Hot dog, anyone?

Wayne shoppers were treated to free bratwurst and hot dogs last Thursday during Detour to Wayne activities. A number of local merchants set up grills and were kept busy supplying customers with brats and dogs. Above, Randy Pederson of the Diamond Center, tries to keep up with demand as the shoppers wait for their food.

School board accepts new administrator

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

The appointment of Dr. Joe Reinert as Wayne Community Schools Chief Administrative Officer was made official by school board members at their meeting Monday night. Dr. Reinert was superintendent in Exeter before accepting his new position.

While a new faculty member joins the school another one leaves. The board accepted the resignation of Cindy Peterson who has been Spanish teacher at the high school. She is leaving for personal reasons. Interviews are ongoing for replacement of her position.

Duane Schroeder of Wayne, part of the citizen committee on Middle School renovation, spoke to the group. He said that if the renovation project becomes a bond issue there should be two main objectives. One is to keep the language neutral to keep bond issue open and also if bond issue passes there should be unbiased selection of the architect.

Having met with the citizen committee, Angelo Passarelli with RAMBO presented a revised budget of around $7 million for the renovation project. He said 73,000 square feet is needed for the Middle School project. Some of that space could be lost in remodeling because of stairwells as compared to building a new building. The Bond Counsel will prepare a resolution to present to the board for adoption at the next meeting.

During June and July there will be community meetings and information gathered and distributed. In August and September there will be a lot of information out for the public to review and make up their minds as to what the best solution should be for the students. Mr. Passarelli said that Sept. 29 is the selected bond election date.

Amy Bliven, technology director at the school, asked the board to consider purchasing a new computer server and backup system for nearly $14,000. She told the group that the present system is not adequate and doesn't have enough memory to store present information. There could be major problems if a crash occurred. Dr. Reinert agreed change was needed but alternative solutions were suggested and the issue will be on the agenda for the July meeting.

Other action by the board included the appointment of Dan Fehring as athletic director for the upcoming school year. During the year Dr. Reinert could assess the situation as Marlene Uhing is presently looking for professional advancement.

Also discussed was the bussing route for the 1998-99 school year. Larry Grashorn, bus manager, was present. He told the group that last year there was a first come, first serve basis on picking children up at regular stops in town. The stops include Muhs Acres, the ball park, Sunnyview, Main Street and Seventh Street. There are getting to be quite a few wanting to be picked up with some having no other way to get to school. The board decided to continue with in town pick ups but Dr. Reinert would work with Grashorn on the issue.

The next scheduled board meeting is set for July 13 at 7 p.m. in the high school building.

Halsey chosen to head Wayne State College

The Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State College System named Ken Halsey as Interim President of Wayne State College. He will replace Dr. Donald Mash, who has resigned to accept a position as Chancellor at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire.

Dr. Halsey's appointment is effective July 1; Dr. Mash will leave WSC on July 31.

"The Board is confident that Dr. Halsey will effectively lead the college during a national search process," said Rick Kolkman of North Platte, Chair of the Board.

"We appreciate his willingness to assume these responsibilities on July 1. Wayne State College has an excellent management team in place so we anticipate a smooth transition to this change. We thank Dr. Mash for the outstanding leadership he has provided Wayne State College, the State College System and all of higher education in Nebraska. We will miss him and we wish him well."

Dr. Halsey has been a professor of business at Wayne State College since 1987. He brings 18 years of administrative accountability, including 11 years as Chief Academic Officer at Black Hills State College in Spearfish, S.D., where he also served as acting president in 1977 and 1985.

Additionally, he was named the Nebraska State College System's Teaching Excellence Award recipient in 1995 and has won eight Wayne State College teaching awards. He has received national awards for his work as a student advisor.

Dr. Halsey serves on several campus committees at WSC, including Graduate Council, the Affirmative Action Committee and the Sexual Harassment Committee. He has extensive experience in management negotiations, business management, community leadership, transfer agreements, personnel evaluations and accreditation processes.

During last week's Board of Trustees meeting, members of the Wayne State College Presidential Search Committee and a timeline were approved.

The committee was recommended by Rick Kolkman.

The position will be announced nationally during the first week of September in publications such as the Chronicle of Higher Education. The Search Committee will begin reviewing applications in mid-October. References will be contacted and interviews with semi-finalists will follow.

Semifinalist will be invited to Wayne State for on-campus interviews and the committee will select three to five finalists for consideration by the Board.

"We are hoping to finalize an appointment for the next president of Wayne State College in early January, 1999," Kolkman said.

