Rainbow World names director

Rainbow World, a non-profit child care organization in Wayne, has announced its fall programs and named Erelene Stubbs, director of the Center.

Erelene Stubbs

Beginning in August, Rainbow World will offer a pre-school for children ages 3, 4 and 5. The pre-school will consist of lessons designed to enhance the child's social interactive skills, develop self-esteem and self awareness and serve as preparation for kindergarten.

An after-school program for school-aged youth will also be available. The after-school program will include music lessons, art, recreational activities, tutors and more. This program is designed for children first through sixth grade age. This will provide a much-needed service for those families where both parents work and need a place for their children to go until they can get home.

Rainbow World will continue to offer day care for newborns through pre-school aged children. This year, Rainbow World has lowered their rates to $1.35 per hour, for each child. The rate will be the same for daycare, pre-school and after-school services, which is more competitive with other area facilities. In addition to the lower rates, the Center offers a high quality facility, trained and

Department of Labor says school is safe

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Tests taken by the Department of Labor indicate that while there are three types of bacteria present in the air in the Middle School, none registered above normal incidence levels.

This was the finding of Johnnie Smallwood, Environmental Hygienist with the Dept. of Labor and caused the Wayne Board of Education to question what steps should be taken next regarding the Middle School building.

Tests conducted analyzed the particles in the air for hazardous contaminants such as lead or bacterial spores, histoplasmosis, a lung disease caused by spores associated with bat feces or other types of mammals, bacterial spores friable in the air from the particle elements in the walls and bacteria hazardous air particular outside the building for comparison purposes.

The air analysis was completed with devices placed in the suspected areas for eight hours to compare with a regular school day.

Results of the testing showed that there was no incidence of histoplasmosis spores in the air and the three types of bacteria present in the air were not of the incidence to cause alarm.

The tests did indicate that there are four rooms where sections of

Acid-laced tattoos concern officials

Health officials are alarmed that children on both coasts are being introduced to drugs through innocent looking paper tattoos laced with LSD, an illegal hallucinogen drug.

Warnings issued in Connecticut and California are not lost on Northeast Nebraska education and law enforcement officials. The drug-laced paper tattoos that youngsters are encouraged to lick and stick on their skin, have turned up in this area.

Wayne Police arrested a man last fall and charged him with distributing the illegal drugs via the one-half-postage-stamp-sized paper which police called blotter acid.

Wayne Police Chief, Lance Webster said the illegal drugs are printed on sheets often with innocent looking and colorful symbols and characters such as blue stars, Superman, Mickey Mouse, clowns, Disney characters, Bart Simpson, butterflies and more.

Wayne State College health professors and officials were warned about the drug distribution technique by colleagues in California, Connecticut and Wisconsin via the Internet. WSC officials met last week with Wayne school administrators and the Wayne Police, all of whom are jointly warning parents in the region to be on the watch for the suspicious products.

"This is very serious," said J. O'Donell, at the Danbury Hospital Chemical Dependency Treatment Service in Connecticut. He issued the Internet warning. "Young lives have already been taken," said O'Donell. "This is growing faster than we can warn parents and professionals."

Wayne officials warned that the small tattoos, often wrapped in foil, should not be handled because the drugs are designed to be absorbed through the skin. The Internet warnings have also reported that some of the tattoos are laced with strychnine.

"With this menace already having been seen in our area it is crucial that parents warn their children to be careful about handling such items," said Wayne School Superintendent Dr. Dennis Jensen.

Webster said there have been no reports or appearances of the drug-laced tattoos in this area since last fall. However, he said the contraband is easily transportable and people should be aware of the danger.

He said drug traffickers use the tattoos as a method of distributing the drugs because they are easy to hide, easy to deliver and because they appeal to young people who often are introduced to the substance through innocent looking "free samples."

Council debates garbage pickup

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

Residents of Wayne may or may not have to separate recyclables for pick-up.

City Council members voted to approve the changes recommended by the Solid Waste Management/Recycling Committee and advertise for bids for garbage pick-up.

Council person Jane O'Leary said requiring the haulers to separate the garbage will shut out the local haulers.

Bill Kranz, chairman of the committee that recommended the co-mingled recyclables to get more people involved in the recycling effort.

Kranz also recommended a fee structure based on the volume of trash a household produces, which would also encourage recycling.

Council person Patty Wieland said that while the present plan is not perfect, the city needs to start somewhere.

