Outmoded power plant will be new arts facility

The Nebraska State College System Board of Trustees gave the go-ahead Tuesday for a $1.5 million construction project to renovate the outmoded Wayne State College power plant into a new studio arts teaching facility.

More than $1.4 million of the project cost will be funded through private funds raised through the college's foundation.

The building was converted to a storage facility several years ago when a modern heating and cooling plant was constructed for the campus' 22 major buildings.

Construction plans call for creation of 14,700 square feet of new teaching space with completion due in the summer of 1998. The facility stands near the corner of the Wayne campus.

Plans for the Studio Arts Building include the consolidation of teaching and studio facilities from five separate sites on the Tom Allen, center, receives a number of Chicken Show Collectable Items from Dave Ewing, one of those in charge of this year's Chicken Show. Allen was in town to interview the Chicken Show Committee and learn more about the activities that take place each year. This year's Henaween and Chicken Show will be held Friday and Saturday, July 11-12. With him are left to right, The Chicken, Gaila Gilliland, Sheryl Lindau and Darrel Miller.

Chicken Show this weekend

After weeks of work by a large number of volunteers, the 18th annual Chicken Show will take place this Saturday, July 17, preceded by Henaween activities on Friday night.

The event, which began in 1980 as a project of the Wayne Regional Arts Council with a budget of $50, has grown to attract up to 10,000 people to the various events.

Dave Ewing, promotion chairman for the event, recently sent a letter to Jay Leno of the Tonight Show, advising him that a woman who recently appeared on his show claiming to be the winner of the National Chickoff was an impostor.

A National Chick Off Champion is crowned each year at the Wayne Chicken Show and previous winners have appeared on the Tonight Show as the guest of Johnny Carson.

Parade Magazine, on Jan. 8, 1995, featured Wayne's National Chickoff as the best competition in America.

In Ewing's letter to Leno he said that while citizens of Wayne felt the woman's claim had damaged the reputation of Wayne's

National Chicken, they did not wish to hold a grudge and have invited the woman to come to Wayne to compete in the real National Chickoff.

Ewing said that in the event the Tonight Show is unwilling to cooperate with the Wayne Chicken Show officials, their attorneys "Katchin, Phicker, Brostman & Leno" would handle the matter.

In response to Ewing's letter, an Associated Press release has been issued and Ewing has talked with members of Jay Leno's staff and they have asked him to call them on Monday with the winner's name. They will also discuss the possibility of the winner appearing on Leno's show.

In addition to the Chickoff controversy, a number of traditional events and several new additions will take place during the two-day event.

The City of Wayne has been filled with hundreds of people wearing purple T-shirts with this year's theme "You gotta be yellow," promoting this year's show. A souvenir shirt from last year's show was given to Tom Allen, an Omaha World Herald columnist who was in town last Wednesday to interview those in charge of this year's activities.

Henaween activities take place in the parking lot on South Main Street between Carhart and Wiley's. On the schedule are arts and crafts booths, an antique show and sale, an auction, an ice cream social.

At 7 p.m. the Cornhusker State Games Gold Medal Talent Search will be held and from 7:11 p.m. a 1998 Henaween will be held on Third Street between Pearl and Main Street. The dance is being organized by the Wayne/Daon County Prevention Coalition and sponsored by Chestnutman, Leno & Leno.

The Paint Side Stop will be participating in Wiley's beginning at 9 p.m.

Saturday's activities begin at 7 a.m. with a Top of Country Blue Bird.

Also on tap for Saturday are the model boat show at 8:30 a.m., the Bumblebee Contest at 8:30, the Chicken Flying Meet at 9:10 and the Chicken Show Parade at 11.

The afternoon activities, all of which are held at Bivolar Park to Officials with the First National Bankcard Center were at Tuesday's meeting and told the council and audience that the present facility on Main Street is not adequate to accommodate the services provided or to handle parking needs. The current facility

One aspirin type is buffered aspirin which combines an antacid with aspirin. The other is enteric coated aspirin which is a plain aspirin tablet with a coating which allows it to pass through the stomach and into the intestine before disintegrating. However, researchers who conducted a study of 1,754 individuals concluded that 825 mg of plain aspirin daily and the two special aspirin types were all associated with an increased risk of major upper gastrointestinal bleeding. The City of Wayne is fortunate once again to be host to the hopes for thousands of visitors attending this year's version of The Wayne Chicken Show, sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce. Perhaps Dame Nature will also cooperate providing great weather. Hopefully the hundreds of guests visiting our fair city for Henoween tomorrow, followed by a variety of chicken show activities Saturday, will find residents being totally gracious sharing their good will and hospitality.

