Legislature spends time on hand guns

The Legislature spent the majority of its floor debates this week discussing a proposal that would allow Nebraska to carry concealed handguns. LB 465 was introduced by Senator Stan Schellpeter, and Senator Jim Jones of Sidneyville designated it as his priority bill this session.

The supporters of LB 465 contend that the right-to-carry concealed weapons would give law-abiding citizens the means to protect themselves as well as reduce crime. Critics of the bill claim that this legislation would only bring more guns onto the streets, and that there would be more gun-related accidents involving children.

An amendment, which passed on a 30-2 vote, would delay the start of LB 465 until January 1, 1998, to allow the State Patrol appropriate time to set up a computer database for right-to-carry permit applications. At the end of debate on Tuesday, a bracket motion was passed to delay further discussion and consideration of the bill until April 15.

Legislative Bill 103, introduced by Senator Doug Kristensen of Minden passed final reading and was sent to Governor Nelson's desk for approval. As enacted, LB 103 would reinstate the winner-take-all system for allocating electoral college votes, which go to the presidential and vice-presidential candidates who win the state. Currently in Nebraska, of the five electoral college votes, two votes go to the candidate who wins the state. The other three are divided among the state's three congressional districts, and are awarded to the candidate who wins in each district.

Nebraska and Maine are the only states in the union which deviate from the winner-takes-all electoral college vote system. LB 103 now awaits the governor's signature, however, Governor Nelson vetoed a similar bill that was passed last session.

Three members of the Revenue Committee have designated the major, three-bill property tax replacement package as their priority bills this session. This package would aid in providing replacement funds for local governments affected under LB 1114, passed last session. Senator Warner, Chairman of the Revenue Committee chose LB 269. Under this proposal, the community colleges would receive 20 percent of their budget from tuition, 40 percent from property taxes, and 40 percent from state taxes.

Senator Gordon of Hebron selected LB 180 as his priority bill. This legislation would create the Property Tax Reduction Incentive Fund. If enacted, it would replace some of the approximately $280 million in lost property taxes with state money. Senator Stan Schellpeter of Stanton chose LB 306 as the third component of the replacement package legislation.

This bill would create the a Government Efficiency Commission. The commission would evaluate and approve local bonding projects of at least $500,000 or 10 percent of the budget, whichever is more. LB 306 would also permit, with the approval of two-thirds of their governing board, schools a 1.2 percent building rate increase.

There will be considerable debate on these proposals. As we do the fine tuning of the tax package that we passed last year, we have to keep in mind that we promised property tax relief and we must keep that promise. I will keep you updated as the bills are advanced to the legislative floor.

If you have any questions or comments on these matters pending before the legislature, please do not hesitate to contact me at my office 402-471-2716, or you may write to me, Senator Pat Engel, State Capitol, Lincoln, NE 68509.

Big task ahead

Berggren & Wolf Architects provided the Wayne County Commissioners a requested maintenance and improvement plan dated June 16, 1993. Cost estimates were made in 1993 dollars.

The report, now four years old, provided the commissioners with data which was gathered following a total analysis of maintenance needs of the old courthouse.

Cast iron radiators are used to steam-heat the structure. The boiler was built in 1970 with a life expectancy of 30-50 years. The piping and radiators may even be original equipment installed in 1899, the report says. The heating system does not provide any ventilation. Steam systems are difficult to control providing some areas with too much heat while other areas are too cool. Current solution to cool a "too hot" area is to raise a window.

The new elevator will require a new three phase service to the building.

Other needs on a suggested priority list include: correction of roof leaks, masonry repairs including tuckpointing and stone repair, dampproofing the foundation and improving the drainage, window repairs and dormer repainting, adding an elevator for vertical access, a central air conditioning system which will increase the energy efficiency, and improvement of lighting. None of this increases work area footage.

Estimated cost for improvements in 1993 dollars: $1,211,500 plus 20 percent contingency fees.

Remember, when a new courthouse was voted on in May 1984, taxpayers turned down the $1.4 million bond issue (spread over 15 years with a $170,000 annual payment) requiring a levy of 6.5 cents per $100 of tax base.

Are we Wayne County citizens being penny wise and pound foolish?

Chamber planning alumni 'come back home' campaign

A special thank goes out from Chamber today to everyone who participated in last week's Membership Blitz. This includes the Ambassadors and Chamber members who worked the Blitz, members of the Membership Council who planned the day, everyone who provided great food, flowers for the reception, and especially all 25 new Chamber members. Thanks and sincere congratulations on a successful night!

Do you know any alumni who might want to "come back home" to Wayne? A being offered an target alumni of Wayne High School from the years 1950-1954 and 1960-1984. This program is funded through a one year 10-144 grant.

