

Council listens to proposed budget

By Clara Osten
Of the Herald

The proposed 1998-99 budget for the city of Wayne was presented to the city council at Tuesday's meeting.

The total budget is $15.9 million.

City Administrator Joe Salitros outlined a number of areas of concern for the upcoming budget year and into the future.

These include the deregulation of electricity, the codification of city ordinances, computer-aided mapping (CAD/GPS) for the city, sidewalk improvement, the Lied Main Street project, privatization of some services now offered by the city and the auditorium renovation.

State regulations require that the city's levy not exceed 45 cents per $100 valuation, including the airport's tax asking.

The total city levy is 54 cents, which includes the debt service owed by the city. This represents an 8.75 percent reduction from last year's levy.

A public hearing will be held Sept. 8 in regard to the budget with final approval following the hearing.

Following a public hearing, the council approved a resolution which will allow for amendments to the 1997-98 budget in the General, Transfer Station, Electric, Sewer, Water, Capital Projects, Debt Service and TIF Funds.

A second public hearing was held in regard to the acquisition of land in Boyles Outlot near the new First National Bankcard Center. The land is owned by Praise Assembly of God Church which is willing to sell 1.149 acres to the city.

On a 7-0 vote, the council voted to move forward with the acquisition.

The council approved the plat of the Centennial Valley Second Addition which subdivides the Boyles Outlot into three lots and dedicates a street right-of-way.

Jim Condon of Olsson & Associates was present at the council meeting to discuss the odor control study his firm has been involved in for some time.

He told the council the two issues were addressed in the study, source control and chemical addition.

Source control did not have any effect on the odor problem and the firm then looked at several different chemicals for reduction of the odor. Ferrous chloride proved to be the least expensive and most effective for the money.

In recent weeks a significant reduction has been noticed in both the odor and the number of complaints. Condon told the council that the problem has not been eliminated but has been improved.

The cost for installing the chemical addition system is $48,000 and estimated operating cost is $8,700 annually.

Reggie Yates, chairman of the Wayne Community Economic Development Association, explained to the council the need for a Main Street program in the city of Wayne to re-vitalize the area.

He also explained the four areas of the program, including organization, promotion, economic restructuring and design.

Yates asked the city to consider putting $40,000 per year into the city's budget for the program. The money represents less than one-half of the estimated cost to run the program.

In other action, Ray Nelson of the Wayne Baseball Association was present to thank the council and the city for its support of the renovation that took place at Hank Overin Field prior to the State Baseball tournament this summer.

The council also approved the application of Martha L. Pojar as the corporate manager for Kum & Go.

Parking spots were scarce near the dorms on the Wayne State College campus on Saturday as students began moving into their new homes. Orientation was held for freshmen over the weekend with classes beginning on Monday and Tuesday. Classes for students at Wayne Public Schools and St. Mary's Elementary in Wayne began today.

School board members attend workshop at Wayne State College

By Lynn Sievers
Of the Herald

A workshop addressing personalities, expectations, goals, and evaluation was conducted during the Aug. 24 meeting of the Wayne Community School Board held at the Wayne State College Student Center.

Randy Nelson, superintendent of the Norfolk Public Schools, presented the workshop.

Bill Dickey, a visitor and candidate for the school board, was present and participated in the workshop.

Nelson started the workshop with a personality/leadership traits exercise where personality styles were determined through answering a series of questions.

Team building activities followed with the board and the superintendent agreeing there were three values most important to them. The values deemed most important were trust, dependability, and high standards.

Nelson told the group there must be trust in order for them to be effective. Without trust there is little cooperation; there is anger, frustration, bad attitudes, and a lot of absenteeism of administration, teachers, staff, and community in general. He reminded them that trust is a two-way street.

During the workshop the board determined their expectations of the new superintendent which included: develop a climate of trust, keep board informed, keep students best interests first in decision making processes, maintain high quality in school within financial constraints, be honest, be a link to drawing community and schools together, make sure principals understand their roles, develop team approach, commit to educate ALL children equally, have on going professional development, get feedback from Wayne High graduates as to the strengths and weaknesses of the school system, take time to get to know faculty, staff, and community, balance between job and personal life, identify good and bad of school system, and be available to listen to concerns which board members may have.

Expectations of the board by Dr. Reinert included that they have no surprises, be committed to goals and stick with them; let him lead, understand that he does not have all the answers, listen, give him time to accomplish goals, and trust that he has the best interest of the students at heart.

The main goal set by the group was to develop a plan or framework for building trust within the district. It was decided that some ways in which trust could grow was by having Dr. Reinert more visible in the community; having meetings with people who share opposite ideas, with different organizations, with Wayne State College representatives, with other school district representatives, and with staff members.

Some more ways to build trust would be to identify issues and act on them, have the board and superintendent stand together in what they say and do, rebuild bridges with people which may have been torn down in the past, and build on the bond issue.

Some of the activities which Dr. Reinert has accomplished since he took over his position on July 1 include: meeting with people downtown and sending out public surveys, attending Chamber of Commerce meetings, and meeting with staff and also sending them surveys.

Nelson told the group that they would work together more effectively by identifying and understanding people better and one way to accomplish this is by attending workshops addressing such topics. At the end of the meeting he told them to evaluate the superintendent and see if the goals set tie in with the evaluation.

When Nelson was asked by a board member what he felt an ideal school board consisted of, he answered by saying that he felt they should do the right thing for the children no matter what.

The regularly scheduled meeting will be held on Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. in the high school building.

Enrollment holds steady

Fall classes have begun at Wayne State College with essentially the same number of students enrolled this fall as compared to last, according to figures released by the College's Office of Enrollment Management. The school recorded a first day headcount of 3,696 students in both on-campus and off-campus classes.

"We are pleased with the early numbers of students who have chosen Wayne State College this fall," said Bonnie Scranton, assistant vice president for enrollment management. She noted the two portions of the student body showing the largest increase are the junior class and post-baccalaureate students.

Official fall semester enrollment numbers will be announced on Oct. 15, which is the national census day used by all colleges and universities across the country. Scranton said she expects this to be another strong year for enrollment at Wayne State.

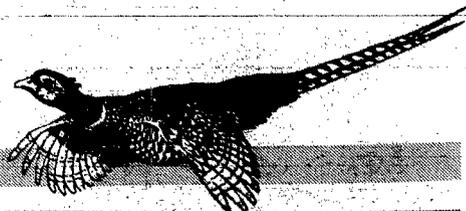

Riding for a good cause

A number of local residents gathered on Saturday to join in the annual motorcycle ride sponsored by Elsworth Harley Davidson of Norfolk. The group raised around $2,500 in donations for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA). This is the 10 year anniversary of the annual ride. The local group met at the White Horse service station in Wayne and then traveled to Norfolk where they met with the nearly 200 people on around 125 motorcycles participating in this year's event. They visited several area towns on their way to Crofton where they had a barbeque in the city park that evening. Participants gathering in Wayne include, left to right, Dennis Rodby of Wakefield, Tom and Judy Olson of Allen, Steve Obermeyer of Wakefield, Tom and Cindy Schmitz of Wayne, Carey and Laurie Rhoads of Wakefield, Dan and Amy Soward of Wayne, Jim and Connie Granquist of Wayne, Jason Erb of Wakefield, Randy Luebbert of Wayne, Larry and Betty Mitchell of Wayne, and Bill Sweeney of Wayne.

New NSEA president visits Wayne

By Lynn Slevers
Of the Herald

Duane Obermier, new Nebraska State Education Association (NSEA) president, recently visited Wayne acquainting himself with the area and keeping the community updated on NSEA news.

One issue of prime importance that the NSEA is focusing on is the Business Summit Amendment which is on ballot in November.

The group, "Citizens for Nebraska's Future," is promoting the amendment and the NSEA coalition, "Nebraskans for the Good Life," are opposing it. The reason for the opposition is because of the potential damage it could do to Nebraska.

There are three main concerns which the NSEA has with the amendment and they are: 1) the ill effect it would have on schools and other governmental subdivisions, 2) it could stop property tax relief that the legislature has implemented through LB114 as it puts a levy cap from $1.10 this year to $1 in two years, and 3) it would have a negative effect on small businesses as it limits spending that government subdivisions could do.

"Schools are a big part of spending in towns," Obermier said.

