Books on the move
 Nearly 100 people were involved with helping move books and materials into the new Library last week. The move was coordinated by Nick Saltros, as part of his Eagle Scout project, and Librarian Jelone Klein. The new facility will be open on Monday, July 28. An open house and dedication of the new building has been planned for Sept. 7 at 2 p.m. Additional masonry work on the building will be finished in the near future. Landscaping should be completed this fall. The Senior Center portion of the building will also be open early next week.

Study of fens in sandhills project at WSC

Marlan Borgmann, professor of the Wayne State College Biology Department, along with students Jayne Jonas, Wahn, Samantha Thompson, Wayne, and Mandy Lyding, Grant Island, and adjunct faculty member Barbara Pietromer, Bloomfield, are involved in a project to study fens in the Tishonka Sand Hills. A fen is a peatland produced when a pond groundwater source prevents the total decomposition of plant material. This results in a buildup of organic and mineral matter and this in turn produces an environment that supports a unique assemblage of plants and animals. Borgmann's research is compiling the vegetation information about the fens as part of a five-year project with the Nature Conservancy, The University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division, the Sand Hills Park Force, the Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Cherry County Natural Resource Conservation Service. During the course of the project, work will be done in an attempt to return fens to their original hydrology in an effort to restore their native vegetation and animal communities. Borgmann's research work will monitor the effects of the restoration project. Barbara Pietromer and Mandy Lyding have been enlisted to study the insects. This work has been previously done in connection with Sand Hills fens. Samantha Thompson has been employed by the Nature Conservancy as a biological technician to help in these studies and several others. She is currently doing a ranch north of Whitman at public Valley fens and is involved in several types of field research. All work is taking place in Cherry County. One site is 10 miles north of Whitman and the other is 20 miles north of Muller. Jayne Jonas and Borgmann have been traveling to the study sites the past two years and have lived for brief periods at the fens. Borgmann's research will again monitor the vegetation in 1999 and 2001. Pietromer and Lyding also make seasonal trips to the fens. The project, which began as Borgmann's dissertation research, grew much larger when the Nature Conservancy received funds from the State's Environmental Trust, a product of state lottery funds, to purchase two of the study sites she had begun work on. The restoration of these fens will have international significance, as fens occur on all continents except Antarctica. Few restoration projects have been attempted. "This has been some of the hardest and most rewarding work I have ever been involved in," said Borgmann. "It is very demanding, physically, to move through these wetlands to sample plants and insects. The students we have had involved have been absolutely wonderful field workers." A meeting held on July 10 included persons from all of the agencies involved along with teachers from the area.

Dixon hosts final session Community Builders

Dixon will host the final community builders session and graduation on Monday, July 28. The group will take a covered wagon ride and enjoy a buffalo burger at Lakota Hollow. The program will be "Understanding Nebraska History and Culture of Communities" by Dr. Robert Marley, Sr., the originator of the Community Builders program. Dr. Marley, a historian and community developer, will entertain the group with fun of the century.

Allen man killed in crash

A 42-year-old Allen man, Carl Patton, was killed Tuesday morning, July 22 following a two-vehicle accident east of Allen. Patton was transported by Marlan Air Care to Marlan Health Center in Sioux City, Iowa where he later died as a result of injuries sustained in the accident. Two men in the other vehicle, Craig Boyd, 23 and David McCordale, 19, both of Allen, were not injured. The Dixon County Sheriff's Office is continuing to investigate the accident.

Small Business Administration Kucera honored with award

Loren Kucera, director of the Nebraska Business Development Center at Wayne State College, was honored by the Federal Small Business Administration with its "Star Performer" award for his work in fostering small business development in the region. Clayton Davis, SBA regional director out of Omaha, presented the award to Kucera during a lunch at his home on July 16. Davis said Kucera has done an "outstanding job of pulling together assistance for small business in this area." The SBA official said in addition to assisting business development, Kucera has identified and nominated two winners of the state small business of the year honorees.