Local alumni will be given an invitation to plan a reunion right here in beautiful Nebraska, and encouraged to become involved with back home. Again, that of town alumni will be invited to spend their vacation in the area, elaborate back home, return to the good life, invest in business opportunities, or check out employment possibilities. The program will be explained, and a brochure of the area will be included in the mailings.

We all know this wonderful tourism possibilities in this area. We all know how the community has grown and continues to provide employment and business opportunities. We all know what a great retirement life Wayne offers. Here is the chance to let those who have moved away, find out what is special about Wayne. How many of you really need your "back home"? A relative newcomer to the Wayne area, I do not know who to approach from those years ago. We need a lot of the alumni from each of those years for this year's reunion. Another way you could help would be to volunteer for our 25th year follow up to be personally addressed. If you're a graduate of Wayne High from one of those years, let us know what your phone call at 338-7740. We need to talk

The Nebraska Press Association

I grew up playing good, down-to-earth card games like five-point pitch and spades.

I'd watch my grandpa win red beers down at Shorty's in pitch games, and play spades during college into the wee hours of the night.

So, understandably, when a couple of friends tried to teach me a new game, hearts, I was confused. They kicked my behind. Unlike pitch or spades where you win by taking the most tricks or points, hearts is won by taking the least number of tricks. There's also a weaky catch to hearts — passing the queen of spades to an opponent sticks them with multiple points and pretty much dooms them to loss.

The bottom line in hearts is that no matter how well you play your other cards, you'd better beware of that queen. Because that single card can kill you.

Needless to say I got stuck with the queen a lot. I imagine a lot of state senators are feeling sort of like one night now because they're finding out that the one person who can kill you in the political card game called the Nebraska Legislature is from Chambers.

Sen. Chambers is taken off with most of the rest of the Legislature by its almost unanimous support of a measure to outlaw recognition of same-sex marriages. He's taken a gut for several bills that have come up recently.

The same-sex marriage issue is viewed beyond of enjoying the beach. A couple in Hawaii decided the marriage between two men or two women should be allowed and recognized in that state. It leaves the possibility that being a baby from Nebraska would actually be a Hawaiian, and not to get their marriage legally recognized here.

That, ladies and gents, is Nebraska and most other states in the nation. Other most that the legislature is already in a bind in Washington and it appears to be a pretty tightrope walk at the senators here want additional protection, thus the debate in Lincoln this spring.

But the advancement of the same-sex bill has turned Chambers' vengeance loose on several other bills. Even if he is the only opponent, the senator can pull enough parliamentary maneuvers to ruin any senator's parade.

Sen. Joyce Hillman of Scottsbluff, a thoughtful representative of the Chamber, felt the wrath of Chambers on one of her bills recently, and the state may lose out on $1 million in federal funds because of it.

Last week the much-supported concealed weapons bill got the Chambers treatment. He whipped up so much opposition (and attempts to amend the bill) that sponsor Stan Schellpeper of Stanton — lacking the votes to halt the attack by Chambers and other opponents to such gun laws — had to pull his bill from the agenda.

I have never quite understood the need to have concealed handguns myself. Nebraska legally allows people to carry guns in plain view. If folks are afraid of crime, I'd say a pistol in plain view (and easy reach) is more of a deterrent to a bad guy than one housed in a purse or glove compartment.

But, hey, I'm not a state senator, and I won't have a vote on the concealed handgun bill, which you can be sure, will get plenty of back-room massaging before it comes up for a vote again.

Both gun rights and prohibiting same-sex marriage are politically popular issues that stand great chances of passage. Senators who support such measures will reap the political spoils.

But just like in the game of hearts, they'd better watch out — just one card, or in this case, a senator, can kill them.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

WSC educators present study

The results of a program at Wayne State College to mentor and provide academic counseling for athletes will be discussed at a national conference on racial diversity issues to be held at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, April 18-19.

Lisa Hardaway, a WSC graduate assistant in the Humanities Division, and Patricia Luft, an adjunct faculty member in the Social Sciences Division, will present a report entitled,

"Diversity, Athletics and Mentoring: Creating New Academic Avenues" at the second Annual People of Color or Predominantly White Institutions Conference. The theme of this year's session is "Different Perspectives on Majority Roles."

Hardaway and Luft will discuss experiences working with athletes through the college's athletic academic program and through individual mentoring. While the focus of the report is on athletes' approaches to academic success, the findings also impact the college as a whole for student recruitment and retention, said Hardaway.