The Search Committee is composed of representatives of Wayne State's students, faculty, professional and support staff, students and regional representatives and community leaders:

They are Sayre Andersen, associate professor of English; JoAnn Bondus, professor of business; Kathleen Conway, professor of education; Meenakshi Dalal, professor of economics; Stephen Glass, assistant professor of human performance and leisure studies; Pearl Hansen, professor of art; Anthony McEvoy, associate professor of industrial education; Russell Rasmussen, professor of chemistry; Anneliese Cawthon, assistant dean for student life; Jean Karlen, division chair of social sciences; John Stoll, director of regional education and distance learning; Mary Jo Gross, support staff; Becky Keidel, Trio Travel; Robert Carhart, Carhart Lumber; and Robert Reeg, First National Bank.

Two students, to be determined later, will also serve on the search committee.

In addition, State College Board member Sheryl Lindau of Wayne and the System's Executive Director Carrol Krause of Lincoln will serve on the committee.

Outstanding citizen selected

By Dianne Jaeger

Winside Correspondent

The 1998 ballots have been counted and long time Winside resident Lydaisy Janke, has been voted in as this year's Outstanding Winside citizen.

Daisy, as she is well known, has lived in Winside her entire life and says, "I have enjoyed living here so much, I just hope I can give back to the town a little of what I feel I have gained from it throughout the years." Daisy considers herself a "city farm wife," who is currently filling her time with enjoyable things like watching her grandchildren play ball, or having them spend the night, being stand-in mom to Jochem Schulze, their German exchange student for this past school year.

Besides these activities, Daisy helps deliver meals on wheels for area senior citizens, she is chairwomen of the Winside Library Foundation, and is president of St. Paul's Lutheran Church Ladies Aid.

She is teaching summer Sunday School at St. Paul's and attends a Bible study class there. In 1990 Daisy was co-chairman of the Winside Centennial Celebration and has helped many years with the Old Settlers Celebration.

Her hobbies include reading, oil painting, cooking and baking, all the things she said it was hard to find time to do as their own children were growing up. She also tends to invite the neighborhood kids over to play with toys she has in her garage.

From 1982-89 Daisy served as head cook at the Winside public Schools and for a few years after that she owned and operated the Winside Stop Inn Cafe. For about 40 years Daisy has baked and decorated beautiful cakes for many special occasions for folks in Winside. "I've turned over the cake decorating to my daughter, Darci."

Daisy and her husband Dean have been married for 40 years. They are the parents of four children, have seven grandchildren and one great grandchild. They are son, Dean Jr. and his family who live on the family farm that was awarded the

Tips offered for safe use of fireworks

A number of safety tips have been prepared to help area residents have a safe Fourth of July holiday when using fireworks.

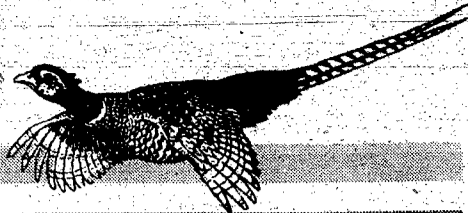

1. Purchase and light only fireworks approved for sale and use in your area.
2. Always keep small children a safe distance from fireworks.
3. Put burned sparkler wires in metal buckets with water in them. Do not touch the hot end.
4. Burned fireworks must be put in metal containers, not in trash.
5. Don't light fireworks on windy days.
6. Fireworks must never be held in the hands when lit.
7. Grass can be set on fire by fireworks. Be careful where you throw lit fireworks.
8. Only professional fireworks handlers should light large fireworks.
9. Fireworks cause thousands of fires and injuries each July 4. Please don't become a statistic.

The Wayne Volunteer Fire Association and the Wayne Herald/Morning Shopper encourage everyone to practice safety rules and enjoy a great Fourth of July.

Hard to satisfy all in tax issue

By Ed Howard

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

One way or another, Nebraska seems likely to begin the next phase of its journey down the road toward a tax system that will satisfy most of the people most of the time. Or, at least, satisfy enough people to curb what seem like perpetual efforts by one group or another to shift the burden of financing government on to, well, one group or another.

In 1974, it seemed to me that the system of local property taxation fell into the category of a bad joke. Farmers and ranchers hollered at the Legislature about their local property taxes, but local assessors, taking one with another, didn't keep valuations anywhere near the levels required by law.

The above situation was easy to explain. Local assessors apparently didn't see the need to annoy the local folk. The Legislature didn't see any reason to take the risks associated with enforcing the requirements of the state constitution.

It also seemed to me, back then, that, if I were the Douglas County assessor, I would do what Frank Bemis was later accused of doing: refuse to follow the law which required him to bump up valuations on homes.

In those days, some said that most local services, especially schools, were paid for by the cities. Denizens of Omaha paid for their local services with their property tax dollars, and they paid for a lot of rural local services with their sales and income tax dollars. The latter were converted into state aid and shipped off in all directions by a Legislature dominated by rural lawmakers.