"The teaching profession is an aging one," he said. With the passing of LB822 (rule of 85) which is a combination of a teacher's age plus years of service reaching 85, a teacher can retire with no reduction of benefits. There have been more teachers retiring now because of LB822.

"In a typical year in Nebraska (excluding Omaha) there have been around 500 teachers retiring. The number now is doubled with the outlook expected higher in the years to come. It is expected that within the next 10 years there will be 10,000 teachers retiring in Nebraska.

Obermier comments that young teachers are needed in Nebraska as replacements. He stated that a mentoring program will be growing in Nebraska where experienced teachers help new teachers get started.

Another project vital to the teaching profession is the setting of education standards. The State Board of Education is currently working on setting standards but the project is in its infancy.

Obermier said there are many questions that must be asked before standards can be established. Some of those questions are: How can standards be measured? Should schools be rewarded if they are meeting standards and how? What happens to schools if they don't meet standards? Will the passing of specific standards cause local control to dwindle?

"We will hear a lot about this issue in the months and years to come," Obermier said.

Some history of the NSEA includes: the association is 130 years old, it is an advocate for teachers, students and public schools, there are between 23-24,000 members statewide, it has a department for teaching and learning where schools and teachers can access in-service, teaching information and techniques, and the NSEA helps local organizations bargain with school boards for salary raises.

The NSEA is politically active, lobbying in the Unicameral for bills that are good for schools and against those that are not.

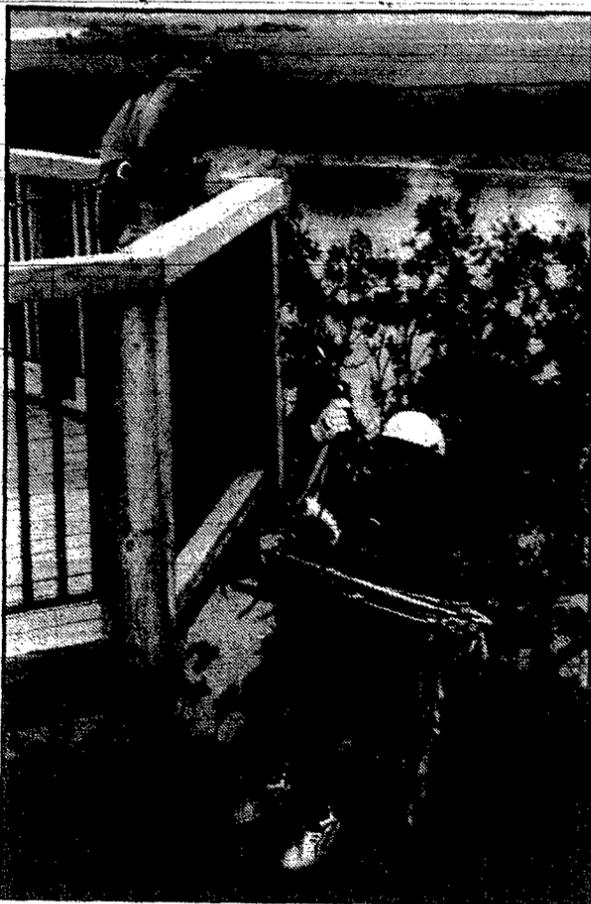

Obermier graduated from Waco in 1961 and from Kearney State College in 1965. He taught for two years at Hastings High School and then went to Grand Island where he taught for 31 years.

Obermier has been active in the NSEA for the past 11 years, being on the Board of Directors for five years and vice president for six years. He was a full time teacher while he was on the board. He is married and has three children who are married and live in Grand Island.

"We moved to Lincoln now and are away from our children and grandchildren which is a real change," Obermier said.

"There are many good people working with the NSEA. Two of whom are Jim Griess and Herb Schimek who happened to be fellow teachers of mine while I was teaching at Hastings High School," Obermier said.

Obermier invites interested teachers and students to become members and be active in the NSEA and the causes they strive for.

Rescue school

Several northeast Nebraska volunteer fire fighters from Ponca, Wakefield and Wayne participated in an Advanced Level Rope/Rescue Class held recently in Ponca. Students gained experience in setting up elaborate repelling systems in order to conduct victim/rescuer scenarios. Sites that were chosen were an observation deck at Ponca State Park (shown above) and a 275 foot summit overlooking the Missouri River. Those participating were Dan Brown of Wakefield and Mark Cook of Ponca (pictured) and Ron Wriedt, Brent Doring and Marlene Mueller of Wayne.

Nebraska farm custom rates available soon

For nearly 40 years, the University of Nebraska has published a Custom Rates Survey for the thousands of Nebraska producers who perform custom work or hire custom operators. This publication has become a valuable asset for anyone needing to know the current charges for performing custom operations.

The actual rates charged for custom work depend on local conditions, field conditions and the current costs machinery, fuel, and labor. Since rates tend to vary throughout the state, the custom rates survey is reported not only by state rates but also by geographical region.

The custom rates survey is done in two parts. Part one is a report of spring and summer rates. This includes land tillage operations, planting and post planting operations, haying and baling, fertilizing, small grain harvest and custom contract farming. This survey usually is conducted from March to May.

Part two is a report of fall operations. This includes grain harvesting, silage making and a variety of hauling operations. This survey is usually conducted from June to August. The 1998 survey will be published in the Nebraska Farmer magazine this fall and as a Cooperative Extension publication. They will be available through a local extension office or NU.

Finally, the custom rates survey is a guideline, not a calculation of calculated costs for a specific operation. It is recommended to use the Custom Rates Survey as a guide to lead friendly negotiations between producers on the value of the custom operations performed.

For more information, contact a local Cooperative Extension office.

The Principal's Office

Three years ago the National Association of Secondary School Principals in concert with the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, formed a commission to look at the whole question of what high school reform is about and what kinds of things have to change.

In the end, a document was produced called "Breaking Banks: Changing an American Institution." Many of the recommendations contained in the report were shocking and surprising considering they came from practicing school principals.

Most of the data dealt with items such as school size, essential learning activities and curriculum. One recommendation, however, was quite remarkable. It stated that the business community should start looking at report cards. Schools very rarely receive a call from business persons inquiring about a student.

Business people often say that school transcripts are designed for colleges to review. "We don't know how to read them," they'd say. It doesn't take great effort to look at the attendance record of a student. One could at least see if the student missed 30 percent of school and if he did, that youth might not have a good work ethic. School performance has been shown to be an excellent predictor of job performance.

The guidance office, teaching staff and administration at Wayne High School welcome the opportunity to provide input to area businesses regarding their students and their school performance. Use of these resources can provide you with data to allow you to make informed decisions when hiring new employees. It may also save time and money required for retraining when employees fail to measure up.

Do not hesitate to contact us at Wayne High School when considering students as employees.

Courts struggle to define murder

By Leslie Boellstorff Reed
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

When I was a kid, I used to watch an awful lot of "The Big Valley" reruns when I got home from school. Jarrod or Heath frequently were forced to defend themselves in a gun battle, only to be arrested for murder in a town far away from home. Even though they had killed only in self-defense, they had to prove it or they'd hang.

It was pretty simple law, that even a sixth-grader could understand. Killing is defensible only if it's in self-defense. Otherwise, it's the gallows for you.

The Nebraska Supreme Court may wish it were as simple today. After four years of insisting that second-degree murder must include the element of malice, even though the Legislature removed that word from the law in 1977, the court now has said, basically, "Never mind."

It's part and parcel of our legal system's quixotic effort to quantify evil - something I've spent a good deal of my career trying to understand and explain.

It's based upon a seemingly straightforward premise, that not all murders call for a death sentence. But, oh, how our courts struggle and scramble to define, with fairness and consistency, which is a killing that deserves a death sentence and which is a killing that is somehow more acceptable.

At the top of the scale is first-degree, "premeditated" murder. These are the crimes considered so serious that, under Nebraska law, they warrant either death or life in prison. That distinction - should it be death or should it be life in prison? - alone has consumed the U.S. court system for more than 25 years now.

At the other end is manslaughter - a slaying that occurs accidentally while committing some other illegal act.

In between is second-degree murder, a hybrid crime committed intentionally, even though it is not planned in advance. The struggle to define a crime that is not so bad as premeditated murder, but worse than manslaughter, has been the defining controversy for the Nebraska Supreme Court in the last years of the 20th Century. The problem dates back to 1977. During a recodification of state criminal law led by then State Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln - who later went on to become lieutenant governor and Lincoln mayor - the Legislature deliberately removed the element of malice from the definition of second-degree murder.