The council gave its approval for the local garbage haulers to take solid waste directly to the landfill on a three month test period.

The haulers have requested this test period to see if it is economical to haul directly. During this time the transfer station will remain open the regular hours for those who use it.

The council also spent time discussing the alternatives for the road leading to the softball complex in the south east part of town.

Council person Wieland said that a number of activities are going on during the summer and the road is only one car wide, resulting in dangerous situation for children riding bikes to and from those activities.

Councilman Verdel Lutt said the street is dangerous and that the complex brings money into the city and something should be done.

He said that with a small investment from the city and volunteer labor, a bike path and other maintenance could be completed before the next softball season.

The council voted to make a contribution to the Wayne Agricultural Society for the difference between the amount the society paid for water last year and the amount they would have been charged under the new water rates this year.

The water bill will be computed using this year's water usage and last year's water rates.

The amount of the difference was nearly $1,900 because of the size of the water meters and the fact the fairgrounds is outside city limits.

The council amended the 1995-96 budget to reflect changes in revenue that the city has received and established a separate 911 Surcharge Fund in an effort to prepare for next year's budget.

Council also accepted a bid for $27,814 for the Library/Senior Center Facility Shelving Phase. The bid represents the base unit and additional units for the library.

The council voted to wait and observe the intersection of Third and Pearl Streets before installing a four-way stop sign. Council members said they have had comments for residents of Wayne both for and against a four-way stop and suggested a number of alternatives including stop signs when activities are taking place at the auditorium.

Mr. Smallwood suggested that the school district bid a ventilation system which should be installed as soon as possible, the plaster in sections of four rooms in the middle school be removed and replastered, any leaks in the roof in the middle school must be repaired, the bat presence must be removed including the feces.

At their July board meeting, the Wayne Child Care Board named Erelene Stubbs as the new director of Rainbow World. Stubbs has worked with children as an advocate, a teacher and a pre-school director for nearly 20 years. She co-founded helpYOUth, an organization for children and youth advocacy in N.E.braska in 1993. Most recently she has been involved with the organization of a Child Advocacy Center in Norfolk.

"I am delighted to be here," Stubbs said. "I think Rainbow World has a lot to offer to the community of Wayne and the surrounding area." She noted that the new programs planned for the fall will be a great benefit to area parents. "Parents will be able to leave their children here on their way to work and know that their needs are being well taken care of throughout the day," she said.

The microbiologist suggested walls throughout the middle school building be wiped down every two weeks with a bleach containing cleaner.

The administration recommended to the board that the Middle School be used in the coming school year and that it be opened on time.

The board looked at the cost of making the recommended improvements and discussed why the test results appeared to disagree with what the board had been told by teachers and parents of Middle School students.

Cost for the ventilation system is estimated at $300,000, removal of the bats is being done at a cost of $5,600, removal of the bat feces will cost approximately $20,000, the plaster will cost $2,500, installation of gutter $3,000 and roof work $6,000.

board member Jean Benkamp said the board appreciates the teachers support during this time.

Marion Arneson said he wasn't sure he was ready to spend that amount of money in the building that may not be used in a few years.

The board also discussed options to using the Middle School, including alternating schedules with the high school and purchasing modular units.

Richard Metteer, Middle School Principal, said he felt the dollar figures for the work that needs to be done are low and he is concerned about the long-term health effects of being in the building.

A special meeting will be held Aug. 5 at 7:30 p.m. to inform the public about scheduling options and what steps are being taken to deal with the situation.

Reading program completed

The Wayne Public Library's summer reading program, "Peer-Amid Books-Read," was recently completed after six weeks of reading and activities. There were 97 active readers registered, ranging in age from age four through sixth grade.

A total of 2,240 books were read.

The kick-off program was presented by Dr. Nina Little who is the supervisor of Library and Instructional Services at Omaha Public Schools. Dr. Little shared some of her enthusiasm for Egypt with the children.

Four additional programs were enjoyed by students in grades 4-6. Dr. Swerzek shared information on pet care and how to choose the right pet. Pam Boehle helped participants decide which snacks would fit into the food pyramid. Claire Rasmussen led the group in making paper one week and followed it up with a demonstration on hieroglyphics the next.

Grades 1-3 and Read-to-Me participants also met once a week to listen to stories and do a related craft.

