City Council meets Bonds refinanced

A move by the Wayne City Council will save the city of Wayne approximately $20,000.

The council voted to call its bonds that had been issued in 1992 and 1994 for a number of purposes including paving of Grandwood Road, Walnut Street and Vintage Hills as well as sanitary sewer projects. The total amount of these bonds was $725,000.

The council then passed an ordinance authorizing the issuance of various purpose refunding bonds for $715,000 which includes the cost of advance of the bonds and other expenses.

The net savings to the city will be just over $20,000 due to lower interest rates.

The council also approved a request by the Wayne Community

Housing Development Corporation for $15,000 to assist with operating expenses for the coming year. Currently, the city has $12,500 budgeted for housing matters for this fiscal year. However, by the time the final payment is made to the corporation next year, the city will be in a new fiscal year.

As a Community Development Agency, the council gave preliminary approval to the preliminary redevelopment plan for a truck stop project of Winer West, Inc. The council directed the Planning Commission to make a recommendation regarding the project.

The total cost of the project is $1.1 million, of which the owners of Winer West, Inc. are asking the city of Wayne for $200,000 in tax increment financing.

The council gave approval for the police department and the Wayne Elementary Principal Dale Galt told the School Board during the regular meeting Monday at the high school the leakage problem on the east wing of the elementary building has been temporarily repaired.

We are still actively seeking solutions. Wayne School Superintendent Dr. Lynette Jones said. We are seeking a permanent solution with a 20 year warranty which is unique in roofing.

Wayne Athletic Director Marlene Gilling told the Board the Wayne Boyette Club purchased a new table for the gym.

The table will have advertising on it which the town will pay for the table.

In Dr. Jones's superintendent's notes, a Public Relations Program was discussed.

Jones recommended to the Board members who are planning to attend the NIAA convention to attend the workshop on public relations.

We will be implementing a public relations program that mirrors the concepts of Dr. Patrick Jackson with the overall goal of having the entire district focusing on how to improve the image of the public school in the community. Dr. Jones said. The total cost of the program is $6,500 with the cost being built into this year's budget.

Dr. Jones also spoke on distance education. We are still collecting data and making contacts with the

Is teamwork better for fund management?

Two heads are better than one and three heads may be even better than that.

Bloomberg Personal, a financial publication for individual investors, recently compared the performance of mutual funds managed by one individual to those managed by teams and found that the team-managed funds did better.

Part of the reason for this, the study found, was that team funds offer about the same average risk levels and expenses, with substantially less trading of investments within the funds. The result: "Significantly greater long-term results," the study says.

Specifically, over a 15-year period ending in June 30, 1996, teams outperformed individuals by 1.18 percentage points. To illustrate, a $10,000 investment in one of the individually managed funds over the 15-year period would have grown to $61,460. The same investment in the average team-managed fund would have grown by $74,150, a difference of $12,690.

Bloomberg credits this difference to the discipline of team investing. Teams generally have strict guidelines of investing that call for exact criteria to be met before buying or selling.

One fund family that uses the team approach has been doing so for more than 50 years. Each fund is divided into three to eight parts, with seven parts given to separate managers. The last part goes to the research department, where analysts have the opportunity to use ideas that perhaps they could not sell to the managers. Of course, all investing must conform to the fund's 5-year track record.

Today, Waddell & Reed is one of the nation's leading financial services organizations, managing more than $20 billion through its investment management subsidiary for over one million mutual fund accounts. Waddell & Reed currently offers 25 funds through a national sales organization of more than 2,000 financial advisors. Through the company's affiliate, United Investors Life, many Waddell & Reed financial advisors can offer a variety of life insurance and variable annuity products. Fletcher added:

"Over the years, our purpose has remained focused on helping people with the financial aspects of their lives through personal service and we have grown in the process. We want to continue our growth in that manner."

In 1964, American Road (a what was to become the guiding principle for the firm) "Long experience has dictated that, as a general approach to financial planning, everyone needs three things: 1) cash for emergencies and current living; 2) insurance for protection; and 3) a plan for investing surplus funds accumulated over a long period for possible profit and growth." Waddell & Reed still follows that philosophy. Since the time of the company's founding, the company mission has been: Helping people make the most of their financial future. The company offers its financial planning services and products through financial advisors and believes that personal, face-to-face service is the best way to service clients.

WSC plans snow removal

Recent snow emergencies in Lincoln and Omaha announced a different winter approach and reminded Wayne State College snow removal preparations.

"We know it's going to happen. It's just a matter of when," says Ralph Hessel, head of the Winter Advisory Week. "We're reviewing policies and procedures for the snow removal crew."

Embarking on his first snow-removal crew removal at WSC, Hessel said he plans to stress safety and organization. A lot of a major consideration, he said.

Hessel wants everyone to stay clear of snow removal equipment. "Don't pull out in front of them. They get them like a car. It takes more equipment time to clear the distance to stop. People need to understand when these machines are working in their place or one of our factories or a fast-food store to see people in vehicles," Hessel noted.

"If you see a snow removal vehicle, make sure by the operator, see you. Leave a much greater margin. Use your lights to let the operator know you're around," Hessel said.

He stressed safety during the week. "If you're unsure they are instructed to stop and wait for people or vehicles to move out of the way. The operator can't see to get out and make sure they're around," Hessel said.

"We're out there working for you. By giving us more, you can drive you faster."

Taking safety, procedure, and maintaining pressure are top priorities. Hessel said he considers equipment to be the most important part of the snow removal crew.

Parking lot 10 is a type of snow-clearing machine. Hessel said this is the area where snow will be piled and blown into trucks for removal.

One of the last places he will be supporting snow removal is 10. "It would be the last parallel space. Snow removal happens mostly in the early morning hours to allow crew members space to move freely," Hessel said.

In a 10-year career, Hessel has worked with many snow-removal crews, including the student center in the library. The next target will be computer lab and library parking lots, Hessel said.

