Clean up day is April 27

The seventh annual Wayne Jaycee Community Clean-up has been scheduled for Friday, April 26. The rain date is Saturday, April 27. The project, held in conjunction with Earth Day, provides an opportunity for Wayne residents to spruce up their yards and neighborhoods. Yard waste, such as leaves, branches and outside debris should be placed at the curb. The Wayne Jaycees will provide curbside pick-up beginning at 8 p.m. The organization will not accept appliances, furniture or garage and basement clean-out items. Only yard waste and outside rubbish will be picked up. The Jaycees, along with campus and community volunteers, will also be collecting trash from Wayne alleys, lots and roadways. For more information or to volunteer, contact Jeff Carstens at 735-3440.

Construction to begin in August

By Kevin Peterson
 of the Herald

The Highway 17 construction project that was delayed, recently by the Nebraska Department of Roads could begin as early as August 11 of this year. Scott Brummond, highway project manager attended a meeting in Lincoln on Tuesday and said things have been altered on the project. When the project was delayed no one knew for sure when the bidding was going to be relet. Brummond said, "Thoughts were it may be August with a September starting date but now that's been changed to a late June or early July letting, with a starting date of the project tentatively begin August 11." Brummond said the meeting was to review the plans of the contract with the consultant engineer and design engineer. They changed the scope of the project a little bit. Brummond said they made it a little more limited in the tightness of the timeline and they changed a little bit of the phasing of the project. Based on the latest projections of the latest plans for bid letting and an August 11 start, there could be no roadway work from P-1 to P-2 to main street in 1997. They could do some work from

Airshow planned for dedication of Wayne airport

A number of activities have been planned for June 1 at the Wayne Municipal Airport to dedicate the recently completed runway and welcome the new airport management. The airport runway dedication begins at 7 p.m. and will include a flyover by the 105th Air National Guard display and aerial acrobatics. The 4,200 ft. north/south runway was recently completed and the Wayne Airport was recognized. A fly-in breakfast lunch will be served by 105th Air National Guard from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Cost is $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12. Fly-in pilots will be invited here. Aerial Acrobatics will be performed by Tom Stapp in his F-16, Bill Witt in his F-16, Special and Roy Kewell in his F-16. Marian Anzani, the National Guard, State Display and KC air plane static will have displays. Midwest Flying Services of Nebraska, Inc. will also be well served as the new airport management. The firm officially begins managing the airport on May 1 and replaces Don Zach who has retired. The firm is owned by Earl and Lynn and of Lincoln, Neb., while they manage the airport. They also manage airports in Woodhull, Elmo and Venterton, Neb. A number of dignitaries have also been invited to attend the ceremonies. Governor Healy and the district's congressman and representatives have invited invitations but have not confirmed their appearances at the event.

NRD celebrates Arbor Day

The 100th anniversary of Arbor Day was celebrated in Nebraska on the last Friday in April. Arbor Day originated and was first observed in Nebraska as the result of a decree by E. Sterling Morton. Morton responded to the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture to set aside one day to plant trees, both forest and fruit. The State Board of Agriculture accepted this resolution in 1872 and the first Arbor Day was celebrated with more than one million trees being planted that day. Nebraska's NRDs focus a large

Three Wayne teachers resign

By Kevin Peterson
 of the Herald

The Wayne Board of Education met in regular session, Monday night and the first item of business was accepting the resignations of three Wayne teachers. Judy Keating, who has been an elementary teacher in the Wayne school system for 11 years announced her resignation as did her husband, Don who has been the physical education teacher in the Wayne Public Schools for 10 years. The third resignation came from Bill Muepe who taught high school history for the past 25 years. The Board accepted all three resignations. The Board also took action on giving approval to a contract for the new playground cement which will be located south of where the Middle School is. Walter "Duke" Construction of Wayne was awarded the bid at a cost of $9,930. The work is to begin as soon as the ground is ready. The Board gave approval of the 67 Wayne seniors who will graduate next month contingent on final grades. Evaluation will take place on Saturday, May 17 at 2 p.m. in the Willow Level on the campus of Wayne State College. Among superintendent Dr. Donald Jensen's reports to the Board included a 1997-98 budget guideline. The latest projections on state aid to be received from the Department of Education show the Wayne School District gaining $85,000 next school year. On April 23 Dr. Jensen will meet with all staff with the Board invited to attend. At this meeting which is slated for 8:10 a.m., an explanation will be given on how the budget is placed together. The Board is expected to begin studying the 1997-98 budget in June before a July date is set in which the District is asked to complete forms for the state on budget and items which will set the levy for not only District 17 but Districts 51 and 57. A Board hearing on the anticipated budget will be held in August before a September meeting in which the Board adopts the budget for the school year.

Legislation is still pending on many bills that may drastically impact the school district. LB 1114 did not separate the sinking fund—meaning that not only did the district have to reduce to $1.10 in 1998 and $1.00 in 2000, but the 11 cents the district currently levies would no longer exist which means a loss of $230,000. LB 304 would separate the sinking fund from the General Fund.

LB 806 if passed will replace LB 1059 for state aid disbursement. Instead of a four-tiered system which is formulated to determine state aid need, a two-tier system would be used.

The two systems include grouping all students of the district together with an estimated $1500 per student cost average. The second tier would consist of special education students in the district, the number of low income families, sparsity and reservation land (Indian). The number of students in this category would have a separate estimated cost of $2000 per student.