Funny how time slips away

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
"Isn't it funny," as Willie Nelson once sang, "how time slips away?" Two years and $80 million after Boyd County, Nebraska, was picked as the lucky winner of a low-level radioactive waste dump, there's still no dump site. I mean sight. Remember, when this project started, it was estimated to cost $44 million and open in 1993. They think the final price tag will top out somewhere around $154 million.

commission's request for a state license. Nelson has repeatedly stated that the facility won't be built unless it meets state requirements for health, safety and environment. Can't argue with that. The Nelson administration and the compact commission each give the other the blame - or the credit? - for the delay. The commission tried to force the state to expedite its licensing process, setting a Jan. 14, 1997, deadline for a draft report. The deadline only generated another lawsuit - the fifth the state has filed against the project. U.S. Senator David Paster last week granted the commission's request that the state open up its license review process to inspection by the commission. A few years back, I drove up to Boyd County when opponents of the dump held signs in the grade school along the site. They were making the point that the site was too wet for the purpose. Sure enough, there was plenty of water in the ditches to puddle cars.

It was a pretty powerful experience, meeting first-hand the people who have been so bitterly divided, neighbor against neighbor, for years now. At a picnic afterwards, the ladies sang patriotic songs. If you're a sentimental person, it was enough to make tears well up. Meanwhile, back in Lincoln, the endless legal battles drag onward. Who knows how it will end.

Guests of all ages from coast to coast are expected to arrive desirous of enjoying our enviable rustic environment, inhaling our fresh country air, and relishing a few hours of delightful mid-America silliness.

Organizations, clubs, businesses and individuals are all finalizing their plans for joining in and making the day memorable for everyone. About the only way anyone could "lay a bad egg" would be to appear inhospitable. That isn't apt to happen.

Wayne hosts a diversity of activities throughout the year, hoping our ever present "Welcome" mat will attract newcomers to make this their home or a place to come for relaxation and fun.

Hying the American flag from our homes and businesses might also be a reminder to our guests that, truly, they are "Home". Egg-cactly the impression we want to leave!

On the move...

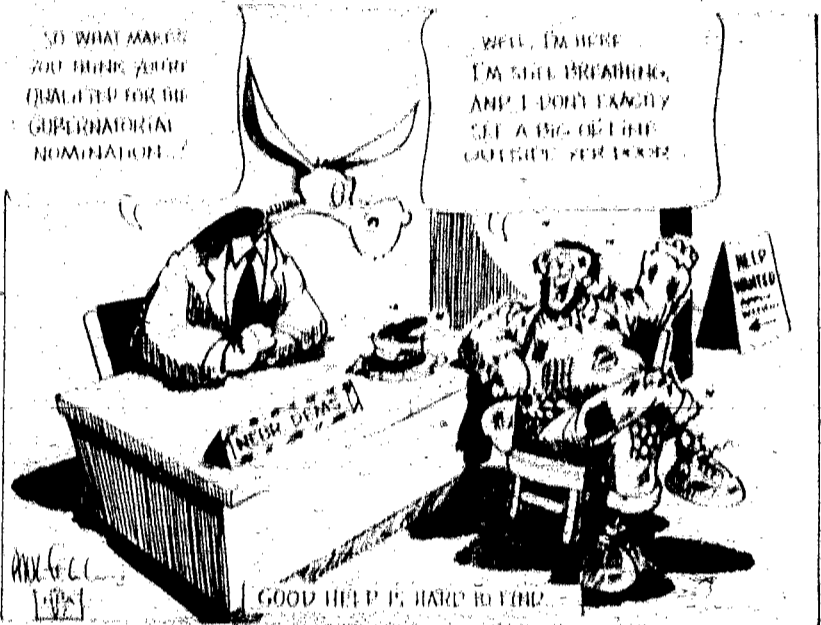

After months of anticipation, the time is here for both the Senior Citizen's Center and the Wayne Public Library to move into a new joint facility, as construction crews wrap up their work.

Earlier this week volunteers loaded the library's juvenile materials to the new building. City Administrator Joe Walker says current expectations include moving the remaining books and materials next Monday and Tuesday while the Senior Center also plans moving around midweek.

Providing current plans remain unchanged, the library will open its new doors to the public July 27, with a dedicatory program slated in September.

Volunteers providing the muscle for moving the Center and library inventories are well deserving of a wholehearted public "Thank you!"

The hometown spirit of "Here, let me help" continues to thrive in the growing community of Wayne America! Big job! Well done! Thanks!