Several children attended all five of the reading program activities. Chantel Bealler, Jim Bierbower, Eric Carstens, April Damme, Sara Frerichs, Hailey Hintz, Leslie Hintz, Karissa Hochstein, Kayla Hochstein, Angela Holstedt, Ruth Kanitz, Stephanie Kay, Ryan Klein, Stephanie Klein, Brad Koll, Brian Koll, Amber Lutt, Halsey Lutt, John Murray, Taysha Roney, Nathan Shapero, Max Stednitz, Brittini Sprouls and Kalie Sprouls each received an award for perfect attendance.

The top readers in each grade were: first grade-Maddie Jager (71 books) and Elizabeth Baier (66); second grade-Brittini Sprouls (56) and Emily Brufat (46); third grade-Dustin Lutt (40) and Nathan Shapero (27); fourth grade-Jacob Kay (29) and Marissa Rose (15); fifth grade-Joshua Austin (17) and Tiffany Frerichs (15) and sixth grade-Joseph Holstedt (30) and a tie between Faith Kroeker and Ann Temme (nine).

The library would also like to recognize Eric Carstens (163), Reggie Ruhl (101) and Michelle and Shannon Jarvi (90), as well as their parents, for reading a tremendous number of books. They were the four top readers in the Read-to-Me group.

Max Stednitz was winner of Read-to-Me drawing.

Approximately 100 children gathered for the awards party held at Bressler Park. The children participated in an unwrap the mummy relay and several other games. There was also a Cleopatra's make-up booth with Angie and Bonnie Hansen providing face painting.

Awards were distributed by the library staff while participants snacked on pyramid popcorn and punch.

"The library staff would like to thank all the parents and other helpers who brought children to the library, read to children and encouraged children to read," said Jolene Klein, Library Director.

"Thanks to Leah Agler and Lisa Nelson for helping out with story hours and also Emily Kinney for being the customs official."

The library would like to thank the following businesses who donated supplies and services for the program: Ben Franklin, Cafe Court, Carhart Lumber, Dairy Queen, Dollar General, Hardees, Northeast Nebraska Medical Group, Office Connection, Pac-n-Save, Pamida, Quality Food Center, Runza, Savor Pharmacy and the Wayne Herald.

In addition to Mrs. Klein, the library staff includes Dorothy Stevenson, assistant librarian and library aides Mary Carstens, Karen Parker and Sara Granberg. Sarah Moje coordinated the reading program.

Participants who did not receive their certificate or prize at the closing party may ask for it at the library.

"The library staff hope that the children continue visiting the library and reading books this summer," Mrs. Klein said.

Benjamin honored with Golden Apple

Pearla Benjamin recently attended the presentation of the 1996 Golden Apple Awards at the Nebraska Bookstore in Lincoln.

Her son Scott, who recently died, was one of the 20 recipients of the Golden Apple Award. He had been an industrial arts teacher and coach at Guide Rock High School until the time of his death. Mrs. Benjamin accepted the award on his behalf.

Scott was nominated by Rodney Shaw who said "To be a friend a man should strive to lift people up and to set an example that will be an inspiration to others. He inspired me through his witty character, his compassionate, caring nature and his willingness to always help me out, whether it be decision-making or football, he always had the answer. He wasn't just a teacher, he was my best friend."

This is the fifth year for the award, in which teachers who have made a positive difference have been recommended by former students. "It is both an honor and a pleasure to recognize these incredible individuals for their efforts in providing a quality education to the students of Nebraska," said Jim Cornell, General Manager of Nebraska Bookstore.

"Nebraska's teachers offer a special, lifelong gift to our children," said Craig R. Christiansen, NSEA president. "That gift is an education. There is no other profession that touches so many people in such a vital way and with such lasting impact."

Wayne State president addresses press leaders

There are a lot of reasons to be upbeat about the future of rural communities Wayne State College President, Dr. Donald Mash told Nebraska community newspaper editors and publishers during their annual summer meeting in South Sioux City, Saturday.

Dr. Mash addressed newspaper executives during the Saturday luncheon which was part of the Nebraska Press Advertising Service summer convention. He emphasized the opportunities available for rural development and outlined the crucial role of education and the media in informing and helping communities prepare to take advantage of those opportunities.

"Demographic studies show us people are moving from urban to rural settings," said Dr. Mash. He explained there is a growing dissatisfaction with quality of life in urban settings and there is decreasing importance of job location due to advancements in communication technology.

