Road project leads to bus policy change

By Kevin Peterson
 Of the Herald

The Wayne School Board met in special session on Tuesday at the high school in order to adopt a transportation policy change.

The Board wanted to get the policy worked out before the start of the school year which is just a few weeks away.

"We are going to have pick up points for school bus routes within the city limits," Wayne Superintendent Dr. Donald Jensen said.

"The Board was concerned with a number of factors, but most pressing was the starting of the Highway 15 widening project. With the project, the Board was concerned with safety for the children and the ending of congestion that will occur both through lack of parking and entering the school premises."

Pick up points have not been set in detail as of yet but there will be two pick up points based on quadrants of the city with a third one between quadrants being Highways 15 and 33.

A committee headed by Dr. Jensen will be in effect, making an attempt to be picked up with in some of the central office (high school). As soon as the pick up points are established they will be published in the Wayne Herald.

An article regarding transportation changes will be published in the August newsletter.

Jensen also said there will be a new bus service request form that must be filled out before students will be picked up at any of the pick up points because of seating capacity limits.

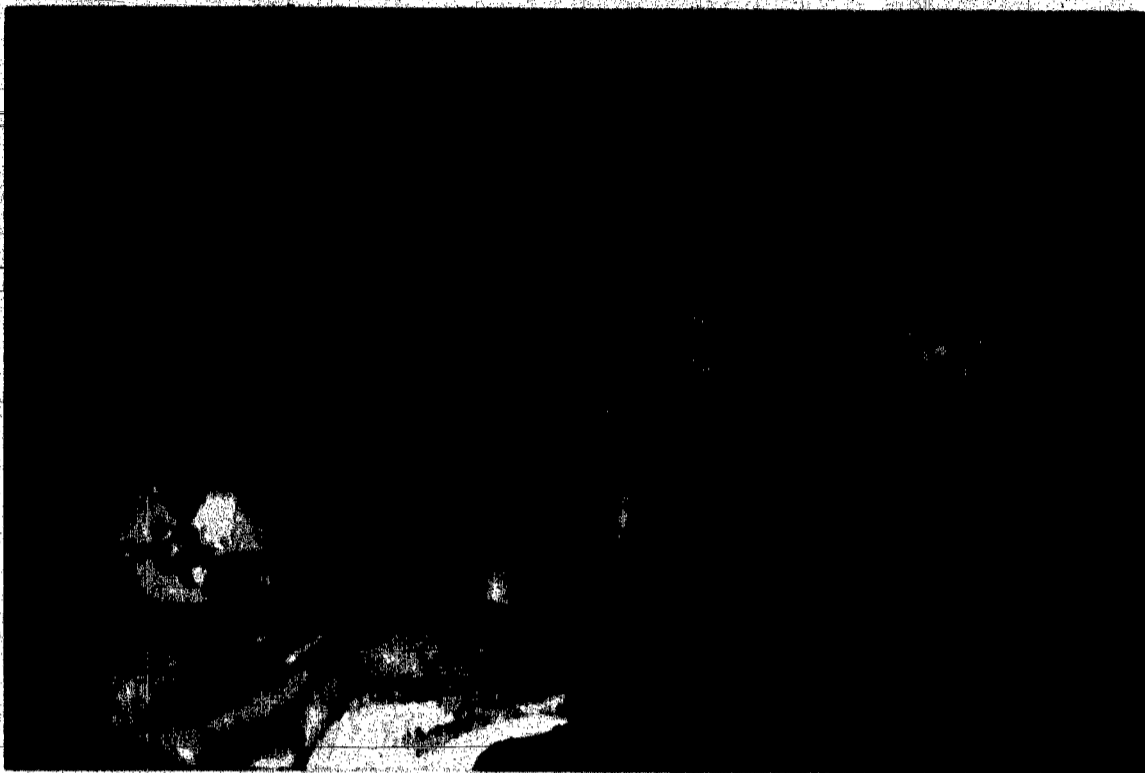

"This form will be for any parent wishing to use bus service for the coming school year," Jensen added. "These forms are available by calling the school at 373-4140."

Jensen said the biggest concern which led to the change in policy is the highway widening project but also was a result of a two-year study on transportation in the Wayne School District.

Dr. Jensen also said the pick up points in the communities of Wayne and Ferndale are also based on concentrated numbers of student population.

"It's important to note that requests for bus service at the in-town pick up points will be based on a first come first serve basis," Jensen said. "The school is not adding any new bus routes. As the buses come into town, they will be adding a community children's activity are available."

Discipline, consistency and continuity, contents of that on and out of town just a few of the reasons why the study committee got together in order to discuss and suggest help for all transportation connected with the Wayne Community Schools.

Garbage, water on council's agenda

By Clark Nelson
 Of the Herald

A leaking water tower and the status of the garbage station were among agenda items that took considerable time at Tuesday's Wayne City Council meeting.

Earlier this year a Wayne citizen notified that the water tower located on East 14th Street was leaking. Subsequent tests showed that the tower was leaking in a southeasterly direction.

Since that time the level of water in the facility has been checked and additional tests have been conducted.

Bill Moran with Howard R. Green Company, the engineers who have been responsible for the leaking, told the council that there were two alternatives available to the city.

