School bond issue vote set for May 14

Voters in District 17 and those affiliated with District 17 will be asked to vote on an $8.1 million school bond during the May 14 primary election.

In an effort to educate voters on what the project will involve and what it will cost, the Building Better Schools committee has designed a four-part series of articles to explain the building needs of the school. One floor of the proposed project will be discussed in each of the first three articles, with the final article summarizing the entire project.

"The high school building project in 1967 was downsized to save money," said Edmund Ellers, chairman of media relations for the committee. "The result was a smaller theater than required, a shortage of math and science rooms, social studies and business teachers sharing the same room and no air conditioning in a structure that was designed for it.

"In addition, there is a need for an appropriate space for art classes," Ellers said. "At the present time there are no windows in the art room. It is under the gym and extremely noisy and there is no ventilation."

The present science labs are not large enough to promote an activity-centered curriculum, he said, nor are there enough labs to accommodate all science staff.

A number of changes are planned for the third floor of the high school. The special education program will be assigned a room (the present Home Economics room), the art room will be given a new space adjacent to the projection booth of the theater for combined projects, and new lighting and sound improvements will be made for the theater.

The central office would become a space for the principal, high school guidance counselor and clerical staff, allowing for improved usage for disciplinary procedures and services for students.

An elevator would be added to the building to address accessibility concerns.

The proposed construction at the high school would allow for the high school and middle school to share spaces in the art room, gym and theater to avoid duplication.

The renovation and construction at the high school would involve a total of 6,100 square feet. Of this number, 500 square feet would be renovated at a cost of $30 per square foot. The remaining 5,600 square feet would be new space, to be constructed at cost of $83 per square foot.

Of the Herald

The Wayne Board of Education heard reports at Tuesday's meeting that the amount of money available for the school district for upcoming budgets will be determined by bills to be debated in the Nebraska legislature this week.

Dr. Dennis Jensen, Superintendent of the Wayne Public Schools, reported to board members the status of a number of bills that have been passed and are expected to be passed this week that will affect both the amount of money local districts receive and where the money can be spent.

LB 050 involves equalization and income tax and LB 209 would involve bids on the amount that could be spent.

Dr. Jensen also reviewed with the board the grants that the school has applied for including lottery money; Title I and VI; Drug Funding; a science grant, Carl Perkins, School-to-Work, School at the Center, an MCF grant and a US West grant. If the school were to receive all of the money applied for, the total would be $397,500.

The board discussed the building project which will be on the May 14 ballot. Board President Phyllis Spethman reported that each of the campaign representatives gave reports at a recent meeting and all appears to be going well. Brochures are being printed to inform the public of the need and cost of the project.

Returns due May 1 for personal property items

Nebraska Personal Property returns for all depreciable tangible personal property, including agricultural machinery, are due in the appropriate county assessor's office by May 1. The returns must be filed with the assessor in the county where the property has tax situs.

The returns must be filed for all tangible personal property that is or could have been depreciated on a federal tax return, regardless of whether sales tax has been paid on the item.

Some confusion has surrounded the need to file the returns, particularly where agricultural machinery is concerned. In some case purchasers have been told that paying state and local sales taxes on agricultural machinery will exempt the item from property taxes.

However, there is no provision in the law to allow for the exemption of tangible personal property taxes on agricultural machinery. The law clearly exempts such items from the sales tax. Any purchaser who has paid sales tax on qualifying purchases is entitled to a refund. AMENDED RETURNS

Q. I filed my 1994 tax return on time. I forgot, however, to include income from a part-time job. What do I do now?

A. You will need to amend your 1994 return. You may owe a little more tax, or you may get a small refund, depending on how much you earned and how much tax was withheld. You amend a return by filing Form 1040X.

You may file an amended return for a variety of reasons. For example, if you remember a deductible expense after your return has been filed, an amended return will correct the error and net you a refund. Generally, you have three years from the due date of your return to file an amendment. If you filed a state return, you may also have to amend that return.

It's time to build for future generations

School Bond Election May 14, 1996

The Problem

- ✓The existing Middle School, built in 1908, has served its useful life.
- ✓Inflation and favorable interest rates indicate that waiting to make improvements will cost even more.
- ✓Inefficient use of faculty and student time to travel to High School for some classes.

The Process

- ✓A Citizens Committee has worked for two years to analyze solutions to space needs.
- ✓The Committee found that renovation would cost 80% of new construction.
- ✓The Committee compared how various solutions meet our educational needs.

THE SOLUTION

A bond election to fund construction of a new Middle School, to be built next to the existing High school to eliminate duplicated specialized areas at two locations.

Dr. Mash outlines college growth in talk

Wayne State College President Dr. Donald Mash Wednesday, reminded Wayne Rotarians of what he told them when he last addressed the group in 1988.

Just a month after taking the job as Wayne State President, Mash said he had addressed the Rotary Club and outlined the needs for the campus and his plan for the future.

At that time enrollment had fallen, there were empty dorms, funding problems faced the institution, there were major facility needs and there were other problems.

Nearly eight years later the scene has changed dramatically.

"We've had success and done many of the things we wanted to do," Mash told the breakfast meeting of the civic club. "There is still more to do and the challenges have changed somewhat," he added, "but the improvements have been substantial."

Wayne State is at record enrollment of nearly 4,000 students, dorms are at capacity, the campus has gained more financial stability with funding enhancement from the state system and a highly successful private foundation capital campaign. New buildings and campus infrastructure improvements are in place.

Mash said one of his first projects when he came to Wayne was to personally visit communities throughout the region to tell the story about the affordable, quality education available at Wayne State. He said it was not hard to convince the region about the benefits of enrollment at WSC.

"The campus, the affordability, the size, the personal attention students get from instructors," were all a part of the positive message Mash said he delivered to the regional communities. "We talked about the institution being truly a student-centered, regionally-based campus."

He said the discussion in 1988 was not just talk either. The faculty and staff have worked hard to maintain the student-centered approach to education that has contributed directly to the enrollment growth he said.

He told the Rotarians he also delivered a message both here in Wayne and to other communities throughout the region in 1988 that he wanted Wayne State College to become a regional institution. That meant conducting outreach programs and offering educational services throughout the region, he said. He added those efforts have been rewarded with enrollment growth and other improvements that have benefited the community of Wayne in turn.

The coming challenges include the continuing effort to tell the story about quality and how affordable education at Wayne State is for students, to offer technology enhancements and to improve and enhance teaching and learning quality through professional advancement programs.

"In the next five years the focus will be on improving the teaching/learning environment," he said.

Mash assured the Rotarians that he was not actively looking for a new job.

"I am enjoying what I am doing," he said. His remarks were prompted by an OmahaWorld-Herald story that reported that both of the other two presidents at Nebraska State Colleges, Dr. Sam Rankin at Chadron State and Dr. Robert Burns at Peru State, are among the four finalists for the same job in New York.

Young authors recognized

Several young authors were recognized for their accomplishments during a presentation at West Elementary.

Students from Wayne Elementary and Carroll Elementary were selected to attend the Young Authors Festival to be held in Randolph April 13.

All of the students wrote stories as part of the fifth annual event. Classroom teachers then selected two student's works to be submitted to the committee of three who then selected the winners and those receiving honorable mention.

This year's selection committee consisted of teacher's aides Ann Ruwe, Denise Fredrickson and Michele Jorgensen.

Winners from the Wayne Elementary School were: kindergarten through second grade, Kyle Christensen with a story titled "Chicken Days" and grades three and four, Charly Kroeker with a story titled "How the Worms Almost Died Out."

Winners from Carroll Elementary were: kindergarten through second grade, David Loberg with a story titled "The Box that fell from the Sky" and grades three and four, Kari Hochstein with a story titled "The Great Oak Tree."

gathered concerning the possibilities before a formal recommendation is brought before the board.

In other action, the board voted to inform three part-time staff members of a possible reduction in force depending on the effects of legislation. The positions held by these staff members would be filled by them if the money becomes available.

Board members approved the 1996 graduates, pending completion of the second semester classes, approved the Sunrise Cove Platt and heard a report from Middle School Principal Richard Metteer on Civil War Day to be held May 8 on the school track.

Sadey Bessmer, Stephanie Kay and Jacob Nissen.

Second grade students receiving honorable mention were Joe Brogie, Jessica Burleigh, Nick Kovarna, Blair Sommerfeld and Robyn Heithold. Third grade students receiving honorable mention were Wade Jarvi, Josh Rasmussen, Jenny Brummond, Nathan Milander, Vashu Bird and Katie Calhoun.

Fourth graders receiving honorable mention were Karissa Hochstein, Tiffany Webb, Josh Ford, Allison Hansen and Rachel Robins.

Honorable mention award winners from Carroll Elementary included: kindergarten—Megan Loberg and Ian Harold; first grade—Emily Koester and Kourtney Schmale; second grade—Jared Bethune; third grade—Andrew Bethune; fourth grade—Sara Hank.

Amy Hill, a third grade teacher at Wayne Elementary is the president of the Northeast Nebraska Reading Council which sponsored the event. The council is comprised of schools in a 13 county area in N.E. Nebraska.

Pedersen is appointed to fill council vacancy

Wayne Mayor Sheryl Lindau appointed Randy Pedersen to fill the council position left vacant by the resignation of Ralph Barclay at Tuesday's city council meeting.

Pedersen and Barclay are both residents of the Third Ward. Barclay had earlier this year chosen not to run for re-election for his seat. Pedersen will serve until after the general election in November.

Barclay resigned due to health problems in his family.