Luedtke said the change made the distinction between first-degree and second-degree murder crystal clear.

"We made it simple," he said. "Prosecutors were delighted with it."

But for four years, a majority of the Nebraska Supreme Court was not exactly delighted. Judges including Dale Fahrbruch, C. Thomas White and Nick Caporale concluded that the statutory definition of second-degree murder was too vague. They said "malice forethought" had to be included in the definition of second-degree murder to "distinguish it from manslaughter and from legally permissible slayings, such as execution.

In case after case, the high court ruled that jury instructions and charges must include "malice" as an element of second-degree murder. In more than 20 cases, the court made no exceptions to its rule. Eventually, more than 60 people took advantage of the ruling to win resentencing.

Luedtke said the majority's problem was that it believed there was such a thing as intentional manslaughter, a crime committed during the heat of emotion. The criminal code as devised in 1978 did not envision intentional manslaughter, Luedtke said. "If it was intentional, second-degree murder," he said. "If it was unintentional, it was manslaughter."

The decision had been controversial within the court. Dissenting judges had called it "judicial jargon-wocky." Judge David Lanphier was ousted by voters partly because he assented to the ruling. With Lanphier gone and Fahrbruch retired, it appeared that a new majority was developing, one that would overturn the second-degree murder ruling.

Caporale now has retired as well and Chief Justice White soon will follow. But the second-degree murder ruling will continue to haunt the high court. Attorney General Don Stenberg recently announced that he will seek to reinstate the original sentences of the 60 people who won relief under the previous ruling.

Now I have come to the end of this story and, I regret to say, the end of my stint writing these columns for the Nebraska Press Association. My boss at the World-Herald has reversed a previous decision and concluded that my writing of these columns violates our newspaper's policy.

I have greatly enjoyed writing these pieces, which I hope have given you an inside glimpse of the State Capitol. Best wishes, until we meet again.

Genealogy Corner

Family research conducted

Having spent a portion of my summer in New York and Pennsylvania conducting genealogical research, most notably at cemeteries, I feel the time has come to address this important, and sometimes overlooked, source of genealogical information.

There are five types of cemeteries in the United States: the churchyard, the church-owned cemetery, the government-owned cemetery, the privately-owned cemetery and the family cemetery.

The churchyard, common in the colonies and brought to America by early settlers, is where members of a church are buried, right on the church grounds. The church-owned cemetery is not necessarily located on the church's grounds, but is a cemetery located on church-owned land.

The government-owned cemetery is maintained by taxpayers.

The privately-owned cemetery (non-church) is a business enterprise.

The family cemetery is usually on a farm or an estate and is for the use of the family owning it.

The cemetery records that genealogists most often look to for information are the tombstone markings and inscriptions and the Sextons' records.

Early burials, going back several hundred years, were marked with only a fieldstone, no inscriptions. Many of these cemeteries have been abandoned and there are no markers of any kind left.

More modern markers, those with inscriptions, often provide information such as a name and a date of death. Still others provide more extensive information such as dates of birth (and sometimes a marriage date or place), names of parents, names of spouses, names of children, military service and religious affiliation. Tombstones with only initials are more likely to be found within a family plot, where there is a larger headstone bearing the family's surname.

A good example I can share of how extensive tombstone inscriptions are is that of my (three)-great grandfather, George Franklin Tubbs. George married three times, and between his three wives produced 17 children; six with his first wife, eight with his second and three with his third.

Unfortunately, of the eight children of George and his second wife, only one lived to reach adulthood. The four-sided Tubbs monument lists not only George and his second and third wives, but the seven infants (by first and middle names and dates of birth and death) by his second wife who died young.

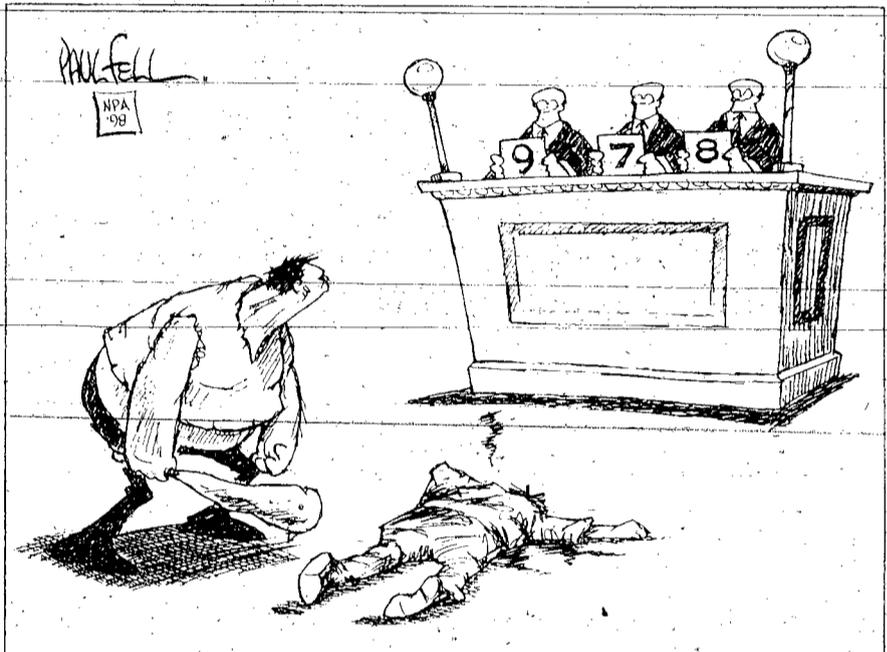

Without this tombstone inscription, I would have been hard-pressed to know of the existence of these children, considering they were all born and died between 1850 and 1870, long before vital registration was common and widespread.

While tombstone inscriptions can provide clues about our ancestors we also must remember that many of our ancestors were buried in what is referred to as an "unmarked grave." Unmarked graves, usually leave a depression in the surface of the ground, particularly if a vault was not used.

In this case, records, where available, should be consulted. The information contained within the Sextons' records can vary as widely as that information inscribed on a tombstone. Some records provide only as much information as that which is noted on the stone, other records are more extensive.

And in some cases there are no records at all. Many, many cemeteries are no longer maintained; if there were records at one time they probably no longer exist. Abandoned cemeteries are not uncommon. Tall grass, dominant weeds and thickets abound. Many stones are eroded to the point of illegibility. With no records available and no one left that would know about the plots, there is no way to tell who might be buried there.

While it is inevitable that you will encounter abandoned cemeteries, unmarked graves and no records, this aspect of genealogical research must not be overlooked.

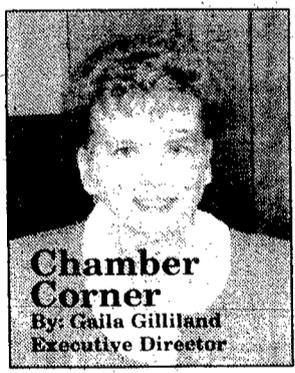

Wayne 'W. O. W.' game explained

Are you prepared for WSC students to play the "W.O.W." game at your business location? How is the "W.O.W." game played? What are the rules?

Last year the Retail Council designed the "W.O.W." game as Wayne's Outstanding Welcome to WSC students. Beginning Sept. 2, students can play the "W.O.W." game and are asked to go into 10 different Wayne businesses to pick up either a business card and/or a receipt. There are five business categories; students will need two cards or receipts from each category.

Those categories are (1) Restaurants/Lounges such as The Max or Runza; (2) Service/Service-oriented such as Farmers & Merchants State Bank, Wayne Vision Center of Farm Bureau Insurance; (3) Retail such as Pamida, Quality Food Center or

Chamber Corner
By Gaila Gilliland
Executive Director

the Diamond Center; (4) Gas/Convenience such as Wayne East or Fredrickson Oil Co. The final category is Your Choice; this is any business the student wants to visit!

Those cards and receipts will then be brought to the Chamber office for validation. At that time, the student will register to win Chamber Bucks. A drawing for a grand total of $500 in Chamber Bucks will be held 5:10 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 17 at the Chamber office. Three $50 winners, one $100 winner and one $250 winner will be drawn.

The "W.O.W." game is a wonderful opportunity for your business! Let the students know how pleased you are to have them in Wayne! They'll be coming in and asking for your business cards. Students will be exposed to a large number of businesses throughout Wayne - including yours!