No step right up, and watch the investigation committee featuring the topsy turvy house of political opponents where down is declared up, and up is down. Walk through a house of Mirrors - where virtual reality becomes virtual illusion, and that in turn becomes virtual reality. Double is quadruple.

Millions of political parties on the TV using various degrees of deception, thereby creating the shiny rainbow, can even be a Republic.

Well, some politicians dare say anything at any time to grease the skids for another vote? Does America have the best government that money can buy?

Let's face it, we've got a grandly designed but completely illegal illegal donations to the election campaign of Bill Clinton. These donors are to give a party are doing it on a way to generate a coalition about who's really in being investigated. Although the committee agreed to be bipartisan in its search, the party had filed a motion with the court to get a ruling on this.

Baby Boomers add fuel to our nation's economy

World War II officially ended in 1945. That year thousands of G.I.s returned home to family life. It is no wonder that 1946 became the first explosive year of the baby boom.

In 1996, the first of those baby boomers turned 50 and an estimated 70 million more will reach that milestone in the next 10 years.

Much has been written about the negative impact the aging baby boomers might have on our future economy because of their needs for Social Security and Medicare. But precious little has been said about their positive contributions.

American funds recently outlined a few economic benefits for which we can thank the baby boomers. For example, in 1953 one of the best investments on the market was Corber Products. A $1,000 investment in Corber at the beginning of the year was worth $13,000 at the end. In 1958, the Hula Hoop was the big money maker. For a 1/2 cent, a company named WJAME tied together the ends of a nine-foot plastic hose and sold it for a dollar.

By 1958, the boomers were riding bicycles. That Christmas was the best in the company history for Schwinn Bicycle Co. In 1963, boomers put Capitol Records on top by buying Beath records three years later. 70 million buyers rebelled against a food price index in favor of blue jeans that year. 1966 Levi Strauss made it big.

In the 1970's, baby boomers were passing up, graduating from college and buying houses of their own. The most market alert of boomers, but not within boomers (pardon the pun), in the 1980's boomers put their hands in day care, bought computers and software, made long-distance phone calls and took to the air in jets. Guess which industries were the winners in that decade.

Baby boomers will continue to have positive effects on the economy and the investment markets. Someone in this country turns 50 every 7.5 seconds. During the next 10 years, that group will make more money than at any other time in their lives. They also will inherit an estimated $1 trillion.

Where will this money go? Baby boomers have shown they prefer investing to saving. Mutual funds and common stocks are already their choices for 401(k) plans, profit sharing plans and personal investments, because boomers know that over long periods of time, stocks outperform other investments. For them, the days of relying solely on low-interest CDs and savings accounts are gone.

Strong corporate profits, combined with low inflation and interest rates, are driving the market up and increasing the demand for quality stocks. The last period like this was 1962-66 - more than 30 years ago - when we experienced a similar environment of low inflation and low interest rates. Today, however, we have the added liquidity supplied by the huge population of baby boomers.

This time is different - and you can thank the baby boomers for that!

Dedicated readers

A number of readers were recognized for their accomplishments during the Summer Reading Program "Thrills and Chills at the Library." More than 100 young readers and their parents attended the awards party held at Breisler Park last week. This year's program was designed to be somewhat shorter than normal due to the library moving into its new facility. Top readers include front row, Joshua Rasmussen, Middle row, left to right, Brandon Foote, Reggie Kuhl, Gina Smith, Stephanie Kay, Adam Rudin and John Murray. Back row, Julene Klein, library director, Marisa Rose, Jessica Menahan, John Brady, Elizabeth Seler, Erin Jarvi, Emily Brady and Sarah Moja who was in charge of the summer reading program. All those participating received rewards based on the number of books read.

is approximately 13,000 square feet.

Three sites were considered for the expansion. Wayne, another town in Nebraska and one in South Dakota. The project is expected to cost approximately $2.4 million. The Bank and Center currently employ 240 persons, 110 part-time and 130 full-time. They plan to add an additional 120 jobs over the next four years.

Two of the Center's department needs - collection and program - will move to the new site and another department will remain at the present site.

The council approved the rezoning of the property by turning down a request to re-zone an adjacent piece of land north of Mycammere Street from R-2 to R-1. The land will maintain an R-2 zoning.

Marta Chapman spoke to the council, urging them to keep the R-2 zoning and consider the impact of 300 cars driving through the neighborhood. She asked the council to get work on 10th Street started immediately to alleviate the traffic through the residential area.

The council did express a desire to pursue the idea of extending 10th Street from Broadway Road to Central Road.