The council approved Roger Pilger's membership to the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department and passed a resolution for conditional use by exception request by George and Karen Holm for a second floor apartment on Main Street.

A public hearing was held to create a change in the zoning ordinance to allow for detention type facilities to be built in an industrially zoned district. The ordinance allowing for this was passed.

The council approved the sale of $430,000 worth of bond anticipation notes for the Logan Street Project. The council waived the third reading of the ordinance.

On a 5-2 vote, the council gave

Industrial Tech Ed more than 'just a wood shop'

When Greg Vander Weil, assistant professor of industrial technology education (ITE) began working at Wayne State College, the ITE major focused on construction materials.

Today, emphasis is focused on four new areas, or systems of technology: manufacturing, construction, EPT (energy, power and transportation) and communications. Within each of these systems, students have the opportunity to explore even more areas such as computer aided drafting, robotics and hydraulics.

In response to the technological improvements, the ITE program at Wayne State has likewise expanded.

"It's what's going on in the real world, and we're doing it here," Vander Weil.

One of the first colleges in the nation to be recognized by the Council of Technology-Teacher Education, WSC offers students more than just an education. "People want our graduates," Vander Weil said.

He went on to say that not only are the WSC class sizes optimal and program facilities commendable, but job placement is fantastic.

A teaching degree in industrial technology makes a student more marketable when it comes to finding a job after college.

In one day Vander Weil received four calls concerning the possible job placement of one student. Administrators across the midwest are calling him "left and right," asking for the names of upcoming graduates in the field.

Wayne State's ITE major combines lectures, discussions, demonstrations and laboratory activities. These provide students with experiences necessary for the development of a practical understanding of industry and technology.

The teacher education program balances this technical training with organization, management and teaching methods courses that prepare the future teacher to utilize his/her technical training in classroom and lab settings.

The Applied Science Division at Wayne State also offers degrees in Industrial Management and Applied Technology. Placement in these majors has also been excellent. The three concentrations, teacher education, management and applied technology each represent one-third of the total majors.

For more information about industrial technology, contact Vander Weil at (402) 375-7283.

What is the state legislature doing?

You can find out during the legislative session by calling the Legislative Hotline at 1-800-742-7456 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

This service is available to provide information regarding the status of bills or to make requests for other information.

Information about the Unicameral is also available on the Legislature's new Web site on the Internet. Documents available include the daily agenda, the weekly committee hearing schedule, the speaker's session calendar, the daily summary sheet, the daily worksheet, fiscal notes, committee statements and one-line descriptions of bills.

Photographs and biographies of the 49 senators, maps of each district, and statewide maps are also available.

The Internet address for the Legislature's Web site is <http://unicam1.LCS.state.ne.us>.

Also available at the site are electronic copies of the Legislature's weekly newsletter and the Unicameral Update.

If you are online via the Internet and want to contact a federal agency, the White House, U.S. Senate, House of Representatives, the Thomas Legislative System, Library of Congress, government printing office, or the U.S. Department of Justice, use this address: <http://www.sec.gov/others.htm>.

How fortunate, in governing ourselves, those who govern and the governed can now exchange nearly instant electronic information.

As participants in this experiment of self-government, we have no excuse for not maintaining contact with those individuals representing our interests.

We would urge every citizen to get involved in every level of government, particularly through the avenue of expressed opinion.

Voters to get property tax cuts

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — The Nebraska Legislature's past efforts to address the state's higher-than-average property taxes have been about as fruitful as the endeavors of that "I love you man" guy on the beer commercials.

You've seen the commercials: a pathetic, unshaven Joe Six-Pack sort of dude sidles up to someone and begs for their beer. "But I love you man!" is the tearful punch line.

The beer guy, however, never gets his beer — much like all the complainers about high property taxes have never gotten a whiff of lower property taxes from Lincoln.

Not this year. Lawmakers are giving voters what they think they want: a package of six bills that promise to cut the local property tax load by $250 million by placing caps on spending, lids on tax levies and urging consolidation of government services.

No one figured it could be done. A hungry pack of lobbyists who represent the schools, cities and counties are going to have to learn to live with less property tax revenue.

In past years, they've been very successful in beating back attempts to limit their spending. After all, that would hurt Johnny's chances of learning how to read and write, or cut back on road maintenance or close libraries.

This year, though, even a letter-writing effort by grade school classes from Millard and a hoard of Lincoln teachers and children shouting "No Lids for Kids" didn't sway senators.

Reporters hate to write "government works," but darn it, in this case it looks like it has.

How? Members and staff of the Revenue

Committee, led by wily Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, worked like crazy over the past year, analyzing figures, taking testimony and weighing alternatives.

The pressure was on: three petition drives would put property tax cuts in the Nebraska Constitution. You can't amend a provision in that document without voter approval, which takes a lot of effort and time.

Plus, the schools, towns and counties would be worse off, in most cases, if the petition drives passed.

So both the lobbyists and senators had a motive to pass their own solution. It's happened with surprisingly little controversy.

But will it work? And will it deflate enough momentum from the petition drives of Ed Jaksha, the Nebraska Education Association/Nebraska Farm Bureau coalition and the rancher group led by Stan Dobrovolsky of Atkinson?

Those are all good questions, ones that will take a few months and years to answer.

The Nebraska Tax Research Council has already said the impact of the Legislature's six-pack of bills will vary greatly across the plains of Nebraska. Taxpayers in Keya Paha County, for instance, won't see any reduction in their property taxes from the plan while their counterparts in Frontier and Furnas counties will get cuts of 33.4 percent.

The impact varies depending on how high property is assessed, whether there is a local sales tax or how much local services cost.

But one thing's for sure: the voters who wanted property tax cuts and said "I love you man" got what they asked for.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

ADD common with Americans

Polls, polls, polls!
One reads of the Gallup, Giddup, and Whoa polls, well anyway the first one, We Americans love to take our own pulse to determine what is happening.

Polls are supposed to tell us in which direction a majority is leaning. Everyone knows they are often inaccurate and likely to persuade the unpollled, but we entertain ourselves anyway.

I would like to see Americans polled on whether or not they are afflicted with ADD (Attention Deficit Disorder). This is a serious problem especially for TV station managers, producers, programmers and newscasters. The problem arises when one is sitting in an easy chair watching TV with remote control in hand. The show you are watching pauses for a commercial and immediately ADD takes over! You hadn't felt its pangs earlier, but just the minute the announcer says "We'll be right back following this word from our sponsors..." Immediately one's Attention Deficit Disorder springs to the fingers and causes one to start changing channels!

School students can testify to the disaster of ADD, particularly when they haven't paid attention and the teacher springs a surprise quiz.

One may also have a serious attack of ADD when listening to a long, dull, uninteresting discourse on a subject one cares little about! A survey of churches on Sunday morning is likely to find a near epidemic of ADD. Of course, that leads to another problem called SMD, or Serious Moral Disorder! SMD had its beginning in Eden.

Few have escaped this plague! We need no poll. Medication for its cure has always been just beyond the reach of humanity. Christians believe the Great Physician is the answer, but only to see, Easter turned into Bunny Rabbit Day, and Christmas turned into a commercial holiday for exchanging gifts.

Attorney Gerry Spence, appearing on CNBC, claims tobacco is killing 400,000 Americans annually, and calls the tobacco companies "merchants of death", recruiting children to replace customers dying from lung cancer.

Merlin Wright

He says tobacco is a social poison. Do we need a poll? Those who continue to puff away are likely to get ADD listening to his claims.

That's the way it is with mortals. ADD afflicts us all chiefly when we don't care about truth.

Maybe we shouldn't take polls. Arn't we going to do what we please, regardless?

Attention Deficit Disorder has likely stopped you from reading this far.

Did I mention it is impulsive!

Recycling options discussed

Editor's note: This is the last in a four-part discussion concerning the findings of a committee studying the options available to the community to address solid waste management and recycling needs.

Dear Editor,

The final solid waste disposal option considered by the committee is actually a composting option. An operation out of O'Neill is handling solid waste in this manner for several communities north and west of Wayne.

Under this system, household waste is picked up curbside similar to our current arrangement. It is then hauled to a collection site where a small amount of recyclables may or may not be removed prior to processing. The remaining wastes are passed through a grinder. The ground material is placed in long narrow windrows to decompose. Special equipment is used to turn the piles or aeration and to maintain moisture levels during a six-week composting period.

From there the compost is passed through a screen to remove chopped plastics, metals, glass and other material that did not decompose. The waste that doesn't break down is hauled to the landfill. The final compost is distributed on farm fields as a source of fertilizer and organic matter.

This option would require almost no change to Wayne households over the way we currently handle solid waste. Unfortunately, very little of the waste is actually recycled. With this system, most recyclable materials still wind up in the landfill, simply in a chopped up form. In order to truly recycle, the community would still need to maintain its voluntary program. Additionally, there is currently no established market for the compost product, which makes the future of the operation uncertain. For these reasons, the committee feels that this would be the least desirable option to adopt.

By Pat Engel
District 17 Senator

I co-sponsored an amendment with Senator Lindsay to LB 1189, the main budget bill, to provide the Department of Administrative Services the authority to negotiate and explore the use and possible acquisition of the Rivendell Psychiatric Hospital in Seward, Nebraska for a mental health or substance abuse treatment center. The possibility also exists in converting the center into a boot camp and drug rehabilitation center for the Department of Corrections. Our amendment will allow the state to take over the maintenance of the facility while negotiations are being conducted and the Legislature would determine whether or not to buy this facility in the 1997 session.

