WAYNE, NE 68787

120TH YEAR — NO. 48

Proposed 1996-97 budget presented to City Council

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

The tax asking to pay for the city's budget will actually be lower, according to the proposed budget presented at Tuesday's city council meeting.

City Administrator Joe Salitros outlined some of the changes in the budget which will be formally approved in September.

The recommended general fund budget will be $3,013,000 including $380,000 in the reserve fund.

The budget includes $10,000 for up-dating of city goals, $30,000 for Computer Aided Drafting, $25,000 for signage and other incidentals at the Wayne Public Library/Senior Center and $1,500 for additional wages for employees receiving minimum wage due to a federally mandated increase.

Based on current valuations, the city's levy could be lowered from the 63.25 cents per $100 valuation last year to 62.96 cents per $100 valuation for the new budget.

The council will hold several work sessions before the Sept. 10 public hearing on the proposed tax asking and property levy and the 1996-97 budget.

In other action the council approved the spending of up to $6,500 for terrace parking on the south side of the courthouse.

County Commissioner Merlin Beiermann spoke to the council and asked for help in paying for the parking lot which would benefit both the courthouse and the Library/Senior Center.

Beiermann said the additional parking would be necessary if the commissioners approve the plan to install an elevator in the courthouse.

The construction of the elevator would mean the east entrance to the courthouse would be blocked for some time, making it necessary to use the south entrance to the building.

Council approved the request for the money, contingent on the county installing the elevator.

Due to a legal technicality, the council rescinded an earlier resolution regarding the issuance of TIF Bonds and confirming the allocation agreement for the Vintage Hill Project Area.

The action was necessary due to a law that prohibited council members from having any interest in the project.

Mayor Sheryl Lindau and Council President Darrel Fuelberth had each had money invested in the project, causing a conflict of interest.

Both have since withdrawn the money they had invested.

The council appointed Jane O'Leary as council vice president to preside over discussion on rescinding the previous resolution and approving a new resolution.

Mayor Lindau was absent from the meeting and Councilman Fuelberth abstained from voting on any of the resolutions.

Council approved the appointments of Bill Sharpe and Judy Schafer to the Library Board.

New speed limits go into effect

Beginning Sept. 3, the Nebraska Department of Roads will start changing the speed limit signing along roads in which the speed limits will be increased.

The speed limits on a number of two lane highways will be increased to 60 miles per hour.

"Not all two-lane highways can support 60 mph speed and will not be posted for the higher limit. Drivers need to comply with the limits as posted and continue to focus on safety first along our highways," said State Roads Director Allan Abbott.

In Wayne County, Highway 35 from Hoskins to the junction of Highway 98 west of Wayne, will remain a 55 mph zone.

All other highways in Wayne County and the surrounding area will allow for 60 mph speed limits.

The schedule of speeding fines has also been adjusted with the new speed limits.

Speeding one to five miles over the posted limit will result in a fine of $10.

Six to 10 miles over the limit will result in a $25 fine; 11 to 15 miles over the limit will result in a $75 fine; 16 to 20 miles over the speed limit will result in a $200 fine and 21 miles an hour or more over the limit will result in a $200 fine.

All fines are plus court costs and all fines are doubled in work zones.

Hunter safety class to be offered

To hunt legally in Nebraska, all persons between the ages of 11 and 16 must have taken a Hunter of Bow Safety class and have proof of completion on his or her person when in the field.

The classes, sponsored by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission will be offered beginning on Sept. 3.

The class is open to all people over 11 years of age and adults are welcome to attend.

There is no charge for the class and those attending do not need to bring anything. Both of the classes will meet at the Wayne High School Tech Lab (Shop) on the southwest side of the building's lower level.

The classes will run from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and will meet four times, for a total of 10 hours.

The Hunter Safety Class will be taught by Bill Wilson and the Bow Safety Class will be taught by Don Koenig.

For more information contact Wilson at 375-1174 or Koenig at 375-3547 (evenings).

Up, down and around

Amy Schroeder, a student at Wayne State College, spent some time in unusual positions on Tuesday night after being strapped into a piece of equipment that rolled around for a hair-raising ride. The ride was part of an All Campus Picnic for WSC students to kick-off the 1996-97 academic year. Classes began at Wayne State on Wednesday and nearly 4,000 students are expected to be enrolled in classes.

Mission projects keep teens busy

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

This summer members of the First Presbyterian Church's youth group joined other Presbyterian youth from throughout the state and around the nation to take part in two mission trip projects.

During the first week of July Mary Ann Turner and Sarah Holstedt and Pastor Craig Holstedt, joined eight youth and five adult sponsors from New Zion Presbyterian Church in Clarkson for a mission trip to Colorado.

Leaving on Monday morning and returning Saturday evening, the group traveled to Highlands Presbyterian Camp in the Colorado Rockies, about 16 miles from Estes Park.

WHILE IN Colorado the group did get to spend one day white-water rafting, but for the bulk of the remaining three days, they worked on various projects around the camp including cutting, splitting and stacking firewood, painting the mess hall benches, building new walking paths and improving existing ones, building new corrals for the horse camp, housekeeping to prepare for future camps and completely rewiring an existing cabin.

"Russ Napier, the camp's executive director, estimated that at simply minimum wage, the work done by the ten youth and six adult sponsors saved the camp over $1,425," said Pastor Holstedt.

"In reality though, because two of the adults that oversaw and worked on the rewiring of the cabin were licensed electricians, the actual savings to the camp was something in excess of $3,000," Holstedt said.

DURING THE last week of July Sarah and Joseph Holstedt also took part in a National Presbyterian Mariners Family Ministry program which built a house in Juarez, Mexico.

Working through a border ministry program known as 'Casas Por Cristo' (Houses for Christ), the Holstedt children came together with 41 other youth, including two foreign exchange students, and seven adults from across the nation.

The group helped construct a simple 24 by 24 foot home for a family of eight. The house has three rooms in it.