The council waived the three readings on the rezoning request and the ordinance was given final approval.

In conjunction with the proposed new bank and facility, the council approved amending Wayne zoning regulations regarding telemarketing as a permitted use in an R-1 zone.

The council also passed an ordinance which will amend the zoning map to require the Wayne Civic Center facility.

Gene Hansen presented a proposal involving an integrated Resource Plan that the city is required to provide by regard to electric power. The proposal will be prepared by Nebraska Public Power District.

A public hearing has been set for 7:15 p.m. at the council's Aug. 12 meeting pertaining to an application for Wayne Rezoning Code 1.001 for an Office Information on the Bank and Center project. The $125,000 cost of the project, which funds for living law and regular school persons.

The council also discussed, but took no action on a request from Department and Design book to amend the personnel manual regarding expanded use of sick leave.

Currently, city employees are allowed five days of emergency sick leave per calendar year. A request has been made to change the wording to allow for the leave to include grandchildren and allow for an unlimited number of days.

The request also asks that the definition of family be expanded to include stepchildren, grandparents and grandchildren.

The council expressed a desire to continue discussion of the matter at a future meeting.

W NEBRASKA Z JOURNAL O

By Governor Ben Nelson

Dear Nebraska Neighbors,

My recent signing of a bill authorizing the construction of a new 900-bed prison has prompted some questions about Nebraska's efforts in the areas of crime prevention and rehabilitation. These are legitimate questions. And they are ones we ask our selves as we work on policies to make Nebraska a safer place to live.

Unfortunately, our actions in the way of crime prevention and rehabilitation are more difficult issues. They deal with the question of why a person commits a crime, to which there is no simple or single answer.

Preventative measures are also much more difficult to quantify than other kinds of crime statistics. An example is my Employment First welfare reform effort, which is aimed at fostering self-sufficiency thereby strengthening families. We know there is no better crime prevention than strong families. But how do you measure that impact?

Another example is job creation. Common sense tells us that a person who has a good job is much less likely to commit a crime. Because of the hard work of my administration, Nebraska has one of the highest job creation rates in the nation, and we've continued to have the lowest unemployment rate. But can you measure how that success has kept crime down?

Of the factors that can be more directly linked to crime, perhaps none is more obvious than drug abuse. The DARE program - Drug Awareness Resistance Education - is one answer. About $465,000 of state and federal funding has been devoted to this program for each of the last several years. DARE has touched the lives of more than 160,000 Nebraska students. When the federal government ended its share of funding for the program this year, I am essentially convinced the Legislature to invest state general funds to keep DARE working with Nebraska youth.

To assist our young people who have gotten into trouble, state support for Juvenile Services has gone up $8.8 million during my administration, a 143 percent increase. That money funds youth rehabilitation and treatment at Geneva and Kearney, follow-up care and community based support services. For the 1997/98 fiscal year, more than $12 million in state tax dollars will be devoted to services to assist troubled youth. In 1998/99, that number grows to $15 million.

In addition, state funding has been provided to the Crime Commission for grants which communities can apply directly to their local juvenile service needs. By 1999, this grant program will have placed nearly $4 million into the hands of community organizations.

Funding was also provided this year to open modular housing units and an incarceration work camp for non-violent offenders, providing cost-effective alternatives to building even more prison space.

Statistics show our system is efficient and effective. Nebraska's spending on adults corrections is two percent of our total budget - less than half the national average. Yet we also have one of the lowest recidivism rates in the country - 20.8 percent compared to the national average of 33.7.

Since I took office in 1991, our budgets have reflected a broad spectrum of spending to battle crime. Some of the toughest is obvious, some is not. However, any solution to the issue must begin with the acknowledgment that we are taking action in prevention, intervention and disposition. And compared to other states, we're doing a good job in the war on crime in this blue Nebraska.

WSC campus by the time location of the new building will include sculpture studio, complete with faculty and welding areas, painting studio, printmaking studio, pottery and ceramics studio and education studio. It also includes night/fitness studio and an of transient graphic arts and computer studio.

In Jay O'Leary, head of the Division of Fine Arts at WSC, said the new facility will permit camp faculty/student interaction, which is conducive to learning. O'Leary credited the leadership of College President Dr. Donald Math, the efforts of the Wayne State Legislature, and the support of the Board of Trustees as essential pieces in this project.

"Without this type of collaboration, we would not be able to do this project that will greatly enhance our ability to provide quality art programs for our students," he said.

Utilization of space in the remodeled building will help save space in other facilities at Wayne State. The college has implemented a 20 percent full-time equivalent enrollment increase since 1989.