Purchasing the private center would be much cheaper than building a new facility and would help ease the overcrowding of state prisons that are now at 146 percent of design capacity by providing an additional 150 beds for inmates. LB 1177, a bill which would have provided for the creation of work camps for first-time offenders, will not be debated this year. Construction costs for the new facility in LB 1171 were estimated at $ 6.2 million. About $ 895,000 of renovation work would be required at the Rivendell facility to provide the proper updating, ensuring a substantial savings to the state.

LR 292CA, which proposes a constitutional amendment easing mergers and consolidations of local governments has advanced from Select File, on a 38-1 vote. Senator Schrock of Elm Creek introduced an amendment—that agricultural land would not exceed 80 percent of fair market value. This is currently in a statute and his proposal would have placed it in the Constitution. The amendment passed and then failed on a motion to reconsider. The amendment was introduced to highlight rural concerns about the property tax issue.

The Legislature has amended and advanced LB 299. An amendment offered by Senator Warner and adopted, continues to provide a limitation on subdivisions based on restricted funds, defined as property taxes, local sales taxes, state aid, user fees and other fees which generate surpluses which are transferred for general purposes. Schools, however, are excluded from this limitation and are addressed with amendments to the current expenditure limitation, modified to be as similar as possible to the limitation which is applicable to others. As education continues to compete with other public services for state funding, interest in the relationship between expenditure and student achievement will continue to grow. Before the advancement of LB 299, an amendment was adopted which creates a Task Force on Unfunded Mandates to study and report to the Legislature on possible ways to relieve local governments from state demands that cause local expense.

Two artists show work

There are two artists showing their oil paintings during the months of April and May at the Northeast Nebraska RC&D office, in Plainview. They are Lydaisy Janke from Winside and Kris Marotz from rural Winside. Both are self-taught, taking a few seminars or classes. They both took an oil painting seminar about 10 years ago, neither knowing the other would be attending. They are both cake decorators, also.

Lydaisy is a grandmother with grown children. She is retired from farming and the school cafeteria, but still finds time to sub at the cafeteria and stay active in church and civic organizations. She has always been interested in painting, having worked with oils on canvas for about 20 years. She uses photos and cards for ideas, and real life scenes, preferring florals and scenery.

Kris is a young mother of three living and farming in the country and working part-time at the school cafeteria. She finds time for her relaxing hobby when her family is sleeping. Her media is also oil, but she uses various backgrounds... saw blades, cream cans, coffee pots, as well as canvas. She primarily paints scenery and loves to paint barns, combining ideas she gleans from a variety of places. Both artist's works are for sale.

An open house is planned for Saturday, April 27, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. by the artists. Featuring other artists and craftsmen, also, it will be held at the Northeast Nebraska RC&D office in Plainview.

Eleven Wayne High Close-Up students visit nation's capitol

Eleven Wayne High schools students recently spent a week in Washington, D.C. as part of the Close Up Foundation government studies program for high school students.

Among the sites visited by the students were Capitol Hill, Arlington Cemetery, Washington Monument and the Smithsonian Museum.

The Wayne students were grouped with students from Michigan, North Dakota, Idaho and Kentucky during their Washington stay. They had the opportunity for daily discussions and activities on current events and on the governing process. They met together as a group twice during the week.

"I would recommend that anyone who is thinking about taking this trip learn as much as possible about how the government works," said Natasha Lipp, a junior who took this year's trip.

All those attending said they would definitely go again if the opportunity arose.

Brandon Novak was part of a group that was involved in a "Taiwanese protest against Chinese aggression." Jessica Ford saw Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich.

Stephanie Bailey, a junior who spent the week in the nation's capitol said she learned about compromising with others, how the Supreme Court works and parking efficiently.

Several of the groups toured different areas of the community. The students said they saw lots of people, some friendly and some not, lots of shops and lot of homeless people. The students were escorted to a number of parts of the nation's capitol.

Close Up Foundation, now celebrating its 25th anniversary, is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization that provides first hand opportunities to learn about the democratic process and the role of the individual. Since 1970, more than 430,000 students, teachers and others have taken part in the Close Up Washington programs.

Students rode the Metro, the city's public transportation system, visited the Lincoln Memorial, attended a dinner theater, and visited the Hard Rock Cafe.

Wayne students attending the week-long activities included Stephanie Bailey, Heather Buryanek, Jessica Ford, Jenny Johnson, Audrey Jones, Natasha Lipp, Brandon Novak, Jenny Reinhardt, Megan Rose, Gunnar Spethman and Christine Swinney. They were accompanied by Mrs. Judy Schaler.

Other area students attending were Andrea Carson, Justin Dutcher, Rachel Dutcher, Austin Euehl, Tory Nixon, Joshua Snyder and teacher Gregg Cruckshank from Wakefield.

Play practice

Wayne High School students Xenia Wenzel, Brian Finn and Maria Brown practice for the school's production of "Cyrano". The play runs Friday and Saturday. Both performances are at 7:30 p.m. in the Lecture Hall.

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

O.K., folks, we think it is time for another brain teaser. The answers to our latest quiz will be on display at the circulation desk in case you need help.

- Who said this... or in what book/movie/TV show was this said?
 1. "You bet your sweet bippy?" 2. "Come with me to the Casbah."
 3. "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a d---." 4. "Follow the Yellow Brick Road." 5. "I yam what I yam." 6. "Pls ring if an rnsr is required." (sic) 7. "How sweet it is!" 8. "You rang?" 9. "She who must be obeyed." 10. "Ho-HO-Ho!" 11. "I did you not." 12. "Beware the Ides of March." 13. "Ah — what's up, Doc?" 14. "Ah one, an a two." 15. "Arf!"

O.K., enough of famous quotes by famous people! How did you do?

The library is looking forward to Summer Reading Program time. We are beginning to make our plans for the activities, etc. The theme this year is "Peer-amid the books." No more clues. You figure it out! But keep your eyes and ears ready to learn more about it.

Several new books in the Library of America series are now on the shelves. "Collected Writings" by Tom Paine; "Reporting World War II," two volumes of American journalists reporting on all aspects of the war. Writers include Ernie Pyle, Bill Mauldin, Eric Sevareid, E.B. White, William L. Shirer, Dorothy Thompson and Edward R. Morrow, to name a few more familiar people. There are two volumes of Raymond Chandler fiction and one of William Faulkner fiction. Lots of good reading.

Library hours are Monday through Friday, 12:30 to 8:30; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m. And, in the words of a famous actress (who shall go unnamed — you guess) "Come up and see us sometime!"

Runestad to be judge at contest

About 2,400 students from 29 Columbus area high schools will participate in the District II Nebraska High School Music Contest scheduled for April 18-20 at Central Community College-Platte Campus.

Nearly 600 entries have been registered.

Judicators for the event include Cornell Runestad of Wayne.

Students are selected as rush counselors

Eight Nebraska Wesleyan University students have been selected to serve as rush counselors for the fall 1996 sorority rush.

The counselors will provide rush guests with support and a channel of communication as they attend rush functions, and serve as a liaison between Wesleyan's three sororities and the rush guests.

"Rush counselors were selected based on their enthusiasm for the Greek System, sensitivity, listening skills, dependability, and ability to remain objective during the rush process," according to Kris Bergmeyer, Greek life adviser at Nebraska Wesleyan. The new rush counselors include Samantha Felber, a sophomore from Laurel.

National Library Week to be celebrated April 14-20

The Wayne Public Library, with libraries across the country, is observing National Library Week April 14-20, which is annually sponsored by the American Library Association. It is a time to celebrate libraries and librarians, the pleasures and importance of reading, and to invite library use and support. This year's theme is "Libraries Change Lives. Call. Visit. Log On."

The Wayne Public Library is celebrating the week with several activities. On Friday, April 12 at 10 a.m. the Chamber coffee will be held at the library. A book sale of books for young and old will begin on Sunday, April 14 and will continue through the week. The groundbreaking ceremony for the new library/senior center will be on Tuesday, April 16 at 1:30 p.m. on Pearl Street, between 4th and 5th Streets.

Children are invited to bring their favorite stuffed animals or other items along. Celebrity readers will be Sheryl Lindau, Lance Webster and Gary West. A bedtime snack will be provided.

If you have internet access and would like to log on and "tour" the ALA site for fun and interesting stops for children, teenagers and adults, the address is <http://www.metaverse.com/logoday>.

Hours for the Wayne Public Library are Monday through Friday, 12:30 to 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday, 2-5 p.m.

Flu Vaccine Safe with Anticoagulant

Many individuals in the U.S. are receiving long-term anticoagulation therapy with the medicine warfarin. The anticoagulant keeps the blood from clotting as quickly as it would otherwise, helping to prevent clot-related disorders, including heart attack. Concern has been expressed about the possible interaction of influenza (flu) vaccine and warfarin, theoretically resulting in bleeding episodes.

According to a study reported in the medical journal Archives of Internal Medicine, 41 men receiving long-term warfarin therapy were given flu vaccine. Following the flu vaccination, the blood's ability to clot was measured at weekly intervals. Also, the site at which the vaccine was injected was examined. None of the 41 men complained of pain, tenderness, or swelling at the injection site. And the ability of the blood to clot did not appear to be affected by the flu vaccine injection.

'Cats add size, athleticism with new recruits

Wayne State College head men's basketball coach, Greg McDermott, has announced that Matt Van Voorst (Sioux Center, IA) and Jason Herlitzke (LaCrosse, WI) have signed national letters of intent to attend Wayne State College and play basketball for the Wildcats next season. They join Jon Dolliver (Stanton, NE), who signed with Wayne State in November.