Look for two specially designed gold colored flyers in the next edition of Chamber News. One tells you everything students need to know to play the game. Make sure your employees know and understand the game as well. The other flyer is designed to be placed in your window or otherwise in your business to notify students they can play the game there.

To make sure you're fully informed, contact the Chamber/Industries office at 375-2240 for more information.

Program funding was contributed by Farmers & Merchants State Bank, Wayne East, Wayne Vision Center and State National Bank & Trust Co. Upon registering, students will also receive a food coupon courtesy of one of the many fine food vendors in Wayne.

Be sure to thank these merchants for supporting the "W.O.W." game!

Discussing the week's news

An unusually quiet Saturday morning at the Farm House. No guests for breakfast, only a couple phone calls, only one bed to make and bathroom to clean (left from middle of the week travelers, Indiana to Colorado.)

At lunch I commented to the Big Farmer, "I don't have the foggiest notion of a topic for the column. Nothing happened this week." As soon as I said that, I corrected myself, "actually, a lot has happened. But everyone else has already written about it. What more is there to say?"

As always, I worry about terrorism. No matter what security measures are taken, we all are vulnerable. As the Today Show pointed out this morning, the next bomb could be a sports event. Unlike the U.S., who tries not to hit civilians, these guys are not particular. It's time for the annual disaster preparedness review at my place of employment. Ever since the plane crash at Sioux City, I've taken these very seriously.

My heart went out to the rescue workers and medical personnel in the initial footage from Kenya. I was ready to call the air lines and go. At times like that, there aren't enough hands.

The radio just announced a temperature of 85 degrees and the humidity continues. It's difficult to realize the first Husker game is a week away. We're already turning away calls for reservations for the Washington game. Several old college buddies have been booked for months. It should be a fun weekend.

As for the other news this week: as Jay Leno announced, "My goodness. You could have knocked me over with a feather." But it's very sad. As one editorial put it, "the office Washington and Lincoln made great being lampooned nightly on the Leno Show."

It's sad not to have trust in the president. I don't think I ever had in this one. To those who say, "they all do it," I'm sure they all don't. In fact, we got into a discussion at work about which did and which didn't. How do we know? I never wanted to know.

They all do what? Have sex outside of marriage or lie? Lie under oath? Just in the six years we've been in the community, I've seen two ministers and a school superintendent destroy their careers by indulging in extra-marital activities.

The fact that there are still staunch supporters amazes me. This guy is the greatest actor we've ever seen outside of Hollywood. Even his "apology" was completely self-serving. Invoking the name of God offended me. But neighbor Judeen reminded me at choir on Wednesday evening that he needs to be in our prayers. I'll try to remember that.

Meanwhile, summer is winding down. The State Fair begins next week. I saw a couple of ears of corn that were well dented this week. They will soon be harvesting.

And life will go on, in spite of the news. And it's time to get this to the mail box.

The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of the Herald.

Doug Rose wins third title in last four years

Everything came up Rose's

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

Early August wasn't kind to Wayne golfer Doug Rose.

One of the most consistent linksters in recent years at the Wayne Country Club, Rose suffered a blow that nearly kept him out of this year's Club Golf Tournament.

He broke his left-pinky finger playing the other summer sport he loves—softball.

And to top it off, he broke the finger by pitching batting practice to one of his own teammates.

He got the finger splinted and hit the golf course just four days later—after playing five more softball games at the state tournament following the broken finger incident.

The result wasn't good.

He tried again the next day and this time it was a little better.

"All I wanted to do was get to a point where I could swing the club so I could be competitive at the club tournament," Rose said.

Competitive he was as he walked away with his third club championship in the last four years during Sunday's annual event.

Rose fired rounds of 36-35-39 to post a two-over-par 110 to edge Jim Shanks by two strokes. It was Shanks' second runner-up finish in as many outings.

It was a rather eventful opening round of golf for Rose with three bogeys, three pars and three birdies for the 36 on the front nine.

He got more consistent on the back nine posting a one-under-par 35 before the championship nine.

Shanks came on very strong in the final nine holes and made up three strokes on Rose on the first two holes after going birdie, birdie on one and two while Rose had a bogey on one and par on two.

Both players parred three and four with Shanks taking bogey on five while Rose parred the hole to put his lead back at two strokes.

Shanks trimmed the gap to one on six with a par while Rose suffered a bogey but the match swayed to Rose's favor on seven as he got up-and-down for par from just shy of the green while Shanks bogeyed the hole. Both players bogeyed eight and parred nine to give Rose the two stroke victory.

Dave Hix and John Fuelberth also played in the final foursome of the day and Hix snapped some of the attention his way with his finish on-eight and nine when he went birdie, eagle for a final round score of one-under, 35—the best of the 28-man field.

Hix tied Shanks at 112 but lost a scorecard playoff and settled for third place while Marty Summerfield placed fourth with a 115 after a 78-37.

Rob Sweetland posted the low round of the day with a three-under-par 33 to open the 27-hole event but settled for fifth place with a 115.

John Fuelberth placed sixth at 116 beating defending champ Ken Dahl in a scorecard playoff. Scott Metzler rounded out the list of placers with a 117.

THERE WAS PLENTY of other golfing going on, Sunday as well as nine flights of golfers competed for top honors in their respective handicap areas.

Jim Nelson claimed top honors in the first flight with a 73 while Craig Sharpe was runner-up with an 81. Terry Munson was third at 82 and Dennis Jensen, fourth with an 84.

Lee Tietgen won the second flight with a 78 followed by Grant Ellington with an 82. Don Preston was third with an 83 and Bill Sharpe, fourth with an 85.

Mike Barry won the third flight with an 82, edging Chuck Surber and Randy Simonsen with the same score. Tim Keller was fourth with an 86.

Tim Sutton captured the fourth flight with an 85 while Marion Arneson was second with an 85 and Ryan Williams, third with an 86. Lee Remer finished fourth with an 88.

Quentin Preston won the fifth flight with an 89, edging Dick Hitchcock with the same score. Steve Muir was third with a 95 and Terry Schulz, fourth with a 96.

Lowell Heggemeyer won the sixth flight with a 92 with Bob Jordan placing second with the same score.

Carl Hubble was third with a 93 and Mark McCorkindale, fourth with a 97.

Marv Nelson won the seventh flight with an 89 followed by Mike Jaixen with a 91 and Pete Chapman with a 92. Spencer Stednitz finished fourth with a 99.

Randy Dunklau won the eighth flight with a 94 followed by Jerry Dorcey with a 97 and Wally Bull with a 99. Ron Surber placed fourth with a 101.

The final flight was netted out due to large handicap differentials. Brian Bowers was the winner with a 100 with Ted Baack placing second with a 99 and Dave Ley, third with a 101. Michael Wynn was fourth with a 102.

THE WOMEN OF the Country Club had to settle business on the course as well with Ginny Hansen edging Sandra Sutton for the women's overall title with a 76.

Sutton fired a 77 to finish one stroke back. "Sandra really played well," Hansen said. "I found myself having to make five-and-six footers on the back nine just to keep pace."

Sutton started the back nine with a birdie on 10, a par on 11 and a birdie on 12 to put a major push on Hansen.

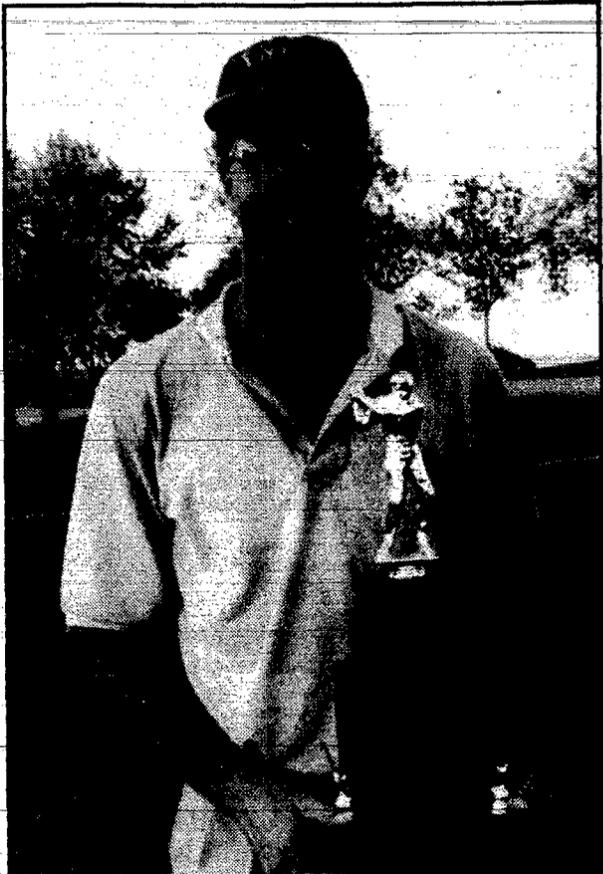

Hansen defended her previous two championships for a third consecutive title.

