

Business award for Tompkins

Rodney R. Tompkins, president of Heritage Homes and Heritage Industries in Wayne, has been named the 1996 Nebraska Small Business Person of the Year by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA).

Tompkins is among 53 top small business persons—one from each state, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico/Virgin Islands and Guam—who will be honored by the SBA at national ceremonies in Washington, D.C. June 2-8. As the winner of the Nebraska award, Tompkins will be competing for the honor of the National Small Business Person of the Year.

Heritage Homes and Heritage Industries employ 145 people with sales exceeding $12 million. Heritage initially manufactured custom modular homes only, but now has expanded to produce custom modular branch banks, schools, clinics, convenience stores, townhomes, office buildings as well as automatic teller machine (ATM) kiosks and enclosures.

District Director Glenn Davis said, "Tompkins exemplifies respected excellence in entrepreneurship worth of emulation. To be chose from among millions as one of only 53 outstanding small businesses nationwide, epitomizes what a superb entrepreneur Rodney Tompkins truly is."

Heritage Industries began marketing and producing ATM enclosure buildings in 1988, and is now one of the nation's largest manufacturers, operating out of a newly renovated 55,000 square foot factory in Wayne. In addition to marketing nationally through bank equipment dealers, the company has exported ATM enclosures to New Zealand, Hong Kong and Canada.

Heritage Homes markets homes through builders in a five state region. The modular construction complies with the Uniform Building Code and local municipal codes allowing for continued sales expansion.

In 1978 Tompkins and his family moved to Wayne from South Sioux City. With the help of two SBA loans, he and his business associates, Darrell Miller, Terry Meyer and Steve Guill, broke ground for the 47,000 square foot factory modular home was completed in May of 1978.

Tompkins managed Heritage through the economic hardships of the housing industry which idled many similar companies. Because of his leadership, vision and hard work, Heritage responded rapidly to changing market demands, creating new products for new markets.

Jon Fritz and Carla Kemp (back) talk with friends and enjoy the beautiful weather at a track meet. Temperatures in the area reached the 80's this week before plummeting more than 40 degrees in a day's time, causing Michael Denklauf to get in a little extra work shoveling snow.

Shared space goal for building

The following is the second in a series of articles designed to inform voters of the the proposed bond issue to construct a new middle school and remodel the existing high school. This week's article deals with the second floor of proposed construction.

The issue will be put before the voters on May 14.

The "shared space concept" plan for the new middle school would result not only in a more efficient use of middle school and high school facilities, but also in an overall cost savings of $2 million, said Eddie Eilers, media relations chairman for the Building Better Schools Committee.

"If renovation work were completed on the high school with the additional four rooms added and a separate, stand-alone middle school constructed, the need would require 105,000 square feet of space, just based on courses offered," Eilers said. "Using the shared-space concept, the total new space required would be just 81,900 square feet with 500 square feet of remodeled space. At $83 per square foot of estimated construction cost, the resulting savings would be over $2 million."

Dr. Donald Zeiss, Wayne High School principal, and Dr. Dennis Jensen, Wayne Public Schools superintendent, have outlined the needs of the existing facilities and the benefits of the proposed construction plan.

"Students are being transferred between the Middle School and the High School, three blocks away, on a daily basis. This results in a loss of precious learning/teaching time and teachers having to travel between the two buildings," Eilers said.

"The resulting inflexibility of scheduling limits what courses and electives the school can offer," Eilers said. "It also raises the safety/risk factor for students and teachers walking back and forth. With the buildings connected, the district would also realize some savings in transportation and in the lunch program."

Other needs at the high school include office space, and music and physical education areas.

"More than 300 students participate in the instrumental music program, but the program is faced with insufficient facilities," Eilers said. "There is no choral room for the high school students, and no strings performance area."

Concerns at the high school include:

*Insufficient space for locker rooms for physical education classes or extracurricular activities.

*The library is becoming too small for the volumes contained, and cannot accommodate the addition of computers and technology equipment.

*There is no enclosed study hall area.

*Accessibility concerns in the industrial technology area, band room, bathrooms and gym.

*Additional practice facilities needed for junior high volleyball and basketball programs and senior high wrestling program.

Middle School Concerns

"As concluded by the two facility committees, the Middle School is no longer appropriately serving our community as it should," Eilers said. "It is more of a hindrance to the learning process than a help."

The Middle School gym cannot be used for competitive sports; it is too small and has no seating area.

The Middle School heating system is grossly inadequate and outdated; estimates of more than $1 million have been discussed to bring the system up to date.

Renovation of the existing Middle School would cost as much as 90 percent of a new facility.

The Middle School library is too small to contain the volumes nec-

Commissioners hear about plans on courthouse elevator

An elevator could be placed in the area just south of the present east entrance to the Wayne County Courthouse according to plans presented at Tuesday's board of commissioners meeting.

Jerry Berggren of Berggren & Woll Architects presented three proposals for placing an elevator in the courthouse. He recommended the county place a four-stop, two door elevator in the area south of the east entrance to the building.

Berggren's cost estimate for the project ranged from $165,790 to $193,890 depending on what other expenses were required after the project was started.