Despite the ever-threatening decrease in budget set by pending legislation, the Wayne School District is still trying to offset as much as they can through grants.

The following grants are already in place for the 1997-98 school year: Two School-to-Work Grants including one from the Department of Labor for $20,000. Wayne is one of three schools in the state to receive this grant which is in the third year of three.

The Northeast Community College School-to-Work Grant will be awarded again in the amount of $28,000.

The Annenberg Foundation Grant for projects related to community growth in which efforts are made to retain students after college to come back home for careers. That grant is for $27,000.

A Carl Perkins Vocational Education Grant will be used with a dollar amount of $42,000.

Wayne is also applying for additional grants apart as a $98,000 grant from the United States Department of Communications for making Wayne a possible distance learning center.

Wayne is also applying for a quarter-million dollar challenge grant through the National Department of Education for technology.

The Wayne School District received a recent honorable mention in the 1997 Leadership for Learning Awards ceremony. Only four rural schools in the nation were nominated and Wayne is the smallest.

They received nomination after applying and then advancing through the nomination process. Wayne is the only Nebraska school to receive this honor for two consecutive years. The award came because of the school district's advancement in technology.

A school in Ohio and Arizona also received honorable mention while the top award went to a school in Lake City, Florida.

Here, Beverly Ruwe reads to the children in Joanne Burleigh's Day Care.

Consumers to benefit from local telephone competition

Nebraska consumers to US West, GTE, Sprint/United and Alltel exchanged statewide may soon be able to choose a new telephone company if the Nebraska Public Service Commission approves an application filed by Nebraska Technology and Telecommunications for (NTEL).

NTEL is a newly created company which has been formed by Nebraska-based independent telephone companies as a result of the Telecommunications Act of 1996.

NTEL President and Chief Executive Officer, Donald Hodges has identified NTEL's target market to specifically be "almost any US West exchange outside of Omaha, along with most GTE, Sprint/United and Alltel exchanges in Nebraska." NTEL will be the first telecommunications company to compete on a par with the local telephone service outside the Omaha metropolitan area.

"It is our belief that these changes have been historically on the verge by these adverse conditions," Hodges said. "We believe we can serve Nebraska better than the incumbents such as Qwest, HomeTown and People One they can from Omaha, Dallas or Kansas City."

NTEL, which will be headquartered in Lincoln, will sign contracts with Nebraska independent telephone companies located throughout the state to provide service and maintenance support. These independent companies will give NTEL an immediate statewide network to provide better service to Nebraska communities.

While NTEL will initially provide service by reselling US West, GTE, Sprint/United and Alltel facilities, plans for construction of new facilities are already being developed. "It is our intention to be an alternative facilities based provider in as many markets as possible," Hodges said.

In addition to providing local telephone service, NTEL will also be exploring other possibilities. "We are exploring an entire array of telecommunications services including Internet, video, wireless and data services," Hodges said.

"Also, we will examine the feasibility of other utility services," Hodges added. "Ultimately, we will consider options such as obtaining a power marketing license and competing for electric and natural gas consumers when those options become available under state law."

Hodges indicated NTEL hoped to offer service by the end of 1997. The Nebraska Public Service Commission has been doing a good job of processing these applications in a timely manner," Hodges said. "It all goes well, many Nebraskans will have a choice to choose a Nebraska based local telephone company yet this year."

Shopper offers special products

The Diabetes Shopper, a specialty department of Alexander Pharmacy of Norfolk, recently opened to help diabetics face the challenges of daily life.

The departments are located in both the Old Mill and Westgate locations of the pharmacy. Each is staffed by a full-time specialist who has firsthand experience with diabetes.

Ann Johnson, whose husband has diabetes, is the specialist at the Westgate location. Paula Buss, whose mother has the disease, is on staff at the Old Mill pharmacy.

The departments feature a full line of accessories, state-of-the-art blood glucose monitors and all varieties of insulin, including reaction products and delivery and injection systems.

A variety of sugar-free foods is also offered at the stores. Diabetic recipe books and informational books about foods and the disease itself are also offered at both locations.

Watch for scam

State Treasurer David Heiserman is advising Nebraskans not to hire a New York firm to help them search for unclaimed property.

Post-cards have recently been distributed throughout the state by a company wanting $10 for providing what it calls "Unclaimed Money Collection." Documentation, Heiserman said.

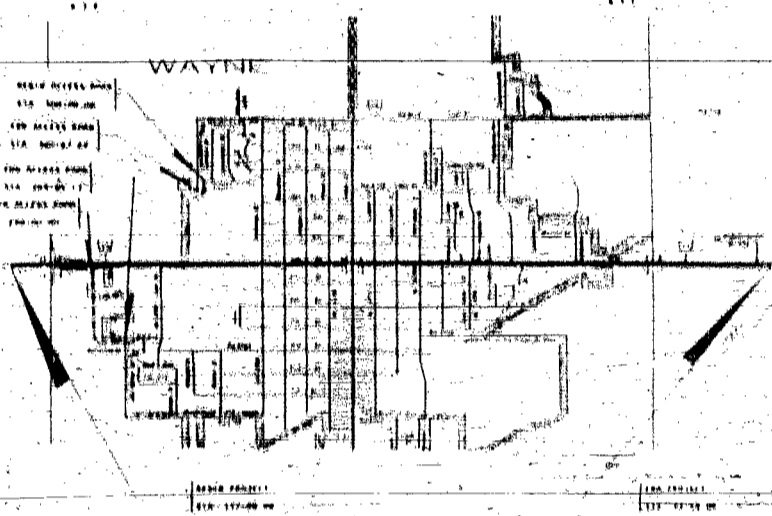

"The documentation consists only of a list of Unclaimed Property offices in each state. My office provides the same information free of charge."