Among things Hessel and others should not do is to block the 10th Street exit. "Don't block the exit," says Hessel. "Don't block the exit during these and freeze conditions during a job. When temperatures get in the 40s and 50s, water runs and when the snow melts, ice forms."

Through ever-changing conditions, one aspect of the job keeps it enjoyable. "Hessel said, "There are never the same."

Wayne students are chosen for All-State

Four Wayne High School music students are among the 450 students selected to be part of the 1997 All-State Choir.

Melissa Ehrhardt and Kayla Kueker, along with Jason Mayer, will travel to Lincoln Nov. 20-22 to rehearse with the All-State Choir. A final public concert will be held Saturday, Nov. 22 at 4:30 p.m. at the Lied Center for Performing Arts in Lincoln.

Each year over 2,000 of the best high school musicians in the state audition for the Nebraska All-State Band, Choir, Jazz Band and Orchestra, sponsored by the Nebraska Music Educators Association.

"Selection as a member of one of these groups is one of the highest musical honors attainable in Nebraska," said Kathryn Lay, the Wayne High School Vocal Director.

Guest conductor for the group will be James E. Stegall, director of choral activities at Western Illinois University. Stegall makes frequent appearances as a guest conductor at All-State choruses throughout the country.

Wayne youth participates in bb tournament

Timon Goodrich, a youth player at Wayne Middle School, was the captain of the Junior Red Dawks who won first place at a sub-elite basketball tournament in The Ritz in Omaha on Oct. 25.

The Junior Red Dawks team made up of predominantly talented youth players from northeast Nebraska and the Omaha area.

During the tournament the Red Dawks lost Kansas City in overtime and lost to Des Moines in a close game. The team finished the tournament with a record of 2-2.

The big Red Dawks team also won the championship in high school play. Last year's Red Dawks were a top 10 team in sub-elite play.

Next year's Red Dawks team will also participate in the tournament. The tournament is held in Des Moines, Iowa, in December and Omaha in January.

Wildcats end year with 8-3 record

Winside stung by Bloomfield

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The Winside football season came to an end, Monday night in Bloomfield as the Bees put the sting to Randy Greer's team by a 42-20 margin. The Wildcats finished the year with an 8-3 record and advanced to the elite eight of the Midway Class C 7 State Football Playoffs, the first time in school history.

Bloomfield scored four first-half touchdowns to jump out to a 28-0 lead in the Wildcats' despite the fact Winside out-gained the first team, 70-14 in the second half.

The running tandem of Michael Nipp and Kyle Eisenhauer combined for 143 yards and scored five of the Bees' six touchdowns. "We shut ourselves in the front," Greer said.

"We had two touch-downs called back in the first half and we let them come with just 39 seconds remaining in the second quarter. We tried a lot of different things on defense but we just didn't match up with Bloomfield's offense."

Ryan Krueger got Winside on the scoreboard in the third quarter on a five yard run and Aaron Gaulty kicked out a brilliant career with a one yard scoring run in the fourth quarter before Krueger broke loose on a 70 yard touch-down run with just five seconds left in the fourth period.

Of Bloomfield's six touchdowns only one came on a play of less than 10 yards as they scored on runs of 21, 16, 26 and 15 yards along with a one yard play and the other score came on a 35 yard pass play.

Bloomfield out-gained Winside by a 464-214 margin in the game. Krueger led the Wildcats with 111 yards on just 12 carries and the junior fullback checked-up in an amazing post game with 450 yards in three contests against quality competition in Spencer, Pender, and Bloomfield. Gaulty gained 41 yards on 11 attempts, Paul Aaron Hoffman had 25 yards rushing.

Hoffman had 111 yards passing for 17 yards with Krueger, Cory Brummond and Jason Smith each gathering more yards each. Defensively, Winside was led by Krueger with 19 total tackles, while Gaulty had nine. Cory Brummond and Jason Bates had eight each while Hoffman had five. Hoffman collected seven sacks.

"We had a great victory today and the guys have done some things that make them feel like they also were a part of this."

The Wildcats' defense slowed the Pentragons down all game as they held them far below their season average. Winside advanced to the elite eight of the C-2 State Football Playoffs for the first time in school history.

Winside gridders avenge loss to Pender in state playoffs

By Kevin Peterson

The game was held to be a show-up for two of the most and steadily improving backbones in the state as Pender's Aaron Krueger and Winside's Aaron Hoffman squared off in the state playoffs.

Winside's defense was a physical one, with a line that blipped the offensive. Winside's senior Ryan Krueger led the show, the senior three backs carried the 179 yards and scored both Winside touchdowns of the playoffs. Pender's Aaron Krueger led the Pentragons to the playoffs with 146 yards and a 20-0 record.

Krueger broke loose on a 70 yard touch-down run in the third quarter in the first team game. A 14-0 lead. Winside threatened again late in the fourth quarter but gave up the ball on downs at the 10 yard line.

One thing Winside did do, a run that proved to be the winning play. The senior's "Big Take" was a 70 yard run that he caught for a touchdown. "We had a lot of guys that were looking for a chance to get into the game and we were looking for a chance to get into the game."

The Winside senior Ryan Krueger was a key player in the game. He had 111 yards on 12 carries and scored five touchdowns. "We were looking for a chance to get into the game and we were looking for a chance to get into the game."

Pender played. He also finished a 49 yard pass.

Laurel spikers gain State playoff berth with victory over Osmond at districts

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

The Laurel-Concord Lady Bears volleyball team earned a state tournament berth with a district championship over Osmond last Friday night in Randolph, 15-12, 15-8.

When it comes to district volleyball the Bears simply don't know what it's like to lose.

The trip to Lincoln for State will be the fourth consecutive for Patti Cunningham's Bears.

Of course, Laurel returns as the defending state champion after an unbeaten season in 1996 but this year's team has a much different look with the only thing similar being the winning tradition.

The 18-6 Bears used that tradition at the district final Laurel over came a solid performance by Osmond in the first game.

