Council agenda includes several public hearings

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

A total of six public hearings were held on Tuesday's Wayne City Council agenda.

Three of the hearings had to deal with the city's budget, both the present one and the proposed 1997-98 budget.

No one spoke for or against an amendment to the 1996-97 budget which creates a separate fund for each tax increment district and bisects the lake.

A resolution to amend the budget for this purpose passed on an 8-0 vote.

During the second public hearing, City Administrator Joe Tolton explained the 1997-98 budget for the city of Wayne.

The total asking of all funds results in a proposed budget of $16,441,182. This figure is down approximately $10,000 from the $16,450,076 for the fiscal year 1996-97 budget.

The levy for next year is at $92,100 cents per $100 value which includes the Wayne Municipal Airport.

Tolton went on to explain that with the proposed budget a home owner with an $80,000 home would pay $424.68 in taxes to the city instead of the $501.69 for fiscal year 1996-97.

The council passed Ordinance 97-30 which approved the annual appropriation bill setting the budget for the next year.

The tax levy for the general fund of the city's budget was also set. It will be at $449,683 for next year.

A public hearing was also held on an application by Roger Van for a zoning conditional use by exception permit. Van proposes to have an apartment located at the corner of Third and Main streets with off-street parking.

There was no input during the public hearing regarding Street Improvement District 97-01, Hillside Drive and East 10th Street.

A public hearing was also held on the creation of a storm sewer District for work to be done on Fourth Street from Peat to Logan. The project will upgrade the pipe to allow for additional water due to the Library/Center Center and Our Savior Lutheran building projects.

Following the public hearing, the council took the necessary steps to create the storm sewer district and ordering the construction of certain storm improvements in the district.

An amendment to the zoning map received second round approval but did not get enough votes to waive the third reading. The area that would be affected is a parcel of land near Peat & 4th owned by Gary Donner. The Wayne Community Housing Development Corporation is seeking to put 16 apartments on the site.

Wayne Fire Chief Dutch Mizzen was at Tuesday's meeting to explain the work to be done to a 1976 fire truck owned by the department. The department is seeking to upgrade and/or power the truck to three phases.

A bid of $13,030 from Midwest Diesel in Beemer was accepted for Phase I of the re-powering of the truck.

inda Anderson, Director of the Wayne Community Housing Corporation was on hand to request the setting of a public hearing for discussion on a land use study for an area of land near Peat & 4th.

Mr. Anderson told the council that there is a possibility that grant money may be available for an engineer to do a survey of the area to begin a process to develop a preliminary plat of the area.

Board approves budget

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The Wayne Schools Board passed the budget for the 1997-98 school year at Monday's regular meeting.

A public hearing was held prior to the meeting because the bid was going to exceed a zero percent increase from last year's budget. Anytime more money is requested from the prior year's public hearing is held and then it's voted on by the Board following the hearing.

The Board voted 6-0 in favor of the hearing which equaled 1.3 percent from last year's $3,000 million budget to $3,137 million or an increase of $137,000.

"This is one of the smallest increases in the budget in recent history," Wayne Schools superintendent Dr. Dennis Johnson said. "The Board did a super job considering what they had to go through with a reduction of motor vehicle taxes due to LB 271."

Johnson said not having the motor vehicle property tax levy against was a great difference from the past. "Last year, $24 million was generated by Wayne County in motor vehicle property," Johnson said. "That was 11 percent of Wayne County's total value of $188 million. This year property value was raised by the county by nearly 11 percent but since the motor vehicle tax is no longer factored in, the total value of Wayne County was reduced from $188 million to $176 million."

Musicians abound in Wayne for annual Band Day at WSC

More than 600 musicians will be in Wayne this weekend as Wayne State College hosts its annual Band Day on Sept. 13. This year's event will feature bands from 10 high schools and two middle schools from northeast Nebraska and the Wayne State marching band under the direction of Mike Gillan. The Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce is again coordinating the event and has arranged for a parade down town. The bands will be judged during the morning parade, which begins at 10 a.m. at First and Main Street. The parade route will proceed south to tenth street, and end at the WSC campus entrance. All of the bands will then take part in the pre-game and half-time shows.

Following the half-time performance, Gulf Jefferson, representing the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce, will present awards to the top performing band in each class.

"We are very excited about this year's Band Day," says first year director Mike Gillan. "The numbers from band are greater this year and the number of high school bands participating is also strong," he said.

Dedication draws over 600 people

An estimated 600-650 persons took the opportunity to view the newly completed Robert B. and Mary R. Bentzick Library/Cultural Center during Sunday's Dedication and Open House.

We had 600 people sign the gold book and were extremely pleased with the turnout of the community. This is a community project and I cannot say enough about the volunteer help and support of the community," said Pat Goss, Chairman of the Wayne Library Foundation.

Following an invocation by Father Dan Cleary, President of the Wayne Association of Congregations and Ministerial Mayor Sheryl Wagner addressed the guests speakers.

Bob Wagner, Director of the Nebraska Library Commission and Mark Interrull, the Administrator of the Nebraska Division on Aging spoke to those in attendance.

Steggs told the audience that the building is an excellent design and congratulated the community for the library improvement.

Interrull said the combination of a library and senior facility would bring older, young people and the general population into closer contact.

Goss said that late last week a number of volunteers helped with some of the initial landscaping in preparation for the dedication. The brick layers also finished the brick work on the $1.7 million project.

During his remarks, Goss praised the work of the Bentzicks.

Wayne police have been kept very busy the past several days with a number of traffic accidents. Motorists are reminded to use caution while driving through construction areas in town, although there is no indication the highway construction contributed to any of these accidents.

Caution urged Rash of crashes in Wayne

One Wayne County Sheriff's Department investigated an accident on Sept. 4 southeast of Wayne which resulted in the death of a 21-year-old Wayne woman.