The women's net champion, however, was won by Diann Kinny with a 58.2 net score while Sandra Sutton was second at 64.6 followed by Hansen at 67 and Anne Volk at 69.9. Jill Sweetland was fifth in the net scoring in the championship flight with a 74.8.

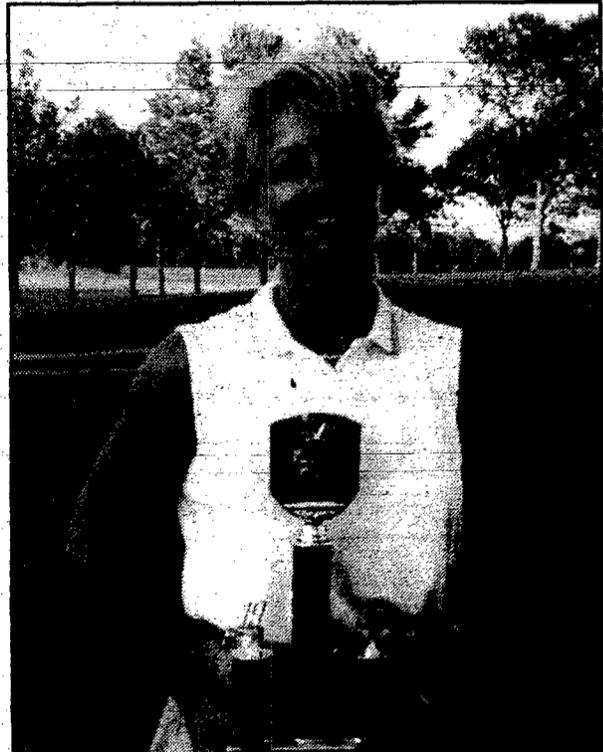

In the first flight Sue-Denton was the winner with a gross score of 89 followed by Bev Hitchcock at 98. Joni Holdorf was third in the scratch scoring with a 105 but Nancy Endicott was third in the net scoring after a scratch score of 109.

In the nine-hole event, Amy Bowers was the winner with a 38.5 net score while Gail McCorkindale was second with a 44.8 net score.

There were more than 125 golfers taking part in this year's event—the most in recent history.

Doug Rose captured the men's club championship with a two-over-par 110 over 27 holes.

Ginny Hansen won the women's club title with an 18-hole score of 76 to edge Sandra Sutton by one stroke.

Wayne State spikers set to begin 1998 season, Friday

By Kevin Peterson
Of the Herald

Last year the Wayne State Wildcats volleyball team rocked the volleyball country in the NCAA-Division II ranks with a victory over the number one team in the nation, UNO in Omaha.

Sharon Vanis' team went on to post the school's best record (23-14) since the 1991 team went 31-10.

The 'Cats also found themselves ranked the NCAA-Division II polls last season with their early season heroics but down the stretch WSC went 8-8 which thwarted any hopes of a post-season invite.

Entering her sixth year at the helm, Vanis has to replace four starters from that team including the setter, Kari Pickler, middle hitters Erin Pick and Amy Gudmundson and outside hitter Jennifer Rowse.

The Guilford College graduate, however, isn't shying away from the talents of this year's squad.

The two remaining starters are Renee Fuhr, an outside hitter and Jessie Pontow, a right side hitter.

The duo were the top two hitters off last year's team averaging 3.7 and 3.2 kill spikes per game, respectively.

The dynamic twosome also led the team in digs with Fuhr notching a single-season record 626 while Pontow had 464.

Other returning letterwinners include three-time letter-earners Carrie Fink and Amy Johnson and two-time letter winner Brenda Blausey along with Melissa Frahm and Wendy Miller, one-time letterwinners.

These seven ladies along with seven newcomers will don the Wildcats' Black-and-Gold in 1998.

The key newcomers include junior Kelli Parry, a 5-10 middle hitter from Northeastern Junior College in Colorado and a native of Sterling, Colorado along with junior Jodie Larsen, a transfer from Iowa Western Community College and a native of Herman, Neb.

Five freshman enter a new age of volleyball from the high school ranks including a pair of Norfolk High aces in Lindsey Koch and Erika Vonderhabe.

Jessie Erwin from Laurel, Melanie Kershaw of Grand Island Northwest and Manni Frerichs, a redshirt freshman from Elkhorn round out the squad of 14.

Also new to the team are assistant coaches Jon Misfeldt and Amy

Gudmundson. "Jon knows the game of volleyball and he knows my philosophy while Amy is a former player of ours," Vanis said. "There's been a normal amount of freshman mistakes by our young team but we're making strides."

Vanis said the team has already committed themselves to working as hard as they can to maintain the excellence the program has enjoyed after back-to-back 20-win seasons in 1996 and 1997.

"Right now it's just a matter of getting six kids together," Vanis said. "Right now it's day-to-day as to who will be starting."

One of this year's captains is a Wayne product, Carrie Fink.

"It felt really good to be voted on by my teammates as a co-captain with Renee Fuhr," Fink said. "We all get along very well together on and off the court."

Fink said she likes the challenge of being a team leader. "I think we'll have a very good team if everybody plays their respective role," Fink added. "We have some very talented freshman on the team who aren't shy about asking questions."

Fink enters her senior season looking for a starting spot on the team as a setter. The elementary education major said despite starting the season with 14 straight road contests, the focus will be on one match at a time.

"We want to make sure we take care of business in our house and then play as well as we can on the road," Fink said.

The 'Cats open the season this weekend at the Southwest State Tournament in Marshall, Minnesota.

Competition will come from the likes of Minnesota-Morris and South Dakota on Friday and Western Washington along with Northern State on Saturday.

The first of 10 home matches will take place on Thursday, Sept. 17 against Briar Cliff.

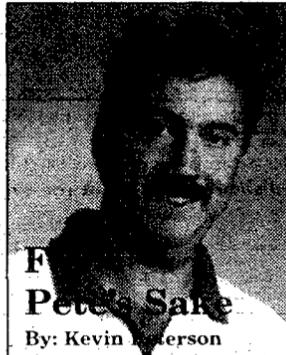

Reflections of the club golf tournament

To the champs go the spoils

The Club Golf Tournament was played Sunday with winners being crowned in 13 different divisions.

Congrats go out to Doug Rose and Ginny Hansen for winning the men's and women's championship flights.

After last week's column I was expecting about 37 people wanting to tee off with me since I bring out the best in everyone I compete with.

For Peter Saxe
By: Kevin Peterson

At any rate, there was a number of people who deserve mention for a job well done.

First, Mr. Rose. There's not a lot of golfers who can break the left pinky finger and compete, let alone win. It's a tribute to his desire and will to compete. He's got as much golfing ability as anyone in the area but what sets his game apart isn't his talent level—it's his mind.

For example: Coming in from the 18th green several people approached his cart to ask how he had shot. He replied, "71."

I waited a little while and then approached him to talk about his game. He mentioned he had scored well but he had scrambled a lot to get the score.

When I asked how the other people in his foursome shot, he had no idea. I reminded him that he had just played 18 holes with Ken Dahl, Rob Sweetland and Jim Shanks and he did remember that but he said he was focused on his game alone and not anyone else's.

Could that be the secret to golf? I can hardly wait until next season to try that approach.

Oh and by the way, I do have a pet peeve when it comes to golfers. I grow a little tiresome of hearing people talk of how they should have shot this or that.

The fact is you shot what you shot and not one stroke better. Every golfer alive can say they should have or could have saved a stroke here or there but if you could have, you would have.

Golf is a great sport in that each time you play, the course presents you with something different.

Just remember the next time you tell a fellow golfer that you should have won a match or a tournament based solely on your talents but that a couple putts didn't fall or a shot went out-of-bounds mysteriously, that maybe the guy that beat you can say the same thing about his game which means he still would have won.