In fact, the Bears trailed 10-7 before coming back to post the 15-12 victory.

The second game was strictly never in doubt as Laurel jumped ahead early and was never threatened.

Leadership, determination and aggressiveness were all character traits exhibited by Laurel, Cunningham said. "Seniors Jessie Erwin, Katie Monson and Megan Atkins were focused and made key plays at crucial times."

"Ball control by Katie and Kristin Hank was an important element along with intimidating hits and blocks from Jessie and Laurie Schroeder."

Cunningham said Atkins ran the offense well as she played with confidence. Michelle Wittke stepped in to take second hit when Megan was forced to take the first according to the Laurel mentor and Julie Ahls played well coming off the bench.

"Our coaching staff felt confident that all 14 players could contribute to the win at any point in the match," Cunningham added.

Erwin led the Bears with 14 kill spikes, five blocks and three digs while hitting .41 of 17 attempts with an ace.

Katie Monson was 12-14 in serving while notching five aces hits and seven digs and Atkins was 5-6 in serving and 8-12 in setting with 29 assists. She also had one block and four digs.

Lara White was 6-7 in serving and Michelle Wittke, 9-11 with Julie Ahls hitting on all three attempts.

Laurie Schroeder had seven blocks including three aces and six kill spikes along with three digs while Hank had four kills and five digs.

The Bears will enter Friday's first round of the Nebraska Class 1-2 State Tournament as the seventh seed where they will face Spencer. The 2 p.m. match is at Lincoln Southwest High School.

Spencer paper has put one boy on the team. In Laurel's opinion if the Bears should win they would advance to the semifinals on Friday night at 8:30 with the championship dated for Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Pershing Auditorium.

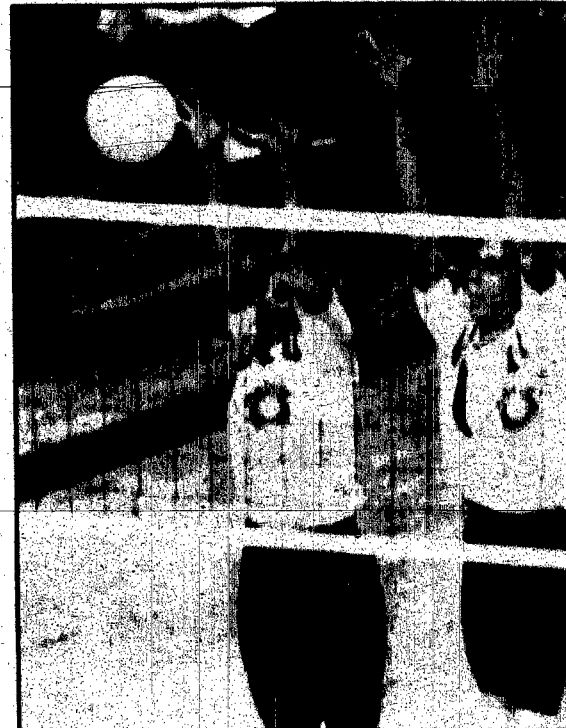

Team members for Laurel include seniors Michelle Wittke, Megan Atkins, Katie Monson, Lara Schutte, Julie Erwin, Dana Stapelman and Danielle Beckman.

Juniors: Lily Harder, Laurie Schroeder, Kristin Hank and Melissa Thompson.

Sophomores: Julie Ahls, Freshman: Brittany Burns and Jan Stewart. The coaching staff consists of Patti Cunningham and Jill Grant.

Michelle Wittke serves up an ace during the Laurel district finals match with Osmond last Friday in Randolph. Wittke will close out her senior season this weekend at State.

Megan Atkins and Laurie Schroeder combine to block an Osmond spike attempt while at right, Schroeder slams an ace spike. Below, Lara Schutte rockets a serve toward the Tigers. This will be the fourth straight trip to the state volleyball tournament for the Laurel-Concord Bears.

Two Wildcat runners qualify for nationals

Wayne State College seniors James McGowan and Mark Merritt, both of Cairo, Mo., qualified nationally for the NCAA Division II National Cross Country Championships based on their finish at the North Central Regional Qualifying Meet last Saturday in Brookings, S.D.

McGowan, who also qualified for nationals in 1995, placed seventh overall while Merritt was 22nd. The top two individuals not on a qualifying team advance to the national meet to be held Dec. 22 in Knoxville, Wis.

"I don't think James is quite 100 percent yet but he's running much better than he was two weeks ago."

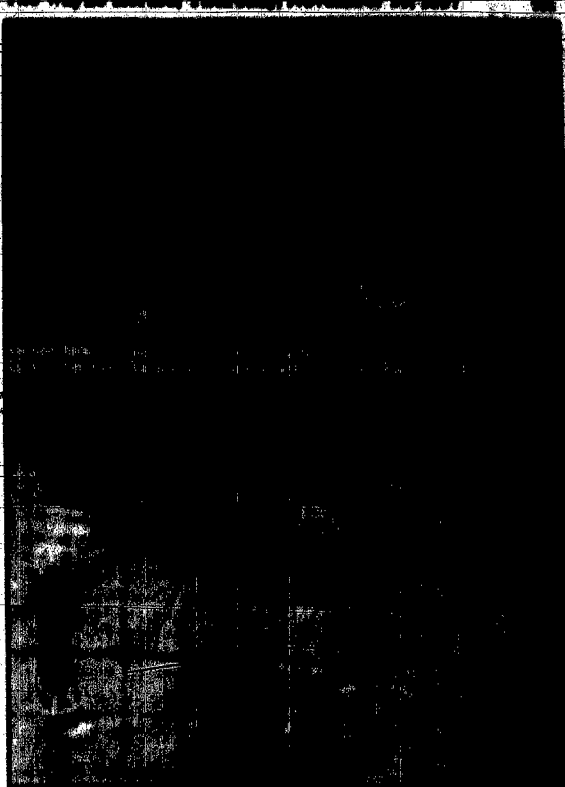

Head coach Bob Kavanaugh said "We found out he was capable, so he's been taking more supplements to come off that along has made a big difference in his training and racing."