It was then Gov. Charles Thone, once described in a national news magazine as a "colorless conservative," who concluded that the executive branch had a duty to do something about the property tax enforcement system that would reflect constitutional and statutory requirements. It has largely been forgotten that it was Thone—the quiet guy who never was really comfortable in the spotlight, who was sometimes criticized for being indecisive—who bit the political bullet and lived up to his oath of office.

It was Thone who got the ball rolling by seeing to it that counties began to reassess the tax values of agricultural and other property. His administration found one county where there had not been a full-blown reassessment in 20-something years!

In the years that followed, there was resistance to school consolidation and the elimination of rural school districts as tax shelters. The shift in population to towns and cities meant rural lawmakers couldn't stop the tide of change favored by an increasing number of urban lawmakers.

Of course, all kinds of tax formulas enacted by the Legislature, involving everything from personal property taxes to, well, just about everything, were challenged in the courts. Some survived, some did not.

Interestingly, it seemed this year that all the years of politicking, fiddling with formulas and what have you were about to bring Nebraskans face to face with the reality of their geography and demographics. Lids on local property taxes seemed likely to force the electorate to answer the important questions: Do you want lower local property taxes? OK. Do you want to pay more in state sales and income tax to make up the difference in funding local programs?

Then came the Business Leaders Summit and its move to limit the revenue collections, and thus the spending authority, of the Legislature and local governments. (Of course, tax incentives provided for business are exempt from the limits under the theory that business, not government, needs to expand.)

If the Summit's petition drive succeeds in putting its proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot, and if the amendment is adopted, an entirely new era will begin in the way the state and local services are defined and financed.

If it fails, the state likely will stay on its current track and eventually be required to answer those previously mentioned questions: What do you really want, and what will you pay for it?

Group meetings planned

The Wayne Chicken Show is less than a month away! People have already begun to volunteer to help with the 1999 Chicken Show! Be sure to plan on attending the community wide information meeting on Thursday, June 25 at 7 p.m. in the Wayne City Council Chambers. This is for everyone who might be involved with the Chicken Show in any way.

A post-Chicken Show meeting is scheduled for Monday, July 27 with time and location to be determined. But please, be sure to mark your calendar and save this date to help evaluate the 1998 Chicken Show and begin planning for the 1999 Chicken Show.

On Friday morning, June 26, the Clearinghouse Task Force will meet at Providence Medical Center. This group plans to first, compile a printed information and referral publication and second, to develop an information and referral system on the Internet. At this time, funding sources must be identified.

Suggestions can be referred to Sandy Bartling at the PMC Foundation, 375-5529 or to me at the Chamber/Industries office at 375-2240.

Don't forget to buy those tickets to the Business After Hours! Tickets in advance cost $3.50 and $5 at the door. The WSC

Research offers interesting time travel

By Maureen M. Lee

One of the first clues a genealogist comes across while pursuing his or her family roots is a given name and/or a surname.

Discovering a name to follow up on can be quite thrilling. After all, it's a starting point. However, many given names were, and still are, abbreviated. Where there is a written record, there is sure to be an abbreviation somewhere; census records, deeds, tombstones, military records, etcetera. Becoming familiar with the traditionally accepted abbreviation(s) for a given name is therefore a must. It will save the genealogist time and money in that "backtracking" can be avoided.

The following is a sampling of common abbreviations for given names: Anthy-Anthony; Alex-Alexander; Bartho-Bartholomew;

Benj-Benjamin; Chas-Charles; Chris or Christo-Christopher; Dani-Daniel; Edw or Edwd-Edward; Edmd-Edmond; Eliz or Eliza-Elizabeth; Fran-Francis or Frances; Geo-George; Jas-James; Jos-Joseph; Jona-Jonathan; Jno-John; Junr-Junior (whether male or female); Margt-Margaret; Nath or Nat-Nathaniel; Nicho or Nich-Nicholas; Phil-Phillip; Richd or Rich-Richard; Robt-Robert; Saml-Samuel; Senr-Senior (whether male or female); Steph-Stephen; Timo-Timothy; Thos-Thomas; Wm-William; Zach-Zachary or Zacharia.

A person's surname can also create quite a quandary for the genealogist. Many surnames have been recorded with incorrect spellings, due to a number of reasons, the most common being that the name was written by how it sounded phonetically. For the "common" folk, education was not a high priority; providing food, shelter and clothing for the family was.

When the census taker, for instance, arrived at the door to record the family, it was not entirely uncommon for the person answering the census taker's questions to not know the correct spelling of their surname. Because of this inability on the citizen's part, the family might be listed on four consecutive censuses with four different surname spellings, particularly if there were four different census takers and the name sounded different to each of them!