Walking in Harmony Workshop will be held at Niobrara Park

Plant are being finalized for a Walking in Harmony Workshop that will be held August 13, 1997 at the Niobrara State Park Lodge.

The goal of the workshop is to create a better understanding and appreciation for the cultural diversity in Northeast Nebraska such as Native American, German, Czech and Scandinavian. Featured speakers will tell of their own heritage, family, experiences, language, music, customs and clothing.

Dr. Don Math, Wayne State College President, will serve as moderator. He will set the stage by making the audience aware of the value of diverse backgrounds and the need for respect of others' cultures.

The "Walking in Harmony Workshop" is being sponsored by Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation and Development Council, Pioneer Hills of Nebraska, Native Sons Hills of Nebraska and the National Resource Conservation Service. Pre-registration by August 11 is appreciated. Space is limited. Cost of registration is $6 for adults and $3 for child under 12.

The 14-under #1 team played Decatur on July 4 and won by a 10-6 margin with Stefanie McLagan earning the win from the mound. Christina Rowe led the winners with a double and single while base hits were recorded by Lindsey Hoffstedt, Cassie Nelson, Kate Nelson and Jamie Shaver.

The 14-under #2 team played Besmer last Thursday and won, 11-10 with Sarah Sperry notching the pitching victory. Wayne scored seven runs in the third inning to tie the game at eight before winning in the final inning.

Heidi Echtenkamp belted two singles to lead Wayne while Beth Ebbert and Shannon Johnson each singled.

The 18-under team hosted West Point last Thursday and fell by a 7-2 margin. The game was tied at two before the visitors scored five in the seventh inning.

Nicole McLagan was tagged with the pitching loss.

Kellie Luberstedt led Wayne with four base hits while Megan Meyer and Stacey Langemeier had two base hits each. Jennifer Beiermann, Alycia Jorgensen, April Beckenhauer and Katie McCue each had base hits for Wayne.

Wayne was leading Arlington by a 5-0 margin on Monday night on the road before the game was called due to lightning.

Monitoring TV is family matter

Q: I am concerned about the impact of television in our home. How can we control it without resorting to dictatorial rules and regulations?

A: It seems to me we have three objectives as parents. First, we want to monitor the quality of the programs our children watch. Second, we want to regulate the quantity of television they see. Even good programs may have an undesirable influence on the rest of the children's activities if they spend too much time in front of the tube. Third, we should include the entire family in establishing a TV policy, if possible.

I read about a system recently that is very effective in accomplishing all three of these purposes.

First, it was suggested that parents sit down with the children and select a list of approved programs that are appropriate for each age level. These types that list or at least write it clearly, and enclose it in clear plastic, so it can be referred to throughout the week.

Second, either buy or make a roll of tickets. Issue each child 10 tickets per week, and let him use them to "buy" the privilege of watching the programs on the approved list. When his tickets are gone, stop his television viewing is over for the week. His father has to choose carefully what his most wants to spend his time on.

Ten hours per week is perhaps a good target to shoot for. For a child that the average preschool child watches up to 24 hours of television per week. That's far too much, even for an elementary child.

This system can be modified to fit individual home situations or circumstances. If there's a special program that all the children want to see, such as a Charlie Brown feature or a holiday program during Christmas and Thanksgiving, you can issue more tickets. You might also give extra tickets as rewards for achievement or some other laudable behavior.

The real test will occur when parents reveal whether or not they have the courage to put themselves on that same limited system, too. We often need the same regulations in our viewing habits.

QUESTION: What does a woman want most from her husband in the fifth, sixth and seventh decades of her life?

A: She wants and needs the same assurance of love and respect that she desired when she was younger. This is the beauty of committed love—that which is accorded to be a lifelong devotion.

A man and woman can face the good and bad times together as friends and allies. By contrast, the youthful advocate of "youthful freedom" and non-involvement will enter the latter years of life with nothing to remember but a series of exploitations and broken relationships. That short-range philosophy which gets so much publicity today has a predictable dead end and down the road. Committed love is experience, but it yields the highest returns on the investment of maturity.

Putting knowledge to work

It's July and the pleasant smell of summer is everywhere and sometimes the unpleasant smells are present too. Many people are wearing a baseball style of cap to work or to baseball or softball games. Many people realize that their hat is soiled just by looking at it. Others, who are too busy to notice, may wait until the pungent odor of old sweat gets so strong that they can actually locate their hat by sniffing for it.