"THIS EXPERIENCE was definitely an eye-opening one for the children. Pastor Holstedt said.

"I think I was touched by this experience because I was not aware of the poverty of these people. Their back yards were two to ten feet apart and all the houses around are the same," said Sarah.

"All the people we met were extremely nice," she added.

The previous home was actually a very small shack built of packing crates, cardboard and styrofoam which the family had been living in for 10 years.

"IT REALLY taught me that I am pretty rich and should be happy with the money that I have," said 12-year old Joseph.

"I nailed on the roof and some on the ground and did a lot of stucco work," he said.

We couldn't understand much of what the people were saying, but when we got out the soccer ball, their faces lit up," he added.

Joseph echoed his sister in commenting on the friendliness of the people in Mexico.

"We got there late at night and the minister at a church welcomed all 41 of us into his house," he said.

"THIS HOUSE has a cement floor instead of a sand one and has a roof that will stay in place," Sarah said.

"There was a rainstorm the day after we finished the house and this was the first time in 10 years the family and all their belongings stayed dry," she added.

Pastor Holstedt explained that the home that his children helped build was the 73rd that Casas Por Cristo has built this year.

The Presbyterian Mariners provided the $3,500.

"Normally, one home takes four days to build, but in this case, the cement slab was already in place when the work group arrived which save about a normal day and a half's worth of work."

"With the large number in the work group, all of the framing, wiring roofing and finishing of the exterior stucco walls was completed in two days," Pastor Holstedt said.

When the home was completed, there was a blessing ceremony with one of the local pastors and the new home owners received a Bible to commemorate the occasion.

Youth from throughout the United States, including Sarah and Joseph Holstedt of Wayne, built a house for a family of eight in two days in Juarez, Mexico. The family's previous home can be seen in the background.

WSC is poised for new challenges

For the first time in several years, the nearly 4,000 students who return to Wayne State College classes this week will not have to dodge a major construction project.

College classes resume Tuesday evening and early indications show approximately the same number of students will complete the enrollment process as did a year ago, according to Bonnie Scranton, assistant vice-president for enrollment management.

A newly remodeled and expanded Student Center facility is the new focus for student, staff and faculty interaction and socialization, according to Dr. Donald Mash, who is beginning his 9th year as WSC president.

Noting the completion of the latest major construction project in a series of facility upgrade efforts, Mash said the campus is focusing on other challenges. With 2,800 students on the class roles in 1988, and nearly 4,000 students at the college now, the expansion of campus facilities, faculty and staff are all necessary and somewhat

Pointing out the College has achieved numerous goals for growth and development, Mash challenged his faculty and staff, during his annual address before the start of classes, to take the College to the next level.

"We are already very good," Mash told the faculty on Monday, "but the goal is to go beyond what we have achieved. We can become a regional public college of national distinction if we significantly improve our already strong teaching-learning environment and further improve our retention and graduation rates. That is our challenge."

"The Student Center is a tremendous enhancement for the campus," Mash told faculty and staff members. "It will provide an even greater sense of community than what we already have; it will increase student-faculty interaction, and it will increase student use of important support services available to them."

Besides nearly doubling the square footage of space for student activities and gathering places for interaction, the project also added a new eatery, bookstore, meeting facilities and offices for student services.

A dedication ceremony for the campus's new "Living Room" has been scheduled for Oct. 11, during Homecoming Weekend.

During the period of dramatic campus enrollment growth, WSC added the new Gardner Business Building which opened in 1995. A major campus utilities upgrade project was completed two years before that, campus housing facilities (operating at near capacity again this year) were remodeled, and a major commitment was made toward technology with the installation of a campus-wide computer network to give all faculty and students easy on-line access for communications, research and class work.

The College has significantly increased full-time faculty and staff positions since 1988 to address the tremendous enrollment growth said Mash, but he added, not one additional executive management post has been added. Instead, the College has continually reorganized and automated administrative services.

The College's reputation for sound, efficient fiscal management is recognized in Lincoln, he said. "Our credibility is high because of the way we have managed the state's resources and because of the additional revenue and private resources we've generated as a result of our own initiatives."

He pointed with pride to the College's favorable student retention and graduation rate compared with other colleges of its type. He said this is another example of the excellent job the faculty and staff are doing in reaching and preparing students for the world of work and life.

"Our goal is to maintain and enhance our attractive and affordable college for everyone who wants to attend," Mash said.

"Providing opportunity, access and support for the retention of students, while also addressing the cultural and service needs of our service region, remain the role and mission of the College," he said.

Mash concluded by stressing the importance of a positive attitude and the powerful impact it can have on the quality of the College's (faculty's) work.

"Being in the vital work setting of higher education, with an ability to make a difference by our individual, day-to-day choices and actions, is reason to be positive and optimistic," he said.

WSC students are utilizing the new Student Center addition as they arrive back at classes this week. Dr. Mash praised the latest campus addition in his address to the faculty.

Sheriff's Assoc. urges caution

The Nebraska Sheriffs' Association has received several complaints regarding phone solicitations throughout the state of Nebraska.

"We would like to alert the citizens of Nebraska that our organization is not soliciting by phone for donations of any kind," said Jerry Chizek of the Nebraska Sheriffs' Association.

"If you receive a call from anyone claiming to be calling on behalf of the 'Nebraska Sheriffs' Association' or 'Sheriff or Deputies of Nebraska' not to give any information over the telephone," Chizek added.

Although there are many legitimate solicitors, the Nebraska Sheriffs' Association advises caution to be taken whenever solicited by phone.

"In this circumstance, unless the organization is local and you know the solicitor personally, we recommend you not donate by phone," Chizek said.

The Nebraska Sheriffs' Association does have representatives that solicit for advertisement in the Association publication, 'The Nebraska Sheriff' magazine, however, these solicitations take place in person.

Sink hole?

