church is a gradually developing example of self-control. A child will learn it in small increments during the first few years of his life. I would expect that perhaps by the age of 4 he should be able to control his activity and sit in church without making any loud disturbance, even if he is drawing or coloring or looking at books. By the time he is 5, he should be ready to sit through the service without dropping things, waving his arms around, etc.

Q. Why do the attitudes and reactions of parents play a ey role in the self-esteem of children?

A. Children are extremely vulnerable to the subtle attitudes of their parents. That's why adults must learn to guard what they say in the presence of their children. Many times, following a speaking engagement, I've been consulted by a mother regarding a particular problem her child is having. As Mom de-scribes the gritty details, I notice that the subject of all this conversation is standing about a yard behind her. His ears are 10 feet tall as he listens to a candid description of all his faults. The child may remember that conversation for a lifetime. It is clear that parents often convey disrespect to a child whom they genuinely love. For example, Mom may become tense and nervous when little Jimmy speaks to guests or outsiders. She butts in to explain what he is trying to say or laughs nervously when his remarks sound foolish. When someone asks him a direct question, she interrupts and answers for him. She reveals her frustration when she is trying to comb his hair or make him "look nice" for an important event. He knows she thinks it is an impossible assignment. If he is to spend a weekend away from the family, she gives him an extended lecture on how to avoid making a fool of himself.

SECTION B

These subtle behaviors are signals to the child that his mother doesn't trust him with her image--that he must be supervised closely to avoid embarrassing the whole family. He reads disrespect in her manner, though it is framed in genuine love.

point is that parents should be sensitive to the self-concept of their children, being especially mindful of matters pertaining to physical at-tractiveness or intelligence. These are two primary "soft spots" where boys and girls are most vulnerable.

Business need to compare telephone costs

Comparing several long distance phone companies' prices to their service will help you get the most for your long distance dollars. Eighty-five percent of start-up businesses spend more money long distance phone service than they have to according to research conducted by the Beacon Research

 $\mathbf{2B}$

Group. When comparing long distance carriers, use the following guidelines.

Find the best day rate per minutes. Ninety percent of business calls are made between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Don't be fooled by lower evening rates because a business will rarely use them.

Know the basic mechanics of the long distance phone system. Fiber optic lines and digital switches provide the best connections. Beware that some companies use a smaller percentage of these lines and switches than others.

Get a guaranteed rate. Make the phone company chosen guarantee a fixed rate for a certain amount of time -- in writing. Beware of companies that sign up customers at prices to be decided by them in the future

Compare calling card costs. What is the charge per minute for calls? Some companies surcharge customers up to 84 cents per call in addition to charging for time:

Find out when you begin to pay for a call. Find one that charges only if there is an actual connection. Find out whether calls are times (and charges) in six second, 18 to 30 or 60 second increments

Ask for references. Ask for names of companies each company works for Provide a break-down of your phone service require-ments. The phone company should be told a business' percentage of in state, out of state and international calls. Convey to the phone company the fact that you are ready to make a decision and are comparing prices. A newsletter for commercial vegetable producers will again be available beginning in March. Each newsletter features:

Production and marketing articles by University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialists such as newsletter editor aurie Hodges; personnel from the Nebraska Department of Agriculture and specialists from other land-grant universities. * An upcoming calendar of events

Homemakers met Feb. 13

The Homemakers Club met Feb. 13 in the home of Doris Harmer. Eight members answered call by telling what their ideal Valentine's Day would be. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. President Jackie Owens read a reading "The Farmer's Diarv" (Nebraska Farmer 1972).

throughout the region, such as the February 27-28 Nebraska Vegetable Conference in Columbus. Fun facts to brighten anyone's day. The casy-to-read, seven-page newsletter is a good way to incl knowledge for vegetable protection and marketing. Newsletter subscribers have the opportunity to ask questions and see the answers in print. The annual subscription is $10 for eight issues, beginning with March. An index also is available. No newsletters are published in February on in the summer.