The first would be to raise the tank and leave the foundation as it presently is. The option would cost $92,500.

The second option would involve complete grouting. This would be drilled through the foundation and grout material would be injected into the ground. The cost for this option is estimated at $67,500.

Moran told the council that this is a fairly unusual situation and that the repair could be completed in approximately one week with another week allowed for set time.

Members of the Commanding General's Mounted Color Guard from Ft. Riley, Kan. will be performing on Saturday, Aug. 9 during the Wayne County Fair.

Recycling Efforts are changing

Recycling efforts in Wayne have suffered a setback due to a slump in the market for recycled materials. Greenhouse in Norfolk, the location where the Wayne Boy Scouts take newspapers and thin newspaper inserts, they are no longer accepting magazines, phone books and other computer paper.

Although recycling is the main area of the market still strong, the Boy Scouts of Wayne and the Wayne Recycling Center are both accepting aluminum cans which bring approximately 42 cents a pound. The Wayne Recycling Center again needs volunteers to help on saturny mornings. If interested, please contact Ray Sauerbaldt.

The recycling center is located on Woodbury Street across from the transfer station. It is open Saturday mornings from 8 a.m. to noon and Wednesday afternoons from 4 to 6:30 p.m. The center accepts plastic containers marked 1, 2 or 4 without caps. The center will accept glass bottles (no alcohol) and plastic containers that play bottles and plates on the way be recycled and all paper removed. The center also will accept a daily magazine, paper and thin paper phone books or pink mail book. A $1.00 responsible fee handling items collected in the fall is required.

Soldiers are detailed from the ranks of Fort Riley's units and receive special training from manuals used by Civil War cavalrymen.

The Color Guard members wear the 1854 pattern uniform jacket, as did the soldiers of the Civil War. The jackets are mounted in yellow. The cavalry branch color. The soldiers are armed with one of either a 1858 Remington New Model revolver, Colt Army Model 1860, Colt Navy Model 1851 or the Model 1861 S&W carbine.

New Medicine for Scalp Psoriasis

Psoriasis is an inflamed the skin of the scalp that affects all ages. The condition first appears as clearly outlined red raised areas on the scalp that eventually turn into shiny, oil-slick scales. Conditions that may worsen the condition include cold and dry air, stress, injury, drugs, and the medicines lithium and isotretinoin.

In March, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved a new medicine for psoriasis of the scalp. The medicine is called cipotriene hydrochloride (Diposone). It was approved for the topical treatment of moderately severe cases of psoriasis on the scalp. Cipotriene is a derivative of vitamin D. A study reported last year in Southern Medical Journal involved the use of topical cipotriene treatment in 733 persons with stable plaque psoriasis. Although the average time for clearing of the skin was 16 to 17 weeks, twenty-five percent were free of psoriasis scales in 8 weeks.

Local prevention program will lose funding Sept. 30

The Wayne/Dixon County Prevention Program for youth has discovered that they will not be funded by the Nebraska Crime Commission after September 30. The Prevention Program is a school supported youth program that has employed Ms. Karen Shattuck as Youth Coordinator. "This program has just started in November of last year and in that time Ms. Shattuck has had a great impact on the youth in the Wayne and Dixon County communities," said Wayne Police Chief Lance Webster.

Ms. Shattuck, a Wayne State College graduate, has developed Youth Advisory Councils in many of the area schools. These youth councils give high school age students who have not been taking leadership roles the chance to develop those skills. The development of the students in the Wayne Youth Advisory Council has been nothing short of amazing," said Wayne High School Principal Don Zales. Zales also said in a letter to the Crime Commission that the students Ms. Shattuck first worked with have developed a renewed interest in school.

Chief Webster is also impressed with the work of Ms. Shattuck. According to Chief Webster, Ms. Shattuck and the Wayne Youth Advisory Council were able to secure funding of the recent dance held in conjunction with HomeWeek through a private donation. They also had a lot of help to sponsor the dance. Chief Webster called the dance a great success due to the hard work of the students who helped organize it. The Youth Advisory Councils are taught that drugs and alcohol are not necessary to have fun, and as a result, the teen dance had no alcohol problems.

The program was initially funded by a grant from the Nebraska Crime Commission with Wayne County Sheriff Larry Jansen as the grant director. The Prevention Program was overseen by a Policy Planning Board made up of numerous people from Wayne and Dixon Counties.

The Wayne/Dixon County Prevention Program's Policy Planning Board will meet this Thursday, July 11 to plan the future of the program. With the loss of state grant funding, the program will come to an end in September if local money is not raised. The Policy Planning Board will be exploring ways to get interim funding until March of 1998, when some federal grant money may become available.

For more information about the Wayne/Dixon County Prevention Program, contact Ms. Karen Shattuck or Sheriff Larry Jansen at the Wayne County Sheriff's Office, Dixon County Sheriff Dean Chase, Lynda Cuckelbank DBA, Esteeform Educator at Wayne Police Chief Lance Webster.

First meal

Over fifty people enjoyed the first meal served at the newly opened Wayne Senior Center, located in the same building as the new Wayne Public Library. Wayne Mayor Sheryl Lindau and City Administrator Joe Salitros were special guests of the seniors at Friday's dinner. The new Senior Center has much more space than the old facility, including rooms for quilting and playing pool.