Merritt will be making his first trip to the national meet. His time of 32:19.67 is almost a minute better than his personal best time from two years ago.

"We didn't think Mark made it at first," Kavanaugh said. "At first we thought South Dakota State would not qualify as a team, and they had someone right behind James. Mark outgassed a tremendous kick the final 800 meters or so, and passed several people. It turns out that the next three places behind him were the next individuals to be qualified by boys than half-a-century ago."

The rest of the men's team also significantly improved their personal

WSC Cage season starts Friday at home 'Cats to face Mavericks

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

It's encore time for the Wayne State men's basketball team and fourth-year head coach Greg McDermott.

Last season the Wildcats dazzled the home folks by winning 11 consecutive games to close out the year with their best record in 26 years at 21-7.

Still, when it came time for accolades from others there wasn't much as the NCAA selection committee gave the independents from Wichita a no-confidence vote by going with Nebraska Kansas as one of large selection in the regional tournament. A team that was defeated by WSC twice.

That was then, this is now.

WSC will be looking for a better first half of the season than what they showed last season when the Cats posted a 10-9 record before responding to the challenge of closing the table.

That task is obviously better and that done as WSC's schedule is full at the first semester.

Action begins on Friday when the Wildcats square off at home against the OVC's Masenerky, a very athletic team that returns some key big people.

For the first time in history, the Wildcats will take to the floor in Friday's opener as a nationally ranked team in the NCAA Division II ranks.

McDermott's squad is preseason ranked 21st and they don't plan on putting that mark in jeopardy any time soon.

"We got some good news with the return of Chad Nelson," McDermott said. "It was a pleasant surprise to see him come back as soon as he has after knee surgery in May. Anytime you get a player back that has 55 varsity games of college experience under his belt it's very positive."

The 6-6 junior from Norfolk is expected to challenge for a starting spot.

Only one starter is gone off last year's 21-7 mark but he was a good one.

Mike Fitzer has gone from starting his game in the WSC record books as the most prolific three-point shooter in history to the bench where he is a graduate assistant for McDermott.

Back up point guard Curt Woods (second place in assists) and reserve player Justin Cole were also lost as both used up eligibility but the cupboard is far from being empty.

Leadership on the court isn't something that's coached and both

Mike and Curt had tremendous leadership qualities," McDermott said. "That will be the most difficult thing to replace."

The Wildcats will seek to be an up and down the floor quickly type of team and quality depth will be the key ingredient.

"We have 11 guys ready to play at any point during the game and we'll probably put up 14 players for home games," McDermott said. "We need a lot of players if we're going to be successful with an up-tempo style of team."

Leading the Cats is home venue Caty Phillip, the top scorer from last year's team at 12.5 points per outing.

Phillip averaged 5.7 assists per game which was also team top and he hit more than 57 percent of his shot attempts.

Phillip looks to have a solid senior campaign and the name of Barbara Wis could be a track back Player of the Year award winner by the Omaha World Herald for OVC Division II players in Nebraska.

Being the sole scorer Phillip will be looked upon for strong leadership qualities as well.

Point guard Tyler Johnson stands between 6-1 and 6-2 yet he's one of the biggest players around because of his leaping ability.

"If Tyler is not one of the best point guards in the country in Division II for his strength and quickness along with jumping ability, I'd be surprised," McDermott said.

Johnson averaged 12.2 points a game last season and the senior native dished out a record 170 assists.

"Tyler put on about 10 pounds during the off season and it's all muscle," McDermott said.

The off guard position, owned by Fitzer will be manned by redshirt freshman Brad Jones of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. He will be looked upon as the three-point shooting specialist for the Cats.

Jason Diaz, a 6-6 junior from Combined Locks, Wis., averaged over 10 points a game as a sophomore and led the Cats in three-point field goal percentage.

Senior freshman Matthew Muller from Jones Center, Iowa (Western Christian High School) will be called upon to help the Cats with his shooting eye.

The 6-6 Muller is being touted by McDermott as one of the finest freshmen he's had play for him.

Senior sophomore Jon Dilliver had a spectacular freshman season, averaging just under 10 points a game from his starting role as a small forward.

Other returning letterwinners include sophomore centers Eric Henderson and Matt VanVoort. Henderson at 6-7 will likely get the first start but 6-8 VanVoort and 6-9 redshirt freshman Jason Heeltzke will see plenty of playing time.

Brian Hoffman, a junior guard from Orem at 6-0 is expected to see some playing time and is a returning letterwinner as well as the Cats return eight letterwinners.

Mike Collins transferred from Northeast Community College in Norfolk and will play guard while Jeremy Reinbold of Laurel at 6-4 is also a DCC transfer and is listed in the guard's position.

Leadership on this year's team include Dan Buell and Kevin Ungertiller along with Scott Hansen. All three of those players are expected to redshirt.

Tray Osterhaus, a redshirt freshman is expected to back up Johnson at the point guard spot.

"We really don't have any team mottoes or anything like that but we just want to take it one game at a time and try and improve each time out," McDermott said. "Our top priority is OVC and after Friday night our top priority is Morningstar and then South Dakota. We need to just take them in order and not jump ahead."

The Cats play 11 games before the end of 1997 with home games coming Nov. 14 against UNO; St. Mary College, Nov. 25; North Missouri State, Nov. 29; South Dakota State, Dec. 2; Denver University, Dec. 13 and Winona State, Dec. 20.

The Cats will play in San Francisco, Calif. on Dec. 29-30 against San Francisco and College of Notre Dame.

"We're looking for a good year but we need the help of the local folks, too," McDermott said. "We need to fill the stands and make Rice Auditorium a very difficult place for teams to come in and play us."

The Wildcats will be seeking one of three at-large playoff berths come March.

There are six spots in our Region for the post season and there are automatic bids from the OVC, Northern Sun and North Central Conferences. Tournaments.