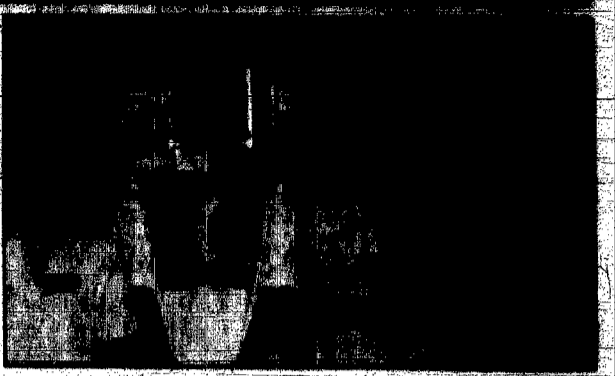

Wayne State College has been cited in recent months for its high academic success among student athletes and for its retention and graduation rates among the general student body as well. The college ranks well above national averages when compared to similar institutions in these categories.

The success of WSC academic counseling and mentoring programs for athletes has prompted efforts to expand student services programs to provide more academic, learning and individual mentoring to the general student body as well, she said.

This means greater academic success and increased graduation rates for everyone, Hardaway added.

WSC receives good review

Wayne State College has completed the process of reaccreditation of the Teacher Education program in the College's education division. The National Commission on Accreditation for Teacher Education (NCATE) visited the Wayne campus and conducted a thorough audit.

"We should all be very pleased with the results of the NCATE review," said Dr. Diane Alexander, dean of the Education Division at Wayne State. Alexander said the committee had very positive things to say about the education program, its faculty, and the learning experience WSC's students were receiving.

"This program continues to be a tremendous collaborative effort from our entire campus," said Dr. Jo Taylor, vice president of Academic Affairs at WSC. "It is a great faculty and staff from across campus to work together to prepare for this review." Taylor noted faculty and staff should all feel a sense of pride for this accomplishment.

The NCATE Board of Examiners will submit a written report to the Dean of Education within four weeks to permit Dr. Alexander an opportunity to respond to their findings. The findings and the report will be heard before the East Accreditation Board in Washington, DC later this year when official recognition and acceptance is given to Wayne State College for NCATE continuing accreditation for both the undergraduate and graduate programs.

Eleven players tabbed for basketball honors

All-Area Girls Team released

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The Annual Wayne Herald All-Area Girls Basketball team was released by the Wayne Herald, today with 11 girls comprising the team.

Class C-2 State semifinalist Laurel Concord leads the team with four players earning first team status including Becky Schroeder, Tracy Anthony, Allissa Krie and Sarah Ehlers while Wayne had three make the team including Katie Lutt, Melissa Weber and Molly Linster.

Shanyu Moran and Mindy Pflueger earned first team status from Allen's team while Alison Benson was the lone Wakefield player on the first team with Jess Miller doing likewise for Winside.

It was quite a year for the Laurel boys and it's been quite a career for the senior quartet of Schroeder, Anthony, Krie and Ehlers. Schroeder was recently named a first team all state by the Okanogan World Herald while Anthony earned second team all state for an impressive one-two punch that tallied more than 40 wins the past two seasons.

Allissa Krie and Sarah Ehlers also added a dimension to the team that made them incredibly tough as both could dribble and shoot very well and made teams pay when they concentrated their efforts on Schroeder and Anthony.

Wayne's Katie Lutt definitely left her mark on Wayne High athletics. She will graduate as one of the all-time best athletes to wear a Blue Devils uniform. She drew simple attention from opponents all year but she still managed to lead Wayne in scoring and rebounding as well as steals.

Melissa Weber had a terrific year staying in the ball in the open player and also sparking the Blue Devils offense with her own scoring power. Her playmaking skills from the point guard position allowed Wayne to notch a winning record after finishing well below 500 the season before.

Molly Linster electrified home crowds in a number of games with her ability to take over a game by herself. She will be the leading returning player for next year's team as she is only a junior. She finished second to Lutt in scoring this season.

Shanyu Moran and Mindy Pflueger supplied the starting punch and the inside strength for Lou Koester and Gary Lewis's Allen Eagles this year and both will be greatly missed.

Moran's athleticism surprised some opposition with her ability to run the floor and get the job done on the boards on both ends of the court. Pflueger took after her "sister" team before supplying the Eagles with a consistent effort in scoring and rebounding game in and game out.

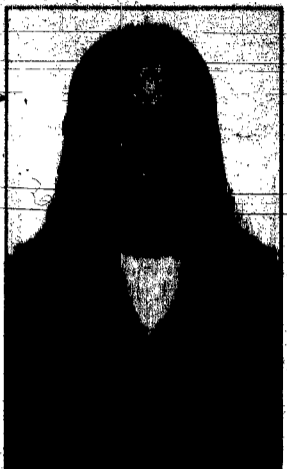

One of the most athletic female athletes in all of Class C-2 is Alison Benson of Wakefield, who led her team in scoring once again. Benson is one of the top athletes in the state scoring very high in fitness testing done by the Sports Medicine Center. She led the Trojans in scoring to over 80 percent of the games this season.