"More jobs in the service sector and the mobility of information-based service businesses are additional factors that are positives for development of rural economies," said Dr. Mash. He added the lower operating costs for businesses in rural America create yet another incentive for job relocation into the region.

THESE FACTORS taken together, paint a positive and hopeful picture for most of the communities in the region, said Dr. Mash. Those communities which recognize the trends and take action to enhance their advantages will benefit the most, he added.

To capitalize on the trends which are favoring rural development Dr. Mash suggested communities will need local leadership working in collaboration with leaders in state government, education and business.

For its part in the equation, Dr.

Mash outlined some of the efforts which are being made at Wayne State College to continue to serve as a development partner with communities in its service region.

For example the college is providing:

- More and better educational opportunities at extremely competitive prices for students and thereby an enhanced work force for local economies.

- Leadership in technology education with tremendous advancements in computer networking and technology education for students. More than 500 computers networked via fiber optics in every building on campus means students have personal e-mail addresses, Internet access, computer-based instruction and exposure to the latest hardware and software.

- Professional expertise which has saved local taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars as college industrial technology and computer networking specialists have helped local school districts design and upgrade their computer labs and industrial technology curriculums without hiring expensive consultants.

- Regional outreach development efforts through the Bureau for Community and Economic Development and the Nebraska Business Development Center to provide direct assistance to businesses and communities who seek professional expertise for specific projects.

- Partnership in the new Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk as well as Extended Campus classes and new distance learning programs which add to the College's effort to deliver more education and services to more communities and businesses.

DR. MASH said the college has achieved these service goals by pursuing a dual role.

"Our two-fold mission is to prepare students for the challenges of the new economy while at the same time working to help with the development of communities and businesses in our service region," he said.

"We are serving as a catalyst, not only for education but for the arts, cultural activities and community and economic development," he told the newspaper executives.

Dr. Mash also emphasized that hope and a "positive, can-do attitude" are crucial factors in community development. Informing the public of the reasons why a positive outlook is warranted is an important responsibility of a regional public college, he said. He challenged the community newspaper people to continue and further enhance their efforts to do the same.

SINCE ARRIVING at Wayne State College as its president in 1988, Dr. Mash has directed an unprecedented period of growth and expansion for Northeast Nebraska's regional college. Enrollment has climbed dramatically from 2,100 to nearly 4,000. With that enrollment growth has come new buildings on campus, infrastructure improvements and additional faculty positions.

Wakefield Midgets, Juniors advance to State

By Korey Berg
Of the Herald

The Wakefield Midgets and Juniors both advanced to the state tournament with championship game victories in the Class C Area 3 tourney at Pender on Sunday.

In the Midget contest, Wakefield defeated Oakland 5-3 behind the five-hit pitching of Josh Templeman, who earned the win. Oakland held a 2-1 lead before Wakefield scored twice in the fourth and twice in the fifth to gain the lead for good. Templeman and Heath Keim drove in the fourth inning runs, while Eric Beacom tripled in a run in the fifth and scored on a single by B.J. Hansen.

Wakefield advanced to the title game with a 10-7 win over Oakland last Wednesday. Shaun Hammer had three hits, including a triple, scored three times and drove in a run to pace the offense. Chad Mackling had a pair of hits and scored two runs, while Templeman doubled, singled, scored twice and had two RBI. Hansen and Justin Paulson each drove in two runs as well. Beacom struck out nine batters in the winning effort.

In the Juniors match-up, Wakefield jumped out to a 4-0 first inning lead and held on for a 6-4 win over Homer. Wakefield took advantage of five first inning walks and a two-run double by Jason Hegge to gain the early lead, but Homer rallied to tie the game 4-4 in the third. Wakefield scored two runs in the fifth, however, to secure the victory. Wakefield managed just two hits in the game, but were able to manufacture enough runs to win. Mike Blohm added the second hit for the winners. Justin Hegge got the start on the mound and pitched two innings before being relieved by Travis Birkley, who tossed the final five innings while striking out seven.

Grant writing topic of seminar at WSC

Billions of dollars from both public and private sources are available each year to fund special projects in rural communities. People with the knowledge and ability to write the best grant proposals have the best opportunity to receive those funds, according to Connie Keck, director of the Bureau for Community and Economic Development at Wayne State College.