The post-cards, distributed by a company called "Unclaimed Assets," according to Heiserman, "lead the addressees to believe they have unclaimed property, in most cases that's not true."

Heiserman said his own knowledge of the scam indicates the company is doing nothing illegal, "but it's another case of a person being charged a fee to do something the government will do for free."

Recycling grows

During the month of March a total of 24,321 pounds of recyclable materials was collected in the city of Wayne.

The recyclables were then loaded to Norfolk Recycling by Frank Mery of Mery Recycling.

Currently the Recycling Center on South Whitson Street is open on Wednesdays from 4:30-6:30 p.m. and on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon.

Items accepted include steel cans with labels removed, #1, 2 and 4 plastics, milk jugs and glass containers.

The city of Wayne follows the glass to Glass City, Iowa on a regular basis, with all other items being taken to Norfolk.

Many said they appreciate the volunteers who work at the center and those who bring in materials.

Anyone interested in volunteering at the center should contact Mery Recycling.

the Army going east," Brummond said. "If so, a temporary lane of traffic will be put in so traffic can continue both ways."

After during this 1997 work year, storm sewer work can be done east and west of main street behind the back of curb or terrace but this work will not restrict highway traffic.

Brummond said May 11 would be the tentative starting date in 1998 in which a detour would be in effect.

The detour would remain as previously determined beginning at the KIC corner and stretching one mile north of the radio station and two miles east before returning to Iowa on highway 15 at seventh and main streets.

The project is still estimated to take approximately 745 working days which would make it a late completion of 1998 completion date.

However, despite the fact all roadways would be open by late October of 1998, the total completion of the project may not be until 1999 with incidental construction behind the roadway itself. That construction would consist of sidewalk work and seeding.

Value of a hug

A jet vanishes mysteriously in Colorado leaving a big question mark as to what may have happened to its 12 year old pilot. The dilemma leaves his parents suffering the distress of separation.

In contrast, the TV pictures of Tiger Woods embracing his father after winning the Masters paints a picture of family togetherness.

Parents who love, guide and direct their children are no doubt the major foundation of national moral strength.

"Children need love and discipline. They need mothers and fathers. As welfare check is not a husband. The state is not a father. It is from parents that children learn how to behave in society. It is from parents above all that children come to understand values and themselves as men and women, mothers and fathers."

The statement is true. Who said it? Vice President Dan Quayle in 1992.

Hollywood types laugh at him. Liberals who believe "it takes a village" to rear children also chuckled at Quayle.

But here in 1997, as children are having children, and children are shooting children, adults are beginning to realize the great responsibility of providing moral guidance, and being role models.

Here's hoping all parents can publicly embrace their talented offspring, as did Ted Woods.

If the jet pilot turns up alive, no doubt there will be hugs waiting.

Meanwhile, how about hugging your own?

Dedication day

Area residents will want to mark Sunday, June 1 on the calendar as a reminder that the City of Wayne is inviting the public to dedication ceremonies for the newly completed 4,200 foot hard surfaced north-south runway at the municipal airfield.

Plans include a light breakfast, 7 p.m. airshow featuring three different aerial performances, dedication ceremony, and an "open house" for the new airport management taking over May 1.

One of the three scheduled aerial performances will feature a jet aircraft.

Members of the Wayne Airport Authority are to be congratulated for seeing the new runway project through and having involved multiple governmental entities at the federal, state and local levels, and extensive paper work for a decade.

As individuals and corporate America take to the air, Wayne has a 4,200 foot volume that will allow it to fly to pilots and passengers' hearts by "singing".

The longer runway not only can receive larger aircraft, but adds additional significance to the safety factor for all planes.

Like other Wayne businesses, the airport serves all throughout Nebraska.

Do not count the chicks before they are hatched

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

In the Nebraska Legislature as in chicken farming, you should never count your chicks before they are hatched.

Gov. Nelson and backers of a bill to ban recognition of marriages of homosexuals realized that in recent days.

The Republicans in the Unicameral also got that message after being unable to throw out a veto to split up the state's electoral college votes that was passed through by the body's Democrats a few years ago.

The same sex marriage proposal was recently headed for easy passage.

The bill had 10 co-sponsors, five more than needed to send the bill to Gov. Nelson for his signature. And last year, 13,000 Nebraskans signed petitions asking for a special session on the issue.

Then, as Wayne Taylor would say, "it was a steaming hot bill" that the governor was slipping his feet in the ice water.

But even when a bill has overwhelming support, there are certain details that cannot be ignored.

Charles Lewis, Bob Jensen and Eric Witke learned that when trying to shut off the long-simmering stalled matter of how to handle a majority against that same proposal.

The legislative committee voted to shut off debate, the right body of talking with the vote of 14 of the 47 members.

The right to shut off debate is a power down to the legislative branch. A bill signed by the governor is not subject to a veto.

Unfortunately, the Legislature and voters are many situations had shut off to what they called to shut off debate, their motions fall on the short side of the needed 14.

Don't forget, the bill still has a long way to go before it can be passed.

that the measure to ban recognition of same-sex marriages performed in other states may not be reconsidered until next year.

