Professor recalls 30 years as leader

Dr. Jeffrey Simpson is fond of the old school.

At Simpson's old school makes take their hats off when he talks. Students there are expected to make an effort to succeed and merely to be retained to keep on without up. And strong opinions are offered as freely as it comes to other views and individuals.

The traditional principles have been cited by hundreds of former Wayne State students. Adhered to one of the reasons they choose to maintain close contact with the mentor they call "Doc." His often hard-nosed love for his students was one of the reasons several of them traveled from as far away as Illinois to surprise him at a retirement dinner last month.

Simpson is hanging up the coach's whistle and professor's gavelbook after nearly 30 years as a Wayne State College instructor.

He and his wife, Marian, are building a mountain home with a view of Pike's Peak and will be celebrating their permanent residence in Windfall Park, Colorado, that doesn't mean they will be seeking connections with Wayne State, he said.

A love of the mountain scenery and climate fostered through years of service as a Scoutmaster for a Boy Scout troop in Wayne, was the prime reason the couple chose a Colorado setting for their retirement home, but "we're not going to burn any bridges," said Simpson. He said property they own in Wayne, friends, associates and his wife's antique business will reach several trips "back home" each year.

"We're going to mix the activity of the kids," said Simpson. Even after retiring from active coaching in 1990, Simpson said he has maintained an avid spectator and sideline commentator.

Simpson came to Wayne as an associate professor of health, performance and leisure studies and athletic director in 1968. He was promoted to full professor in 1989.

He started his teaching career in 1956, earning a Bachelor of Education, K-12, in 1956, his master's degree also from WSU in 1961 and his Ed.D. in 1967 from the University of Arkansas.

His wife, Marian, has been an adjunct faculty member in the Human Performance and Leisure Studies Division for many years. They have a son, Jeff, who is an interior designer in the Phoenix area.

A native of Miami, Okla., Simpson recalls growing up in the 1930s in a "great family."

"We weren't poor, we just didn't have any money," he said. He thinks he might be the only person around Wayne that played against Mickey Mantle in high school. Simpson recalls being a freshman and getting into a basketball game against the visiting Mantle-led team in the fourth quarter.

Recalling Mantle's career and record decline, Simpson said he hasn't been called ever to let anyone know his views on alcohol. "There are no respecting social values of alcohol," he said. "We have a real problem with alcohol abuse in this area and in the country in general," he added.

Simpson downplays his own awards when asked about his per-

A deteriorating building and declining membership are two reasons for the closing of Zion Congregational Church, located approximately three and one-half miles west of Carroll. Final services are planned for Sunday.

Church to hold final services

Zion Congregational Church at Carroll will hold a final service on Sunday, July 6, before the church closes.

A declining membership and the need for major repairs on the church building were reasons cited for the decision to close. No definite plans have been made in regard to disposing of the church and its contents.

The Zion Congregational Church was organized on April 2, 1891 by a number of Welsh pioneers who had settled in the community.

During this time Sunday school was held in the Wallace School house. Church services were also held when a minister was present to conduct them. The school was located three miles west and one-half mile south of the present church.

Deacon and served until his death in 1927. As the church grew, two more churches were added—William D. Roberts and Jenkin Deak.

The first church was built in 1892 on the Howell Reed farm, located two miles west and one-half mile south of the present location.

Jerry Burgett of Burgett & Wolf Architects was at Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to review the blue prints for the elevation installation and office relocation project at the Wayne County Courthouse.

...sional accomplishments. He talks instead about record setting performance of track standouts he has coached, the award winning teachers and coaches he has trained and the same 16 Eagle Scouts he has mentored.

He said he likes to recall all the students he's been associated with over the years who have experienced successes in their lives.

"There's been a few great pointments," he added, but said he is most heartened by the successful careers of former students he didn't think would make it.

"Oh, there were some injury kids," he recalls. He expressed amazement that so many of them "made it." He related an instance where he looked a couple of one-credit athletes two miles out in the country and kicked them out of the race at the store.

"They were horrible. They looked out and said things," said Simpson of the episode. After "being" the pair, he kicked them out and told them to get back to town. "You know what? They made it," he related, indicating both the race to town and a triumph of their lives.

"You make so many mistakes, the kids get to be making you for him," said Simpson of his career.

Church

Mrs. Ann Jones of Omaha submitted the name of the new church, Zion Congregational Church. By 1900, the membership had increased to 50 members.

In 1901 it was decided to move the church to a more central location and the John R. Morris farm was accepted. In 1905, a parsonage was built on the John R. Morris farm.