Wayne Gilliland was surprised to find a cement slab buried in his yard recently. Gilliland, who has lived on his farm southeast of Wayne for more than 50 years, was not aware of any type of cave or tunnel until friends visiting drove over ground which then began sinking. After digging in the area, a four-foot cement slab, with newspaper impressions visible, was discovered.

A tribute to labor

Monday is Labor Day in America.

Americans, not all, but many, will have the day off to celebrate in a myriad of ways the right and honor to work.

Observed the first Monday in September in all states, Labor Day was first celebrated in New York in 1882 and after 114 years remains a holiday traditionally considered the closing of summer activities.

Thousands without jobs wish they could work. Millions with jobs often wish working wasn't necessary, but it seems to be an obligation involved in paying the bills. However, a person's job may be considered a part of his or her identity within society. Socialization on the job is no small part of employment. Doing quality work contributes significantly to one's self esteem.

Those few individuals choosing not to work, either because of laziness or irresponsibility, are normally saddled with deflated egos, declining pride, and, because of dislike for self, may also dislike others.

Working at a job one enjoys is not so much like work as it is an opportunity to contribute to society in a demonstration of one's skills.

Once again we Americans pause to pay tribute to the satisfaction found in laboring, as old-fashioned labor helps us to rise to ongoing challenges helping us develop our unique abilities.

Have a good one.

Word to the vandals

Just a few words to you who broke into the Wayne-Carroll High School early Tuesday morning, destroying text books, damaging a satellite dish, and venting your uncontrolled anger:

-your exhibiting a deprivation in thinking skills, although you may be unable to read or comprehend this, and your lack of having any respect for taxpayer's property, must certainly add to your crumbling self image and deteriorating pride.

-you will likely be unable to refrain from telling your friends how "cool" you were in doing what you likely believe to be "neat". Your family members will, of course, have the public's sympathy when you are identified, and you will be in due time. Then you're going to need a lawyer whose job will be to represent you in court. There you will discover that society does not accept the type of criminal behavior you have exhibited and a penalty will be assessed. Isn't that "cool"!

-whether you are man, woman, boy or girl, adult or child, you will not like the ensuing publicity and the shame you have brought upon yourself and family. Or do you think the taxpayers should forgive you for your foolish "prank", slap your hands, and forget it? Your limited thought processes may cause you to think the court is cruel and mean for making you pay restitution. But society will think that is really "cool"!

High School Principal Dr. Zeiss, speaking of cleaning up the debris, noted "Our custodial staff is second to none" and said the custodians started cleaning up about 6:30 a.m. and had most everything cleaned up and ready to go by 9:30 a.m. Our congratulations to that kind of dedication and hard work. That, truly, is "cool"!

Anyone having information about the crime will want to call either the Wayne Police Department, or the Nebraska Crime Stoppers. Calling Crime Stoppers is toll free at 1-800-422-1494. Give them your information. You may remain anonymous, should you so choose.

Giving investigators information you have about a crime, well, that is "super cool"!

Everybody's heard those radio ads for Motel 6.

With a folksy fiddle playing in the background, author Tom Bodett explains — in the most down-to-earth, Joe Six-Pack voice known to man — how despite life's trials and tribulations, you can still get a clean room for a decent price at Motel 6.

"We'll leave the light on for you," he says.

Somehow, those ads remind me of the political spots both Chuck Hagel and Ben Nelson have employed as they get ready for their race for the U.S. Senate, which by my campaign watch starts this weekend.

I'm afraid, however, that the campaign is going to be much more of a mud-slinger before it's all over.

First, the nice ads.

In the primary, Hagel used some Motel 6-like background music in his television spots about his Nebraska upbringing. Geez, even his old football coach appeared on one TV commercial, telling us all how hard Chuck worked on the field, even though he was no Tommie Frazier.

Recently, Nelson has joined the nice commercial crowd, telling us (in radio ads) that while things in Nebraska aren't perfect, the state's done pretty darned well while he's been governor.

Great commercials. We're all feeling pretty good about these guys after watching them.

But some of their recent actions haven't been so friendly.

Hagel went ballistic after The Omaha World-Herald analyzed his plan to eliminate the federal budget deficit. The story found that all the numbers didn't add up. Hagel thought the state's largest paper was picking on him. That the plan's numbers didn't add up shouldn't come as a surprise. Most of the plans to eliminate deficit spending in Washington haven't added up either — when they were first proposed or after they were enacted (remember that Gramm-Rudman bill?).

Nelson got a little testy recently when reporters pressed him about who he is supporting for president in 1996. One week, he wouldn't say, only mentioning that he would support the ticket that supported cutting the deficit.

The following week, he wasn't willing to say either until a reporter pressed him. Of course, Nelson said, he planned to vote for President Clinton but what difference did that make? A person's views, not his political party, is the important thing.

These two stories probably illustrate how tightly contested this race will be more than anything else.

Hagel, a Republican, wants to appear as tough a budget hawk as Nelson. If his deficit plan doesn't add up, that takes some claws out of his claim.

Nelson, a Democrat, isn't eager to be linked with Clinton, a president who is about as popular as a Florida football team in Nebraska.

In the end, voters will have to decide how important this stuff is.

If Hagel's budget-deficit plan doesn't add up, does that mean he doesn't have a good idea about how to reduce the deficit or just that he hasn't worked out the details yet.

And, if Nelson isn't eager to endorse the Clinton ticket, does that mean he's trying to hide that he's as liberal as Slick Willie or just that he doesn't agree with the unpopular president on all issues.

As of Sunday, we've got two months and five days to decide. We'll leave the light on.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Rainbow Rider donation

The Dog Creek 4-H Club recently held a bake sale, with funds being matched by the local AAL branch. The money was donated to Rainbow Riders and will be used to purchase feed for horses this winter. Representing Rainbow Riders are, left to right, Kathryn Taber, Nancy Lunzer, Tara Ault, Amber Henderson (kneeling), Jennifer Taber, Andrew Lowe and Becca Dorsey. Jason Rethwisch, President of the 4-H Club, (second from the right) and Mary Lou Erxleben, with the AAL branch, presented the check.