Agenda

The Council also indicated the future of the transfer station be late possibly Resolution 97-11 approving the plans and specifications for the expansion project.

Only for this project will be opened Aug. 22 and reviewed at the Council's Aug. 26 meeting.

Councilman James Cleary said that while "his books like a loggy area, we still have lots of loggy areas that have not been discussed."

Councilman Verdel G. L. spoke behind the city's involvement with the transfer station and said "but for now we have received a grant for the renovation of the station, however, we need to buy something."

Councilman Doug Storm also spoke, saying that nothing has changed from the time the station was built and "we still have two or three trailers that need to be replaced."

Another agenda item that of a request by the Wayne Medical Soccer Association to amend an agreement regarding utility cost sharing and water metering, was discussed and tabled until the council's next meeting.

Steve Ferguson, representing the Soccer Association, told the council that in recent years the City Soccer League and the City Recreation Department have used the soccer complex extensively and he felt it was unfair that the Soccer Association be responsible for the future utility bill which last year was $844.77.

On unanimous votes, the council agreed to two requests from the Nebraska Department of Roads in regard to the Highway 13 widening project. The first will allow the CDOR temporary use of city property near Logan Creek and the other will involve temporary detours and parking bans on city streets during the work done over the year on the project.

Mayoral appointments included the reappointment of Swede Fredrickson to the Wayne Housing Authority and the appointment of Doug Ross to the Board of Adjustment, replacing Al Surber.

Interesting statistics

Higher speed limits in the U.S. have not resulted in increased fatalities as some had predicted, according to government data. Traffic fatalities actually dropped slightly in 1996 to 41,300 from 41,798 in 1995, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration data.

Safety advocates had warned increased speed limits would result in 6,400 more traffic fatalities annually. But in the 27 states where higher limits were in effect for at least six months in 1996, traffic fatalities fell slightly from 24,911 in 1995 to 24,855 in 1996.

Montana, with no daytime speed limit, had a five percent decrease in traffic fatalities.

Only Nebraska, which raised the limit from 65 mph to 75 mph on rural interstates in June 1996, had an 18 percent increase in fatalities. The state had 300 deaths in 1996, up from 254 in 1995.

Statistics seem to indicate speed itself isn't the root problem of fatalities. Most one then conclude we Nebraskans are far more careless in our driving habits?

License suspension program

State senators passed LB752 to ensure the state will receive nearly $78 million in federal funds targeted for child support enforcement, and aid for needy families. The law, effective September 1, 1997, allows the suspension of driver, professional, and recreational licenses as a penalty for being three months or more behind in support payments, or if there is non-compliance with a payment plan.

Any non-custodial parent three months or more delinquent in payments can pay all past due support thereby avoiding the loss of his/her driver's license. Or if delinquent, can contact authorities to set up an acceptable payment plan.

Call Child Support Enforcement if you have a question. That number in Nebraska is 1-800-341-4573.

Persons classified as "delinquent" can stop the process of license suspension at any time by paying current support payments and paying all past due support, or by entering into and following a payment plan.

Anyone impacted by LB752 may want to make payment arrangements soon to protect their licenses.

Prison site being sought

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Pawnee - Want to make some money? Your community could be home to a brand spanking new, 900 bed, maximum security, adult state prison. That's 477 steady state jobs. A $11.2 million annual payroll. Heck, the state's going to invest $23.9 million just to build the thing.

Clubs and taverns across the state are breathlessly awaiting the chance. You might already hear the screams of those who are small town Nebraska just weeks when a major newspaper printed a story that "they" only had one of the spots left, which is really more the probability of a certain "they" appearing. Or perhaps, as a community, you're not interested in receiving maximum security inmates that do the dangerous and bad from outside the state, but you might want to place the prison in your town.

Two weeks ago, the Nebraska Department of Corrections announced that they had received bids from 10 communities. The bid was only a few years back that the state of Nebraska was looking for a site for a new prison. The bid was only a few years back that the state of Nebraska was looking for a site for a new prison. The bid was only a few years back that the state of Nebraska was looking for a site for a new prison.

ally wants to have a 900 bed prison in their back yard. It's a kind of perverse to look at prisons as economic development? Is this really the growth industry of the 21st century?

It wasn't all that long ago that the low level radioactive waste dump was being touted as an "economic development" project. Look what that's gotten Boyd County in 10 years of community division and grief. The number of commuters who would do well to remember that as they belly up for the new prison. Maybe they think their community's better off without the idea, but just wait until it looks like the project might be close reality. Ready for a 1000 bed prison to be built in the office of

in My Backyard?"

Some states have a tradition of picking remote sites for their prisons. Did you ever notice how far Africa is from New York City? It's probably a combination of two philosophies. First, part of the punishment is to make it extremely difficult for inmates to be visited by their families. Second, why waste high dollar real estate on something that is not easily a tourist attraction?