Commissioners discussed with Berggren what would need to be done to install an elevator, the use of existing space and other concerns including installing a new vault in the courthouse for records.

In other business the council approved a contract with Boys and Girls Home of Nebraska in Sioux City to house juveniles. The contract gives the county the option of sending juveniles to the Home at a cost of $100 per day.

The county also heard of a claim by Cory Brader seeking damages for a Jan. 19, 1996 accident which occurred on a county road southwest of Wayne. Brader is seeking damages for medical expenses and general damages. The county's insurance company is investigating the incident.

Bids from three firms were opened for a track-type excavator but the commissioners took no action on the bids.

Commissioners also received information from Jones Intercable in regard to putting cable into the Mub's Acres area of Wayne county. The board will discuss a possible franchise agreement at its May 7 meeting.

essary for Rule 10 is ill-suited for the current needs of the children.

There are massive wiring and safety code problems with the Middle School.

The walls in the 1941 addition leak to the point of not being able to hold paint on the inside walls.

The Middle School has accessibility problems for all age groups and types of people.

The seventh and eighth grade floor of the new facility will feature:

A kitchen for the district, with all food prepared in the new facility and a dining area for the middle school and high school students. Food will be transported to the Elementary School, resulting in an additional savings in labor and equipment usage.

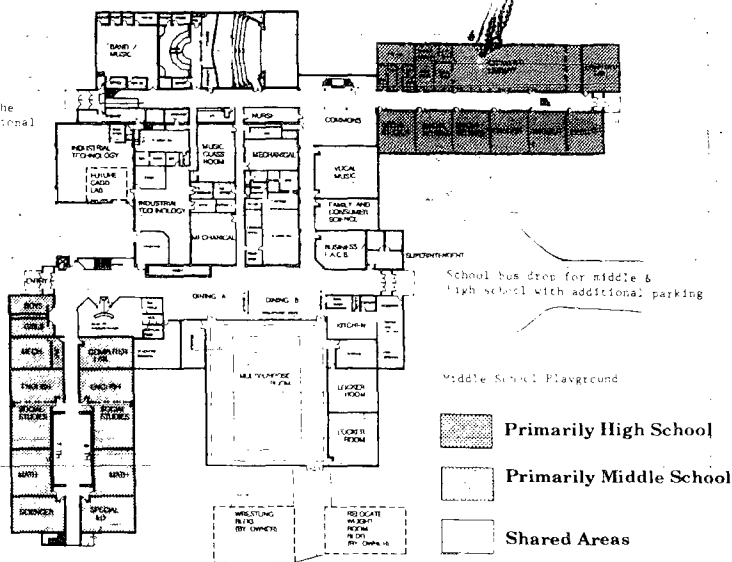

A multipurpose room and two locker rooms to provide for physical education, sporting events, music programs, school assemblies and community events.

New office space will provide for the principal, the secretary, teacher work area, special education director and storage.

There will be an elevator between the seventh- and eighth grade floor and the fifth- and sixth-grade classrooms.

The High School library will be expanded by 900 square feet, and a new computer lab will be adjoined to the library. An additional English room will be another 900 square feet.

Current parking west of the school will have an additional outlet to Highway 35.

The wrestling room and the relocated weight room will be connected to the south door of the multipurpose room as a separate project and is not a part of the bond issue.

The bus drop-off and additional parking will relieve much of the congestion from the west parking lot, which is used by the high school students.

The road that now runs south of the high school is where the new dining rooms and kitchen will be located.

Musician to be featured at Sunday Series program

Professional recording artist and folk musician Susan Lewis Wright will be the guest lecturer and musician on Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Ley Theatre on Wayne State College Campus.

Ms. Wright plans to speak from her own experience on the impact of poet/musicians on societal issues such as civil rights and equality. Her lecture will be illustrated with examples from her recorded repertoire of folk songs.

A native of Wayne, Wright is a classically trained musician who has performed internationally. She resides in Denver, but tours nationally giving concerts and lectures.

Last year she was praised by President Bill Clinton for her performance at the "Calling All Colors" Children's Race Unity Conference in Denver.

Following her Sunday Series presentation there will be a reception in Ley Theatre to provide an opportunity for those attending to visit with the artist and ask questions. The event is free and open to the public.

Major funding for the WSC Sunday Series programs is provided by the Nebraska Humanities Council, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Barking dogs and neighbors....