Sunday's action marked the final time a championship was held at the Wayne Country Club with the current ninth green.

Wednesday, the green was torn up as improvements to the hole made it a necessity.

However, it also means that Dave Hix will go down in history as notching the final eagle on the ninth hole before it was redesigned.

Hix knocked a shot in from 50 yards for a three on the par five finishing hole.

He jokingly thought he should receive an award for that but I told him he would get something better. Recognition in my column.

And how about John Fuelberth. In the modern era of golf with all its technology here's a guy that's using the same golf clubs he used in the mid 70's—and successfully.

I've heard from more than one person that if John Fuelberth played golf three times a week there would be very few people who would be able to keep up with his talent. Jim Shanks placed runner-up in the tournament for the second straight year. Last year it was Ken Dahl edging him by a stroke and this year it was Doug Rose by two. Shanks' ball striking ability puts him in a class by himself, it's golf's breaks that haven't gone completely his way. Marty Summerfield and Rob Sweetland had one nine hole stretch of the three that plagued them or both may have had something to say about the outcome.

Predicted Increase in the Use of Herbal Medicines

According to a recent report in Pharmacy Today, annual sales of herbal medicines in the United States continue to rise by about 30 percent a year. The report goes on to indicate that this trend is expected to continue for at least the next 10 years.

The Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act of 1994 restricted the authority of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) over the regulation of herbal medicines. Therefore, less information is available to pharmacists and other health care providers about these products than for prescription and nonprescription medicines regulated by the FDA. However, interest in these products continues to grow. Some of the popular herbal medicines and suggested uses for these agents include feverfew (migraines), St. John's Wort (depression/anxiety).

Congrats also go out to Scott Metzler who gets this writer's vote as the most improved player at the club this year.

Metzler placed eighth in the championship flight which accomplished his goal of placing after rounds of 77-40.

Ken Dahl placed seventh in the tournament after his championship in 1997.

Back and shoulder problems did not help his cause in trying to repeat.

There were a number of first time flight winners including Jim Nelson in the first flight with a 73 after notching consecutive birdies on holes 13, 14 and 15.

Mike Barry was a first time champ

Doug Rose chips on to the number one green during the championship round of the Wayne's Men's Club Tournament, Sunday. Rose went on to win his third title in the last four years.

in flight three with an 82 and Quentin Preston was a first-time winner in flight five with an 89. Marv Nelson broke into the winners circle for the first time with an 89 to win the seventh flight and Randy Dunklau won the eighth flight with a 94, another first time winner. Brian Bowers was a first-time winner with a 100 in the last flight.

A special congrats to the Bowers duo of Brian and Amy as they both were crowned champions on Sunday, Brian by winning the ninth flight and Amy won her flight with a net score of 38.5.

The repeat winners included Lee Tietgen who I feel deserves mention for his 78 in winning the second flight.

Tietgen fired a 78 last season to win the third flight and his talents haven't dwindled.

Tim Sutton and Lowell Heggemeyer returned to the winner's circle by winning the fourth and sixth flights, respectively.

John Fuelberth tees off on hole number nine during the championship round.

Postsecondary teaching course offered via Internet, satellite Teaching in postsecondary settings, a class offered this fall at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will bring a variety of innovative teaching strategies to students who participate via satellite or the Internet.

Students who take the course via Internet will need a Pentium or Power PC computer with at least a 28.8 baud phone modem, a web browser, audio and video cards and a second phone line.

The course, which will be taught by Joyce Povlacs Lunde, a professor in Agricultural Leadership, Education and Communication, is aimed at both experienced and novice teachers.

The course is available for both graduate and undergraduate credit, with permission of the instructor, cost for graduate credit is $481.25, for undergraduate credit $363.75. Inservice registration also is available. Call (800) 755-7765 to register or for more information.

It will include discussions of learning theories and teaching methods, opportunities for teachers to demonstrate their own instructing styles and practice difference styles, and experience with distance-learning tools. Distance students in past courses have reported learning skills that can be applied immediately, Lunde said.

The department of Agricultural Leadership, Education and Communication is a part of NU's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources' College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources.

The course is offered on Tuesdays, 4:30-7:20 p.m. central time, from Aug. 25-Dec. 8. However, the registration deadline has been extended through Sept. 1.

The course will be available live on the Internet and also via satellite at sites in Grand Island, Norfolk, North Platte, Scottsbluff and Wayne. Other sites also can be arranged with the assistance of UNL staff.

Dave Hix drives the ball on hole number nine. Hix would go on to eagle the hole with a chip in from 50 yards.

Jim Shanks drives into the ball on hole number nine. Shanks finished runner-up in the tournament with a 112.

New president speaks to WSC faculty

The 1998-99 academic year officially opened at Wayne State College Aug. 24 with the annual opening meeting of the College's faculty. More than 140 faculty from across campus filled the Gardner Hall Auditorium to hear about the plans and visions for the upcoming year.

Dr. Jo Taylor, vice-president for academic affairs, presided at the meeting. In addition to short presentations by several of the College's vice presidents, Dr. Ken Halsey, WSC's interim president spoke to the group about what he termed, "The very important academic year ahead."

"We are still a regional public college on the verge of national distinction," Halsey stated. "The College is in very good hands as we enter this year. There is a solid experienced administrative management team in place and they are running the College quite well," Halsey said. He commented that the faculty was in charge of the most important part of the campus -- instruction of, and working with, the students at Wayne State.

Halsey noted the focus of Wayne State College will continue to be the five teaching-learning initiatives which were identified and communicated last year. He also noted achievement of those initiatives would not be possible without the individual efforts of everyone on the school's faculty. Those five initiatives include: improving course work and learning, particularly with regard to general education, communication skills, critical thinking, independent learning, and student/faculty interactions; development of technology to improve classroom instruction; enhancing the College's intellectual climate; examination of academic programs and the College's governance structure to streamline the process and allow for more timely decisions; and to examine the demands on faculty time and the impact such demands have on their work as it relates to the other initiatives above.

Halsey challenged all of the faculty to pull together and make this year a great one in the life of Wayne State College.

"The impact we have, the way we shape young lives, goes far beyond subjects," Halsey said. "The youth of today are as good as they have ever been, and I believe we must exemplify a positive role model. We must act as models, lead by example and serve as mentors. That is our job as educators," he said.

"We owe nothing less than our best professional efforts to our students," Halsey stated.

Evening classes began at WSC on Monday, with day all classes starting on Tuesday, Aug. 25.

Beetle populations threaten soybeans

"At this time in the summer, first and second generation bean leaf beetle populations overload and pose a serious threat to soybean pods and seeds," Keith Jarvi, UNL extension entomologist said. "Producers need to monitor these insects and be prepared to treat fields if necessary."

According to Jarvi, second generation bean leaf beetles overwinter as adults, and most lay eggs and die in early to mid-June. First generation beetles develop in 25 to 40 days, and emerge as adults in mid-July.

Their offspring, those second generation beetles which will overwinter, are now beginning to emerge. The lengthy development time span allows first and second generation beetles to coexist, and a number of beetles will be present for the remainder of the growing season, Jarvi said.

Because even small numbers of bean leaf beetles can cause yield loss due to pod feeding, Jarvi suggests that producers scout fields mid-morning or in the afternoon, sampling beetle numbers in five randomly selected sites.

The following table contains economic thresholds in beetles per sweep for bean leaf beetles on stage R6 soybeans, assuming an expected yield of 36.6 bushels per acre on 30-inch rows. Numbers in parenthesis indicate beetle numbers of beans drilled in 7-inch rows. Soybeans in Sate R6 have a green seed filling the pod cavity in one of the four uppermost nodes with fully-developed leaves (seeds touching).

For further scouting or treatment information, contact a county extension office or Keith Jarvi at (402) 270-4016.

Second mortgages require careful consideration

A steep drop in interest rates—backed by levels of advertising as high as the new rates are low—has driven homeowners rushing to mortgage lenders.

According to the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, more than half of current loan activity represents refinanced and second mortgages.

The inclination to borrow is almost quintessentially American. In a spring '98 college commencement speech, Vice President Al Gore welcomed new graduates to "...a universal distinction of adulthood: debt."

While low interest rates can be an effective financial planning tool, leveraging your house for the purpose of consolidating consumer debt may not be the miracle cure that some advertising might imply.

Debt: Is it inevitable?