Van Voorst, a 6-8, 215, forward/center, averaged 22 points and eight rebounds per outing this season while leading Sioux Center High School to a record of 15-5. He shot 80 percent from the field and was named first-team All-Siouxland Conference, first-team All-Northwest Iowa and first-team All-State. Van Voorst has been selected to play in the Iowa Dr. Pepper All-Star Game in June at the University of Northern Iowa.

"I chose Wayne State College because I liked Coach McDermott, the young players and the fact I would have a chance to play right away if I worked extremely hard," Van Voorst said.

"Matt is an excellent player on the block who also has the ability to face the basket," McDermott said. "The fact that he shot 80 percent from the field is an indication that he knows what to do with the basketball when he catches it. We expect him to make a significant contribution as a freshman."

Herlitzke, a 6-9, 205, center, averaged 17.8 points and 12 rebounds per game this season while leading LaCrosse Central High School to a record of 13-10. He led the Red Raiders in both scoring and rebounding and shot 67 percent from the field. He was named the team's Offensive Player of the Year and Most Valuable Player. Herlitzke was also named All-City, Co-Player of the Year in the Mississippi Valley Conference, first-team All-Colee Region and honorable mention All-State. He has been selected to play in the Wisconsin Coaches Association All-Star Game this summer.

"Wayne State has a young team with a bright future and I am looking forward to being a part of that future," Herlitzke said.

"Jason has made tremendous improvement over the course of the last year," McDermott said. "He has the ability to be a dominant rebounder. His best basketball is definitely ahead of him. With continued hard work, Jason could be a force on both ends of the floor."

Dolliver, a 6-5, 175, guard, averaged 25.0 points and 7.5 rebounds per game this season in leading Stanton High School to the Nebraska Class C-2 State title and a record of 24-3. During the 1994-95, he led the Mustangs with 29.7 points and 8.8 rebounds per game while helping the squad to a 20-4 record and an appearance in the State tournament. In 91 career games, Dolliver scored 2,147 points (23.6 ppg), grabbed 662 rebounds (7.3 rpg), had 402 assists (4.4 apg) and 287 steals (3.2 spg). He also hit 241 career three-point shots. He was named Class C-2 first-team All-State the last two seasons and second-team All-State as a sophomore. Dolliver, a three-time member of the Norfolk Daily News All-Northeast Nebraska team, has been named first-team Mid-States Conference the last three years. Last summer, he played on the Godfather's Select Team and Valentino's Select Team.

"Jon had an outstanding senior season," McDermott said. "Although he didn't score as many points as he did during his junior year, his unselfishness allowed his team to capture the State championship. We are excited that one of the finest talents in Northeast Nebraska will be attending Wayne State."

"The focus of our recruiting was to add size and an athletic swing guard, we certainly feel we accomplished our goals," McDermott said. "These young men possess a great attitude and tireless work ethic. I am looking forward to having them join our program."

McDermott plans to sign one or two more players in the next few weeks.

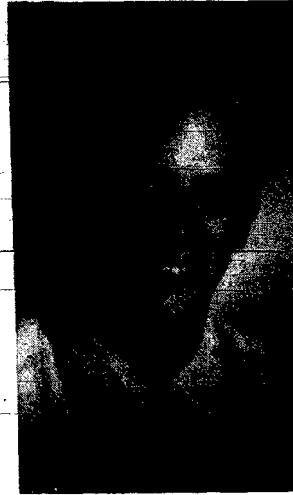

During the 1995-96 campaign, Wayne State finished the season with an overall record of 12-15.

WSC golfers place 2nd at Midland Lutheran Invite

The Wayne State golf team placed second at the Midland Lutheran Invitational on Tuesday. The Nebraska Wesleyan "Gold" team won the invite with a score of 299 followed by WSC with 306 and Briar Cliff with 317.

Briar Cliff's Aaron Shepherd won individual honors with a 70. J.D. Anderson placed second with a round of 71. Other Wildcat finishers were Jon Peterson (77), Jim Camplin (77), Jason Masat (81) and Jeff Yahn (84).

Anderson leads 'Cats to 10th at Wesleyan Invite Wildcat senior golfer J.D. Anderson turned in the best 18 hole round of his career last Friday as the Wayne State men's golf squad finished in 10th place at the Nebraska Wesleyan Invitational. His 69, which was two-under par at Pioneers Golf Course in Lincoln, coupled with his 86 shot on Thursday at the Highlands Golf Course placed him seventh overall in the 94 player field. Anderson's 69 was the low score shot in the field on Friday.

"The tournament was held in brutal weather conditions on Thursday," said WSC Golf Coach Eldon Hutchison. "The Highlands course is wide open with no wind protection. The 7,100 yard course was played into a 25 m.p.h. wind which made the wind chill two degrees above zero, making it an extremely difficult layout. Friday's weather was much more bearable, as the score indicated."

Senior Jon Peterson carded an impressive 80 on Thursday to put him in third place after one round. He finished with a 78 on Friday to finish at 158. Teammate Jeff Yahn finished at 164 (87-77), while Jason Masat carded a 186. The Wildcats shot a 311 on Friday for a two day total of 663. The tournament champion was Indian Hills Community College (Iowa) with a 626.

Anderson just missed tying the school record, currently held by Steve Erwin (1980) and Tom Nelson (1972) at three-under par. Anderson was four-under after 12, but two bogeys marred his nearly perfect round.

"I lipped out a six-footer on number nine and a four-footer for eagles on number 10," said Anderson. "I had several other opportunities for birdies on the back nine, but the putts didn't fall. I went from the worst round of my college career on Thursday to my best ever on Friday."

McGown returns to lead Wayne State track team

Wayne State junior James McGown made a triumphant return to track and field on Monday by notching two wins and one school record. McGown, whose last track race in a Wayne State uniform was March 5, 1995, first cruised to an easy victory in the 1,500-meter run, clocking 4:05.32 to win by two seconds. He followed that up with a solo effort in the 5,000-meter run of 15:30.7 over teammate Mark Beran's second-place showing of 16:23.0. This was McGown's first ever outdoor track 5,000-meter race, and broke Chip Hagerman's school record of 15:33.0 from 1977. McGown now holds records from 800 to 5,000 meters along with the fastest cross country times over 8,000 and 10,000 meters.

On the women's side, team captain Kathy Dalton also notched two wins and two personal bests in a very difficult double. In the 1,500-meter run, Dalton edged out teammate Stefanie Senn at the tape, with both clocking personal bests of 4:52.9. Less than thirty minutes later, Dalton kicked down two runners from Midland and another from Dordt for another win and personal best time of 2:23.62 for 800 meters.

"Kathy and Stef ran outstanding races," said Head Coach Brian Kavanaugh. "Stef made a strong move after 800 meters to pull away from the rest of the pack, but Kathy — relying on her kick — waited until the final lap to move up from fifth place."

On the whole, Kavanaugh was pleased with how his team performed.

"Most of them hadn't run a meet since February 22, so we needed a strong showing here to rekindle the competitive fires," said Kavanaugh. "Now that we've gotten past the first meet jitters, we can concentrate on the rest of the season."

As a team, the women placed fourth with 31 points and the men fifth with 30 points.

Wayne resident to run in 100th Boston Marathon

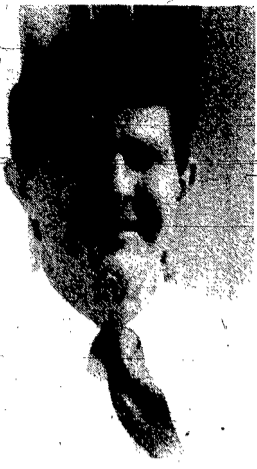

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

When the 100th Boston Marathon is run on Monday, Wayne will be represented at the occasion. Terry Meyer, who works at Heritage Homes, will run his eighth marathon at the centennial edition of the Boston race. Meyer, 47, has run in the Twin Cities Marathon six times and the Houston Marathon once. Unlike most marathons, you must qualify for the Boston Marathon.

"You have to qualify with an age graded time," said Meyer, "and for my age group that was three hours and 25 minutes. I ran at Houston in January of 1995 and that qualified me to run Boston in April 1996. I ran a 3:22 at Houston so that got me under the 3:25 qualifying time."

Meyer, who began running in 1979, said it took him a while before he was willing to run a marathon.

"One of the first races I ran was a two-mile race in Norfolk," said Meyer, "and at that time there was also a 15 kilometer (9.3 miles) race. I remember thinking how can anybody run nine miles without stopping. It took me a while to commit to running a marathon because I didn't want to fail."

Meyer runs about 50 miles per week when he is training for a marathon and explained what was like to run 26 miles.

"When you get past 12 miles it gets hard," said Meyer. "When you get past 15 it's really hard. It's more mental than physical. It really is a mental game because when you get tired enough that you want to quit it's hard to keep going. I've always finished every marathon and I've always done at least as well as I thought I should. I've been lucky enough to not have any major injuries along the way."

Meyer's biggest marathon so far has been about 7,000 runners. There are 37,500 registered runners competing in this year's Boston Marathon (Meyer's qualifying time places him 19,228th) and officials are expecting 10,000-20,000 bandits (unofficial runners).

"I understand that the race is run on some pretty narrow streets," said Meyer, "so it's really going to be congested. The gun is going to go off and I think we're going to just stand there for a long time. It's going to take 30 to 60 minutes to get to the start line. I'd be really thrilled if my time is better than 3:45, but I think I can't count on anything better than that because of the congestion."

