

Tax rates are being compared

Although approving the school bond issue will mean an increase in property taxes, the increase will only bring the district's tax rates to a level comparable to other districts similar in size and area, said Eddie Elfers, chairman of media relations for the Building Better Schools Committee.

"Our tax rates are surprisingly low," Elfers said. "Our current tax rate is 1.26, compared with Chadron's, which is 2.14, or Holdrege, which is 1.73. We've enjoyed relatively low tax rates for some time, but the district has had to make some sacrifices."

One of those sacrifices has been the inability to upgrade the Middle School, he said.

"Even if the bond issue doesn't pass, we can't just make do with the Middle School as is," Elfers said. "We can't just do nothing because federal law says we have to make our facilities accessible."

The project has been studied carefully over several years, Elfers said, in an effort to make it the best value for tax dollars.

"We have done our homework and considered our options," he said. "We have eliminated all but the necessities for a modern educational facility, while keeping an eye on ever-increasing construction costs. The shared space concept will give us the best possible facility for the lowest possible cost. In other words, this

Willow Bowl graduation

For the first time in several years, the weather cooperated and Wayne State College Spring Commencement exercises were held in the scenic Willow Bowl on the Wayne State campus. ## Voters will see change in ballot appearance

Wayne County voters going to the polls on Tuesday will notice a change in the ballots they use to cast their votes.

Voters will be given two ballots, one for political races and one for non-political races.

"Voters need to be sure to vote on issues on both sides of the non-political ballots," said County Clerk Debra Finn. "Voters also need to use the pencil provided in the voting booth for marking the ballots."

Due to an increasing number of problems encountered while trying to recruit a sufficient number of poll workers, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners approved the purchase of an AIS Optical Scan Tabulation System. The AIS System is currently counting over 80 percent of the total votes cast in Nebraska.

"The AIS Scanner uses paper ballots that can be printed locally. Each ballot is 8 1/2" by 14" and is printed on both sides, when possible, to reduce the total number of ballots sent to the precinct," Mrs. Finn said.

Another change in voting procedures this year involves "Fail-Safe" voting and conditional ballots. Due to a revision in the federal Voter Registration Act, "Fail-Safe" voting procedures must be followed in each precinct.

These procedures allow a voter who maintains continuous residency within the county to vote in their new precinct without changing their address prior to election day. Voting is accomplished by means of a Conditional Ballot.

"I would recommend that the voter stop by the courthouse first to make address changes, but he or she may go directly to the new precinct to vote," Mrs. Finn said.

At the polling site, the Receiving Board will assist the voter with the completion of a Voter Registration Transfer form and an

Maintenance work being done on road south of town

Motorists traveling south of Wayne on Highway 15 in the next several weeks will notice highway workers and equipment on the road.

The State Department of Roads is currently milling the road surface to take off the top layer of the road.

"Over the course of time, the road develops wheel ruts. When it rains, water collects in these ruts and can lead to hydroplaning," said Harold Murray, Maintenance Superintendent of the Department of Roads.

The milling will be done from the Logan Creek Bridge just south of Wayne to the Altona corner, nine miles south of Wayne.

The project is a maintenance activity and not among the highway construction projects scheduled for this summer.

Later on this summer, the highway will receive an armor coat.

Murray urges motorists to use caution when traveling in the construction area. "When there is activity, there are people, and motorists need to be careful."

project has been pared to the minimum. We believe this is the best construction option for the students in our district."

Some voters have voiced concern over the ballot for the bond issue, which was printed in The Wayne Herald. There are two ballot questions because affiliated districts with only elementary schools are responsible for the kindergarten through eighth grade education of their students and so do not pay for District 17's K-8 facilities. Voters in the affiliated districts will vote along with District 17 voters on the portion of the project that addresses 9-12 facility improvements. Only District 17 voters will vote on the portion of the project which addresses K-8 improvements.

The following table illustrates tax dollar increases at various property values to support this building program.

$400,000	35.05 cents	$1,402.00	$116.83	9.6 cents	$384.00
$500,000	35.05 cents	$1,752.50	$146.04	9.6 cents	$480.00

To calculate your own tax obligation to support this building program, you find the actual valuation on your individual property tax statement and multiply that number by .003505 if you live in District 17 and by .00096 if you live in an Affiliated District. The District has a tax base of $180,769,875 and a total of $22,906,858 when adding the Affiliated Valuation.

Affidavit for Conditional Ballot before the ballots are issued.

Once voted, the ballots will be sealed in an envelope marked "Conditional Ballot" and the Voter Registration Transfer form and Affidavit for Conditional Ballot will be inserted in a pocket on the outside of the envelope.

After the envelopes arrive at the courthouse, they will be verified and the ballot will be removed from its respective envelope and placed with all other ballots to be counted by the Canvassing Board.

"I would also like to remind voters that we can not accept a write-in candidate across political party lines. For example, a Republican can not write a Democrat's name on his or her ballot or vice-versa," Mrs. Finn added.

Mrs. Finn also reminds voters that in the School District 17 Bond issue, there are two questions. District 17 residents will be voting on the Middle School issue and the high-school issue, while voters in those Class I schools that have affiliated with District 17 will be voting on only the portion of the bond dealing with the high school.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and locations for voting can be found in the election section of today's Herald.

Two faculty members retired this spring after lengthy careers of service to the State College System.

Dr. Anthony Kochenash, professor of business, came to Wayne State five years ago but before that was on the business faculty at Chadron State College and served as the chairman of the business division there.

He earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from Moravian College in Bethlehem, Pa in 1957, he was awarded a master's degree in education from Temple University in 1967 and a doctorate from Colorado State University in 1972.

At WSC Dr. Kochenash has been active as the advisor for the Advertising Club which annually places very high in intercollegiate competition. He has worked closely with students in preparation of special business research and marketing projects.

He is also active in the Elks organization as a regional leader with special emphasis in youth programs for the fraternity. He coordinates the scholarship, drug awareness and teen recognition programs for the Elks Lodge in Norfolk, where he also served as exalted ruler.

Dr. Charles Maier, professor of biology, joined the WSC faculty in 1968. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in biology and education from Emporia State University in 1953 and 1955, he also earned a doctorate in botany from Oregon State University in 1959.

He was on the faculty at New Mexico State University from 1958 to 1968 and has assisted in field research for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and as a private plant pathology consultant.

In 1994, Dr. Maier was honored at Wayne's Outstanding Citizen for the LaVitsel festival in Norfolk. He has served two terms as president of the Wayne Lions Club. He is the curator of the Northeast Nebraska-WSC Arboretum.

Dr. Maier and his wife Barbara have three children.

Dr. Donald Mash, WSC president, honored the two men during graduation ceremonies Saturday and praised them for their years of service to the field of education.

Honors program held

Several Northeast Community College students were honored Tuesday evening as outstanding students in their field of study during the College's annual Honors Program.

The Honors Program recognizes students who have demonstrated outstanding academic achievement in their various programs of study at Northeast, and who have made strong contributions to the college community.

Those honored, their hometown and field of study include: LeAnn Stewart of Dixon, Young Farmers; Cam Shelton of Hoskins, Rodeo Club; Jayne Shelton of Hoskins, Biology; Kathryn Donner of Laurel, Architectural Drafting; and Teresa Witkowski of Wayne, Biology.

Two receive scholarships

Krista Marie Magnuson of Carroll and Michael Dean Kollath of Hoskins were among the 315 Nebraska high school seniors to receive Regents Scholarships for the 1996-97 school year at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Regents scholarships pay tuition for full-time, UNL students and are renewable annually for those who maintain a cumulative point average of at least 3.5 on a 4.0 scale.

The scholarships are awarded based on the high school students' class rank, ACT score and geographic location.

Krista is the daughter of Ron and Karma Magnuson. She is a senior at Wayne High and plans to major in communication studies.

Michael is the son of Ken and Barb Kollath. He is a senior at Winside High School and has not declared a major.

Record numbers graduate

Dr. Donald Mash, President of Wayne State College, spoke to the 418 WSC graduates during Saturday's commencement exercises. Dr. Mash also recognized retiring faculty members Anthony Kochenash and Charles Maier and praised them for their years of service at Wayne State.

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

If May is already here, can summer vacation be far behind? (to paraphrase an old quote!) And summer means the library changes to new hours. Beginning May 28, the Library will open at noon and close at 8 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Saturday hours remain the same, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. There will be no Sunday hours during the summer. Things will get back to normal after Labor Day!

Summer also means Summer Reading Program in the library for children ages 4 to 6 (Read-To-Me program) and Reading Club children from grades 1 through 6. This year's theme is Peet Amid Books - Read! so come to our Egyptian reading oasis and get wrapped up in good books. Children who did not register earlier at the city auditorium may come to the library to register May 28 through June 5. Children can begin reading May 28 for prizes. The SRP ends July 9 with a part at Bressler Park at 7 p.m.

Our kick-off for the SRP features Nina Little from the Omaha Public School library staff who has traveled to Egypt and who will be sharing fun ideas from Egypt with all the children on Wednesday, June 5 from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. This year's story and activity times will be held on Tuesday afternoons for all ages. Times for each age level are: 12:30-1:15 p.m., grades 4-6; 1:30-2:15 p.m., grades 1-3; 2:30-3:15, ages 4-6.

New books for children included a series of books on wild animals and birds; flowers and plants; weather and biographies of sports personalities. Books that relate specifically to the SRP theme of Egypt are: "The Egypt Game" by Zilpha Keatley Snyder; "Amazing Facts About Ancient Egypt" by James Putnam; "The Egyptian Cinderella" by Shirley Climo; "The Vandemark Mummy" by Cynthia Voigt.

The advent of summer also means the annual library tour for first graders. Many of the children have already been introduced to the library. Some, however, will find this a new experience. This is also an opportunity for them to register and receive their first library card! We hope they will become frequent visitors.

Library hours (until May 28) are Monday-Friday, 12:30 to 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m. Don't forget the book sale! Prices have been cut to the bone! Hardback books are now 50¢ each or 3 for $1. Paperbacks are 25¢ each or 5 for $1. Get 'em while they're hot!

Asking for help on petition

Dear Editor:

I have talked to many people in regards to the same-sex marriage debate and am surprised that many are unaware that Senator Ernie Chambers attempts to keep pro-family legislation from being passed was effective. One legislator stated that "our Legislature was essentially held hostage by Senator Chambers." Since this is an election year we do not have any guarantees that Gov. Nelson, who has stated that he will support pro-family legislation, will be re-elected.

It is imperative that we act now to petition for a special legislative session and say no to same-sex marriage. Your signature on a petition asking Gov. Nelson and state senators for a special session will send a clear message that you, a Nebraskan, want to protect the institution of marriage that is vital to our Judeo-Christian heritage.

The "say NO to same-sex marriage in Nebraska by saying YES to a Legislative Special Session" petitions are being circulated throughout the Wayne and surrounding areas. If you would like to sign a petition or assist in circulating one, ask your church leaders, a well informed friend or call the Nebraska Family Council, Inc. at 402-477-3191.

In closing, the words of Dr. Alan Keyes, "our faith is grounded in the same bedrock common sense principles that were motivating the founders of the nation..." Let's remember those traditional American beliefs and put some effort toward preserving traditional family values in America. For those of you who are unsure about the same-sex marriage issue, I strongly encourage you to educate yourself, and more importantly, to spend time in prayer.

Ode to the big spenders

Dear Editor,

I'm not a poet, but ode to the big spenders.

It would be a shame if the educational system was really in the dire straits that some people are trying to make it to be. When I read these promotional ads for the $8.1 million bond to vote on May 14, my feeling is that it is unnecessary and my vote will be no.

How many years would it take for a new building to become outdated?

How many people realize that the total cost of this bond could easily be double the amount with hidden costs and with the big cost, the interest on the loan?

The promoters don't mention the real cost in one figure and no mention of the Carroll school at all, which could be expected.

I saw the A, B and C options and I feel renovation is the answer. Let's defeat the big unnecessary bond. Let some sensible options be talked over and go for a nice little renovation bond that people can live with.

Nebraskans talking about gas

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — Nebraskans seem to be talking a lot right now about gas.

Not the stuff, mind, you, that you can get after eating too many pickled eggs at the local tavern, but the smelly liquid we pour into our pickups and automobiles.

I was driving through Alliance recently and the conversation around the cash register at the truck stop wasn't about why Tommie Frazier wasn't drafted but about the high price of gasoline.

One pundit said that the price of gas in Denver was approaching $2 a gallon (which provides us one more reason why we shouldn't live in that smoggy, mountain retreat).

In Nebraska, prices are Rocky Mountain high enough. We were shelling out $1.29 to $1.39 a gallon for no-lead on our trip across the state. It was enough to make me want to dump my gas-guzzling money pit of a utility vehicle.

Politicians appear to have heard the whining at the gas pumps.

President Clinton wants to sell off part of the nation's oil reserves to lower gasoline prices and has launched an anti-trust investigation to see what has caused a 12-percent increase in the last month. It's just a coincidence that it's an election year. Not.

Not to be outdone, Nebraska's own elected officials got in the act recently in a totally politically inspired debate over raising the state gas tax eight-tenths of a cent per gallon.

That tiny figure is about what some Nebraska corporations pay in state income taxes, but that's another story.

The gas story got started when State Auditor John Breslow began harping about an automatic, six-tenths of a cent increase that went into effect on April 1. Breslow said the increase was unnecessary because state gas receipts were already well above average.

Opposing a tax increase always makes great political headlines but Breslow was sniffing diesel on that one: the April 1 increase was mandatory under a state law that requires the state to adjust its gas taxes quarterly to finance its road-building projects. Breslow could gripe all he wanted but that increase was going to happen.

In the latest flap over gas taxes Breslow had an ally: State Treasurer Dave Heineman, who voted against a gas-tax hike a year ago.

Last week, the State Board of Equalization (which includes Breslow, Heineman, Gov. Nelson and Secretary of State Scott Moore) met to set the gas tax rates for the next fiscal year. Unlike the quarterly, automatic adjustments, the board has some leeway on where it should set the rate to begin the next fiscal year.