Speaker of the Legislature Ron Wittem of Papillion said the backers needed a course in "legislation 101," while Jensen, an honest and thoughtful senator, readily admitted his mistake.

For still not laying bets against the same-sex marriage bill, but with the budget and property tax debates yet to begin, there may not be enough time to resurrect a compromise proposal.

As for Gov. Nelson, he rejected when his income tax cut was advanced from the Legislature's Revenue Committee after being killed there in 1995 and 1996.

But Wittem pointed out another feature of the Legislature, indicating a bill from committee should merge a bill will pass. With senators' being more concerned about cutting property taxes, Wittem said the income tax cut might not even come up for the bill.

Wittem, as speaker, has the ultimate power over when a bill is introduced. He should be approved if the governor and both Jensen and Witke are especially likely to buy in upcoming weeks.

Fiction by the way, can play that don't count your chickens game too.

Editor: This section is not a part of a bill to do away with the state's unique system of counting electoral college votes as a precedent.

Most states would not allow electoral college votes to be awarded to a candidate who gets the most votes in the state.

But in Nebraska, under a law proposed by the Democratic Party a few years ago, the state's electoral college votes are split up. One goes to the overall winner while the other three are awarded to the runner-up.

congressional district. Republicans gained a couple of seats in the Unicameral last fall, gaining a 26-22 edge.

While that is plenty to pass a bill, it is three votes short of overruling a governor's veto.

Nelson vetoed the electoral college bill. The issue, lacking the votes to override the veto, is not dead for the year.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Money, that ever-popular word, is all about making money in real estate. The secret is to obtain more property and money than your opponent. You do this by smart investing. Of course, actual real estate investing is no game, but investors can make money in real estate. Real estate investments offer current income, the potential for rising future income and price appreciation.

Traditionally, investors viewed real estate as a hedge against inflation. As prices rise, rents go up and property values increase. Even with the rampant inflation of the past few years, rents have risen at annual rates of four percent to seven percent.

But challenges accompany traditional real estate ownership as well. Property must be maintained and good tenants located. In addition, liquidity is an issue. At times it could take months, or even years, to sell real estate.

There is, however, another way to invest in real estate that offers growth and liquidity without the landlord headaches. Real estate investment trusts (REITs) offer the investment benefits of well-selected real estate with liquidity. Operated like mutual funds, REITs are companies that own various real estate investments instead of stocks and bonds. The REITs own and manage the properties. REITs are considered growth-and-income stocks and are traded on the New York Stock Exchange or other national securities exchanges. Income earned from REITs is passed on to shareholders as dividends. In fact, according to a recent report on the REIT industry, REIT dividends have grown 5 percent on average over the last five years.

REITs usually specialize in a particular type of property. Apartment complexes, office buildings, shopping centers and health-care facilities are some of the most popular types of property. Different kinds of properties offer different income returns, price appreciation and risk, so it is important to research the various REITs before investing. Varying rates, economic changes within a property's area and the need to understand an asset's performance.

The advantage of REITs over traditional real estate is that REIT investors own a diversified real estate portfolio with the liquidity of publicly traded stock. In addition, REITs enjoy a tax advantage: They pay no income taxes at the corporate level as long as the REIT pays out 91 percent of its taxable net income in dividends. This means investors avoid a double tax on investment returns. With stocks, corporations pay taxes on profits, and shareholders pay taxes on dividends. Since REITs pay no corporate taxes, the same profits aren't taxed twice.

While REITs may require more analysis than more traditional investments, they can be a smart choice for investors looking for growth and income with increased diversification. Talk to an investment representative who understands REITs to find out if this option is for you.

Summer Camps at WSC slated for all sporting activities

Summer Camps at Wayne State College have been announced for boys basketball, girls volleyball and girls basketball.

Men's basketball coach Greg McDermott will hold an individual improvement camp for boys, June 15-18. This camp is open to boys in grades 9-12 and will feature some of the top high school players in the area. McDermott and his staff will serve as instructors.

Two team camps will also be offered. The Varsity Team Camp is scheduled for June 8-7 but this camp is limited to the first 18 teams which enroll.

The Junior Varsity Camp will be held June 20-21. Students in grades 7-10 are eligible to participate. This camp is limited to the first 24 teams which enroll.

Contact Mike Fieger at 402-735-7315 to obtain camp brochures or for additional information.

DATE FOR THE girls' volleyball summer camps were released by coach Sharon Vaini.

A setters camp will be conducted June 21-23 which is open to all setters in grades 9-12. This camp is designed to give setters individual attention in developing their setting skills.

In addition, a fundamental camp is scheduled for July 2-9. Open to all players in grades 7-12, this camp will emphasize all-around skill development.

Varsity and junior varsity team camps will be offered July 10-12. Both camps are open to players in grades 9-12. These camps are designed to allow coaches and their teams the opportunity to work together in the off-season. A season will be included to provide coaches and teams with new drills.

A variety of coaches will assist the WSC coaching staff as camp instructors.

For additional information contact the WSC volleyball office at 402-735-7304.

WAYNE STATE women's head basketball coach Jeff Galdstein has announced dates for 18 summer camps as well.

A fundamental day camp will be held June 8-8. It is open to players in grades 9-12. The emphasis of this camp will be placed on total skill development and team concepts.

The Wayne State College coaching staff, with the assistance of area high school coaches will serve as instructors.

Two team camps have also been scheduled. A varsity team camp will be held May 30-31 for players in grades 9-12.