Schwartz is new board secretary

By Kevin Peterson
 of the Herald
 The Wayne School Board met in regular session on Monday night at the high school with the official appointment of the Board Secretary the first thing on the agenda. Vicki Schwartz of 8181 Highland was named to fill the vacancy of Don Daniels who worked for the school for the past 12 years. The board also voted a pay increase of 2.685 percent for administration personnel including Dr. Don Zales, principal of the high school, Richard Metzger, principal of the middle school, David Lutz, principal of the elementary school, and Marlene Ulling, director of special education. The Wayne School District will undergo a change in school zoning this coming school year as the additional Service Unit #1 (SU1) contracted for Wayne is taken as own course with ESU paying the school district $18,000 for the school year with Wayne having to come up with the other $4,370 to fill the full time position. The position will be a five-day per week job for nine and a half months. The past contract with ESU had the service unit supplying the nurse on a four and a half day per week basis at a salary of $18,600. School attorney Chris Connolly advised the board on new legislation concerning legal matters in school districts across the state in

Kucera's Wayne office of the NBDC is one of nine located throughout the state. The offices were established, beginning in 1977, to offer consulting and educational services to small businesses. Services provided through the offices includes market research, marketing plans, strategic planning, financial planning, cash flow budgeting and capital budgeting.

When he was a student at Wayne State in 1992, Kucera won the prestigious Duncan Aviation Business Plan Competition. A rare feat for a student from a small college. The national competition usually is won by major university competitors.

Kucera earned an associate of arts degree in 1991 from Northeast Community College in Norfolk, a bachelor's degree from Wayne State in 1992 and is currently working on an MBA degree at the University of South Dakota.

A resident of Clarkston, Kucera and his wife, Janice, who is a registered nurse with Family Regional Hospital, have three sons, Will, 18, Joel, 15, and Ross, 12. In his spare time Kucera enjoys trap shooting and hunting.

Stoltenberg announces new partner

Alan Stoltenberg has joined his uncle Dale as an associate broker and co-owner of Stoltenberg Partners Real Estate.

Alan and his wife Sandra recently moved to Wayne from Gretna where both had been involved in education. Alan also spent nine years in the banking and finance business.

"We are excited to be here in Wayne. My grandparents were born in this area and I have many fond memories of visiting them here," Alan said.

The couple has three sons, Sam, 4, Timothy, 3, and Mick, 18 months.

Stoltenberg Partners has been handling real estate matters in the Wayne area for 27 and has announced a number of changes at the office for the benefit of the client and customer.

Alan and his wife Sandra recently moved to Wayne from Gretna where both had been involved in education.

Anne Hultze is now joining as an associate broker. Pat Lutz has been with Stoltenberg Partners since February and currently handles residential real estate.

Barbara Leighty is the office manager.

Stoltenberg Partners is unique in being able to offer sales, credit, appraisal and management in Wayne and surrounding counties with a three tiered, all-Braker-of-Rice? Dale said.

Jager given leadership award

The Knights of AE has recently recognized Julene Jager with their Dr. Friedman Student Leadership Award at an Offbeat-Ar Time Base function.

The Dr. Friedman Student Leadership Award recognizes high school seniors throughout Nebraska and western Iowa who have demonstrated extraordinary leadership. The award seeks to identify students who take action to satisfy the needs of others, who actively participate in community service and who motivate others to become involved. The award is named for Eugene Dr. Friedman, founder of Knighthood's jewel state. Recipients received a personalized medallion and $250. Jager was one of 12 honorees selected from over 200 applications. Wayne High School principal Dr. Don Zepf also attended the reception.

Jager is the daughter of Eugene Jager of Wayne and granddaughter of Helen and Thomas Knuth of Gretna. She will attend Northwestern University in the fall.

Ken Olds is honored in Colorado

The Colorado Academy of Family Physicians (CAFP) at its Annual Scientific Meeting presented Ken Olds, M.D., an award for his years of service to CAFP. Dr. Olds, a family physician in Greeley, Colo., volunteered his time to the CAFP from 1980-1996, as a member of the Board of Directors, as CAFP president and finally as a CAFP delegate to the American Academy of Family Physicians. His strong leadership abilities, excellent communication skills and broad knowledge of family medicine helped the CAFP's Family Physicians members and all their patients.