A Ladies Aid was organized in 1913 with 19 members. Services were all conducted in 1907. Laughing, he recalled the time he ordered the track team shoes called leopards, trying to save money. He ordered the shoes for $7 a pair. "They were just awful," he added. "You couldn't walk in them let alone run in them." He said several of his former athletes still ask him about the leopards to this day.

He gets a good bit of good natured kidding at the open house gatherings he hosts every fall for his returning students. "In recent years many have come and said their father used to run for me. I always said if anybody showed up and said their grandfather used to run for me, I would shoot him."

Simpson had words of praise for the work of fellow faculty and administrators at Wayne State. He especially praised the efforts of Dr. Donald May, WSC president, in fulfilling a positive, yet strong atmosphere on campus.

He said that he'll always be in the case at Wayne State. He recalled the difficult time before Dr. May's arrival. Simpson was on the Faculty Senate, that recorded a vote of no confidence in the previous president. That vote helped lead to the executive's ouster.

It was a very difficult time for the college," said Simpson, but he added he believes it ultimately was one of the biggest reasons for the success of his career. He even ranked it above his record of running the largest track meet in the state for many years.

Simpson said he believes the eight members of the Faculty Senate in 1987 never got the credit they deserved. "Their efforts, often at personal sacrifice, should be cited as a high point in service to the institution," he added.

Today's college students have more difficult issues facing them, said Simpson. He said the cost of a college education today is a big factor and he worries that as a society are placing too much debt on students who are training to earn $20,000 a year as a teacher.

Simpson also said he is very proud about collegiate efforts to retain too many kids that just don't want to be here," he added.

There are other concerns and excitements which occupy too much of his time in retirement he said. "Neither will the special coaching chair with the Wayne State College, lead on by. He said he plans to remain very active with physical activity, helping friends and neighbors with their home improvement and repair projects, outdoor sports and his wife's antique business.

At the present time the congregation has 17 active members.

The 1997 church officers include: Glen Stoveling, Charles Morris, Stanley Morris and John Rees, deacons; Eileen Dowling, Howell Rees and Ronald Rees, trustees; Mrs. Ronald Rees has served as secretary for 25 years; Mrs. Stanley Morris has served as Treasurer for 27 years. Mrs. Eileen Dowling has been historian for 38 years and Mrs. John Rees has been the church's organist for 46 years.

the Welsh language until 1921, when it was decided to have an English service the first Sunday of each month.

The church's present minister, Rev. Carl Aasen, came to serve the congregation on Sept. 20, 1956. He was ordained to the church on Nov. 17, 1957, and then installed as pastor of Zion Congregational and Reformed - Presbyterian Church of Carlisle.

The church celebrated its 100th anniversary on June 9, 1991.

Free screenings at Show

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska, the Nebraska Lions Foundation and the Wayne Lion Club will be offering free health screenings for glaucoma, visual acuity, hearing, diabetes and hypertension during the Wayne Chicken Show July 12.

1997 marks the eighth year of partnership between Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska and the Nebraska Lions Foundation to offer free health screenings to Nebraskans. Since their partnership began, the Mobile Screening Unit has served thousands of Nebraskans. In 1996, more than 10,000 Nebraskans took advantage of this service. Early detection of these conditions is important and may help prevent the development of more serious illnesses.

The Mobile Screening Unit will be located at the corner of 10th and Lincoln from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, July 12. Come join us at the Wayne Chicken Show and help yourself by joining the thousands who are screened for these conditions.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska is an independent service of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association. For more information, contact Fred Wehner, 375-1781.

A bid from Dalton Brothers Construction Company in Lincoln was accepted for the 4.0-kilometer Highway 15 widening project in Wayne.

The firm submitted a bid of $5,988,664.81 for the project which is scheduled to begin on Aug. 11, 1997 and take 270 working days to complete.

Based on the projections of the latest plans, there will be no work on the roadway from 9th N. Ave. to Main Street in 1997.

Also during the 1997 work year, storm sewer work will be completed but will not affect highway traffic.

A tentative starting date of May 11, 1998 is planned for next year's work to begin. At that time a detour will be needed to route traffic off of Highway 15.

The detour will begin at the KTC center, two-thirds west of Wayne and stretch one mile north and then two miles east before returning to Wayne on Highway 15 at Seventh and Main Streets.

The roadways are expected to be completed by October of 1998 but the total completion of the project is not expected until 1999 with the completion of sidewalk work and seeding.

David Quinn, $100; Howard Voss, $75; David Hamm, $50 and Art Greig, $25.

Saluting The Fourth

Celebrate! Oh, yes. Independence Day commemorates the day when the Declaration of Independence was adopted in 1776. No comparable nation has ever existed. And this one prevails due to a freedom loving people.