State roads officials told the board that an increase to 26.5 cents a gallon—the fifth highest in the nation—was needed to keep current construction projects on track.

Heineman countered that the roads department has overestimated its needs in four of the past five years.

With gas prices so high already, Heineman said the eight-tenths of a cent increase was unwarranted. If state gas tax revenue fell behind, well, the board could raise the taxes later.

Moore, a very pragmatic soul (who is not running or been mentioned for higher office, unlike Breslow, Heineman and Nelson), said the griping about the gas tax increase was merely political.

He's right. The time to object to the state's high-gas taxes is when the Legislature sets the state road-building budget. If you want to cut taxes, you have to cut back on paying and patching of roads.

But this being a political year, the board was in a mood to throw a bone to the voters so it cut the proposed increase in half, to four-tenths of a cent instead of eight-tenths of a cent.

I suppose we should be happy. Filling my tank will now cost 8 cents less than it might have if the Board of Equalization had voted the full increase.

That 8 cents is enough to, what, buy a piece of bubble gum?

While I'm chewing on that, I'll be chewing on something else: Nebraska voters can eliminate the Board of Equalization by voting for a proposed constitutional amendment during the May 14 primary.

The political posturing observed during this recent flap over gas taxes might just be a good reason to do that.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Fifth and seventh graders at Wayne Middle School participated in Civil War Reenactment activities on Wednesday. The program featured individuals who specialize in various aspects of the Civil War, including the Drill Sergeant, the weapon's expert, camp life and clothing. The students were put into groups and rotated to each station. The presenters are a part of a group that give presentations throughout the Midwest.

The chance to better education

In a few days, the polls will open and several issues are on the ballot that will need to be decided by the good people of Wayne County.

First, it is important to exercising your god-given right to vote. Something that everyone should do. My father once told me that, "a person who chooses not to vote, lets that person who chooses to vote speak for him or her and therefore controls their lives". A smart man was my father. I try to exercise my right as often as possible. I hope you will too.

One of the issues on the ballot will be the $8.172 million school bond referendum. The Wayne Board of Education proposes that the people of the Wayne area borrow $8+ million to build a new middle school system adjoining the high school. The concept is a shared space plan that would save an estimated $2 million if a new detached middle school was built. The plan on the table addresses all the present and future needs of the education of our children. Two years ago, the same basic plan was narrowly defeated by a mere 75 votes. Since that time, refinements and additional faculty and community input has been incorporated into the project.

But there is still opposition over these plans. Many people say that the plan is too pricey, some say renovate the existing building and save some dollars. But no one has told me that nothing needs to be done. I believe that's a positive sign that the community knows that a need to do something is there.

Before I began to write this column, I visited with several people in the community, both pro and con. I asked a lot of questions. I would like to thank the many people who took time out to talk with me one on one and answer my questions and for me to listen at the same time to there's as well.

One of the things that I did was take a one hour and 30 minute tour of the Wayne Middle School. I also watched a video, made by a local resident, of other towns and what they have done in the terms of renovating the existing schools. I also heard about a proposed renovation plan submitted by the school board architect and also by an outside architect who was contacted by a group of local citizens. I also sat down and figured out what my additional taxes would be if the school bond passed. Needless to say that I have spent a lot of time on this particular subject and wish I had time to spend more. With all that said, I will be voting "yes" on May 14. Here are my reasons why.

In my recent tour of the Middle School, I was disturbed by the lack of maintenance and condition of the main building. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to see that over a period of years, not just four or five, that maintenance was not a real high priority. Built in 1908, the structure has been deemed to be solid. Improvements have been made over the past few years to stop most water leaks. Some chair-

Jimmy Jo's
Jams

By James

bits have been installed for ADA requirements. Paint has been applied, but comes off the walls after a short period of time. To go from one side of the building to another takes a pretty substantial amount of time, making it difficult to schedule classes efficiently and taking away from valuable teaching time.

In 1908 when community leaders built the building, they had no idea of the demands the present educational system would have on designs of this building. As for the two additions, one in 1938 and the other in 1956, they are still in pretty good shape. The lowest projected cost to renovate the existing middle school buildings comes to about $4.2 million. But the question that nags at me is if we renovate now, how long will it be before we need to add on again or fix something that we failed to fix the last time.

A lot has been made about the condition of the Wayne Middle School and for good reason, but its reality more in my eyes about the requirements for education is a lot different than they were five, 20 or 35 years ago. With state and federal requirement continuing to mount, a new building that can provide flexibility is a necessity.

I guess by now I have painted a pretty bleak picture of our middle school. It's probably not as bad as I see it, but if you took a tour of the building, you might agree with me.

Another aspect that people should be aware of is the problem the middle school creates in attracting new industries to Wayne. When corporate representatives visit a town, one of the first things they ask about is schools and tours often take place in the process. No major industry would consider Wayne as a major candidate due to the condition of the middle school.

Before you go to vote on Tuesday I ask you to take time to consider all the options that have been presented to you. Consider the cost to your family. Is it worth the price tag that sits before you the voter? Do we need a new building or do we renovate? I believe that is the best overall answer and the best plan for the long run.

I hope that Tuesday, May 14 you will take the time to go to the polls and vote. I hope I see many of you there.

Editors Note: I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people who took time to speak with me and give me their thoughts on the issue.

Offers thoughts

Dear Editor,
The Board of the Wayne Elementary Boosters would like to offer a few thoughts on the upcoming bond issue. On the ballot, May 14, the citizens of Wayne, Carroll and all affiliated districts will have an opportunity to vote in favor of quality education for all our children.

This is not an issue of a physical structure, or individual personalities, it is an issue, pure and simple, about quality education for students. Citizens of Wayne must decide that the cost of providing its youth with the knowledge, skills and resources that will prepare them for the 21 Century is its top priority and expenditure needed for continued growth and prosperity.

In business, the customer must be treated fairly, with respect and given a top quality product. In education, the student is the customer of the community and deserves no less. Wayne is an outstanding community and had functioned in a prudent manner when meeting the educational needs of youth in the past, but we can wait no longer in addressing the needs of our youth. It is time once again to support the educational needs of our children by passing the bond issue.

A vote in favor of the bond issue will help provide:

1. Quality Education for ALL students
  - improved basic educational opportunities
  - accessibility for physically challenged students, family members and guests
  - 21st Century preparation in terms of technology and resources
2. Efficient use of instructional

- space
- shared areas for Art, Family and Consumer Sciences, Industrial Technology and music
  - flexibility for change and future needs
  - improved facilities for Middle School Fine Arts and athletic events and practice
  - 3. Efficient and safe operation of the district as a whole
    - new central kitchen
    - improved heating, ventilation and air conditioning
    - better air quality
    - no movement of students between buildings
    - efficient use of nurse and counselor time
    - no disruption during construction versus remodeling
    - support services that make the total learning experience a positive one.

The last bond issue in 1967 suffered several cutbacks and the loss of math rooms, science labs, auditorium seating and the overall reduction of costs are still impacting the district.

Since that time, education has changed dramatically with the addition of special education, changes in curriculum areas and the inclusion of new areas of study, which are all necessary in order to provide students with a top quality education.

Legislation will continue to impact education and the Americans With Disabilities Act, OSHA and the current state legislation offer us many challenges. The community needs to act NOW and step up and support the bond issue which is long overdue for approval.

The children of the community are running out of time. Quality education is not a luxury, it is a community necessity. We are proud of what we have, but feel an urgency to move now before additional costs, mandates or other external factors impact the district.

Join us in voting FOR the bond issue May 14 and insuring a quality educational experience for the students now and in the future. This is a positive investment in the community. Businesses, industry, concerned and involved citizens and most importantly, quality education, is what makes Wayne, America a great place to live work and play.

Vote May 14 to support the youth of the community.

Gets reviews

Dear Editor,

In the past few weeks the Wayne community has been getting reviews concerning the need for a new school building. I have tried to watch closely and look for information that might change my mind to a more positive outlook, but I find little that is very convincing.

I still believe that remodeling is a better effort, and should be done. But even then, not at the figure a high priced architect and consultant would lead one to believe. Everyone knows that these people, architects and consultants, work in a commissioned fantasy world with other people's money and are very convincing in their efforts to spend as much as possible.

There are other factors that I believe should be considered. Although what I have to say here will sound negative, it is real. I think these things need to be considered by the voters.

First, consider the $8.1 million and who will be here to pay for it. One doesn't have to do much reading these days to understand that small, "outstate" Nebraska communities are rapidly losing their population. It seems faster now than ever, and there are no predictions that it will change.

The population of Wayne County in 1970 was 10,400. In 1990, 9,364. The city of Wayne in 1970 was 5,379. In 1990 it had dropped to 5,142. Population estimates from 1990 to 2002 for the county--8,975, for the city--5,150. Looking down the road, the declining figures indicate to me that the tax estimates for individual households are far, far, too conservative.

I have to remember, also, the ever increasing costs of all local governments and their "tax askings." It is a rare thought that their perceived needs will decrease. Twenty years is a long time to wait for tax relief.

It is also easy to see within the community that a high percentage of our population is nearing, at, or enjoying retirement. Millions of dollars are, or have been, invested in a Senior Citizens Center, a Retirement Community Complex and the Wayne Care Centre. These investments, with private and public money, are being carefully made with an eye on the future of the Wayne area population.

I have also considered the actual student population of Wayne's District 17. In annual reports by the Department of Education and our local school district, the numbers don't convince me that it will take 8.1 million dollars to make things more comfortable for our children.

In 1988 there were 580 students in the K-8 system. In 1995, that number was 635, or an increase of 7.9 students per year. Those numbers broken down further show the higher numbers of those students are in the K-4 grades, and diminish in the 5-8 grades. The average class (K-12) enrollment between 1988 and 1995 has increased by 2.1 students in those seven years. This is not what I call a justification to spend millions of dollars.

The 1994 "Wayne Industrial Facts" book shows that we have a Middle School building capacity of 350 and a student population of 315. The High School has a capacity of 400 with only 277 students (278 in 1995). It seems to me we have enough room for 150 more students that don't seem to be coming from anywhere. Once again I have to say remodeling looks like a better answer.

One point I cannot, and will never be able to agree with, is mixing the two age groups. Whatever the assurances of separation being stated now, will diminish with excuses in the future, and the possible problems will be extremely expensive to correct. Exposing little kids to the high school age environment is extremely poor judgment. An outbreak of the flu or any other illness would be harder to control with all these students under one roof, also.

I still have seen nothing about getting rid of the square block the current Middle School sits on. It seems to me that property would go a long way to offset the cost of this proposal. Or do you suppose that all of a sudden it would be "good enough" to use if it's "touched up a little" should the bond issue happen to pass.

The saddest part of this whole issue is the cost of $8,100,000 for new building and remodeling, compared to $6,480,000 for just remodeling. The fact that those who are proposing this bond issue can skoff at saving $1,620,000 makes me sick. But that seems to be the case with these people.

For me, the vote will be NO on both bond requests, and will be until I see a better solution to what they "think" will improve our school system. The fact for me is that my root beer budget just can't accommodate their champagne appetite. An increase of $355 per $100 of valuation is an extremely large increase in a small community's tax base. How much will your rent or house payments go up for the next 20 years?

Steve Gross

Shows support

Dear Editor:

This letter is to show support for the upcoming school bond issues. As the mother of three children I feel it is essential that the Wayne School District improve our schools now.

Our needs are simple, the best quality education for the least amount of money. Our community has not had a building project since 1966, that is 30 years.

The facts of this issue are:
-We need a facility that does not force children to be up at 5:30 a.m. for practice and working on school things at 10:00 at night.
-Why spend 80% of new cost on an old building that does not meet current needs.

-We hire faculty to teach our kids. They can't teach while kids are walking between the middle school and high school.

The children's needs are fact. The "won't spend" group doesn't care about these facts, do you?

Nancy Modrell

Voters to decide

Dear Editor:

Next Tuesday, May 14, School District 17 voters will decide on the proposed school bond issue. The building project consists of constructing a new middle school facility that will be connected to the existing high school, renovating parts of the high school to create shared space between the middle school and high school; and adding necessary additional classroom space to the existing high school.

The new school facility and the renovation work would be financed with a general obligation bond issue in the total amount of $8,179,605 (of which the high school portion for affiliated districts is $2,606,677). The projected levy increase for annual payments for this refinancing will be about 35 cents for the District per each $100 of valuation. The District currently has no outstanding bonded debt. A Facilities Study Committee, comprised of over 40 community members, recommended to the School Board this combination of new construction and renovation. This was determined to be the most prudent use of taxpayer dollars when the cost of renovating the existing Middle School was estimated to be 80 to 90 percent of the cost of a new building.

It is my belief that no matter what criticisms are levied against the proposal or the decision making process, the majority of voters will base their decision on how much their property taxes will increase. To calculate your own tax obligation to support this building program, find the actual valuation on your individual property tax statement and multiply that number by .003505 if you live in District 17 and by .00096 if you live in an Affiliated District. So if your valuation is $100,000 your annual tax increase would be $350.50 or $29.21 per month. This amount is only slightly more than the monthly cost of Basic Plus Cable-

Care to join the COPS?

Hi John, how are things going?
"Well Billy, funny you'd ask. I just got through joining a dedicated group of people. I'm a joiner and I belong to the Snoozeville Church, Bigboys Country Club, Republican Party, the Association of Social Skinflints, and the Alumni of Snake Charmers, but this new group I joined really has it all put together!"

Sounds fantastic!
"From now on my foolosophy of life is changing, because now I'm in the best group that ever elected a president, secretary and treasurer."

You're dying to tell me so I'll ask: what group is it?

"Ready? I joined the Coalition of Professional Soreheads! Better known as COPS!"

Not the fellers with badges?
"No, this has nothing to do with policemen, however some police are members, as are others from every walk of life."

Well, how did they get a name like that?