The Colorado Academy of Family Physicians is a non-profit association. Its 600 membership consists of practicing family physicians, residents and medical students. Its mission is to support and assist Colorado's family physicians so they can provide personal, comprehensive, continuing and cost-effective patient care.

Needing help

For those of you finding yourself on an emotional roller coaster due to depression, domestic violence, or sexual assault, there is help available.

Heaven House, located in Wayne, serves a five-county area in providing help in the time of need. The local phone number is 375-4633. Or the state crisis line is 1-800-876-6238.

Emotional emergencies are often difficult to handle, so you may want to keep the telephone numbers handy.

You'll never need a crisis line? Let's hope that is true, but in case you do, there is help available. If your face is laughing but your stomach is in knots, we encourage you to reach out to professionals for assistance.

Domestic violence can be deadly, bruising both body and spirit. Even mistreatment of the elderly is becoming more common. Sexually assaulted youth exist in every community. If your world is falling apart, help is available.

Getting assistance in the time of need is another meaning of "community."

Northeast Nebraska is a great place to live for the very reason that others personally care and can offer help.

Back to the drawing board

Using a turn signal lever must be one of the more complicated, high tech, complex maneuvers ever invented by mechanical engineers, or so it would seem.

On a scale of one to ten, what are the chances the driver ahead of you will travel into that murky world of mysterious mechanics and actually move the turn signal control, thereby exerting great physical stamina, and letting other drivers know his/her directional intentions? Recent on-site observations reveal that about 85 percent of motor vehicle operators drive in a manner that leads others to believe they don't even know what makes the turn signals work.

For folk unaware, as they sit in the driver's seat, there is usually a lever that projects from the side of the steering column. When moved it activates the turn signals on the vehicle. No other motorists can get a hint as to where one is aiming to go.

Falling to use a turn signal causes others to question one's knowledge of operational procedures. Those who wait to be considered less than brilliant, in the next time you take your turn at the wheel, why not appropriately experiment in using that lever, easily accessible while the light burns?

Drivers around you will be convinced you really know what you're doing when they see those signals flickering!

Anything less may border on being an unexcused just by mandating signaling!

What would they think if it wasn't?

By Melvin Paul

Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association

Some folks around the statehouse are shaking their heads over the dog and pony show state Democrats recently staged over Alan Jacobsen's defection from the party of the donkeys.

The wind is that some of the state's highest ranking Democrats disagreed with the dog to do over Jacobsen signing up with the Democrats. In large a celebration over an obvious victory seems to reflect more party ideology than party unity.

Jacobsen is a nice guy, but he is a total little mouse. He was appointed leader of the Republican Party, all being of political stature. However, he did not have the political skills to lead.

Reserve two major Democrats making a bid for the Republican nomination for governor next year.

He is a guy who is just trying to jumpstart a political career, and he hasn't yet been able to make it happen.

Jacobsen thought that in a bid for the Republican nomination for governor in 1994, further endorsement of the late state County Republican Party for the state chairmanship in 1995, with only about 600 votes of a local party endorsement would be enough. He was defeated by 20,000 party voters at the Republican caucus.

Finally, Jacobsen signed up with the Democrats. The Nebraska Christian Coalition, before making any bid for a statewide victory, is a party of the right, and it is not the place for a liberal like Jacobsen. He is a party of the right, and it is not the place for a liberal like Jacobsen.

Jacobsen is a nice guy, but he is a total little mouse. He was appointed leader of the Republican Party, all being of political stature. However, he did not have the political skills to lead.

Kim Rohak bowed out of the race last month.

I've always found the concept of "party loyalty" a bit puzzling. How loyal can you be to a political party you join by signing a little piece of paper at the courthouse?