Jess Miller is one of the up and coming athletes in not only the Wayne Herald coverage area but the entire C-2 class. The sophomore was the top voter for Winside and looks to be a shoo-in for the first couple years on both the volleyball and basketball courts.

The Player of the Year Award will be a new award with both participants coming from the same team with Becky Schroeder and Tracy Anthony both from Laurel Concord well up on the list of candidates. The award is a process that has been the best each the state semifinal in each of the past two seasons.

Honorable mention players for the All-Area team include Jessa Erwin of Laurel Concord, Anna Wiseman of Wayne, Jaime Kluever of Allen, Kristin DeWitt and Rachel Outcalt of Wakefield and Mandi Toppi along with Rachel Riley of Winside.

Wayne Herald All-Area boys cage team honors top players

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The Annual Wayne Herald All-Area Boys Basketball Team was announced today with 11 athletes comprising this year's team. The Wayne Blue Devils and Laurel Concord Bears lead the way with three recipients each with Paul Blomenkamp, Matt Meyer and Justin Theide representing the Blue Devils while Travis Stingley, Andy Rose and Vince Ward earn first team status for the Bears.

By Henson and Justin Mackling are first teamers from Wakefield with Chad O'Connor and Jamey Holdorf holding the honor from Winside. Allen's lone recipient is Michael Bluhm.

Paul Blomenkamp graduates from Wayne with some pretty big numbers with more than 1100 points and 600 plus rebounds. He was the driving force behind Wayne's success which garnered 14 wins. He made more than last year.

Matt Meyer was the playmaker for the Blue Devils and played his role of getting the ball to the open player and often supplying the Blue Devils with a scoring spark of his own.

Justin Theide will return for one more season as a Blue Devil as will Meyer. Theide will be the leading scorer that returns to next year's squad and he'll be called on to supply the leadership necessary for Wayne to take that next step.

One of the veterans of this year's all-area team is Andy Rose of Laurel who elevated his game to a new level this season. Rose is constantly working on his game to improve any way he can which in turn leads to wins for Clayton State's gang.

Travis Stingley led in all-out come of the early games this season for Laurel because they broke him in but the center returned to score a plethora of points despite wearing a brace. His made movement around the rim as well as ability to run the floor attracted much attention from the opposition.

Vince Ward quietly went about his business on the hardwood much like he did in a football uniform. He's one of those athletes that would much rather show what he can do on the court instead of talking about it and it's that kind of play that made him one of the most respected young athletes in all of Class C-2.

Despite a disappointing season, record-wise the Wakefield Trojans had some fine athletes including a sophomore that made a ton of noise in H. Henson who led the team in scoring.

Henson is a very good athlete who will undoubtedly supply Trojans fans with plenty of highlights over the next couple years.

Justin Mackling closed out a solid senior year for the Wakefield basketball team and though he'll most be remembered for his football career that proved to be nothing less than outstanding to still produce some above-average numbers on the basketball court.

Speaking of athletes, there's not a team in the area that can boast of having better athletes than the Winside one-two punch of Jamey Holdorf and Chad O'Connor.

Both of these players were a treat for Winside fans to watch and both will chase out their athletic careers on the track with O'Connor already setting school records in the high jump (6'6") and triple jump (43-foot plus) and it's only Jamey Holdorf will lead the hurdle crew and remain in shape in the off-season to prepare for a collegiate football career at Wayne State College.

The last player on the first team is Mike Bluhm of Allen and here's another perfect example of an extremely talented athlete. Bluhm is the type of player who can score on anybody he plays against. His ability to react to different game situations made him very difficult to defend.

Those earning honorable mention status on the Wayne Herald All-Area Team include Ryan Gaffney of Laurel-Concord, Jeremy Kuhn and Phillip Morgan of Allen, Ryan Dahl and Paul Zalkosky of Wayne and Austin Luth of Wakefield. Among the players to watch next season at far as the youth movement is concerned is Paul Gardner of Wakefield who had a very fine freshman season on the varsity for Brad Hoskins. The Player of the Year Honor goes to Wayne's Paul Blomenkamp with the Coach of the Year Award going to Rocky Ruhl of Wayne.

Wayne owner/driver visits Power Unlimited in Wayne

How does one go from racing a number of Indycar races in Nebraska-Lincoln to Chicago—to owner of an Indycar?

If you are Dr. Shawn Schmidt you take the fastest track available of course.

But, being fast and being successful are two distinctly different things. Yet, Dr. Schmidt has attempted both and has been equally masterful in each.

He has combined his passion for racing, and his business acumen, and has achieved in a few short years, what most can only dream.