To subscribe, contact the UNL Iorticulture Department at 402-472-2854.

Doris Harmer led the group in a craft of box making from old greeting cards. The group had a volun-tary exchange and lunch was served by the hostess

Next meeting will be Tuesday, March 5 at 7 p.m. in the home of Jo Ann Owens.

Winside Book Nook

By JoAnn Field, Librarian

Your Winside library is busy planning activities for your learning and entertainmeni. PLans are now finalized for a storytime for all 3 through 8 year olds for March 2, 9, 16, 23 and 30. The theme is "Rhymes in Song." We will be sharing a set of new books purchased from Gareth Stevens entitled "Extended Nursery Rhymes." We will also, befreaching action songs that accompany the stories and doing some fun and simple crafts. All programs will be held at the library from 11 to 11:30 a.m. This is a change in time. We ask that you stop by and sign up for the storytime series if at all possible so we can plan for you. March is also "Nutrition March Against Cancer" month. We will have pamphlets, activity books for pre-school through sixth grade children, bookmarks and stickers available at the library for anyone at no charge. They are provided to you through the American Cancer Society for your education.

The Summer Reading Program theme this year will be "Peer-Amid Books." Materials have been ordered and planning for a June and July program series is underway. We will give you all the details when our plans are completed.

The library also plans to sponsor two booths this year during the Old Settlers celebration in Winside. If you are interested in helping, stop in and let us know. We also can always use volunteers during our Summer Reading Program. Let us know if you are interested in being a library volunteer!

We would remind you that the library has a collection of craft books for your use. They might be helpful if you are planning on renting a table for the Old Settlers country craft show. We also own a good selection of gardening books for all of you who are counting the days to spring and the gardening season. Why not stop in and check them out now? .

In your town, there are lots of people you can count on!

> Of course there are the police, firefighters, mailcarriers and many more. And then there are those who might not readily come to your mind... the business people of our community who provide those extremely vital services we all need and count on.

There's the pharmacist who'll compound that important lifesaving prescription and quickly deliver it. There's the hardware store that stocks those emergency plumbing parts, and the service station that comes out and gets your car quickly started when it just doesn't want to turn over. Local business can be "lifesavers' too. They're there when you need them in an emergency...and when it's not an emergency, will you still call on them? When you shop locally, you help build your community.

No need to roam...the best shopping's here at home!

improved testing allow the Nebraska Department of Agriculture to implement slaughter surveillance testing. The change provides for collecting blood samples at slaugh-ter, rather than on-farm surveillance testing.

"There has been tromendous progress in reducing the number of quarantined herds down to the cur-rent level of 75," said Nebraska State Veterinarian Larry Williams

"In 1990 our peak was more than 800 quarantined herds. In addition, laboratories testing slaughter samples have been authorized to use a differential test which enables us to differentiate between animals vaccinated with a gene-deleted wascine and diseased animals

Dr. Williams said there will be a significant reduction in the number of herds that will have to be tested on the farm for surveillance purposes. Last, year, more than 5,500 notices for testing were mailed out. This year there were 1,190. That number will continue to decline as

HELP WANTED

 The main benefit to producers in the new slaughter surveillance area is the relief from the cost and in convenience of on-farm testing of their herds. Producers probably won't have much contact about this change, usless they have an animal test positive at slaughter. In the event of a staughter positive, the Department of Agriculture will contact the producer to determine whether there is a need for some sampling in the herd.

Cardiac rehab more than just exercise

Cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death in the United States.

More than 900,000 Americans die each year from cardiovascular disease, but many others survive and take the opportunity to get their hearts and their lives back on track through cardiac rehabilitation, Cardiac rehabilitation is much more than just an exercise program, said Diane Vogel, director of health enhancement services at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln. It involves a total approach that includes physiological, educational and psychosocial elements. Together, work in these areas helps to restore health, aids in recovery, provides support while the patient modifies risk factors, and promotes improved fitness and self-confidence.