Another consideration is simply that the census taker did not understand precisely what the responding party said. This was particularly common during the "immigrant years" when many of those living in America had heavy accents or only spoke enough

English to provide their name. A simple misunderstanding that can create quite a puzzle for the genealogist.

For instance, I am working on my McLaughlin line. I have seen this surname spelled McLaughlin, McGlothlin, McGloghling and McGlothlem. Change the "Mc" to "Mac" and you have a few more variants! It takes careful and precise cross referencing of records to ensure that it is the same family and several families with slightly different surnames. Even the most common surname in the United States, Smith, can be spelled several different ways: Smith, Smyth, Smythe and Smithe.

Fortunately, incorrectly spelled surnames tend to be the exception rather than the rule. Many surnames are spelled correctly and pose no concerns to the genealogist. My married surname, for instance, is Lee. You can't really go wrong with a name that's that!

Baseball association lines up triple-header for Fourth of July

The Fourth of July promises to be one of great fun if you are a baseball fan of Wayne and/or Wakefield.

The Wayne Alumni weekend is slated for Saturday, July 4th with a triple treat at Hank Overin Field in Wayne.

The first game will feature a contest between the younger alumni of Wayne baseball at around noon.

The feature presentation will take place around 2:30 p.m. when the 1990 state championship teams from Wayne and Wakefield return to square off.

That contest will be followed by an old-timers game with alumni and friends of the Wayne baseball association.

The day is sponsored by the Wayne Baseball Association. There will be raffle tickets sold prior to July 4th as well as at the ballpark on the Fourth for two pair of Nebraska football tickets, college world series tickets, a $50 savings bond and a Nebraska pullover jacket.

Raffle tickets can be purchased now from any baseball player or member of the Wayne Baseball Association.

Last year's inaugural old-timers benefit game supplied enough money to purchase a tarp for the field which had a direct impact on the decision making process which allowed Wayne to host the 1998 State Baseball Tournament.

This year's proceeds will go toward the purchase of a new sound system which would be installed prior to this year's State Baseball Tournament.

Proceeds will also go for the continuation of a Wayne Baseball Hall of Fame.

There will be two inductees honored on July 4th—the first ever selections to the local Baseball Hall of Fame.

Anthony Sump just misses the ball after diving for the grounder in Wayne's 13-5 win over Oakland, Monday.

Adam Jorgensen flashes his bunt stance at his Oakland-Craig opponent during action Monday night in Wayne. The Midgets have won four consecutive games.

SCHOOL NEWS

B and B Builders offered the lowest bid and was selected to construct the school district's new distance learning classroom building just south of the main school building. Funds to build the structure will be taken from the special building fund of $231,714 which has accumulated over the years. Originally the fund was created to build an addition to the gym which would have included a stage.

However, the cost of that project was prohibitive so now the money is available for this free-standing building which should be of use to the students and to the community for continuing education classes using two-way television.

The classrooms will be equipped using proceeds from lottery funds. The Allen School District is a member of a 37 school consortium that was awarded $2,844,394 by State of Nebraska Lottery. These proceeds will be used to build an interactive video based system which can link classrooms across eastern Nebraska. The money will provide for the actual video and audio equipment needed to implement the program. Each individual school will be responsible for the classroom and furniture. Allen will use its building fund to erect the classroom.

Over the last 20 years the Allen District uses Nebraska School Law 79-10-120 to levy a special building fund that accumulated $231,714. This money cannot be used for the general budget but must be used for acquiring sites for school buildings or technology, purchasing existing buildings for use as school buildings, teacherages, including the sites upon which such buildings are located, and the erection, alteration, equipment and furnishing of school buildings or teacherages, and additions to school buildings for elementary and high school grades and for no other purpose.

In order to allow the total community to receive full advantage of the program offered through the consortium plan, the Allen School District is building a free-standing building that can be operated after school hours without opening the main building.

The classrooms can be used by the community for adult classes, a number of colleges in the Midwest. A person may be able to work towards a college degree or upgrade certification without traveling. The system may also allow students to take college level courses while still in high school and allow everyone in the community greater access to the internet.

Democratic Convention held

At the 1998 Wayne County Democratic Party Convention held June 2, Dr. Charles Shapiro was elected county party chairman. Shapiro replaces the outgoing chair, Dr. Jo Johar. Edith Zahner was re-elected vice-chairperson, Joceli Bull, secretary and Robert Jordan, treasurer.

The Convention also elected Sheryl Lindau and Kent Blaser as delegates from District 17 to the State Democratic Party Convention which will be held June 26-28 in Lincoln. Catherine Blaser was chosen as the alternate.