McDermott added. "We are an independent so we'll be playing for an at-large bid. There are 12 teams in the North Central Region."

WSC will open the year with a 22 game home win streak in fact as well as an 11 game overall winning streak. The last time the Cats lost a home game was in January of 1995.

Come time for the OVC match up on Friday is 7:00 p.m.

Harriers

Shelby. Next on the Cats was junior Jeremy Coover, placing 46th in 11:29.15. Sophomores Terahoe Oppenheide, 54th in 11:34.09, led by freshman BJ Tibson, 15:12.29, sophomore Dan-Helman, 16:06.40, and sophomore Brad Frazier, 16:58.47.

As a team, the men's eighth with 19 points, just 11 behind the last qualifying team.

Yet there could be a long shot but qualifying is a long way from one's goals. The men's 15,000 meters and 5,000 meters.

It was their record breaking by the men. Their team time was 40:08.45, well under the sub-40 goal, except for 2:30.05 at 100 yards.

The addition of sophomore Elliott, a redshirt freshman, had done that night the all time best for WSC. The men's 1000 meters and 400 meters.

For the women's record breaking

Kara Gabelhart was once again the top runner for the Wildcats, placing 49th overall with a time of 12:18.02 for 5,000 meters. This was a nine second personal best for Gabelhart.

Kara ran really tough, especially since she hasn't been feeling totally healthy the past week. Kavanagh said.

Also running a personal best was sophomore Amy Wildt, clocking 20:06.05 for 60th place, about 50 seconds faster than her previous best.

Next in for WSC was sophomore Martha Kunkel, clocking a personal best time of 20:51.18 for 69th place, followed by senior Michelle Bader, 21:07.15, and Amy Callaway, 21:14.37.

As a team, the women placed 14th with 400 points. In addition, the women just missed the school team time record by about 40 seconds. Also, Kara Gabelhart's time ranks second all time for WSC, and Amy Wildt's was 70th.

Three things to do to succeed

Many freshmen entering college arrive on campus not knowing exactly what they want to do with their college careers nor how college connects to the rest of their lives.

This lack of direction and connection causes some students to leave college during the critical first year, before really giving themselves a chance to succeed. It doesn't have to be this way, according to Dr. Donald J. Mash, president of Wayne State College.

"The biggest reason students leave college during their freshman year is because of a sense of confusion, frustration and the lack of connection," Mash told a succeeding to college class on the Wayne State campus. He said it isn't that they can't do the academic work, but it is that they are off balance and out of sync for much of the time because of the lack of direction. Mash said the freshmen are not engaged, not focused, Mash stated.

Mash noted that the freshman year is the toughest year in college for this reason, but he told the group that there are three things a student can do to ensure they have success in college. These are: work actively to find a niche for yourself and create your own place, rather than just existing at school; get your act together, and avoid yourself on the half of what you need to be successful.

"There is more to college than going to class, studying, eating and sleeping," Mash said. While it is important to attend class and study, it is just as important to find other things that are available that interest you. He noted that Wayne State offers a variety of opportunities for students to become involved in leadership roles, such as student government, or to join a club or intramural sports, or write for the student newspaper.

He suggested that there are also less organized activities students should take part in to enhance their college experience. These include going to the recreation center two or three times per week and spending time with other students, particularly those that are different than you and have other viewpoints.

Leaving yourself to those viewpoints will help you grow and develop, or when you leave, here at the end of four years, you are prepared for success," Mash said. He noted that most employers look for how well a person relates to others. If they have good communication skills, work well in groups, are interesting to be around and so on. In other words, Mash said, "While we are keeping track of your academic transcript, students must keep track of their personal development transcript."

Mash stated his second point on getting your act together, simply means pay attention to what is going on around you at college. He suggested students keep a calendar of when assignments are due; when recreational and social activities are happening and other key dates such as family commitments. Mash told the students that developing these simple organizational skills now will be habits they will take with them and utilize throughout life. While in college, being organized will improve academic performance.

Finally, Mash said it is important that students assess themselves on behalf of what they need to succeed.

"That can be as simple as asking a professor to repeat something you didn't hear in class," he noted.

He challenged the students to be an active part of the process. "If you plan to attend college and have to do something to you and for you, while you're here, you're not going to get the outstanding educational experience available to you. You must be an active player in the process," Mash said. This is a process that you must be a vital part of," Mash said. The people who work at the college are professionals. All of whom are here to help you, he noted.

"We want to make college a productive and fun experience for students," Mash stated. "That is our responsibility. Your responsibility is to join us, engage, and do your part," he concluded.

Student test scores are up

Student test scores are up, the number of test takers is more diverse, and students are taking difficult courses. The results of three major tests of educational achievement - SAT, ACT, and National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) - have shown steady gains over the past decades. In addition, fourth graders made impressive scores in math and science, outperforming their counterparts in most other countries, according to the Third International Mathematics and Science (TIMSS) study.

The projected public school enrollment in grades K-12 reached 46,351,000 students in the 1997-98 school year (Source: U.S. Dept. of Education).

The average expenditure per pupil enrolled in public school grades K-12 is $5,885 (Source: NEA Research, 1996-97 Estimates of School Statistics).

Kids activities should be source of fun, not stress

Today's dizzying pace of soccer games, piano lessons and dance recitals can put unnecessary stress on children and adults, two University of Nebraska-Corvallis Extension specialists agree.

How can parents find a balance between introducing kids to healthy skills and keeping family life sane?

"Each family has to take a look at itself, to determine how much stress it can handle," said Janet Fox, NU youth development specialist.

As a guide, Fox and Herb Lingren, NU family life specialist, suggest allowing children to choose one or two favorite activities.

Participating in organized groups develops physical and mental agility and introduces kids to peers who share their interests, he said.

However, if children become too wound up to sleep or become tired and irritable, "a red flag should go up," he said.

Restless and irritable signal a need to slow the family's pace, he said. Otherwise, "by the time they get to high school, (the kids) are worn out."