Meanwhile, a junior varsity team camp will be held June 27-28 for players in grades 7-10. Each camp is limited to the first 18 teams and each team must have at least one adult supervisor.

For additional information or to obtain a camp brochure call the WSC women's basketball office at 402-735-7311.

WSC FOOTBALL coach Kevin Heston recently announced the dates for the WSC Summer Camps.

The individual technique football camp is scheduled for June 3-3. The camp, which is open to players entering grades 9-12, will emphasize fundamentals and technique development.

Two team camps will also be offered. The Class C and D team camp is dated for June 8-11 with the Class A and B camp scheduled for June 12-15.

The team camps allow coaches to work with their teams on offensive and defensive schemes. On the final day of each camp, teams will compete in scrimmage situations. Since all three camps feature contact drills, players are asked to bring their own safety equipment, such as helmets, pads and practice gear. Equipment will not be available at the camp. A full time qualified trainer and staff will be on hand at all three camps.

For additional information or to obtain a camp brochure contact the WSC football office at 402-735-7315.

Wayne State College will host annual math contest

The Wayne State College Mathematics and Science Division will host its 23rd Annual Scholastic Math Contest on Monday, May 17 on the College campus.

This contest gives area students an opportunity to assess their academic strengths against others," said Dr. J.S. Johar, head of the Mathematics and Science Division at WSC. "I would strongly encourage all area schools to send their teams of students to this contest."

Last year, 52 schools and 177

students participated in the contest.

Each school may enter two students in each of four competition levels: Algebra I and II, Geometry and Senior Mathematics. Only students currently enrolled in Algebra I and II and Geometry are eligible to enter in those categories. The senior math contest may be entered by any high school senior.

No student is allowed to take any of the four exams more than one time, explained Johar. He said all of the contest exams are made up of 40 multiple choice questions and are one hour in length.

The annual Math Contest gives Wayne State College an excellent opportunity to recognize the outstanding math students in the area," said Johar.

Registration materials and a complete set of instructions was mailed to area high schools in February. The preregistration deadline is April 23. An awards ceremony will be held at 2 p.m. at which the top five finishers in each category will be presented with medals and the next five will receive certificates.

Main information about the contest may be obtained by contacting Dr. Gilbert Jobe, professor of mathematics and contest coordinator at 402-325-2314.

Clindorella (Kerry McCue) signs autographs for a number of school children who attended one of this year's performances of the Wayne State Children's Theatre.

Summer Math institutes planned at Wayne State

Two summer institutes for mathematics teachers will be available at Wayne State College in June.

Sponsored by the College through Local Development Corporation, the workshops will provide professional development for elementary and secondary mathematics and algebra teachers.

A week-long workshop designed for secondary algebra teachers will be held June 23 to 27. WSC graduate credit is available for the course and tuition and board is available at the College.

The second institute, a week-long workshop for secondary algebra teachers will be held June 23 to 27. WSC graduate credit is available for the course and tuition and board is available at the College.

The goal of the institute program is to assist teachers in developing and implementing ways to effectively teach mathematics using technology.

Registration fee for the week-long secondary education institute is $25 and teachers can register to receive a $250 stipend.

The elementary mathematics workshop will be held June 26 and 27. Room and board is also available at the college for the two-day elementary session and teachers can register for a $100 stipend. This graduate credit is at least for the two-day session.

The 12-hour elementary workshop will include a 6-hour mathematics workshop and a 6-hour technology workshop. The 12-hour workshop will include a 6-hour mathematics workshop and a 6-hour technology workshop.

Those interested in additional information about the institute programs may contact Jobe at 402-325-2314.

Theatre department stages annual children's production

Over 2,500 youngsters and their teachers from schools throughout Northeast Nebraska are enjoying the 19th annual Wayne State College Children's Theatre Production of the Rogers and Hammerstein Musical "Annie Get Your Gun."

The 11 performances, which began April 10, conclude Thursday. The production is the brainchild of the children's theatre department.

Students in the music and the theatre departments at Wayne State put thousands of man hours into preparation for the annual children's theatre production, said Angie Sedwick, director. A cast, orchestra and crew of more than 200 students and faculty are involved in the 1991 production.

The cast and crew has worked very hard to present and fun-filled production that is being very well received by the audience attending the performances," said Sedwick.

Kerry McCue, Wayne, plays the lead role of Clindorella and Ryan Weathers, Moselle, Iowa, cast as the prince. Other principal characters in the play are performed by John Gallup, Norfolk, as the Earl, Erin Dankshoring, Lincoln, as the queen, Angie Stalman, Arlington, Neb., as the stepmother, Jill Fabel, Ethmo, as the step-sister, Paula Jessica Gubria, Lincoln, as the step-sister, Jay, Baring, Burtch, Valparaiso, as the Earl and mother, and Austin Blum, Norfolk, as the coach.

Nicholas Hagmann is recipient of RHOP award.

Nicholas Hagmann, Wayne, has been accepted into the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at Wayne State College. He will begin study in the fall.

Hagmann, the son of Tom and Liz Hagmann, plans to study pharmacy at Wayne State prior to transferring to the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Under the RHOP program, Hagmann is guaranteed a spot in the UMMC Medical School upon successful completion of his course work at Wayne State. A composite effort between Wayne State and the Medical Center, enough students from rural areas of Nebraska return to rural settings after graduation to purchase these services.

Special consideration is given for admission to the RHOP program to students from communities of less than 10,000 population. Areas of study include the program include medicine, pharmacy, dentistry, dental hygiene and physical therapy.