"They first considered a name like the "Coalition of Professional Grumps", or the "Coalition of Professional Cranks". Some thought perhaps the best name was "Coalition of Professional Sorepusses", but after a lot of plain old bellyaching, the majority decided on "Coalition of Professional Soreheads".

Why would you join an outfit like that?
"Because being a Sorehead is considered worthwhile by many people!"
What makes you say that?
"Hey, buddy, you don't get around much. This nation could call itself the American Sorehead Society. Careful, don't use just the first letters of that designation!"
What aggravated you, John, to join COPS?

"Billy, listen to me. There are so many of us grumpy grouchy groaners that we decided we could have more clout by joining in our grumping, grouching, and groaning. Power comes in groups! Our members are everywhere!"

Give me a for instance.
"You mean you haven't heard one of our COPS discussing the school bond issue, abortion, or dry weather? Man, I was in the courthouse yesterday and COPS were all over the place, grumping, grouching and groaning about their taxes, paper work, court costs and assessments."

Come to think about it, you're right! Like yesterday I was fuming and told a car salesman what he could do with his overpriced junk!
"Bravo! How can you grump, grouch and groan alone! Better join our COPS!"

No, I'm writing the governor and suggesting he could raise millions taxing every grumpy, grouchy and groaning comment!

"Why, John, you no good, low down sidewinder!"
See! That's a $5 tax statement!

You Can Stay in the Area for Cataract Surgery... So You Can Focus on the Little Things.

Donald E. Koeber, O.D. Ophthalmologist, Primary Eye Care
Larry M. Magnuson, O.D. Ophthalmologist, Primary Eye Care

Cataracts affect over 80% of our senior citizens. In fact over one million cataract surgeries are performed annually in the U.S. alone.
New technological developments in implants, ultrasonic equipment, lasers, diagnostic testing, and surgical techniques have made cataract surgery one of the most effective procedures today. Currently, over 98% of cataract patients experience significant improvements in vision, without major complications.

Until now, the high cost of this new technology for cataract surgery was only available in the larger surgical facilities. This meant that you would have to travel for a complete eye examination and surgery. Not any longer.

Complete eye care and cataract surgery is now available at Providence Medical Center in Wayne. You don't have to travel outside of your community to have your vision tested for cataracts. With Dr. Willcockson, Dr. Koeber and Dr. Magnuson offering comprehensive diagnostic and surgical services, you now have the most advanced eye care available right here in town.

Call Dr. Koeber or Dr. Magnuson for a complete eye examination and cataract vision screening today. If you would like more information on cataracts for yourself or someone you know who may be experiencing loss of vision, call today for a free informational brochure.

vision and less than if you also subscribe to a premium pay channel like HBO or Cinemax. To further illustrate, on a property valued at $50,000 the annual tax increase would be $175.25 or $14.60 per month. This cost is comparable to a pizza dinner for a family of four. Is an investment in the improvement of our school facilities worth as much?

Take the time to make an informed decision on this issue. Sit down and calculate what this proposal will cost you if you are afraid your taxes will be too high. Please make your decision based on the facts and an honest appraisal of your own economic situation. Our schools are a vital part of our community and this plan deserves at the very least your careful consideration.

Good behavior

Editor's Note: This letter is being addressed to Dr. Jensen, Superintendent of Wayne Community Schools.

Dear Editor:
I was one of the sponsors who accompanied the Wayne High School band to Kansas City this past weekend. It was an enjoyable experience.

All too often we are bombarded by the press with negative news about today's teenagers. Makes us wonder if there is any hope for the future? Well, I am here to tell you if this past weekend is any indication, the future is safe.

We rode with them for six hours on the bus to Kansas City, ate meals with them, listened to their performance, observed them at Worlds of Fun, stayed in a motel overnight, rode another seven hours returning to Wayne on Sunday and encountered no problem! The sponsors were at all times treated with respect and dignity.

The communities of Wayne and Carroll can and should be proud of their young people. I am!

Mr. Brad Weber is also to be highly commended as director of this band. He brings out the best in each band member and gives them the self-confidence to perform to the very best of their ability. And they bring home trophy after trophy. In a sports-oriented society, too often this musical ability goes unrecognized. This is unfortunate. It was a pleasure to be associated with the Wayne High School Band this past weekend. Be proud of this fine group of students! Now I'm going home to get some sleep.

Is opposed

Dear Editor:
I am writing this letter in opposition to the school bond issue which is before the citizens of the Wayne area and is to be voted on Tuesday, May 14.

This opposition is based on several observations and is considered by looking at the whole picture of the continual rising of the level of taxation from all governmental taxing agencies:

1. The property tax on our home purchased in 1984 (12 fiscal years) has risen from approximately $1,600, to over $2,100, and with the increased tax of $302, if the bond issue passes will increase by over 37 percent in those 12 years. Remember, that is not a one shot tax but will remain the same over the life of the issued bonds. Increases in property taxes can continue to be there over and above the bond issue.

2. Someone has indicated that the state legislature has passed ceiling lids on property taxes to be implemented over a period of two years. It is my opinion that this is again "smoke and mirrors." When in memory can we remember when property taxes were reduced or even stayed the same. Don't hold your breath on this issue.

3. A continual subtle but sure rise in levels of taxation: (keep in mind that we have no say in the imposition)

*Notification by the City of Wayne of the increase tax in sewer fees and water usage (if irrigation units are used - sprinkler systems)

*Have you been to service stations lately? 12¢ per gallon average increase - did you have a vote in this?

*Increased deductions in medicine and hospitalization coverage - this write is on SS and pension.

*Insurance increases on secondary medical, doctors, etc. coverage.

*I would like to know when the 1% city sales tax will be lifted or will this be treated like the luxury taxes imposed during WWII which never have been cancelled out.

*There is not sufficient space to spell out in detail other areas of tax concerns: but in my opinion, I see no retreat in the continuing rising levels of taxes from all governmental taxing units.

*Someone indicated that he doesn't have to worry about this bond issue because he rents. Landlords pay taxes, renters pay rent; increased costs to the owners; increased rents to cover costs. Historically true. It is my opinion that this is also a truism for businesses.

4. Two observations:

a - To all property tax payers: take your last property tax statement (paid May 1st) and look at the numerical figure owned; then take the time to add the increased tax if the bond issue passes - this is a 20 year projected bond. It is my opinion that the District 17 leadership should not misread the mood, feelings and reality of the tax system under which we live. Review, reconsider, look again at options available; get back to the drawing board; listen to what the tax paying property owners (and others) are saying; not just a selected committee.

b. Voters: do not let this bond issue be resolved by a minority of voters at the polls. If you have strong feelings as property tax payers; then get out on the 14th and vote. If you don't vote, then you have little to say about the results. This is your opportunity to have a say in the taxing system. You have a choice. Take the time to make it.

Sees water fall

You Don't Have To Go To Niagara To See The Water Fall!

Just drive by the north side of the middle school during a rain shower. No wonder the basement wall in the bandroom gets a little wet. Built like a fortress, this building in Europe it would stand another 3-400 years. Jim Dyke, architect for the school system, said that he would tie himself to the cornerstone if it were scheduled for demolition. (What would demolition cost?) Did you know that the middle school has a fall-out shelter rating by the civil defense? That ought to at least rate a downspout.

As a member of the School Committee, I received an information booklet from the Superintendent's Office on the needs and problems with our existing school buildings. In addition to the wet basement wall, the Middle School has "windows that are extremely hard to open". (WD-40) and "most window shades are worn out". Also the Elementary School "roof leaks" were classified as "long range needs". What is this? Planned neglect? Planned neglect on your car for instance is not an acceptable form of maintenance, unless of course you have a new one on order.

What can we expect the life expectancy of a new school building to be with this type of maintenance program? Where is all the money that has not been spent on maintenance? Where will the money come from to maintain the new building? More tax, or another bond issue? Is the Elementary School next?

Four school facility committee members, acting as private citizens invited John Sova, an Omaha architect, who specializes in school renovation, to tour and give advice on the Middle School situation. His services were free. On October 6, 1995 after a building tour, a noon meeting was held with some school board members at Riley's. Even though his original renovation cost estimates were a full two (2) million less than school's architect, Jim Dyke, he was respectfully and politely informed that the school had contracted the Architectural Partnership with Jim Dyke and the school board was now committed to working only with them. At the next facility meeting, the people responsible for inviting John Sova to Wayne were told by Dyke that any questions regarding the middle school were to be directed through him. Dyke also sent a scathing letter to Sova reprimanding him for unethical conduct. The letter to Sova said, "John, I acknowledge that the courts have struck the germane portions of our ethics code, but I for one do not believe that gives us a license to act with complete disregard for those said principals. I take issue with your statement to Dr. Jensen that this is like getting a second opinion from another attorney"

We need to remember that we, the taxpayers, are the bankers in this bond issue situation. Maybe, the $12 million in commissions and contingencies commands more architectural competition. We also need to be asking what are the taxable assets in the school district and what percentage of those assets are already mortgaged privately. We also need to know the percentage of delinquent taxes already being carried by the district and how the increase in taxes will effect this percentage. A banker will ask for three cash flow charts, best, probable and worst-case scenarios. What is the worst case scenario? A banker will point out that a lot of money has recently been spent and committed to be spent in this community both publicly and private. Just to mention a few area projects, Library/Senior Citizen Center, City Maintenance Building, Juvenile Detention Center and area church building programs.

Recently Bill Barrett, Nebraska Congressman stated that the national debt is rising at a rate of $9,000 per second. Why don't we set a standard and pay cash as we go. Let's build a fund first and then build the building. For example, something like the Charitable Remainder Trust could be created that would capitalize on money that would normally go for estate taxes. We could keep the dollars here at home locally. Why not court the Wayne High School Alumni and do them and the district both a favor? Remember, tomorrow's graduates, if they choose to reside in Wayne will have the obligation to make the bond payments as well.

Speaking of money. $8.2 million at 7% for 20 years, will generate approximately $32,000,000. Assume that Wayne High School will graduate 80 students per year for 20 years. This comes to almost $20,000/student or about 3.5 years at Wayne State. Will the new building improve education/student equivalent to 3.5 years of college? By the way did you know that a couple of months ago at LaMars, Iowa, a first mortgage was sold on an entire community college, dorms, classrooms, parking lot and all for 4.5 million? (Gaylen says, "even the Japanese didn't have enough money to bail them out".)

We need to get more efficient with the free and clear facilities we already have first. If the 365 day calendar year at 24hrs./day=100%, then the 185 day school yr. at 8 hrs./day=16%. There is room for improvement here. 84% of our potential "precious learning time" is not used. So is a two minute jaunt from one building to the other worth mentioning? Physical student group separation is not a bad idea and the PE dept. can tell you the benefits of exercise and the learning potential of an energized brain. The short breaks from the rigors of classtime will more than make up for itself in improved learning potential.

Now, I'm trying to tell you citizens to go vote! Let's solve this issue decisively this time because the perpetual bond elections are not cheap and it's your money. When AT&T wants to enhance the value of their stock, they get more efficient. They don't build more office space, they get rid of officers, 40,000 of 'em. There is a lesson to be learned here too. If you want our taxes on our cars, trucks, houses, land and machinery to decline, we have to get more efficient. And there is plenty of room for that I am not talking of cutting education in anyway, but education efficiency could be more easily improved if it weren't for federal and state mandates. Speaking of mandates, Federal, State, funded or non-funded, we must remember that either way we are ultimately paying the bill. It's time we stood up to the mandators, explain to them, if and when we have a problem, how we are going to fix it and why. Not the other way around. Are we not a country for the people by the people? After all, who is writing the checks? No doubt, this could save some paperwork. That's my idea of efficiency, like AT & T, less officers, not more office space.

How could we spend our dollars better? Think of the repair and upgrading we could do with one years interest on $8.2 million. At 7%, that's $1572/day. I think we should pick a couple of accessible rooms in the Middle School and turn them into an ultra-high tech department for science and computers. Also sub-divide some classrooms for the smaller size mandated curriculum courses. With a fresh coat of paint and white glove housecleaning from the rafters to the basement tile, combined with a positive determined attitude of class scheduling, this building would be more than serve our needs today and long into the future.

We have got to re-appraise how our money is being spent. I believe that the taxpayers are obligated to furnish a good, solid enviable, academic education. But, if busing, nutrition, sports and other activities need to be funded, who pays and why? But academics first.

In closing, I would like to talk taxes. Property taxes in particular are not exactly fair. For instance, you get only one vote if you pay $10 of tax or $10,000. In fact, you get one vote if you pay no taxes at all. Also, you may not vote, even if you pay taxes in the district but are not a resident. Anyone for a tea party?

Douglas P. Nelson
P.S. If you feel strongly about this issue, spread the word and spread it fast. Yours could be the deciding vote. The treasurer's office wants no complaints.

Mrs. Cook's students perform at piano recitals

Four students of Mrs. Pat Cook of Wayne performed in the Federation piano contest in Sioux City.

Christina Gathje, Mark Kanitz and Chris Stuber in their first year at Federation received superior ratings. Heidi Kirsch of Winside, after receiving superior ratings the past four years, received an excellent rating.

On April 17 and 18 seven students and Mrs. Cook performed at the annual National Piano-Playing Auditions of the American College of Musicians. Joe and John Whitt, Sarah Brumm, Mark Kanitz and Christina Gathje of Wayne each played a piece from their current lesson books which they transcribed to two different keys. Mrs. Cook, Christina and John performed the root chord arpeggios in the white major keys, with crossed hands, four octaves.

Joe Whitt, at the pre-primer level, learned his transcribe piece, "Sandman's Near" by Thompson, by rote, plus played three memory pieces to earn a District certificate. Jessica Johnson played five memory pieces including her own composition "Jumping," which the judge especially praised to earn a District certificate.

Four students earned State certificates: Mark Kanitz (six memory pieces), Sarah Brumm (six memory pieces plus played all white major and minor key scales), Christina Gathje (six memory pieces and white major and minor arpeggios) and John Whitt (six memory pieces, transcribed Burnam's "Two Children Humming" to keys of F and G).