Schmidt has been at the helm for three years, of a 14-member team that races in the American Indycar Series (AIS). He campaigns a Lola chassis, equipped with a modified, Chevy Bowtie, V-8 engine.

Under Schmidt's management, the Red Shark Racing Team has consistently finished in the top five in the championship points. They are in their fourth year in the series, proudly displaying the number three on the car, and with ever higher expectations than previous years.

With Schmidt's consistently high level of professionalism, and his clear sighted goals, there is no doubt that they will finish high in the standings.

He has received media attention from a variety of sources including national, regional and state for his driving skill.

In keeping with his philosophy of "Management from the ground up," he is the sole driver for the team. He has received honors from his peers as the most improved driver.

Finally, as if being a team owner and driver weren't enough, Schmidt serves as Chief Medical Advisor to the AIS. It is the second year that he has served in this capacity.

Schmidt has invested as much enthusiasm and hard work to his other role as an owner of his private medical practice, as he has to his racing venture.

He is in his 10th year of chiropractic practice. As sole owner of The National Health Center, he employs a staff of eight. His expertise in this field is evidenced by the increasing size of the number of patients he sees, as well as the number of new referrals, due to his reputation.

Additionally, the clinic has undergone major expansion in less than three years. These expansions have been necessary to assist in and enhance Schmidt's goal of providing a full spectrum of health related services which include nutritional counseling, acupuncture, and Chinese medicine.

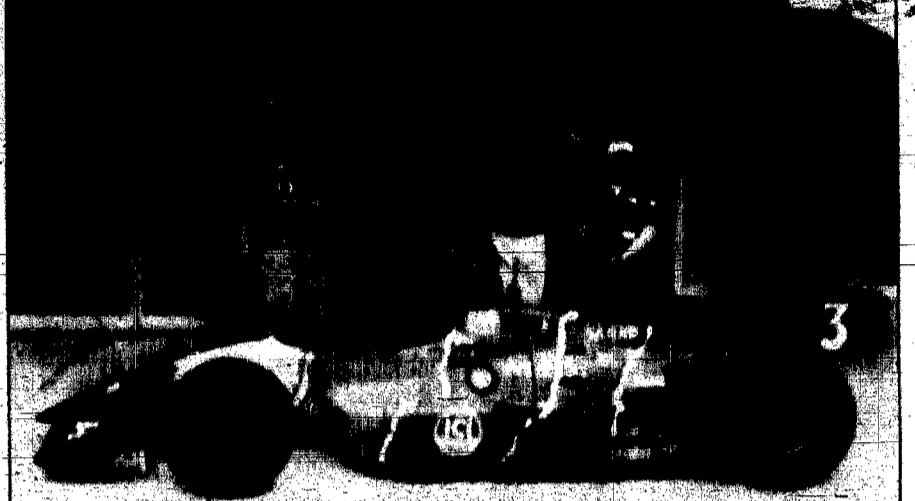

Among his racing team is a former Waynes, Francis Thompson who is the business and marketing manager for the Red Shark Racing Team. He currently provides business automation and consulting services in Omaha.

Thompson and Schmidt were in Wayne last Saturday with their Indycar as part of a promotion for Power Unlimited and the opening of Wayne's newest Internet provider, Northeast Nebraska ComNet. Both Power Unlimited and Northeast Nebraska ComNet became sponsors of Schmidt's racing team.

The car sat in front of the main street business all day with Schmidt signing autographs from noon-2 p.m. with photographs also being taken.

The Indycar driven by Dr. Shawn Schmidt was in Wayne last Saturday on display at Power Unlimited. Below, Dr. Schmidt signs an autograph for five-year old Shelby Meyer.

Bill could change vehicle tax

By Roy Frederick
Public Policy Specialist
Department of Agricultural Economics
University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Motor vehicles including the automobiles that you and I drive are an important part of Nebraska's property tax base. This year the tax value of motor vehicles statewide is $4.5 billion or nine percent of the total tax base. The tax levied on motor vehicles is nearly $152 million.

Admittedly, motor vehicles are a less important source of tax revenue than residential, agricultural and commercial and industrial property. But for many people, the property tax on a vehicle, especially a late model, is the total matter. Tax examples using this year's statewide average tax rate of 2.33: the tax bill on a $20,000 automobile would be $466. Registration fees, license plate fees and wheel taxes also add to the annual cost of ownership.

Tax values for motor vehicles currently are set by the Nebraska Department of Revenue. A specific make and model has the same tax value across the state.

The condition of the vehicle is a component for tax purposes. Values roughly reflect current market prices, though, as a practical matter, many tend to be on the conservative side of actual market value. This is especially true for well-maintained, low mileage vehicles.

Nebraska law currently does not provide for appraisals of motor vehicle values, as it does for real estate. This becomes more important as motor vehicle prices continue to escalate.