These pages cannot begin providing space enough to cover the best written history of what freedom loving people are willing to do, and can do, in order to establish a God-fearing nation, be tall governing, and secure in protecting itself from the masters of power and deceit.

Viewing the countryside

Northeast Nebraskans have been watching the new corn crop in awe if the old measurement "kies high by the fourth of July will ring true." Weeds, apparently grow with or without moisture. Their presence, along with crops, can create a visibility hazard near rural intersections at times.

Way Back When

These stories are taken from the pages of The Wayne Herald and are reprinted here in cooperation with the Wayne Public Library. 25 years ago July 6, 1972. Over 15,000 people attended the Fourth of July celebration in Wayne, which was sponsored by the Iron Aces post of the American Legion.

Welfare reform underway

By Melvin Paul, Statehouse Correspondent. The Nebraska Press Association. Some years back, I was involved with a church group that adopted a young mother raising two young boys for welfare.

Gov. Nelson says welfare should be "a hand up, not a hand out" and that it should be considered a temporary safety net, not a way of life.

Being poor, own their homes and have happy and healthy children. No "cycle of dependency" so far as I can tell.

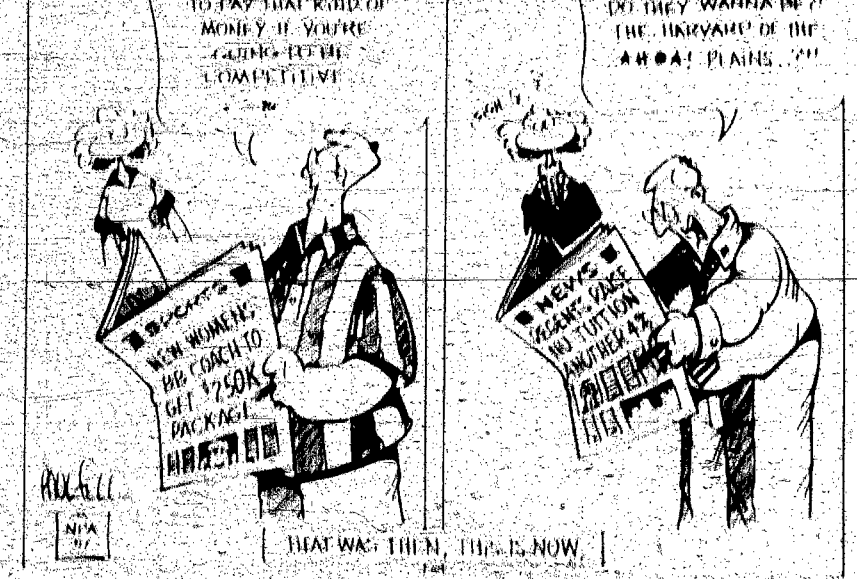

Welfare stereotypes don't hold true in this state. Most welfare recipients in Nebraska are able to get back on their feet within two years. On average, they have about two children, contrary to the stereotype of welfare moms having more kids to make their check bigger.

The expectation taught me two things. It's always more time and money trying to help people than you think it will be, and I would never, ever willingly accept welfare if it needed to be for many well-to-do people.

Welfare can make a difference. Before "welfare reform" was enacted, welfare recipients were able to get back on their feet within two years. On average, they have about two children, contrary to the stereotype of welfare moms having more kids to make their check bigger.

WSC adds women's soccer for this fall

WAYNE—Wayne State College will add women's soccer to its intercollegiate athletic program this fall. WSC director of athletics Pete Chapman announced on July 6 that he has been a club sport the past several years.

Women's soccer is the first varsity sport added at WSC since 1989 when women's golf made its debut. With this addition, the athletic department now has 15 varsity sports, including eight women's programs and seven men's programs.

"We are pleased that WSC is able to offer more women the opportunity to compete in intercollegiate athletics," Chapman said. "Soccer is growing in interest all around the country, particularly in this region where large numbers of high schools are adding it to their sports programs. The WSC soccer club has been very well organized and competitive as a club sport the past five years."

In a related announcement, Chapman said Dr. Kathy Shaffer will be the team's head coach. Shaffer, who is an adjunct faculty member in the Mathematics Division at WSC, served as the program's coach while it was a club sport.

Like WSC's other athletic programs except football, women's soccer will compete in the North Central Region of the N.C.A.A. Division II level. The Wakefield football program competes in the West Region.

Chapman said renovations are underway to upgrade the recreation field located east of Memorial Stadium, which will serve as the home for the women's soccer team this fall.