"Each personal financial situation is too unique to generalize about the wisdom of borrowing against a house," said Ric Wilson of Waddell & Reed. "But proper management of debt—a second mortgage can be a debt tool—is an important part of any financial plan. Even the most sensible use of debt affects cash flow," he continued, "as well as the future capability to fund long-term objectives."

"Use of a second mortgage to consolidate debt has risks of its own," Wilson continued, "a second mortgage is not debt retirement, it's debt repositioning. Without fully considering all of the related short- and long-term effects, repositioning debt can create additional financial challenges."

If you can't stand the heat, don't remodel the kitchen

Questions for homeowners thinking of taking out a second mortgage include, among others:

• What is the true cost of a second mortgage?

The circumstances are important. New closing costs represent an immediate outlay of cash. And, borrowing always adds cost. For example, you might benefit from low rates to finance a college education, but loan interest adds to the cost of that education. It is important to calculate the real cost of paying for college through the use of a second mortgage.

• Am I putting myself at greater risk?

Adding a second mortgage can "tie up" a house well beyond its originally scheduled payoff

Moreover a homeowner, who uses a second mortgage to satisfy a current financial crisis, may intensify his or her financial struggles by having to make two payments instead of one.

• Am I tying up funds that could be put to better use?

The risk of lost opportunity to save and invest might be the biggest risk of all. A homeowner taking out a $20,000 second mortgage for 10 years at a hypothetical annual growth rate of 8 3/4 percent will accumulate principal and interest of $250.65 per month, or more than $30,000 in principal and interest during the life of the loan.

By contrast, investing $100 a month for 10 years at 8 3/4 percent will earn nearly $20,000. These are assets that may be better used for short-term expenses or long-term goals, such as college education or retirement.

Overcoming debt

Mortgage borrowing to retire consumer debt while acquiring still more consumer debt can be a huge pitfall. Wilson suggested that individuals develop a personal financial plan that addresses appropriate debt strategies, and short- and long-term financial goals...and that they stick to it. "There are effective ways to retire consumer debt while building resources for you and your family."

"For many people," Wilson said, their home is too important a component of their overall financial picture to be put at risk unnecessarily. Before deciding that a second home loan should be part of that picture," he continued, "homeowners should consider the short- and long term effects of a home equity loan, and assess the compatibility of such a loan—and its repayment—with their financial goals.

Reviewing 4-H happenings

By Amy Maichow
Extension Educator

As the county fair season draws to a close, and school resumes, it is the perfect time to reflect on what has been happening in 4-H.

Recently two very successful fairs in Dixon and Wayne Counties were held and this is to be attributed to the 4-H'ers, their families, 4-H leaders, superintendents, Ag Society members, and the numerous volunteers that unselfishly dedicate their time and talents to the 4-H program.

The University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Staff would like to express our thanks to everyone who helped in any way make the county fair season another positive educational experience for the individuals who participated.

The county fair was just one opportunity for the youth involved in the 4-H program to display the projects that they have spent so much time with.

The important thing to remember when attending a fair is the life skills that the 4-H'ers develop their communication skills as they participate in the interview judging process while they share what they have learned with a judge. They develop decision making skills when they choose what projects to be involved in or when choosing the best group of four cookies or muffins to exhibit.

4-H'ers also learn how to work with others. Not only at the fair do 4-H'ers work with other members and adults, but also prior to the fair as they are preparing their projects. With the county fair season draws to a close, these skills will continue to be practiced when 4-H'ers go back to school and participate in numerous activities.

Many Wayne and Dixon County 4-H'ers will also continue to practice these skills over the next few weeks at the 1998 Nebraska State Fair, Aug. 28-Sept. 7 in Lincoln.

4-H'ers from both Dixon and Wayne Counties will have the opportunity to have their exhibits displayed at the Nebraska State Fair. Some 4-H'ers will be participating the first weekend in the dog, cat, and goat shows, while others have a busy Labor Day Weekend with various contests and livestock shows.

Some of these events include the Horticulture Judging Contest, Tree, Weed, and Grass Identification Contest, the Family and Consumer Science Contest, Music Contest, Sheep Lead, and the beef, dairy and sheep shows. 4-H exhibits will also be on display from Aug. 28-Sept. 7 in the 4-H Exhibit Hall.

WEEKLY Health TIP

Fighting Hay Fever

If you are one of the millions of people who suffer from pollen-sensitive allergies, allergists have these tips: keep windows closed in the car and home, use air conditioning, avoid outdoor work in the early morning and late afternoon when pollen count is at its highest, wash your hair after spending time outside.

There are many over-the-counter medicines available. Always check with your doctor or pharmacist before taking over-the-counter medication if you are taking prescription medication.

Joi's health problems began when she was nine years old and include diabetes, two organ transplants, blindness, a painful nerve disease, addiction to painkiller drugs and lip cancer. She started speaking and singing in 1977 and since her blindness in 1988, her ministry has been full-time.

TEACHING IN TULCEA

During the second week in Romania, seven members of the Babadag team traveled to Tulcea, Romania, to find enthusiastic orphans with hearts open to the Gospel.

"A previous God's Children team had shared Christ's love with the Tulcea Children," Davis said. "When we arrived, they were open to learning about the Gospel and having a personal relationship with Jesus Christ."

"We were able to share Christ's love in many ways," Davis said. "What touched me most was when the young ladies in our team gave their dresses to the older girls at the orphanage. Before then, we couldn't distinguish the girls from the boys."

"Upon receiving the dresses, they sheepishly tried them on. Many had never worn a dress and they needed assistance putting them on. The transformation was incredible."

Based in Council Bluffs, Iowa, For God's Children International is a benevolent Christian ministry providing clothing, food, medical supplies, and love to Jesus. Each year the organization sponsors several two week trips to reach out to Romanian orphans.

The Library Card

This column is written occasionally to inform the Wayne area as to what types of reading material and other items are available at the Wayne Public Library.

Meet Eleanor Roosevelt: A One Woman Show.

- Wednesday, Sept. 9, 7:30 p.m., Ley Theater, Wayne State College.
- Thursday, Sept. 10, 12:50-1:50 p.m., Lecture Hall, Wayne High School.
- Thursday, Sept. 10, 7 p.m., Wayne Public Library/Senior Center.

The Nebraska Division of the United Nations with help from the Nebraska Humanities Council, is presenting Elena Dodd as Mrs. Roosevelt on a personal visit discussing the various stages of her life. Mrs. Roosevelt will also present her view on social issues. As the United States Delegate to the United Nations, she was selected to be the Chair of the Commission on Human Rights and was mandated to draft The Universal Declaration of Human Rights in 1948.

Her discipline, sense of humor and ready soft smile have endowed on her the title of "Great Humanitarian." As stated in the preamble: "Recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world..."

Each one of us must be aware of the 30 articles in the Universal Declaration and then stand up and speak out for them for everyone. The decade of 1998 through 2008 has been proclaimed for each of us, individually and then as organizations, to examine our Human Rights and those of our brothers and sisters.

This program is brought to you by the Nebraska Chapter of United Nations Association with a grant from the Nebraska Humanities Council, the American Association of University Women (AAUW) - Wayne Branch, the Wayne Public Library, the Wayne Library Foundation, the Wayne High School, the Lions Club, the Rotary Club, PEO Chapters A7 and ID, the Wayne Education Association and the Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation and Development Council.

For more information about "Meet Eleanor Roosevelt" call Jotene Klein at 375-3135 or Meenakshi Dalal at 375-5714.

The library bids farewell to one of our aides, LeAnn Kunz. We wish her and her husband great success as they try a new venture in Iowa. We will miss her helpfulness and her smile.

Our summer library hours are Monday-Friday, noon-8 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and closed Sundays. We will resume winter library hours after Labor Day. Our phone number is (402) 375-3135, and fax number is (402) 375-5772. Fax charges are $1 per page.

ROMANIAN ORPHANS

Patti Davis of Wakefield had her arms full, holding and hugging Romanian orphans during a two-week trip with For God's Children International (FGCI).

With 17 teammates from Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota, Davis helped renovate an orphanage wing in Babadag, Romania, and provide a modified vacation Bible School for orphans in Tulcea, Romania.

Mrs. Davis is the wife of Christian Church Pastor Glen Davis.

While the majority of Mrs. Davis' time was spent on the projects above, she saw the most need during two day spent painting an orphanage and school for boys age 8-18.