Heidi Kirsch, at the high school level, earned a local certificate by performing three memory pieces: "Prelude in A Major" by Chopin, "Rondo Alla Turca" by Mozart and "To the Rising Sun" by Torjussen.

Mrs. Cook earned a Hobbyist certificate by playing seven pieces with music plus her transcription piece. These pieces included a Bach fugue (V), Liszt's "Consolation #3" and Joplin's "Solace."

Eleven students and Mrs. Cook, who is a student of Dr. Beverly Soll, will present an annual recital Monday, May 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Wayne Care Centre. Students who are not listed above who will be performing include: Rebecca Brumm, Billie Davie and Chad Jensen. This year's theme is "Classical Stuff and Lighter Stuff." Classical pieces will be play Rebecca Brumm (Variations on "Canon in D" by Pachelbel), Billie Davie ("Clowns" by Kabilevsky) and Chad Jensen ("Fur Ludwig" transcribed in several keys).

Cruella DeVille look-alike

Cruella DeVille, alias Logan Berry, from the movie "101 Dalmations", entertained the crowd during the Wayne Elementary School's spring concert. Students in grades kindergarten through fourth and the Special Choir sang a number of songs from Disney movies at Monday's concert. The concert was under the direction of Cheryl Kopperud. During the concert, strings students, under the direction of Mrs. Bonnie Day, also performed. Accompanist during the program was Deb Dickey.

Great Dane receives a safety award

Great Dane Trailers was recently awarded a Safety Achievement Award from the Nebraska Safety Council.

The plant was selected to receive the award because of their safety program, special emphasis programs (Hazcomm, Ergonomics, etc) training, community involvement and a decrease in lost time cases.

"We are every proud of this award and would like to thank every employee for taking an active part in safety. Every Great Dane employee can claim part ownership for it because without them, this award would not be possible," said Chris Nichols, Safety Technician at Great Dane.

Since January, Great Dane has given away over $800 in Chamber-Bucks and 10 day-off-with-pay awards to plant employees.

Otte awarded a memorial scholarship

Brett Adam Otte has been awarded the John and Nettie David Memorial Scholarship for the 1996-97 academic year at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Full-time students will receive $1,000 annually for up to four years by maintaining at least a 3.5 cumulative grade point average. The scholarships are funded from the John C. and Nettie V. David Memorial Trust, established in 1973 by the late Adrian H. David in memory of his parents. Adrian David was a prominent Minneapolis attorney and 1908 graduate of the NU College of Law.

Brett is the son of Dennis and Kerry Otte and will graduate from Wayne High School in May.

Wayne's Super 8 receives awards

The Wayne Super 8 Motel was recently honored during the second annual Superiel Hospitality, Inc. national convention held April 30 to May 3 in Norfolk.

Manager Lorna Smith-Gritton was presented an outstanding manager award. This award recognizes a manager for commitment, dedication, achievement and personal growth in management. This is Ms. Gritton's first outstanding manager award.

Named scholars

The United States Achievement Academy announced that Grant Jones and Stephanie Jones have been named All-American Scholars.

The USAA has established the All-American Scholar Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3, or higher, grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the USAA.

Grant and Steph attend David City High School and were nominated by Jerry Wiggins. They will both appear in the All-American Scholar Yearbook, which is published nationally.

They are the children of Mike and Joanie Jones and the grandchildren of Robert and Pauline Merchant of Wayne.

Area students have graduated

Trisha Ann Lutt, daughter of Louis and Mavis Lutt of Wayne, graduated Magna cum Laude from Nebraska Methodist College of Nursing and Allied Health.

Commencement exercises were held May 4 in the Witherspoon Hall of Joslyn Art Museum.

The commencement address was delivered by Robert Armstrong, President and CEO of the Omaha Housing Authority.

There were 85 members in this year's graduating class.

Jill Jordan received her Master of Public Administration degree from the University of Nebraska-Omaha during ceremonies held May 4.

Jill, the daughter of Robert Jordan of Wayne and Sheryl Jordan of Lincoln, is a 1989 graduate of Wayne High School and a 1993 graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

She is employed at the First National of Omaha-Service Center in Wayne as a management trainee.

Beef cutout value parallels decline of the live price

While low and lower prices continue to batter the beef industry, the difference now is that the cutout value (average wholesale) has fallen as much as the live price.

As usual, retail beef prices continue to adjust more slowly downward, according to Allen Wellman, livestock marketing specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Recent fed cattle prices near $60 per hundredweight were the lowest during the month of March since 1986. The light choice beef cutout value fell to about $95 per cwt., also the lowest since 1986.

With lower prices at the live, cutout and retail levels, what has happened to the overall cutout value? Can cutout prices give any clues to beef movement?

The high-value cuts have continued to hold most of their value relative to last year and the five-year average, Wellman said. These cuts have been the only ones supporting the cutout value. In fact, the medium- to low-value products have been dragging the average down. In early March, prices of many of the round, roast and ground products were the lowest on record.

Generally, different beef cuts are stronger at different times of the year. For example, summer cook-out favorites, in general, are strongest during the summer, the marketing specialist pointed out.

This year, the high value cuts — ribeyes, steaks, rib roasts — have continued to hold their value as cutout values have fallen. Rib rolls were recently only $7 per cwt. below the 1990-94 average. Rib roasts also have been only about $1 per cwt. below their average price over the same period.

Sirloins were trading $3 per cwt. above a year earlier and about $13 below the 1990-94 average.

While the high-value cuts have tended to have rather strong prices, other cuts have not fared nearly as well, the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said. Still, what has hurt the cutout has helped the brisket barbecue lovers. Brisket prices have fallen 32 percent from the 1990-94 average. In fact $87.80 per cwt. for brisket was the lowest price during early March on record. The February average brisket price was the lowest since 1986.

Recently, top rounds were at their lowest price per cwt. since March 1978, the year the data records set began. The bottom round price data records began in 1980. Early March prices were record low for that time of year.

Large cow slaughter dropped 90 percent lean ground beef to its lowest March level on record at $80.80 per cwt. The 50 percent lean product has been running about 30 percent cheaper than its 1990-94 average. For March, lean ground beef prices were lightly below 1995 and the 1986 price lows, Wellman said.

Drug Approved for Nail Infections

Itraconazole (Sporanox), has been approved for onychomycosis (fungal nail infections). Until recently this drug was only approved for systemic fungal infections such as histoplasmosis, blastomycosis, or aspergillosis. Prior to the approval, fungal nailbed infections often were treated with griseofulvin, an antifungal approved in 1958.

There are limitations to the use of griseofulvin. The drug is not predictably effective in all persons treated. Also, griseofulvin must be given until the infected nail grows out, which can take up to 12 months for infected toenails. Itraconazole, on the other hand, penetrates the nail better and its effects may last for 6 months or longer. Patients may respond adequately in 3 months. A couple of disadvantages are noteworthy. The drug is more expensive than griseofulvin. In addition, there are potentially hazardous drug interactions with itraconazole and certain other prescription medicines.

Wayne State shortstop Ben Huhman belts out a base hit against Nebraska at Buck Beltzer Field in Lincoln on Sunday.

'Cats end season against Huskers

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

The Wayne State College baseball team closed out the 1996 season with a road trip to Lincoln on Sunday to take on the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

The Wildcats, who had already defeated Division I Creighton this season, were hoping to steal a couple more wins against the Huskers.

WSC threw eight-game winner Joe Thompson against Nebraska in the first game, while the Huskers started seven-game winner Steve Fish. The 'Cats got off to a slow start as a walk, a hit and two errors led to a 3-0 lead for Nebraska after one inning. A pair of doubles and another WSC error boosted the Huskers' lead to 5-0 after two innings. UNL scored one more run in the fifth and two more in the eighth before leaving the bases loaded.

Wayne State never got untracked offensively, as the 'Cats couldn't put together more than one hit in an inning. WSC's best chance to score came in the seventh when Cory Graves doubled with one out. With two outs, he advanced to third on a wild pitch. Ben Huhman battled for a walk, but Adam Bealle flied out to right to end the threat.

Scott Ballinger picked up a pair of hits, while Chad Cerveney, James Mansell and Barry Richards all singled.

Thompson went the distance on the mound, allowing nine hits and five earned runs, while striking out three.

Nate Corman got the starting nod for game two at Buck Beltzer Field. Nebraska again jumped all over the 'Cats as they scored seven runs on seven hits in the second inning to take command of the game. The Huskers scored once more in the fourth to take an 8-0 lead. Aaron Garmong, Kevin Maulick and Tim Fancher combined to limit Nebraska to just three hits and no runs over the final four innings.

WSC scored a two-out run in the seventh when Bealle singled, Odell Santos walked and Darin Gregory singled.

Cerveney, Graves, Scott Cooper and Huhman also picked up hits for Wayne State.

The Wildcats finished the year with a record of 24-20, tripling their win total from last year.

WSC track team wraps up season

The Wayne State track and field teams wrapped up their seasons this past weekend at the 72nd Howard Wood Dakota Relays in Sioux Falls, S.D. In the process, they set three school records to bring the total broken this season to twenty. On the women's side, the 4 x 800 meter relay team of Kathy Dalton, Michelle Baatz, Kelly Bausch and Stefanie Senn clocked 9:45.64 for fourth place—a three second school record and eight second season best. The other school record set on the women's side was the 3000-meter run, with both Kathy Dalton and Stefanie Senn dipping under the old mark. Dalton placed seventh in 10:40.84 and Senn eighth in 10:41.84, with both clocking a 33.8-second final 200 meters. The old record was 10:49.02 set by Dalton last year at Howard Wood. Friday night Dalton and Senn placed fourth and sixth, respectively in the 1500-meter run, clocking 4:51.67 and 4:53.62. The former was a personal best for Dalton.

Other outstanding performances included Amy Gudmundson's fifth-place finish in the 400-meter dash, clocking a 59.81-second season best. Kelly Bausch also set a season-best time for 400 meters with her 1:01.87 clocking and Anne LaBrayere ran her best 3000 of the season, finishing in 12:22.0. Michelle Baatz ran 5:23.9 for 1500 meters and Dee Badura set a season-best mark in the discus, throwing 104' 4".

On the men's side, James McGown led wire-to-wire to capture the 5000-meter title Friday night. His time of 15:07.90 easily outdistanced the competition, and was his second-best of the year.

"We had hoped for a shot at the NCAA provisional mark of 14:57, but the race turned tactical early on," said head coach Brian Kavanaugh, "and there wasn't anyone in the race who could push James to a fast time."

Saturday, McGown set the third school mark of the meet, clocking 4:01.79 for sixth place in the 1500-meter run. The old mark was 4:03.02, set by McGown at Howard Wood in 1994. Other performances of note included Scott Fredrickson's personal best of 1:58.30 for 800 meters. J.C. Lightcap clocked his second-best time of the season for 400 meters, running 52.7 seconds, and Mark Beran tied his personal best for 5000 meters, clocking 15:53.0.

Wayne High German Club initiates new members

Elizabeth Lindau and Matthew Youngmeyer have been initiated into Nebraska Zeta, Wayne High School's chapter of Delta Epsilon Phi, the national scholastic honorary for students of German.

Students with an overall grade point average of 3.0 and a 3.6 in German, and in their third or fourth year of study of the language, are eligible for this honor.

The two students were welcomed into the chapter during the annual German Club breakfast for members and their parents.

Delta Epsilon Phi was founded in 1968 and has grown to 900 chapters nationwide.

The local chapter was founded in 1986. To mark the 10th anniversary, the initiation followed the working of the founding ceremony.

Members of Nebraska Zeta are expected to perform several hours of community service. This year's project is to take care of a newly planted Linden tree which the WHS German Club donated to the future arboretum near the high school.

The tree was dedicated to Xenia Wenzel, Benjamin Van der Auwera and Sebastian Huhmann, the three foreign students currently attending Wayne High School. Edith Zahner is the sponsor of both Nebraska Zeta and German Club.

What are the facts on marijuana?

Q. How do you feel about the dangers of marijuana usage today? I've heard that it isn't addictive and therefore isn't harmful; I've also heard that it is very dangerous. What are the facts?

A. Let me permit Harold Voth, M.D., to speak to that question. Dr. Voth has served as senior psychiatrist and psychoanalyst for the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kansas, and he has been the associate chief of psychiatry for education at Topeka Veterans Administration Medical Center. These are his words:

"My own family has provided a major stimulus for me to become involved in the problem of drug abuse. Seeing our three sons grow into wholesome manhood provides such a vivid contrast to those youngsters I have observed over the years whose lives have been damaged or destroyed by marijuana.

"Witnessing a young person harm himself is a tragic sight; it is heartbreaking. I think of what might have been for all of them, of their parents' broken dreams and of the sadness that has clouded the lives of their families.

"Therefore, to prevent others from walking down the path of deception offered the potential drug user, I refer you to the following facts:

*All parties agree, even those dedicated to the legalization and open distribution of marijuana, that children, teenagers and young adults whose minds and bodies have not yet matured, as well as pregnant women, should never smoke marijuana.

*90 percent of those using hard drugs, such as heroin, started with marijuana.

*Five marijuana cigarettes have the same cancer-causing capacity as 112 conventional cigarettes.

*Marijuana stays in the body, lodged in the fat cells, for three to five weeks. Mental and physical performance is negatively affected during this entire period of time.

*A person smoking marijuana on a regular basis suffers from a cumulative build-up and storage of THC, a toxic chemical, in the fat cells of the body, particularly in the brain. It takes three to five months to detoxify a regular user.

*The part of the brain that allows a person to focus, concentrate, create,

Focus On The Family

With Dr. James Dobson

learn and conceptualize at an advanced level is still growing during the teenage years. Continuous use of marijuana over a period of time will retard the normal growth of these brain cells.

*A study at Columbia University revealed that female marijuana smokers suffer a sharp increase in cells with damaged DNA (the chemical that carries the genetic code). It was also found that the female reproductive eggs are especially vulnerable to damage by marijuana.