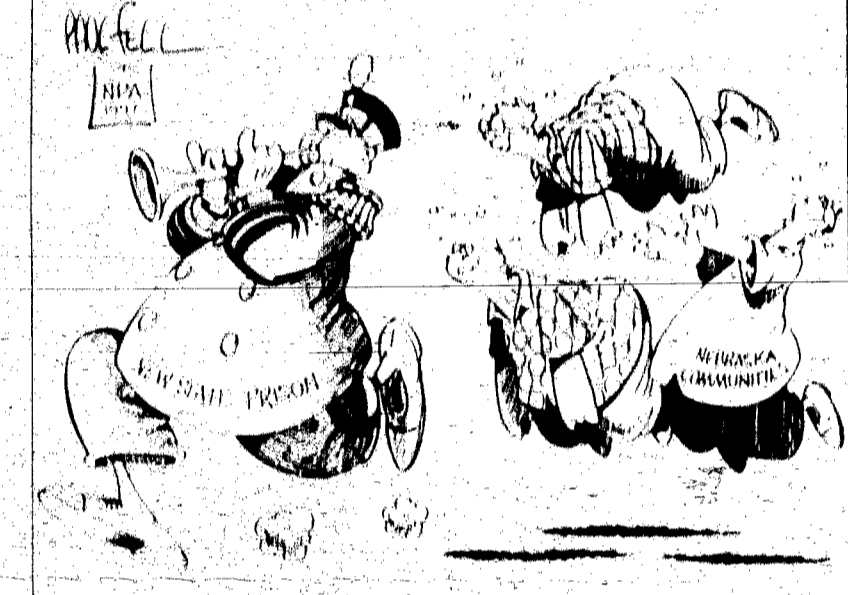

Nebraska's approach has been for more progressive. Prisons are being placed in locations if they operate right where everybody can see them. Plus, it's really necessary to punish families along with the inmates.

I grew up in one of the areas

that's been listed as a potential prison site. Frankly, I don't want it there. I don't want my hometown to undergo the changes necessary to accommodate so large a facility. Just think of the infrastructure you need for a good facility: Hospitals, Public Transportation, A sufficient work force, Hotel space for visitors, Water and sewer lines.

Even if something like that would return some much needed economic vitality, I don't want my home community to be another point in an Attila invasion to the world economy as a prison site.

The views expressed in Capitol News are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Nebraska Press Association.

Freshmen enrollment is up at Wayne State

Freshmen enrollment is up at Wayne State College! While this is good news for the college, it is also good news for the entire community of Wayne. When one enrolls in the area benefits, we all benefit!

About 800 students are expected as freshmen or transfer students, many of whom are local to the area and the Wayne community. Anyone you have that may know people in the community, you need to take care of them. That, in fact, is exactly what the Retail Council of the Wayne Area Chamber is doing!

Several months ago, under the leadership of former WSC professor Ed Anthony Richerson, the Community Strategies Council determined to develop a "Welcome to Wayne" type of program or activity for the WSC students. Because plans and ideas generated seemed better suited to the Retail Council, this promotion was eventually handed off to the latter group, chaired by Irene Fletcher.

All WSC students will be invited to play the "W.C.W.F." game and register for $100 in Chamber Bucks donated by State National Bank & Trust Company and Farmers and Merchants Bank. There will be one $250 winner, one $100 winner and three $50 winners of the Chamber Bucks.

To qualify, students need to bring in a combination of 10 business cards and/or receipts from local businesses. The business cards and/or receipts must be turned in at the Chamber office between Aug. 23 and Sept. 11 by 5 p.m. The drawing will take place at the Chamber office on Sept. 11, at 5-10 p.m. Students need not be present to win.

Student responsibility is focus of a college faculty statement

College students must take responsibility for their own futures according to a new statement issued to students preparing for life in the 21st Century by the faculty of Wayne State College.

Much of the statement is devoted to defining responsibility, honesty, and respect for industry and others with diverse points of view. The statement also encourages each student to adopt a positive work ethic.

The newly adopted Statement of Student Responsibility includes a reaffirmation of the faculty's commitment to excellence in teaching, professional development and service to the region.

Preparing students to assume their roles as contributing citizens in the region, state and nation is the prime role of education, said Dr. Donald J. Mash, president of the college.

According to the statement, students must be knowledgeable about academic requirements and assume responsibility for initiating communications with faculty in reading and intellectual areas.

The specific objectives identified by the faculty include: expanding technical work and learning, especially in general education, developing better communication skills, hastening critical thinking, encouraging independent learning, and helping students identify internal goals.

Unclaimed property

Owners found in area

Residents of Wayne County claimed $6,849.74 from State Treasurer Dave Heineman's Unclaimed Property Division in fiscal year 96-97, which ended June 30.

Unclaimed property, in most cases, means lost money. If a business or public agency is unsuccessful in locating someone to whom it owes money, the money is eventually turned over to the Unclaimed Property Office of the State Treasurer's Office.

The Unclaimed Property fund currently holds about $100 million. Interest from the fund is used to aid education in Nebraska. Anyone wishing to have their name checked for unclaimed property may call or write: State Treasurer Dave Heineman, Unclaimed Property Division, P.O. Box 94788, Capitol Building, Lincoln, NE, 68509. Phone number (402) 471-2455.

The $4,884,342.99 returned to owners throughout the state broke the old Nebraska record set the year before of $2,414,149.07 by more than $2.2 million. Heineman credited Lucaine Johnson for the increase in the amount of money returned.