Myself, I'm an election shopper. I regularly switch my party registration so that I can get the most interesting ballots when I go to vote. I've been Independent, Republican and Democrat. One of my campaign issues is that season change is a ploy to call on the county clerk to look out what party I am.

Party affiliation is a minor concern, I think, to voters, but it is a major concern to candidates who need to draw upon the resources, both financial and human, to mount a creditable campaign.

In recent decades, Nebraska's Democrats have relied upon candidate personality, as opposed to party ideology, to achieve a great deal of electoral success. The Republicans have concentrated more on ideology and organization and, with the energy of Chuck Hagel last year, have begun fielding the kind of charismatic candidates that may beat the Democrats at their own game.

One has to wonder if Jacobsen really is being appointed as a Democratic candidate for governor.

nor. Do the Democrats really view him as their next Bob Kerrey, who can win Nebraska voters off their feet? Or is he a potential sacrificial lamb, allowing the party to concentrate on other matters, such as a critical for Congress if Doug Metcalf steps down to run for governor?

I suspect the Jacobsen-Democratic alliance is a wedding between a man desperate to hold political office and a party desperate for a candidate.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Take care of those pets...

To the Editor: As the summer slowly creeps and the weather heats up, The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) reminds readers that pets, like people, can suffer from the heat, especially when left in a parked car.

'Chill out' when temps rise

High temperatures and high humidity put people in the danger zone for heat stroke and heat exhaustion, according to health officials in the Nebraska Health and Human Services System.

The body normally cools itself by sweating. High temperatures and high humidity are a deadly combination because when the humidity level is high, sweat doesn't evaporate as quickly and body temperature rises.

People should "chill out" when temperatures reach 100 degrees and humidity levels are 35 percent or greater, said state epidemiologist Dr. Tom Tarrance. "Take it easy outdoors, drink lots of water, and try to spend time in air-conditioned places," he said. "People don't take the threat of heat stroke seriously enough."

Low-income households may qualify for help with cooling costs from the Nebraska Low-Income Energy Assistance Program in the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services. The program can help if a household member is at least 60 years old or has a medical condition, such as asthma or diabetes, that requires air conditioning. Some funding is available to pay for repair and purchase of air conditioners. In formation about the program can be obtained from the local health and human services office.

Heat stroke, the most serious heat-related illness, is a medical emergency. The body's temperature rises to 105 degrees Fahrenheit or greater. Symptoms include hot dry skin, rapid heartbeat, shallow breathing, disorientation, delirium and coma. Someone with heat stroke should be moved into the shade or into an air-conditioned location and emergency medical assistance should be summoned.

Heat exhaustion is a form of heat-related illness that can develop following several days' exposure to high temperatures. Its symptoms include rapid heartbeat, cold clammy skin, nausea, dizziness, weakness and fatigue. Someone suffering from heat exhaustion should be moved into shade or an air-conditioned location immediately if the individual's temperature exceeds 102 degrees and emergency medical assistance.

The risk for heat-related illness and death is higher for infants and the elderly because their bodies do not regulate temperature as well. Others who are at increased risk are the obese, the chronically ill (which includes those with heart disease, high blood pressure and asthma) and people who take certain medications, such as antidepressants and tranquilizers, that interfere with the body's temperature regulation.

Heat-related illness and death are readily preventable. Here are some tips for times when the temperature and humidity levels are high:

- Spend as much time as possible in air-conditioned places;
- Drink plenty of water;
- Wear loose, light-colored clothing;
- Eat light meals;
- Avoid drinking alcohol and smoking;
- If outdoor activity is unavoidable, slow your pace and take frequent rest breaks to cool off;
- To protect your skin, use a sun screen lotion with a protective factor of 15 or greater and wear a wide-brimmed hat, long-sleeved shirt and pants. Synthetic interfaces with the body's job of heat dissipation and too much sun exposure is a risk factor for skin cancer.

Being in an air-conditioned place for a few hours each day will reduce the risk of heat-related illness. Fans can be a source of relief, but the higher the humidity, the less cooling relief they provide because air movement at high levels of humidity can increase heat stress.