*A second Columbia University study found that a control group smoking a single marijuana cigarette every other day for a year had a white blood cell count that was 39 percent lower than normal, thus damaging the immune system and making the user far more susceptible to infection and sickness.

*One marijuana cigarette causes a 41 percent decrease in driving skills. Two cigarettes cause a 63 percent decrease."

Q. There are times when I strongly resent my hyperactive child. Do other mothers share this frustration?

A. Your response is typical. Every mother of a hyperactive child occasionally experiences a distressing tug-of-war in her mind. On one side, she understands her child's problem and feels a deep empathy and love for her little fellow. There is nothing that she wouldn't do to help him.

But on the other side, she resents the chaos he has brought into her life. Speedy Gonzales spills his milk, breaks vases and teeters on the brink of disaster throughout the day. He embarrasses his mother in public and shows little appreciation for the sacrifices she is making on his behalf. By the time bedtime arrives, she often feels as if she has spent the entire day in a foxhole.

What happens, then, when genuine love and strong resentment collide in the mind of a mother or father? The inevitable result is parental guilt in sizeable proportions—guilt that is terribly destructive to a woman's peace of mind—and even to her health.

—These questions and answers are excerpted from the book Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions. ## Six truths of marriage

If you are a dual-earner with children family, great demands are placed on your resources — time, energy, money, patience and it may place great demands on your marriage. When this happens, your marriage may take last place on your priority list. Disagreements, conflicts and "fights" may increase. Here are some "truths" to remember about your marriage.

•Each relationship contains a hidden reservoir of hope. Even the most destructive fights and conflicts start with good intentions. These good intentions form the basis for the hidden reservoir of hope that a fully satisfying relationship can be achieved.

•One "zinger" will erase 20 acts of kindness. It takes only one put-down to undo hours of kindness. Intimate partners must learn how to manage their anger and control the exchange of negative behavior.

•It's not the differences that cause problems, but how the differences are handled when they arise. Partners must learn how to manage differences between themselves and their partners. Rather than focus on areas of agreement or disagreement, couples in happy relationships develop good listening skills.

•Men and women fight using different weapons, but suffer similar wounds. The appreciation of how each gender faces conflict is the first step to healing the negative feelings both sexes share. This task is made easier when partners realize that their wants and needs are similar, even though prior attempts to meet these needs were met by failure and frustration.

•Partners need to practice relationship skills to become good at them. Instead of continually changing partners in the quest for a happy relationship, people should be learning to manage conflicts, angers and disagreements that are common in all relationships.

Our Savior Lutheran Church is currently being served by three pastors, Bill Koeber, Wallace J. Wolff and Martin Russell. Pastor Russell recently came to Wayne and will be installed as Senior Pastor during services on Sunday.

Installation services to be held for new pastor

Installation services will be held Sunday, May 12, at Our Savior Lutheran Church for the congregation's new Senior Pastor, the Rev. Martin J. Russell.

Russell will be installed as Senior Pastor during the worship services at 8 and 10:30 a.m. Bishop Richard Jessen of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America's Nebraska Synod will preach and lead the installation services.

Pastor Russell comes to Wayne from Philadelphia, Pa. where he served at Faith Lutheran Church. He also previously served in Brgham, Texas.

Russell is a native of California and has lived in Colorado. He attended college at Midland Lutheran College in Fremont and received his Master of Divinity degree from the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Gettysburg, Pa.

"I am very excited to be in Wayne. I believe this is where the Lord has led me to serve," Russell said.

Russell's parents live in Grand Island where his father is a Lutheran pastor and his mother teaches school. His mother grew up in Emerson and he is familiar with the N.E. braska area.

"My immediate goal here in Wayne is getting to know the congregation and the community, as I lead the congregation into the future," he said.

"This is a very exciting time for the Our Savior congregation. There are plans to build a new sanctuary and turn our present facility into needed space for effective ministry and a fellowship hall" he added.

Our Savior is a congregation that serves people of all ages. Pastor Russell said he feels that the whole family of God gathers when we worship and "this certainly includes children. Children are a part of the Our Savior Lutheran Church family and should be encouraged to participate in all worship life.

Pastor Russell will have office hours at Our Savior each morning and plans to spend afternoons visiting the congregation.

In his spare time, Pastor Russell enjoys swimming, reading, snow skiing, playing softball, rotisserie baseball and listening to the Blues.

Serving with Pastor Russell at Our Savior Lutheran Church are Pastor Bill Koeber, Interim Pastor, and Pastor Wallace Wolff, Visitation Pastor.

The community is invited to attend the Installation Services for Pastor Russell. Between the worship services on Sunday at 9:15 a.m., a reception will be held in honor of Pastor Russell. Following the 10:30 a.m. worship service, a potluck dinner will be held. Meat, potatoes, drink and table service will be provided. Those attending the potluck are asked to bring one dish (vegetable, salad, or dessert) to share. Contact the Church Office for more information on the ministries of Our Savior at 375-2899.

Q. I have recently been told not to store my off season clothes in plastic bags — why?

A. Using ordinary plastic bags for storage can often lead to problems with your garments. Possible moisture condensation inside the bag will leave you with water spots or rings which can be very hard to remove. TIPS FOR STORAGE: 1. Always have clothes dry cleaned or laundered before storage. 2. Use a heavy garment bag made to store clothes or put in clean box. 3. Drape clothes hung in closet with a clean white sheet to protect from dust. 4. Never store in attic or basement.

Debating demise of family dinner

Sociologists have been lamenting the demise of the daily family dinner hour lately, and I'm beginning to believe them. Of course, "dinner" is "supper" to me. But it has basically disappeared, and I think it's sad. It probably can explain some of the stuff happening to the family.

I had a patient a couple of years ago who had been an orthopedic surgeon and raised a family of eight. Each of the children had fond memories of the dinner hour, when he would quiz them, discuss politics with them, and generally stimulate their minds.

pharmaceutical rep had just ordered a cook book of recipes requiring five ingredients or less. She does try to cook once on weekends, either on Saturday or Sunday.

One gal, who is my age, said they had moved off the farm into town and "they bring it to your home when you call: pizza, Chinese, etc."

I felt a bit out of place. I admit we don't eat "supper" at the same time every day. And some of the meals leave a lot to be desired. But most are home cooked. And usually feature meat and potatoes. The Big Farmer expects to eat three meals a day. And he likes dessert.

What is curious to me, if everyone's eating out or having it brought in, how do cook books remain a hot selling item?

It also explains why our guests enjoy having breakfast here. It's leisurely, and allows ample time for conversation. We've had some wonderful discussions, on every possible subject, around our table. Coffee, and food, seem to stimulate us. It's still a good habit.

The Farmer's Wife

By Pat Meierhenry

That used to be the time of day when family discussions were held; and problems could be aired.

At the Nebraska Hospice Association banquet a week ago, I sat at a round table with several other nurses. We were served chicken and rice. I commented that this was what we had had the evening before at the Farm House. The gal to my right said, "We had Amigos" and on my left, it had been raisin bran.

There followed a general review of the state of the family dinner hour in America. And the consensus seemed to be that it had disappeared! And that wives today are too busy to cook.

A century ago, school meant reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Pencils, books, and paper. Even in 1908, when Wayne's Middle School was built, educational needs were simpler than they are now.

It's time to build for future generations

Today's schoolchildren face a challenging, changing world, and the skills they will need to succeed in that world have expanded.

Questions? Concerns? Don't base an important decision on rumor. Come get the facts at an open house at the Wayne Middle School, sponsored by the Board of Education, on Thursday, May 9, (tonight) from 7 to 8 p.m.

They'll need to know computers, of course, and the technology that has brought them to the Information Superhighway and beyond. Even the way they are taught the traditional subjects has changed. But some things haven't changed. The basics are still there, the reading, writing, and arithmetic, and the other subjects that are the foundation of a good education. Another thing that hasn't changed is the caring. We've always taken care of the children. Ours and others'. Don't we still owe them that?

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4 A vote FOR this proposal will provide for the creation of the Tax Equalization and Review Commission by January 1, 1997, the members of which would be appointed by the Governor as determined by the Legislature, and whose term of office and compensation would also be determined by law. This commission would have jurisdiction over disputes regarding the state's revenue laws as provided by law, would have the power to review and equalize assessments of property for taxation, plus such other duties as the Legislature may provide for. Thus, a vote for this proposal would result in the elimination of the equalization powers now possessed by the Governor, Tax Commissioner, Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, and State Treasurer. A vote AGAINST this proposal would result in the Tax Equalization and Review Commission not being created, would continue reference in the constitution to the office of Tax Commissioner with jurisdiction over the administration of the state's revenue laws, and would continue the equalization powers presently possessed by the Governor, Tax Commissioner, Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, and State Treasurer. A constitutional amendment to establish and provide powers and duties for the Tax Equalization and Review Commission, to eliminate the ## Senior quilters raise money for center

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

For the past six years a group of women have spent time each morning and afternoon quilting. During that time, the group of seniors at the Wayne Senior Center have completed 120 quilts.

"The first quilt the ladies quilted was raffled off as a fund-raiser to raise money for a new stove for the center," said Georgia Janssen, manager of the Senior Center.

With the ground-breaking for the new Library/Senior Center earlier this spring, the group is anxiously looking forward to having their own quilting room. The quilters have helped design the new room which will have space for the quilt frame, a sewing machine, an ironing board and other needed material.

"For older people, there are two important needs in their lives, that of feeling useful or having a purpose in life and that of companionship. Quilting fills both of those needs.

"The ladies that come and quilt are doing something useful and also have a chance to visit with others while doing it. The stories they tell around the quilt frame are stories of life," Janssen added.

Quilting goes on daily at the Senior Center. Some of the quilters come in at 10 a.m. and quilt until noon. Others come after lunch and stay until approximately 4 p.m.

"There are a total of 15 quilters who quilt on a regular basis, but generally there are four or five who will be quilting every day," said Rose Rieken, one of the original quilters who still quilts regularly.

Others who were instrumental in getting the group started were Emma Eckert and Elsie Hailey.

"We usually have more quilters on Mondays and Tuesdays. On Thursdays and Fridays we have more activities, so we have less quilters," Janssen said.

The group is currently donating its time to quilt a quilt for the Hospital Auxiliary. The queen size quilt will be completed in just over a week.

"We have done a quilt in four or five days but generally it takes a little longer than that. We don't have a set time to get them completed. We just do it because we all enjoy it. We spend a lot of time visiting and talking about our younger days," said Leona Hageman, one of the regular quilters.

Prior to the Hospital Auxiliary quilt, the group completed a California king-sized quilt which took nearly three weeks to complete.

Other quilts are completed for a fee. "A quilt top is brought in, along with material for the back. The ladies then assemble the quilt top, the batting and the quilt back," said Janssen.

The group charges different prices for quilting different sizes of quilts and may charge more if additional quilting is needed.

Through their efforts, the group has raised more than $8,000 for the Senior Center. The money has bought a stove, a tread mill, a sewing machine, repainted the center and paid for everyday expenses for the center.

"We also go out for supper about three or four times a year with the money we earn," said Janssen.

The funds earned by the quilters are not usually for any specific project but are instead used to pay personal expenses at the center.

"These women have done a lot for the center by the time they have put into quilting. The money they earn pays for the snack provided here each afternoon, buys things for the center and gives them a sense of accomplishment," said Mrs. Janssen.

The group has a number of quilts waiting to be quilted.

"I always have one or two quilts waiting in line. As soon as one quilt is finished, they start another," Mrs. Janssen added.

Hartington facility has changed a great deal in 30 years

By Sally Schroeder

HARTINGTON - A home away from home, providing skilled nursing care for contented residents, means business as usual for the Hartington Nursing Center.

A thirty year celebration of caring and sharing for their elderly residents will take place next week, at the facility.

An 80 person staff, caring for the 66 residents in the home are dedicated, and take pride in what they are doing, said Nursing Home Administrator Pat Stonacek.

"Everybody that works here believes in what they do, and the residents come first," said Stonacek.

The Nursing Center, owned by Beverly Enterprises, a nursing home mega-owner, is an award winning facility by its own merit.

"Each year we are evaluated by Beverly Enterprises, and the State of Nebraska survey. We always know, if we can pass Beverly's own stringent guidelines, passing the state will be a piece of cake," said Stonacek.

In the most recent state evaluation, the Center received no deficiencies on the state level.

"Every home usually receives 4 or 5 deficiencies that are not very serious, but, it is extremely rare to be rated deficiency free," Stonacek said.

When Beverly Enterprises evaluated the Hartington Nursing Center last, the criteria was changed so that they had to rank in the top 20 percent of the four state district, in order to receive the Award of Excellence, "E" award, the administrator said.

"Not only did we earn the "E" award, we were ranked number four in all the Centers in our four state district," said Stonacek.

The nursing staff, under the direction of Alice Uhing, and her assistant, Jane Kathol, consists of 14 R.N.'s, and seven L.P.N.'s. The Certified Nursing Assistants must complete 75 hours of training, and Care Staff Members must complete 120 hours of study to become certified, Stonacek said.

Every department in the facility works to their full potential, in order to make the home as successful as it is today.

The Physical, Occupational, and Speech Therapy Departments each have a registered therapist and assistants.

The department became open to the general public last July for out-patient therapy, treating everything from high school athletic injuries, to stroke recovery victims, Stonacek said.

The state requires the activities department to provide something for the residents seven days a week, and two nights a week, said Stonacek.

Directed by Lois Kinney, residents take mystery bus rides, eat at the Hartington Senior Center once a month, have baking and cooking activities, besides the usual arts and crafts.

Several residents are able to maintain their own hobbies just as if they were still in their own home, by gardening, making rugs, and doing plastic canvas sewing projects, said Stonacek.

Beverly Enterprises encourages its employees to become members of the 24K Customer Service Program. By doing community service projects, outside of the home, the associates help plan and hold a variety of activities throughout the calendar year

"The whole facility is considered to be on the 24K team, but the actual planning committee consists of approximately nine people," said Rose Goeden, Medical Records director for the center.