Heineman said, "Since the County Treasurer Program began two years ago, $9,914.91 has been claimed by present and former residents of Wayne County." The largest amount claimed by an owner, whose last known address was in Wayne County, was $3,043.16 and the smallest was $10.

Enrollment

Enrollment for you and your employees will take place in the Chamber Conference Room on Monday, Aug. 18, at 7:30 a.m., 9:00 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. Please call us at the Chamber at 375-2240 to register for one of the three sessions that morning, or if you have questions, finally join the Retail Course for its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 19, at 7:30 a.m. at the Chamber office. ## Wayne Juniors defeated in tournament play by Blair

The Wayne Junior Legion and Midget baseball teams had their seasons come to an end during Area Tournament play by the same opposition—Blair.

The Midgets fell by an 8-2 margin last Thursday, leaving them with a season-ending record of 19-17. Dawn Jensen went the distance on the mound and was tagged with the loss.

Hank continues his fight against cancer

Long-time Wayne Baseball Association member Hank O'Brien continues his fight against cancer after undergoing surgery last month.

Wayne finished with two runs on three hits and committed five errors while Blair had eight runs on 11 hits and four errors. Rob Sturm and Brent Ditz hit outstanding singles and Ryan Winterberg also pitched a hard ball. The juniors rebounded after falling to South last week by defeating Hartington, 9-5 on Friday night.

Wayne led the visitors by a 9-0 margin heading to the bottom of the fifth inning, but Blair scored 12 runs in the fifth to take a three-run lead as 16 batters came to the plate with 10 recording hits.

Overin, a resident of Winter Haven, Florida, has been receiving chemotherapy and is all going well in the next year or so, he will have another cat in his life if the cancer has disappeared.

Hank O'Brien

The positive thing about Hank's outlook is he appears to be in a better mood. He has been able to spend more time with his family and friends. He is currently in the hospital and is expected to be discharged in the next few days.

- 4) All permission for use of a vehicle at noon hour must be given through the principal's office.
- 5) Students requesting use of a vehicle to drive home for lunch must confer individually with the principal.
- 6) Parents will be notified of the policies regarding permission to drive home for lunch.
- 7) Driving to downtown eateries for lunch is not allowed.
- 8) Violation of any of the above guidelines will result in:
  - 1st violation: warning, letter to parents.

Different financial goals require different investment strategies

As in golf, where the correct club must be matched to each shot, the right investment must also be matched to a specific objective to achieve financial success.

Investing is a highly individual activity. Many Americans may seek a new home, a comfortable retirement or college for the kids. Typically, a combination of several objectives must be addressed. But these objectives unfold at different levels, some take more dollars than others. They also unfold over different time frames. Retirement might be years away, but college for the kids is right around the corner.

Different financial goals, which require different amounts of time and money to fund, can be addressed with strategies and specific investments tailored specifically for them. Many financial experts recommend using asset allocation, that is the process of selecting the types and relative amounts of investments that are designed to meet specific financial objectives.

The factors to consider in making any investment strategy are straight forward. First is the specific objective. Just as the need for emergency cash is different than the desire to retire in 10 years, the investments one would select to meet these goals are equally distinct. Personal financial objectives must be separated and managed differently.

Next is the time horizon. Financial goals vary in length of time. To reach a financial objective that is 10 years away requires different strategies and always maintaining a good match between current investments and the time remaining to meet an objective's deadline, said "the Wilson of Weddell and Reed. Patience is required, too. Trying to achieve a 30 year financial goal with a fast, "hot" investment is unrealistic.

Next is tolerance for market fluctuations. For a short term objective, like establishing an emergency fund, consider investments that emphasize stability, ones that are liquid and provide access to the money when it's needed. On the other hand, if retirement is many years away, consider growth-oriented investments. Historically, these types of investments have outperformed more conservative types over time, and still provide an opportunity to ride out typical market fluctuations.

"Your different personal financial goals can be viewed as different holes on a golf course," Wilson said, with each hole requiring a different strategy. Different investments, on clubs, and a different analysis of special conditions like tolerance for market fluctuations, but no golfer is expected to play more than one hole at a time, and that's essentially what you're doing with personal financial planning for multiple objectives simultaneously.

Another key investment concept is diversification, which, according to Wilson, is really a fundamental first step to asset allocation. The idea is to avoid "putting all your eggs in one basket." Even to meet a personal financial goal where the strategy is well understood, it's a good idea to diversify with more than one specific investment, no matter how uniquely well matched the investment and strategy seem to be.

Like a golf game, financial futures are exposed to both wild open fairways and easy two-putts, as well as an occasional rough or hazard.

"Simply put, a good plan of approach to your golf game, combined with the right club selection, does a lot to increase your chance of getting a good score," Wilson said. Likewise, the right strategic plan for investing, combined with a smart selection of specific investments, helps maximize your approach to personal financial success.

Weddell and Reed, based in Overland Park, Kan., has been in the financial services business for over 60 years. Today, Weddell and Reed has grown to more than 200 offices nationwide. It offers a wide array of investment products and services, as well as a variety of insurance products through affiliates. The company manages through its subsidiary, Weddell and Reed Investment Management Co., more than $16 billion for over one million mutual fund accounts. Weddell and Reed can be accessed on the Internet at <http://www.weddell.com>.