Wayne has many pleasant neighborhoods, many of them are also populated by a variety of canines. Some dogs are quiet while others need schooling in "barkology". Families have enjoyed poeochdom for thousands of years. And the human ear drum has also been pumfceled simultaneously. The question of how do good neighbors keep from offending each other due to barking mutts is an old one, and may have no long term solution. Springtime is here; a time when we all enjoy evenings with open doors and spending time outside. But the one thing, other than biting insects, that can disturb an otherwise peaceful evening on the deck, are the barking dogs. Our block has great neighbors, and five of the families own a total of eight pooches varying in size and disposition. There are no signs of neglect; each appearing to be well fed accompanied by loving care. But! Yes, but! But let a playful squirrel do its rrapee act on a high line wire, and the doggie chorus begins. Then when the gas company rep comes along, they bark another chorus. Garbage trucks seem to excite the canines into a frenzy. Postal people can testify that on their routes they must be two people: one a mail carrier, and the other a pooch master. The bow-wow kings insist on letting the neighborhood know something is moving. With too much puppy power, it may be the neighbors, moving to a new address. Barking dogs usually are annoying someone, including workers who hold night-time employment, and sleep days. When you have company come to your front door and all the neighborhood mutts of intimidating vocal chords exercise their noise makers, one can at times think of bringing in an armed militia. So folks, there is nothing like owning a pooch, especially the one or two that you have, but do you know the ruckus they make whether or not you're home? Some neighbors have threatened to tape record your barking dog and then play the recording back to you, via a loud-speaker, about the time you're sound asleep. We all love our dogs, and we hopefully all want to be good neighbors, so let's monitor our relationships with both our dogs and neighbors this summer. Or as Rodney King would say, "Can't we all just get along?"

'What have senators done for us?'

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — We spend hours in Lincoln covering tedious debates over minor points in state laws and proposed bills. By and large, most folks back home could care less about such trivial pursuits, like whether some businessmen get to form a "limited liability partnership" or if interior designers must register with the state or not. The standard in judging the work of the State Legislature has always been: "So what have they done for me?" The answer this year is quite a bit. From allowing us to roar faster down state highways to making an effort to cut local property taxes, the 1996 session was one of the more productive in several years. No end-of-the-session meltdown, no angry words over filibusters — just workmanlike passage of several measures that could have significant impact on the taxes we pay and other aspects of our lives.

If you believe what the bureaucrats say, obtaining state health and welfare services will be easier, state school lands will be sold off and the water law will be fairer as a result of action by the Gang of 49 (senators) in 1996.

The first thing you're going to notice is that on June 1, we'll all be able to drive faster on the interstate.

From the Wyoming border east to the Douglas County line near Omaha, we can cruise at 75 mph on I-80. That's 10 mph faster than the current speed-limit (but only a couple of miles quicker than what surveys show motorists are already driving).

By mid-July, the speed limit on two-lane highways will be backed up to 60 mph (and up to 65 mph on roads deemed to be safe enough by the State Department of Roads. There will surely be plenty of politicking on that).

On those four-lane expressways that are starting to be built from Beatrice, Columbus, Norfolk, and our other mid-sized cities, the speed limit will be 65 mph.

In my mind, the higher speed limits prove that Nebraska is still "Where the West Begins" and drivers drive as fast as they want.

We're still ticked off by high property taxes, at least enough senators felt so, judging by the passage of a package of bills to relieve those local taxes.

The impact will take two to three years to notice, and that's only if local school boards, town councils and county commissions take to heart the Legislature's message that it's time to downsize, consolidate and live with less.

Under the property-tax package, local governments can decide not to cut their spending if they receive voter approval to exceed the lids and caps approved by the Legislature.

Get ready for a public relations campaign by educators and local bureaucrats about the harm to kids and classrooms caused by the spending limits imposed by senators.

The howling will grow with each successive legislative session. Senators will be lobbied to relax the lids or raise state aid to make up the difference. It will get ugly.

Of course, it could get much more ugly if voters approve any of the petition proposals on property taxes attempting to qualify for the November ballot.

But that won't be known until July. Right now, with legislators about done with the 1996 session, all we know is that plenty got done in the Unicameral this year.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Ruminating... reflecting... and reasoning...

Recall with me the financial reports filed with the Federal Election Commission in early 1995 placed the total cost of the Nebraska Senate race between Democrat, Bob Kerrey and Republican candidate Jan Stoney at $6,220,516. Records show Kerrey raised and spent about $4.4 million while Mrs. Stoney spent about $1.8 million. But that isn't the record. The 1994 total spent by both candidates for the Nebraska Senate race was $650,000 less than the total spending - nearly $6.9 million - between Kerrey and then Sen. David Karnes in the 1988 contest. The Kerrey-Karnes race holds the distinction of being the most expensive political race in state history.

Just think about it. Would you give a nickel for your job? I thought you said you wouldn't! Maybe the problem with elections is that we have more of a problem with qualified bank accounts than with qualified candidates. Remember, we have the best government money can buy.

News types are always reporting how companies are "downsizing". When companies grow, why don't we call it "upsizing"? Then I look at my own waist, following a big meal, and think of "oversizing".

Bob Dole and President Clinton are verbalizing a lot with their every photo op saying "Vote for me". Didn't some sage a long time ago say "empty wagons make the most noise"?

Information is, of course, the new wealth. If that is the case, are you rich or poor? Providing I can cash in on some of that money Uncle Sam seems all too anxious to take away from us and give away on silly causes. I may start my own "informatorium". Suppose that would sell? Anyone needing help with their taxes, I could inform them, but of course if they were cheating then I'd have to inform on them. Informants aren't the most popular people, and some end up in concrete at the bottom of the lake. Maybe running an "informatorium" wouldn't be the best after all.