The Bureau will be sponsoring a grant writing workshop at the College Aug. 8, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The seminar presenter will be Lance Hedquist, city administrator for South Sioux City, Neb.

He will speak on his experience and deliver tips on successful grant writing. In the last three years alone, Hedquist's efforts at grant writing have resulted in nearly $2 million worth of successful projects.

Hedquist plans to outline hot items in grant funding, what pitfalls to avoid, specifics on what granting agencies are looking for and examples of successful grants.

Hedquist is a graduate of Wayne State College and has been on the SIMPCO executive committee for 10 years. He plays several leadership roles in regional and local economic development organizations and professional associations.

The grant writing workshop is geared toward both public officials and private individuals who want to learn more about obtaining grant funding for their projects.

Hepatitis B vaccine shots are available

Goldenrod Hills Community Services public immunization clinics are now stocked with Hepatitis B vaccine for any child entering seventh grade. This is the same group of children that is eligible to receive a second dose of MMR (measles, mumps, rubella) and TD (tetanus, diphtheria) as boosters.

Hepatitis B is a serious liver disease caused by a virus. The virus can enter the blood stream, attack the liver and cause severe illness — even death. In some cases, the virus can remain in the body for a lifetime and cause ongoing liver damage — including liver cancer.

Protection against Hepatitis B is achieved by receiving three shots, usually over a period of six months.

For more information, contact Goldenrod Hills at 402-529-3513 or your private physician.

Common obstacles to success and happiness

Life is often difficult enough without us standing in our own way, blocking our path to career success, satisfying relationships and the attainment of our personal goals. Some of the most common obstacles are:

Poor Time Management. The ineffective time manager doesn't know how to prioritize time. Solutions: (1) Plan activities the night before so you can prepare for what needs to be done; (2) Look at your watch frequently so you can begin to gauge where your time management skills are off.

Disorganization. People with a disorganization problem don't distinguish between important material and junk. They feel an irrational discomfort about getting rid of things and have an irrational need to read and know everything. Solutions: (1) Stop being a collector; (2) Start prioritizing; (3) Toss out all unnecessary papers and file those you don't need; (4) and do this immediately.

Unassertiveness. The inability to say no to requests because they fear negative evaluations or being disliked. Solutions: (1) Examine your value of politeness; (2) Learn to overcome your fear of criticism and rejection.

Awful-izing. The "awful-izer" has a catastrophic imagination and always assumes the worst will happen. These anxious, fearful people constantly ask themselves "what if" questions: "What if I don't get the job? ... What if?" Solutions: (1) Examine the probabilities of any given situation by asking yourself, "What are the actual chances that the worst will likely occur?" (2) Shift the degree of intolerance in your mind and recognize that while things in life may be uncomfortable, there's very little that people can't endure; (3) Actively challenge your beliefs by writing down evidence that you won't be able to handle the situation.

Perfectionism. Perfectionists can't stand being viewed as wrong or inadequate, and believe they must do everything perfectly. Solutions: (1) Accept the reality that all humans constantly make mistakes — it's part of our nature; (2) Deliberately do some things imperfectly to prove to yourself that you will survive.

Demandingness. A belief that you always deserve to be treated right. Every problem in life is blamed on unfair people or an unfair world. Solutions: (1) Understand that the world operates quite independently from what you want or demand; (2) Look at the big picture — the economy is bad no nobody will get a raise this year; (3) Eliminate the words should, ought and must from your vocabulary. These are words that set up absolutist thinking.

Cooperative Extension

Sally Ebmeier Cedar County

Discomfort anxiety. Some people just can't bear hassles, and anything that disrupts a smooth running day is perceived as insurmountable. So they regularly practice "discomfort dodging" — giving unpleasant tasks to others, or avoiding problems in hope they will just go away. Solution: Try systematic desensitization. First, practice relaxing — tensing and relaxing the muscles, etc. Then, while you are completely relaxed, practice "seeing" yourself actually doing the unpleasant activities you regularly avoid.

Western bean cutworms are invading N.E. braska

"Western bean cutworm flight has begun with reports of moth flight and egg masses from south central and north central Nebraska," said Keith Jarvi, UNL Extension Integrated Pest Management Assistant. "It is important to begin scouting for these pests now, to prevent serious damage to corn crops."

Originally a pest of field beans, hence its name, the western bean cutworm poses a real threat to corn in sandier soils of Antelope, Butte, Holt, Madison, Pierce and Stanton counties, Jarvi said. Counties farther west and south may also experience severe damage.