Students in the RHOP program also become eligible for special student loan programs at UMMC and they are given opportunities to interact with various medical professionals and UMMC academic affairs during their undergraduate years.

A shortage of rural medical practitioners in Nebraska prompted the establishment of the program in 1987. Currently, 30 students are studying in the program through Wayne State, Hagmann is one of only 13 students entering the program at Wayne this year.

While in high school, Hagmann was involved with varsity and junior band, as well as the cross country, golf and basketball teams. He serves as National Honor Society treasurer and student council representative.

Rickett selected to attend institute

Wayne State student Brad Rickett of Moselle, attended the National Direct Marketing College Institute in Detroit. Rickett is a major marketing major at the Northeast Nebraska regional public four-year college.

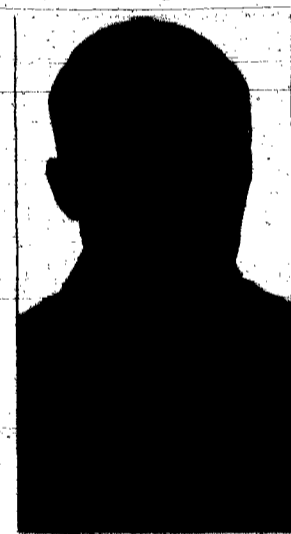

He is one of only 32 people selected nationwide to attend this prestigious event.

There were more than 500 applicants and Brad was one of the 32 people chosen, said Dr. Paul Hallgren, professor and business at Wayne State. Hallgren is the faculty advisor.

I think the day is hot about the students here," Hallgren said. "Plan like this is looking at our students and nothing they do added," Hallgren said. "The school had a one of his marketing seminars during which a WSC student was selected by the institute. Rickett is the second student to be selected in the past two years."

The two-day institute dealt with a variety of direct marketing concepts and programs. Rickett says the highlight of the trip was meeting with representatives from several companies and being able to discuss his credentials with them. Hallgren noted that this institute is unique because it is not presented by a company, but rather by people who are direct marketing practitioners. He noted that the experience is good for a student looking to network with a firm as well as the graduate study program represented.

They are always looking for outstanding candidates for programs like Northeastern University and other graduate programs," he said.

was thrilled to be a part of this group," said Rickett. "It was an opportunity to meet some very interesting people and see what a direct marketing career has to offer after graduation."

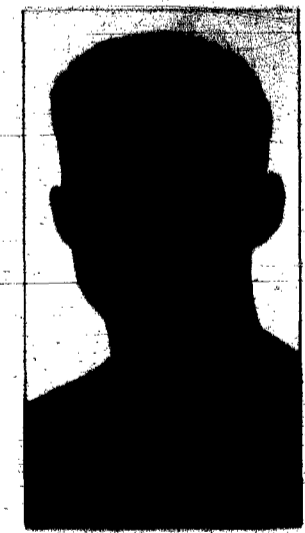

"I think Wayne State's building a reputation with major marketing employers," Hallgren said. He noted that WSC students continue to stand in national competition against such large colleges and universities.

Maybe that is the advantage going to Wayne State. A student gets a lot of attention and comes out of the program with a degree. He said Hallgren noted that Rickett completed against students from a large and prestigious of all schools for the opportunity to attend the institute.

Rickett, the son of Arthur and Gillian Rickett of Moselle, is a graduate of Moselle Senior High School class of 1991. He plans to graduate from WSC in May with a Bachelor of Business degree, concentrating in marketing management.

Mary Kraus and her daughter were among the more than 1,200 people who visited Wayne State College during Explore '91 on April 3. Activities were held for prospective students and members of the community to learn more about opportunities at WSC.

Students, faculty selected to honorary

Relations, Iowa, and Brandt Witt, Sullyland, Iowa.

The WSC faculty members selected by their peers for induction into the society included Dr. Mark Hammer, biology; Betty Margitt, natural science; Dr. Sharon Pearty, biology; and Dr. David Pfaff, physics.

To be selected for this position, students must rank in the upper 10 percent of their sophomore or junior class and have earned 20 hours or more in science and mathematics. The honor society is designed to promote interest in the study of the natural sciences and to recognize academic efforts of the student members. It also functions as a service organization to both the student and scientific communities.

Dr. Russell Richardson is the faculty advisor for the Wayne State Chapter of the society.

Responsibility comes in stages

Focus On The Family With Dr. James Dobson

Q: I want to avoid the dependency trap you describe, but I am not sure how it begins or how to head it off with an infant son. Alert me to the key elements in this process.

A: It is probably easier to foster an unhealthy dependency relationship between parent and child than it is to avoid one.

Let's examine the mechanism as it often occurs. At the moment of birth, a little child is completely and totally helpless.

One forgets just how helpless a newborn is. In fact, I want to forget it just as soon as possible.

That little creature lying in the crib can do nothing for himself; he doesn't roll over, he can't scratch his head, he is unable to verbalize his thoughts and he won't lift a finger in his own behalf. Consequently, his parents are responsible for meeting his every need. They are his servants; and if they're too slow in meeting his demands, he is equipped with a spine-chilling scream to urge them into action.

He bears no obligations whatsoever. He doesn't even have to appreciate their efforts. He won't say "please" or "thank you." He doesn't apologize for getting up on his tummy in one night. He even offers no sympathy when at 3:01 a.m. his exhausted mother dreads the onset of a safety pin through the birth part of her thigh (without doubt, the greatest agony in human experience!) in other words, a child begins his life in a state of complete and total dependency on those whose name he bears.