John McCall and Eric Larson from the Hoppaer for Governor office in Lincoln discussed campaign plans with the delegates, including an entry in the Wayne Chicken Show parade and a booth at the Wayne County Fair.

Resolution #1: "The Wayne County Democratic Convention strongly opposes the proposal for a spending lid on the Nebraska State Legislature that is being promoted by the Citizens for Nebraska's Future, an organization funded by the Nebraska Business Leaders Summit." This spending lid proposal will primarily benefit large corporate interests in Nebraska at the expense of the welfare of the ordinary citizens, the education of our youth and the state's future.

We hereby urge the Nebraska Democratic Party to register its unified opposition to this petition effort.

Resolution #2: "The Wayne County Democratic Party to place a high priority on developing a proposal to limit campaign spending for elections to all state offices, as has been done in other states such as Maine."

Helping youth realize potential

By Amy Malchow
Extension Educator
4-H and Youth

Helping young people develop to their fullest potential is a major goal of 4-H. One of the tasks of parents, leaders and adult volunteers to help youth find out what they like to do and help them develop their expertise in that area. Often, this is followed by success.

While it is easy for some kids to reach their potential, others might need a little more help. Parents, leaders or volunteer can do several things to help kids reach a little farther and really "make the best better." Here are several ideas:

SHOW CONFIDENCE

A cornerstone of helping kids do their best is helping them believe that they are capable. This can be done in several ways.

1. Give responsibility. Giving 4-Hers responsibility is a nonverbal way of saying "I know you can do this."

2. As 4-Hers for their opinions and advice. When asking for someone's opinion, one is demonstrating confidence in their ability to make a useful contribution.

3. Avoid the temptation to take over. If an adult, leader or parent does something for a 4-H'er on a regular basis, that the 4-H'er is capable of doing independently, the 4-H'er may get the message that they do not have the ability to complete the task.

BUILD ON THE 4-HER STRENGTHS

When encouraging someone to do something better, break the learning down into small steps and build upon each strength as it is developed. For example, a 4-H'er might not be able to take perfect pictures the first time they are out with the camera. However, a 4-H'er can figure out how to load the film and center their pictures. One would focus on what the 4-H'er does well and encourage them to take the next step.

VALUE THE 4-HER

A 4-Hers worth is less a matter of his or her accomplishments and more a matter of who he or she is. Letting 4-Hers know that one admires their success but also shares in the disappointment of their failures, helps them realize that you appreciate what they do on their own merits. The youth are more important than exhibits.

It is also important to remind the 4-H'er that mistakes are part of growing up. They key is to learn from mistakes and keep trying.

SIMULATE INDEPENDENCE

Being able to stand on one's own two feet is essential for thriving in society. In order to stimulate independence, encourage responsibility and avoid catering to young people. By requiring that they take responsibility for their own actions, their independence is built.

Each 4-H'er has potential and by capitalizing on their strengths one is being encouraging and helpful. Helping 4-Hers and youth develop to their fullest potential is a goal of the 4-H program.

Pain Relief Before Surgery Provides Lasting Benefit

Getting pain medicine well before surgery helps relieve pain that normally occurs after surgery. According to a study reported in The Journal of the American Medical Association, giving pain medicines before surgery blocks the nervous system's normal response to pain.

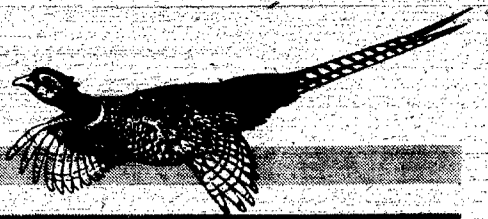

Researchers studied postoperative pain in 90 men who had prostate cancer. The men were divided into three groups. Men in group one received an epidural narcotic pain killer (placed into the spine) before surgery. Men in group two received local anesthesia before surgery. Men in group three received no pain relievers before surgery. After surgery, the men in groups one and two had 33% less pain than the men in group three. Nine weeks after surgery, 86% of the men who were pretreated with pain relievers were pain-free as compared to only 47% of the men who were not pretreated.

Busy with movies and books

Livestock Market Report

Have you seen "Titanic?" I haven't. Lately, I've been conducting a poll. I've run into an awful lot of folks who haven't seen it, and none of us feels especially deprived.

The subject of movies came up at work this week because of publication of the American Film Institute's Top 100 list. I'm beginning to feel culturally deprived. I've seen 20. I've never watched "Gone with the Wind" or "Casablanca." I just caught "The Third Man" on late-night TV a year ago and thought it was old. I've never even seen a clip from "Citizen Kane" and the only thing I remember about "The Godfather" is the horse's head in the bed! That was an awful sight!