A southbound pickup driven by Dale Kruzenbach, 39, of Wayne collided with an eastbound car driven by Roy Clinton, also of Wayne at an intersection three miles south and two east of Wayne.

Kruzenbach was treated and released from Providence Medical Center. He was the only occupant in the pickup.

Mrs. Clinton was transferred to Methodist Health Center in Sioux City, Iowa where she died Thursday morning. Clinton's 10-month-old son Anthony was in a car seat and received only minor injuries.

The sheriff's department continues to investigate the accident.

Wayne Police Chief Lance

Webster has reported that on shortly after 6 p.m. on Sept. 3 Officer Eric White investigated an accident involving Brandon Marrel, 20, of Wayne and Kyle Paetz, 16, of Winkler, the two collided in the intersection of Sixth and Nebraska Streets.

There were no reported injuries but both vehicles sustained over $300 worth of damage.

At approximately 7 p.m. on family, not only in financial contributions to the library/senior center, but to the community in general.

This facility will help extend the legacy of the Bentzach family who have given so much of their time, talent and treasure to the community of Wayne for many years," he said.

Culminately, Gross said, the Senior Center has gone from being in the basement of the former Bentzach Hospital, a building constructed by the Bentzach family, to the new facility which has been named in honor of the family.

Editorials*Influence of money

Are state senators following the federal example of hinting that government may be of the money, by the money, and for the money? Recent figures could cause one to believe that legislative votes on issues might be influenced by money paid to lobbyists.

According to second-quarter lobbying reports, over 60 groups with education interests, hospitals, utilities and phone companies leading the way, tossed more than $2 million into the resources of lobbyists during the last half of the most recent legislative session.

According to other data, $3.9 million was spent by 675 clients on 339 lobbyists during the April 1 through June 30 period. This leaves one believing senators are influenced by those who wine, dine, whine, and do their "influence" thing.

If lobbyists were ineffective, would entities such as schools and education, phone and utility companies, hospitals and health-care organizations, continue employing them? And if lobbyists are effective influencing senators, does it imply a senator's vote can be bought by so many dollars worth of "influence?"

If those who "have" money pay lobbyists in attempting to get what they want, where does it leave those who "have not?"

All of this is legal, of course, and lobbyists are evidently worth the bucks they get for banging the powerful.

In this "land of the free," getting what one wants via the legislature, apparently is not.

Capitol News*Agency is a 'Peyton Place'

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

At the start and midpoints of the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

Half a year ago, it seemed this agency's troubles were in the past. With a new chairman and a new executive director, the commission seemed to be limping back on track. Now old problems are resurfacing. State Treasurer Dave Heineman raised questions about the commission's efforts to pay two employees to settle discrimination lawsuits. A top commission official filed a reverse discrimination lawsuit against the commission, saying he'd been passed over as executive director position because he is white.

This is the Peyton Place of government agencies. For the last four years, it's been heartbreak, lawsuits, lawsuits and investigations. It is a situation clouded without documents — including unspoken attitudes about race, politics and the law.

The problems became public in 1994, when a special committee of the Nebraska Legislature began studying the commission and its function, particularly its backlog of cases. Lawmakers wanted to know if there was a way to speed the processing of cases.

There was more to it than that, however.

Some frankly disliked Lawrence R. Myers, the controversial and charismatic man who headed the commission for 21 of its 32 years of existence. He'd grown to be one of the highest paid officials in the state, and he tended to shake up the equilibrium with his bold, frank language about race during public appearances.

The legislature evaluation led to the commission's first round of problems, a dispute with two investigators, Ronald Shepherd and Randall Chapman, who were appointed in January 1993 and fired in March 1995. The commissioners cited disruptive behavior — allegedly sniping in computer files and private offices — but the investigators said they were fired in retaliation for their cooperation with the legislative evaluation.

Late last year, a U.S. District Court jury ruled in the investigators' favor.

Meanwhile, a letter turned up that implied that Myers had an improper personal relationship with a female subordinate. The rumors flew about Myers' reputed liaison with a lady man in July 1995.

Myers agreed to resign rather than face an investigation of the alleged relationship. The commission offered him a $40,000 settlement — which wound up in court after Heineman and Attorney General Tom Steenberg objected to it. The settlement was upheld earlier this year.

Until the latest problems surfaced, the commission seemed to be recovering.

The commission hired a female new attorney to replace Myers. But Roberta Stuck quit after only three months on the job. Some said she was unable to gain the support of her staff; others said she was torpedoed by African-American advocacy groups who wanted a black person to get the job.

After two commissioners resigned, Gov. Nelson appointed Mel Clancy, a school administrator from Omaha, and Rudy Peeler, an affirmative action officer with the State Military Department. Alfonzo Whitaker, an assistant attorney general who'd handled commission matters for several years, was selected as executive director.

Until the latest problems surfaced, the commission seemed to be recovering.

Clancy, now the commission chairman, defends the settlement offers to employees Ed Mims and Diane Stewart as necessary to put the past behind and move forward.

He says he wants to make the commission a model agency.

Clancy is not so accepting of the reverse discrimination lawsuit filed by Joseph Kisch. He said it would threaten the credibility of the commission, which must enforce the law for all races. A reverse discrimination allegation must be challenged, he said.

Stay tuned for the next episode.

Ready for the millennium

In spite of all the construction in Wayne with the accompanying noise of hammers, saws, and machines, perhaps you have also noticed something different in the September air? A note of optimism is flourishing, and some think it might be due to the fact the state legislature is not in session.

If you missed it, here are some of the statistics produced by the 1997 legislative session:

A total of 891 bills were introduced, including 75 appropriation bills. Only 412 of those bills were passed and just 294 of that number were approved by Gov. Nelson. In the final count, after vetoes and overrides, 307 bills were enacted into law.