When choosing activities, consider the child's test interests. Children should join activities to learn skills and have fun, not to fulfill parents' artistic or athletic dreams, Lingren said.

The child's age, for example, Lingren said he considers preschool and kindergarten too young to play competitive sports. "I think it's terrible for kids to lose sleep about his ing at 5 or 6 years old," he said. Each child's personality. Extroverted children gain energy from being around people, Lingren said. Introverted children also enjoy playing with others but need more time alone to recharge their batteries.

Activities parents can join, too. When parents participate in activities with their children, they bond with the kids and share interests that can last a lifetime, Fox said.

"That's why 4-H is so wonderful," she said.

Parents can ease stress for all family members by Arriving home with a positive attitude. Fox suggests establishing an after-work ritual that signals the beginning of family time, such as changing into casual clothes.

Designating family time. Turn off the television and turn on the answering machine to provide the family uninterrupted time to talk about what happened during the day.

Setting priorities. Sometimes, more activities than usual fall during one week. Fox said homework may have to be postponed or delegated to a cleaning service. "One thing I ask myself is, 'Will it matter in 10 years?'" she said.

Sharing car pooling or child care duties with other parents.

Sharing duties gives parents covered time to recharge and the chance to meet their children's friends, Fox said.

Parents can help kids respond to peer pressure

Parents and other adults can play key roles in helping children respond positively to peer pressure. Three University of Nebraska specialists said.

They suggest 10 family life specialists urge parents to spend five or 10 minutes daily listening to each child.

"I try to tell me what happened today," he said. The best thing to do is listen to be able to help him any way.

By listening, parents demonstrate they care about the child. Lingren said fourth graders, children who feel loved, are more likely to develop a strong sense of right and wrong and to resist negative peer pressure.

That makes listening more important than buying the 100 designer shoes, he said.

Peer influence can be strong among young children, and Janet Fox, NU 4-H youth development specialist, said her 8-year-old son has "a certain (fashion) look he is trying to achieve."

If parents disapprove of a style or habit their young child's peers adopt, they can help their child resist the trend without being face among peers by using Mom or Dad as the excuse, she said.

"I say, you can tell your friends I don't approve," Fox said.

Parents can also reduce pressure on their children by agreeing with other parents to buy off expensive, top-of-the-line clothes, said Gary Hensel, Nebraska 4-H program leader. That way, kids within a circle of family friends or a religious congregation won't be the only ones without the cool item.

Children and teens agree, grip about family rules, but research shows they appreciate structure and direction from parents, he said.

Parents and other adults can help children resist negative peer pressure by helping them build positive character, Hensel said. The Character Counts Coalition, a non-sectarian alliance dedicated to strengthening character among youth, provides helpful guidelines.

UNL Cooperative Extension helped implement Character Counts throughout the state within the past year, teaching 20 percent of the state's school-aged youth with the Character Counts curriculum by 2000 is the Nebraska 4-H goal. The program is a project of the nonprofit Josephson Institute of Ethics in Marina del Rey, Calif.

Hensel suggested parents use the Character Counts acronym, C.A.R.E., to spell out these essential character traits.

Teach what's right. Teach children. It's not what they wear, it's more important the way they feel inside the way they treat others that matters, he said.

Advocate what's right. Expect young children to be trustworthy, respectful, responsible, fair, caring and kind citizens.

Model ethical behavior. Set a good example by everything you say and do. Kids will notice the inconsistency if you admonish them not to swear but use colorful language yourself, Hensel said.

Enforce family rules. Some good behavior and discipline had behavior by imposing fair, consistent consequences.

Other adults can play a significant role in providing positive influences on kids, he said. Research shows children need at least three caring adults to confide in besides their parents: teachers, neighbors, coaches or youth group leaders, for example.

In short, it takes a village to raise a child, Hensel said. People in small towns have for years kept a watchful eye on everybody's kids. Today, even city and suburban families can hold block parties to develop a similar sense of community among neighbors, he said.

Studies focus on Nebraska

A new textbook written by two University of Nebraska Lincoln professors is the first new middle school social studies text on Nebraska in more than a decade.

"Journey Through Nebraska," by William Winder and Susan Winder will be published in late summer by the Instructional Materials Council.

This book is aimed primarily at children in middle school about the eighth grade.

"Journey" takes a broad look at Nebraska's geography, history, economy and government set against a framework of regions.

Winder, an associate professor, and Winder, an assistant professor, both in curriculum and instruction, were approached to do a middle-level text because the available texts were 15 years old. Many schools had dropped teaching Nebraska social studies for much of the length of textbooks.

With funding from the Instructional Materials Council, a cooperative of school districts which provides curricular materials and other items to schools, Winder and Winder collected information and organized the book around seven regions in the state. Each region is defined by a particular ethnic celebration or activity that highlights the people who inhabit that area.

For example, southeast Nebraska's section features "Each Day in Winter Festivals and Activities" such as Juneteenth (an African American celebration of the emancipation Proclamation), Nebraska Day, St. Patrick's Day in O'Neill, Arbor Day, the Birchwell Radio, Omaha Pow Wow, Circle de Mayo and Luna. New Year's all involve events important to the people of Nebraska.

Winder and Winder included information from every county in Nebraska. The areas of history, past, present and future were focused on Ditch and Omaha as the hub of government and industry.

Among the historical decisions, Winder and Winder what to leave out. "It's not everything you would want to know," Winder said. "But it does ask the student to do more local study to learn more about Nebraska. Our intent is to inform and stimulate. It's interesting to see the students do their own interpretation of history."

The cover for "Journey" features a photograph of a quilt made to celebrate Nebraska's centennial (1790) anniversary. The quilt features depictions of all 93 Nebraska counties. "Journey" can be purchased by contacting Sara Gaudin, program director, at the Instructional Materials Council in Lincoln at (402) 477-2231.