Western bean cutworm moths emerge from the soil in early summer, seeking corn that is in the late whorl stage, just before tasseling. They are approximately 3/4 inch in length with an average wingspan of 1 1/2 inches. Their dark brown color is distinguished by a creamy white stripe on the front of each wing.

"The moth will crawl down the whorl to lay eggs and will be seen in the whorls during the day," said Jarvi. Egg masses are typically located on the upper side of leaves, but are occasionally found on the stalk and the underside of leaves. Eggs are about the size of a common pinhead, and are laid in masses of five to 200. "Eggs are pearly white when laid, but in four to seven days they will turn a dark purple just before hatching," said Jarvi. Newly hatched larvae are dark brown with faint marks on their backs. As they grow, they will lighten in color and by maturity are gray to pinkish-brown. Older larvae are characterized by three short, dark stripes on the first segment behind the head.

Feeding begins on the corn whorl and tassel, but will eventually move to the ear if worms are not treated. "The kernels on the ear take the brunt of the feeding damage," Jarvi said. "Individual ears can suffer up to 30 percent damage from kernel feeding." Unlike corn earworms, these pests are not cannibalistic, and more than one may be found feeding on the ear.

Treatment should be considered if at least eight percent of the plants are infested with eggs or small larvae in leaf axils. "Timing of the application is very important in controlling the western bean cutworm. Worms should not be allowed to enter the developing ear," said Jarvi. If the tassel has emerged from the whorl, best results are obtained when treating at 70 to 90 percent egg hatch. Center pivot applications at this stage have provided more than 99 percent control at lowest labeled rates of available insecticides. Aerial application should also provide excellent control. Jarvi recommends thorough scouting. "Treatment timing in N.E. braska is usually the end of July to early August, but will vary from field to field," said Jarvi.

July is below normal

Below normal temperatures and moisture were apparent during the month of July in the Wayne area.

The average high temperature was 81.2 degrees and the average low was 59.2 degrees.

The city of Wayne received 1.54 inches of precipitation, 1.71 inches less than the 10-year average of 3.25 inches.

The highest temperature recorded during the month was 91 degrees, recorded on July 19 and the lowest temperature recorded was 46 degrees on July 10.

Insect update given for N.E. braska

Corn producers should be on guard for pests moving into the area. According to John Wilkowski, UNL extension entomologist, corn rootworm beetles are emerging from the ground, and an increasing number of corn borer moths are beginning to fly.

For more information on these pests, and possible methods of control, producers can contact local extension personnel or offices for the publication, Insect Management Guide for Corn and Sorghum (EC96-1509). Scouting fields will give producers an added advantage when it comes time to make treatment decisions.

Cataracts affect over 80% of our senior citizens. In fact over one million cataract surgeries are performed annually in the U.S. alone.

New technological developments in implants, ultrasonic equipment, lasers, diagnostic testing, and surgical techniques have made cataract surgery one of the most effective procedures today. Currently, over 98% of cataract patients experience significant improvements in vision without major complications.

Until now, the high cost of this new technology for cataract surgery was only available in the larger surgical facilities. This meant that you would have to travel for a complete eye examination and surgery. Not any longer.

Complete eye care and cataract surgery is now available at Providence Medical Center in Wayne. You don't have to travel outside of your community to have your vision tested for cataracts. With Dr. Wilcockson, Dr. Koerber and Dr. Magnuson offering comprehensive diagnostic and surgical services, you now have the most advanced eye care available right here in town.

Call Dr. Koerber or Dr. Magnuson for a complete eye examination and cataract vision screening today. If you would like more information on cataracts for yourself or someone you know who may be experiencing loss of vision, call today for a free informational brochure.

Not old — Chronologically enriched

I'm in St. Joe, babysitting our only granddaughter for a couple of days. If you need to get a different perspective on life, spend a morning in the park with a two-year-old! Of course, getting up and down on the playground equipment can be a real challenge for a grandma.

I heard a speaker say the other night that we are not old, we are chronologically enriched. She also mentioned that when she gets down to tie her shoes, she looks around to see what else needs doing!

Of course, old age is relative. One of the attendees at the banquet at which the speaker was holding forth was 95. She had flown in from Oregon.