Now that you have had a near nervous breakdown getting your income taxes figured and mailed, don't you think Steve Forbes's idea of a flat tax would at least eliminate a lot of the stuff that isn't necessary...like cheating?

Gasoline! Like changing to DST each spring, gas prices also always spring forward, and fall back in the fall. Could someone be pulling our financial leg?

With the new speed limits, government has caught up with how fast most motorists drive anyhow.

Students are decorating grocery bags for Earth Day

In commemoration of Earth Day '96, students at the Wayne Middle School are decorating grocery bags from Quality Food Center and Pac'n Save of Wayne.

The grocers have donated more than 300 grocery bags to be decorated by the students. On April 22 (Earth Day) the bags will be distributed to customers.

"The students hope that the recipients of these bags will take note of their creations and will seriously consider how everyone can be a friend to the earth," said Ellen Imdieke, a science teacher at the Middle School.

Also in honor of Earth Day, fifth graders and their parents have purchased two acres of the Mbaracayu Forest Nature Reserve. These acres are part of one of the last remaining tracts of dense, subtropical forest in South America.

This contribution to the rain forests will help save the home of a variety of endangered plants and animals. It is estimated that 75 percent of the earth's oxygen and 70 percent of the 3,000 plants used for cancer research come from the rainforests.

Presidential veto

Dear Editor:
President Bill Clinton's veto of the partial-birth abortion bill must go down as one of the most disgraceful and darkest moments in American history.

This abortion procedure has been described by leading American physicians as 'horrific' for it is used solely on babies who have almost reached full-term. The baby is literally brought to birth except for the head which is punctured and the brains are suctioned from the head while the baby is still alive. The child feels the complete pain of the operation.

Clinton vetoed a bill by both houses of Congress which would have curbed the use of this procedure. The question is why?

Further, to add insult to his act, he chose the holiest time of the year for Christians and Jews - Easter and Passover - to veto this bill.

There is absolutely no justification for his veto: it is a purely political act in an election year. There is no explanation.

The child in the womb is the most helpless and vulnerable person in American society. A baby should be able to look to the political leaders for protection. But it has not been so since 1973. This act of Mr. Clinton's is the latest attack on the unborn children in our country.

What should we do about it?
Allen O'Donnell

Recognition week

Dear Editor:
During the week of April 21-27, our nation will be celebrating "Volunteer Recognition Week". This week provides an opportunity for us to say thank you to all of the volunteers of our community, state and nation.

On behalf of the Nebraska Women of Today, I would personally like to thank all of the volunteers of your community. No matter what organization each person is a volunteer for, our communities would not survive without each willing volunteer. Our communities are a much better place because of such giving people.

Once again, thank you to all of the volunteers. I hope that your community continues to have much success.

VIPS group

Dear Editor:
Representatives of most of Nebraska's 38 local VIPS (Visually Impaired Peer Support) groups met at Grand Island March 19-20 for leadership training and information on current funding legislation.

These groups meet six to 12 times a year to give those with sight problems fellowship with others like them. (Often, newly impaired people isolate themselves, partly because they fail to recognize friends' faces and don't speak to them, and the friends feel snubbed because they are not aware of the eye problem).

Tips on non-visual ways of doing tasks are exchanged and they are helped to "accept and adjust." Depression can be lifted by seeing how others have learned to lead a good and useful life. Counsellors from State Services for Visually Impaired attend six meetings a year and provide speakers and other resources. They also offer training and connection with agencies like Talking Books who offer help.

Counsellors like John Schmitt and Glenn Ervin of the Norfolk office, also come into the home and make small changes which make tasks simpler and they may come in weekly over a period of about a year to give Braille or cane-travel lessons or other help.

The counsellors invite the one who is losing sight to small group training events at the Norfolk office or the Center in Lincoln where one wears "sleep shades" and learns to perform ordinary tasks such as cooking, sewing, and eating by using senses other than sight. (One doesn't see as conspicuous with lettuce hanging out of both sides of the mouth when they haven't cut it fine enough, when Mary says she has carrots on her nose. Harlan can't find the cottage cheese on his plate and Betty says she dribbled down her front. Laughing about it helps.)

Longer sessions at the Center are available for those who need support themselves, or who want to

Public hearings set for zoning in Wayne communities

Winside residents are invited to attend a public hearing in the Village Auditorium on Tuesday, April 23 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the proposed zoning regulations and subdivision regulations for the villages of Winside, Carroll and Hoskins.

"These new regulations are in addition to those already in effect," said Lynne Wacker, one of Winside's Joint Commission members. "Each of the three communities will be holding their own public hearings."

The public hearing in Hoskins will be held Tuesday, April 30 at 6:30 p.m. at the Hoskins Fire Hall. The date for the Carroll public hearing has not been set at this time.

The purpose of the zoning regulations 1995 states: "In pursuance of the authority conferred by Chapter 19, Article 9, Section 19-901 of the Nebraska Statutes as amended, this ordinance is enacted for the purpose of promoting the health, safety, convenience, order, prosperity and welfare of the present and future inhabitants in the villages of Carroll, Hoskins and Winside by regulating and restricting the height, number of stories and size of buildings and other structures, the size of yards, courts and other open spaces, and the location and use of buildings, structures and land for trade, industry, residence or other purposes in accordance with the Wayne County and villages of Carroll, Hoskins and Winside Comprehensive Plan and the zoning maps adopted herewith."