Students picked to read AP tests

An Ajay S. Bhatia, associate professor of Spanish at Wayne State College, was selected to participate in the annual reading and scoring of the College Board's Advanced Placement Examinations in Spanish.

Each year the AP Program, sponsored by the College Board, gives hundreds of thousands of capable high school students an opportunity to take rigorous college-level courses and examinations and, based on their exam performance, to receive credit and/or advanced placement when they enter college.

More than 900,000 examinations in 18 disciplines were evaluated by almost 3,600 faculty consultants from high schools and universities across North America. Drawn from various ethnic groups and from every state, these men and women are some of the best high school and college educators in the United States and Canada. They represent some of the finest academic institutions in North America. In addition, there are faculty consultants from Belgium, Bolivia, Columbia, Egypt, Germany, Hong Kong, Spain, Mexico, Japan, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

The AP Reading is one of the few settings in which academic dialogue between school and college educators is fostered and strongly encouraged. "The Reading draws upon the talents of some of the finest teachers and professors that America has to offer," said Dr. Wade Curry, AP program director at the College Board. "It fosters professionalism, allows for the exchange of ideas and strengthens the commitment to students and teaching. We are very grateful for the contributions of talented educators like Professor Bhatia."

Should CPI be reduced?

In the first part of the series on the community discussed recommendations for preserving the long-term health of the Social Security system was discussed, setting the retirement age.

Another proposal is to change the way the Consumer Price Index (CPI) is calculated. The CPI reflects changes in the cost of living for Americans. In other words, the inflation rate. It is used, among other things, to determine cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) for Social Security benefit checks each year. As the CPI goes up, so do Social Security benefits. In 1997, benefits were increased 7.9 percent.

COLAs were not part of the original Social Security plan. They were implemented in 1972 and have had a significant impact on Social Security's long-term health. Social Security recipients have seen their benefits double between 1978 and 1996. Not only are the retirees living longer, but they also are now receiving increasing payments, two factors that the original system was not designed to support.

The argument for changing how the CPI is calculated hinges on the fact that it is always based on a "market basket" containing the same products and brand names. The goods and services in that market basket remain constant over time, however, consumers pay for different brands based on available prices.

The example, assume the CPI includes a 2-liter bottle of Coca-Cola and a computer personal computer. The prices on these items went up this year, adding to the increase in the CPI. However, many consumers instead may have bought Pepsi or a comparable Gateway computer, whose prices did not go up last year. So the argument is: Why should retirees get an increase in Social Security when their cost of living may not have gone up?

Those who oppose reducing the CPI have a different argument. They say that the above example is true, however, retirees aren't buying soft drinks and computers. They're paying for prescriptions, hospital visits and will all of which are increasing in price much faster than the average market basket of goods.

So what is the right thing to do? Keep in mind the purpose of these discussions: to find a way to preserve Social Security from going bankrupt by 2030. The probable solution is that everyone will be asked to give a little. Retirees will likely be asked to help by accepting smaller COLAs and paying income taxes on more of their benefits. Workers will likely be asked to pay a little more and work a few more years before retiring.

Adkins is honored as Discover Scholar

Megan Adkins of Laurel was recently honored in Washington, D.C. as one of three national Discover Card Tribute Award Scholars. The Tribute Award Program sponsored by Discover Card in cooperation with the American Association of School Administrators, initially received over 11,000 applications. # Interest builds for lifelong learning

Increasing emphasis in continuing education in the region is being reflected in enrollment growth in Wayne State College's off-campus courses reports the director of the Regional Education and Distance Learning program at the College.

John Stoll, director of the Regional Education and Distance Learning Office, said fall registrations are already ahead of enrollment for last fall and that there is still plenty of registration time for others interested in taking classes.

"Increased enrollment and interest in courses is indicative of the importance people in this region place on lifelong learning," said Stoll. "Self-improvement seems to be a universal goal."

Students enroll in off-campus and evening classes for a variety of reasons, Stoll said. "Some are looking to increase their working potential or expand career opportunities," he explained. "Others may simply want to build self-confidence or personal learning stimulation," he added. In addition, a portion of the distance learning students are high school students who are getting a head start on college credits.

Stoll's office offers courses this fall in Athens, Butte, Columbia, Fremont, High, Hubok, O'Fallon, South Stars City and West Bend in addition to several classes available via satellite delivery in Wayne. The College also has several courses available on the Internet via its new "on line" distance learning program.

Off-campus courses are available in education, business, English, political science, criminal justice, philosophy, psychology, information technology, counseling, social science, history, economics, geography, Spanish and more.

A complete list of course subjects, times and locations is available by calling the Regional Education office at 800-228-9972 or by contacting the office via e-mail at edl@wsc.edu, or by visiting the online calendar and registration site on the WSC website: <http://www.wsc.edu/redl>.

Special registration evenings will be held in Norfolk and South Stars City the week before classes begin. Off-campus and evening classes begin Aug. 25. Previously, registration functions had been conducted during the first class meeting but the new registration nights are being implemented to provide better student advising and make textbook purchasing more convenient, explained Stoll.