And the oldest living Olympian made an appearance at the opening ceremonies, in fine shape at 97. Wasn't the choir grand? And the trumpeters? I did feel sorry for all the people in suit coats, in the heat and humidity. The delegation from the Virgin Islands had the right idea!

The Silver Bullets basketball team was back at the Cornhusker games, in the over 30 bracket, and came home with another gold medal. It does get to be an endurance contest, with guys from each team asking, "How much longer?" (Games are one hour.) The rain poured in Lincoln, just poured, and the creeks were all out of their banks. There's still a lot of water in the area surrounding the Missouri River.

health maintenance organizations, for coverage for our non-Medicare patients. (Some Medicare is done through an HMO, also.) Our speaker Saturday night told of four physicians on a golf course that were struck by lightning and found themselves in front of St. Peter. As he asked each one why they should be admitted, the first answered, he was a cardiologist, and had saved many lives. He was ushered in. The second was a radiologist, and he, too, was responsible for much good while on earth. He went in. The third had been an obstetrician; so, of course, had brought many lives into the world. No question. But the fourth said he'd been a general practitioner who had worked for an HMO.

"Come on in," said Pete, "but you only get two days!"

Laughter; the healthiest way to deal with our frustrations. Now I have to put on a swim suit and get into a wading pool with Randa. (More laughter.)

Wills named UNL swine veterinarian

Dr. Robert Wills, an expert on porcine reproductive and respiratory syndrome (PRRS) virus, joined the UNL faculty Aug. 1 as assistant professor and swine veterinarian.

According to Dr. Jack Schmitz, head of the Department of Veterinary and Biomedical Sciences, PRRS is the most important disease problem facing the swine industry.

Wills impressed UNL due to his high-quality Ph.D. program at Iowa State University, which included epidemiology training in addition to his dissertation research on the transmission of PRRS virus, Schmitz said.

"He has excellent experience as a private veterinarian, which assures that he understands the issues that face swine producers and knows how to interact with private veterinary practitioners," Schmitz said. "He's also a fine individual with a good personality and work ethic."

A native of Platte City, Mo., Wills attended the University of Missouri-Columbia (UMC) where he received his B.S. in agriculture, and the University of Tennessee, where he received a master's in animal science. Following completion of his master's, Wills returned to UMC to attend Veterinary Medical College. Upon graduation, he practiced veterinary medicine for eight years in northeastern Iowa before returning to graduate school. Wills completed his Ph.D. in microbiology at Iowa State University with an emphasis on preventive medicine and a minor in statistics in May 1996.

Wills and his wife, Amy, have two children.

1996 CRP bus tour to visit several area sites

Are you enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP)? Is your contract about to expire? Are you looking for alternative uses for CRP land, but don't know the next step? If so, the 1996 CRP bus tour may have some answers you're looking for.

At 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, Aug. 13, the 1996 CRP bus tour will leave from Northeast Community College (NECC) in Norfolk, heading west to the first tour site — the farm of Doug Hall. From there the tour will continue, stopping at a total of eight farms in six counties in N.E. Nebraska. Tour participants will have the opportunity to see, firsthand, other producers' experiences returning CRP land to crop and livestock production, or alternative land uses. Producers will see former CRP land being used to grow grass, corn and soybeans. Other sites include CRP land transformed to wildlife plots, buffalo and cattle grazing areas and warm and cool season grass tracts.

The tour will include lunch at the Plainview park, and supper at Larry and Rose Mason's farm, near Dixon. The tour bus will return to Northeast Community College at approximately 8:30 p.m.

Bus seats are limited to the first 48 registrants so pre-registration is encouraged. Additional participants will be on a wait list. The tour will cost $5 per participant. For more information, and to register in advance, call Pat Bathke at the Northeast Research and Extension Center, 402-584-2837.

The tour is co-sponsored by the Lewis and Clark and lower Elkhorn Natural Resource Districts, the Natural Resources Conservation Service, and the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension.

Healthier Returns

Your dry cows are a lot like any other good investment: how they pay you back determines your financial growth. That's why you need new Purina® Dry Cow Supplement from Purina®.

Most problems in early lactation begin in the dry period, but properly fed, managed, and conditioned dry cows have less calving trouble, healthier calves, and fewer breeding failures. They can also produce 1000 to 2000 lb more milk. Prepare effectively helps dry cows reach their ideal calving weight and body condition. There is a lot to Pappare. Ask us about it.