Infidelity result of ego needs

Q: If we are to believe the statistics we read today, infidelity has become extremely common in the Western culture. Why do people do it? What is the primary motivator that would cause a husband or wife to cheat to even risk destroying their homes and families for an illicit affair?

From another perspective, however, there is one "formula" that applies to all human relationships, and of course, I'm referring to the four-letter word called love. Conflicts seem to dissolve themselves when people avoid boastfulness, irascibility, envy, jealousy, selfishness, impatience, rudeness, etc.

A: Every situation is different, of course, but I have observed the most powerful influence to come from ego needs.

Both men and women appear equally vulnerable to this consuming desire to be admired and respected by members of the opposite sex. Therefore, those who become entangled in an affair often do so because they want to prove that they are still attractive to women (or men).

The thrill comes from knowing "someone finds me sexy, or intelligent or pretty or handsome." That person enjoys hearing me talk like the way I think I'm so exciting.

These feelings flow from the core of the personality—the ego—and they can make a sane man or woman behave in foolish or dishonorable ways.

Q: Is there a comprehensive formula for solving family problems?

A: Albert Einstein spent the last 10 years of his life in a gallant attempt to formulate an unifying theory that would explain all dimensions of physics, but he never succeeded. Likewise, I doubt if the human personality will ever be reduced to a single understanding. We are far too complex to be simplified in that way.

Q: Practically speaking, what does that mean? For example, how does that formula apply to kids who constantly fight and argue?

A: I'm convinced that many of the emotional problems suffered by some adults can be traced to the viciousness and brutality of siblings and peers during their early home experiences. Self-esteem is a fragile flower that can easily be crushed by ridicule and mockery occurring routinely between children. But it need not be so.

One of the primary responsibilities of parents and teachers is to teach children to love one another. It can be done! Most boys and girls have a tender spirit beneath the unsympathetic exterior. Adults who take the time to cultivate that sensitivity can create a genuine empathy for the physically or mentally handicapped child, the overweight child, the unattractive child or the younger child. But in the absence of that early instruction, a hostile competitive ness often emerges.

Reading fun

A large number of children participated in the final fun activity of this year's Summer Reading program at the Wayne Public Library. 'Thrills and Chills' was the theme for this year's program and a number of games were played during Wednesday's party at Bessler Park. Above, partners tossed a water balloon back and forth until it popped. Following the games, readers were recognized for the number of books read during the three week program and treats were given to those in attendance. This year's reading program was shortened in anticipation of the library's move into its new facility in July.

NEW NEBRASKA STATE

Carly Larson, daughter of Chris and Mike Larson of Wakefield, will be one of 18 University of Nebraska Kearney students who will attend other college and universities across the nation next year through the National Student Exchange program. Carly will study at New Mexico State University. She is majoring in Spanish education and English as a Second Language (ESL).

"The University of Nebraska Kearney is the only college in Nebraska that participates in NSE," said Leah Brunt, assistant director of admissions. "The program is a great way for students to experience diversity and culture while they grow academically."

Sometimes students take classes on exchange that aren't offered at UNK. Brunt added, providing them with an opportunity to study topics in a chosen field that they wouldn't study otherwise. There are more than 130 schools in the United States, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands that offer the program. Students must be at least sophomores with a 2.5 GPA in list to be considered for the program.

UNK also recently announced that Carly was among the students who earned a place on the Dean's list for the spring semester.

FLOOD VICTIMS

Six people representing Salem Lutheran Church went to the Fargo, ND/Mountford, MN area recently to lend a hand in the clean-up process following last spring's flooding. Those going were Ron Krummrich, Albert Nelson, Jr., Lindsay Jensen, Jessica Sheppard, Lynette Larson and Janella Nelson.

The first day they were assigned to wash mud from the walls and floor of a high school and they sprayed the area with chlorine cleaner. In the evening they drove to Grand Forks, ND to view the damage there. Lynette Jensen, who coordinated the trip, said that there is no moving the main business area because of extensive damage caused to the buildings. She added that the city of Grand Forks is planning to buy land along the river and improve the dike.

The next day some of the group was assigned to empty sand bags in the Fargo area while others worked in the Lakeland Army Distribution Center there.

Another group was asked to accompany a woman to her rural home. It was her first trip home, according to Mrs. Larson. They helped her start the cleaning process. Mrs. Larson said it was a very difficult situation to have to take out spoiled foods and personal belongings such as children's toys and throw them on a bonfire.

Medicine Provides New Approach to Smoking Cessation

The first nicotine free prescription medicine designed to help people quit smoking may be available in pharmacies this summer. Nipropipon is started before people quit smoking. A quit date is established during the second week of Nipropipon therapy. We do not know how Nipropipon works. It is known that it affects the transmission of chemicals in the brain that may be associated with the addictive properties of nicotine. The medicine may reduce withdrawal symptoms such as irritability, frustration and anger.