Many hats are inexpensive and people just toss them when they become soiled. However, some people really want to hang on to their favorite cap for as long as they can. Some hats may have a rare label on the inside, but the FBI does not require them on hats.

A preferred method is to simply

Hand wash the cap with a mild dish detergent designed to cut grease, rinse several times, and air dry. Another option is to machine wash on a gentle cycle, but this can be rough on the brim of the hat. The plastic, adjustable hooks on the back of the cap may pose a problem when dried at high temperatures as they tend to melt.

Some companies have come out with a plastic cap form that fits in and around the cap to hold its shape. The form allows you to wash the cap in an ordinary dishwasher. This keeps the brim from getting bent or distorted during the wash cycle. Be sure to choose a dishwasher detergent that does not contain chlorine bleach. It is always best to test the cap for colorfastness. Use a small amount of detergent and water and apply it to an inconspicuous area. Rinse the area with a white cloth. If you see any traces of dye on the cloth, it may not be safe to clean the cap.

Caps made of wool or having a leather trim usually cannot be washed in water. Wool caps should be taken to a professional dry cleaner who may be able to successfully clean and shape the cap. Unfortunately, a cleaner may not guarantee the results since hats shrink and fade due to sun and perspiration. Caps may also contain a backing that helps add shape to the hat when it is new. When the cap is cleaned, the backing may shrink or pull away from the fabric.

Caps with leather trim need to be processed by a leather cleaner. Most professional dry cleaners will send leather garments out to be cleaned for you.

Captain Schnook, Surfer Dude and Admiral Mark are part of the Kids Crusade that will be coming to Wayne July 13-16.

Treasure Island Kids Crusade is planned

Treasure Island Kids Crusade sponsored by Peace Assembly of God Church in Wayne is going to be a washbuckling, adventure filled program for the entire family.

The Crusade dates are Sunday Wednesday, July 13-16 at the Wayne City Auditorium. Each evening's activities begin at 7 p.m.

"This will be our fourth year that we have put on a Crusade in the auditorium," said Pastor Mark Steinhilber, "and each year it gets bigger and better. Last year we had over 225 in attendance."

This year's cast of characters will include Sharky, Captain Scramble, Surfer Dude, puppets, clowns and many more.

There are nightly prizes to be given away at the crusade, as well as a snack following each program. There is no admission charge for this event, but a free will offering will be received each evening.

These nightly programs are fun and exciting for the children, but we've found that teens and adults enjoy attending as well. Pastor Steinhilber said.

Children and teens are precious and valuable people. We need to let them know that their lives have meaning, not purpose, and that God has a wonderful promise to give them through Jesus Christ," he added.

Wayne summer reading program is completed

The Wayne Public Library's summer reading program, "Hills and Gullys at the Library," was recently completed after four weeks of reading and activities. There were 83 active readers registered, ranging from age 4 through grade 6. An outstanding total of 2,412 books were read.

The kickoff program was presented by Mrs. Alex Jantz, who shared her storytelling talent. She kept the attention of those in attendance with several stories. She also led several volunteers in an outdoor, chain-link, storylines were held for each grade level. Grades 4 & 5 were treated to ghost stories during one story time and tried to solve a staged murder in the library during the second. The library staff would like to thank the volunteer helpers: Jon Coathup, Carla Kemp, Lisa Nelson, Pat Gross, Madge Bruffat, Leah Agler, Jenny Dunstler and Dave Headley. Grades 1-3 and Read to Me participants also met twice to listen to stories and do a related craft.

Compliments to the top two readers in each grade: 1st, Megan Tubery, 21 and Reggie Bull, 64; 2nd, Elizabeth Hale, 120 and Stephanie Kay, 116. 3rd, John Brady, 57 and Brandon Truitt, 25. 4th, Judaea Rasmussen, 42 and Adren Bull, 10. 5th, Marissa Ross, 41 and Jessica Minahan, 28. 6th, Emily Brady, 6 and Ben Jantz, 5.

The library would also like to recognize John Murray, 163, Gina Smith, 101 and Amber Brucka, 91 as well as their parents for reading a tremendous number of books. They were the top three readers for the Read to Me group. Gina Smith was the lucky winner of the Read to Me drawing.

Approximately 100 children and parents gathered for the awards party held at the City Park. The child stars participated in an ice cream play, water balloon toss and several other games. Ice ball bowling and ice cube decorated were among the favorites. Awards were delightfully read by the library staff while participants marked on programs and pencils.

Many thanks to all of the parents and other helpers who brought the children to the library, read to children and encouraged children to read.