"My heart really went out to the orphans in Zebil," Davis said. "Dozens of boys of all ages came running to welcome us. They were so well mannered and appreciative of us when they had so little."

"Their trim and sometimes skinny bodies were dressed in ragged clothes with mis-matched shoes. Some had just one shoe and often no shoes. They were dirty, but the smiles they shared were so genuine," Davis said. "I only hope we can do more for them next year."

HUGS FOR BABIES

At the Babadag Orphanage or "leaganul" in Romanian, Team members spent mornings playing with toddlers—holding them, combing their hair, blowing bubbles or letting them look at themselves in mirrors. The orphanage holds 118 children ages three months to three years.

"At first, some of the children didn't know what hugs were," said Mrs. Davis, an administrative assistant at Nebraska Christian College in Fremont. "They were stiff in our arms. They didn't know what it was like to be picked up and held. But that didn't last long. Soon, they shrieked when they saw us and as soon as you picked up one child, two more would be clinging to your legs."

God's children group goal is to help orphans feel like precious children of God. Besides giving each child personal attention, the organization provides new clothes and shoes to each child. The team members collected 36 large boxes of clothes, medical supplies, food and toys, which were distributed to four orphanages.

"While the caretakers are over-worked, with one lady for every 20 children, they really do care about the children," Davis said. "When we asked what their needs were, they spoke of the children first."

The volunteers scraped loose paint and mildew from the walls and ceilings, puttied holes, cleaned flooring, painted walls, and white washed ceilings. Before they left a 21-room wing of orphanage was finished. Fifty additional orphans, expected this fall, will fill the newly remodeled wing.

ANOTHER WINNING TICKET

Pat Jepsen is another big winner in the Nebraska Lottery's Truck & Buck's Ill Scratch game.

Pat, who lives in Kearney, said he had been buying tickets in hopes of winning the Grand Prize, but it was a ticket purchased in his hometown of Wakefield, which netted him the prize.

The winning ticket was purchased at the Fair Store in Wakefield. Larry Soderberg, is the store owner.

Pat picked up the bright red 1998 Dodge Ram Quad Cab pickup from lottery headquarters in Lincoln last Friday, Aug. 14 and was in Wakefield on Tuesday to show off the prize.

Pat's winning ticket was the second one in Wakefield. In June, Israel Rodriguez purchased a winning truck ticket from the Amoco C Store.

A total of seven new Dodge pickups were scheduled to be given away by the Nebraska Lottery in the Truck & Buck's Ill game plus an eighth one in the Second Chance Drawing on Sept. 19. As of Wednesday, Aug. 19, there were still two unclaimed pickups.

A Lottery representative had visited with Larry Soderberg about a week before the winning ticket was sold. He said sales on the Truck & Buck's tickets were slow. He thought it was because people thought all the trucks had been won. He told Larry at that point there were still four unclaimed truck prizes, so Larry told him to give him some of the tickets to sell.

The Nebraska Lottery takes care of sales and withholding taxes on all prize vehicles won, and Quad Cab winners receive $1,084 to help with any additional expenses incurred in ownership.

Each prize truck has the Laramie SLT Sport package, 1500 Series 5.2 Liter V-8 transmission four-wheel and anti-lock brakes, keyless remote entry, six-way, power driver's seat, leather interior group, AM/FM stereo cassette, and much more. Total value of the prize is estimated at $40,600.

BACK TO SCHOOL

Classes for Wakefield youth began on Aug. 26 at 8:15 with the traditional flag raising ceremony. Students were greeted by several new staff members including a new superintendent and a new elementary principal, as well as other new certified staff and support staff.

Michael Moody is the new superintendent. He and his family come from Superior where he was elementary principal.

Supt. Moody earned his bachelor of Science and Master's degrees from Chadron State College, and his specialist degree at University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He is working on his doctoral degree through a joint program at UNL and the University of Nebraska-Omaha in Educational Administration.

Supt. Moody's wife, Anne, has a degree in special education and will be on the staff of the Pender/Thurston School this year. The couple has four children, three daughters and a son.

Paul will be in the fourth grade, Lisa in the sixth grade, Melissa will be a sophomore, and Jessica who is currently in Europe, will be joining her junior classmates in early September. The family is presently living in a rural home a couple miles from Wakefield.

According to Supt. Moody, Jessica was active with a French Club in Superior and was disappointed that she was going to miss out on an opportunity to go to France, because the family would be moving to Wakefield. Family and friends offered for her to join them when they went on a teaching assignment and touring there this summer.

Jennifer Widner of Wayne will be the new elementary principal. Margaret Hesse, the principal a year ago, recently resigned to accept a full time position elsewhere.

Ms. Widner is a lifelong resident of Wayne. She recently completed her course work at Wayne State College to become a principal. A year ago she was the K-12 library medical specialist at the Laurel School.

She has two sons, Jordan, who will be a sophomore at Wayne High School, and Josh, a sixth grader. Ms. Widner's position is not full time, but she said she will be at the Wakefield school four days a week and possibly more.

Three others join Ms. Widner as new members of the elementary staff. Matt Brenn will teach a combination room of fifth and sixth graders while Terri Samuelson will teach a fifth grade class and Deb Garwood will teach a sixth grade class.

Brenn and his July bride, Anne, are living in Wayne. Anne is a new staff member at Nebraska State Bank in Wakefield.

Michelle Hays joins Kathy Johnson as the fourth grade teachers. Ms. Hays is a 1998 graduate of Midland Lutheran College in Fremont. She will also be the assistant girls basketball coach and is from Wahoo. She is calling Pender home.

Cathy Stading, along with Kathy Muller, will be the first grade teachers.

Ms. Stading will also be the assistant volleyball coach. She is a Beaver City native and graduated from Hastings College in 1995.

She taught eighth grade students in a class I school (rural) at Berwyn and last school term was substitute teacher in the Broken Bow School System. Ms. Stading is living in Wakefield.

Lynette Haisch of Laurel will be the K-12 Title I instructor. She received her degree from WSC and did her student teaching at Wakefield. She has been working at Security National Bank in Laurel.

Her husband Bruce farms near Laurel and also drives truck. Ms. Haisch graduated from Dodge High School.

Jan Theobald is one of two English instructors joining the secondary staff. Ms. Theobald and her family come to northeast Nebraska from LaCrosse, Wis. She received her degree from Mankato Minnesota State University and has taught at Brookings SD and at Red Falls, Minn. She is originally from White, SD.

Ms. Theobald's husband Paul is the Dean of Education at WSC. The couple has three daughters, BriAnna, 12, Renee, 10, and Alayna, 7, who will be attending school in Wayne.

Justing Smith of Hamburg, Iowa will be teaching English classes as well as Speech. He is also the new head Football Coach.

Coach Smith is a May graduate of Dana College in Blair. He coached while at Dana and he also taught at Omaha Central last spring. He is living in Wayne.

Eric Morgenstern is the new science instructor. He is originally from Colorado and has been teaching in Alaska. He earned his teaching degree from Metropolitan State College in Denver, Colo.

Morgenstern's wife, Jen and infant son David, are at home in rural Wakefield.

Long time Wakefield High School instructor and coach John Torczon has been appointed Activities Director. He replaces Brad Hoskins who resigned this summer to pursue a business career in a Pender company.

In accepting the position of Activities Director, Torczon will not be an assistant football coach. He will be the head Track coach next spring and continue to teach social studies and history classes.

Other new staff members include Kristi Foote as head cook. She will be joined in the kitchen by Roxanne Thompson, cook, Barb Hickson, dishwasher and Donna Johnson, ice cream server.

Fred Barge is the new maintenance man, and Kaye McAfee joins the bus driving staff. Stan McAfee will be a substitute driver and has also been appointed to fill the vacancy on the school board.

Butch Utemark resigned his board position effective Aug. 31, as he and his family will be leaving Wakefield to live at Spencer, Iowa.

Becky Hoffman will be new K-12 Library Media Aide, and Chris Salmon joins the specialized staff as a K-12 speech language pathologist.

J.M. GARDNER SCHOLARSHIP

Austin Lueth of Wakefield has received a Jeanne M. Gardner Scholarship to continue his studies at Wayne State College this fall.

Lueth, a 1997 graduate of Wakefield Community School, is the son of Roger and Lori Lueth.

Jeanne Gardner provides full tuition scholarships each year for employees at Jeanne's at the Haskell House in Wakefield who qualify and are full or part time students.