The multi-dimensional program used at Bryan is a model used at many Nebraska hospitals which are part of the Nebraska Cardiovascular and Pulmonary Rehabilitation Network. Through this network, heart attack or heart surgery patients who begin their care at Bryan can be assured rehab procedures and protocols will continue in a seamless program of care when they return horne to complete their recovery.

Main components of a good cardiac rehabilitation program include:

cle for the activities of daily living. It may include acrobic exercise, weight training and muscle toning. Specific regi-mens are "prescribed" for each patient, Vo-gel said.

Education. Like the rest of the rehabilitation program, education begins as early as the first day after treatment or surgery. It can include formal and informal instruction in both individual and group settings. Examples of education areas include nutrition, dietary changes, stress management and smoking cessation.

"Patients learn about their own risk factors and how to change behavior to eliminate or reduce the likelihood of heart disease," Vogel said

Psychosocial. "A patient must deal with a lot of psychological issues in order to successfully change a lifestyle," Vogel said. "The psychosocial part of the program puts a person with others who have similar experiences and who are in different stages of recovery. The vamaraderic that grows gives each patient the support he or she needs to persevere in their own recoveries."

The cardiac rehabilitation program also includes family members who play an important role in recovery and permanent lifestyle change

"The outlook for patients with heart of disease is better than ever, thanks to the combination of method science and fighquality cardiac rehabilitation programs. Vogel sud

Healthy eating tips

Becky Guittar, registered dictitian at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln, ofters the following ups on starting and smaintaining healthy eating habits.

 Think of healthy, eating as a lifetong process; not a diet.

Evaluate how you prepare and eat food. Identify unhealthy eating habits and try to bird ways to make changes you can live with, like avoiding second helpings or eating lower fat snacks

When shopping, be sure to have a list of exactly what you are going to buy. In general, try to select foods that do not have a lot of fat

-Never shop when you are hungry.

 Select meat cuts that are leaner, such as beet cuts with the word "foin" or "round," or pork cuts with the word "foin" in their names. You may have to prepare these diterently. Limit beet/pork portions to a three-ounce serving.

Find low-fat substitutes that satisfy your taste preferences, such as skim, lowtat ice cream, light cheese, or fat-free or lower-fat salad dressing

•When preparing foods, try to broil, poach, rogst, simmer, braise or steam tavorite meats instead of frying

 Use a nonstick cooking spray and/or a nonstick pan rather than oil.

•Separate fait from gravy, stew and soups with a separator or refrigerate overnight and remove solid fat on top.

When during outside the home, stick to your healthy eating habits. If you must have a rich-dessert, split a serving with your during partner(s) or take large restaurant-portions home for another meal. If your physician has recommended a special diet, be sure to ask before making any changes

News for smokers

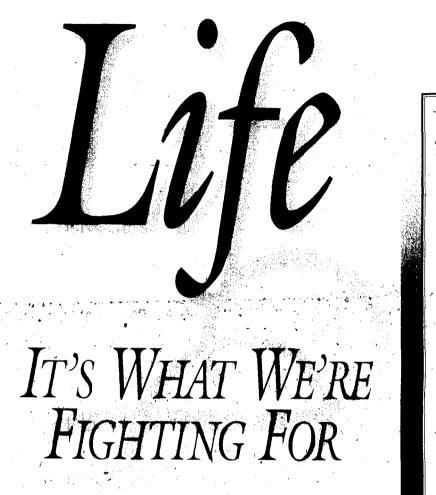

These days, there is a dark cloud of bad news for smokers. Studies prove smoking causes strokes, cancer and heart attacks, not to mention other life-threatening cardiovascular diseases. It kills an estimated 417,000. Americans each year. Medical studies proclaim cigarette smoking the number one health problem in America.

Yet, there is good news for smokers who stop, said Chris Headlee, facilitator of the smoking cessation program at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln.