Give me an interpreter, please

Never before has there been such a need for being multilingual. Maybe we're victims of Intelligence Deprivation Syndrome?

I'm not talking about speaking various languages, but rather the need to understand the language within the mother tongue.

Doctors have their medical lingo. When doc says you have cholelithiasis and acute cholecystitis, immediately one asks, what language is that? Of course, the doc has just diagnosed your case of having gall stones, and they are causing inflammation. But an interpreter would be handy. Now if doc orders a cholecystectomy, you'd better start picking out a hospital because he's speaking in "doctor dialect" and means he plans to remove your gall bladder. Pity the doc who has to learn all those high class words.

Then, there is lawyer jargon such as writ of habeas corpus, writ of certiorari, writs here, writs there, writs everywhere. What does it all mean? Probably means you need to dig out your el-billfold-y and issue a writ of check.

Reading about astronauts and space? You need an interpreter for sure to decipher such words as ablation, perturbation, reentry window (sounds like what you had to go through when you forgot your house keys!), restart capability (what your car needs on a cold winter day), and synchronous orbit (your daily work duties around the house), and finally, guidance system (suppose this is referring to the Good Book?).

If you've purchased a prescription drug, you understand the need for having an interpreter in the world of pharmaceuticals. A pharmacist gets to be one only by learning the language of pharmacology via pharmacopoeia. I'm suspicious a good part of drug cost is because the manufacturer spent hundreds of hours thinking up a new multi-syllable word to describe the concoction. At least this is my conspicuous conspicuity! A ha! I'm learning the buzzwords!

Preachers are sometimes guilty of preachy preachments and the preachification increasingly fades in its glory in direct proportion to the speed of the big hand on the clock flirting with high noon. Rev, are you preaching from a lexicon or a theological precept? How about just using a King Jimmy Version as I understand the more simple English. I thought you said you didn't speak in tongues? Maybe I should polish up on my afterlife language. Suppose King James has taught the angels how to correctly use "thee", "thou" and "thine"?

Polyglotism - give me an interpreter!

Local minister has a few encouraging suggestions for parents

Dear members of the community,

I pray that this will be a wonderful year for all students and their parents. As school resumes this month, I would like to offer a few encouraging suggestions for parents.

1. Pray for your child daily that they will love themselves and make good decisions. Pray for yourself as a parent that you are able to listen, direct, love and have the courage to be a parent. Your child is a gift to you and you are a gift to them. These gifts are given by God who seeks to be a part of your lives.

2. Set boundaries for your child that you are able to clearly identify to them and that you are going to follow through. You must follow through with discipline or the boundaries do not make any difference. Do not give up that responsibility because your child shows some resistance. Do what you can to be consistent.

3. Know what your child is doing, who they are with and where they are going. Make your child accountable for letting you know what is going on with them.

4. Daily tell your child that you love him or her, even if they are six feet, three inches tall and they do not say anything in return. Your child needs to hear from you that you love them.

5. Praise your child whenever possible. Most children are trying to do the best they can. They need to know that you see that.

6. Help your child to make decisions. Do not make all their decisions for them but help them to process what things need to be considered when they make a decision. They will have ownership of their decisions.

7. Let your child know that you know that you are not perfect. When you make a mistake, admit it. When you have done something for which you need to apologize, do so.

8. Spend some time with your child. Play. Laugh. Develop a common interest. Take an interest in your child's activities. Attend their performances, athletic games and award ceremonies. Your presence is very important to them.

9. Realize that you can do all the right things and that all the wrong things can happen. You are not perfect. Your child is not perfect.

Learn to be hopeful, work together to resolve those things that may go wrong and seek for a better future.

10. Worship weekly with your child. When your spiritual center is nurtured, your lives will be well fed.

Have a terrific school year!

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

"Keep 'em movin', movin', movin'" could be our theme song this summer!

We sometimes feel a large sense of 'deja vu all over again' as Yogi Berra so succinctly stated. We keep 'em movin'. That is, we keep the books moving — along the shelves. The Science Fiction section is now a part of the fiction section and that is the last moving we have done. But, our task now is to move the books along to make them more accessible to our patrons. It means some inconvenience to you (and to us) because we have become accustomed to look for a certain author or book on a certain shelf, only to find it is not there.

We keep movin'. Preparations for an electronic catalog are closer to reality! The preliminary work on the data base is nearing completion. We are all looking forward to being able to take advantage of the full computer program and subject search, instead of just the title - author search.

And time keeps movin'! It comes as a shock to realize that Labor Day is almost upon us! And with Labor Day comes a change in our hours. Winter hours will be in effect beginning Tuesday, Sept. 3. Labor Day, of course, is a holiday and the library will be closed. Winter hours are 12:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and we add Sunday hours, 2 to 5 p.m. beginning Sept. 8.

New books keep movin' in! Adult books recently are "Let the Drum Speak: A Novel of Ancient America" by Linda Lay Shuler; "Reviving Ophelia: Saving the Selves of Adolescent Girls" by Mary Bray Pipher; "A Game of Thrones" by George R. R. Martin; "Prayers for the Dead: A Peter Decker/Rina Lazarus Novel" by Faye Kellerman; "Servant of the Bones" by Anne Rice; and "A Little Yellow Dog: An Easy Rawlins Mystery" by Walter Mosley. Juvenile books are "Sally Ann Thunder Ann Whirlwind Crockett: A Tall Tale" by Steven Kellogg; "Hiroshima: A Novella" by Laurence Yep; "What Use is a Moose?" by Martin Waddell; "The Young Basketball Player" by Chris Mullin; "Lilly's Purple Plastic Purse" by Kevin Henkes; "My Many Colored Days" by Dr. Seuss; and a juvenile book on tape, "The Willows in Winter" by William Horwood (a sequel to "The Wind in the Willows.")

Well, guess we'll be movin' on! Have a safe and enjoyable Labor Day weekend and a good school year to all students, parents and teachers. Visit us often.