At that rate, should it continue, and it likely will, Nebraska will have another 1,000 new laws by the year 2001. Does that spell progress? All that hubbub keeps the senators busy anyway, and the special interests satisfied. Well, almost.

The following question arises: how many laws does it take to get our great state ready for the new millennium?

Now if we just had a lotto law that would allow us all to bet on this.

Schuyler's home opener

The Wayne football team returned to the 1977 season last Friday night at home against Schuyler and John Morsbaugh's Blue Devils came out on the short end of a 21-20 score.

Schuyler scored two first quarter touchdowns on a 10-yard run by Keith Miller and a 25-yard run by Bob Mansfield to take a 13-0 lead.

Wayne's Brad Moryett broke into the endzone first for the Blue Devils on a 12-yard kickoff return and with Josh Morsbaugh's point after kick, the game stood at 13-7 after one quarter of play.

Schuyler's Marzaan found the endzone again in the second quarter from 13 yards out to put the visiting Warriors up 22-7 at the intermission.

Schuyler went up 29-7 in the third quarter on a 30-yard scoring pass but Wayne didn't give in as Clinton Keller hit Joel Munson for a 17-yard scoring strike late in the third quarter. Morsbaugh again converted the point after attempt.

The visitors added two more scores in the fourth period on a 10-yard pass and 29-yard pass before Wayne's Tim Zach darted in from six yards out for the final margin of 41-20.

"The biggest difference in the game was Schuyler's intensity level," second year coach John Morsbaugh said. "We need to work on intensity and being more physical."

Morsbaugh, however, was pleased with Wayne's big play potential and individually, he singled out Brad Moryett and Joel Munson for playing solid games.

Wayne had 133 yards rushing in the game led by Munson with 97 yards on 10 carries while Tim Zach had 20 yards on three carries just short of 100 yards on four carries and Eric Davies had one carry for six yards.

Miller was 4-12 through the air for 48 yards and an interception. Robbie Davis was 2-2 for 37 yards.

Clinton, 200, 190, converted 27 yards to lead Wayne while Moryett had one catch for 32 yards. Morsbaugh had one catch for 13 yards and Dustin Schmitz had one reception for eight yards and Adam Endicott caught one pass for five yards.

Wayne finished with 218 total yards while Schuyler had 290 yards.

Rushing and 144 yards passing for 414 total yards.

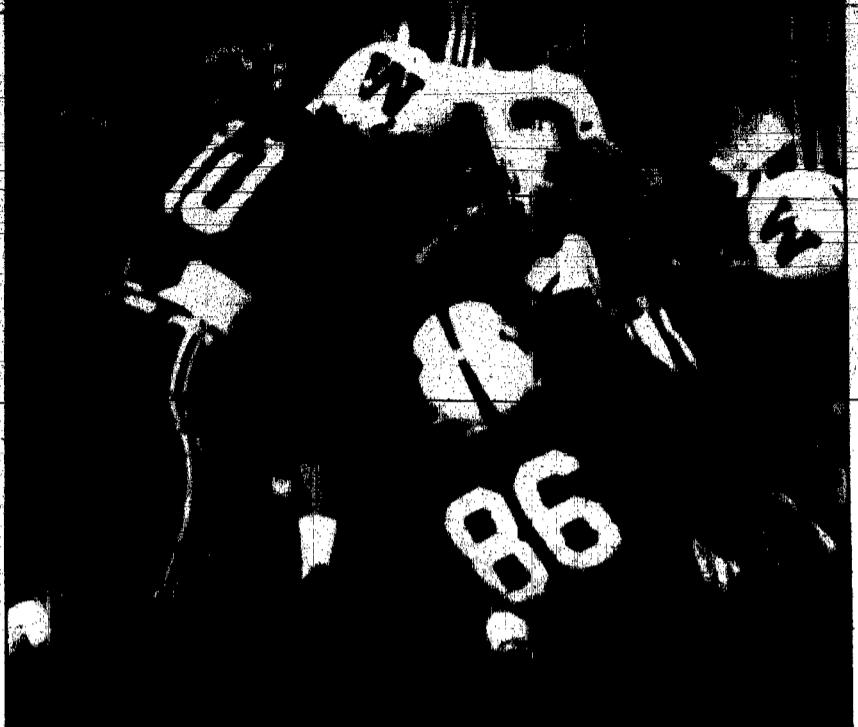

Defensively, Wayne was led by Brad Moryett with 10 tackles and Jason Rothwell with six. Casey Jones noted five tackles while Eric Hall, David Johnson, and John Magnuson had four each.

Eric Stevens recovered a Schuyler fumble. Wayne will host Logan View on Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at Cunningham Field on the campus of Wayne State College.

Logan View, incidentally, lost a 6-0 decision in its opener against Tekamah-Herman.

Wayne quarterback Clinton Keller tries to evade the rush of a Schuyler defender during the Blue Devils home opener last Friday night.

Gang tackling was the order of the day as the Blue Devils converged on a Schuyler ball carrier. Wayne lost to the visiting Warriors, 41-20. John Morsbaugh's crew will remain at home on Friday as they host Logan View.

Winside notches win over Trojans

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The high school football season got underway last Friday and one of the premier games in the area was Winside at Wakefield.

The two tangled in the playoffs last season with Winside notching the win.

The first half saw each team move the ball with Winside gaining a 7-0 lead on a one yard run by Ryan Krueger with Scott Withee converting the extra point.

Winside converted on a fourth down and 14 on this drive took up a first and goal.

Wakefield fell victim to four turnovers on the night while Winside had none.

In the third quarter Winside's Landen Grotto broke loose on a 70-yard scoring run to put the Wildcats up 14-0.

Derry Bear

Winside's defense forced four Wakefield turnovers which included an interception by Jason Voth and fumble recoveries by Aaron Hoffman for Winside and Jon Jaeger.