"Sound of Music" made the list — I've probably seen it a half a dozen times, plus that many stage performances. I loved "E.T." but could care less about the "Star Wars" trilogy or "Raiders of the

I do have a vivid memory of "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" because it was so unusual in those days. Besides I loved Hepburn & Tracy (speaking of adultery). But I think "On Golden Pond" and "The Sting" should have made the list.

Another one from the '50's that is a vague recollection is "Giant." I actually bought a copy of MASH lately, but have not had time to watch it. It and the TV series, are my all-time favorites.

Obviously, we don't see many videos. We finally watched a borrowed copy of "Mrs. Doubtfire" last night. I think Robin Williams is an extremely talented man. I didn't expect this story to be so poignant. I cried a lot, as well as laughed. Besides, the Flying Nun and James Bond are also in it.

Earlier this year, I caught "To Wong Foo, Thanks a Lot, Julie Newmar," the one that was filmed at Omaha, Nebraska, four years ago. I was surprised how much I enjoyed it. Patrick Swayze makes a good woman. Now, I want to visit Omaha.

"Forest Gump" and "Dances with Wolves" made the list. I was not enthralled with the first, but did enjoy the latter. I'm really an extremely biased movie critic, in case you couldn't tell. And, our collection of videos is not growing by leaps and bounds.

Thanks to Kay, I have several of the musical classics, including "Fiddler on the Roof," which I've not watched yet, incidentally. Oh well, maybe the next time I have a stack of ironing.

Meanwhile, I'll keep trying to get my book collection read. Now there would be a challenge: the top 100 books.

Salute to Dairy Month

Local dairy to double production

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

MPM Farms, which has been operating a dairy four miles west of Wayne for nearly two years, will soon be expanding.

A second dairy facility will be located five miles south of Wakefield and will have the capacity to milk 2,000 cows each day. It is anticipated that the new facility will be ready for operation by late this year and will create an additional 12-15 jobs in the area.

"The new facility will be fairly similar to what we have already in operation. It is designed to operate as a twin to this one. One difference, however, will be that the new location will have a rotary parlor, which means that the cows will stand on a conveyor belt and move around in circle through the milking process," said Dr. Kent Pulfer, a veterinarian at MPM Farms and one of the partners in the business. The other partners are 'Bud' Mouw and his son Lance.

The new facility will be located on approximately 400 acres of land and will have housing on the premises.

Dr. Pulfer will continue to serve as manager of the present facility, as well as managing the new location.

At the present time the dairy west of Wayne is milking 1,600-1,700 cows. There are 13 employees working at the facility.

"Our cows are producing approximately 70 pounds of milk per cow, per day. This means we have more than 110,000 pounds of milk produced here each day," Dr. Pulfer said.

The milk from MPM Farms is sold to Wells Blue Bunny and goes to the LeMars, Iowa plant to be made into ice cream or to the Omaha plant where it is processed as fluid milk.

During an average day, the milking is done for eight hours. The cows being milked are housed in confinement barns. The 'dry' cows are kept in another barn prior to calving.

"Ideally, a cow is milked 305 days a year and allowed a 'dry' period of 60 days before calving again," Dr. Pulfer said.

The cows at MPM Farms are bred to produce cross-breed calves which are sold locally.

Replacement cows are purchased from a number of locations, including Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Wisconsin.

Approximately 400 tons of hay are consumed by the cows at MPM Farms, much of which is bought locally. In addition, a blend of grains and silage are fed each day.

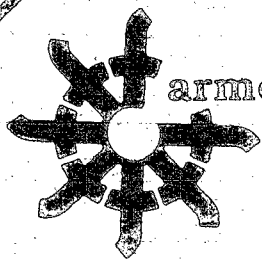

"During the past year we have experienced favorable conditions, both with the weather and the availability of feed for the cows. We hope to continue this trend into the future," Dr. Pulfer added.

Cattle that are not being milked at MPM Farms are housed in 'dry' lots until they have calves. The cows are only one aspect of the dairy that has attracted a number of area school children, 4-H clubs and other groups to the dairy for tours.

Cows at MPM Farms are housed in two large barns, each capable of holding more than 900 head. The new facility, to be built south of Wakefield, will have barns that will be longer and capable of holding more cows.

More Americans eating on the go

For most Americans, the summer months mean taking advantage of sunny skies and warmer temperatures. Whether they prefer catching rays at the pool or playing ball in the park, one thing is certain, Americans are packing up and heading outside for fun in the sun. And who can blame them? After being trapped inside during the cold winter months, sunshine and fresh air are irresistible and with the beautiful weather, comes a melange of fun summer activities. With literally thousands of festivals, parks, pools, games and concerts to enjoy from coast to coast, it's no surprise most Americans choose to relax and play outside during the summer months—all ages, personalities and types of people can find something to enjoy. Whether it's music festival, day at the beach, baseball game, backyard barbecue or an invigorating hike, summer offers something for everyone.