In one study of patients treated with the nicotine patch and Nipropipon, smokers who received Nipropipon alone had a higher 4 week quit rate than those who used a nicotine patch alone (49% versus 36%). However, smokers who used a patch in combination with Nipropipon had the highest 4 week quit rates (58%).

Jager named scholar

The United States Achievement Academy announced that Melissa Jager has been named a United States All American Scholar. The award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10% of all American high school students. Melissa attends Wayne High School. Ms. Jager will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive nomination of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school personnel and upon the majority of votes cast by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and ability, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship attitude, and cooperative, sport, dependability and encouragement from a teacher or coach.

Melissa Jager is the daughter of John and Bernice Jager, of Lincoln.

Grasshoppers hatching

Grasshoppers have been hatching for the last few weeks now in northeast Nebraska, said Keith Jarvi, NE Extension Agronomist.

Areas that had problems last year are probably more at risk, but farmers should be aware of the potential problems and begin planning now to prevent serious damage to alfalfa and low crops.

Grasshoppers normally stage eggs about alfalfa and corn, but during high population years may feed on any other crops, trees and shrubs, Jarvi said.

Two species, the migratory differential two-striped and red-legged grasshoppers cause nearly all damage to crops in Nebraska. They prefer cropland, tending with undisturbed areas such as roadside ditches, crop borders, abandoned cropland and overgrazed pastures or rangeland.

Grasshoppers are easiest to control before they become adults.

According to Jarvi, hatching of each species may be spread over a month or more. The earliest hatching period happens in the two-striped, which begins to hatch in mid-May to early June.

The migratory will begin to hatch about a week after the two-striped, and the red-legged and differential will begin to hatch about three weeks after the two-striped.

Grasshoppers are easiest to control before they become adults.

The best time to control grasshoppers is during the third and fourth instars, Jarvi said.

Two generally accepted methods for controlling grasshoppers are: first, use of insecticides, which must be applied through mid-July, when most of the eggs will have hatched.

According to Jarvi, border treatments should be adequate for grasshopper control providing the timing of application is before the hoppers move from hatching areas into crops.

A border treatment of 150 feet should be adequate depending on the grasshopper species, area in areas with higher populations, multiple border treatments may be necessary. The border spray should be effective for seven to 14 days.

It is necessary to keep monitoring crop margins after heat starts to make sure grasshoppers do not re-enter the field, Jarvi added.

If a range of crops is slated for a different crop, higher rates should generally be used later in the season when hoppers are larger, Jarvi said.

General insecticides are effective for grasshoppers, control follows recommended label rates application directions and restrictions.

More information can be obtained from county Extension Cooperative Extension office.

Most grasshoppers overwinter in the egg stage. Eggs are laid in "rafts" of between eight and 30 eggs in the upper few inches of undisturbed soil, such as grass, bank pastures, ditches and field margins.

Some grasshoppers prefer to lay eggs in soil surrounded by roots of grasses, while others require well-aerated soil with granular forms of surface debris, Jarvi said.

A few species of grasshoppers overwinter as nymphs but are normally few in number and do not

Cooking more involved with men around

There has been much needed rain this week. It was accompanied by high winds, but it was welcome. As I pick up branches, I can't understand why so many trees live, while the dead ones still hang on the trees.

While Mike was at the farm, I puttered again, how easy it is to cook when there are no men around. I remember remarking about this to my mother when we still lived on the farm north of Waco. After he left on Sunday, I snacked Monday evening. I fixed a toasted cheese sandwich. On Tuesday, it was cottage cheese and fruit. I had a glass of Carnation Instant Breakfast (cocoa/lelate sugar/foam) for one meal.

I mentioned this to the heavy shop when I got my hair cut. One woman, who had been married and divorced, admitted that was the one thing about remarrying, cooking for a man again. The gal working on me had been in her sister's wedding a month ago. Now the sister is complaining that the new husband had only cooked one meal. Welcome to the real world, honey!

The one other nurse in our office who is close to my age is also married to a former anesthesiologist. She knows what I'm talking about when I comment that men like meat, potatoes and pie. The man in this house came back Wednesday and he had left over quiche for lunch today. He didn't even protest.

Just one more observation before I put this in the mail. I was the only one in pants at the wedding last week. The dresses were ankle length, from mid-thigh to ankle (there weren't any "hot pants" and just one pair of slacks). And I thought they were a dressy pair. They have a matching tank top. Guess I'm going to have to go shopping.