Drs. Ray Replogle, Wayne Anderson, Marlene Mueller Pearl-Hansen and Vic Reynolds view a display of the annual Art Faculty Exhibit at Wayne State College.

Faculty artists are exhibiting works at show

Faculty artists at Wayne State College are currently exhibiting their works as part of the annual Art Faculty Exhibition at the Nordstrom Visual Arts Gallery. The show opened March 29, with a reception honoring the artists.

Featured artists include Dr. Wayne Anderson, Dr. Pearl Hansen, Dr. Marlene Mueller, Dr. Ray Replogle and Dr. Vic Reynolds.

The show will continue through April 17. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Annual spring conference to be held at Neihardt Center April 13

"Who Speaks for Black Elk" will be interpreted by literary and religious scholars and first-hand observers at the John G. Neihardt Spring Conference on April 13 in Bancroft, Nebraska. Among the five speakers will be scholars who have studied the written word and relatives who heard the aging Oglala holy man Black Elk relate, for the first time, a vision from his youth to John Neihardt, who later wrote "Black Elk Speaks," the most widely published work of the Nebraska poet Laureate.

the University of Nebraska Lincoln and Dr. John R. Schneider, professor of religion and theology at Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

The conference will begin at 8:30 a.m. with registration and coffee and rolls. Tickets are $10 in advance or $15 at the door. Luncheon reservations, $5, are needed by April 9. Contact the Neihardt Center at (402) 648-3388 or P.O. Box 344, Bancroft, Nebraska 68004.

The 1996 annual spring conference is made possible in part by the Division of Humanities and Wayne State College, the Nebraska Humanities Council, the Nebraska State Historical Society and the John G. Neihardt Foundation and Center.

Student to tour Germany

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Matt Youngmeyer has been chosen to represent Wayne High School on a study tour of Germany this summer. He will leave Sunday, June 16 and return Sunday, July 7.

Youngmeyer's trip will be paid for by the Daimler-Benz Corporation as a result of Wayne High winning the 1996 Daimler-Benz Award of Excellence.

After the school was notified for their selection as one of this year's winner, interested students were asked to submit essays on why they felt they should be selected to go to Germany and how they would represent the school, the state and the country in Germany.

Youngmeyer said his family history and his career plan of becoming an engineer helped generate interest in the trip to Germany.

"Most of my ancestry is German. A lot of my family originated there," Youngmeyer said.

"My grandfather's experiences also got my interest going. He served in Germany in World War II as a combat engineer and helped liberate one of the German concentration camps."

Youngmeyer will begin his trip by travelling to Washington, D.C. where he will visit his congressional representatives and attend briefings on U.S.-German relations at the state department and at the embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany in preparation for his trip.

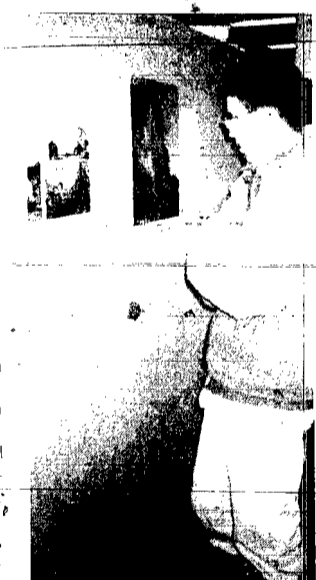

In Germany the group will spend time touring famous German landmarks and institutions, meeting their German counterparts and participating in a German class at the Goeth-Institute.

The group will also spend a week with host families of Daimler-Benz employees, taking part in their family's daily activities.

Youngmeyer feels that this will be a great experience for him personally as well as for the career he plans to pursue in engineering.

"With today's world, I think it is important that we know and understand people around the world," he said.

Matt also plans to speak to area groups to relate his experiences after he returns from Germany this summer.

Ask Karen...

Q. I sometimes notice stains that weren't there when I brought the clothes in. What happened?

A. Some stains are literally invisible until the article is drycleaned. If you know that there was a coffee or some other spill on your clothing, no matter how minor, you need to tell your drycleaner before the article is cleaned.

Ekberg-Wood are wed in Wakefield

Lana Ekberg, daughter of Lyle and Marvne Ekberg of Wakefield, and Jarrod Wood, son of Dan and Susan Thies and Frank and Jean Wood of Wayne were married March 1 at 7 p.m. at Salem Lutheran church Wakefield. Officiating was Pastor Mark Wilms of Wakefield.

The bride graduated from Wakefield High in 1988, Wayne State in 1993 and the University of Nebraska Medical Center in 1995. She wore a white floor length satin gown with a sweep train and scoop neckline. The dress had hand beading at the cuffs and an empire waist. The bride wore her mother's pearl necklace and was given away by her father.

Matron of honor was Jana Kramer, maid of honor was Amanda Ekberg, sisters of the bride. Bridesmaids included Dana Zeiss and Wendi Gabriel, friends of the couple. Personal attendant was Heather Durham, niece of the groom.

The groom graduated from Wayne High in 1989 and Wayne State in 1993. He is currently employed with the Lincoln Correctional Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood

Best man was Troy Wood, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Troy Wood, Chris Lutt, Adam Mrsny and Jason Mrsny, friends of the couple.

A reception at Wakefield Legion followed the ceremony.

The couple will reside in Omaha.

Are looks more important than what's inside?

Q. I'm trying to play down the unjust emphasis on beauty and intelligence among children today. For example, my son has crooked teeth, but I tell him that it isn't important what he looks like--what matters is the person inside. Do you agree with this approach?

A. Not entirely. Parents who oppose the unfortunate stress that society places on beauty and brains, as I do, must resolve a difficult philosophical question with regard to their own children. While they recognize the injustice of this value system, they know their children are forced to compete in a world that worships those attributes.

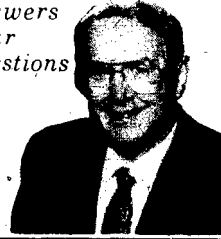

What should parents do? Should they help their youngster become as attractive as possible? Should they encourage their "average" child to excel in school? Or would it be wiser to de-emphasize these values at home, hoping the boy or girl will learn to live with his or her handicaps?

I do not have scientific answers to those questions, but I can offer my considered opinion. Despite the injustice of this system, my children will not be the ones to change it. I am obligated to help them compete in this world as best they can. If their ears protrude, I will have them flattened. If their teeth are crooked, I will see that they are straightened. If they flounder academically, I will seek tutorial assistance to pull them up. We are allies in his fight for survival, and I will not turn a deaf ear to their needs.

Rick Barry, an NBA basketball star now honored in the Hall of Fame, is a handsome, 6'7" specimen of health and confidence. Yet as a child, he was humiliated and self-conscious about his teeth, even causing him to talk with his hand over his mouth. As he described in his book, Confessions of a Basketball Gypsy: "When my second teeth came in, they came in crooked, and two of them were missing in front. Maybe my folks could not afford to have them fixed, or maybe having teeth fixed was not then what it is now. I remember talking to Dad about putting in false teeth in front and wearing braces, but we decided that might cut my gums when I exerted myself playing ball.

"I was very sensitive about my teeth. I was ashamed to look at myself in the mirror. I used to keep my mouth shut, and I'd never smile. I used to keep my hand over my mouth, which muffled my voice and made it hard for people to understand me. I developed this habit of keeping my hand over my mouth, just sort of always resting on my chin, and I couldn't shake it for years afterward, even though I finally had my teeth fixed when I was in college."

This kind of discomfort is incredibly painful to a child. That's why I believe it is a parental obligation, within the limits of financial resources, to eradicate the flaws that generate the greatest sensitivity. Dr. Edward Podolsky, an assistant supervisory psychiatrist at Kings County Hospital in New York City, recommends that physical deformities be corrected before a child enters first grade. After that time, peer pressure becomes a major factor in shaping self-concept.

But we parents must walk a tightrope at this point. While I am helping my children compete in the world, I must also teach them that its values are temporal and unworthy. Explaining the two contradictory sides of that coin requires considerable skill and tact. How can I urge my daughter to fix her hair neatly and then tell her, "Beauty doesn't matter"?

The key is to begin very early to instruct the child on the true values of life: love for all mankind, kindness, integrity, trustworthiness, truthfulness; etc. Physical attractiveness is then described as part of a social game we must play.

Is your marriage a 'Dream Team'?

Becoming a "team" to accomplish much more than people could by yourselves, is the goal of many work-place groups. Can marriage partners also become a "team"? Like work-group teams, marital teams can get extraordinary things done and the individuals can have an intense and personally satisfying relationship. But a lot of so called "teams" are not teams at all. At best, they exist together as two individuals with some common goals and interactions. At worst, they are two egos, each looking out for himself or herself, without considering the best interests of their partner. Here are some signs to look for that you determine in the two of you are really a team:

Lynda Cruickshank
Wayne County Cooperative Extension

1. Consensus. Do the two of you share the same overarching goals and the same sense of commitment to the marriage. Do you agree on your marriage's vision and purpose: why it exists; where it is going and what its core priorities are? Are you committed to the same values of ethical and fair behavior? Do both of you feel a sense of ownership for your marriage and play an egalitarian part in maintaining it?

2. Trust. Do the two of you really and truly trust each other? Do you believe each other when communicating? Can you depend and count on each other? Does the word "honesty" rather than "manipulation", describe your communication and interaction mode? Do you feel confident about each other's capacities and effort in the marriage?
3. Candor. Can the two of you be open and straight with each other about concerns, anxieties, hopes, fears, joys and angers? Can you be forthright with each other about problems you face? Or, do you hold things in, muttering under your breath and throwing verbal darts at each other?