The purpose of the subdivision regulations state: "The purpose of these regulations is to provide for the orderly development of the villages of Carroll, Hoskins and Winside and their environs, to proscribe standards for the laying out of subdivisions in harmony with subdivisions within subdivisions with other existing or planned streets and utilities; for coordination of subdivisions with other features of the comprehensive plan to provide for adequate open space for traffic, recreation, light and air and for the distribution of population and traffic in such a manner so as to create conditions favorable to health, safety, convenience or prosperity, all in accordance with applicable state statutes."

The provisions of these regulations shall apply within the planning jurisdiction of the villages, as established on the three maps "The Official Zoning Maps of the Villages of Carroll, Hoskins and Winside, Nebraska." The jurisdiction includes the zoning areas within the corporate limits and up to one mile of the villages.

"Our committee will remain in existence even after the ordinance has been approved. If someone wants a variance from the plan, we will review their request and make a recommendation to the Village Board for or against it. The Board, however, will make the final decision on their request," Mrs. Wacker said.

In addition to Mrs. Wacker, others on the Winside Joint Planning Commission are Russett Prince and Marvin Cherry. Each will serve on the commission for three years.

Among those on the Carroll Planning Commission are Doug Koester and Merlin Jenkins.

"We are holding these public hearings to make sure the people are aware of the changes before they are adopted," said Mrs. Wacker. "We encourage everyone interested to attend."

take longer training for their own use—in wood working, talking computer or whatever. There is no cost. The staff are gentle but firm and become friends.

The type of leadership stressed at the conference was shared leadership, with each member taking part. Positions should be changed periodically, as in a flight of geese, where one leader tires and drops back to have the wind partially broken by another. Another comment was "If it's a good job, pass it on. If it's a bad job, share it." Leadership techniques were discussed.

Rehabilitation funding is being re-evaluated and politically, may want to put a larger part of the emphasis on vocational training. Dr. Pearl Van Zandt, Assistant Director of Rehabilitation Services for the Visually Impaired, reminded the group that "One in four older adults has significant vision loss" and that enabling them to live independently has economic value as well as emotional stability.

Some VIPS groups are starting fund-raising projects, but many members are on limited incomes and energy. Currently, VIPS funding is 80 percent federal and 20 percent state.

The state VIPS convention at Camp Calvin Crest at Fremont will be held April 23-25 for all the membership and drivers. There will be speakers and workshops conducted by staff members. A progressive auction of items donated by merchants across the state will be held to raise funds for research on macular degeneration and retinitis pigmentosa (RP), two eye conditions formerly thought to be untreatable.

Congratulations

Dear Editor,
 Congratulations to Great Dane!! After looking at the plastic and papers, etc. scattered across the fields and in the neighbor's trees for too long; PRESTO, its all cleaned up. It's beautiful.

I'm sure area farmers appreciate the clean up too, fewer field stops to dislodge plastic from cultivator shovels, etc.

The rest of us appreciate the aesthetic contribution to the area. Great Dane maintains a very neat and attractive surrounding with their grass and evergreens. Their fence helps control litter from blowing north or east.

Unfortunately, another business in this area seems to have no concern as to where their trash blows. Perhaps they should erect a 10-15 foot high fence to prevent this ridiculous annual occurrence.

Even though Great Dane was not the major contributor to this problem, they made a clean sweep. Kudos to Great Dane. You are great neighbors. We appreciate you.

Wildcats lose pair of close games

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

The Wayne State baseball team lost a pair of one run games at the abbreviated Sioux City Classic on Saturday, dropping their record to 15-15. Poor weather forced Friday's tournament games to be postponed until Saturday and Sunday's games were canceled completely.

The Wildcats lost their first game on Saturday to Briar Cliff 6-5. WSC scored three runs in the first, behind doubles from James Mansell and Mike Vanderwilt. The 'Cats scored single runs in the fourth and fifth innings and held a 5-3 lead, but the Chargers plated three runs in the bottom of the fifth to take the win.

Adam Bealle had a pair of hits for WSC, while Darin Gregory scored two runs and Mansell drove in two. Pat Muller pitched 4 1/3 innings and took the loss.

"The Briar Cliff game was a seesaw battle," said Head Coach John Manganaro. "Pat Muller and Bryan Stockwell pitched well. They competed hard and kept us in the game the whole way. Things never got out of hand. We played errorless ball, we just didn't get the big hits when we needed them."

Wayne State 300 110 0 - 5 6 0
Briar Cliff 030 230 5 - 6 9 2

In Saturday's second game, Wayne State lost a 1-0 decision to North Dakota. During their spring trip to Florida, the Wildcats were beaten 16-2 by the Fighting Sioux. Aaron Garmong scattered five hits over seven innings, but walked a pair of runners and threw three wild pitches in the second inning to allow UND to score their only run. WSC had runners at first and second with nobody out in the fourth, but failed to score.

Gregory, Scott Ballinger and Odell Santos picked up the Wildcats' only hits.