Suppose, for example, that the owner of a motor vehicle is convinced that the tax value of a vehicle is several thousand dollars over its market value. Perhaps it's a high-mileage vehicle or has been poorly maintained. The owner's options are few, except to undertake a legal challenge against the present system. The state's assignment of an above-market valuation while failing to provide an appeal opportunity could be a good basis for such a suit.

The Nebraska Legislature currently is considering (B 271), a bill that would significantly change the entire system of motor vehicle valuation and taxation. It begins with four taxing brackets or fees based on the manufacturer's price of a new vehicle. The fee would be $220 if the vehicle value is $17,000 or less, $270 for values between $17,000 and $22,000, $340 for values between $22,000 and $40,000, and $420 for any vehicle valued over $40,000.

Depreciation schedules would then be used to determine a vehicle's value and the fee to be paid in succeeding years. Generally, it's expected that this new scheme would reduce annual licensing costs on new and used vehicles. But costs probably will increase slightly on vehicles three years old and older, at least up to the time a vehicle is 14 years old. The new scheme also could put the state on stronger legal footing; market values would no longer be the basis for determining the annual fee.

Motor vehicle fees, as described above, would be used to support local governments in the same manner as property taxes. However, one other part of the proposed new system would be different. Each vehicle owner would be required to pay a flat $25 fee in addition to the value-based fee. Funds collected from the flat fee would go into the city-county road fund. It's another way to give special help to cities and counties when new tax rate limits go into effect in 1998.

Amber Surber, left, and Jerry Woldt, proudly hold the rats they have been allowed to adopt following a six-week experiment at Wayne Middle School.

Rats show need for a nutritional diet

Fifth graders at Wayne Middle School have been giving two rats a lot of attention during the past six weeks.

The rats, named Pinky and Brain are part a science unit sponsored by the National Dairy Council involving nutrition.

One of the rats received a control diet and received milk. The experimental rat received piglet water. Both received food from the five food groups.

Food for the animals was provided by the students in Mrs. Ellen Lindlieke's science classes.

During the course of the six weeks, the control rat became larger and heavier than the experimental rat.

Weekly observations of the rats were made and measurements taken. Students also recorded data in their record book.

At the conclusion of the experiment, the students were given the opportunity to adopt a rat with a preliminary slip form home.

The "winners" of the rats were Amber Surber and Jerry Woldt.

This is the third year the Dairy Council has had an adoption program.

LOTTERY WINNER

Yvonne Braunroth recently purchased a Nebraska Lottery scratch card at the Fair Store that was worth $5,000. The card was part of the Nine Lives Scratch game.

Ms. Braunroth also purchased a scratch card that was worth $100. To claim her latest prize, she had to go to the State Lottery Office in Norfolk to cash her ticket.

Ms. Braunroth, a native of Bloomfield, has lived in Wakfield approximately three years. She works in the USDA department at Husker Foods, a division of the M.G. Waldbaum operation.

NATIONAL PROGRAM

The Wakfield Community School has been selected by the Annenbury Rural Challenge to participate in an national program to help rural communities and schools expand the ways they work cooperatively to sustain themselves.

Wakfield is one of only two schools in Nebraska selected to take part in the national program.

The national Annenbury program involves schools in Texas, Nebraska, Vermont, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Alaska.

The goals of the Annenbury Rural Challenge are to help promote rural communities, develop and sustain rural education, reduce the economic isolation, and ways that help rural schools and communities.

The first grade class also participated and winners were Caitlin Gustafson and Bartel Kluthe.

QUESTIONS ABOUT THE ANNENBURY RURAL CHALLENGE

Questions about the Annenbury Rural Challenge may be directed to Principal Jeanne Surface or Superintendent Jim Putman.

YOUNG AUTHORS CONTEST

Parenting is costly and complex

Q: Considering how difficult it is to be good parents in this day and age, why should anyone want to have children? Is it worth it?

A: Parenthood is costly and complex, no doubt about it.

I'm reminded of a woman with seven rambunctious children who boarded a Los Angeles bus and sat in the seat behind me. Her hair was a mess and the black circles under her eyes revealed a state of utter exhaustion.

As she slumped past me with her wiggling tribe, I asked, "Do all these children belong to you, or is this some kind of picnic?"

She looked at me through upturned eyes and said, "They're all mine, and believe me, it's no picnic!"

The woman is right. Parenthood is no job for shales. Am I suggesting, then, that newly married couples should remain childless? Certainly not! The family that loves children and wants to experience the thrill of procreation should not be frightened by the challenge of parenthood.

Speaking from my own perspective as a father, there has been no greater moment in my life than when I gazed into the eyes of my infant daughter, and five years later, my son.