Medical Director, Dr. C.J. Vlach has played an extremely supportive role in the success of the home, said Stonacek. Serving as Medical Director since 1987, Vlach has shown major backing in every aspect of the home.

"Without his help, we wouldn't be where we are today," said Stonacek.

Keeping up with the times throughout the past 30 years has been the biggest goal of all, said Stonacek.

"The paper work that has evolved in every department is unbelievable," said Stonacek.

Stonacek who has been a nursing home employee for the past 26 years, said when she first began, there weren't any Medicaid programs available.

"Even though the Medicaid and V.A.

programs are more economically advantageous for the facility, the red tape takes hours to get through," Stonacek said.

The Hartington Nursing Center has only had three administrators since it was constructed 30 years ago, beginning with Laverne Dorsey, Elvera Lewis, and currently, Stonacek.

"We continue to strive to stay current with the red-tape requirements, as we now study to pass Joint Commission accreditation," said Stonacek.

"Without the dedicated staff working at the Center, this place would not be the same. They are the ones who do all the work and it seems like the administrator gets all the credit, but the associates need to know, that isn't the way it is," Stonacek said.

A number of years ago, when a friend of mine married a man who was a "particular eater," I remember saying, "I wouldn't cook special things. Put the food on the table and if he likes it he does and if he doesn't - he doesn't."

I have found that is not necessarily a good recipe for marital advice. My husband has definite food preferences and there is some truth that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. My husband is much happier when I make some of his favorite foods.

Food is important to most men. My husband opens the refrigerator as carefully as he would turn pages in a bible. He opens the cupboards with the hope and the expectation that something wonderful to eat and already prepared will fall out. The only fancy thing in my refrigerator in are the ice sculptures hanging on the sides of the freezer.

I appreciate all kinds of food, everything from roast beef to rice to spinach leaves in a salad. I just like food. I like all kinds of food, prepared all kinds of ways. The only thing I have a hard time looking at is creamed Swiss chard on a bed of

Gardening is rewarding, but be sure to cover up & protect from sun

Gardening at home can be a rewarding experience.

But, too often people don't think about properly protecting their skin. Protection is important even when a person is outside for a short period of time.

Gardeners often believe they won't be out too long, so they avoid sunscreen and fail to wear protective clothing.

After two or three hours of digging, planting and watering, sun damage is possible.

Frequent and/or severe sunburn can cause serious skin damage over the years.

Precautions should be adhered to whenever in the sun, but exposure should be minimized between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., because the damaging rays are at their strongest then.

Even cloudy days without sunscreen or protective clothing can be risky, because the sun's ultraviolet rays -- the cause of sunburn -- penetrate through clouds.

Prolonged exposure to sunlight with little or no protection represents the major reason why skin cancer is an epidemic in the United States.

Basal cell carcinoma is the most common form of cancer. Others include squamous cell carcinoma and malignant melanoma. All kinds of cancer should be detected and treated immediately.

The location of the cancer, its type and the patient's prior experience with skin cancer all are considered when dermatologists select the most effective treatment method.

Information about skin cancer and about the free MoleWatch® skin cancer screening, provided by appointment at Midwest Dermatology Clinic's 10 offices in eastern Nebraska and South Dakota, is available.

Midwest Dermatology Clinic and its Skin Cancer Clinic can be reached in Omaha at (402) 552-2555, in Norfolk at (402) 371-3564, or by consulting the Yellow Pages for the nearest office.

It is just as well for a wife to not make a big deal out of the food a man likes. I just don't talk about onions and salads.

I have mellowed from my once bold statements about "particular eaters" so much it would make a chef's souffle fall.

Maybe the preservatives in my packaged cakes have gotten to me, but I just don't talk about food preferences anymore. Food preferences can be as controversial as climate control. Some like it hot and some like it cold.

Likewise, everyone has their likes and dislikes, and one of my least favorite foods are the words I have had to eat.

Bengtson Runs Second Boston Marathon

By Phil Carter
Star Sports Editor

When close to 36,000 runners took to the streets of Boston recently to run the 100th Boston Marathon, South Sioux City's Ardele Bengtson was right in the thick of the large crowd.

Bengtson, an avid long distance runner, qualified last fall for her second Boston Marathon by running a 3:42 at the Twin Cities Marathon in St. Paul, Minn.

"I really wanted to get back (to Boston)," she said. "It's such a tremendous race, and it has a great tradition."

Bengtson's last Boston Marathon was her first in 1986. She took the same route to get there much as she did this year, qualifying at the Twin Cities Marathon, but was overwhelmed at qualifying for the Patriot's Day event.

"It was an incredible feeling. I just started crying," said Bengtson who is a teacher at South Sioux City Junior High School. "When I crossed the finish line (at the Twin Cities), I knew I had qualified, but I was just so excited."

Wanted To Go Back

After completing the Boston Marathon a few months later in a time of 3 hours and 28 minutes, Bengtson knew she wanted to make it back to New England with her running shoes someday, preferably 10 years later.

"My first at Boston was the 90th running of the marathon," she said. "And I thought to myself, 'Wouldn't it be neat if I could make it back for the 100th.'"

Apparently so did other runners who have competed in the Boston Marathon. Over 75,000 applications were received for the centennial running, but only half were allowed to run.

"When I ran 10 years ago, there was a large group competing," Bengtson said estimating the total runners at 7,000. "But not nearly as large as the group of runners that will be competing this year."

For most people, running a marathon seems impossible, but not for Bengtson, 48, who actually enjoys the 26.2 mile endurance run.

"It's really a lot of fun," she pointed out. "There's not much to it, really, I tell people, 'I'm just running.'"

Started In Her Thirties

Marathon running or just plain long distance running didn't come easy or early for Bengtson, the wife of South Sioux City Councilman Al Bengtson. She was in her thirties when she began training solely for marathons and competing in long distance runs.

"I ran a couple of little races—two mile runs, 5 and 10K's, but never anything over that," she said. "But the people I trained with were always running and training for marathons, so it was either run by myself or train with them."

Even though Bengtson enjoyed the company, the change came naturally for her, and it wasn't as grueling as she thought it would be.

"I found out I really had the endurance to compete in marathons," she recalled. "I guess I'm just cut out to be a marathon runner."

Her first marathon was the Twin Cities Marathon in 1983. And, even though she's run marathons in Boston and London, she says it's the one event she'll never forget.

"Nothing compares to the first marathon," she explained. "You go through all that work and still find yourself halfway done at only 13 miles. That's when I said to myself, Ardele Bengtson posted a time of 3:42 in the 100th Boston Marathon.

"I still have 13 miles left. How am I ever going to make it?"

But tears began to roll down her face as she hit the 26 mile-marker, even though there was still two-tenths of a mile until the finish line.

"When I hit that mark (26 miles), I knew I was going to finish," she said smiling as she recalled that particular moment. "The feeling was unbelievable."

'When I hit that mark (26 miles), I knew I was going to finish. The feeling was unbelievable.'

— Ardele Bengtson

In order to prepare for a marathon, Bengtson usually runs 30 miles a week, at least that's what she starts out with. Sometimes, when a marathon is two to three months away, she'll run anywhere from 22 to 25 miles a day.

"You usually begin to prepare for a marathon about eight weeks before the race," she said. "It's important to begin with a base, otherwise you won't build up any endurance."

As for the rest of her family, which includes two daughters and a son, Bengtson says they're very supportive of her training and running.

"They know it's a part of my life," she quipped. "They just won't do it with me."

Although Social Security coverage is the same for men and women, there are still things a woman should know about Social Security that can make a difference in how well she does under the program. Following are ten steps you should take to protect your Social Security coverage as a woman.

1. Be Sure to Change your Name with Social Security.

If you marry, remember to change your name on your social Security card if you use your married name at work. If you don't make the change, your earnings may not be properly credited to your Social Security record. This means that when you retire, or if you become disabled or die, the benefits for you or your family will be incorrect.

2. Watch your Disability Coverage.

Remember, you need recent work under Social Security to qualify for disability benefits. The amount of work you need depends on the age at which you become disabled. If you become disabled before age 24, you need to have earned six credits in the 1 1/2 year period ending with the quarter you become disabled. If you become disabled between 24 and 30, you need credit for half the time between age 22 and the time you became disabled. After age 30, you need credits for five years of work out of the last 10. The point is, you want to maintain your protection by making sure you keep it current. It's not hard to do. You need only earn a certain amount of money a year ($2,560 in 1996) to get credit for the entire year. The amount required increases each year with increases in average wages.

A recent study noted that women are more likely not to have private disability insurance than men. Social Security may be the only protection for families that have come to rely on the mother's paycheck as an essential part of the family income. Thus it is important to take steps to see that the Social Security disability coverage is kept current.

3. Note your Benefit Options.

Women often find themselves in the position of having to decide whether to take a benefit on their own work record or their husband's work record. Or whether to take a benefit at age 60 or wait until age 65. Sometimes, the decision is whether to claim a benefit on their new husband's earnings or a previous husband's earnings.

Look at all the options. We will show you how much your benefits would be under any of the scenarios listed above. The decision is yours, but we will be glad to give you the information you need to make it.

4. Be Aware of your Rights as a Divorced Woman.

Remember, if you have been married for 10 years, you have the same rights to benefits on your ex-husband's Social Security earnings as a current wife. And your benefits will not affect those of the current wife.

5. How Marriage Affects your Benefits.

Generally, marriage terminates entitlement to divorced spouse's or mother's benefits. Benefits as a widow are not affected by remarriage.

6. Get a Benefit Statement

You can get a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement from Social Security at any time to get an estimate of the benefits you would get on your own earnings record. Your husband would need to request a statement of his earnings to see what benefits you could get on his earnings record.

7. Check your family protection

Note that your earnings give you the same family protection that your husband's earnings do. This means that if you retire, die or become disabled, your minor children could receive Social Security benefits even if your husband can't because he is still working.

8. Note Government Pension Offset

If you receive a pension from work in a government job that is not covered by Social Security, remember that it could reduce your Social Security spouse's benefit.

9. Note Windfall Elimination Provision

If you receive a pension based on noncovered government employment, your Social Security benefits may be reduced because of the windfall elimination provision. Your benefit would be figured under a special benefit formula which would give you a lower rate than that of a person who worked fulltime under Social Security low wages.

10. Note Household Workers Reporting

If you hire a householder worker, remember, you are responsible for reporting her/his wages and collecting and paying the Social Security tax. This is a perennial problem, and one that could result in tax penalties when overlooked. You may recall the publicity this issue received last year when several administration nominees revealed they had neglected to pay what has become known as the "nanny tax". The rules have changed to make it easier for people to keep track of their responsibilities as employers of household workers. Call Social Security and ask for more details on the issue, or the IRS for information on how to report household worker's earnings.

Earnings limit increased for working beneficiaries

If you're age 65 or older -- but not yet 70 -- and still working, you can earn $12,500 this year before your Social Security benefits are reduced $1 for every $3 in earnings. There is no limit for people age 70 and older.

A new law, signed March 29, increases the annual earnings limit from $11,520 in 1996 and gradually raises it to $30,000 in 2002. In 1997, the limit will be 4 13,000; 1998, $14,500; 1999, $15,500; 2000, $ 17,000; 2001, $ 25,000; 2002, 4 30,000. After 2002, the annual exempt amount will be indexed to growth in average wages.

The new law does not change the earnings limit for workers who are age 62 but under age 65. That limit is $8,280 in 1996 and will increase in future years with increases in average wages, as under present law.

Only your earnings are affected by Social Security's earnings limits. The law does not count non-work income such as investments, interest, pensions, annuities, capital gains, and other income not resulting from current work.

Preserve Special Moments With Memory Box

By Peggy Williams
Star Editor

Many of the important memories you make throughout your life can now be preserved forever, thanks to the space-age technology of freeze drying and the creativity of one South Sioux City woman.

Memory Boxes are the specialty of Sharie Lieber, owner of Sharie's Galleria at 1823 Dakota Avenue. Hand-crafted of fine wood, in any size from 18 x 18-inches on up, the boxes contain all the mementos of a couple's wedding day or, in later years, of their life together, or to mark a loved one's passing.

The box is generally lined in a richly-colored fabric and/or lace, with one item chosen as the focal point, Lieber explained.

For newlyweds, it's usually the bridal bouquet.

For older couples it might be a formal portrait or an item that holds special significance.

It might also contain flowers from a funeral blanket or arrangement and other mementos of that special someone.

Memory boxes can contain just about any memento a person chooses to include — flowers, a favorite book or fishing fly, photographs; etc.

"It's really whatever the person wants to include," Lieber explained.

Once the contents of the Memory Box are selected, Lieber goes to work.

Flowers are freeze-dried, a process that takes two to three weeks, she explained.

"The flowers are placed on wire racks, then slipped inside the specimen chamber. The temperature is lowered to 26 degrees below zero for three or four days, then gradually raised over the next three weeks back up to room temperature," Lieber explained.

The result — a permanent bouquet or floral arrangement just as vivid in color as when the flowers were fresh. The flowers and other items are then all wired or glued in place.

It's a nice way to keep special mementos together in one place, noted Lieber.

The cost for freeze-drying is $35 to $40 per bouquet. The Memory Box is purchased separately, with prices starting around $50. Sharie said the largest and most expensive box she's created was one measuring about 4 feet wide and 5 feet tall. Custom-made of oak by Brad Smith of Correctionville, it cost $225.

Lieber, who's been in business in South Sioux City for about eight years, began the freeze-drying service five years ago after reading about it in a professional crafters magazine.

"There are a lot of people who don't even know about the process," Lieber noted. "There's a place in Des Moines that does it, but the only other places doing it, that I'm aware of, are mostly in New York and California. On the coasts."

Week's Activities To Focus On Nursing Home Services

Beginning on Mother's Day, the nation is celebrating Nursing Home Week. Activities will focus on educating the citizens of Iowa's communities about the services provided in the long term care continuum.

Those include explaining to consumers what to look for when selecting a nursing home, the range of services available and how to finance these services. Those individuals that work with the elderly population will also be be recognized.