Taylor Custer led the visitors with 111 yards rushing on 15 attempts while Ryan Krueger had 46 yards on 11 tries. Hoffman was 8-10 in passing for 137 yards with four catches three for 26. Withee, 7-5

Wayne volleyball team places runner-up at the Sommer/Werner Invitational over the weekend in Werner.

The Wayne volleyball team placed runner-up at the Sommer/Werner Invitational over the weekend in Werner.

Shona Stracke led Wayne with four service aces while Gayle Olson was 11-11 with one ace and Carol Lange, 7-7.

Olson led the hitters with 11 kill spikes while Molly Luster had nine and Jennie Behrmann, three.

Brooke Parker was 40-49 in setting with 15 set assists while Behrmann had three blocks to lead the defense. Lindsay Smith had five digs to lead the winners.

Wayne played North Bend on Thursday at 7:30 and lost in straight games, 13-10, 13-10. Gayle Olson was 17-18 and Brooke Parker, 11-12 while Molly Luster was 6-7 to lead the serving corp.

Olson had 10 kill spikes followed by Luster with nine and Behrmann with seven and Parker was 7-7 in setting with 25 assists.

"I was very pleased with the way we came out in the first match against Werner," Hopkins said. "It was a good start to the season. I was also pleased with our play against North Bend—a very strong team."

Hopkins said most victories and missed serves of crucial times contributed to the loss.

Saturday morning, Wayne defeated Wessington in straight games, 15-13, 13-10. Brooke Parker was 13-14 in serving to lead Wayne while Carol Lange was 10-10.

Jenni Behrmann paced the hitters with a dozen kill spikes while Gayle Olson had 11. Parker was 8-8 in setting with 26 assists and Olson led the defense at the net with two blocks. Luster finished with six digs to lead the winners.

Olson blazed 16 kill spikes and Jenni Behrmann, 12, while Brooke Parker had 11 set assists in 98 of 101 attempts. Luster finished with five digs to lead the defense.

"We started out slow again,

Bergen but we started to click in the second game," Hopkins said. "The girls seemed to play more relaxed which was the key to winning the third game by a big margin."

In the championship match Wayne fell to North Bend, 15-12, 9-13.

Olson led the servers with an 11-11 outing while Brooke Parker, 13-10, and Shona Stracke, 12-12, had an ace. Carol Lange was 7-7 and Jessica Ravling, 7-6.

"We led 9-4 and 14-11 in the first game but couldn't finish them off," Hopkins said. "Again I felt we played well and I saw improvement over the entire tournament. I was very happy with our Runner-up finish at this tournament which is traditionally strong."

Wayne will play in Webster on Thursday against Lyman at 5:15 p.m. in first round tournament play.

Allen boys lose in Wyo, 26-0

The Allen football team opened the 1997 football season with a 26-0 setback to Wyo Friday night.

The host Morn took a 12-0 half-time lead on two short touchdown runs and scored in the third quarter on a 45-yard interception return. They closed out the game with a 29-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter.

Cory Prusakka rushed for 114 yards to lead the Eagles who managed just 178 total yards. Schools Blumen rushed for 31 yards.

"We struggled offensively," coach Doug Schrock said. "We played with the way our quarterback Schools Blumen played. He kept his head in the game and had some good runs. We didn't execute our blocks and when we did, we didn't maintain them."

Schrock said Wyo had a lot more experience with 14 seniors while the Eagles have just 13 total players.

Allen will open its home season on Friday against Wessington.

Pre-wedding solutions

Questions should be answered first

Wedding questions involving money usually revolve around paying for the gown or caterer. Before couples head up the aisle, they also may want to discuss combining their personal finances, experts caution.

Even an act apparently as simple as setting up a joint checking account may introduce financial hard feelings if spouses have not discussed their preferences and expectations beforehand.

It's important for couples to combine some financial resources, but expert warn that it is equally as important for the partners to feel they both have a say in spending decisions. Separate accounts alongside joint accounts are one way to meet this need for shared marital power.

Non-cash assets also can be kept separate in a marriage. The most common examples are items acquired while single or received by inheritance. Merging all assets which accrue after marriage could create resentment between spouses, especially if incomes aren't equal.

Spouses also should establish credit histories in their own names after marriage, experts advise. In the event of death or divorce, another post-wedding financial question is filing federal and state income taxes. Experts advise new dual-income couples with similar earnings to fill out their tax forms both jointly and individually to see which method is best.

Estate planning may be a concern for older couples who marry and those who bring children into a marriage. While assets pass free of federal taxes to a surviving spouse, current law allows only $600,000 in assets to pass tax-free to children and others. Congress is considering raising that limit. Couples whose asset value currently is approaching $600,000 need to have assets in each spouse's names to take full advantage of the federal exemption.

Couples should meet with a professional, such as a financial or estate planner, accountant or lawyer specializing in tax laws, before making financial decisions that will have long-term impacts.

Alzheimer's Researcher Makes Visit To Siouxland

By Julie Ginder
Staff Writer

Recent breakthroughs in researching new hope for families suffering from and caring for brain Alzheimer's disease.

At last week's fifth annual Alzheimer's and Related Diseases Conference in St. Louis, Dr. William Burke explained drug research to about 200 family and professional caregivers.

That family of this year's only new drug, tacrine, was FDA-approved for treatment of the Alzheimer's Disease.

In January, the FDA approved a new drug treatment except, according to Dr. William Burke, professor at the University of Nebraska Medical Center and chairman of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association.

That family of this year only one drug, tacrine, was FDA-approved for treatment of the Alzheimer's Disease.

In addition, researchers are hoping that the FDA will approve a third drug in the next six months, said Burke.

Approximately 4 million Americans have Alzheimer's Disease but 14 million Americans are expected to have it by the middle of the next century unless a cure or prevention is found according to 1994 statistics.

Alzheimer's Disease (AD) is a progressive degenerative disease of the brain - the most common form of dementia.