Stop smoking, and within 12 hours your body begins to heal itself. Your risk of heart disease gradually decreases. Your heart attack risk starts declining.

After one year, your risk of smokingrelated heart disease is reduced by half. Alter 15 years, your risk may be no worse than someone who has never smoked.

But the key is to stop now, Headlee' said. If you want to quit smoking only when the signs of heart disease first appear, your risk of heart attack will decrease, but will never fully return to normal.

eart disease and stroke may be the number one killers in America. But, thanks to concerned citizens, their pharmacists, physicians and other health professionals across Northeast Nebraska, heart disease and stroke won't win out without a fight. During February, we celebrate American Heart Month by recognizing the contributions these individuals have made in helping Nebraskans . live longer; more productive lives.

And, more importantly, WE ASK YOU TO LOOK FOR WAYS that you can prevent heart disease from having a destructive effect on your life and the lives of family and friends who are close to you.

Work out regularly for your well being

Exercise can be as simple as walking, swimming, running, biking or taking an acrobics class, but when performed at the proper intensity for 30-60 minutes at a time at least three times a week, it can:

·Give you more energy and increase your resistance to fatigue

Improve your self-image

•Relieve tension and help you relax and sleep

 Tone muscles Increase stamma

.Start off slowly, settle into your exercise routine, then increase the distance or intensity as your body gets more fit.

·Join an exercise group or exercise with a friend

Begin each exercise with a warm-up exercise to prepare your heart and muscles. End each session with a cool-down period and some stretching to prevent aches and pains in your exercising muscles. .Check your pulse before, during and after exercise. If your pulse rate increases more than 30 beats above your resting pulse rate, slow down. You may be overexercising. It should feel tolerable, not "HARD" or strenuous.

Exercise may also be an incentive to reduce the amount you smoke and eat.

The following tips from Cindy Kugler, exercise supervisor at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln, can help you develop an exercise program that works for you. Before you begin, however, be sure to see your physician.

•Try to pick an activity that you enjoy. ·Pick the days and time of day that work best with your schedule, then make it part of your routine. Establishing a regular ex-

Keep pressure in check

High blood pressure can lay a person low if left untreated.

Also known as hypertension, high blood pressure is one of the most dangerous cardiovascular diseases today. It affects one out of every four Americans, and many people who have high blood pressure don't even know it.

Everyone should get their blood pressure checked regularly because hypertension, by itself, has no symptoms," said Dr. Kaliprasad Ayala; a cardiologist with the Nebraska Fleart Institute in Lincoln." If a problem is found, a health professional can work with the person to treat it before damage occurs ' ten with only a small modification in diet or exercise. If you have high blood pressure, your doctor may suggest you lose weight, exercise more regularly and limit your salt intake. You may also have to take medication

The American Heart Association recommends that a person with normal blood pressure (140/90) have his or her blood pressure checked at least every two years. Persons at risk of developing hypertension should consider getting it checked more

According to Drs. Ayala and Ghalili, high blood pressure generally occurs ing people over the age of 35. Some of the factors which might put an individual in a higher risk category include

Take these steps to heart

To reduce your risk of developing heart disease, take the following steps recommended by Diane Vogel, director of health enhancement services at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln.

1. Start with a mindset of making small lifestyle changes that will eventually build into new, healthier lifestyle habits. Don't try to change the behaviors of a lifetime overnight. "This is the most common mistake people make, and it only sets them up for failure," Vogel said

2. Identify your risk factors. Heart disease risk factors can be broken down into controllable and two categories: uncontrollable. Uncontrollable risk factors include family history, gender and fidvancing age. Controllable risk factors include diabetes, high blood pressure or hypertension, being overweight, having high cholesterol, smoking, choosing not to exercise regularly and having elevated stress levels. The more risk factors you have, the greater your potential for developing heart disease.