4. Respect. To what extent do you feel and demonstrate that you hold each other in high esteem? Do you really listen to each other's ideas, needs and concerns? Or, do you simply defend and promote your own ideas with only a pretense of paying attention to your partner's thoughts and feelings? Do you both act in a trustworthy manner?

5. Caring. Are you genuinely concerned about the other's personal welfare? Do you give gifts on birthdays and anniversaries and show daily that you truly care? Do you help your partner succeed and grow and share in the excitement of each other's accomplishments? Do you both care about your spiritual, personal, and emotional growth?

6. Collaboration. Do you work together, plan together, and set life goals together? Is your dominant mode one of "win-win" rather than a "win-lose" perspective where you are in a subtle battle with each other for scarce resources and rewards (money, affection, power)? When difficulties arise, is your dominant response that of cooperative problem-solving? Or, is it a "cover my own rear" blaming response?

7. Rewards. Do you recognize your partner's smallest accomplishments and compliment him/her for small, everyday efforts like fixing breakfast or taking out the garbage? Do you daily tell the other person how important he or she is in your life? Do you pursue team pleasures like a regular night-out together and a vacation away? Do you share pain and sorrow together and see it as a team-strengthening opportunity?

8. Interface with community. Do you participate in your church, school workplace, and community life together? While each person needs their own interests and support groups, the teams needs a community focus together as well. Do you care about the well-being of others, your community as well as yourselves? A true marital team is cultivated and pursued by each person, thoughtfully, persistently and sometimes painfully. It's a never-ending job, but the results are worth it.

Ask Karen...

Q. How do I get my comforters washed... they're so big and bulky?

A. If the comforter is washable and you have a machine big enough to do them yourself (18 lbs. or larger) you need to be careful of the common mistake of adding too much detergent which can cake on the comforter. Drying is also particularly tricky. Check the label. The best results can usually be achieved through your neighborhood drycleaners.

Group formed to promote and develop Winside

A number of Winside business men began meeting last January to discuss current and future needs in the village of Winside. "Two main topics of discussion," said spokesman Lynn Lessmann, "were housing and promoting current and future business in Winside. We decided there was a need to organize, therefore, we established the Winside Development Group."

The group has since written and filed with the state articles of incorporation. These articles state "The purpose of this corporation shall be to operate exclusively for public, charitable, benevolent, civic, scientific, and educational purposes by, seeking to assist those persons within the community who are attempting to develop community projects which the corporation deems beneficial to the community because they provide necessary services to the community; promote residential development in the community; provide job opportunities for community residents; tend to increase the economic welfare of the community, for the benefit of the Village of Winside or the Winside area and residents.

"The group currently has about 10 members, however, we would welcome any other persons, whether or not they own or operate a business," said Lessman. "We meet the third Tuesday of each month at noon in Lee and Rosie's Place. Next meeting will be April 16."

The corporation shall operate as a non-profit corporation. At the February meeting the group elected the following to serve as officers and Board of Directors: Lynn Lessmann, president; Richard Behmer, vice president; Fred Weible, treasurer; Marvin Cherry, secretary; and Warren Gallop, member-at-large.

Larsen elected to Co-op

The board of directors recently elected Don Larsen as president of the Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative at the recent annual membership meeting in Columbus.

The Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative presently consists of 23 rural power districts and is engaged in the purchase and sale of electric power and other related activities. The Cooperative presently buys electric power by contract from Nebraska Public Power District and sales exceeded $95 million to its members in 1995.

Larsen also serves as director and treasurer of the Wayne County Public Power District.

Lack of sleep caused by stress, job and family

It's 2 p.m. and this thing needs to be in the mail by 4. This is the third time I've attempted to write it today. It's cold, and cloudy, and I'm in a "blue funk." My co-worker asked if I had a good Easter, and I had to say "no."

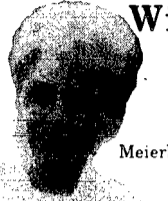

I've had several deaths of patients in March. Which is to be expected, in my line of work. But each one requires emotional energy, and time; and often, loss of sleep. Besides which, I oriented staff in two nursing homes and did a 12-hour volunteer class. We've had weekend guests, and the Big Farmer's been having his cardiac status checked out.

What it all boils down to is fatigue, and stress, which sometimes cause depression. When I'm depressed, I have insomnia, which makes for more fatigue. Get the picture? I need a good cry, but the tears won't come. I'm going to have to rent a sad video.

In an effort to distract myself, I did go to the Easter cantata that Kay sang in Friday night, and it was wonderful. On Saturday, all the kids and grandkids, my sis and family, and my mom, gathered here for dinner. It makes for a large table full of people. But they all went home that evening.

So, I set all the clocks ahead, and went to bed at 10:00 (11:00).

The Farmer's Wife

By Pat Meierhenry

Then the phone rang, and after I talked to a neighbor for 20 minutes, I could not get to sleep. This kind of stuff makes me crazy. As the wife of one of my patients told me once, "I've spent my whole life trying to get to sleep!" Me, too, and I've been in the wrong profession.

However, I've proven to myself many times that I don't die from lack of sleep, so it's back to the grindstone today. I've tried all my tried and true stuff: physical exercise, music, chocolate. I took two melatonin last night. And I've complained to my long-suffering spouse. Now I'm writing about it. If my mood doesn't improve in 24 hours, I may have to take drastic action. Or cut off my head.

Hope your Easter was nice. I think I'm going to take a nap!

Deficiency payments available

Nebraska Director of Agriculture Larry E. Sitzman has been notified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) that U.S. corn and sorghum producers may be eligible for $ 27 million in additional deficiency payments. This provision applies only to producers who used the 0-85/92 provisions of the 1995 Feed Grain and Price Support Acreage Reduction Program.

According to USDA, the Agricultural Act of 1949 requires that deficiency payments be made to producers when their market prices are less than the established target price. There are two circumstances which trigger deficiency payments:

1. When national weighted average market prices, plus 7 cents drop below the target price during the first five months of the marketing year (September, 1995, through January, 1996); and
2. When the projected 12 month average market price is below the target price.

Because the adjusted five-month prices and the projected 12 month average farm prices for corn and sorghum are above the target price established for each crop, no regular deficiency payments are due producers at this time.

However, USDA points out that participants in the 1995 corn and sorghum programs, who used the 0-85/92 provisions, are guaranteed minimum payment rates of 40 cents per bushel for corn and 39 cents per bushel for sorghum. These were the estimated final deficiency payment rates for the two crops when producers enrolled in the program. Seventy-five percent of the guaranteed payment is payable after March 1. The remaining 25 percent is payable after Oct. 1. For producers who used the 0/85 and 0/92 provisions, the March payment will be reduced by the amount of any advance payments received.

Additionally, USDA says producers, who utilized these provisions and who also have planted acreage of corn or grain sorghum on the same farm, will see their 0/85 and 0/92 guaranteed payments reduced by the amount of the total advance payment. Corn producers were advanced about $ 41 million following program sign-up and will now receive about $ 20 million. Sorghum producers were advanced about $ 13 million and will now receive about 4.65 million.

Director Sitzman encourages producers with further questions about the USDA announcement to contact their local Farm Service Agency (FSA) office.

Living with Risk

Inside...

- How much is enough life insurance?
- Lower insurance costs with these tips
- NICA helps seniors sort out insurance information

Are you prepared for life's biggest risks? Even one catastrophe can be devastating

Life is full of risks and surprises—and most people probably wouldn't have it any other way.

Nevertheless, some of life's risks:

untimely death or sudden major illness in the family, a vehicle accident, a lightning strike or tornado, can be financially devastating.

Modern society has developed the concept of insurance to help people deal with major risks.

You pay money in advance for an insurance policy to a central company that holds and invests your money, along with a bunch of other people's. Then when a policy holder experiences a covered event, the company pays up.

The company is betting most people won't make claims on their insurance, and they don't. That's how companies make money.

You're hoping you won't either, but just in case, an insurance policy buys some peace of mind and assurance from financial disaster if something should happen to you or yours.

There are many types of insurance—life, health, long-term care, vehicle, property—each designed to protect against specific risks.

Insurance dates back to the Chinese

Let's face it, Life can be dangerous! And mankind has always sought protection. The caveman barricaded his cave against beasts and the weather and figured out how to control fire.

But as people banded together in groups, risks and losses increased rapidly. Many of them were beyond individual control.

That situation led to the principle we now know as insurance. Forms of insurance were practiced more than 4,000 years ago.

The Chinese are credited with the first use of insurance about 2,300 years ago when merchant shippers of Shanghai had to travel the dangerous Yangtze River. Often, boats would hit a submerged rock and sink, its cargo lost.

To combat this danger, all boats were required to stop at the head of the rapids and wait until 100 boats came along.

Then the cargo of each ship was divided equally among all 100 ships, so the loss of a boat meant the loss of only 1 percent of each shipper's goods, rather than 100 percent.

Insurance is quite different from most products you buy.

It is really a written promise and little else. You don't use it every day like your television or your vehicle. You put it in a safe place and forget about it until you need it, which may be never.

You can buy just about any type of insurance to protect yourself

An insurance policy is a contract between you and an insurance company.

In exchange for a fee (the premium), the insurance company promises to pay if a certain insured event happens.

There are various types of insurance available.

Vehicle insurance protects you when you are involved in an accident. There are various subcategories of vehicle insurance. Liability coverage, for example, is required by state law. Collision is not.