As control overing signs and symptoms of AD are numerous, less difficult performing familiar tasks language problems, disorientation to time and place, impaired judgment, difficulty with abstract thinking, misplacing objects, changes in mood or behavior, changes in personality and loss of interest or initiative.

One in 10 patients over 65 and nearly half of those over 85 have AD and increasingly it is found in people in their 40s and 50s, reports the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association.

That family of this year only one drug, tacrine, was FDA-approved for treatment of the Alzheimer's Disease.

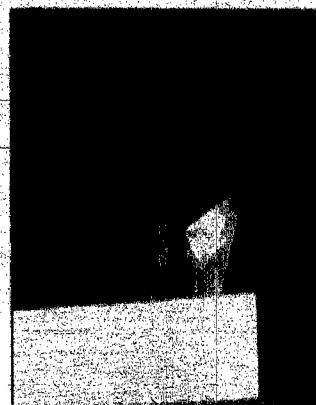

With the latest drug, except Alzheimer's patients are receiving help in retaining memory and mental functioning, said Burke.

"One third of the people get a nice clinical response to the drug," said Burke. "That is, the care and family members can tell the difference. An additional third of the people look better on paper and good testing, but family members cannot tell the difference."

The drug is very well tolerated," said Burke. "It's a simple drug. It has to do with other drugs, has little side effects, and patients only need one daily dosage."

Burke, who has been working to research for the past 12 years, told the class that research has also revealed that common over-the-counter prescriptions help in preventing AD.

In the last year or two, it's become clear that people taking other things such as Diazepam or Adol forte over a long period of time have less chance of developing

Dr. William Burke, M.D.

Alzheimer's," said Burke. "But we don't know how long a person has to take such drugs."

Researchers have noticed that a symptom of AD is inflammation of the brain, which increases the damage to the brain, he said.

It may be that the brain tries to stop AD, which causes the inflammation. The brain may actually be destroying itself by trying to fight the disease, he said.

By working with this theory, it may change the whole approach to treatment of AD, said Burke. Researchers are working to find something to reduce the inflammation in the brain.

Burke and his colleagues will be asking the Nebraska Board of Regents to approve an Alzheimer's center in Nebraska next month.

"If I bring enough resources here to start the work," said Burke. "We know a lot of expertise at UNMC to focus in on this."

For family members and caregivers, he said, "Don't give up hope. We're starting to copy the benefits of that research (which completed).

In addition, he advised caregivers to make use of other resources available such as support groups.

"Support groups make a tremendous difference in their burden," said Burke, adding that the caregiver burden is lightened by having someone to share it with.

UNMC Testing New Drug For Alzheimer's

By Julie Ginder, M.D.
UNMC Medical Center

The "miracle" of the aging population of the United States is expected to cause the incidence of some health problems. For instance, the number of people with Alzheimer's disease is expected to increase dramatically.

Between 1990 and 2030, the number of people 65 and older will double. Currently, 4 million people have Alzheimer's disease. That number is projected to double in another 35 years, said William Burke, M.D., a psychiatrist in the Department of Psychiatry.

The projected jump in the number of seniors suffering from Alzheimer's is a affliction that steals a person's memory among other debilitating symptoms makes research into the treatment of the disease an important endeavor.

Dr. Burke, who is a professor and located on the University of Nebraska Medical Center campus, is involved in a 100-cental, 6-week study of tacrine, a newly-developed Alzheimer's drug. The study is testing the drug's safety and effectiveness in reducing symptoms of Alzheimer's. The reduction of symptoms could lessen the financial strain caring for Alzheimer's patients and greatly delay admissions into nursing homes.

Currently, there are two FDA-approved Alzheimer's drugs on the market - Cognex and Acentel. Both drugs tested in clinical trials at UNMC, Dr. Burke said.

These drugs may, briefly, the symptoms, at least temporarily, reducing the burden on the caregiver and delaying the need for the nursing home possibly up to several years, said Dr. Burke. To care anywhere from $30,000 to $50,000 a year for a nursing home.

Assisted living impacted by legislation

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

A law that became effective Sept. 1 establishes a definition and consolidates a number of housing and support services dealing with alternative housing choices.

Prior to the passage of LB 601 by the Nebraska Legislature, a variety of housing choices had different licensures but provided similar types of services, according to Jay Thayer, one of the owners who "provide management over site for The Oaks."

A coalition was formed consisting of providers of housing, representatives of the Nebraska Health Care Association and the Nebraska

Department of Health. The group arrived at a definition and consolidated various housing and support services into a single licensure category.

The former licensing categories of Board and Care, Residential Care and Residential Care have been combined to form Assisted Living.

"Assisted living is an alternative housing choice with support services that are a bridge between living in one's own individual home or apartment and nursing home," Mrs. Thayer said.

"Assisted living is defined as any facility or institution engaged in the care, treatment or housing of any person deemed to be appropriate to receive such care or treatment and housed in such a licensed facility within the state of Nebraska," Mrs. Thayer added.

She went on to explain that this can be more fully understood by describing assisted living as an array of services for assistance with or provision for personal care activities of daily living, health maintenance and/or other supportive services.

Ideally, assisted living promotes resident independence and participation in decisions which enhance independence, physical, safety, privacy, dignity and residential surroundings for those persons who have been determined beyond or want these activities," she said.

The residents enjoy walnuts, juice and the bread of choice at the evening meal in the dining room at The Oaks. A continental breakfast is also served every morning.

Activities of daily living include such things as helping someone transfer from a bed to a chair, walking, eating, eating, personal hygiene, medication management and office similar activities.

The new law allows seniors to remain in a licensed assisted living facility as long as the resident's ability to safely do so themselves and their nursing care needs are determined to be non-nursing and consistent with the nursing needs expected under a planned intervention.