"I'd have to say North Dakota is the best baseball team we've played this year," said Manganaro. "Aaron Garmong pitched an outstanding game, but when you play good teams you have to put all three aspects of the game (pitching, fielding, hitting) together to win and we didn't put the ball in play offensively."

North Dakota 010 000 0 - 1 5 1

"We're right on the verge of being a good baseball team," said Manganaro. "We need to start believing that we can be a good baseball team. I see us doubting ourselves a little bit and that's holding us back."

Wayne State adds two more recruits
Wayne State College head men's basketball coach, Greg McDermott, has announced that Eric Henderson (Coggon, IA) and Brad Joens (Cedar Rapids, IA) have signed a national letters of intent to attend Wayne State College and play basketball for the Wildcats next season. They join Jon Dolliver (Stanton, NE), Matt Van Voorst (Sioux Center, IA) and Jason Herlitzke (LaCrosse, WI), who signed earlier with Wayne State.
Henderson, a 6-7, 190-pound, forward, averaged 18.9 points, 11.4 rebounds and 5.1 blocked shots per outing this season while leading Maquoketa Valley High School to a record of 20-2. Henderson, who shot 70 percent from the field as a senior, was named first-team All-State by the Iowa Newspaper Association and second-team All-State by the Des Moines Register. Following his final two seasons, he was a unanimous first-team Tri-Rivers Conference selection. As a junior, he led his team to a record of 20-4 and a third place finish in the Class 2A State tournament, where he was named to the All-Tournament Team.
Eric has excellent skills and jumps extremely quick," McDermott said. "His athletic ability and attitude will be a tremendous asset to our basketball program."
Joens, a 6-3, 185 pound, guard, averaged 25.2 points, 1.1 rebounds, and 4.4 assists per outing this season while leading Reiris High School to a record of 9-13. Joens was named first-team All-Mississippi Valley Conference, first-team All-Cedar Rapids Metro and first-team All-State by the Iowa Newspaper Association and the Des Moines Register. He was tabbed the Class 3A Player of the Year by the Iowa Coaches Association. Joens has been selected to play in the Iowa Dr Pepper All Star Game in June. As a junior, he averaged 16.0 points on a team that finished with a record of 17-7.
"Brad is one of the most complete guards I've had the opportunity to watch," McDermott said. "He can really score, but his greatest strength is his ability to make his teammates better. I expect him to battle for playing time next season."

National volunteer week to salute 4-H volunteers

April 21-27, has been selected as a week to recognize the many volunteers who share their skills and talents to conduct programs for various organizations. The University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Services would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the individuals in the community who volunteer in any way in the 4-H program.

It's certainly true that volunteers are the backbone of the 4-H program. As National Volunteer Week is celebrated, every volunteer should know how important he or she is.

Without the dedicated support of adult and teen volunteers, the 4-H program would not have such a positive impact on youth. Volunteers create a "multiplier approach". Twenty trained club volunteers can have 20 different 4-H clubs of 10 or more each, thus reaching more than 200 local youth. Chances are, each volunteer will train at least one other adult volunteer along the way. It takes such an effect in the 4-H program to make things happen in a positive way.

It is not just club leaders who make the county 4-H program function. It's also parents and adults who help transport 4-H'ers, who open their homes for meetings and project activities and who share their special talents through workshops and trainings. The 4-H program's success also depends on 4-H Council members who assist with needs assessment, plan and conduct programs, and help secure funds for the 4-H program.

Bank to provide trees

More than 6,300 Colorado Blue Spruce seedlings will be planted this spring in school yards, parks, homes and farms across the state due to a volunteer tree program sponsored by the Nebraska Bankers Association.

For the seventh consecutive year, Nebraska banks, in conjunction with the National Arbor Day Foundation, are giving away the seedlings to schools, civic organizations and their customers in a grass roots effort to enhance the beauty of their communities and improve the environment.

Banks participating in the program include First National Bank of Belden in Belden and State National Bank and Trust Co. in Wayne.

Since 1990 more than 80,000 trees have been planted in conjunction with the NBA project. This year 63 banks are participating in the tree give-away.

"Nebraska bankers have a commitment to their communities and participation in the NBA's 'Planting Roots for the Future' tree planting program is symbolic of that commitment. Not only will these Blue Spruce trees contribute to the beauty of the community, they also represent our long-term investment in future generations," Nebraska Bankers Association Executive Vice President George Beattie said.

National Arbor Day was founded in Nebraska and is celebrated on April 26.

The trees are scheduled to be shipped to participating banks the week of April 15.

Answers to help women cope with PMS

Q. Why are some women more prone than others to have unpleasant symptoms just before their periods?

A. Some good answers to this question are supplied in an excellent booklet entitled Premenstrual Blues, written by a California physician, Dr. Guy Abraham. He has kindly given me permission to refer to information in that booklet, although the following items are not direct quotations.