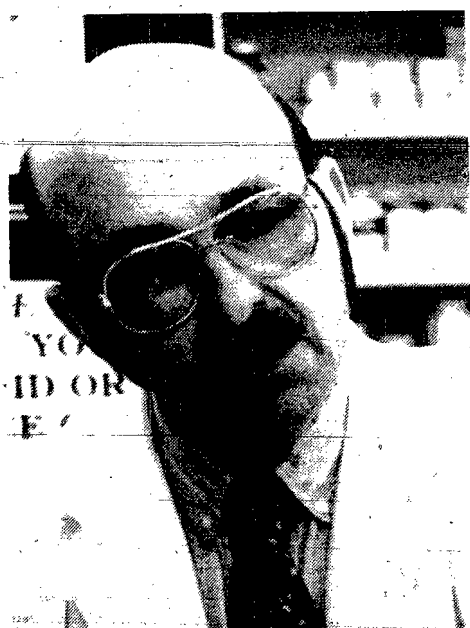

Property insurance protects your dwelling and/or your possessions from covered losses.

Life insurance pays a certain amount to your designated survivors upon your death.

Health insurance helps pay medical bills when you become ill.

Long-term care insurance helps pay for the cost of living in a nursing home.

Other types are also available. Chances are if you need to insure something, a policy is available somewhere. Contact an insurance agent to find out.

Teenage drivers need clear rules and consequences

Teens think "it will never happen to me."

But facts show that accidents DO happen to them, and far more often than they happen to drivers in other age groups, and their accidents are more severe. That's why parents' car insurance premiums skyrocket when teens are added to the policy.

Teens simply haven't developed maturity and experience needed for safe driving. They may express anger, aggressiveness, arrogance and other negative attitudes that are leading causes of accidents.

Moving traffic violations—tickets—are not only expensive, they also increase may insurance premiums, or even cause loss in insurance (not to mention the driver's license.)

Some ground rules can help a new teen driver succeed. The following suggestions were provided by State Farm Insurance and the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

Setting limits is not treating your teen like a child; it's providing an opportunity to demonstrate maturity by showing he or she can accept responsibility.

- Insist your teen not speed. High speeds cut down reaction time and increase crash severity. A crash at 78 m.p.h. is twice as violent as one at 55 m.p.h.

- Set a curfew for your teen. Fifty-eight percent of all teen vehicle deaths occur on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, half on Saturday. Half of these occur between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m.

- Prohibit drinking and driving. Nearly 50 percent of traffic deaths are alcohol-related. Other drugs are equally dangerous.

- Don't let your teen loan his or her vehicle, and new drivers shouldn't transport teenage passengers. More than 40 percent of all deaths of 16- to 19-year-olds result from motor vehicle crashes. Most teen passengers die when another teen is driving.

- To minimize distractions, request that teens keep down the volume of music they play. Don't let them apply makeup or comb hair while driving either. They MUST keep both eyes on the road and both hands on the wheel.

- Insist they use seat belts. Belts reduce accident deaths by 40 to 50 percent and serious injuries by 45 to 55 percent!

- Talk to your teen about your expectations and the consequences if he or she fails to meet them.

- Let them know that driving is a privilege, and failure to live up to safe driving responsibilities will result in loss of that privilege.

You might not need collision coverage

If you have an older vehicle worth less than $2,000, it may not be worth purchasing collision coverage.

You could pay more in premiums than you would ever receive in a claim. The policy must only pay your financial expenses, NOT replace your vehicle.

In the case of an older car, repairs can quickly exceed its value. In that case, an insurer will "total" the car and pay you only what the car was worth, rather than fix it.

However, you probably will still need other types of insurance. Liability coverage, for example, is required by state law.

Various types of vehicle insurance can help you protect yourself, your assets

Do you have enough liability coverage on your auto insurance?

Although Nebraska law requires a certain amount, it may not be enough for you.

How much you need depends on how much you have to lose if a court were to rule against you if you were sued as a result of an auto accident.

Medical Coverage

Medical payments coverage pays medical expenses for you or your passengers due to accidents in your car, or it pays for you if you're injured in another car. Your current medical insurance may determine how much you need.

Collision/Comprehensive Coverage

Collision coverage pays for damage to your car in a collision or a one-car crash, regardless of who is at fault.

Comprehensive coverage pays for other losses to your car, such as theft, damage from fire, storms, vandalism and floods.

Most people simply can't afford to risk having to pay hundreds, or even thousands of dollars out of their own pockets to replace or repair their car, especially the costly newer cars. Lending institutions usually require these coverages to protect their loans.

CHIP helps those who are uninsurable obtain insurance

Being rejected for health coverage can be a devastating experience.

To help those who can't obtain health insurance, the Nebraska Legislature created the Comprehensive Health Insurance Pool.

CHIP is a non-profit program the provides health care coverage to those who cannot otherwise obtain it at an affordable price or without health restrictions.

All insurers who carry health care coverage are members.

Premiums cost 135% of average standard health insurance rates.

To be eligible you must:

- Be a Nebraska resident for at least six months, AND

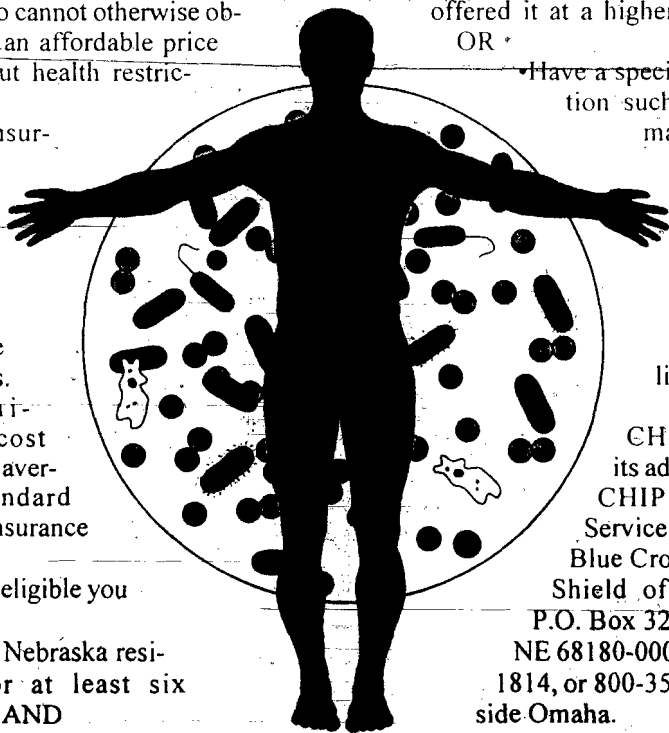

- Have been rejected for health insurance coverage for medical reasons within the last six months from a Nebraska insurer, OR

- Have a restrictive rider on health insurance coverage, OR

- Have been refused comparable health insurance coverage, or been offered it at a higher premium, OR

- Have a specified condition such as AIDS, malignant tumor, open heart surgery or dozens of others on the list.

Contact CHIP through its administrator, CHIP Customer Service Center, c/o Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska, P.O. Box 3248, Omaha, NE 68180-0001, 402-390-1814, or 800-356-3485 outside Omaha.

You CAN lower insurance costs; Take advantage of these discounts

Many companies offer discounts that can substantially lower the cost of vehicle and home insurance.

Vehicle Insurance

Probably most importantly, a good driving record will earn you the best price for auto insurance. Drivers who have accidents or serious traffic violations almost always pay more than those with clean records.

Insurance cost is also based on how much you drive and where. Joining a car pool or using public transportation can reduce the number of miles you're out on the road and place you in a lower rate category.

Home Insurance

A homeowners policy comes as a package, meaning you automatically receive various types of coverage.

A homeowners policy covers the house itself, personal property in the house, additional living expenses if you're forced to live elsewhere for awhile, personal liability if you're legally responsible for another person's injury, or damage to their property, and medical expenses for guests who are injured on your property.

The size of your home, type of construction and its location also affect insurance costs.

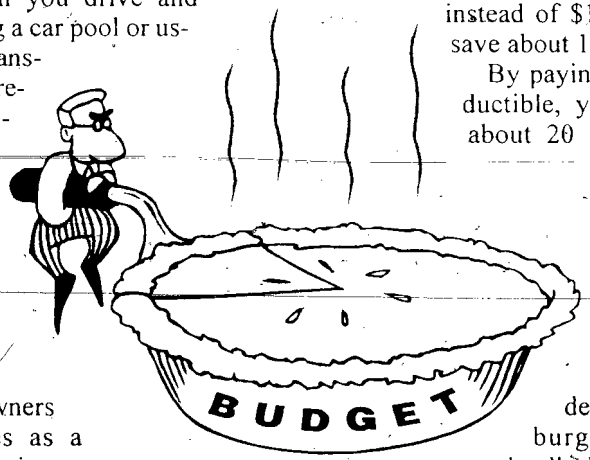

Reduce costs by assuming a higher deductible. If you are willing to pay the first $250 of a claim instead of $100, you can save about 10 percent.

By paying a $500 deductible, you can save about 20 percent; and $1,000, about 35 percent, depending on the company.

Discounts for security devices such as burglar alarms, deadbolt locks and fire extinguishers can earn you a discount of from 2 to 15 percent.

Sometimes a newer home receives a discount for insurance.

Should you buy insurance for cancer or other diseases?

Cancer insurance pays off only if you get cancer. Examples of other specified-disease policies might be for heart attacks or strokes.

According to information provided by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, cancer treatment accounts for only about 10 percent of U.S. health expenses.