What this really means is that people may remain in and care for in an assisted living facility for a much longer time than previously allowed, Mrs. Thayer said.

The Oaks has always staffed its assisted living facility with licensed nurses even though this is not required by the legislation. We feel licensed nurses can better handle the residents' health care needs in emergency situations should they arise," she added.

Mrs. Thayer said you to say that nurses are also able to make the decision to transfer with physician as needed.

Currently The Oaks has 30 private assisted living suites and is licensed to care for 74 persons.

The Oaks has also has apartments for independent living with a wide array of services such as cleaning, house keeping and transportation, in addition to the assisted living facilities.

Income may affect SSI benefits

People who apply for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) should be aware that Social Security may count the income of others to determine what income is available to them. According to Greg Heinenman, manager of the Norfolk Social Security office, this is sometimes confusing to needy people who are age 65, or blind or disabled seeking to prove that their income falls within the SSI limits.

"For example, the law assumes that a husband and wife who live together share their resources and income, and that a child shares in the parents' resources and income," Heinenman said. "If you are married but your spouse is not eligible for SSI, part of his/her income may be included with yours, or 'deemed' to be your income. But, if an eligible couple separates, each person is treated separately beginning with the first month after they separate, and deeming of income no longer applies."

Similarly, if an unmarried child under 18 is living at home, some of the parents' income may be deemed to be the child's income when deciding whether the child is eligible for SSI, Heinenman stated. After age 18 or when the child no longer lives with the parent, deeming of income does not apply. In certain situations, parental income may not count if the parent receives a public income maintenance payment.

Heinenman noted that the eligibility of a non-citizen whose entry into the country is sponsored by a citizen depends on the resources and income of the sponsor, the sponsor's spouse, as well as the non-citizen's own resources and income. The income and resources of the sponsor and his or her spouse are considered to be the non-citizen's income and will be counted when determining the non-citizen's eligibility and payment amount.

"There are exceptions to deeming of income and not all types of income count," the district manager said.

For more information about deeming of income and how it may affect you, contact the Social Security office at (402) 321-1595.

Getting rid of the pain

HARTINGTON Some people are homebodies. Others are social beings — individuals who thrive on social interaction with others. Alice Fornash, longtime Hartington area resident, is a people person.

The 69-year-old has opportunities to be with people in her social setting.

"I think you grow as a person whom you are involved with other's lives," Alice says.

"However, the words 'involved' seems inadequate when describing Alice's social activities."

For example, she served as a home economics and agricultural agent for the local Extension office for 31 years. In this capacity, Alice presented educational programs to 200 members on various topics such as life insurance, health insurance, health care, and helpful home related hints.

Alice served as an 4-H leader in the Hartington area for 15 years. During her stint as a 4-H leader, she shared her sewing, cooking, knitting and crocheting skills with the young 4-H members.

"This was a very positive experience for me. At first I had a lot of apprehension when dealing with children, but when we got along, it was great," Alice says.

However, Alice's social activities have turned to two weekly card clubs. One club plays bridge while the other plays pinochle. Early last fall, card playing became a painful experience.

These talents were given to my brothers and sisters, my children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren."

This talent translates into numerous activities considering the fact Alice has 12 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren, and five daughters: Sharon, Diane, Linda, Vicki and Eddy.

Alice Fornash has resumed a normal life after undergoing surgery.

For the past seven years, Alice's social activities have turned to two weekly card clubs. One club plays bridge while the other plays pinochle.

Early last fall, card playing became a painful experience.

Surgery

Then Dr. Albie Cagney lay through the cards were not stuck in his feet.

"I experienced painful spasms while sitting and standing, " she says, "and one of my legs was weak."

After consulting her doctor, Albie opted for hip replacement surgery which took place Oct. 30, 1996.

"It seemed only natural that the surgery be done at Sacred Heart Hospital in Yankton," she says.

I felt very comfortable at Sacred Heart because I had had surgery there before and two of my children were born at Sacred Heart. It was like going home again. I knew they would take good care of me.

Prior to surgery, Sacred Heart personnel contacted Albie to set up an informational pre-op visit.

"They outlined what would happen after surgery over time as to the rehabilitation, finding the right physical therapy equipment and dressing concerns," she says. "This was a very positive experience for me because at first I had a lot of apprehension wondering what would happen and whether the recovery would be difficult. They alleviated all my fears."

Albie spent eight days in the 200-bed Heart-Minded Rehabilitation Center following her surgery. The staff was very concerned that she could have the assistance I needed when I got home," she says. "They were very supportive and friendly. They even showed my husband Tom how to help me reacquire my ability to go up and down a staircase."

Of course, Albie has more after 14 years of marriage. Tom would be a big help however. She was grateful for the added assistance he provided for the rehab team.

"They helped me get stronger quickly," says Albie. "But, most importantly, they helped me to reach those goals."

Today, a competitive game of bridge or poker from longer means忍受 twinges of pain for Albie. Instead, a deck of cards offers the challenge of the shuffle, the luck of the draw and the jangles and companionship of her fellow club members.

Don't Fall For Fraudulent Telemarketing Line

Although the majority of telemarketing victims are senior citizens, they are not isolated and lonely as once believed. According to a survey of 745 telemarketing fraud victims conducted by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), elderly victims are relatively affluent, well-educated, well-informed, and they stay active in their communities. They express many of the same attitudes about telemarketers that are widely held by people who do not fall prey to fraudulent schemes.

Victims make one mistake...they believe the pitches they hear. The survey revealed that more than half of the victims made the decision to participate in the proposed scheme because they thought they had a good chance of winning a unexpected or they had made a worthwhile investment. The study also showed that victims lacked the skills to end telephone conversations with fraudulent telemarketers when they felt pressure saying that it was rude to hang up on them because they may be some poor people trying to make some extra money.