Weather provides for comfort in five days. However, the need for suffering and a casual death of an animal unprovoked to a fat on a warm day is a tragedy that is mostly preventable.

On a hot and humid day, the temperature inside a car can rise very quickly. On an 85-degree day, for example, the temperature inside a car with the windows slightly open will reach 102 degrees within 10 minutes. After 30 minutes the temperature will reach 120 degrees. On warm days, it will get even hotter. A dog's normal body temperature is 101.5 to 102.2 degrees. A dog can withstand a body temperature of 107 to 108 degrees for only a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage or even death.

District baseball tournament continues

The Wayne Junior Legion and Midget baseball teams opened up District play this week with the sixth seeded Midgets surprising third seed South Sioux in first round action, 3-1 while the juniors opened tourney play with an 8-5 win over Hooper/Unshing before falling to South Sioux on Tuesday night, 5-0.

The juniors 8-5 win over Hooper last Friday was aided by pitcher Justin Theide who struck out 16. Theide went the distance to earn the win, allowing just three hits.

Wayne pounded out nine hits led by Theide's triple and single. His triple in the sixth inning sparked a Wayne rally with two runs batted in. The winners scored four times in the sixth inning to overcome a 3-4 deficit.

Adam Endicott singled twice and had two runs batted in and Paul Zukovsky added a pair of base hits while Ryan Sturm, Justin Mard and Brian Fernau had one single each.

The only negative for Wayne was six errors on defense which helped lead to several Hooper runs. Wayne's job ahead coming started with a lead off walk to Brad Maycott while Brian Fernau reached on an error. Adam Endicott singled to score Maycott and Theide ripped a two run triple. Theide worked on a Jeremy Latt outside squeeze play for the fourth run.

Tuesday against South Sioux the locals could not put anything together as they fell, 5-0. Justin Theide again got the nod on the mound and was tagged with the loss with four strikeouts to his credit while giving up 10 hits. Both teams committed two errors.

Wayne threatened to score in the first inning but Josh Starz was thrown out at home plain on a fielder's choice by Adam Endicott. South Sioux did the bulk of its damage in the third inning as nine hitters came to the plate with five hits and four runs scored. Wayne finished with four hits while Brian Fernau singled twice while Starz had one base hit and three other.

THE MIDGETS surprised South Sioux, 1-0 on Sunday night as Dustin Jensen got the nod on the mound with eight strikeouts to his credit while allowing no hits.

Wayne finished with seven hits led by Dan Jensen's double and single while Dustin Schmeitz singled twice. Rob Sturm, Tom Zick and Ryan Durkin each had base hits.

Wayne trailed 1-0 after four innings of play but scored once in the seventh and held South Sioux scoreless in the bottom half of the inning to preserve the win.

Niemann drew walks to start the inning and Rob Sturm notched an RBI single followed by a Darin Jensen RBI single. The Midgets will take a 19:18 return into Thursday night's game with second seed Blair at 8 p.m. at Hank Overin field in Wayne.

WAYNE'S JUNIORS played West Point on Wednesday night in a loser's bracket game and captured a 12-7 victory.

Wayne out-hit West Point, 10-7 and survived a four error evening while West Point had eight errors in what turned out to be its season finale.

Ryan Sturm started the game on the mound and went 2-2/3 innings before Brian Fernau relieved him. Fernau lasted 1-1/3 innings before Justin Theide came in for the final 2-2/3 innings and earned the win.

Wayne led 4-0 after an inning and a half but trailed 6-5 after three. The game was tied at seven after the fifth inning before Wayne added three in the sixth and four in the seventh.

Brad Maycott, Brian Fernau and Adam Endicott each doubled and helped to lead Wayne while Josh Starz singled twice. Justin Theide doubled and Bobi Giston singled.

Wayne will play Huntington at 8 p.m. today.

Wayne second baseman Ryan Sturm fields a ground ball during action last Friday night against Hooper/Unshing and rifles it to first baseman Adam Endicott for the out. Wayne defeated Hooper by an 8-5 margin in the first round.