No single disease accounts for more than a small percentage. This is why you should have insurance coverage for all conditions, not just cancer.

- Some questions to ask if you are considering cancer insurance:
- Is my current coverage adequate?
- How likely am I to contract the disease?
- How much will treatment cost if I do get cancer?

The odds are against you receiving any benefits from a cancer or other specific-disease policy. But if you decide you have compelling reasons to purchase one, be sure you know exactly what conditions must be met before the policy pays.

Some policies have tight restrictions on when and how much is paid. Check it out.

Women: You may need life insurance, too

Regardless of whether you work outside the home or are a homemaker, you need to consider what your family would do if you should die.

Many women still do not recognize the value of their contributions in terms of dollars to their families.

Women buy only half as much life coverage as men, yet earn about 75 percent of what men make.

If you're employed, how many of your regular bills are paid with your contributions? What financial problems would your family face without your income?

If you stay at home, how much would it cost your family to buy the services you now provide: housekeeping, laundry, cook, purchasing agent, chauffeur, gardener...

One source puts the figure at $75,000 a year!

Renters need to protect belongings with insurance

Many renters mistakenly believe their landlord's property insurance covers their personal possessions and their own liability.

Many others believe their personal belongings simply aren't worth enough to insure, but take a minute to add it up.

Just how much would it cost you to replace all the clothes in your closet, your sound equipment, videos, CDs, furniture, TV, jewelry, linens? It could easily add up to thousands of dollars.

Most companies sell a policy that will cover personal property and provide liability protection for bodily injury and property damage if a renter causes damages.

The major difference between renter's and owner's policies is that the former doesn't cover damage to your dwelling because you don't own it.

To determine how much you need, you could inventory your possessions and their costs, or ask an agent to use a formula to help you estimate total value.

You'll then need to choose between actual cash value or replacement cost coverage. Actual cash value usually means current replacement cost, minus depreciation.

For example, if your sofa is 5 years old, has a useful life of 10 years and would cost $1,000 to replace, you would receive about $500 (minus your deductible).

Replacement coverage would pay you the full $1,000 (after deductible).

Of course, replacement coverage costs more.

What kind of life insurance is best?

Life insurance protects your survivors or business in the event of your death. It can be an important part of planning for the future.

However, life insurance can be confusing, too.

There are various types of insurance.

Term life covers you for a specific term, such as 1, 5, or 10 years. It is often renewable after the initial term.

Term is relatively inexpensive compared with other types. It may be the only way many families can afford to buy enough coverage. Premiums increase as you age.

Consumer Reports has recommended buying term insurance for decades.

Whole life insurance combines a death benefit with an investment account. It is initially more expensive, but premiums usually remain the same.

For a comprehensive guide on purchasing life insurance, check your library for back issues of Consumer Reports.

HEY FOOL!

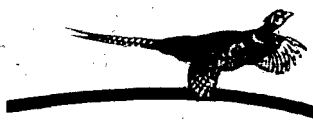

Drugs aren't cool.

And if you think they are then you're just fooling yourself. They'll destroy your mind, ruin your health and drain your bankroll... and that's only if you're one of the lucky ones. The not-so-lucky drug users don't live to tell about it. It doesn't take a college education to get smart about staying away from drugs. So wise up and put your foot down. Drugs are bad news, and anyone with a head on their shoulders can figure it out. Don't let drugs play you for a fool.

Long-term care insurance—Do you need it?

Many people worry about possible financial devastation to their families should they ever require nursing home care for a long time.

Long-term care is the kind of help you need when you can't care for yourself because of a prolonged illness or disability.

Because long-term care can be expensive (more than $30,000 a year), insurance policies are available to pay some of the cost.

Will you need long-term care? Studies have shown that 43 percent of those who turned age 65 in 1990 will enter a nursing home at some time.

Among those who live to age 65, about one in three will spend three months or more in a nursing home.

One in four will spend a year or more, and about one in five will spend five years or more.

Taking another view: two out of three people who turned 65 in 1990 will never go to a nursing home or will spend less than 3 months in one.

More women than men need nursing home care: 13 percent compared with 4 percent will spend 5-plus years in a home.

If you have few assets, you probably should not purchase a policy.

However, if you have significant assets you want to pass on to heirs and can afford the premiums, it might make sense.

As with any policy, make certain you know exactly what is and isn't covered, in what types of care facilities and for how long.

Compare several companies' policies. Contact nursing homes in your area to find out their daily cost.

State NICA program helps seniors sort complex insurance information

Because Medicare, Medicaid and other types of health insurance can be confusing, the State of Nebraska has developed a program to educate older Nebraskans about their health insurance.

The Nebraska Health Insurance Information, Counseling and Assistance Program will give presentations at senior centers and other organizations in addition to giving one-on-one help.

NICA volunteers have accurate, objective information that will help you understand your options so you can make the best choices.

All NICA help is absolutely free, unbiased and confidential. It does not sell anything.

This program is coordinated and directed by the Nebraska Department of Insurance and assisted by the Nebraska Department on Aging.

To reach the NICA program, call the number in a town nearest you and ask to speak with the NICA volunteer.

How much life insurance?

There are various formulas used to determine life insurance needs, but beware of one-size-fits-all guidelines.

You need to do some figuring to calculate how much life insurance your family would need in the event of your death.

•What are your financial responsibilities to others? These may change over time, for example, as children grow up and become self-supporting.

•What other financial resources do you have? Would your children or spouse receive social security? Do you have a pension or other investment income?

•What will your family's financial needs be? Don't forget funeral expenses, probate fees, estate taxes, outstanding debts, child-care, education expenses for a surviving spouse who may need to return to work.

•Don't forget to account for inflation. What seems like an ample amount of insurance today could be a drop in the bucket 15 years from now.

Some experts recommend five times your annual income. If your family invested that amount (minus death expenses) conservatively, could they live comfortably on the income?

You've GOT to have this type of insurance—It's the law!

Automobile liability insurance is the only type of insurance required by Nebraska law. However, your bank may require additional coverage if you are financing your vehicle.

When you register your vehicle, you must provide proof of insurance.

Liability coverage protects you against damage you do to others if you are at fault in an accident. However, it doesn't protect you against your own loss.

Other types of insurance available with your vehicle insurance policy are:

•Collision—It pays for damage to your vehicle.

•Comprehensive—pays for other types of damage, such as falling objects, fire, a rock breaking a windshield, etc.

•Underinsured/Uninsured Motorist Coverage—protects you against an uninsured or underinsured driver, including hit-and-run drivers. It does not pay to repair your vehicle.

•Medical payments—pays medical expenses for you and residents of your household when involved in an automobile accident.

State insurance department aids consumers

If you have concerns about an insurance matter, the Nebraska Department of Insurance can help.

The department:

- Investigates fraud
- Investigates consumer complaints
- Educates and informs consumers about insurance issues
- Licenses agents, agencies and companies
- Reviews and approves rates
- Ensures compliance with Nebraska laws

You can reach the department in Lincoln at 402-471-2201.

Shopping tips: Get more for your insurance dollars

To find the best deals in any insurance you plan to buy, shop around.

The Nebraska Department of Insurance recommends talking to several representatives or agents from a number of different companies.

Comparison shopping takes time, but it is the only way you can make certain you are not paying too much.

Insurers sell policies in various ways, according to Consumer Reports magazine. Some use direct agents who work for the company exclusively. Others sell through independent agents. A few sell through the mail.

The magazine found little relationship between how the insurance is sold and the satisfaction of the customer.

Obtain three estimates

To compare costs, Consumer Reports says to compare estimates from at least three companies, avoiding getting those quotes from the same agent.

Some companies are owned by their policyholders. They may charge higher rates, but return some of that money in dividends in a profitable year.

By raising your deductible, you may be able to reduce the cost of your premium by more than 25 percent.

Discounts are often available if you meet certain qualifications: multiple-policy discounts, smoke-detector/burglar-alarm discounts, fire-resistant house discounts, nonsmoker discounts, mature-homeowner discounts and long-time customer discounts.

Your most valuable possession often goes uninsured

Quick! What is your most valuable possession? Your home? Car? Children?

You might not have even thought about your health.

Yet, without it, you can't enjoy the good things in life.

Skyrocketing medical costs have made health insurance something you can't afford to be without.

There are two basic types of health insurance policies: group insurance and individual policies.

Group Insurance

Group insurance works like vehicle or home insurance.

You pay your bills during the year up to a certain amount (the deductible), then your coverage kicks in.

Usually, you pay a certain percentage of your medical bills, up to a certain amount. Then the insurance company pays the rest.

Once beyond a ceiling amount, insurance pays 100 percent of eligible expenses.

A health maintenance organization usually sets an amount you have to pay.

There are often limits on an insurance coverage that can be filled with individual health insurance policies.

Individual Policies

Individual policies are also purchased by people who don't have a group policy, or who need additional coverage.

Some types of individual policies are hospital-income policies that provide income for each day you are in the hospital; and disability income policies, providing income if you are disabled or can't work for a long period of time.

Comprehensive medical works like group insurance.

Hospital-surgical policies help pay for treatment in a hospital.

A catastrophic medical expense rider, or major medical provision, can be added to the hospital policy. This limits your out-of-pocket expenses to a set amount.

If you were seriously injured and required medical treatment for the rest of your life, major medical protection would help pay those long-term, life-long medical bills.

Do you need any of these other coverages? Check out exactly what your current policy pays to see.

The worst time to find out you have a gap in coverage is when you have to file a claim. Then it's too late.