Thanks also to the following but not limited to the following: Ben Franklin, Queen Queen Hair's, Pat's Hair, Paiside, Quality Food Center, Burger and the Wayne Herald.

The staff at the Wayne Public Library includes: Helene Klein, Library Director; Dorothy Stephenson, Assistant Librarian; and library aides: Ruffalo Nelson, Jenny Hammer and Sarah Moe, who coordinated the reading program.

Participants that did not receive their certificate or prize at the closing party may ask for it at the library upon job resumption. The library hopes that the children continue reading books this summer and will visit the new library starting July 28.

Attending from Winside were Adolph and Bertha Rohff as well as Dewayne's brother Larry Rohff and Lowell and Betty Rohff, all of Carroll.

Inadequate Praise God has blessed us greatly. However sincere our thanks, it is paltry by comparison with what God has done for us. Even our most generous giving pales by comparison. But God won't mind your giving thanks and praise the Sabbath in church.

His grace that He lavished on us.

...work on the Dana College campus at Blair participating in a Technology Resource Entry Kit (TRESK) Institute. Titled one of the premier Tech Camps in the nation, the co-educational program is designed to enhance intellectual development, encourage creative thinking and problem-solving skills and promote a positive self-image among the participants.

The camp is designed for students in grades four through nine. The campers represented seven states, including Arkansas, Texas, Washington, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska.

Students at the TRESK camp are divided into seven mission teams. They rotate among technology workshops on campus which include robotics, physics, fitness, the internet, virtual reality, NASA's KidSat, the space shuttle mission and SkyView, a computer based analysis program on the sun and stars.

The simulated shuttle mission showcases the students' talents and teamwork. Using a replica of the front end of a space shuttle, the team and a mission control room, the teams execute a shuttle launch and mission. Kids inside the shuttle are linked to mission control via computers, radio transmissions and video camera.

After using the internet to learn about the various functions of a mission team members, students chose a role and performed it during the simulated mission. Brinck is the daughter of Butch and Lori Utmark.

Criteria Must be met

Farm Service Agency Vice Executive Director Mark Bowen said... criteria established by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C.

Emergency haying and grazing is not automatically released, Bowen cautioned. The national rules state that counties must have suffered at least a 40 percent loss of its normal hay and pasture production. In addition the county must have experienced either a 40 percent or greater loss in normal precipitation or more than 140 percent of normal.

Now that Washington has issued the criteria, counties have to meet to release CRP ground, FSA will be moving quickly to process request from eligible counties to seek approval from Washington. FSA has been documenting the pasture and hay losses for more than a month in a number of counties suffering from the results of severe weather. There are producers who could benefit from releasing the CRP, Bowen said.

...should not ask their local FSA offices because there are a number of requirements and haying and grazing CRP is not approved for any county until USDA in Washington authorizes it. FSA will be working with the counties who submit requests to secure the approval as quickly as possible, Bowen said.

Some high priority CRP acres will not be eligible for release. In addition, there are restrictions on the CRP acres eligible for release. One restriction is that only livestock operations located within counties that receive approval are eligible for haying of CRP acres.

All participants will be required to sign agreements prior to haying. Hay from CRP acres may not be sold and participants will be limited to one cutting. At least 30 percent of each CRP field or contiguous CRP fields must remain uncut for the benefit of wildlife.

USDA will not permit producers to hay and graze the same CRP acres. There will be a reduction in CRP rental payments for any acres that are hayed or grazed.

Individuals are urged to check with the local FSA office for the complete list of restrictions, eligible acres and rate of reduction in CRP payments. There are also other restrictions and limitations that may apply.

Criteria the counties have to meet for emergency grazing of CRP was announced last week by Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman. Nebraska FSA county offices are also working to process requests seeking to graze their CRP acres. Individuals are asked to check with their local FSA office on the restrictions and eligibility of their CRP acres.

No county is automatically approved for release. All counties seeking release must be submitted to the USDA in Washington for approval. According to the national rule, once a county is approved, no haying could begin before July 1 and would be permitted until either Aug. 11, 1997, or disaster conditions no longer exist, whichever comes first. Farmers interested in haying or grazing their CRP land should first check their local FSA office because there are a number of restrictions and haying and grazing CRP land.

Day is perfect for celebration

When we lived in northeast Nebraska, we read about the Fourth of July celebrations at Seward and thought they sounded fun. Then we moved one hour from Seward and still didn't check it out. (It was probably on call.)