In 3 major people received lead cards saying a company would write living will at a reduced cost or a community service," said Mary Jane Graybill, AARP state president. Volunteer Joyce Graybill said a family member got caught up in the scheme. "People should be aware that when they fill out these cards and send them in, someone is going to call them," said Graybill. "Be sure that when you set up the appointment, you have someone there to represent you."

More than two thirds (68 percent) say most people like them would find it hard to spot a situation where someone is selling worthless products or services, or trying to trick them into spending their money for nothing in return. Although many focus group participants said they thought telemarketing fraud was wrong, none were sure it was illegal.

According to AARP research victims can be divided into the following categories:

- * Open to Anything - 17 percent
Members of this group are very social and will participate in a questionable even though they are skeptical about telemarketers. Members of this group are younger than other victims, more likely to be married, and are relatively affluent.

- * You Can't Fool Me - 30 percent Victims of this group are wary of telemarketing and are determined to ignore sales pitches by mail and telephone. Still, they are unable to resist sending money off to fraudulent telemarketers. They are more likely to be isolated and private, with limited social activities.

- * Polite and Vulnerable - 14 percent
This group is most likely to have recently experienced some trauma in their lives like the death of a spouse. They are more likely than other victims to listen to the telemarketers.

- * Like to Buy - 11 percent
This group is the oldest and the least likely to be married. Most are women, many of whom live alone. They admit they are confused about telemarketing fraud and can't detect it when it is happening.

- * Naive - 8 percent
The smallest group of victims believe that telemarketers are not out to defraud them despite their skepticism.

AARP's goal is to educate people that telemarketing fraud is a crime and help them develop the ability to protect themselves from becoming victims. AARP's message is simple and direct: "Fraudulent telemarketers are criminals. Don't fall for a telephone line."

Adding to the problem is the fact that fraud victims are besieged by telemarketers. Forty-two percent of those surveyed said they received 50 or more calls in the past six months from telemarketers. One reason the victims received so many calls is that the scams build on each other. More than 32 percent of those who were ~~successfully~~ fraud victims said they had received calls from a recovery group, a telemarketer offering to recover lost money. Little or none of the money lost in the original scam is ever recovered and the victim has everywhere in the subsequent scam.

The Congress created the Telemarketing and Consumer Fraud and Abuse Prevention Act of 1994 in response to evidence that consumers lose an estimated $40 billion a year to telemarketing fraud. Despite appropriate law enforcement, consumer losses from telemarketing fraud continue to rise rapidly.

"We're hoping a new bill will be introduced in Nebraska next session dealing with scams, courier pickups and demand drafts," said Betty Palmer, AARP's state legislative committee chair.

Courier pickup and demand drafts are two ways scammers get their money quickly. Once the deal is agreed upon, a courier service is sent to victims' homes to pick up checks or money orders to be mailed before the victim can change their minds. In other situations, unknowing victims will give telemarketers their checking account numbers allowing telemarketers to issue a demand draft which is processed much like a check.

AARP is the nation's leading organization for people age 50 and older. Many seniors have a regimen they must perform every day to maintain their health — the steady consumption of medication for an assortment of conditions.

Seniors should realize that side effects are easy to miss and may be mistakenly attributed to other causes. People over age 65 consume up to 71 percent of the medications purchased in the United States. Statistics show that half of those medications are used incorrectly, and another third are used in a dangerous way.

Medications are produced from highly potent chemicals. They are designed to heal or comfort, but possess the potential for harm if used improperly. Many people need to take more than one medication each day. The multiple drugs in a person's body may interact with one another. Sometimes the reaction is beneficial. Other times the reaction can be detrimental.

It is important for everyone to inform his or her physician about both over-the-counter and prescription medications he or she is taking when having prescriptions written. Better yet, people should take all their medications to each doctor's appointment.

At a basic level food either may slow or speed the absorption of medications. It is important to follow label warnings about taking medications in relation to meals and to check with a physician. Occasionally, the consumption of certain foods may combine with medications to create a dangerous reaction.

For instance, the consumption of certain types of cheese or red wine can increase blood pressure to life-threatening levels. If a person also is taking a specific type of medication designed to combat depression, unfortunately, this is not a problem for most commonly prescribed antidepressants. A second major common diet/drug interaction occurs with coumadin. The drug work can be slowed when people eat green leafy vegetables, asparagus, broccoli, brussels sprouts, bacon or beef liver. Maintaining the same regular diet as a physician regulates the dose of coumadin reduces the risk of an adverse interaction.

In much the same way, medication can alter the way the body utilizes nutrients in food. Some medications cause the body to prematurely dispose of some nutrients. In addition some medications hamper the body's ability to absorb particular nutrients or prevent the body from converting some nutrients into usable forms. Long-term medications should be monitored by a primary care physician who can periodically reevaluate the need for the medications and their side effects.

Growing older fact of life, not disease

Many times a senior's complaint of discomfort or pain is dismissed as an expected part of growing old.

That is an easy answer for the person responding to the complaint. Aging is seen as an affliction, and the complaints are the symptoms.

Aging is a fact, but it does not mean that it is a debilitating condition in itself.

There have been significant strides made in medicine and culture that allow older Americans to not only live longer, but better, than their predecessors. Improvements in eating and personal habits, and medical diagnosis and health care have been a big part of the improved quality of life for seniors. Alas, many "old age" diseases actually are brought on or made worse by physical inactivity.

Yes, there are diseases that are more common in older people, but they are not caused by age and need treatment.

Still, that doesn't mean seniors are immune to suffering from health problems. Most seniors suffer from some chronic problem and others suffer from multiple maladies. It can be helpful to know that suffering from certain types of problems is common for people over the age of 65.

The most common health problem for people in this age group is arthritis. Almost half of this group has arthritis in some form. High blood pressure is the next most prevalent condition with nearly 40 percent of people 65 and older suffering from this problem.