After finishing the 1995 season with their first winning season since 1991, the Wayne State College volleyball team hopes to continue their trend of improving each of the last three seasons. Head Coach Sharon Vanis led the Wildcats to an 18-17 mark a year ago, but must find replacements for four senior starters - Laura Pfister, Tammy Gablenz, Annette Fluckey and Lora Grant.

"I think we can still be as successful, if not more so, than last year," said Vanis. "We lost four very good seniors and we only have two coming back in Tracy Wessel and Jenifer Svitek. They're two good players and we have a lot of good players, but we don't have one player that really stands out and that's what we're kind of looking for."

Returning from last year's team along with Wessel and Svitek are juniors Kari Pichler, Amy Gudmundson and Erin Pick and sophomores Jill Grant, Jessie Pontow, Renee Fuhr, Carrie Fink and Amy Johnson.

Also helping to fill the shoes of the four seniors lost are a group of five transfers - Kari Slickers (Southwestern CC), Heather Homan (Chadron State), Brenda Blausey (Cloud County CC), Trisha Arens (Northeast CC) and Jennifer Rowse (Northeast CC). Four incoming freshmen, Jamie Bachmann, Melissa Frahm, Wendy Miller and Emily Rautenberg, round out the squad.

New faces combined with injuries have made finding a group of starters difficult for Vanis.

"Right now it's up in the air as far as who's starting," said Vanis. "This has probably been the toughest time I've ever had trying to find the six that will work together and really click. I think Tracy and Jen [Svitek] will do a good job leadership-wise. I was kind of counting on Heather Homan to be one of our forces, but she's been out since day one with an injury to her foot. Jessie Pontow is going to play right-side and she just sprained her ankle, so it's going to be kind of interesting with injuries and everything, but we have a lot of people that can play."

Despite not having any players that stand out above the rest, depth may be the Wildcats strength.

"One of our strengths is probably depth at each position," said Vanis. "There's two or three kids that can play every spot."

Another plus will be the experience brought to the squad by the transfer players.

"We have several junior college players," said Vanis. "They're a little older and they've had some playing experience, but I think it's going to be kind of a shock. It's a new game at the division II level, but they do have the experience and most of them have the maturity, which is what you need. They won't get shook and lose their head as quickly as maybe a freshman would."

While a play-off berth is the ultimate goal of every team, Vanis admits that the road to the post-season is a difficult one.

"As a team, we just want to be successful and have a winning season," said Vanis. "You always want to look forward to post-season play, but it's tough. Even Nebraska-Omaha, who had a great season last year (22-9 record), didn't make the play-offs. We don't want to just barely be over .500. We want to establish ourselves as a good program. There were so many matches last year that went five games and we lost the fifth game 15-13 or 16-14. We don't want to lose those types of matches this year. We want to step up a little and make sure we win the close ones."

Wayne State opens the season in the Nebraska-Omaha tournament on Friday and Saturday.

WSC kicks off '96 campaign Saturday

Wayne State opens the 1996 football season on Saturday against Emporia State, hoping to pick up where they left off last year. In the season finale last year, the Wildcats rolled up a school record 733 yards of offense in a 68-0 win over Iowa Wesleyan.

The Hornets, 5-6 in 1995, play host to the Wildcats at 6:00 p.m. at Welch Stadium in Emporia, Kansas. ESU, coached by second-year leader Manny Matsakis, had one of the nation's top passing attacks last season, ranking eighth overall in total offense at 448.6 yards per game.

Standouts for the Hornets include sophomore flanker Jarrett Vito, who ranked second in the nation in receptions per game (9.4) and was 15th in receiving yards per game (93.2). He also finished the season with seven TDs and hauled in 21 catches versus Northeast Missouri State. Another sophomore receiver, Chet Pobolish, tallied 51 catches for 753 yards and six TDs. Defensively, sophomore linebacker Leon Brigham was third on the squad in tackles last season with 65.

"We are concerned about their offense since they have so many starters returning," said WSC Head Coach Dennis Wagner. "Their confidence level will be very high. On defense, they have a lot of new faces who will be excited to play. It will be important for our offense to get off to a good start."

You can listen to the Cats on the Wildcat Radio Network. Radio Stations KWPB (108 FM/84 AM) in West Point and K1LR (101.1 FM) in Columbus will provide the coverage.

- Seniors Marcus Bishop, Jarrod DeGeorgia and Kevin Swayne all were among the nation's leaders in several categories last season. Bishop ranked 24th in rushing (103.1 ypg) and 26th in scoring (8.4 ppg). DeGeorgia ranked 14th in passing efficiency (141.6 rating). Swayne ranked 7th in receptions per game (7.2) and 18th in receiving yards per game (90.9).

This year's hosts were the Henry Deck families.

The 1997 reunion will be held on the fourth Sunday in August at a place to be announced later.

Hosting the event will be the William Deck families.

Rohlf Family Reunion

The 43rd annual Rohlf Family Reunion was held Aug. 18 at the Winside Legion Hall with 59 family members and one guest, Jeremy Jenkins, attending.

Pastor Roy Radloff of Sioux Falls, S.D. gave the prayer before the meal. A business meeting was held afterwards. The 1997 reunion will be held at the Winside Legion Hall on the third Sunday of August. The Adolf Rohlf family will be in charge of arrangements.

Happenings since the last reunion include the 100th birthday of Frieda Pfeiffer on June 24, 1996; the 50th anniversary of Les and Pearl Youngmeyer of Wayne on Dec. 9, 1995; the 50th anniversary of Clarence and Arlene Pfeiffer of Winside on June 16, 1996 and the 90th birthday celebration for Adolf Rohlf on June 20, 1996.

Family members came from Winside, Wakefield, Lincoln, Norfolk, West Point, Pilger and Allen.

Next year's reunion will also be held in Winside on the second Sunday in August.

Meyer Reunion

Seven states—Arizona, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Tennessee and Nebraska—were represented by those who gathered at the Mike and Michelle Meyer farm for a cousins reunion.