Norfolk registration will be Thursday, Aug. 21 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Commons Area of the Utility Line Building at Northeast Community College. South Stars City registration will be held Wednesday, Aug. 20 from 5 to 7:30 p.m. in the South Stars City Junior High School Commons Area.

Stoll emphasized that these registration hours were not restrictive. They are being made available for student convenience and that students are encouraged to register via telephone at 800-228-9972 or online at the above website, explained Stoll.

All families face frustrations

Q: I want to ask you a very personal question. You offer solutions and suggestions for handling the typical frustrations and problems of parenthood and marriage. But that makes me wonder about your own family. Does your home always run smoothly? Do you ever feel like a failure as a father? And if so, how do you deal with self-doubt and recrimination?

A: I have been asked that question many times, although the answer shouldn't surprise you. My wife Shirley and I experience the same frustrations and pressures others face. Our behavior is not always even platy, nor is that of our children. And our household can become very hectic at times.

Perhaps I can best reply by describing the day we now refer to as "Black Sunday."

For some reason, Sunday can be the most frustrating day of the week for us, especially during the morning hours. I've found that other parents also experience tensions during the "get ready for church" routine. But "Black Sunday" was especially chaotic.

We began the day by getting up too late, so everyone had to rush to get to church on time. That produced emotional pressure, especially for Shirley and me. Then there was a matter of spilled milk at the breakfast table and black shoe polish on the floor. My son, Ryan, got dressed first, establishing him to slip out the back door and get himself dirty from head to toe. It was necessary to take him down to the skin and start over with clean clothes.

Instead of handling these irritants as they arose, we began criticizing one another and hurling accusations back and forth. Yes, it was a day to be remembered (or forgotten). Finally, four frazzled people managed to stumble into church.

I felt guilty throughout the day for the student tone of our home on that "Black Sunday." Sure, our children shared the blame, but they were merely responding to our disorganization. Shirley and I had overstept and that's where the conflict originated.

That evening, I called the family together around the kitchen table. I began by describing the kind of day we had had, and asked each person to forgive me for my part in it. Furthermore, I said that I thought we should give each member of the family an opportunity to say whatever he or she was feeling inside.

Ryan was given the first shot, and he fired it at his mother. "You've been a real grouch today, Mom!" he said with feeling. "You've blamed me for everything I've done all day long."

Denise, my daughter, then poured out her hostilities and frustrations. Finally, Shirley and I had an opportunity to explain the tensions that caused our overreaction.

It was a valuable time of ventilation and honesty that drew us together once more.

My point is that every family has moments when they violate all the rules, even departing from the morals by which they have lived. Forgive itself can damage all the right ideas which have been recommended to parents in seminars and books. The important question is how do mothers and fathers reestablish friendships within their families when the storm has passed? Open, nonthreatening discussion offers one solution to that situation.

Returning to the question, let's acknowledge that a psychologist can do more to prevent all emotional distress for his family than a physician can to cure a chronic disease in his. We live in an imperfect world where life struggles on all.

'Free' offer not always good

After three weeks of non-stop heat and humidity, the thermometer actually dropped. In fact, it was while we were in church. When we went in at 10:45 there was a cool breeze and clouds and even rain drops.

I also knew I hadn't vacuumed for a few days. But I still can't figure out how they always manage to pull all that stuff out of a carpet that doesn't even have a farmer or his tramping on it.

was when he went to our mattress and sucked up dead skin cells, which feed dust mites! If you've ever seen enlarged photos of dust mites, you know why I shuddered.

Sometimes, criticizing my house-keeping never strikes me to buy, especially a $1,300 machine. This fellow seemed genuinely pleased when I said no, even after he offered $89 a month low payments. But he folded all the attachments back into the box and left.

A couple of years ago, a younger fellow was so persistent, I thought I was going to have to kick him out. We even had to page my supervisor so we could say no to him.

Anyway, I'll be starting my fall cleaning early. And I don't believe I'll take them on any more "free" offers. My floor is worth something, too. Heck, I could have cleaned the living room furniture myself in the time it took to watch it. What's the bill saying? We got too young and too late smart? That's me.

He got dirt out of the curtains (I knew they were overdue to be washed) and pulled a spot on the wood floor. But the crowning blow

Neidig honored by Association

The award is co-sponsored by the Northeast Research and Extension Center and the Northeast Nebraska Experimental Farm Association.

In presenting the award to Neidig, Bob Fritschon, Director of the University Research and Extension Center and Neidig is a leader of annual proceedings. He led the commitment and dedi-tion that Neidig represents.

Fritschon indicated that Neidig's leadership has benefited the state, regionally and even nationally. Neidig is a recognized authority on trade and tax policy and issues related to the environment. Neidig's leadership has state and regional impact. Nebraska Agriculture periodically features his columns.

Neidig continues to serve as President of the Nebraska Farm Bureau, the state's largest farm organization. First elected in 1981 following six years on the organization's Board of Directors, he is currently serving his sixth term.

He has recently served as a member of the Governor's Tax Advisory Committee and is presently a member of the Governor's Ag Advisory Council.

Past honors include election to the Nebraska Hall of Agricultural Achievement in 1986 and the Nebraska Agricultural Jobs Bill, 2000 to Agriculture Award in 1992.