Dr. Abraham pinpoints six factors that may make some women particularly prone to premenstrual tension:

1. Marriage. Married women are more susceptible than single women. In fact, premenstrual tension has been identified as a cause of divorce.
2. Childbirth. The more pregnancies a woman has had, the more likely she is to experience the distressing symptoms associated with the days preceding menstruation.
3. Age. The premenstrual syndrome appears to become more and more acute during the childbearing years, up to the late 30s.
4. Stress. Time pressure and psychological tension contribute significantly to the problem.
5. Diet. Poor nutrition is a culprit here, including the excessive use of refined sugars and salt.
6. Exercise. Women who suffer from premenstrual tension are usually those who do not engage in regular outdoor exercise such as walking, bicycling, swimming, tennis and other such activities.

Q. I've noticed that I experience the greatest feeling of inadequacy and inferiority during my premenstrual phase. Can you explain why this would be true?

A. Few women know that there is a direct relationship between estrogen levels (the primary female sex hormones) and self-esteem. Thus, self-worth fluctuates predictably through the 28-day cycle. In the normal menstrual cycle, estrogen peaks at mid-cycle (ovulation). Both estrogen and progesterone circulate during the second half of the cycle, falling off rapidly just prior to menstruation. Moods change with the fluctuating hormone levels: Women feel the greatest self-esteem and the least anxiety and hostility at mid-cycle.

Notice that estrogen levels are at their lowest point during menstruation. The production of estrogen increases day by day until it peaks near the time of ovulation at mid-cycle. That midpoint also happens to be the time of greatest emotional optimism and self-confidence. Then another hormone, progesterone, is produced during the second half of the cycle, bringing with it increasing tension, anxiety and aggressiveness. Finally, the two hormones decrease during the premenstrual period, reducing the mood to its lowest point again.

Answers Your Questions

Q. Even though I know my depression is the result of physiological conditions each month, I still forget that fact and find myself suffering from low self-esteem and general anxiety. How can I prepare myself to do a better job of coping with the menstrual cycle?

A. It is impossible to prepare yourself for premenstrual tension unless you know what to expect, so you need to begin by conducting some research on your own body. I suggest that you keep a diary in which you describe at least three elements of functioning: your energy level, your general mood, and your achievements and accomplishments.

Chart these three indicators every day for at least four months. Most women report that a surprisingly consistent pattern exists from month to month. Once it is identified and understood, further steps can be taken to brace yourself for the predictable valleys and tunnels.

Once the period of premenstrual tension arrives, you should interpret your feelings with caution and skepticism. If you can remember that the despair and sense of worthlessness are hormonally induced and have nothing to do with reality, you can withstand the psychological nose-dive more easily.

You should have a little talk with yourself each month, saying: "Even though I feel inadequate and inferior, I refuse to believe it. I know I'll feel differently in a few days and it is ridiculous to let this get me down. Though the sky looks dark, my perception is distorted. My real problem is physical, not emotional, and it will soon improve!"

These questions and answers are excerpted from the book Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions. Dr. James Dobson is a psychologist, author and president of Focus on the Family, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of the home. Correspondence to Dr. Dobson should be addressed to: Focus on the Family, P.O. Box 444, Colorado Springs, CO 80903 (c), 1982, Tyndale House Publishers, Inc.

How much exercise?

One guideline says you should exercise at least three times a week for at least 20 minutes at a certain target heart rate. Another guideline says that most health benefits can be gained by accumulating 30 minutes of moderate exercise over most days of the week. Then research appears in the media that says only vigorous exercise helps you to live longer. What's a person to do? It's enough to make a person retire the athletic shoes and retreat to the couch!

How much exercise is enough? This is a question many are asking today, including the researchers. Everyone is wanting to know how much physical activity is needed and how hard do you have to work at it to prevent heart disease, to live longer and to live a healthier life. Many questions remain. There is a great deal that we do know about physical activity and its importance to a person's health and longevity.

Recently the American College of Sports Medicine (ACSM) and the Center for Disease Control (CDC) issued a guideline calling for moderate exercise by all persons. The guideline states: Every American adult should accumulate 30 minutes or more of moderate-intensity physical activity over the course of most days of the week. That is a minimum of what most people need to follow. We know that being inactive doubles a person's risk of heart disease and may make them more prone to certain types of cancer. Exercise is also beneficial for control of weight, high blood pressure, high blood cholesterol, diabetes, stress, depression and many other health issues. Unfortunately, nearly 60 percent of our population is not active enough. The is what led to the emphasis on moderate activity.

A decision to focus on moderate activity does not conflict with studies on the benefits of vigorous activity. Most researchers would agree that some activity is better than none and that more is better than some. The good news is that you don't have to go out and sweat hard and feel pain to increase benefits. You can gain benefits by participating in moderate activity such as brisk walking. How does a person know if they are walking briskly enough? One definition comes from Harry Truman. When he was president he would go for lines overlooked is the word "accumulate." Ideally you should do thirty minutes of continuous exercise, but for many people's lifestyle, that doesn't work. The good news here is that you can do 10 minutes of walking in the morning, 10 minutes at noon, and do some gardening or raking in the evening for 10 minutes or more and meet these guidelines. There are many ways you can find to "squeeze" some activity into your lifestyle.