Justin Theide steps a base hit against Hooper during first round District action last Friday night at Hank Overin Field.

Wayne plays host to state links tourney

Wayne Country Club played host to the State Junior Golf Tournament, Monday and Tuesday as 74 players took to the links for a 34-hole format.

After 34 holes of play on Monday, 31 players earned the right to play 18 additional holes on Tuesday to determine a champion.

The cut was 184 or an average two-round total of 77.77. Elwood's Brent Arends was crowned champion but the winner wasn't determined until the final putt on hole 34 (number 18 on the third round). Arends was one stroke ahead of Omaha Cross Junior to be J.J. Sullivan heading to the final hole. Both players had good drives but Sullivan's approach on 18 went long and to the right, leaving him a difficult down hill chip on to the number 18 green. He opened up his sand wedge and stuck the ball about eight feet to the left of the pin.

Arends, meanwhile, had his approach land on the right fringe of the green but his chip shot to the pin was well short leaving him about eight feet away from the hole.

After measuring to see who was out, Sullivan went first and claimed his par putt to force Arends into a must-make putt situation to win the title or a tournament to force a playoff.

"I was hoping that I would have to putt first," Arends said. "I knew if he made it the worst I could do is force a playoff but he missed it. All I could have to do is two put for the win. He stepped up and made a 10-foot putt and fortunately I was lucky enough to do the same."

Arends' 34-hole total was 217, one over par. That included a five-over round of 67 on Monday, in the second round. "Everything went well in that round," Arends said. "I started on number six with a birdie and finished on number ten with an eagle, after driving the pin long green."

Sullivan finished second at 218 followed by Seth Parker of Hastings, 219 and Matt Casey of Omaha, 220. Bart Bishop of Lincoln had a hole in at 222 and David Lundgren of Lincoln was fourth at 222 followed by Gregory A. Knorr of Bayard, 223 and David Hunsaker of Lincoln, 224.

Elwood's Brent Arends accepts the junior state championship trophy from executive director Vinip Parker following Tuesday's championship round.

Retirement age could rise to 70

Mention the words "Social Security" and you're likely to spark a debate. Younger people say they're tired of paying into a system that won't benefit them; older people say they've spent many years paying into Social Security, too, and they couldn't live without it.

Individuals aren't the only ones arguing about Social Security. This popular entitlement program continues to make news as legislators debate its future health.

Although no laws have been passed, one of the most agreed-upon solutions is to raise the retirement age. Today's laws set the date at they were in 1935 when Social Security was signed into law. Retirees are eligible for full retirement benefits at age 65 or reduced benefits as early as age 62. Amazingly, though, in 1935, Americans had a life expectancy of only 61.9 years.

In other words, a system was put into place that had the expectation of paying out little or no benefits to half of all workers who paid into the system. During the past 62 years, improvements in medicine, lifestyle, education, transportation, communication, working conditions, and other technologies have driven the average life expectancy from 61.9 years to 76 years, an increase of more than 14 years, or nearly 23 percent.

With the average retiree receiving benefits of more than $7,000 in 1996, and expected to rise to $11,000 in 2010, the $1 trillion retired Americans today are scheduled to draw much more from Social Security than the system was designed for. And if you consider that 83% of retirees start drawing benefits before age 65, the cumulative costs are even higher.

Proponents of raising the retirement age to 70, with reduced benefits available as early as age 65, say that doing so is logical given our longer life expectancies. They add that phasing in these higher age limits over the next 10 years would be fair to workers who've worked these years of retirement and provide adequate transition time to save and plan. And it would still allow the average worker to enjoy a longer retirement than was originally planned when Social Security was signed into law.

It's important to understand that the Social Security Trust Fund is healthy today. Incoming tax revenues will continue to exceed out-going payments until 2012. After 2012, however, Social Security trustees will be forced to supplement payments with interest and principal that have been accumulating in the trust fund. Today's projections indicate that, with no change at all, the trust fund will be bankrupt by 2030.