We can't do anything about getting older or having a family history of heart disease, but we can do something about what we eat," Vogel, said. "Once controllable risk factors are identified, the most difficult challenge is to act on them

3. Take each risk factor one at a time. If you have more than one controllable risk, choose one on which to really locus. Often the actions you take to control that risk factor positively impact another. For example, if you quit smoking cigarettes, you may find it easier to breathe and have more energy to exercise

.4. Set realistic goals that you can successfully achieve. Instead of telling yourself you'll lose ten pounds in a week, set your goal to lose two pounds. Or, instead of saying you will never eat your favorite. high-fat dessert again, eat a smaller portion of it or modify the ingredients to make it lower in fat

5. Celebrate your victories. Each time you achieve a goal, do something nice for yourself or just give yourself a pat on the back. This will give you something to look forward to.

6. Get the support of others, Changecan be more difficult when you go it alone. Join a group that focuses on the same area you are working on.

Children listening to a-heart beat

This "damage," according to Dr. Kamran Ghalili, Nebraska Heart Institute cardiologist, can include an enlargement and weakening of the heart; damage to the brain, eyes and kidneys; and an increased risk of heart attack and stroke Blood pressure is the force your heart exerts when it pumps the blood through your circulatory system," Dr. Ghalili said High blood pressure means the heart is having to work harder than it should."

This condition occurs when the tiny blood vessels called arterioles constrict to the point where blood can't easily flow through them.

Tips for kicking the smoking habit

Headlee offers some additional tips for persons who want to successfully stop smoking. These include:

and decide on reasons you want to stop.

 Use behavior modification techniques to develop and maintain your motivation and a positive attitude.

·Although taparing off is helpful for some smokers, "cold turkey" is statistically_the_most_successful-approach-formost of the people, most of the times -

·Pick a firm date to stop smoking Share the date with your family and friends and ask them to help you over the rough spots in the first couple of days and weeks . Then, do not smoke, NO MATTER WHAT!

 Drink large quantities of water and fruit juice.

Lifestyle can keep Coronary Artery Disease in check

Coronary artery disease can be prevented by following a few basic lifestyle guidelines, according to Dr. Deepak Gangahar, cardiac, vascular, thoracic and transplant surgeon at Bryan Memorial Hospital and a member of the Nebraska Heart Institute in Lincoln

"Heredity is certainly a factor, but to a great extent coronary artery disease is a disease of lifestyle," Dr. Gangahar said - It is one of the few diseases which gives a person a lifetime to prevent.

Dr. Gangahar said coronary artery disease can be prevented by: Eating right

 Exercising five to six times a week •Not smoking

·Maintaining an ideal body weight

·Getting blood pressure and cholesterol checked early in life

Cholesterol and blood pressure checks are extremely important," Dr. Gangahar emphasized. They have a direct bearing on one's survival. Many well-respected studies have now come out showing positive changes in lifestyle can lead to reduction in cholesterol."

*Keep some "substitutes" handy: carrots, frozen grapes, raisins, sunflower seeds, sugarless gum or follipops, etc.

•Use diversion techniques to take your mind off urges to smoke: puzzles, crafts, hobbies, magazines, etc.

•Reward your progress; be good to vourself

•Don't allow yourself to think "one won't hurt"--it will. And don't think of never smoking again. Think in terms of not smoking today.

•If you slip, try to identify what triggered your slip. Then strengthen your commitment to stop and keep not smoking.

Headlee strongly encourages people to join a class or program for those who want to stop smoking--especially persons who have had trouble quitting on their own.

"Interacting with others who have the same goal can be very helpful," Headlee said. She added that some programs will

"Bryan's smoking cessation program is all about behavioral change," Headlee noted. She said the group approach provides opportunities for interaction, ongoing support and accountability. The unusual structure of Bryan's smoking ces'sation program includes 16 two-hour classes, the first being a no-obligation orientation session. The class that Headlee facilitates has achieved success rates (50% smoke free after six months) which exceed the national average for smoking cessation.