What could be more exciting than seeing those tiny human beings begin to blossom and grow and learn and live? And what reward could be more meaningful than having my little boy or girl climb on my lap as I sit by the fire, hug my neck and whisper, "I love you, Dad?"

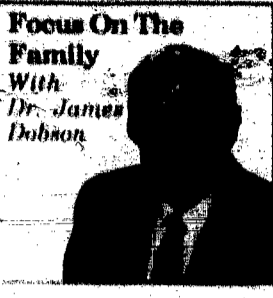

Oh, yes, children are expensive, but they're worth the price. Besides, nothing worth having comes cheap.

Q: My child is having trouble in school again this year. The psychologist said he is a "slow learner," and will probably always struggle academically. Please tell me what a "slow learner" is?

A: A slow learner is a child who has difficulty learning in school and usually scores between 70 and 90 on intelligence tests. These individuals comprise more than 20 percent of the total population.

In many ways, the school children in this category face some serious challenges in their classrooms. Of particular concern are the individuals with IQs in the lower range of the slow learner classification (70 to 80) who are virtually destined to have difficulties in school.

No special education is available for them in most schools, although they are not appreciably different from the borderline retarded students.

A "mentally handicapped" child with an IQ of 70 would probably qualify for the highly specialized and expensive educational program, including a smaller class, a specially trained teacher, audio-visual aids and a "no fail" policy.

By contrast, a slow-learning child with an IQ of 80 would usually receive no such advantages. He must compete in regular classes against the full range of students who are more capable than himself. The concept of competition implies winners and losers; it is the slower learner who usually "loses."

QUESTION: What causes a child to be a "slow learner"?

DR. DOBSON: There are many hereditary, environmental and physical factors that contribute to one's intellect, and it is difficult to isolate the particular influences. In some cases, however, accumulating evidence tends to indicate that dull normal intelligence and even borderline retardation can be caused by a lack of intellectual stimulation in the child's very early years.

There appears to be a critical period during the first three to four years when the potential for intellectual growth must be seized. If the opportunity is missed, the child may never reach the capacity that had originally been available to him.

The slow-learning child can be one who has not heard adult language clearly. He has not been provided with interesting books and puzzles to occupy his sensory apparatus. He has not been taken to the zoo, airport or other exciting places. He has grown up with a minimum of daily training and guidance from adults.

The lack of stimulation available to such a child may result in the failure of enzyme systems to develop properly in the brain.

Good-Friday procession

Approximately 30 people participated in the Ecumenical Good Friday walk. This year's walk began at St. Mary's Catholic Church and ended at Our Savior Lutheran Church. A number of clergy from the churches took part in the service which commemorated the crucifixion of Jesus.

Parental interference with children's companions should kept at minimum

Unless a friendship is suspected to be particularly detrimental or dangerous, parents shouldn't interfere with children's companions at any age.

Ability friendships are the best to form. At a very young age, however, children seek relationships with their peers. Children they meet through school, sports, church, etc.

Like any relationship, friendships go through highs and lows. Even young children experience conflicts with their friends. When this occurs, parents should refrain from taking sides. Taking sides troubles the parentally can result in adult conflict.

Instead, parents should simply listen to their children, vent their feelings and let them work out their own differences. Advice should be offered only when asked.

Parents do need to be particularly supportive when their children's friendships fall apart.

First Communion celebrated at Our Savior Lutheran

Eighteen young people from Our Savior Lutheran Church celebrated First Communion on Monday, March 27.

Those celebrating were from Backstrom, Christina, Bundtson, Debra, Dorothy, Healy, Dickey, Brady, Carlson, Allison, Hansen, Laska, Kay, Janet, Helton, Cayor, Helton, Lindy, Olsen, Elizabeth, O'Neil, Katie, Olson, Ray, Olson, Lillian, Roberts, Chris, Stoberg, Kyle, Hogg, and Paganoni and Katerina Spahn.

Cooperative Extension

This can be devastating to a child being present and listening can be more helpful than advising. "It will be OK. You'll find a new friend." Kids rarely believe such passive consolation.

Parents become particularly anxious about their children's friends in the preteen and teenage years. Parents should have an interest in their children's friends but they can become too critical. In order to know what kind of influence a friend may have on your child, learn something about the friend's parents. Also, parents should make an opportunity to meet the child's friends by inviting them over to play or to stay overnight.

Parents should teach the topic of teenage friendships carefully so Children don't tend to develop friendships with people who hurt them. For kids to stay friends, the positives need to outweigh the negatives. If parents do have concerns, ask the teen why that person is considered a friend. Stating the reason will help the teen evaluate what is gained through the relationship.

It's important for children to know they have parental trust. They need to be able to make their own mistakes, even when selecting friends. If the friendship ends, be supportive and don't criticize.