Teach your kids to save

Parents who teach children to save money help them develop a valuable lifelong habit, says a University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension family economist.

Young children can learn to save by plunking coins in a piggy bank, Kathleen Prochaska-Cue said. But kids should spend some of their savings because they learn from making spending choices, even choices they later regret.

At varying ages, children begin wanting items their parents aren't willing to pay for or can't afford, a special toy, a compact disc player or a bike, for example.

Prochaska-Cue suggests parents agree to pay a share toward the item and set a realistic timetable for the child to save the rest. A month may be as long as 6- to 8-year-olds can wait to achieve success, but older children can wait longer, she said.

The NE Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialist said parents can use the following tools to teach older children wise money management skills.

Budgeting. The popular TV budget stands for spending, saving and sharing. Children can use this guide throughout life to decide how much to spend, save and share with others.

Allowances. Children learn from having some money they can save and spend as they wish. Parents can determine a fair allowance by targeting the middle range of the amount their child's friends receive.

"Many families allow children to earn extra money by doing seasonal chores such as cleaning windows," Prochaska-Cue recommends agreeing beforehand on standards. Children must need to get paid.

"In some families, money that children earn is 'part of the family's support,'" Prochaska-Cue said. Parents can help their kids choose ways to earn money, such as delivering newspapers, caring for children or performing other services.

Family financial meetings. The family meeting can be held in many families. Parents need to reveal details of the family's finances, but talking calmly and regularly with children about family spending helps them feel less threatened if circumstances, such as a parent losing a job.

Prochaska-Cue suggests allowing children to participate in some family financial decisions, such as choosing how to spend money on a weekend trip. Some other financial tools:

Saving accounts. Many parents open savings accounts with money their children receive as gifts. These accounts are appropriate at any age.

Checking accounts. Children as young as 9 or 10 years old can get a realistic picture of their family's spending by helping parents write checks for household expenses.

Prochaska-Cue said, "Parents whose teens are helping for a credit card may instead consider allowing their children to have a debit card. But they need to be sure the child understands how the card works."

Debit cards. Teen-agers can use these cards as paperless checks as long as they realize every card swipe removes money from a checking account.

Credit cards. Some parents agree to allow teen-agers and college students to carry credit cards for emergencies, but a spring break trip is not an emergency, she said.

Credit cards have become a status symbol among some teen-agers, Prochaska-Cue said. Parents whose teens are helping for a credit card may instead consider allowing their children to have a debit card. But they need to be sure the child understands how the card works.

Poll shows teachers in lead

The teaching profession is highly regarded by the American public, Americans believe teaching is the profession most beneficial to society, according to a poll conducted by Recruiting new teachers, he and the Advertising Council. And a recent Harris Poll found that the only profession held in higher esteem than teachers were doctors and accountants.

Today's public school teachers are better educated and have more classroom experience than their predecessors. More than half (56.2 percent) hold one or more advanced degrees. Half have been educators for at least 15 years and more than one-third (41 percent) have taught for two decades. (Source: IHA, Status of the American Public School Teacher, 1995-96.)

Teachers are dedicated professionals. They spend more than $400 of their own money to meet the classroom needs of their students. And they work an average of 49.3 hours a week, some thirteen hours more than the average school year contract requires. (Source: IHA, Status of the American Public School Teacher, 1995-96.)

The total number of public school teachers for grades K-12 is 2,044,000. (Source: U.S. Dept. of Education, Projections of Education Statistics, 1996.) Two million new teachers will be needed over the next 10 years to replace an aging teaching force and a growing student population. (Source: U.S. Dept. of Education.)

Quotes given about education

Education is not the filling of a pail, but the lighting of a fire. William Butler Yeats

"When I was a boy on the Mississippi River, there was a reputation in a township there to discontinue public schools because they were too expensive. An old farmer spoke up and said if they stopped building the schools they would not save anything because every time a school was closed a jail had to be built." Mark Twain

Education is the best change agent, we can possibly have. It binds us together, it draws our youngsters in, it moves them ahead, it builds their self-worth, it instills a sense of pride and self-responsibility." President Bill Clinton

"An investment in knowledge pays the best interest." Benjamin Franklin

"A teacher affects eternity." Henry Adams

"The highest result of education is tolerance." Helen Keller

"A child miseducated is a lost child." President John F. Kennedy

The dream begins most of this time, with a teacher who believes in you, who tugs and pushes and leads you on to the next plateau, sometimes poking you with a sharp stick called truth." Dan Rather

"On one occasion Aristotle was asked how much educated men were superior to those uneducated. He replied, 'as much as the living are to the dead.'" Douglas Airdoll

"There is a place in America to take a stand, it is public education. It is the underpinning of our cultural and political system. It is the great common good of public education after all is the empire that moves us as a society toward a common ideal. Jan 20, is an public education that the American dream begins to take shape." Tom Brokaw

"As a product of the public education system, I want all American students to have what I had: access to a quality education that enables them to pursue any career they wish, and take on any challenge they choose. Giving our students the best education in the world is a moral imperative and, especially, an economic necessity." Richard Riley, U.S. Secretary of Education

Activities give youth practice with money management

Today, teen money management is more important than ever.

Today's teens have more money at their disposal than previous generations. Advertisers, billers, and banks are aware of this fact and direct a large portion of their marketing toward adolescents.

The money concept begins very early. As young as ages 7 to 8, children collect pennies, a habit that becomes a habit of the habit represented in different ways and bills. By age 7, kids are capable of occasionally shopping alone.

The easiest and most effective method parents can use to teach their children money management is through examples. Parents need to communicate openly about how financial decisions are made, the family's budget and where it comes from, and any financial problems.

When children see the big picture, they will have a better understanding of how their needs and wants fit into the family financial plan. They also will learn from participating in decisions such as how to spend less, save, and what money will be spent on.

Following are suggestions for activities parents can use to teach their children money management.

Preschool
While shopping for the child, purchase a small item, such as the object and give the child the money.

show them how pennies, nickels, dimes, and quarters work in groups to make different totals.