Neidig and his wife Shirley have two daughters and two boys. One son is the fifth generation to farm with the fifth name Madison's family land. The Neidigs also have nine grandchildren.

Nebraska advances in pseudorabies program

Nebraska pork producers once again advanced in the Pseudorabies Eradication Program, making the state one step closer to being pseudorabies free by the year 2000. The Nebraska Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Industry received word from the U.S. Department of Agriculture that its request to advance Plate 1 class and turning counties to Stage III status was granted. As of July 1, 1997, the entire state is in Stage II of the five stage program.

Except for qualified herds, all swine herds in Stage II areas are given the status of "monitored" as long as they are not quarantined or suspected. Qualified herds maintain their status. Breeding swine must meet the same requirements as in Stage II. That is, they must originate from a qualified herd or be individually tested within 30 days of movement.

Nebraska will be available for Stage IV when no new pseudorabies infected herds have been found for one year, said Nebraska State Veterinarian Dr. Larry Williams. Stage V is granted when the state is free of pseudorabies for a period of two years. At this point, we are on target to meet our goal of reaching free status by the end of 1999.

The Nebraska swine industry has made tremendous progress in its eradication efforts. The number of quarantined herds in the state has been reduced from a high of 810 in 1990 to the current 26.

Getting ready for school year

Most parents look forward to the beginning of school. If nothing else, it probably means a chance to slow down from the busy and erratic summer schedule of ball games, swimming lessons, camps and special trips.

Parents want to help their kids make a smooth adjustment to their new school situation, whether it is child care, first grade, junior high or even college. They are concerned about how to be supportive, yet encourage independence at the same time. If parents "let go," will they still be assured their kids are having positive experiences in school and with friends?

While children need adult support to learn how to cope, they also need to learn how to solve their own problems. Parents can't smooth everything out for a child and shouldn't want to. They should contribute to a youngster's strength and resiliency. These tips can help prepare for the beginning of a school year.

• Give kids of any age a chance to tell you what's on their minds. Listen and don't minimize their fears or anxieties. They may seem foolish, but are very real to the child. For young children, parents could act out some of the situations the children are fearful of. For example, "What if Johnny teases you on the bus again? What will you say?"

• If a younger child is moving to a new building, arrange to visit the school one day even though there might be minimum staff there. Check out the bathrooms, cafeteria, school office and yard, as well as classrooms. An opportunity to meet a new teacher is almost guaranteed to help the transition go smoothly.

• Make sure kindergartners or first graders know their home address and phone number, how to manage a backpack, how to carry a tray with food on it, how to handle small amounts of money, and have traveled the route to school in a car, bus, or by foot.

• City and locate at least one other child who will be in the child's class that year, or one who already goes to the same school. Take time to call and arrange to meet or at least talk before school starts. Establishing this connection is well worth the effort and can make a big difference to a child who is starting a new school.

Both to school transition can be easy or difficult for children, depending partly on parental planning. Children are a year older and patterns won't be quite the same as last year. Parents need to consider the following:

• Spend some time thinking what will be different about this fall from last. Will there be lunches to pack? Will someone need to pick up the children on certain days? Start now to plan who will do what, at least for early fall.

• Begin easing back into the fall routines by mid-August. Children who've been sleeping late in the morning and eating at odd hours will need to get back into the school routine to catch the school bus and accommodate snacks and lunches.

• Parents should try to keep calendars as clear as possible during September. Some kids who manage well in school fall apart at night and may need parental evening time during this adjustment.

RAILROAD TRACK

This month marks the first anniversary of the purchase of the railroad track which goes through Allen from O'Neill to Sioux City. Charles Reeves, general manager of the railroad, spoke to the Northeast Nebraska Resource, Conservation and Development Group (RCND) in Plainview recently to explain the goals of the railroad. The line has been named Nebraska Northeastern Railway Company. The railway is privately owned and hauls mainly corn and fertilizer for livestock companies, which provide 90% of their railroad business. The railroad employs 12 full-time and 2 temporary workers. A $110,000 locomotive shop is being built in Ordway. According to Mr. Reeves, the railroad plans to be here for use now and in the future. The railway company is committed to Northeast Nebraska and would like to be involved in area economic development.

Last Monday evening the Northeast Nebraska RCND members found the possible site of a Welcome Center, a rest stop and tourist information site, proposed for the scenic lookout north of Yorkton on Highway 81. The Welcome Center would help guide vacationers entering the state from the north to tourist attractions in this area. The RCND group is involved because of the economic development possibilities included in attracting tourists to northeast Nebraska to spend dollars. The RCND will facilitate the project by acting as a coordinator in getting groups together to fund the proposed building. Earlier this year, Allen participated in another project of the RCND when it took part in "Back Home Again," an effort to contact alumni to reunite them of the possibilities northeast Nebraska holds for young people with families and older people. Thinking of other needs, two letters were sent to graduates from the classes of 1930-1934 and 1980-1984, including a brochure of the six county area describing the tourism sites. The Northeast Nebraska RCND is actively involved in promoting northeast

Nebraska. The group calls on volunteers to help on weekends. The group holds weekly meetings at the Allen Senior Center. The public is invited. Coffee will be served until 11 a.m.