About 20 years later, however, at the other end of childhood, we expect some radical changes to have occurred in that individual. He should then be able to assume the full responsibilities of young adulthood. He is expected to spend his money wisely, hold down a job, be loyal to one woman, support the needs of a family, obey the laws of the land and be a good citizen. In other words, during the course of childhood, an individual should progress from a position of no responsibility to a position of full responsibility.

Now, how does this John John get from position A to position B? How does this magical transformation of child-rearing take place? There are many self-appointed experts on child-rearing who seem to feel it should all happen toward the latter end of adolescence, about 15 minutes before Big John leaves home permanently. Prior to that, he should be allowed to do whatever he wishes at the moment.

I reject that notion categorically. The best preparation for responsible adulthood is derived from training in responsibility during childhood. This is not to say that the child should be forced to act like an adult. It does mean that he can be encouraged to progress on an orderly timetable of events, carrying the level of responsibility that is appropriate for his age.

Shortly after birth, for example, the mother begins transferring responsibilities from her shoulder to those of her infant. Little by little, he learns to sleep through the night, hold his own bottle, and reach for what he wants. Later he is potty trained (hopefully), and he learns to walk and talk. Gradually, as each new skill is mastered, his mother "free" herself that much more from his custody.

Each year, he should make more of his own decisions than in the prior 12 months. The routine responsibilities of being should fall to his shoulders as he is able to handle them. A 7-year-old, for example, is usually capable of selecting his own clothes for the day. He should be keeping his room straight and making his bed each morning. A 9- to 10-year-old may be carrying more freedom, such as the choice of television programs to watch (within reason).

I am not suggesting that we abdicate parental leadership altogether, or, rather, I believe we should give conscious thought to the reasonable, orderly transfer of freedom and responsibility so that we are preparing the child each year for that moment of full independence that ultimately must come.

Concert planned

The Concord Evangelical Free Church Choir will be in concert at the church on Sunday, April 20 in celebration of 100 years of ministry serving the land.

The 27-member choir, directed by Karla Kardell of Concord, will perform "A Celebration of God's Faithfulness: 1897-1997." Music will include selections from Integrity Music's God with Us, A worship Experience for all Seasons and Lift High the Lord Our Banner. God is Able and Great is the Lord Almighty from Word Music.

Soloists include Karla Kardell, Dave Bloom of Laurel and Clayton and Sandy Hartman of Laurel. Other selections will feature "The Crown Makers," hymns of Allen and "The Freeman's Chorus."

Refreshments will be served following the concert. The public is welcome to join the celebration.

Carroll ladies plan activities

The Ladies Aid and LWML met April 9 with five members and Pastor Bartels present. Pastor Bartels presented the lesson "The Healing Heart of God's Promises."

A May 18 graduation brunch will be held after the service for graduate Robert Winters.

A list of workers for cleaning the church is during the month of May has been posted. All ladies of the church have assignments.

The Northwest District Youth Convention is scheduled for June 26-27, 1998. The group's job description was reviewed. Each group is to bring a banner and Bible.

The group will make 250 hoodies for the convention and have to be sent to Haven House.

The Spring Food Workshop will be held at Frong's in Metrohom on Sunday, April 20 with registration from 8:30-9 p.m. with a meal served at 5 p.m. following a prayer devotion.

The Pastors Conference will be held at St. Paul on Tuesday, May 6. Morning coffee and a noon lunch will be served.

The birthday song was sung for Dana and Pastor Bartels.

The standing time has been extended to May 12 to allow reservations for the wedding celebration.

Christian Council Leader Henry Jack read the Acts of Christian Fellowship.

Henry Jack was the April hostess and Veda Jack will be the May hostess.

Jordan chosen as Woman of the Year for Deanery

Marian Jordan has been selected as Woman of the Year for the Rural Northeast Deanery Council of Catholic Women.

Mrs. Jordan has been a member of the Catholic church since her marriage to Leo Jordan in 1936 and St. Mary's parish in Wayne since 1978.

She has been active in a number of church organizations and played the organ for many years. She also trained a number of young organists.

Mrs. Jordan has been active in the Ladies Guild at the church and helped organize an afternoon group for those who found it difficult to get out at night. She also organized a number of bake sales and worked on a number of quilts which were auctioned to raise money for the church's ministry.

Mrs. Jordan has also been active in the Wayne community. She has been a member of the Wayne Women's Club, the Hospital Auxiliary and National Teachers Association.

In addition, she has held all offices in Church Women United and has attended deanery meetings and conventions.

Mrs. Jordan has three sons: Robert, Richard and Lawrence.

Day of Prayer set for May 1

The 40th anniversary National Day of Prayer is set for Thursday, May 1.

The local celebration of this event will begin at 5 p.m. at the Caffe Court in the Downtown Mall in Wayne.

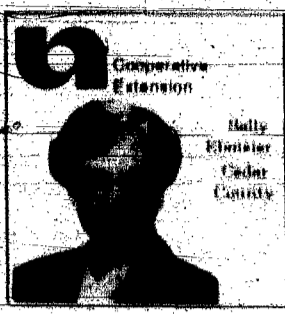

This year's theme is "In God We Trust." There will be a continental breakfast, a local lay speaker and opportunity for prayer. Local sponsorship is being coordinated through the Episcopate Club.

Activities for the community is invited to participate. A fast prayer will be recognized by having filled up human junk and spent prayers for spiritual ideas within the community.