And wherever they choose to whittle away the long summer days Americans can agree on one thing—snacks! Heading out the door with a meal on-the-go is a must. According to a recent national survey* by the American Dairy Association (ADA), nearly 86 percent of Americans will pack a lunch or snack to enjoy outdoors at least one time a month, while almost 18 percent heed the call of the great outdoors and transport their favorite foods more than four times a month.

Major retail stores also report a noticeable upswing in sales of portable outdoor accessories such as picnic baskets and plastic dinnerware. "Our brightly-colored spring and summer plastic ware collections are some of our hottest sellers this time of year," said Joy Rick of Pier 1 Imports, a national housewares chain. "More and more people are taking advantage of great summer weather and doing everything, including eating and entertaining, outdoor."

Not only are Americans enjoying snacks on the go, it seems they usually have a favorite place to enjoy them as well. Nearly 22 percent of Americans take their portable snacks into the wilderness for camping or hiking and 17 percent choose the neighborhood park as their outdoor picnic spot of choice. More than 14 percent favor dining, poolside or at the beach; while another 14 percent prefer picnicking at a festival, concert or sporting event. But the most popular outdoor destination is simple and requires just a few plastic chairs and citronella candles—the American Backyard—with 27 percent of those surveyed naming it their favorite place to dine al fresco.

While people on-the-go were once faced with buying often over-priced low quality food or loading up a heavy cooler full of standard picnic fare (basic lunch-meat sandwiches, traditional potato salad and a bag of corn chips), today's active endeavors can create great meals that are easy to take along. While lunch at a baseball game might once have meant ballpark hot dogs and peanuts, fans now want their favorite "home team" snacks at "away games." And more and more, those snacks include cheese.

Today 40 percent of Americans list cheese by itself as a favorite snack for watching sports and 66 percent say the best snacks use cheese as an ingredient. In fact, the ADA has developed new recipes for summertime adventurers combining the ease of portable snacking with delicious and satisfying cheese. Whether it's Chilled Cannoli Cookies for a refreshing snack by the pool or Summer Asparagus Roll-ups for a quick energy boost during a bicycle ride, these recipes can be made in a flash, and once packed, require no additional cooking or preparation.

So this summer, rather than packing up the same old sandwich and bag of chips, add a little variety to summer with cheese—from hearty sandwiches to luscious desserts, the possibilities are limitless. Whether you take Brie and bread to an outdoor concert or Cheddar and crisp red apples for an active sport like white-water rafting, make a date with cheese to get outside and enjoy the summer.

Prep time: 25 minutes
Cooling time: 30 minutes

- 4 fresh ripe (or 8 canned halves) peaches or nectarines
- 1-1/2 cups (about 12 ounces) peach or pear nectar
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 6-inch cinnamon stick
- 1/2 teaspoon whole cloves
- 4 quarter-sized slices of fresh, peeled ginger
- 1/3 cup (4 ounces) heavy cream
- 2/3 cup (6 ounces) mascarpone cheese
- 1-1/2 tablespoons sugar or to taste
- 6 gingersnap cookies, crumbled

Drop peaches in boiling water for one minute. Remove from heat and cool in cold water. Peel off skin with small paring knife; cut peaches in half and remove pit. - 2 teaspoons fresh sage, chopped, or 1/2 teaspoon dried
- 2 teaspoons fresh rosemary, chopped, or 1/2 teaspoon dried

- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 4 crusty rolls of choice, French, Italian, sourdough
- 1/3 cup balsamic vinaigrette dressing
- 2 cups (about 4 ounces) arugula, washed and dried
- 8 pieces (about 4 ounces) prosciutto, thinly sliced
- 8 pieces (about 4 ounces) provolone, thinly sliced

Milk is good nutritious choice

Milk is one of the safest and most nutritious foods available to consumers. It is a highly perishable product, and from the time it leaves the cow until it reaches your refrigerator, milk must be maintained within an optimum temperature range to prevent premature spoilage. The entire process from production to processing is attended to with great detail to ensure sanitation and quality.

The process of caring for milk starts on the farm. The health of the cows is carefully monitored before milking. They are vaccinated and continuously checked to be sure they are in excellent health. The animals are bred for their ability to produce large amounts of high quality milk. Adequate facilities, good management practices and proper handling procedures are also important. Before leaving the farm, the milk is sampled for chemical and microbial analysis. Only top quality and properly cooled milk will be transported to the processing plant.