As America's aging population grows, the need for quality care, of these people increases. Because the future points to more specialized care for the disabled and frail elderly, nursing more homes are expanding their specialized services to include adult daycare, meals-on-wheels, respite care, Alzheimer's units, assisted living and occupational and physical therapy.

National Nursing Home Week Is May 12-18

"Joy In Caring" is the theme of National Nursing Home Week, an American Health Care Association (AHCA) sponsored observance, to be celebrated May 12-18, in nursing homes nationwide.

Intergenerational programs — programs that bring young and old together to share life experiences — are the focus of this year's National Nursing Home Week theme. AHCA has developed planning materials to encourage its more than 11,000 member nursing facilities to launch intergenerational activities during the week that will become integral to facility life.

"Nursing home residents represent a precious resource of wisdom, history, and personal stories that can help our youth to understand the rich legacy of our past," said AHCA Executive Vice President Paul Willging. "The recognition that nursing home residents still have much to offer our communities and our younger people is very much at the heart of this year's National Nursing Home Week observance."

National Nursing Home Week festivities provide an opportunity for the public to visit nursing home residents and to gain a deeper understanding of the issues relating to aging and nursing home care.

"The number of aging Americans needing long term care services is increasing at a time when government's ability to finance that care is diminishing," Willging explained. "We must join together to assure that quality long term care services are available to the frail elderly." President Clinton issued a message supporting National Nursing Home Week.

"This year's theme...underscores the warmth and happiness that can result when family members, care providers, and other supporters in the nursing home community work together for the well-being of patients and residents," President Clinton said.

AHCA is a federation of 51

affiliated associations, representing more than 11,000 non-profit and for-profit assisted living, nursing facility, and subacute providers that care for one million elderly and disabled individuals nationally.

- The average nursing facility resident needs help with approximately 4 activities of daily living. The average home health patient needs help with an average 2.5 activities of daily living. Activities of daily living include eating, transferring, toileting, dressing, and bathing.
- A full 63 percent of the nation's nursing facility population are disoriented or memory impaired.

Arbor Day At O'Connor House

Fourth grade students taking part in a One Room Schoolhouse experience at Combs School last week got the honor of planting an Arbor Day tree at the O'Connor House near Homer. Amber Carman captures the moment on film as a classmate looks on. Those taking part were Mr. Pope's students from Harney Elementary and former rural school teacher Margaret Rasmussen of Homer.

Sleep Needs Change

As we age, patterns of sleep change. The sound sleep of young adulthood may be replaced with waking during the night, getting up earlier in the morning or not getting to sleep as quickly. While many people adapt to less rest, others may worry about what they perceive as too little sleep.

So how much sleep is the right amount? Many people do very well with just three to five hours of sleep a night. For others, eight is an absolute minimum. The answer lies in understanding what your body needs and considering other "sleep resources" such as naps. Whether it's taking an afternoon catnap or shutting your eyes for a half-hour after a meal, it all counts toward your total need for sleep.

Hay fever... a sure sign of spring

The weather is warming up and that means everyone, including seniors, can spend more time outdoors doing a physical activity or maybe gardening. The spring can also mean hay fever.

Tree pollen is usually the culprit in the spring. Summer allergies are often triggered by grasses. In either case, the sneezing, runny nose and watery eyes are all common symptoms. Severe cases of hay fever can leave a person feeling so miserable that it can prevent you from working or following your daily routine. As a consolation, if you suffer from hay fever you aren't alone: more than 22 million Americans are sneezing along with you. Ten million Americans have asthma, which can often accompany hay fever.

Talk to your physician about what medication may suit you best so you can stay active in warm weather. Some antihistamine drugs - both prescription and over-the-counter - can cause side effects such as drowsiness and difficulty emptying the bladder. Many allergy medications also contain drugs that should not be taken by people with high blood pressure. If you use any of these medications, read the labeling carefully. In some cases, physicians will give desensitizing injections that will help a patient build up a level of hay fever tolerance. Usually, the shots have to begin well before pollen season.

To minimize hay fever once you begin to feel its effects, try to control your exposure to pollen in your home. Consider the following steps:

* If possible, keep windows and outside doors shut during pollen season. Pollen is at its worst during the midday and afternoon so keeping it out of your home is especially important at those times.

* Use air conditioning when possible during the worst times of your hay fever season.

* When coming inside from an outdoor activity, change your clothing. Also, take a shower and wash the pollen from your hair.

No matter how badly you feel, hay fever will not make you critically ill and the season will pass.

ACS and AHA support the message of beef

The American Cancer Society (ACS) and the American Heart Association (AHA) both support the message that beef can be a part of a balanced, nutritious diet. Support of organizations such as these is necessary for the beef industry to make a positive impact in the doctor's office.

With beef checkoff dollars, several programs are making an impact on health-care professionals and patients alike. A program with the American Heart Association, Nebraska Affiliate supplies health care professionals with 53 single topic information master sheets that discuss common cardiovascular conditions, treatments, tests and risk factors. This kit containing the sheets along with positive beef information has been placed in over 300 doctor's offices. When a patient is diagnosed with a cardiovascular condition, the appropriate sheet is giving to them for their information.

"Not only does the doctor get to read about beef's role in a balanced diet, but the patient does as well," said Jill Jensen, Director of Consumer/Retail Affairs for the Nebraska Beef Council. "It's a great concept."

Along with the "Answers By Heart" program, the Nebraska Beef Council is working with the AHA and the American Cancer Society, Nebraska Division in developing two different consumer brochures. Both brochures will include lean beef recipes with nutritional analysis and lean beef selection and preparation tips. Individually, the ACS brochure will list tips on cancer prevention and the AHA brochure will give tips on heart disease prevention.

The American Cancer Society, Nebraska Division and the Nebraska Beef Council are jointly involved in several different additional programs including an education program, All Aboard the Nutrition Express! for first through third graders. To roll out this program to teachers, dietitians will conduct in-services for teachers to familiarize them with this program.

Another program with the ACS involves informing restaurateurs how to lower the fat content in menu items while still keeping the taste. "More and more people are eating out but at the same time watching what they are eating," said Jensen. "We can show restaurateurs that beef can be prepared to fit in a low-fat diet."

The ACS fundraising event, the Cattle Baron's Ball, is a function that reaches health care providers and consumers alike while at the same time raises money for cancer research. "The American Cancer Society and beef industry volunteers have made that event into an incredible opportunity that generates many positive results," said Greg Ibach, Nebraska Beef Council Chairman. "Where else can a positive lean meat message be given to consumers, health-care providers and cattle producers alike?"

The 1996 Cattle Baron's Ball will be held June 1, 1996 at the Zutavern Ranch near Dunning.

Classroom students learn about sound nutrition

This school year over 2,000 Nebraska classrooms found out what a train, a pyramid, and elementary students have in common. They discovered this combination is a fun way to learn about sound nutrition through the educational program, All Aboard the Nutrition Express!

The partnership program between the American Cancer Society/Nebraska Division and the Nebraska Beef Council teaches students about a balanced diet with variety and moderation using beef as an example. The kit was written in part by teachers and registered dietitians and contains hands-on activities about nutrition, black line masters and a full-color Food Guide Pyramid poster.

To date over 2,000 kits have been distributed in Nebraska with several sent across the state borders. "It appears other states also have a need for quality nutrition education programs for lower elementary students," said Jill Jensen, Director of Consumer Information for the Nebraska Beef Council. "According to evaluations we have received from teachers, this kit is meeting the needs of thousands of classrooms."

Sharon Anania, a second grade teacher from Conestoga Primary Center in Omaha commented about the kit, "It was easy to use, informative and adaptable to my needs."

All Aboard the Nutrition Express is offered free to Nebraska first, second, and third grade teachers. For more information about the program, call the Nebraska Beef Council at 800-421-5326.

Checkoff program continues to increase in effectiveness

The beef checkoff program continues to increase in effectiveness. According to a recent study done by Professor John Ward at the University of Florida, the beef industry receives a $5.70 return on each dollar invested in beef checkoff funded programs.

"This study supports why it is so important for checkoff funded programs," said Jody Suchan, Director of Industry Relations for the Nebraska Beef Council. "These programs generate a better return on checkoff dollars and in turn a greater demand for beef from the consumer."

The biggest duty of the Nebraska Beef Council Board of Directors is to oversee checkoff investments and maintain a fair compliance system. As mandated by USDA, checkoff dollars are collected at various collection points. "We stay in contact with these collection points so we can answer any questions they may have," said Suchan. "This year, our goal is to visit all state feedlots."

ACCURATION - YOUR COWBOY IN A BAG

This year I had two cow herds. My own calves, I started on Calf Developer N in the middle of June and at a 5# consumption rate, I switched them to Accu-Creep and held a 6-8# consumption rate to sale date in mid-October. Cost of this program was only $25.10 per calf. The share crop calves were fed a competitive creep feed from start to finish with high consumption rates. The Accu-Creep calves ended up being the most even set of calves I have ever sold and averaged 100 pounds heavier than those on the competitive creep program. I was able to sell more pounds at a much cheaper cost of gain.

Another secret to cooking great beef

Here's a hint that can reduce the fat content of cooked ground beef by as much as 50 percent. After cooking crumbled ground beef until it is no longer pink, use a large slotted spoon to drain meat. Remove beef crumbles to large plate or dish lined with three layers of non-recycled white paper towels. Blot top of beef and let sit one minute. Place beef in a strainer or colander. Pour about 1 quart hot tap water over beef, stirring while pouring. Drain five minutes. The resulting lower-fat ground beef is excellent for use in chilis, tacos, pasta sauces and other seasoned dishes.

Today's beef offers great value

Quick-and-easy doesn't mean bland when it comes to beef dinners. Wet and dry seasoning rubs are a great way to add a flavorful kick to beef entrees in the blink of an eye.

To make a rub, combine your favorite seasonings in a bowl and mix until well-blended. It's best to keep rubs covered in the refrigerator until ready to use. Spread or pat on beef just before cooking. For information and suggested combinations for beef rubs, contact your state beef council.

Cooking preferences studied

When it comes to beef, you might say San Franciscans are a rare breed. According to the results of a recent Beef Customer Satisfaction Study, which measured customer cooking preferences of three kinds of steaks, more than 30 percent of San Francisco consumers surveyed prefer their top loin steaks cooked medium rare or less. More consumers in Chicago and Houston, on the other hand, prefer their beef steaks well done.

Philadelphia consumers are right in the middle; 30 percent of consumers there prefer their top loin steaks cooked medium.

This unprecedented study of beef consumption preferences involved tens of thousands of steaks, more than 1,000 households in San Francisco, Chicago, Houston and Philadelphia and extensive laboratory testing over a period of three years.

Gourmet Grecian steaks in less than 30 minutes

With today's quick-and-easy beef recipes, you can work late, get stuck in traffic, pick up the dry cleaning (or the kids) and still get home in time to prepare a delicious beef dinner. Beef has never been easier to prepare, and can still taste as good as you remember.

For example, Grecian Skillet Ribeyes is a recipe that takes less than 30 minutes to prepare, and requires just eight ingredients. Awarded "Best of Beef" at the 1995 National Beef Cook-Off®, this prize-winning recipe uses lemon juice, olives and feta cheese as garnishes for a gourmet look. Seasonings such as garlic, pepper, basil and oregano give the steaks a zesty, ethnic flavor that's sure to spice up your weeknight.

"It's a beef recipe that brings together what's happening today in terms of flavors, cooking styles and serving versatility," said Marlys Bielunski of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) test kitchens. "It's simple and delicious."

Total preparation and cooking time: 25 minutes

Grecian Ribeye Steaks

- 2 well-trimmed beef ribeye steaks, cut 1 inch thick (approx. 1 pound)
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons crumbled feta cheese
- 1 tablespoon chopped, pitted Kalamata or ripe olives

Seasoning:

- 1-1/2 teaspoons garlic powder
- 1-1/2 teaspoons dried basil leaves, crushed

- 1-1/2 teaspoons dried oregano leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

1. Combine seasoning ingredients; press into both sides of beef steaks. In large nonstick skillet, heat oil over medium heat until hot. Place steaks in skillet; cook approximately 10 to 14 minutes for medium rare to medium doneness, turning once. Sprinkle with lemon juice.

2. To serve, sprinkle cheese and olives over steaks; garnish as desired.

Makes 2 to 4 servings (serving size: 1/2 to 1/4 of recipe).

Sprieck brothers install water purification

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

With cattle prices low and feed prices high, beef producers are looking for ways to cut production costs and increase efficiency.

One method being used in a feed lot owned by Bob Sprieck and his brother Don near Pilger is called ozonation.

"We noticed we were having problems in our feed yards with foot rot. We tried several methods of treatment and cured the specific cases but were not able to prevent new outbreaks from occurring," Bob said.

Research led the Spriecks to discover the water their cattle were drinking contained high levels of nitrates. The nitrates in the water pass through the stomach and combine with bacteria to produce nitrites.

The nitrites in turn pass through the small intestine into the blood stream. As this occurs, the hemoglobin has a greater attraction for the nitrites than it does for oxygen. The condition leads to "blue baby syndrome" in human infants under the age of six months.

Feeder cattle have the same problems and additionally, they become more susceptible to foot rot and pink eye.

Nitrate contamination is widespread throughout farm land in the Midwest,

California and other states with agricultural areas. Areas of N.E. Nebraska have varying amounts of nitrates, with one area having a high concentration and an area close by having little or no nitrates.

Developed by "The Key" Water and Air International, Inc. in Lindsay, the system the Spriecks have installed is designed to treat water to reduce bacteria and viruses that cause problems in cattle herds. The system also involves a nitrate removal system.

"Our goal is to take healthy product to market," said Ernie Wilkink, president of "The Key" Water and Air International, Inc., who has done research in the field for a number of years and installed the system on the Sprieck farm.

The process of getting better water actually involves two systems, one to remove nitrates and one for ozonation of the water.