That is the key -- finding a way to spend more energy doing things when our society is so geared to being inactive. We have remote controls for everything -- self-propelled vacuum cleaners, electronic this and that ...all of which take the activity out of our lifestyle. We need to find ways to build activity back in.

An invitation was received from the Altona Ladies Aid for Guest Day to be held Thursday, May 2 at 1:30 p.m.

The LWML District Convention will be held at Norfolk on June 21-22. A delegate will attend.

A graduation coffee will be held following the service on May 19. Ryan Junck is the only graduate this year.

Dora Stolz will observe her 89th birthday on April 27.

It was decided the aid will provide an Easter lily for the service yearly.

For Christian Growth, Edith Cook reviewed articles from the Lutheran Witness.

The meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer and the Table Prayer.

Lunch was served by Donna Leicy.

Close up students speak at meeting

The Wayne Women's Club met April 12 at the club rooms at 2 p.m. with thirteen members present and three guests, Judy Schafer, close up sponsor, and two students, Brandon Novak and Christine Swinney. Novak is a senior and Swinney is a junior.

Helen Bechman, Vice President, conducted the meeting.

The meeting opened with the flag salute. Helen Bechman read an article on Easter and its customs in different countries.

Roll Call was each member told of their special time at Easter.

Secretary and Treasurer reports were read and approved. Get well cards were mailed to Adeline Vakoc and Orvella Blomenkamp.

The Wayne Care Center asked the Women's Club if they would help with their Olympics at the Care Center either with serving food or help in the games. This was tabled to next time.

Helen thanked Arlene Sievers for serving. Eleanor Manning could not be there but helped furnish the food.

Elizabeth Meyer, daughter of Terry and Karen Meyer, and Kim Nolte, daughter of Dick and Pam Nolte, will be receiving the scholarship to go to Wayne State.

Judy Schafer, Brandon Novak and Christine Swinney then talked about their trip to Washington D.C. They talked about the different workshops and said the Close up workshop is 25 years old. The students got to talk to Senators and Representatives and had visited Arlington Cemetery and saw the first woman guard who has ever been there.

Next meeting will be May 10 at 9 a.m. This is a breakfast, and each member is to bring a guest.

Hostesses were Lillian Granquish, Ardyce Reeg, Marian Jordan and Helen Beckman.

The purpose of the banquet was to thank all Kent Feeds dealers and recognized outstanding dealers for achievements during the past year.

Wayne Agri Service received the company's outstanding sales and service award.

The theme of the banquet was "Explore the Impossible." The evening focused on the vision, commitment and integrity it takes to succeed in the livestock feed industry. Awards were given for sales achievement and length of service as a Kent Feeds dealer.

Dairy farmer named to new Speakers' Bureau

John R. Anderson of Wayne has been named to Nebraska Farm Bureau's new Speakers' Bureau, a state-wide effort to educate non-farm audiences about modern day agriculture.

Anderson is a dairy producer, with 99 percent of his farm's sales coming from milk. He is an advocate of farming both as a way of life and as a business.

As a member of the Speakers' Bureau, Anderson is available to speak to organizations such as civic groups about modern day agriculture in general, the use of agricultural chemicals for food production, and animal care.

"Agriculture has changed so much in recent years. Both high technology and increasing government regulation have had impacts on farming that may not be apparent to the non-farm public," Anderson said. "Agriculture has an interesting story to tell and I look forward to sharing it with interested organizations."

Groups in northeast Nebraska which are interested in scheduling a presentation by Anderson may contact him directly or through Nebraska Farm Bureau at 402-421-4405.

Video takes time

Now, this, rain followed by sunshine, is more like it! Although we certainly could have done without the snow. I even have the sheets hung out today. When we moved here, there was no clothes line. We got one as an anniversary gift last year. I really appreciate it, even if it's an unusual gift. The beauty is, he also installed it!

I'm embroiled in a project today that's going to do me in: a video for my mom's 80th birthday. I have old pictures in piles on the dining room table. Some still have to be enlarged. And I need to get everything to the production company yet this week.

It certainly has been fun. My mother grew up near the Blue River at Beaver Crossing. She has a brother and two sisters, all still living. They have all contributed to the cause.

My grandparents built a new house when she was still small. But there are even a couple of photos of the old one, which was torn down. There are some vintage automobiles, and some lovely dresses from the flapper era. And deep waves in the hair. How did they do that?

I've come to the conclusion, though, that I take too many pictures. I still have albums to go through. And boxes.

The friend from Orlando says she's going to just hand each daughter a box instead of trying to put them into albums. Aunt Ella made each of her sons a "big book," but gave it to them on their 50th birthday. That gives me a little time yet for my kids.

By Pat Meierhenry

The trouble is, I don't have big chunks of time to work on this; nor do I have a big place to spread it all out. Sure, my dining room is large, but we had three guests for breakfast this morning. Then the photos get stacked up and relegated to a big box until I can get at them again.

Plus, we plan to add Mom's favorite music to the video, including George Beverly Shea and The Statler Brothers; but some very old songs will be sung by yours truly. This calls for tuning the piano!

At this point, I'm not totally sure this video will ever be finished. Maybe we'll give it to her for Christmas instead.