Further analysis is done for taste, butterfat content, temperature, chemical and microbiological samples when the milk arrives at the processing plant and even after it is processed, pasteurized and homogenized. Federal regulators and trained quality control personnel monitor operations at every dairy plant. They document the automated processes and ensure sanitation, quality, storage and proper pasteurization of the milk. Laboratory technicians analyze both the raw and finished products. Packaged dairy products must pass laboratory tests for pasteurization, and quality, before sent to grocery stores for consumers.

The processing and quality control for dairy products are the most sophisticated in the food industry. Consumers can be assured of a high quality product which tasted good and also is very nutritious.

Missouri family typifies dairy farming tradition

The Hegeman family is typical of many dairy families. The tradition of dairy farming has been in the family for generations. Beginning with Frank and Henry Hegeman over 125 years ago, the dairy business has been the family livelihood, and a way of life for the Hegeman family.

Don Hegeman's farm is near Cosby, Mo., just seven miles from St. Joseph, Mo. Don's grandfather, Henry, began dairy farming over 125 years ago. Don's father, Harry, took over the farm from his father, Henry, and later passed it down to Don. Don raises about 350 head of livestock of which he milks about 120 Holstein, more cows than his father and grandfather could raise and milk.

It is a 24 (hours-a-day)-7 (days-a-week)-365 (days of the year) job. The Hegemans milk their cows twice each day, every day, every weekend and even on holidays. They begin the first milking at 5 a.m. and then milk again at 4 p.m. That is the routine of their dairy life; the hours are long and the commitment is unending. Don has done it all his life; 69 years. But that is what Don likes about dairy farming. "It causes us to get up and get started and work late into the evening."

The milking process on the Hegeman dairy farm takes two trained people about two and a half to three hours to milk their 120 cows. The milking barn is equipped to milk about 12 cows at a time. Don explains, "The milk truck comes daily around 9 a.m. to pick up the cooled milk from the two previous milkings, around 1,000 gallons a day, and then takes the milk to Omaha to Roberts Dairy."

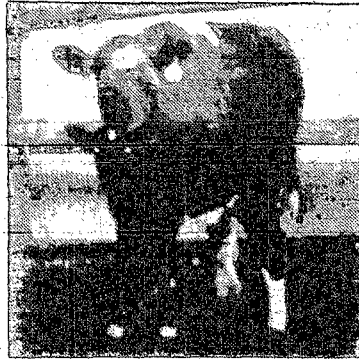

Over the years, Don has seen the dairy business change. "It's not as grueling as it used to be when we had to put up our own hay in small bales."

Don remembers his father purchasing the family's first milking machine in 1938, but he also remembers his dad sitting on a one-legged stool to milk cows by hand. Over the years, Don remembers several special cows, one cow in particular, P-Lynn, had amazing lactation and produced 38,100 pounds of milk in 365 days. (average pounds per year 17,000).

Today, the Hegemans raise most of their own feed, alfalfa and corn, on their 1,100 acre farm. They have computerized continuous feeding which allows them to separate and feed the cows according to production. The computerized grain feeder also allows them to feed the cows continuously all day instead of twice a day. The cows listen to music when they milk, mostly country-western. Don has also seen changes like the large hay bales and new ways to test forage for nutrients to increase milk production.

Don's sons, Fritz and Dan, plan to carry on in their dad's footsteps and this will mark the fourth generation in the Hegeman family to be dairy farmers. As they look to the future, the Hegemans face the problems of finding and keeping good labor and tackling new ways to obtain maximum production and efficiency. But dairy farming is what life is all about for the Hegemans. It is their business, a way of life, and a tradition instilled in their family for generations.

Dairy calves are generally taken away from their mothers soon after birth and often given to stock cows to raise.

Dairy Important Facts

Milk and Milk Group Foods are one of the richest sources of calcium in the American diet. Milk also contains vitamin D, vitamin A, vitamin B-12, niacin, thiamin, potassium, protein, magnesium, phosphorus and riboflavin.

There is a calcium crisis among American teenagers! Nine out of ten teen girls and seven out of ten teen boys are not getting the calcium they need to build strong bones. Teens need four servings of Milk Group Foods each day.

Dairy products, in controlled studies, have been shown to reduce the risk of hypertension, kidney stones, colon cancer and osteoporosis.

There is a dairy product for everyone with a powerful nutrient punch. Whole milk, reduced fat, low fat and nonfat milk all contain the same amount of calcium and are good for you. Cheese and yogurt are also good sources of calcium.

Consuming dairy products increases bone not weight. In a recent study, teenagers who increased their dairy intake did not experience any detrimental effect on weight, body fat or blood cholesterol.

Americans need more calcium. New guidelines released in 1997 by the National Academy of Sciences increased the recommended amount of calcium needed for Americans to provide maximum bone health and to receive overall health benefits. Americans need three to four servings of dairy each day depending on their age.