The group was celebrating the Meyerland 100th anniversary. Four generations of Meyers—Diedrich, Carl F., Don and Mike have farmed the land from 1896 to 1996.

Reunion activities began on Aug. 8 when Sheila and Joe Meyer became the third generation to show 4-H calves at the county fair.

The 53 Meyers in attendance enjoyed a hay-rack ride, planted a tree and roasted hot dogs and marshmallows over a bonfire at the farm on Aug. 10.

The group attended services at Grace Lutheran Church, of which Carl F. Meyer was a charter member.

The celebration ended with lunch at the home of Mrs. Don Meyer.

Heier Reunion

The Heier Reunion was held at the LeRoy Heier residence in Norfolk on Aug. 11 with 50 relatives in attendance.

Towns represented included Norfolk, Wayne, Winside, Coleridge, Omaha, Newman Grove, Grand Island, Lincoln, Leawood, Kan. and Evanston Ill.

The oldest person present was William Heier, 92, of Norfolk and the youngest person present was Megan Lurz, three, of Leawood, Kan.

Traveling the farthest were Kevin Heier and Rhonda March of Evanston, Ill.

The birthday of William Heier was observed. A special cake was made for him by Lorraine Prince.

Kevin Hausmann has been named branch manager

Kevin Hausmann has been named branch manager of the Norwest Financial office at 4640 Champlain Drive in Lincoln.

Hausmann joined Norwest Financial in 1994 as credit manager at the firm's Omaha office. He was named assistant manager of the 56th and "O" Street office in Lincoln in 1995.

Kevin is a 1989 graduate of Wayne High School and a graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

He is the son of Jack and Leslie Hausmann.

And Mama Bear said...

Kindergarteners in Patricia Jenkins' afternoon class at Wayne Elementary got the school year off to a start by listening to "The Three Bears" during the first day of school. Nearly all area schools, including Wayne State College, are back in session this week, to the dismay of students and the delight of parents.

Discussion is held on 1996 and upcoming 1997 Chicken Show

Twenty-one Wayne community leaders met Aug. 15 to review the 1996 Chicken Show, Henoween and Chicken Feed.

Gaila Gilliland, Executive Director for the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce was the facilitator for the meeting.

Those in attendance were congratulated and thanked for their active participation in this year's event by Chicken Show Chairperson Eric Smith.

Various committee chair persons reported on the success of their respective activities and all present felt their activities were successful.

Smith extended special thanks to the following individuals: Vern Schulz for the city's assistance; Bob Porter for the kite flying demonstrations and exhibit; Maribeth Stodola as Henoween chair-person; Cathy Varley, parade chair-person; Jan Magnuson, Chicken Show treasurer and T-shirt co-ordinator; Connie Disbrow "for keeping me sane" and Marla McCue for having designed Chicken Show t-shirts for 13 years.

Small groups considered important suggestions for improvements for the 1997 Show. Because Highway 35 will be under construction during next year's Chicken Show, possible changes were examined.

A steering committee and early planning by this committee were determined to be significant.

Other major points of discussion included keeping the chicken theme alive throughout the event; development of an information booth at a central location; and requesting a performance by the Navy band. Possible themes and additional entertainment/activities were also discussed.

The next meeting for the 1997 Chicken Show, Henoween and Chicken Feed will be Thursday, Sept. 26 at 7 p.m. at the lower level meeting room at Columbus Federal Savings Bank.

The public is welcome and encouraged to attend.

WSC welcomes football fans

High School football fans who visit Wayne to see their teams play the Wayne High Blue Devils this fall are being invited to a special pregame "tailgate party" in the new Student Center at Wayne State College.

The complimentary soup suppers are provided to parents and fans of visiting high school teams by Wayne State College as a way to welcome the people of the Northeast Nebraska region to Wayne. The Wayne High team plays its Friday night football games at Memorial Stadium on the WSC Campus.

Hosting the visiting fans for a pregame meal at each of the four games on the high school schedule will be WSC President Dr. Donald Mash and other WSC officials. Also welcoming the visitors will be members of the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors.

The "tailgate parties" will be held in the new WSC Student Center just south of the stadium and will begin at 6:30 p.m. Construction was completed this summer on the $5.2 million addition and renovation that features a striking mall-like atrium and new food court.

Offering the meals for visiting fans has become a Wayne State College tradition under Mash's leadership. They began as a way of easing the hard feelings that can develop between towns over intense athletic rivalries, he added.

Last year, however, with the Student Center construction work in the process, the "tailgate parties" were not held.

"We also enjoy having the opportunity to show off our beautiful campus to visitors and we are especially proud of the striking new Student Center," said Mash. He said many of the fans coming to Wayne for the games will have some connection to the college either as former students, parents of students or possibly even as future students.

This year's fan appreciation tailgate parties are Sept. 20, for Ponca fans, Sept. 27, Centennial High School fans from Utica; Oct. 4, for West Point fans, and Oct. 11, for O'Neill fans.

How should a child defend themselves?

Q: My 4-year-old frequently comes running home in tears because she has been hit by one of her little friends. I have taught her that it is not right to hit others, but now they are making life miserable for her. What should I tell her about defending herself?

A: When youngsters play together, they each want to have the best toys and determine the ground rules to their advantage. If they find they can predominate by simply flinging a well-aimed fist at the nose of their playmate, someone is likely to get hurt.

I'm sure there are people who disagree with me on this issue, but I believe you should teach your child to defend himself or herself when attacked. Later, they can be taught to "turn the other cheek," which even mature adults find difficult to implement.

I recently consulted with a mother who was worried about her small daughter's inability to protect herself from aggression. There was one child in the neighborhood who would crack 3-year-old Ann in the face at the slightest provocation. This little bully, named Joan, was very small and feminine, but she never felt the sting of retaliation, because Ann had been taught not to fight back.