Ages 6 to 9
"Create shopping games that can play at home. Take children to the store and let them shop for small items like a box of crayons, a ball, or a toy car, etc.

"This is a good time to begin giving a regular allowance. Make sure that the child is old enough to cover needs such as lunch money or school supplies, and has enough left for spending or saving. Children learn from making decisions how their money will be distributed.

Allowance should be a compensation for completing household chores.

Children need to be aware that there are responsibilities that they take care of as members of a family.

Ages 10 to 11
Children this age should be capable of helping with some aspects of the family finances.

Let them address envelopes for mailing bills, write and check.

Ages 14 to 17
When teens have a job, show them how to complete a tax form.

"If children are permitted to drive, let them know how insurance works, the cost and how it's paid.

"Programs such as Junior Achievement can offer teens in sight into what it is like to manage a small business. In this program, teens learn to produce and market a product and are required to manage the financial records.

Parents wanting their children to learn more about money management should see if it's included in the school curriculum. Additionally, programs are often offered through local credit unions or banks. Parents can also send classes, such as available through groups like 4-H, Youth, or Future Business Leaders of America.

MAKE-A-WISH

Representatives from the Make a Wish Foundation will make sure that 9-year-old Jennifer Fahrenholz gets a "cool bedroom." That's what the Allen third grade student asked for a canopy bed, matching dresser and two shelves for her dolls.

Jennifer lives with her grand parents and legal guardians, Truman and Darlene Fahrenholz of rural Allen.

Jennifer underwent brain surgery to remove a cancerous tumor in February of 1995. Doctors were unable to remove the entire tumor and Jennifer is now in remission with an uncertain future.

The non-profit Make A Wish Foundation grants wishes to children from ages of two and a half to 18 years of age who are living with life-threatening illness.

If everything goes as planned the bedroom will be in place by Christmas.

SCHOOL NEWS

American Education Week is from Nov. 16-22. This year's theme is "Teaching Children to Think and Dream," which is designed to remind us that school provides students with both skills and hope for the future.

This week of recognition for America's education system provides all of us with a three-hundred opportunity to celebrate our school.

Football and remodeling jobs are causes of stress

I dutifully wrote a couple of pages of "stuff" on Sunday evening, put it in an envelope, Monday morning and even took it to the post office. Tonight, Monday evening, it dawned on me there will be no mail delivery Tuesday because it is Veteran's Day. So something has to be faxed in the morning. And we don't have a fax.

No matter how many times I see that last play of regulation on Saturday, I still can't believe it. I had been nervous about Missouri all week. So I went to a craft show at Mahoney to get my mind off it. That didn't work. Everyone there had TVs and radios on.

I came back home and stayed in the kitchen. Finally, I gave up and had my supper in front of the set. (She said she couldn't eat.)

Our church had announced during the week that it didn't take long to realize the sadness when the Blackhawks finally stopped their offense.

Then I tried to call my Mom. Her line was busy. My brother was talking. When the finally answered, it was "Go Big Red."

All I know is I was contacted when it counted, even after having two interruptions. And Matt Davison could play volleyball with that "Oh."

The other part of the column is the mail has to do with the inconvenience of being without a fax.

It is really getting to be a pain.

This one held the freezer (now in the garage), the rim of the door (in the kitchen) and the four-drawer file cabinet (in our bed room). Plus the vacuum cleaner, which is in the pantry, along with many other items that do not belong there.

I still haven't found the hooded sweat shirts and my ear muffs. The snow boots were finally retrieved from the basement. And the cat's nest is on the front porch, which means she hangs around there, which is a nuisance. It's been six months now, and I hate the back door.

I know we went through the same thing on the farm, but I've forgotten what a pain it was. In fact that was quite a summer. Because we replaced the old foundation, dug out a basement that had not been there for half the house and added an office as well as a new back porch. Plus, I had hired men, carpenters, plumbers and electricians the whole time.

I'm not sure how I survived. I'll remind myself that while they fix up the project here.

Bryan Jones Sunday Series features writer from Nebraska

On Nov. 16, writer Bryan Jones will bring a guest Faculty Residency at Wayne State College with a Sunday Series lecture entitled "Mark Twain Made Me Do It" and other explanations of a Writer's Craft.

Bryan Jones' most recent book, "Mark Twain Made Me Do It" and other Plains Adventures, explores the Nebraska of the 1950s. Essays on the public sphere of 1952 Richie Ashburn and small town baseball provide the historic backdrop to the story of a wide-eyed boy exploring the heart of this province. William Kufelorn, Nebraska's State Poet, said of Jones' new book "I had admired Mark Twain Made Me Do It not only because it dramatized a truckload of long-lost Epiphany, but also because it does the dramatizing with a flair and attitude worthy of Twain himself."

The Lansing Game Jones' first book of humor always is still in print. The first book originally published by the University of Nebraska Press to be reviewed in the New York Times, Lansing Game continues to enjoy a wide following.

Since a reading series at Mark Twain High grew up to several Nebraska towns, including Chappell, Ogawa, and Ephraim. After graduating from Iowa with the rank of Phi Kappa Phi and spending a year in graduate school at the University of New Orleans, Jones returned to Nebraska. He has taught English and worked as a journalist and as a public speaker.

His essays about states, politics, and other backdrops have appeared in a wide range of publications including First and Second, Prairie School, Wisconsin Historical Review, Prairie, Plains, River, Below, North Dakota Quarterly, Nebraska Humanist, The Progressive, New York, and Nebraska Today.

Jones was awarded a Council for Basic Education Fellowship in 1994 to research and write the book "Kaweah: Figures of the American Civil Rights movement." Jones hopes to finish his inquiries by mid-summer of 1998 and begin work on a new book-length manuscript.

The Sunday Series lecture will be presented at 4 p.m. on Nov. 16 in the Theatre room of the Woodruff Building on the Wayne State College campus. The event is open to the public and is free of charge. A reception will follow.