Experts say that raising the retirement age would postpone the bankruptcy far beyond 2030 and provide hope that the children and grandchildren of today's retirees will be able to receive benefits from the system they paid into over their entire working careers.

"Cataract surgery has greatly improved my vision."

I was looking back from Atlanta and I thought my eye was fuzzy. I made an appointment with Dr. Fiedler and he said I needed my cataracts removed. I thought I needed to take care of my eyes so I went ahead and had surgery. I had no pain. I know what to expect because of instruction from Dr. Fiedler and his wonderful staff. Dr. Fiedler is a very sympathetic, Christian person. His staff are all very lovely girls. They always have a smile.

If you have a cataract, don't wait long to have them removed. Go in with faith that your doctor knows what he is doing and you'll come out fine. Cataract surgery greatly improved my vision.

Self-destruction result of differences

Q: What happens when a child is so different from the group that he cannot compete, no matter how hard he tries?

A: That dead-end street is most often responsible for attempts at self-destruction.

I am reminded of a sad little girl named Lily, an eighth grader who was referred to me for psychological counseling. She opened the door to my office and stood with eyes cast down. Underneath several layers of powder and make-up, her face was completely aglow with infected acne.

Lily had done her best to bury the inflammation, but the heat had been successful. She weighed about 85 pounds and was a physical wreck from head to toe. She sat down without raising her eyes to mine, lacking the confidence to face me.

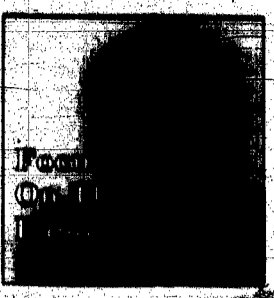

I didn't need to ask what was troubling her. Life had dealt her a devastating blow, and she was bitter, angry, broken and deeply hurt.

The teen-ager who reaches this point of despair can't see the tomorrow. He has no hope. He can't think of anything else. He knows he is repulsive and disgusting. He would like to crawl in a hole, but there is no place to hide. "Turning away won't help, nor will trying to change anything. The only hope, he chooses, is death as the only way out."

Lily gave me little bits to work. The first was a mirror; she gazed into the school mirror and announced that she had uglified everything to the family members around. We followed her closely to replace the medication and highly encouraged her to try the hospital.

Lily survived physically, but her self-esteem and confidence had died years earlier. The year 2000 and her mother had the responsibility of her intellectual life.

Obviously, the reality of gain mental acceptance is not realistic, unless comfortable feeling among the young, such lack of self-esteem can actually extinguish the desire to go on living. Parents and teachers must be taught to recognize the early symptoms of personal despair during the tender, plastic years of childhood, and more importantly, what they can do about it.

Q: I am hurt because my teen-ager seems to be ashamed to be seen with me. I gave birth to him and have nourished and devoted my entire life to him. Now, he's suddenly embarrassed to be seen with me, especially when his friends are around. Is this normal? Should I resist or accept it?

A: You should understand that teen-agers are engulfed by a tremendous desire to be adults, and they resent anything which implies that they are children.

When they are seen with their "Mommy and Daddy" on a Friday night, for example, their humiliation is almost unbearable. They are not really ashamed of their parents; they are embarrassed by the adult role that was more appropriate in prior years.

Though it is difficult for you now, you would do well to accept this healthy aspect of growing up without becoming defensive about it. Your love relationship with your child will be reestablished in a few years, although it will never be a parent-child phenomenon again.

The bride elect, daughter of Victor and Sharon Carlson of Battle Creek, received her associate degree from Northeast Community College in Liberal Arts. She is currently studying for her bachelor's degree in business finance at Wayne State College.

The groom, son of Brian and Marsha Sorensen of Wayne, is studying for his bachelor's degree in Art graphic design at Wayne State College. He is currently working at Great Dane Trailers.