I recommended that Ann's mother tell her to return Joan's attack if Joan hit first. Several days later, the mother began a loud altercation outside, followed by a brief scuffle. Then Joan began crying and went home.

Ann walked into the house with her hands in her pockets, and casually explained, "Joan socked me, so I had to help her remember not to hit me again." She and Joan played much more peacefully since that time.

Generally speaking, a parent should emphasize the foolishness of fighting. But to force a child to stand passively while being clobbered is to leave him at the mercy of his cold-blooded peers.

Q: I am 13 years old, and I feel miserable about myself. Is there anything I can do?

A: First, you need to understand that you are not alone. When you go to school tomorrow, quietly watch the students who are coming and going. I assure you, many of them have the same concerns that trouble you. They reveal these doubts by being very shy and quiet, by being extremely angry and mean, by being silly, by being afraid to participate in a game or contest, by blushing frequently or by acting proud or "stuck up."

You'll soon learn to recognize the signs of inferiority, and then you'll know it's a very common disorder. It will give you more confidence to know that everyone is afraid of embarrassment and ridicule—that we're all sitting in the same leaky boat, trying to plug the watery holes.

Second, I advise you to look squarely at the worries that keep gnawing at you from the back of your mind or from deep within your heart, causing a black cloud to hang over your head day and night. Then list all the things which you most dislike about yourself. Nobody is going to see this paper except the people you choose to show it to, so you can be completely honest. Write down everything that's bothering you.

Identify your most serious problems as best as possible. Whatever concerns you, write it down the best you can. Then when you're finished, go back through the list and put a mark by those items that worry you the most—the problems you spend the most time thinking and fretting about.

Third, think about each item on the list. Give your greatest creative thought to what might be done to change the things you don't like. If you wish, you might share the paper with someone in whom you have confidence. That person can then help you map out a plan for improvement. You'll feel better for having faced your problems.

The key to mental health is being able to accept what you cannot change. After you've done what you can to deal with your problems, I feel you should take the paper on which the most painful items are written, and burn it in a private ceremony.

Anger Doubles Heart Attack Risk

According to an Associated Press report summarized in the medical journal Hippocrates, Harvard researchers found that the risk of having a heart attack was more than twice as great within two hours of having a temper tantrum. Physicians have observed an association of heart attacks with anger; this medical study of 1,600 persons now confirms the relationship.

Type A behavior - which involves impatience, competitiveness, and anger - previously has been linked with heart disease. The Harvard study now points to anger as a key component. Therefore, preventing anger could prevent heart attacks. Before anger gets out of hand, three questions can be asked of oneself: (1) Is this issue important to me? (2) Is my anger justified? (3) Is there anything I can do about it? According to the Hippocrates report, if the answer to any of these is no, one might be able to talk himself or herself into quieting down.

Families should consider charitable giving in estate and retirement planning

In Nebraska during the next 20 years, $28 billion in estate wealth will change hands. Seventy-five percent of these funds are in rural counties. A goal for Nebraska families is to start now to plan how their estate, retirement benefits and life insurance proceeds will be handled in order to benefit their heirs, their community and/or the state.

Wayne County

annuity until death. Transfers with retained life estate allow persons to give property, such as a house or farm, to a charity and the benefactor may continue to use the property until their death.

If a donation is made prior to death, the individual can avoid paying a capital gains tax if the gift is appreciated property. Stocks, bonds and real estate often make excellent gifts to charities. When properties have increased in value and have been held by the individual for at least one year and one day, donors can usually save money by contributing the property rather than an equivalent cash donation. The donor is allowed to deduct the full value of the property and will not have to pay capital gains tax which would be due on sale of the property.

Cash, commodities and life insurance are other types of donations that may be considered. A company that helps owners of a life insurance policy with planned giving is National Life Share Foundation of Des Moines, Iowa. One community fund raiser used the motto "Giving Grain Rather than Cash May Save You a Bushel."

This information contained in this column is for educational purposes only. It is recommended that families contact a qualified estate and retirement planning consultant or their attorney with specific questions about their financial affairs.

Sources: University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Neb Fact 93-114, University of Nebraska Foundation, Don Macke, Director, Nebraska Community Foundation.

According to the University of Nebraska Foundation, the largest piece of this pie currently goes towards estate taxes, followed by heirs and charities outside of the state. The smallest percent goes to local and state charities. However, the number of non-profit organizations are growing and local community foundations are getting more sophisticated. There is also the Nebraska Community Foundation that will manage donations for communities who don't have a local charity or foundation. The result is that families have more choices of local charities and foundations to support that will help keep Nebraska dollars working here.

Donations to qualified charitable organizations entitle donors to claim tax deductions for the value of the gift given. Generally, organizations which are religious, charitable, educational, scientific or literary in purpose of those dedicated to preventing cruelty to children or animals are qualified charitable organizations. Gifts to foreign organizations, social clubs, labor unions, chambers of commerce, individuals, political organizations or groups whose purpose is to lobby for changes in law are not qualified charitable organizations.

Depending on the donor's financial situation, contributing to charities before their death can be rewarding, as it allows the donor to see their gift at work. This kind of donation can also be kept secret — a difficult thing to do if the gift is given in a will. In addition, the donor is able to reduce the cost of contributing, as probate and administrative charges associated with the giving through an estate are avoided. The donor knows their wishes will be carried out if the gift is given during their lifetime.

A charitable organizations' development or planned giving department may be able to provide donation options that save taxes, provide for retirement income or for an annuity for heirs. Devises, such as gift annuities and charitable remainder trusts, allow individuals to give gifts now, receive a tax deduction for the gift (with certain limitations) and provide for a retirement

Handwriting is deteriorating

Not only do I not own a computer or word processor, I don't even have an electric typewriter. And the old manual is in the attic.

I'm in the process of re-organizing my pantry so that I'll have room for a desk and typewriter table there. We don't have a fax.

And even though we are listed on the Internet, we certainly can't get "on line" to see it. Besides, I don't know where I'd put it. A computer, I mean.