For more information contact Bob Carhart at 475-2976.

Work at home scam alert

They can sound great. "Would you like to earn hundreds of dollars a week at home in your spare time? Many people are supplementing their income in a big way. It's so easy, let me show you how."

Often the company will refuse to pay for the work because it did not meet their standard of quality, leaving the entrepreneur with expensive equipment and merchandise that no one wants to buy. Additional risks in the use include online work-at-home scams, such as offers to use your home PC to make money fast in your spare time. Other scams encourage entrepreneurs to invest in communication technologies, such as 900 telephone number services, promising high returns and low risk.

Such advertisements sound tempting. In fact, they sound almost too good to be true and in most cases they are. Their popularity is due to the lure of easy money and a common belief that all work at home offers that appear in newspapers must be true. While some work at home opportunities are legitimate, be careful of the ones that aren't.

Two common work at home scams are envelope stuffing and assembly of craft work.

Envelope stuffing - Promoters of these scams advertise that for a small fee of fee they will provide all the information needed to earn money stuffing envelopes at home. Many entrepreneurs end up with their money only to find out that there is no guaranteed employment. What the promoters will send is a letter, telling the entrepreneurs to place the same "envelope stuffing" ad in newspapers and magazines or send the ordering information to family and friends. The only way the entrepreneur earns money is from the people who respond to them directly.

Assembly of craft work - These programs require the entrepreneur to invest hundreds of dollars in equipment to supply and many hours of time to produce products for a company that has promised to buy them. For example, the entrepreneur may be required to purchase from the company a sewing machine, a sign-making machine, or materials to make items such as aprons, stuffed animals or plastic signs. What happens in the future is that after the entrepreneur has purchased the equipment and materials to produce the products, the company will refuse to buy the Many legitimate opportunities also exist and should readily provide an entrepreneur (in writing and for free) any and all information related to the business. Some questions to ask:

- What exact tasks are required to be performed?
- Is payment by salary or commission?
- Who will have payment and when?
- What is the total cost of the work at home program?
- What amount will be required for the amount invested?
- What are the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of three references?
- Check the reputation of the company with the Consumer Protection Agency, Better Business Bureau or a member of Congress in the area where the company is located. It's important to investigate a business opportunity thoroughly by asking questions and studying the answers before money and time are lost to a fraud.

Grace ladies plan Guest Day

The Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid and LWML met April 11 with 42 members and two guests. Marilyn Carhart and Fayon Beaman presided.

Rev. Haves led opening devotion and prayer. The group sang the hymn "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

President Ellen Hightower conducted the business meeting. The Finance Committee will be helping the Finance Center with a Mother's Day program. The Youth Committee led a number of cards, made home and hospital visits and visited with residents of The Oaks.

The sewing group will meet April 24 for the last time this season. A new dressmaker box has been constructed and is ready for use. Six quilts will be done and given to social services.

Arleen Bergman was welcomed as a new member.

The annual Guest Day will be held May 14 with several societies to give. Pastor Tom Beatty of the Norfolk Reformed Mission will be the speaker. An orchestra will be held.

The Aid will help serve the supper hours of May and Church being on April 26. A 10:00 song presented to Verden from the group.

The women of Grace are invited to attend Guest Day at St. Paul in Wayne on April 24.

Pastor Anderson led the Bible Study from the Quarterly, Holy Healing Hour.

Hostesses were Gail Coffey, Ellen Valberg and Betty Wirth.

Ramblin's on apostrophes

Just what we needed, a little storm in April. I had sat here tonight, when it hit the southern, a week ago while we were having warm weather. I still ache for the folks along the Red River and all the other flooded areas. As I read in another column lately, "Thank goodness for all the global warming (global warming?)"

One thing about raising family dinner, we get the left overs. We still have a little potato salad from Lyle's and we ate pie and cake for a week after. I thought I had a dozen eggs in the frig on the porch, but I found a dozen hard-boiled, yolkless ones when I opened the carton. I don't like hard-boiled eggs. I don't think I should either. Anyway, as I've stated, you may keep them, Carlin.

The parents are at personality about the use of the words "cap" and "may" as I am about the apostrophe. It drives me nuts to see it added to phrases or words there is no contraction. For logic, there taken it out of Shakespeare's when signing his Christmas letter, as opposed to showing ownership, as in Matherly's Farm Home.

The worst example I think I've seen is in a sign on a farm fence that says "egg's for sale". But you see it everywhere, in it when it should be its possessive.

Back to leading sheep. I know, I ramble. We had a German weekend this week. I teach from Wayne who have recently been to the old country with her. On Saturday evening we visited Linwood-Munich High School's (shows ownership) German supper.

No-till Planting Incentive Practice

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District is offering a no-till planting incentive practice to landowners within the district. Landowners who are interested in planting their crops into corn residue, using the no-till method, can apply for financial assistance through the Lower Elkhorn NRD.

Once a landowner signs a contract and enrolls into the program, they must enroll enough land to continue no-tilling into corn on the contracted number of acres for three years. If the producer voluntarily discontinues the practice early, they will be required to repay all funding they have received back to the NRD.

"It is our most cost effective conservation practice," stated Larry Watterberg, Madison County NRCS technician. Larry continued, "With a no-till system, you can achieve results equal to or greater than tilling."

For more information on this and other NRD programs, contact your local NRD office or the Lower Elkhorn NRD in Norfolk at 402-871-7819.