Mellors will celebrate 60th anniversary

Former Wayne residents Bill and Vera Mellor will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary on July 28. The Mellors have two children, Chuck and Judy Mellor, of Daytona Beach, Fla., and Jane Leonard of Norfolk. They also have two grand children and a great grand child. For anyone wishing to send greetings, the address is 2161 Meadow Drive, P.O. Orange, Fla. 32127.

Progress made in preventing poisoning

Significant progress has been made in the United States in reducing overall rates of childhood lead exposure through comprehensive prevention strategies.

Environmental strategies have included setting environmental standards that have removed lead from gasoline, paint and plumbing. Water treatment removing lead out of the from food cans and reduction of lead based "paint" hazards in children's homes have also made great inroads into this health threat to young children. Combined strategies have worked to bring the average blood lead levels in children down compared to the mid 1970s.

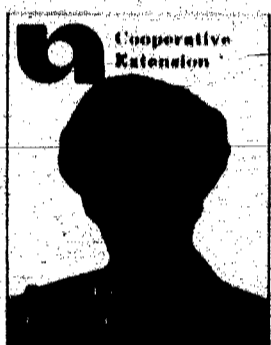

Despite this progress, major exposure sources still exist. Certain population segments of young children remain at a much greater risk of becoming lead poisoned. The single common thread for almost all lead poisoned children is that they live in older homes. Although any home built before 1978 may have lead based paint, it is primarily the homes built before 1950 that present the greatest risk. Lead based paint in older homes that is deteriorating creates paint chips and dust that can be easily ingested by young children. This remains a health risk.

In Nebraska in 1995, 1 percent of 6,391 children that the Lead Poisoning Surveillance System reported an elevated blood lead level. Considering that there are approximately 120,000 children between six and six years old in Nebraska (the most vulnerable age with regard to lead poisoning), and most that are not of these Nebraska homes were built before 1950, it is possible that many children with elevated lead levels remain undiagnosed.

Although identifying children with elevated blood lead levels is important, breaking the link between lead in the environment and lead in the child is the key to eliminating lead poisoning in children.

The major sources of childhood exposure are:

Cooperative Extension

Lead based paint in homes that is easily disturbed during remodeling or renovation. Lead based paint in homes that is exposed in a home that is easily chewed by a young child.

Lead contaminated soil. Other potential sources of contamination are abandoned industrial sites, parental occupations and hobbies and certain ceramics and traditional home remedies.

Although the national average for elevated blood lead levels in children continues to decrease, problems remain. Specific segments of the population are disproportionately affected by this environmental health problem. It is the young children who are members of these high risk groups that are the most vulnerable and it is these children upon whom great effort must be focused.

July 20-26 is Lead Poisoning Control Week. For additional information please call the Nebraska Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Program at the Nebraska Health and Human Services, Regulation and Licensure, (888) 242-1100.

The groom is a 1989 graduate of East High School. He is employed with American Truck and Trailer Sales.

FEED THE NEED

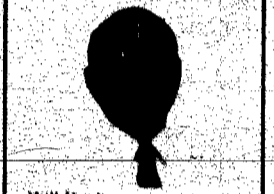

When we make Jesus resident in our hearts, things change. God working within us cleans up our evil. But full grace. By faith we receive the Lord. Ask Jesus into your heart this week at church.

Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith.

New Medicine for Scalp Psoriasis

Psoriasis is an inherited disease of the skin that affects all races. The condition first appears as clearly defined red, raised areas on the skin that eventually turn into shiny, silvery scales. Conditions that may worsen the condition include cold and dry air, stress, infections and the medicines lithium and beta-blockers.

In March, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved a new medicine for psoriasis of the scalp. The medicine is called Capotein (lisinopril). It was approved for the topical treatment of moderately severe cases of psoriasis on the scalp. Capotein is a combination of capotein and a mild corticosteroid. A study reported last year in Southern Medical Journal showed the use of capotein on the scalp of 215 persons with stable plaque psoriasis. Although the average time for clearing of the skin was 16 to 18 weeks, twenty-five percent saw five or more patches clear in 8 weeks.