Hearing and heart problems are next on the list, each occurring at an almost identical frequency of nearly 30 percent in people 65 and older. Skin problems, occurring in about 20 percent of this age group, is next. Orthopedic problems and eye problems, each occurring in more than 10 percent of this age group, follow.

Varicose veins and diabetes round out the most common ailments suffered by people age 65 and older. Each occurs in less than 10 percent of this age group.

Cures for these problems still elude science, but each can be controlled. A regular exercise program will improve arthritis, high blood pressure, and symptoms of heart disease and diabetes. It is important for seniors to understand their health problems. Seniors who recognize what may be the onset of a common problem can seek the proper care, rather than pretending it will go away or that it is just a sign of age.

In addition to seeking medical care, seniors should ask for medical clearance to begin an exercise program. Seniors who already walk for exercise should begin a strength-training program. Exercise is one of those rare things in life where more really is better.

Seniors who get the right care can realize reaping the rewards of a long, healthy life.

Apply for medicare before reaching age 65

"I'm going to be 65 years old and I'm going to keep on working. When should I file for Medicare?" is often asked of those at the Social Security office.

The immediate answer is simple: When you're about three months from your 65th birthday and you've not already received your Social Security benefit, you should contact the office about enrolling in Medicare.

If you're receiving benefits, the office will automatically send a reminder about enrolling in Medicare. If you aren't receiving Social Security benefits and you are approaching age 65, you should call the toll-free number 1-800-772-1711 to make an appointment to talk with a Social Security representative.

Paper checks cost more than you know

It's that time of the month again and there you are standing in the rain, the heat, the snow, waiting for the letter carrier to bring your Social Security check. Oh, maybe you want to go on vacation, but you can't leave until you take your Social Security check to the bank.

What are you waiting for? Why don't you sign up for direct deposit?

If you have not been swayed by the convenience of having your benefits sent directly to your bank, consider what it costs to get a check. It costs taxpayers 40 cents each time someone gets a check. To process and mail a Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) check costs 42 cents, compared to 2 cents for direct deposit. If you and the nearly 20 million Social Security and SSI beneficiaries who still receive checks change to direct deposit, the savings to the government and taxpayers will be $8.4 million a month.

The enrollment application may be filed by phone or in person at a Social Security office.

There are two parts to Medicare. They include:

- Hospital Insurance (also known as Part A Medicare) which is paid for by a portion of the Social Security tax withheld from your earnings.

- Part A helps pay for hospital hospital care, home health care, hospice care or care in a skilled nursing facility following a hospital stay.

- Medical Insurance (Part B Medicare) is partly financed by monthly premium which you'll pay if you choose to enroll in that part of Medicare. Part B helps pay for doctor's services and many medical services and supplies that are not covered by Part A.

Although you'll need to enroll in Part A when you reach age 65, you can delay enrolling in Part B if you're currently employed and covered under a group health plan until your group coverage ends. You can then enroll during a special enrollment period and avoid the 10 percent premium surcharge for late enrollment in Part B Medicare.

For more information about Medicare, call 402-721-1700 or 1-800-772-1711, and request the publication "Medicare."

Travel Scams: Get What You Pay For

You've just been selected for a 7-day, 6-night Florida/Caribbean Vacation Package including all accommodations and a round-trip cruise. Call 1-800-100-CRAZI to claim your prize. Sound great? Don't be too sure. According to Attorney General Don Steenberg, an increasing number of cut-rate vacations are turning into first-rate headaches for consumers.

"Many people give in to the lure of a free vacation only to find out later that they didn't win anything. Consumers often end up paying good money for a 'free' vacation," Steenberg said.

Officially, "estimates" travel operations are defrauding consumers out of millions of dollars each month. The most popular types of travel scam involve the sale of vacation plans through telemarketing, direct mail solicitation, or advertisements in classified sections of major U.S. newspapers.

Before signing up to take a five-day cruise to the Bahamas for $200, here are a few things to consider, Steenberg said:

- Deal with an established travel firm. If you are not familiar with a company, get their complete name, address and local telephone number. If a company is unfamiliar, check with your local Better Business Bureau, or contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division.

- Too Good To Be True Stories. Some telephone operators are likely to insist that you make an immediate financial commitment to prevent the "special offer" from expiring. Few legitimate businesses can afford to give away things of real value or substantially undercut competitor's prices.

- Demand Details. Check your contract and schedule carefully. You may be responsible for any transportation, lodging, meals or other items not specifically referred to in the original agreement. You may wish to find out the names of specific hotels, airlines, and restaurants.

- Cancellation Rights and Penalties. In the event of a change in plans, you could end up paying for a trip you never take. Find out exactly what the price covers - and doesn't cover. If the salesperson cannot give detailed answers to these questions, this may not be the deal for you.

- Businesses You Know and Trust. Never give unsolicited callers your bank account or credit card number, and be wary of firms that want to send a courier for your payment or ask you to send your payment by overnight delivery.

- If you have questions about a travel bargain, or have become a victim of travel fraud, contact the Office of Attorney General Don Steenberg, Consumer Protection Division, 2415 State Capitol Building, Lincoln, NE 68509, 402-471-7742.

Nebraska Health Care Association Targets Flu Shots For The Elderly

The Nebraska Health Care Association has recently partnered with the Sanderbruch Corporation of Nebraska in a joint effort to improve the immunization rate for flu and pneumonia vaccination of Nebraska's elderly population. Even though vaccines are easy to get and inexpensive, the number of elderly Nebraskan's who received the vaccines is only about 27 percent. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has a goal of 60 percent annual immunization rate for flu and pneumonia vaccine for adults 65 and older by the year 2000.

Influenza and pneumococcal pneumonia are deadly respiratory infections in the elderly population. They are the fifth leading cause of death in the elderly. The Center for Disease Control (CDC) believes 80 percent of the death from flu could be prevented with a flu shot.