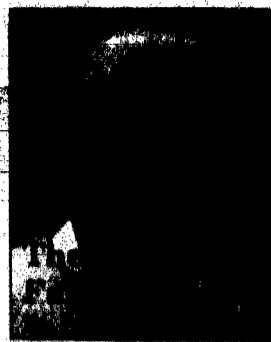

But now we have a daughter in Seward and we get there quite regularly. She's picked to holidays to "really celebrate and decorate for" and they are six months apart. She's lucky enough to have a house that lends itself to entertaining: a long dining room, a family room, a basement for TV and toys, a deck, patio and back yard.

She goes to craft shows and subscribes to decorating magazines. In December her house turns into a "Christmas Wonderland." In July, it's all red, white and blue.

Her husband is seemingly a willing partner, climbing on the house with lights, painting, papering and redecorating. Her boys play merely through it all.

Seward really does cater to it. And a lot of the work that is done by teens. There is a park area, hot air balloon ascent, car show and a huge craft show off the court house lawn.

The obligatory parade is always at 4 p.m., allowing all the dignitaries to participate in cities in other cities and still make it to Seward. In fact, the parade is typically political and heavily quorum. 10-year reunion classes from Seward High, old cars and the Seward County Sheriff's posse have a huge parade. But there is at least one hand, a few clowns, a fire truck complete with balloons.

Monte and his have it down to a science: turning a shuffle from their house downtown, parking it great spot to view the parade with the sun at our backs, complete with lawn chairs and coolers and a good place to view fireworks.

This was the first year Jon and Kristi could come, so Brian and Amy Bowers and Brook joined in. Randa had stars painted on her cheek. Brook just slept, laughed and generally was content. (It may have been his grandmother's touch.)

Anyway, it was an absolutely gorgeous day: no humidity, sun shine, no wind, so different from last week and so appreciated. We finished the day at my Mom's, watching the celebration in Washington on TV, which I'll miss with the 1812 overture and fireworks. It's kind of hard to go to work today. And leaves us with a patriotic glow. Hope it lasts.

...ing an all-embracing. A session on "Influencing," led by Lydia Chalkbark and Karen Werners, emphasized character, self-esteem, and positive attitude. Participants were encouraged to participate in volunteer activities.

The theme of this year's camp was "Weather." Campers were taught about weather, how to read a weather forecast, and how to stay safe during severe weather. The camp also included a variety of other activities, including a field trip to the Ponca State Park and a picnic.

The Wayne Chicken Show, 'tongue in beak

Backers of Wayne's 24th Chicken Show celebration July 11 and 12 have a new challenge facing them. "We have to make sure success doesn't ruin a good thing," said 1997 Chairman Gail Gilliland.

The Chicken Show, launched 17 years ago as a "tongue in beak" summer arts festival, initially attracted several hundred folk artists and punsters. However, in recent years upwards of 10,000 people have flocked to the otherwise quiet Northeast Nebraska community to compete in the National Cluck Off and other competitions, attend free performances and eat the best omelets and barbecued chicken found anywhere.

So successful has the Wayne celebration become that it has twice won Nebraska's highest tourism award, has been cited nationally by Parade magazine as having the best content in the nation (the Cluck Off) and, most recently, the Chicken Show has been cited as number 13 among the top 200 events in the country by the Coast to Coast Events

"In keeping with our somewhat 'eccentric' nature, we were tempted to reject these honors as being a little too conventional," said Mrs. Gilliland. "The last thing we want people to think is that we are a typical summer celebration," she said. "Who else can you go cluck like a chicken before an audience of thousands and gain national notoriety and cash?" Each of the recent Cluck

Beak' zany celebration, is cited nationally

Off winners have been featured in the national news.

To prove that the Chicken Show is not getting too big for its trademark brand of off-beak fun, she said this year there are plans afoot for an out-of-retirement reunion of the famed "Chickendances" all-male dance revue during the parade on Saturday morning.

In addition to the Chick-Off, there are many other Chicken Show events. Friday night is Halloween, or All-Hen's Eve. Halloween activities include ice sculpting demonstrations, children's games, a volleyball tournament, an ice cream social, the Comhunker State Games Field Medal Talent Search, a teen dance and much more.

Saturday morning begins with the Toga de Poultry Bike ride. Food is abundant, with the annual Omelet Fand sponsored by Kiwanis and I.W.J. Foods (cheap, just one buck!) and annual Chicken Food featuring half a barbecued chicken and sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce both held in Drexler Park. There are contests for all, including Chicken Bingo, Chicken Song Contest, Most Beautiful Beak and Best Chicken Legs on a Human Contests, the Egg Drop and more. The annual Fly In at the airport will return. Also on tap for this year is a Water Fight by the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department and a kite flying demonstration.