"Ozone is the strongest oxidizer there is. There are no chemicals involved with these type of water treatment," Wilkink said.

The process involves the producing of a "thunderstorm down on earth." Air is dried to a minus 65 degrees and then exposed to an electrical charge, creating an extra molecule.

Ernie Wilkink poses with Bob and Don Sprieck on their farm near Pilger. The Sprieck's have installed a water purification system designed to remove nitrates and kill bacteria in the water for their 2,000 head feedlot.

The bacteria in the water are then exploded and the water is disinfected.

"The process of ozonation will replace the need to use chlorine to treat water. We Ted Baack and Dennis Totten at Pac 'N' Save can recommend the best beef cuts as well as the best cooking techniques.

Recipes are needed for cookoff contest

Your Favorite Beef Recipe Could Be Worth $25,000 Contact: Jill Jensen, Director of Consumer Affairs 800-421-5326 You could win $25,000 just by preparing your favorite beef recipe. How? Enter the Nebraska Beef Cookoff contest to be held later this year. The state beef cookoff winner will have the opportunity to be chosen to compete at the National Beef Cookoff for the $25,000 grand prize.

"What an opportunity," said Jeanene Wehrbein, Nebraska Beef Cookoff Chairman. "But to have the chance to win, you better hurry."

Although the state competition will not be held until later this year, the deadline for entries - June 1, 1996 is fast approaching. To qualify, entrants must be nonprofessional cooks who are at least 18 years old. Successful recipes are easy-to-prepare, flavorful main dishes that show off the versatility of beef and meet several criteria, including:

Preparation and cooking time of 60 minutes or less, including marinating time. Use of at least 1 pound and no more than 2 pounds of beef; Use of no more than 8 ingredients, excluding salt, ground black pepper and water. Be an original, unpublished recipe.

The winner of the state competition will receive $1,200 and have an all-expense-paid trip to Tampa, Florida, September, 18-20, 1997 for the national contest.

To receive the complete contest rules, call the Nebraska Beef Council at 1-800-421-5326.

are using nature to solve problems," Wilmlink said.

"Getting a better weight with a greater yield will put more money in the pocket of the producer," Wilmlink said.

"Our studies have shown that with our system, cattle drink .4 more gallons of water per day. In addition, after the foot rot problems go away, the cattle move around more, which leads to them drinking more water," he added.

The system that has been installed for the Sprick operation can handle 7,000 gallons of water per day. It has reduced the nitrate level from 41 parts per million to three to four parts per million.

"We have a water softener in our house, but since we installed the system, we have noticed that our water is even softer," Bob said.

"The Key" system is custom designed for each customer. "Each situation is different and every producer will have different results," Wilmlink added.

"We do anticipate the system paying for itself within a year. And, the system will improve the quality for both humans and livestock.

"There is the same amount of water on earth that was here 5,000 years ago. We have to take care not to pollute it," he added.

Ernie Wilmlink, president of "The Key" Water and Air International, explains his system to a number of producers and reporters at a recent press conference. The nitrate removal system and ozonation system can be seen in the background.

Nebraska Beef Council seeks director candidates

Now is the time to get your candidate signature petition if you would like to be involved first-hand with Nebraska beef checkoff investments. Nebraska Beef Council Board of Director elections will take place later this year in five out of the nine Nebraska Beef Council districts.

Nebraska Beef Council directors volunteer their time to represent checkoff paying beef producers on the state and national level. Their major responsibility is to oversee checkoff expenditures by determining the beef promotional programs for checkoff investments.

"Being a voluntary director, you must sacrifice a great amount of time, but that sacrifice brings satisfaction in serving Nebraska beef producers," said election committee chairman Lew Laffin of Crab Orchard.

The first step to becoming a Nebraska Beef Council Director is meeting the candidate qualifications. "Some of the qualifications include being 18 years of age or older, a registered voter and a Nebraska beef producer. After meeting the qualifications, getting 200 signatures on a candidate petition is the next step. The petitions are available at the Nebraska Beef Council office and must be completed and returned back to the office by Sept. 15.

"It takes perseverance and time to get 200 signatures, but getting those signatures shows there is candidate support in that district," said Nebraska Beef Council Director Merlyn Carlson of Lodgepole. "Support is important since the director will be representing all of Nebraska beef producers on a state and national level."

Current directors up for re-election include District 3 Director Tom Feller of Wisner, District 5 Director Ted Sherbeck of Ansley, District 7 Director Jeanene Wehrbein of Plattsmouth and District 9

Director Greg Ibach of Sumner. Also the director for District 1 will also be open because current Director Merlyn Carlson of Lodgepole has fulfilled his term limits.

"It's a big commitment, but it is a commitment worth making for the sake of the beef industry," said Nebraska Beef Council Executive Director Lawrence Yates. "We need dedicated beef producers to lead us into the next century and a long successful future."

For additional information on the election procedure or to receive your candidate petition, call the Nebraska Beef Council at 1-800-421-5326.

Meeting held to give checkoff information

What are beef checkoff dollars funding? What is the future of the beef industry? These questions and many others were answered at a checkoff information program in Wisner earlier this year. Communicating to the beef producer about checkoff funded programs is important so they know where their dollars are going.

"Without beef producers' checkoff dollars, beef promotion programs could not be done," said Lawrence Yates, Executive Director for the Nebraska Beef Council. "It's their dollars that make beef number one at the grocery store, at the restaurant and at home."

At the 'Check out the Checkoff' program, Nebraska Beef Council staff and representatives from the National Cattlemen's Beef Association reported on checkoff funded programs on the state and national level. Discussion also revolved around the future of the beef industry and the role checkoff-funded programs play in that future.

Tom Feller, a Nebraska Beef Council Director and member of the Cuming County Feeders - the group that sponsored the program - said he was impressed by the program's outcome. "We had over 80 beef producers from the area attend the meeting and all the responses so far have been positive."

The Nebraska Beef Council is planning other meetings throughout the state. "Informing producer is an important goal for the Nebraska Beef Council," said Yates. "It seems like these types of meetings are the best way to let them know where their checkoff dollars are being invested and the effects these programs have."

The Evolution of the Burger

In the early 1800's, the Hamburg Steak is introduced to the United States by German immigrants in the form of broiled chopped steak.

1885 According to some sources, Charlie Nagreen of Seymour, Wisconsin invents the American hamburger at the age of 15 delivering it from his ox-drawn concession stand at the Outagamie County Fair.

1904 The hamburger gets its first widespread attention at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis, Missouri where it creates a sensation. Several authorities believe the vendor was Fletcher Davis from Athens, Texas.

1924 California grill chef Lionel Sternberger concocts the first "cheese hamburger" in Pasadena, California at The Rite Spot restaurant.

1995 Today, burgers remain America's favorite food, with 86% of the population ordering in the past year.*

Retail programs are helping to increase beef purchases

Consumer market research shows that new recipes can generate incremental beef retail purchases. Using checkoff funds, the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) and the Nebraska Beef Council have created two types of self-standing meat counter displays, called the Beef Recipe Center, to distribute more recipes during the time of increased supply.

The larger Beef Recipe Center developed by NCBA has been distributed to over 10,000 different grocery stores during five peak supply periods. Each display provides 350 full-color recipe sheets. Each sheet separates into six new recipe cards which includes a color photograph of each beef meal. Stores qualified if they had above-average beef sales, the right meat case configuration and were in a desirable location.

The smaller Beef Recipe Center developed by the Nebraska Beef Council has been distributed to over 600 grocery stores in Nebraska. "The smaller centers are less expensive so we can send them to all the stores that want them," said Susan Filipi, Nebraska Beef Council Director of Retail/Foodservice. "This has resulted in an amazing number of recipes distributed." Each small recipe center holds 100 brochures with eight different recipes per brochure. Since distribution began over 527,000 recipes have been distributed to consumers, right at the meat case.

"The beef industry needs to help retailers find exciting ways to move more beef," said Filipi. "The Recipe Centers are specifically designed to meet the needs of both retailers and consumers. Studies show 23 percent of consumers buy additional beef during their shopping trip in order to make the offered recipes with 64 percent making the recipe within two weeks." The recipe centers have also proved positive to the retailers with 19 percent indicating the centers generate increased sales at the meat case and over 90 percent saying they would like future recipe centers.

Food service programs essential to Beef Industry

With the changing times, more and more families rely on restaurants and take-out food when it comes to meal time. Matter-of-fact, over half of consumers' food dollars go to the foodservice industry.

"People are busy with both parents working full time and the increase of single family homes; the last thing many people have time for is preparing a meal after work," said Susan Filipi, Director of Retail/Foodservice for the Nebraska Beef Council.

That's why the Nebraska Beef Council is involved with numerous foodservice programs. One program in particular involves increasing beef items on the restaurant menu. The menu incentive program gives foodservice owners money toward reprinting of their menu if they add a new beef menu item.

"We're seeing great results from this new program," said Filipi. "Already over 50 new beef items were put on menus across the state. As a result, more beef has been purchased by customers due to the additional choices."

Another foodservice program the Nebraska Beef Council sponsors is the Beef Backer "Beef It's What's for Dinner" program. This program honors restaurants and their distributors/purveyors for their leadership in beef menuing and merchandising.

Currently the Nebraska Beef Council is accepting entries for the tenth annual Beef Backer award program, with the deadline being May 15, 1996. "Perhaps it's your favorite neighborhood restaurant that fixes pot roast like Mom used to make. Or maybe it's your favorite steak house that delivers mouth-watering steaks to your table. Either way we are looking for your nominations," said Filipi.

The state winner will be recognized at an awards ceremony where, in the past the Governor or Lieutenant Governor has presented the award. The winner will also be considered for the National Beef Backer title.

Nebraska beef workshop is designed to educate producers

Personnel from the University of Nebraska, Nebraska Cattlemen, Nebraska Beef Council, Nebraska Farm Bureau and the Sandhills Cattle Association met recently to finalize plans for the Nebraska Beef 706 Educational Workshop set tentatively for Aug. 13-15. The first workshop will accommodate 30 beef producers from across the state and include other individuals from allied partnerships.

Education is vital part of beef industry

Future purchasers of beef are kids today.

That's why education is a vital part of the beef industry. The Nebraska CattleWomen, with beef checkoff dollars, oversee numerous beef promotion projects. Several are specifically directed towards young people and their attitudes on beef.

One program, Project Ag-Venture, shows kids that farmers and ranchers go to great lengths to take care of their animals, land and the water. A team of Nebraska CattleWomen travel from school to school elaborating on these practices using personal examples. Along with telling the students how ranchers are good stewards of the environment, the group also teaches kids how beef is an important part of a well balanced-diet.

Nebraska CattleWomen President Roxanne Eathing said the program's slogan, 'There's just no way to have an AgLess day' is a great way to let children know the importance of the beef industry in Nebraska. "Knowing the importance of agriculture in their daily lives, future consumers will walk away knowing that agriculture is part of every aspect of our lives." The program is in its fourth year. Last year alone 1,038 students were reached with the positive agricultural message. Because of the outstanding results, the presenters have won national recognition in the American National CattleWomen Beef Educator Contest every year since the program began.

Another Nebraska CattleWomen program centered around youth is the 4-H Beef Ambassador contest. The contest, open to all youth ages 14 to 19 consists of a 5 to 8 minute illustrated presentation on facts about beef and the beef industry. The winner will receive an all-expense-paid trip to San Antonio, Texas, to compete in the national competition in November.

Last year's winner, Crystal Nelson of Davey, presented her winning presentation to numerous civic and community groups along with participating in several radio and television interviews.

"This competition is an excellent opportunity for students to learn about the beef industry and the importance of beef in our economy," said Ann Bruntz, Nebraska Beef Ambassador Coordinator. "At the same time, this program aids in the teaching of speech and presentations."

If you would like to know more about the contest and receive the complete set of rules and regulations contact Ann Bruntz, Nebraska Beef Ambassador Coordinator, RR 1 Box 24A, Friend, NE 68359, (402) 947-8661.

The workshop will explore the quality, consistency and value of Nebraska beef and will address beef cattle production practices that decrease quality as a result of defects that lower beef's competitiveness with other protein foods.

Nebraska Beef 706 will be presented by the University of Nebraska and the Nebraska Beef Council under the direction of Dennis Burson, Extension Meat Specialist, with technical assistance provided by the Nebraska Cattlemen. Checkoff dollars will assist in funding the program.

Industry program gives the real skinny on beef

Faced with inaccurate accusations about their products and way of life, cattle producers have "taken the bull by the horns" and developed a proactive way to inform consumers about beef production and industry practices.

The program was created by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), to train a grassroots corps of industry spokespeople to be positive representatives of the cattle industry. Participants include cattlemen and women, cooperative extension personnel and students. Since its inception in 1991, more than 1,700 cattle producers and other supporters have been trained as industry ambassadors, reaching an audience of more than 118 million people.

"It used to be that most people were connected with farming and agriculture in some way or another, so they knew something about cattle production," explained Barb Wilkinson of NCBA. "Now, generations later, many people simply don't know how beef gets to the dinner table."

The spokespersons are required to complete a two-day training program and then commit themselves to conducting 12 positive activities promoting the beef industry in the next year. Program initiatives include giving speeches, writing letters to the editor, one-on-one meetings with editors and reporters and placing radio and television public service announcements to correct inaccuracies and educate consumers about beef and the beef industry. Many who go through training stick with the program even after fulfilling their 12 activities. For example, one participant has made more than 150 classroom visits.

Participants choose their own industry topics for discussion. Dietitians participating in the program, for instance, educate consumers about beef and nutrition. Other issues include cattle production practices, economics and the environment.

"We're all part of a beef industry choir," said Wilkinson. "We don't always say the exact same thing at the same time, but our joint goal is to educate and show that the industry cares."

NCBA, which represents all segments of the beef cattle industry and operates under a single plan and budget, has two divisions. One division manages checkoff-funded marketing programs such as the "Beef. It's What's for Dinner®" consumer advertising campaign. The other is a dues-funded policy division that addresses economic, political and social interests of the U.S. cattle industry.