Consequently, I still write letters. And I use a lot of stamps. As the local postmaster says with a smile, "You're our kind of person!"

"Actually," I told him, "I'm almost an endangered species." Whereupon he suggested they put me on a stamp!

I used to be proud of my hand writing but years of charting have caused it to deteriorate. When I reread these things a week after I write them, printed in the paper, I wince. The gals who have to get them ready for printing must have a hard time sometimes. If some of the sentences don't make sense to you, it's probably because they couldn't figure out what I had written.

We've also heard of one in Bronson that features orchids floating in the toilet bowl. No wonder our rates sound good. As I tell folks, the name says it all: we're just clean and comfortable.

COUNTRY CLASSICS 4-H CLUB

The Country Classics 4-H Club met at 3 p.m. on Aug. 21 at the Wayne swimming pool park. Eight members were present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Beth Loberg. The balance in the treasury is $60.39. Record books are to be turned in to Kris Loberg by Sept. 3. Chris Clover award applications are due Sept. 16. Country Award applications are due Sept. 30.

The next meeting will be at Pizza Hut on Sept. 22. Members are to bring $2 each for pizza and pop.

wife had found us in a Bed and Breakfast book and needed a room for the night. They were pleasantly surprised at our rates.

They had been in New England, where there are many Bed and Breakfasts. Some were still what they started out as: extra rooms converted for guests. Others had become extremely commercialized and thus, expensive.

We called the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce regarding any in that area. We were given the name "Almost Heaven" so I called to ask prices. One suite starts at $200 a night and the honeymoon package is $500. Besides, they probably could not accommodate us

Number of 4-H participants is up for 1996 State Fair

Four-H participation is on the rise for the 1996 Nebraska State Fair, Aug. 23-Sept. 2 in Lincoln, said a University of Nebraska-Lincoln 4-H youth development specialist.

"We're expecting 1,900 4-H'ers from around Nebraska, which is up 150 from last year," Kathleen Lodd noted.

"The larger numbers are a sign of 4-H involvement getting stronger across the state."

This state fair also will see an increase in numbers for two 4-events: breeding beef and poultry. Breeding beef entries increased by 11 head. And, at 236, the number of poultry entrants has nearly doubled.

Some 4-H events will undergo changes. For example, the Discovery Center has expanded, the venue and times for the Fashion Revue have changed, and two champion awards will be presented in the 4-H swine show.

The Discovery Center was new at the 1995 state fair.

"We started it last year, trying to give more opportunities for kids to be involved while they're at the fair," explained the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources youth development specialist. It was a big hit.

Designed for children, the Discovery Center will be open Aug. 30, 31, Sept. 1 and 2. It will host a different activity each day. Programs include farm safety, bike safety, a science exhibit featuring snails, entomology experiments, designing a new home environment using decorating techniques, food safety and diversity activities aimed at teaching kids about understanding people and cultures.

The Fashion Revue will host two shows on Sept. 1, Lodd said. Half of the entrants will model their creations at 1 p.m. and the second group will model at 4 p.m. The shows have been moved to the Clubhouse of the Grandstand.

As always, the 4-Hers will give presentations and show small and large animals. Their handiworks, such as woodworking, crafts and food creations, also will be on display.

This year, both a champion barrow and a champion gilt trophy will be awarded during the swine show on Sept. 2. For several years only one champion was selected in this class, but in the interest of expanding the recognition of animals in this area, two trophies will be presented.

Prepare CRP now for spring planting

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced recently that after July 15, Nebraska CRP participants can use chemicals to prepare CRP acreages for spring-seeded crops before their contracts expire. Destruction of the CRP cover by any other means is not permitted. Interested participants should meet with Natural Resources and Conservation Service (NRCS) to develop a conservation plan to include early land preparation activities. Participants are not required to submit requests with the Farm Service Agency (FSA) to commence with this activity and will not be assessed a payment reduction.

"The above announcement is truly beneficial to those landowners and growers wishing to convert their CRP back to crop production using conservation tillage or no-till methods," said David Holshouser, NU Weed Management Specialist at the Northeast Research and Extension Center. "Research has clearly shown that late summer and fall herbicide applications are superior to spring applications for controlling CRP grass vegetation."

Holshouser explains that cool-season grasses, such as smooth brome, can be adequately controlled with herbicides applied in October, but applications should be made in August or early September for control of warm-season grasses such as switchgrass. Furthermore, because warm-season grasses do not emerge and put on enough growth in the spring for adequate herbicide control, the only options for growers were to choose between incomplete control under a no-till system or using deep tillage to kill the vegetation. "The latter of course would lead to increased soil erosion and soil quality degradation on land which is already environmentally sensitive and of relatively low productivity," added Holshouser. "With this recent exemption, growers can convert back to crops, control soil erosion and preserve the soil quality enhancements that have occurred over the last 10 years."

For herbicide rates, Holshouser suggests applying Roundup Ultra (or any herbicide with glyphosate as the active ingredient) at two quarts per acre plus Ammonium Sulfate (AMS) at 17 pounds per 100 gallons of water for either warm or cool season grasses. If the old formulation of Roundup or another herbicide containing glyphosate is used, add a nonionic surfactant at two quarts per 100 gallons of water. "Remember, herbicide applications should be made to warm-season grasses in August to early September and to cool-season grasses in October," Holshouser said.

The only other management practice that the USDA notice does not address is residue management needed before herbicide application to insure good kill of the vegetation. "In our research at the Northeast Center, on smooth brome grass, we've found that removing the old vegetative growth and allowing at least six to eight inches of regrowth before herbicide application, 10 to 12 inches of regrowth with switchgrass, gives better control than just applying the herbicide," said the NU weed specialist. He added that shredding smooth brome grass vegetation in early September allowed much more regrowth than haying in early October. This in turn, allowed better herbicide control. However, since the USDA provision does not authorize mowing or shredding, Holshouser suggests contacting your local NRCS or FSA to see if this would be allowed.