If you feel there is a good reason to be concerned, investigate the situation. But don't attempt to break up the friendship. This tends to bring people closer together.

Instead, talk over concerns with your children. Children need to know parents may not approve of the relationship. However, what's more important is that the child can talk to you about the situation.

People try on new people as friends all the time. This includes children. Unless the friendship is damaging, it may be best for parents to curb their disapproval and wait out the relationship instead of making a big deal out of the situation.

Flurry of activity surrounds week

It's the last day of March, the day after Easter and the birthday of our eldest daughter. As usual in March, the wind's blowing but the sun is shining and it's 60 degrees.

The farmer across the road is dinking and there are antbirds and ducks standing in fields. Also, lots of new calves are appearing. Even if the forecast is for rain the rest of the week, we need that too and only the pasture is expecting more snow.

Next Sunday we set our clocks forward and the ones in both of our cars will be right again.

It's been a busy morning the past two weeks. We'd know it was spring just from the B & B calls. Palm Sunday weekend there was a couple here both nights, observing an anniversary. On that Friday night good friends from Winona and Onondaga stayed, and on Saturday night 50¢ and the boys visited.

By Pat Monahan

Our Pix and I attended a conference at the University that evening. I love that building. In fact, I enjoy all of the old Market area.

Grandpa ended up baby-sitting. Bonnie and Alex. Alex buried himself getting things out of the toy cupboard. Mike told him he had to put some away before getting any more out. Alex ignored that. When Mike repeated the direction, our three-year old guy went to the kitchen, put on his coat (sans shoes) and announced he was going home. At that, Bonnie took notice and waited. "No, Alex, you don't want to go home!"

On Sunday, they went along to church. I'd forgotten how long an hour seems when you are young. At least they have learned to whisper.

Monday afternoon I was in Lincoln for a funeral and picked up Brenda at her other grandparents. Her parents were both out of state so she stayed in Nebraska. We had a good time on Tuesday, visiting Grandpa's store, counting eggs and checking the boxes at Kwik. The visit back on Tuesday evening.

We had Bible study that night, then Wednesday night and Maundy Thursday services. Thursday we also had more guest that night. We had a break Friday night, a welcome one.

On Saturday, I attended the Easter Cantata at my sister's church, which was wonderful. Her daughter and a friend cooked a Mexican dinner for all of us here at the Farm House.

Father's service was at 7 a.m. I sang in a women's choir at Muebeck at 9:30 and then went back to our church at 10:30, setting the table and putting meat in the oven in between.

We were 12 for Easter dinner and all but a couple of us took naps in the afternoon. I came across a couple plastic eggs that never got found this morning.

And Mike's six and husband are stopping in tonight, on their way back to Central City after spending five days with a son in eastern Iowa.

Thank goodness I have Tuesdays off. I need it to recuperate.

Extra equipment needed
Cement trucks were used to provide water to Wayne Volunteer firefighters fighting a fire involving hay bales north of Wayne last Thursday. Officials are urging residents to use caution when doing any burning due to dry and windy conditions.

Nebraska hog inventory is down from last year

Nebraska pork producers had an estimated 155 million hogs and pigs on hand March 1, 1997, according to the Nebraska Agricultural Statistics Service. This number was down from 168 million a year earlier, 12 percent below two years ago and the lowest March 1 inventory since 1988.

Hogs and pigs kept for breeding were two percent above a year ago and eight percent less than two years ago. Market hogs were three percent below last year and 11 percent below two years ago.

During the December 1, 1996, February 1997 quarter, 175,000 more farrowed, producing a pig crop of 1.48 million head, one percent below the same quarter a year earlier and nine percent below two years ago.

If Nebraska producers carry out farrowing intentions, the number of sows to farrow during the spring quarter at 195,000 would be equal to 195,000 a year earlier and 15 percent below two years ago. The 175,000 hogs expected to farrow during the summer quarter would be six percent above the corresponding period last year and 10 percent below the comparable period two years ago.

The US inventory of all hogs and pigs on March 1, 1997, was 43.9 million head. This was one percent below March 1996 and slightly below the December 1, 1996 inventory. Breeding hogs were at 6.80 million head, a six percent increase from March 1, 1996, and up two percent from December 1, 1996. Market hog inventory at 49.1 million head, was 1 percent below both last year and last quarter.

The December 1996 February 1997 pig crop at 231 million head was slightly more than 1996 but 3 percent less than 1995. Sows farrowing during this period totaled 2.68 million head, two percent below last year.

US hog producers intend to have 2.98 million sows farrow during the March-April 1997 quarter, slightly above the actual farrowings during the same period last year, and 2 percent lower than 1995. Intended farrowings for June-August 1997, at 2.87 million sows, are 2 percent above 1996 but 3 percent below the 1995 period.

Fritschien honored at conference
